5. An angelic viſion appears to them, as they ſtood gazing towards heaven after their dear Lord, as he went up, willing to catch the laſt poſſible glimpſe of him, and keeping ſtill their eyes fixed on the place where he became inviſible to them. Two celeſtial ſpirits in human forms, arrayed in white apparel, the emblem of their purity and grandeur, ſtood by them, and kindly addreſſed them, ſaying, Ye men of Galilee, why ſtand ye gazing up into heaven? as if ye expected your Lord and Maſter to return quickly unto you; this ſame Jeſus, which was delivered for your offences, and died on a tree, is now taken up from you into heaven, exalted to the mediatorial throne, as having finiſhed the redemption of his people, and is gone to prepare a place for them; ſhall ſo come in like manner, at the laſt day of his appearing and glory, in the clouds of heaven, attended by his angelic hoſt, as ye have ſeen him go into heaven. Oh that we may be ready to meet him in that great day! Oh that the expectation of it might be deep upon our minds continually!

12. [u] Then returned they unto Jeruſalem from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jeruſalem a ſabbath-day's journey. 13. And when they were come in, they went up [x] into an upper-room, where abode both [y] Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James the ſon of Alpheus, and [z] Simon Zelotes, and [a] Judas the brother of James. 14, [b] Theſe all continued with one accord in prayer and ſupplication with the women, and Mary the mother of Jeſus, and with [c] his brethren.

[u] Luke xxiv. 52.
[x] Chap. ix. 37. 39. & xx 8.
[y] Mat. x. 3.
[z] Luke vi. 15.
[a] Jude 1.
[b] Chap. ii. 1, 42, 46.
[c] Mat. xiii. 55.

v. 12—14. We have here,

1. The place from whence our Lord aſcended, the mount Olivet, about a mile from Jeruſalem. There his ſufferings began, in the garden, and thence he entred into his glory as a triumphant conqueror, (Zech. xiv. 4.) in full view of that devoted city, for which judgment was now prepared.

2. The return of the diſciples. They came back to the city according to their Maſter's orders, and when they were come in, either into a private houſe, or, as ſome ſuppoſe, into the temple itſelf; ſee Luke xxiv. 53. they went into an upper room, for greater ſecreſy. If this was in the temple, they might be accommodated by ſome prieſt or Levite, who was a hidden diſciple, with a room there; or, if it was in the city, though they conſtantly attended the temple ſervice, they met in private there, and ſpent their time, with one accord, in prayer and ſupplications for the coming of that Comforter who was promiſed. The eleven apoſtles are particularly mentioned, all of whom kept cloſe together, with the women, who had approved their fidelity, love, and zeal, in a very diſtinguiſhed manner, and Mary the mother of Jeſus, concerning whom we hear no more mention ever after; and his brethren, thoſe of Chriſt's kinſmen who now believed on him; ſee Matth. xiii. 53. with many others. Note, (1.) It is good for the diſciples of Jeſus to unite together: the world is cloſely leagued againſt them. They need therefore maintain the cloſeſt fellowſhip with each other. (2.) Prayer is the bleſſed and conſtant employment of God's people; and eſpecially in all ſeaſons of particular trial, when their faith and patience are called into exerciſe, they have need to redouble their ſupplications. (3.) Nothing can be denied to the united prayers of the faithful, who with one accord ſurround a throne of grace in the name of Jeſus.

15. ¶ And in thoſe days Peter ſtood up in the midſt of the diſciples, and ſaid, (the number of [d] the names together were about an hundred and twenty) 16. Men and brethren, This ſcripture muſt needs have been fulfilled, [e] which the holy Ghoſt by the mouth of David ſpake before concerning Judas, [f] which was guide to them that took Jeſus. 17. For [g] he was numbred with us, and had obtained part of [h] this miniſtry. 18. [i] Now this man purchaſed a field with the reward of iniquity; and falling headlong, he burſt aſunder in the midſt, and

[d] Rev. iii. 4.
[e] Pſ. xli. 9.
[f] John xiii. 18. & xviii. 3.
[g] Luke vi. 16.
[h] Chap. xii. 25. & xx. 24. & xxi. 19.
[i] Mat. xxvii. 5, 7, 8.

all his bowels guſhed out. 19. And it was known unto all the dwellers at Jeruſalem; inſomuch as that field is called in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to ſay, The field of blood. 20. For it is written in the book of Pſalms, [k] Let his habitation be deſolate, and let no man dwell therein: and [l] his † biſhoprick let another take. 21. Wherefore of theſe men which have accompanied with us all the time that the Lord Jeſus went in and out among us, 22. [m] Beginning from the baptiſm of John, unto that ſame day that [n] he was taken up from us, muſt one be ordained [o] to be a witneſs with us of his reſurrection. 23. And they appointed two, Joſeph called [p] Barſabas, who was ſurnamed Juſtus, and Matthias.
24. And they prayed, and ſaid, Thou, Lord, [q] which knoweſt the hearts of all men, ſhew whether of theſe two thou haſt choſen, 25. That he may take part of this miniſtry and apoſtleſhip, from which Judas by tranſgreſſion fell, that he might go to his own place. 26.
And [r] they gave forth their lots; and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apoſtles.

[k] Pſ. lxix. 25.
[l] Ibid. cix, 8.
† Or office, or charge.
[m] Mark i. 1.
[n] Ver. 9.
[o] John xv. 27. Ver. 8. Chap. 32. & iv. 33.
[p] Chap. xv. 22.
[q] 1 Sam. xvi. 7. 1 Chron. xxviii. 9. & xxix. 17. Jer. xi. 20. & xvii. 10. Chap. xv. 8. Rev. ii. 23.
[r] 1 Chron. xxiv. 5.

v. 15—26. At one of thoſe ſolemn meetings, where about an hundred and twenty of the diſciples were aſſembled, Peter, the zealous ſervant of his Lord, ſtood up in the midſt of them; not affecting to ſit, as their maſter or ſuperior, but propoſing a matter to them as his equals. We have,

1. His ſpeech. He addreſſes them as his friends, companions, and brethren in Chriſt; and having an important propoſal to make to them, he reminds them of the fulfilment of the ſcripture, in the wickedneſs and miſerable end of Judas the traitor, whoſe treachery the Holy Ghoſt having foreſeen and foretold, it could not but come to paſs, and none ought to be offended thereat. As an aggravation of his guilt, Peter obſerves,

(1.) The high dignity to which he was advanced. He was numbred with us, and had obtained part of this miniſtry; and this but the more aggravated his ſin and ruin. Note, Many are numbred with us who are not of us; but a name to live, whilſt perſons are really dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, will avail nothing.

(2.) His ſin was treachery. He was guide to them that took Jeſus; a ringleader in iniquity, as apoſtates uſually prove.

(3.) His end was notorious. His money, the wages of unrighteouſneſs, ſerved only to buy a field to bury ſtrangers; and driven by the devil and a deſpairing conſcience, he went and hanged himſelf: when the rope, or the place on which he hung, giving way, he fell; and his belly burſting aſunder, his bowels guſhed out; a fearful exit! of which great notice was deſervedly taken; the fact being publickly known in Jeruſalem, and noiſed abroad, inſomuch that the people called the field purchaſed by this money, Aceldama, or The field of blood, with reſpect to the innocent blood, of which it was the price; perpetuating thereby the infamy, not only of the traitor who ſold his maſter, but of the rulers who tempted him to this atrocious deed.

(4.) He cites the Book of Pſalms, in which the prophecy relating to Judas was found. Let his habitation be deſolate, and let no man dwell therein, Pſal. lxix. 25. and his biſhoprick let another take, Pſal. cix. 8.

(5.) He propoſes to them, according to this prophetic word, that the ſacred college ſhould be filled up, by the addition of one to their number, out of thoſe who had approved themſelves from the beginning faithful; and had been among the firſt who followed Jeſus, and privy to all the tranſactions concerning him, from the time he was baptized of John in Jordan, till his aſcenſion to glory; that he might with them be a witneſs of his reſurrection, of that grand article of faith, as well as of all the other glorious things relative to Chriſt's divine miſſion and character. Note, (1.) None ſhould be admitted into the miniſtry, but ſuch as for a ſeaſon have proved their fidelity to Chriſt, in a courſe of holy walking with him. (2.) They who have known Chriſt, and the power of his reſurrection in their ſouls, cannot but make him the ſubject of all their diſcourſes.

2. The church approving the propoſal, nominated two, Joſeph and Matthias; and not knowing which to prefer, they applied to God, the ſearcher of hearts, by prayer for direction, that he would be pleaſed to ſhew them, which of theſe he had choſen to take part of that miniſtry and apoſtleſhip, from which Judas by tranſgreſſion fell, that he might go to his own place, the dire abode prepared for fallen angels and rebellious ſinners. Note, (1.) In our emergencies, we ſhould never fail to look up to God for direction. (2.) Apoſtates from Chriſt neceſſarily plunge themſelves into perdition and deſtruction.

3. Having commended the matter to God's determination, they ſolemnly caſt lots; when the Lord, at whoſe diſpoſal the lot is, Prov. xvi. 33. appointed Matthias, who was thenceforward numbered with the eleven apoſtles.

CHAP. II.

Here is, 1. The deſcent of the Spirit upon the apoſtles, and thoſe that were with them, on the day of Pentecoſt, ver. 1—4. 2. The various ſpeculations which this occaſioned among the people that were now met in Jeruſalem from all parts, ver. 5—13. 3. The ſermon which Peter preached to them hereupon, ver. 14—36. 4. The good effect of this ſermon in the converſion of many to the faith of Chriſt, and their addition to the church, ver. 37—41. 5. The eminent piety and charity of thoſe primitive Chriſtians, and the manifeſt tokens of God's preſence with them, and power in them, ver. 42—47.

1. AND when [a] the day of Pentecoſt was fully come,
[b] they were all with one accord in one place. 2.
And ſuddenly there came a ſound from heaven, as of a ruſhing mighty wind, and [c] it filled all the houſe where they were ſitting. 3. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, [d] like as of fire, and it ſat upon each of them. 4. And [e] they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and began to [f] ſpeak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

[a] Lev. xxiii. 15. Deut. xvi. 19.
[b] Chap. i. 14. Ver. 46.
[c] Chap. iv. 31.
[d] Mat. iii. 11.
[e] Chap. i. 5.
[f] Mark xvi. 17. Chap. x. 46. 1 Cor. xii. 10, 28, 30. & xiii. 1. & xiv. 2, &c.

v. 1—4. The great promiſe here receives its accompliſhment in the miſſion of the Holy Ghoſt upon the diſciples. We have,

1. The time: When the day of Pentecoſt, the fiftieth from the paſſover, was fully come, in the morning, they were all with one accord in one place; it being the firſt day of the week, which they obſerved in memory of their Lord's reſurrection, and conſecrated alſo now by the pouring out of the Spirit upon them. No longer ſtrifes or diſcord divided them; united in fervent charity, they waited the fulfilment of their maſter's promiſe. Note, (1.) They who wait upon God in the aſſembly of his ſaints, ſhall find him by his Spirit ſtill preſent in the midſt of them. (2.) God will delight to dwell with thoſe whoſe hearts, by fervent charity, are united in his ſervice.

2. The manner in which the Holy Ghoſt deſcended. Suddenly there came a ſound from heaven, as of a ruſhing mighty wind, an emblem of the freedom of the Spirit's operations, and of his irreſiſtible energy on the minds of men; and it filled all the houſe where they were ſitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, ſignifying the illuminating, warming, and purifying influences of the Spirit upon their ſouls, and the amazing gift of tongues beſtowed upon them with that freedom of utterance, whereby they were enabled to preach the goſpel among all nations; and it, or he, ſat upon each of them; the Holy Ghoſt, in all the fulneſs of his miraculous operations, now taking up his conſtant reſidence in them, to qualify them for the arduous ſervice to which they were ordained. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt; not only the apoſtles, but all the diſciples; and probably the women, as well as the men, v. 17, 18. experiencing ſuch divine joys and conſolations as they had never experienced before; and began to ſpeak with other tongues, in all the variety of languages, as the Spirit gave them utterance, ſuggeſting both the matter and words, and enabling them with the greateſt copiouſneſs and moſt forcible energy to declare the wonderful works of God, v. 11. in the goſpel of his dear Son.

5. And there were dwelling at Jeruſalem Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven. 6. Now when this was noiſed abroad, the multitude came together, and were † confounded, becauſe that every man heard them ſpeak in his own language. 7. And they were all amazed and marvelled, ſaying one to another, Behold, are not all theſe which ſpeak, [g] Galileans? 8.
And how hear we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born? 9. Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Meſopotamia, and in Judea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Aſia, 10. Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and ſtrangers of Rome, Jews and proſelytes, 11. Cretes and Arabians, we do hear them ſpeak in our tongues the wonderful works of God. 12.
And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, ſaying one to another, What meaneth this? 13. Others mocking, ſaid, Theſe men are [h] full of new wine.

† Or troubled in mind.
[g] Chap. i. 11.
[h] Mat. xi. 19.

v. 5—13. Such an extraordinary occurrence was ſoon ſpread abroad, and brought a vaſt concourſe together. We have,

1. The perſons. Devout men, who dwelt at Jeruſalem, out of every nation under heaven; both Jews and Proſelytes, who were now aſſembled at the feaſt of Pentecoſt, or as ſome ſuppoſe, had taken up their reſidence there, in expectation of the ſpeedy appearing of the Meſſiah.

2. The amazement which filled them at hearing theſe men, that were poor illiterate Galileans, ſpeak with ſuch fluency and propriety, all the various languages and dialects of their reſpective countries, Parthians, Medes, &c. They could not, therefore, but with wonder and ſurprize, obſerve to each other, how aſtoniſhing was this miracle, and queſtion what could be the meaning of it, and whether it uſhered in the long-expected kingdom of the Meſſiah? for they heard them ſpeak in their ſeveral native tongues the great things of God, reſpecting the redemption which was in Jeſus Chriſt, and the glorious privileges obtained by his death, reſurrection, and aſcenſion for all believers.

3. Some mocking, ſaid, Theſe men are full of new wine; a cavil moſt wicked, abſurd, and blaſphemous. Probably theſe were inhabitants of Jeruſalem, the ſcribes and Phariſees, who not underſtanding the languages which the inſpired diſciples ſpoke, thought it nonſenſe, and would fain have branded them as drunkards, that they might prejudice the people againſt them, by this moſt malicious falſhood. Note, There are ſtill too many to whom the great things of God appear unintelligible; and becauſe they are themſelves deſtitute of ſpiritual underſtanding, they brand the preachers of them as enthuſiaſts, ſpeaking evil of the things they know not.

14. ¶ But Peter ſtanding up with the eleven, lift up his voice, and ſaid unto them, Ye men of Judea, and all ye that dwell at Jeruſalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words: 15. For theſe are not drunken, as ye ſuppoſe, [i] ſeeing it is but the third hour of the day. 16. But this is that which was ſpoken by the prophet Joel. 17. [k] And it ſhall come to paſs in the laſt days, (ſaith God) [l] I will pour out of my Spirit upon all fleſh: and your ſons and [m] your daughters ſhall propheſy; and your young men ſhall ſee viſions, and your old men ſhall dream dreams: 18. And on my ſervants, and on my handmaidens I will pour out in thoſe days of my Spirit, and they ſhall propheſy: 19. And I will ſhew wonders in heaven above, and ſigns in the earth beneath; blood, and fire, and vapour of ſmoke. 20. [n] The ſun ſhall be turned into darkneſs, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come. 21. And it ſhall come to paſs, that [o] whoſoever ſhall call on the name of the Lord, ſhall be ſaved. 22. Ye men of Iſrael, hear theſe words; Jeſus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you [p] by miracles and wonders and ſigns, which God did by him in the midſt of you, as ye yourſelves alſo know: 23. Him, [q] being delivered by the determinate counſel and foreknowledge of God, [r] ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and ſlain: 24. [s] Whom God hath raiſed up, having looſed the pains of death: becauſe it was not poſſible that he ſhould be holden of it. 25. For David ſpeaketh concerning him, [t] I foreſaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I ſhould not be moved. 26. Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad: moreover alſo, my fleſh ſhall reſt in hope. 27. Becauſe thou wilt not leave my ſoul in hell, neither wilt thou ſuffer thine holy One to ſee corruption. 28. Thou haſt made known to me the ways of life; thou ſhalt make me full of joy with thy countenance. 29. Men and brethren, let me freely ſpeak unto you of the patriarch David, [u] that he is both dead and buried, and his ſepulchre is with us unto this day: 30. Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that [x] God had ſworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the fleſh, he would raiſe up Chriſt to ſit on his throne: 31. He ſeeing this before, ſpake of the reſurrection of Chriſt, [y] that his ſoul was not left in hell, neither his fleſh did ſee corruption. 32. [z] This Jeſus hath God raiſed up, [a] whereof we all are witneſſes. 33. Therefore [b] being by the right hand of God exalted, and [c] having received of the Father the promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt, he hath [d] ſhed forth this, which ye now ſee and hear. 34. For David is not aſcended into the heavens: but he ſaith himſelf, [e] The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 35. Until I make thy foes thy footſtool. 36. Therefore let all the houſe of Iſrael know aſſuredly, that God hath [f] made that ſame Jeſus whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Chriſt.

[i] 1 Theſ. v. 7.
[k] Iſa. xliv. 3. Ezek. xi. 19. & xxxvi. 27. Joel ii. 28. Zech. xii. 10. John vii. 38.
[l] Chap. x. 45.
[m] Ibid. xxi. 9.
[n] Joel ii. 31. Mat. xxiv. 29.
[o] Rom. x. 13.
[p] Mat. xi. 4, &c. John iii. 2. & v. 36. Heb. ii. 4.
[q] Mark xiv. 21. Chap. iv. 28.
[r] Chap. v. 30.
[s] Ver. 32. Chap. iii. 15. & iv. 10. & x. 40. & xiii. 30, 34. & xvii. 31. Rom. iv. 24. & xi. 8. 1 Cor. vi. 14. & xv. 15. Gal. i. 1. Eph. i. 20. Col. ii. 12. 1 Theſ. i. 10. Heb. xiii. 20. 1 Pet. i. 21.
[t] Pſ. xvi. 8.
[u] 1 Kings ii. 10. Chap. xiii. 36.
[x] Pſ. cxxxii. 11. Luke i. 32. Rom. i. 3. 2 Tim. ii. 8.
[y] Pſ. xvi. 10. Chap. xiii. 35.
[z] Ver. 24.
[a] Chap. i. 8. & iii. 15. & v. 32. & x. 39.
[b] Chap. v. 31. Phil. ii. 9.
[c] John xiv. 26. & xv. 26. Chap. i. 4.
[d] Chap. x. 45.
[e] Pſ. cx. 1. Mat. xxii. 44. 1 Cor. xv. 25. Eph. i. 20. Heb. i. 13.
[f] Chap. v. 13.

v. 14—36. In anſwer to the malicious cavil of theſe enemies to the truth, Peter, the zealous ſpeaker, and now inſpired by peculiar influences from on high, aroſe and boldly addreſſed to theſe mockers this awakening diſcourſe.

1. He ſtood up with the eleven, to ſhew the falſhood of the charge, and vindicate themſelves from ſo malicious an accuſation: and aloud directing his diſcourſe to the Jews, who were preſent, begs attention to the words of truth and ſoberneſs, which he was about to utter. Note, We muſt not return a ſharp anſwer to a reviling accuſation, but with meekneſs anſwer thoſe who oppoſe themſelves againſt us.

2. He denies the calumny, and ſhews it to be as abſurd as malicious. Theſe men are not drunken, as ye ſuppoſe, and would inſinuate, ſeeing it is but the third hour of the day, but nine o'clock in the morning; and till then, on the ſabbaths and feſtivals, the Jews uſually did neither eat nor drink; nor was it at all probable, that ſo many as they were, they ſhould have been guilty of ſuch a debauch, or dare appear intoxicated in the houſe of God.

3. He explains to them an affair which they counted ſo ſtrange, which ſome admired and others ridiculed. This was the accompliſhment of the prophecy of Joel, chap. ii. 28—32. which he cites at large; for though himſelf inſpired, the Spirit was not given to ſuperſede the ſcriptures, but to enable us to underſtand them. God had promiſed in the laſt days, the days of the Meſſiah, which uſhered in the laſt diſpenſation of grace, I will pour out of my Spirit, in a more extraordinary meaſure than ever before, upon all fleſh; on ſome of all ranks and conditions, or upon the Gentiles as well as Jews: and your ſons and your daughters ſhall propheſy, foretelling future events, chap. xx. 9, 10. and your young men ſhall ſee viſions, and your old men ſhall dream dreams; God, in theſe ways, revealing to them his mind and will: and on my ſervants, and my handmaidens, on perſons of all conditions, women as well as men, without diſtinction of rank or ſex; I will pour out in thoſe days of my ſpirit, as from an inexhauſtible fountain, and they ſhall propheſy: and I will ſhew wonders in heaven above, dreadful prodigies in the air, which were the prelude to the approaching ruin of the Jewiſh nation, for their obſtinate infidelity and rejection of the Meſſiah; and ſigns in the earth beneath, dire preſages of impending woes: blood, and fire, and pillars of ſmoke, the blood of the people ſhed by the invading foe, whoſe devaſtations ſhould ſpread through the country, and the ſmoak of their cities conſumed in flames, which ſhould obſcure the ſky. The ſun ſhall be turned into darkneſs, and the moon into blood, ſuffering unuſual eclipſes, or looking red, through the duſky clouds of ſmoke; or this may ſignify the approaching total diſſolution of their government, before the great and terrible day of the Lord come, when he ſhall execute ſuch condign vengeance on his murderers, as no nation, ſince the burning of Sodom, ever ſuffered, and when he ſhall be glorified in his judgments. And it ſhall come to paſs, that whoſoever, diſcerning the ſigns of theſe times, ſhall call on the name of the Lord, the almighty Jehovah, Jeſus, ſpoken of in this prophecy, placing their dependance on him alone for ſalvation, and in fervent prayer making their application to him for help, they ſhall be ſaved by his power and grace from all the evils they fear, in time or eternity, and be made partakers of his eternal glory. Lord, pour out a ſpirit of prayer and ſupplication upon me, that I may be of this bleſſed number!

4. He improves this occaſion, in order to preach to them Jeſus, whoſe gift and purchaſe this Spirit was, which now was ſhed abroad ſo abundantly upon them, intreating their attention to the important truths he was about to deliver.

[1.] He reminds them of his well-known life and character. Jeſus of Nazareth, a name they gave him by way of reproach, but a man approved of God among you; evidently ſignalized with his peculiar favour, by miracles, and wonders, and ſigns, which he was enabled to work in proof of his divine miſſion, which God did by him in the midſt of you, as ye yourſelves alſo know; bearing his atteſtation to the character he aſſumed, and they themſelves had been eye-witneſſes of theſe wonderful works.

[2.] They had, notwithſtanding, rejected his credentials, and hung him on a tree. Him, this glorious Meſſiah, delivered by the determinate counſel and foreknowledge of God, ordained as a ſacrifice to divine juſtice, ye have taken and ſeized as a criminal, and by wicked hands have crucified and ſlain; engaging the Gentile governor to bring him to this ignominious death; and his innocent blood is now upon your heads.

[3.] God had raiſed him, notwithſtanding all their enmity, rage, and malice; having looſed the pains of death, judicially diſcharging him from the grave, and from all the ſorrows of death, which, as the ſubſtitute of his people, he conſented to endure, becauſe it was not poſſible he ſhould be holden of them. The dignity of his perſon, the perfection of his ſacrifice, and the prophecies concerning him, rendered it impoſſible that he ſhould remain longer the priſoner of death; whom by dying he had deſtroyed, and as a triumphant conqueror, roſe to lead his captivity captive.

[4.] He ſhews that this was foretold by the Royal Pſalmiſt, who, perſonating Jeſus, the true Meſſiah, thus ſpeaketh concerning him, I foreſaw the Lord always before my face; he walked under the conſtant ſenſe of his Father's preſence, and with an eye to his glory; for he is on my right hand, to ſupport and carry me through my arduous undertaking, that I ſhould not be moved with any of the ſufferings of life, or the terrors of death. Therefore did my heart rejoice in his power, faithfulneſs, and love, and my tongue was glad; praiſing him for the experience of his almighty grace, and the aſſured ſalvation of his people, which he had promiſed him as the travail of his ſoul: my fleſh alſo ſhall reſt in hope, entirely ſatisfied of a glorious iſſue, and entring the grave in the fulleſt aſſurance of a ſpeedy reſurrection; becauſe, or that thou wilt not leave my ſoul in hell, to abide, like other departed ſpirits, in the inviſible world, nor his body in the duſt, neither wilt thou ſuffer thy holy One to ſee corruption, and putrify in the tomb, being the holy One of God, and having by a perfect obedience to death, even the death of the croſs, compleated the redemption of his people, he had a right to a ſpeedy diſcharge from that loweſt ſtep of his humiliation. Thou haſt made known to me the ways of life, which lie through the gates of death; and Chriſt, the firſt-fruits of thoſe that ſlept, is gone before; having raiſed himſelf to an endleſs life, and leading his people after him to a glorious immortality: thou ſhalt make me full of joy with thy countenance, in that ſtate of bliſs and bleſſedneſs to which, as Mediator, he ſhould be exalted: and what is here primarily ſpoken concerning the great head of the church, is true of every member of his body myſtical. (1.) They live for God, deſigning his glory as their end, and reſting upon his promiſes, his power, and grace, as their abiding ſupport, comfort, and joy. (2.) They die in hope, committing their ſouls into the hands of a faithful Creator, and rejoicing in the proſpect of eternal life and glory which the goſpel ſets before them, and of which faith aſſures them.

[5.] He comments on the text he had quoted. Great and reſpectable as the patriarch David was, the head of the royal race of Judah, yet he ſaw corruption; and they, as reaſonable men, and his countrymen, if they diſpaſſionately conſidered theſe words, muſt needs be convinced that the Pſalmiſt ſpake not this of himſelf; he dying, and being buried as other men, and his tomb being extant to that day; but being a prophet, and knowing that God had ſworn with an oath to him, Pſ. cxxxii. 11. that of the fruit of his loins, according to the fleſh, he would raiſe up Chriſt to ſit upon his throne, as Iſrael's king, in the moſt exalted ſenſe, reigning in the hearts of his redeemed people: he ſeeing this before, by the ſpirit of prophecy, ſpake of the reſurrection of Chriſt, whom he perſonates when he ſaith, that his ſoul was not left in hell, neither did his fleſh ſee corruption. This Jeſus, who lately lay in the grave, the Son of David after the fleſh, the perſon of whom he, as a prophet, ſpeaks, God hath raiſed up, whereof we all are witneſſes; having been his conſtant followers before his death, and having often ſeen, converſed, and eat and drank with him ſince his reſurrection, till the day that we beheld him aſcend up to heaven.

[6.] The gifts of the Spirit were the fruit of his exaltation. Therefore being by the right hand of God exalted to the mediatorial throne, and poſſeſſed of the moſt tranſcendent dignity and glory, and having received of the Father the promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt, the purchaſe of his obedience to death in the behalf of his people, he hath ſhed forth this, which ye now ſee and hear; the flames of fire, and gift of tongues, which appeared to them ſo ſtrange. And his aſcenſion alſo David had foretold, Pſal. cx. 1. For David is not aſcended into the heavens, as the perſon, in whoſe name he ſpeaks, evidently was; but the Lord Jeſus is gone thither, as he ſaith himſelf, The Lord, Jehovah, ſaid unto my Lord, the Meſſiah, Sit thou on my right hand, in the higheſt dignity, and poſſeſſed of univerſal dominion and authority, until I make thy foes thy footſtool; until ſin, Satan, death, and every enemy of the Redeemer and his people, ſhall be finally and for ever deſtroyed.

[7.] He warmly applies the matter to their conſciences. Therefore let all the houſe of Iſrael know aſſuredly, as a truth moſt infallible and certain, that God hath made that ſame Jeſus whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Chriſt; and there could not be a greater aggravation of their wickedneſs than this, that whom the Lord had glorified, they had crucified; nor a more tremendous conſideration than that he was now exalted to a throne of glory to execute vengeance on all his murderers, who obſtinately perſiſted in their impenitence.

37. ¶ Now when they heard this, [g] they were pricked in their heart, and ſaid unto Peter, and to the reſt of the apoſtles, Men and brethren, [h] what ſhall we do? 38. Then Peter ſaid unto them, [i] Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jeſus Chriſt for the remiſſion of ſins, and ye ſhall receive the gift of the Holy Ghoſt. 39. For the promiſe is [k] unto you, and [l] to your children, and [m] to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God ſhall call. 40. And with many other words did he teſtify and exhort, ſaying, Save yourſelves from this untoward generation. 41. ¶ Then they that gladly received his word, were baptized: and the ſame day there were added unto them about three thouſand ſouls.

[g] Zech. xii. 10.
[h] Luke iii. 10. Chap. ix. 6. & xvi. 30.
[i] Luke xxiv. 47. Chap. iii. 19.
[k] Chap. iii. 25. & xiii. 46.
[l] Joel ii. 28.
[m] Chap. xxviii. 28. Eph. ii. 13.

v. 37—41. The power of the Spirit upon the apoſtles themſelves appeared glorioully evident in the boldneſs wherewith he inſpired them, as well as in the miraculous gifts with which he endued them: here we have alſo a proof of his energetic influence on the conſciences of the hearers, accompanying his own word in the mouths of his ſervants.

1. Many of the hearers, ſtruck with conſcious guilt at what they heard, were pricked in their heart with ſharp and deep convictions of their ſin and danger, and in great diſtreſs of conſcience, ſaid unto Peter and the reſt of the apoſtles, whom juſt before they had mocked at, Men and brethren, what ſhall we do, to avert the dire vengeance we have provoked, and to obtain pardon for a deed ſo atrocious? Note, (1.) When the Spirit of God opens the ſinner's conſcience to diſcern his hell-deſerving guilt, his hard heart then is broken with the moſt fearful apprehenſions of his danger. (2.) Miniſters are the phyſicians to whom convinced ſinners ſhould apply, and they have balm to cure the mortal wound which ſin hath made in their ſouls. (3.) They who truly feel their loſt eſtate, cannot but deſire, above all things, to know if yet there may be hope.

2. Peter, in the name of his brethren, ſaid unto them, your caſe, however dangerous, is not deſperate; Repent, under a ſenſe of redeeming love be deeply humbled for your guilt and ingratitude; and with deep ſelf-abhorrence, and a thorough change of temper and conduct, turn unto the Lord, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jeſus Chriſt; profeſſing your faith in him as the true Meſſiah, and ſincerely yielding up yourſelves to him as his willing ſubjects; for the remiſſion of ſins, purchaſed by him, and freely beſtowed on the chief of ſinners; and herewith alſo ye ſhall receive the gift of the Holy Ghoſt, of his comforting and ſanctifying influences; as alſo (it is probable) of his miraculous powers. For the promiſe, v. 38. of pardon and the Holy Ghoſt, or the great promiſe made to Abraham and his ſeed, is to you and to your children, his deſcendants, and to all that are afar of, diſperſed Jews or Gentiles, yet more diſtant from the covenant of promiſe, even as many as the Lord our God ſhall call to the knowledge of his Son, and to faith in him, who ſhall be bleſſed with faithful Abraham. Note, (1.) No ſinner need deſpair; the goſpel holds forth, through the blood of Jeſus, a free pardon to the moſt guilty of the ſons of Adam, and he that believes ſhall be ſaved. (2.) Where the Lord gives remiſſion of ſins, he ſends his Holy Ghoſt effectually to produce that repentance which he enjoins. (3.) None can come to God but thoſe whom he calls; not merely by the outward voice of his word, but by the internal power of his Spirit.

3. The apoſtle enlarged on this ſubject. And with many other words did he teſtify and exhort, ſaying, Save yourſelves from this untoward generation; come out from among them, and be ye ſeparate; renounce the falſe tenets and corrupt practices of the Scribes and Phariſees, that ye may eſcape the plagues ready to deſcend upon this ſinful people, abandoned to their infidelity and deſtruction. Note, They who would be ſaved among Chriſt's people, muſt be ſeparated from the ways of this wicked world, and from the familiar ſociety of careleſs ſinners, ſhuning their aſſemblies, as a man dreads the houſe infected by the plague.

4. Great was the effect produced by this diſcourſe, through the Spirit's mighty energy. No leſs than three thouſand ſouls immediately embraced, and gladly received, the word of goſpel-grace; and believing in a crucified Redeemer now riſen from the dead, made open profeſſion of their faith, and were baptized in his name. Note, (1.) The ſalvation which is by Jeſus Chriſt, is glad news to the ſinner who is pricked to the heart with a ſenſe of his guilt and danger. (2.) They who are truly turned to the Lord, will boldly make profeſſion of his name, and join themſelves to the ſociety of the faithful, whatever danger or reproach they may be expoſed to thereby.

42. And [n] they continued ſtedfaſtly in the apoſtles doctrine and fellowſhip, and [o] in breaking of bread, and [p] in prayers. 43. And fear came upon every ſoul: and [q] many wonders and ſigns were done by the apoſtles. 44. And all that believed were together, and [r] had all things common, 45. And [s] ſold their poſſeſſions and goods, and [t] parted them to all men, as every man had need. 46. And [u] they continuing daily with one accord [x] in the temple, and [y] breaking bread from houſe to houſe, did eat their meat with gladneſs and ſingleneſs of heart, 47. Praiſing God, [z] and having favour with all the people. And [a] the Lord added to the church daily ſuch as ſhould be ſaved.

[n] Chap. i. 14. Ver. 46.
[o] Chap. xx. 7.
[p] Rom. xii. 12. Col. iv. 2.
[q] Mark xvi. 17. Chap. v. 12.
[r] Chap. iv. 32.
[s] Ibid. 34.
[t] Iſa. lviii. 7.
[u] Chap. i. 14.
[x] Luke xxiv. 53. Chap. v. 42.
[y] Ver. 42.
[z] Luke ii. 52. Chap. iv. 33. Rom. xiv. 18.
[a] Chap. v. 14.

v. 42—47. We have here the practice of the primitive church.

1. They were united in holy ordinances. They continued ſtedfaſtly in the apoſtles' doctrine, profeſſing their faith in Chriſt and his goſpel, and attending on the apoſtles' miniſtry and fellowſhip, maintaining the cloſeſt communion with them; and in breaking of bread, celebrating the Lord's Supper, and in prayers, ſocial and public, continuing daily with one accord in the temple at the ſtated hours of ſervice, and praiſing God for all the ineſtimable bleſſings beſtowed, through Jeſus Chriſt, upon them. Note,

They who have taſted of the bleſſing of communion with God, will delight to maintain it in the diligent uſe of all holy ordinances.

2. A ſolemn awe reſtrained their enemies from moleſting them. Fear came upon every ſoul: and many wonders and ſigns were done by the apoſtles, ſo that it evidently appeared that God was with them. Note, God can put his bridle in the jaws of perſecutors, and ſay, Touch not my prophets, and do my anointed no harm.

3. A ſpirit of moſt noble and diſintereſted charity appeared among them. All that believed were together; they were of one heart and mind, and aſſembled in ſeveral companies, as many as conveniently could meet in one place, and had all things common, each caſting his all into the common ſtock; and as the neceſſity of the times was urgent, and they knew the ſure and near approach of Jeruſalem's overthrow, they ſold their poſſeſſions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man, of their ſociety, had need; and as they aſſembled daily with one accord in the temple, ſo did they break bread from houſe to houſe, provided out of the common ſtock, eating their meat together with gladneſs and ſingleneſs of heart; fervent in love to each other, thankful to God, and conſcious of their own undiſſembled ſimplicity and ſincerity before him. Note, Who ſhould rejoice, if the children of God do not?

4. They were highly eſteemed, and their numbers daily increaſed. They had favour with the people; their undiſſembled piety commanded reſpect; and the miraculous powers with which they were inveſted, excited reverence. And the Lord ſo eminently bleſſed their miniſtrations, that there were added unto the church daily ſuch as ſhould be ſaved. Note, (1.) Thoſe whom the Lord will ſave, he will take care ſo effectually to call, as that they ſhall come to him. (2.) It is the Lord's work to add converts to his church: in dependance on his power and promiſe, we labour with comfort and confidence.

CHAP. III.

In this chapter we have a miracle and a ſermon: 1. The miracle was the healing of a man that was lame from his birth, with a word ſpeaking, ver. 1—8. And the impreſſion which this made upon the people, ver. 9—11. 2. The ſcope of the ſermon which was preached hereupon, was to bring people to Chriſt, to repent of their ſin in crucifying him, ver. 12—19. And to believe in him now he was glorified, ver. 20—26.

1. NOW Peter and John went up together [a] into the temple, at the hour of prayer, [b] being the ninth hour. 2. And [c] a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, [d] to aſk alms of them that entred into the temple. 3. Who ſeeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, aſked an alms. 4. And Peter faſtning his eyes upon him, with John, ſaid, Look on us. 5. And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive ſomething of them. 6. Then Peter ſaid, Silver and gold have I none; but ſuch as I have give I thee: [e] In the name of Jeſus Chriſt of Nazareth, riſe up and walk. 7. And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up; and immediately his feet and ancle-bones received ſtrength. 8. And he leaping up, ſtood, and walked, and entred with them into the temple, [f] walking, and leaping, and praiſing God. 9. And all the people ſaw him walking and praiſing God. 10. And they knew that it was he which ſat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple: and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him. 11. And as the lame man which was healed held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch [g] that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering.

[a] Chap. ii. 46.
[b] Pſ. lv. 17.
[c] Chap. xiv. 8.
[d] John ix. 8.
[e] Chap. iv. 10.
[f] Iſa. xxxv. 6.
[g] John x. 23. Chap. v. 12.

v. 1—11. Among the many miracles performed by the apoſtles, one notable one is here recorded.

1. The apoſtles by whom it was done were Peter and John; they were going up to the temple together at the ſtated hour of prayer, probably the ſame day in which Peter had preached in the morning, being the ninth hour, or three o'clock in the afternoon. Note, They who love the temple ſervice, will be glad to be there twice a day.

2. The poor object, on whom the miracle was performed, was a beggar, a cripple from his mother's womb, who lay at the beautiful gate of the temple, which was made of Corinthian braſs, more precious than gold, and aſked alms of them that entred into the temple; ſeeing Peter and John, therefore, about to enter, he aſked of them an alms. Note, (1.) Thoſe who are poor, and incapable of working, are the true objects of charity. (2.) They who are drawn to the temple by the love of God, will have their hearts enlarged in tendereſt compaſſion towards the wants of the neceſſitous.

3. Peter and John looking earneſtly at him, bid him attend to them, as about to ſhew him a ſingular favour; and the poor man expecting an alms, looked attentively at them. When Peter, the forward ſpeaker, addreſſed him, ſaying, Silver and gold have I none; but ſuch as I have, and what ſilver and gold never could procure, give I thee: in the name of Jeſus Chriſt of Nazareth, riſe up and walk; by his authority I ſpeak, and his power ſhall enable thee for what I command. Then taking him by the right hand, he lift him up, and immediately the aſtoniſhing cure was wrought, his feet and ancle bones received ſtrength. Note, (1.) The riches of grace are infinitely more valuable than the treaſures of both the Indies. (2.) According to our abilities, we muſt be ready to communicate of the gifts of God with which he hath entruſted us, whether temporal or ſpiritual. (3.) In this impotent man, every ſinner may read his own caſe and cure. 1. By nature, from our birth, thus ſpiritually paralytic are we, and utterly unable to walk one ſtep in God's ways. 2. The temple is the place where the poor impotent ſinner ſhould be found, for there the Lord uſually diſpenſes the alms of his grace. 3. The miniſters of Chriſt ſay not in vain ariſe and walk, to thoſe who have no power of themſelves to help themſelves; for he, in whoſe name they ſpeak, doth by his Spirit accompanying their word, enable the helpleſs ſoul for that which they enjoin. 4. Chriſt firſt lays hold of us by the hand of his grace, and then we lay hold of him by the hand of faith, and feel an unuſual power communicated to our paralytic ſouls.

4. The lame man, tranſported with joy at the ſtrange alteration he inſtantly felt, leaped up with aſtoniſhing agility, and ſtood firm on his feet, and walked about before all preſent, in token of his perfect cure, and entred with his benefactors into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praiſing God. Note, (1.) If our ſouls have received a ſpiritual cure, then will our hearts and lips be filled with praiſe and thankſgiving to the God of all grace, and we ſhall be happy in employing the ſtrength he hath given us, in walking in his holy ways. (2.) They who have found a bleſſing from the miniſtry of Chriſt's ſervants, will not fail to accompany them into the temple, that they may reap farther benefit from their company and diſcourſe.

5. The people who beheld him were ſtruck with wonder and ſurprize, at ſeeing him thus walking and praiſing God, knowing that it was the ſame cripple who had lain at the gate of the temple; and whilſt, as in an ecſtaſy, he hung about Peter and John, expreſſing his unutterable gratitude for this mercy received by their means, the people gathered round them in the part of the temple called Solomon's porch, greatly wondring at this amazing miracle, and at thoſe who wrought it. Note, They who have been made the inſtruments of good to our ſouls, cannot but be dear to us, and embraced with peculiar affection.

12. ¶ And when Peter ſaw it, he anſwered unto the people, Ye men of Iſrael, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye ſo earneſtly on us, [h] as though by our own power or holineſs we had made this man to walk? 13. [i] The God of Abraham, and of Iſaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers [k] hath glorified his Son Jeſus; whom ye delivered up, and [l] denied him in the preſence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go. 14. But ye denied [m] the holy One, and [n] the juſt, and deſired a murderer to be granted unto you, 15. And killed the † prince of life, [o] whom God hath raiſed from the dead; [p] whereof we are witneſſes. 16. And his name through faith in his name hath made this man ſtrong, whom ye ſee and know: yea, the faith [q] which is by him hath given this perfect ſoundneſs in the preſence of you all. 17. And now, brethren, I wot that [r] through ignorance ye did it, as did alſo your rulers. 18. But [ſ] thoſe things which God before had ſhewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Chriſt ſhould ſuffer, he hath ſo fulfilled. 19. ¶ [s] Repent ye therefore and be converted, that your ſins may be blotted out, when the times of refreſhing ſhall come from the preſence of the Lord. 20. And he ſhall ſend Jeſus Chriſt, [t] which was before preached unto you: 21. Whom the heaven muſt receive, until the times of reſtitution of all things, which God hath ſpoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets [u] ſince the world began. 22. For Moſes truly ſaid unto the fathers, [x] A prophet ſhall the Lord your God raiſe up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him ſhall ye hear in all things whatſoever he ſhall ſay unto you. 23. And it ſhall come to paſs, that every ſoul which will not hear that prophet, ſhall be deſtroyed from among the people. 24. Yea, and all the prophets from Samuel, and thoſe that follow after, as many as have ſpoken, have likewiſe fore-

[h] Pſ. cxv. 1.
[i] Chap. v. 30.
[k] John xvii. 1.
[l] Mat. xxvii. 20. John xviii. 40. & xix. 15.
[m] Rev. iii. 7.
[n] Chap. vii. 52. & xxii. 14.
† Or author.
John v. 21. & x. 28. & xvii. 2. 1 John v. 11
[o] Chap. ii. 24.
[p] Ibid. 32.
[q] Eph. ii. 8.
[r] Luke xxiii. 34. John xvi. 3. Chap. xiii. 27. 1 Cor. ii. 8. 1 Tim. i. 13.
[ſ] Luke xxiv. 44. Chap. xxvi. 22.
[s] Chap. ii. 38.
[t] Ver. 24.
[u] Luke i. 70.
[x] Deut. xviii. 15, 18. Chap. vii. 37.

foretold of theſe days. 25. Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, ſaying unto Abraham, [y] And in thy ſeed ſhall all the kindreds of the earth be bleſſed. 26. [z] Unto you firſt, God having raiſed up his Son Jeſus, ſent him to bleſs you, [a] in turning away every one of you from his iniquities.

[y] Gen. xii. 3. & xviii. 18. & xxii. 18. & xxvi. 4. Gal.iii.8.
[z] Luke xxiv. 47. Chap. xiii. 46.
[a] Ver. 19.

v. 12—26. Peter beholding the concourſe of people aſſembled on this occaſion, improves ſo happy an opportunity to preach the goſpel to thoſe who ſeemed ſo affected with the miracle before them. A word in ſeaſon, how good is it!

1. He humbly diſclaims all the honour of the miracle, which was due to his Maſter alone. Ye men of Iſrael, why marvel ye at this? when ſo much greater cures have been before performed among you by the Lord Jeſus; or why look ye ſo earneſtly on us, as though by our own power or holineſs we had made this man walk? Note, (1.) The moſt ſucceſsful miniſters muſt be the moſt humble; the more they are admired of others, the lower they muſt lie down at the feet of Jeſus, aſcribing to him alone the praiſe. (2.) We are too apt to idolize the men and miniſters, who have been made ſignal inſtruments of good to us; but we ſhould look farther, even to him who alone giveth the increaſe.

2. He preaches to them that Jeſus, whom they crucified, by whoſe power alone this miracle was wrought. The God of Abraham, and of Iſaac, and of Jacob, that covenant-keeping God, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jeſus, owning him in this high character; not only by all the miracles which he had wrought, but by his reſurrection from the dead, and aſcenſion to heaven; whom ye delivered up as a malefactor, into the hands of the Roman governor, and denied him in the preſence of Pilate, as your King Meſſiah, requiring his crucifixion; when he, convinced of his innocency, was determined to let him go. But ye, inſtigated by the prieſts and rulers, with ſavage barbarity denied the holy One, and the Juſt, whom none could ever convince of ſin, or impeach his ſpotleſs purity: and as the moſt provoking aggravation of your guilt, deſired a murderer to be granted unto you, in preference to him, and killed the Prince of Life, the author and fountain of natural, ſpiritual, and eternal life; whom God hath raiſed from the dead; defeating all the malice of his enemies, rolling away the reproach of the croſs, and exalting him to a ſtate of the moſt tranſcendent glory; whereof we are witneſſes; have ſeen and converſed with him after his reſurrection, and are endued with theſe miraculous powers by him, to make our teſtimony more regarded. And his name, through faith in his name, hath made this man ſtrong whom ye ſee and know; acting under his authority, and truſting on his power, hath this inconteſtible miracle been performed: yea, the faith which is by him, exerciſed upon him as the object, and wrought in us by him as the author, hath given him this perfect ſoundneſs in the preſence of you all; for this thing was not done in a corner, but publickly in the temple, and the perfection of the cure was evident to every beholder.

3. Yet dreadful as their guilt was, he means not to drive them to deſpair. And now, brethren, exceeding ſinful as your conduct hath been, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did alſo your rulers; I perſuade myſelf that many, I would hope the moſt, who were engaged in that black deed, were blindly hurried on by their paſſions and prejudices, and knew not what they did, elſe would they not have crucified the Lord of glory, 1 Cor. ii. 8. But thoſe things which God before had ſhewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Chriſt ſhould ſuffer, he hath ſo fulfilled; and though this be no extenuation of your wickedneſs, yet ſince the very end of his dying was, in order to obtain remiſſion of ſins for the moſt miſerable and deſperate, there is ſtill hope, even for thoſe, whoſe hands are red with his blood. Note, (1.) Charity bids us hope the beſt, even of the vileſt; and not to impute to them worſe motives to their actions than really influence them. (2.) The wickedneſs of men God can over-rule, and bring good out of their evil.

4. He exhorts an immediate penitent return to him whom they had crucified. Repent ye, therefore, of this atrocious deed; and ſince there is yet hope towards God, be converted: turn to this Jeſus, as the true Meſſiah: laying aſide your pride and prejudices, yield up your hearts to his guidance and government, and fly to the atoning blood of his croſs, which was ſhed for this very purpoſe, that your ſins, however great, numberleſs, and aggravated, may be blotted out, and your guilt cancelled, when the times of refreſhing ſhall come from the preſence of the Lord; thoſe joyful ſeaſons of conſolation which now you will experience, when turning unto him you ſhall be filled with joy and peace in believing, and ſhall alſo find favour with him, and be acknowledged by him, when he ſhall come to be glorified in his ſaints, and to be admired of all that believe; in his preſence then ſhall you poſſeſs bliſs unutterable, and under his ſhadow enjoy an eternal reſt from all the burdens of ſin, ſorrow, and temptation. For he ſhall ſend Jeſus, this Jeſus whom he hath made both Lord and Chriſt, and appointed the Judge of quick and dead, even him which before was preached unto you, in all the ſacred oracles, and by his own bleſſed miniſtry; whom the heaven muſt receive, whither we have ſeen him aſcend, and where he now ſits enthroned in glory, until the times of reſtitution of all things, when the myſtery of godlineſs ſhall be finiſhed, all his elect people be gathered in to him, and his kingdom ſhall finally come at the great day of his appearing to judge the world. Note, (1.) The great inducement to evangelical repentance, is the promiſe of pardon and forgiveneſs. (2.) They who truly turn to Jeſus, ſhall find refreſhing and reſt to their ſouls, and reconciliation with a pardoning God. (3.) Though Chriſt be now exalted to his throne, we expect his coming a ſecond time: oh that we may be prepared to meet him! then ſhall it be a time of refreſhing; when ſeeing him face to face, we ſhall be changed into the ſame image, be like and with him for ever.

5. He ſupports what he had ſaid by an appeal and reference to the ſcriptures, in which they believed. For theſe were the things which God hath ſpoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets ſince the world began, concerning the kingdom of his Meſſiah. For inſtance, Moſes, that great law-giver, in whom you glory, he bore a noble teſtimony to Jeſus, and truly ſaid unto the fathers in the wilderneſs, A prophet ſhall the Lord your God raiſe up unto you of your brethren, ſprung from the ſtock of Abraham, like unto me; who ſhall with far greater dignity be a mediator between God and you; ſhall deliver you from worſe than Egyptian bondage, and from the moſt intimate knowledge of God, ſhall reveal to you his mind and will: him ſhall ye hear in all things whatſoever he ſhall ſay unto you; embracing his doctrines, obedient to his precepts, and obſervant of his inſtitutions with implicit faith, unbounded love, and unreſerved ſubmiſſion; yielding up your ſouls to his guidance and government. And it ſhall come to paſs, that every ſoul which will not hear that prophet, and believe and obey him, ſhall be deſtroyed from among the people, cut off by ſome notorious ſtroke of divine vengeance. Yea, and all the prophets from Samuel, in whom the ſpirit of prophecy revived, and thoſe that follow after, in a long ſucceſſion, as many as have ſpoken, have likewiſe foretold of theſe days; ſpeaking of the Meſſiah, his ſufferings, glory, and kingdom, from its beginning on earth, till its conſummation in heaven.

6. He draws a moſt encouraging motive from their relation to the prophets, to receive their word, and believe in the Meſſiah, of whom they teſtified. Ye are the children of the prophets, their diſciples and deſcendants from the patriarchs, and heirs of the covenant which God made with our fathers, ſaying unto Abraham, In thy ſeed ſhall all the kindreds of the earth be bleſſed, which ſeed was Chriſt, whoſe ſalvation ſhall extend to all nations; therefore, being the immediate offspring of the great father of the faithful, Unto you firſt, God having raiſed up his Son Jeſus, ſending him in the human nature, and raiſing him from the dead, hath ſent him to bleſs you, by his own miniſtry and labours, and now by inveſting us with power and authority to preach his goſpel, in which the moſt powerful motives are urged, in order to your converſion, and which his Spirit makes effectual to the turning every one of you, that believe in him, from his iniquities, and bringing you to pardon, ſalvation, and life eternal. Note, (1.) Jeſus is come to be the bleſſing of the world. Without him, the curſe and wrath of God muſt have for ever abode upon us. (2.) Iniquity is the cauſe of all our miſery; when Chriſt comes to the ſinner, he not only pardons his guilt, but converts his ſoul, and thus effectually recovers him to the life of grace, in order to bring him to the life of glory.

CHAP. IV.

In this chapter the perſecution againſt the apoſtles begins. 1. Peter and John are taken up upon a warrant from the prieſts, and committed to jail, ver. 1—4. 2. They are examined by a committee of the great Sanhedrim, ver. 5—7. 3. They bravely avow what they have done, and preach Chriſt to their perſecutors, ver. 8—12. 4. Their perſecutors, being unable to anſwer them, enjoin them ſilence, threaten them if they go on to preach the goſpel, and ſo diſmiſs them, ver. 13—22. 5. They apply themſelves to God by prayer, for the further operations of that grace which they had already experienced, ver. 23—30. 6. God owns them, both outwardly and inwardly, by manifeſt tokens of his preſence with them, ver. 31—33. 7. The believers had their hearts knit together in holy love, and enlarged their charity to the poor, and the church flouriſhed more than ever, to the glory of Chriſt, ver. 33, 34—37.

1. AND as they ſpake unto the people, the prieſts and the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees [a] came upon them; 2. Being grieved that they taught the people, and [b] preached through Jeſus the reſurrection from the dead. 3. And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold unto the next day: for it was now eventide. 4. Howbeit, many of them [c] which heard the word, believed; and the number of the men was about five thouſand.

[a] Chap. v. 17.
[b] Ibid. iii. 15, 26.
[c] Ibid. ii. 37. Rom. x 17.

v. 1—4. The ſucceſs of the goſpel could not but provoke Satan's enmity; and the inveterate enemies of the name of Chriſt cannot be expected long to be at reſt.

1. The apoſtles continued to teach the people, and, as their grand ſubject, preached through Jeſus the reſurrection from the dead. They both teſtified the certainty of his reſurrection, and affirmed, that he was raiſed up for this purpoſe, to be the author of ſpiritual and eternal life to his people, who ſhould be raiſed up by him at the laſt day to a glorious immortality.

2. Multitudes of their hearers believed; and, notwithſtanding the enmity to which they ſaw their preachers expoſed, five thouſand converts more were added to the church; ſo mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed. Note, Where the goſpel meets with the greateſt oppoſition, it is uſually attended with the moſt remarkable ſucceſs.

3. The prieſts, the captain of the temple, who preſided over the watches, and the Sadducees, grieved and vexed to the heart, that the doctrine of Jeſus, which they had taken ſuch pains to ſuppreſs, ſhould now ſpread with greater rapidity than ever; and that he whom they had ignominiouſly crucified, ſhould be exalted as the reſurrection and life, as the author of all bleſſedneſs in time and eternity; ruſhed upon the apoſtles ſuddenly, ſeized them as criminals, and committed them to ſafe cuſtody for the night, it being eventide, that they might be brought before the ſanhedrim the next day. Note, They who preach Chriſt, muſt prepare to ſuffer for him.

5 ¶ And it came to paſs on the morrow, that their rulers, and elders, and ſcribes, 6. And [d] Annas the high prieſt, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the kindred of the high prieſt, were gathered together at Jeruſalem. 7. And when they had ſet them in the midſt, they aſked, [e] By what power, or by what name have ye done this? 8. Then Peter [f] filled with the Holy Ghoſt, ſaid unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Iſrael, 9. If we this day be examined of [g] the good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole; 10. Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Iſrael, that by the name of Jeſus Chriſt of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, [h] whom God raiſed from the dead, even by him doth this man ſtand here before you whole. 11. [i] This is the ſtone which was ſet at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner. 12. [k] Neither is there ſalvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we muſt be ſaved. 13. ¶ Now when they ſaw the boldneſs of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, [l] they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jeſus. 14. And beholding the man which was healed ſtanding with them, [m] they could ſay nothing againſt it.

[d] Luke iii. 2. John xi. 49.
[e] Exod. ii. 14. Mat. xxi. 23. Chap. vii. 27.
[f] Luke xii. 12.
[g] Chap. iii. 7.
[h] Ibid. ii. 24.
[i] Pſ. cxviii. 22. Iſa. xxviii. 16. Mat. xxi. 42. 1 Pet ii. 7.
[k] Mat. i. 21. Chap. x. 43. 1 Tim. ii. 5, 6.
[l] Chap. ii. 7, 12.
[m] Ver. 16.

v. 5—14. No ſooner was the morning returned than we have,

1. The court aſſembled to try the innocent priſoners; but little juſtice can be expected, when their judges are known to be their avowed and inveterate enemies. The rulers, elders, and ſcribes, the high prieſt Annas, who now enjoyed that dignity, with Caiaphas, who had ſat in the chair the year preceding, with John and Alexander, perſons of diſtinguiſhed note, and others of the high prieſt's kindred, were all leagued againſt two poor fiſhermen, to try if their power could not intimidate, or their learning confute, or their authority ſilence them.

2. The priſoners are arraigned. They ſet them in the midſt, to anſwer before their judges the interrogatories which they choſe to put to them, and haughtily demanded, by what power, human, divine, or diabolical; or by what name, by virtue of whoſe authority, or by the invocation of what name, have ye done this?

3. Peter, filled with the Holy Ghoſt, endued with ſingular boldneſs, and directed by his immediate influence, according to Chriſt's promiſe, (Mark xiii. 11.) ſaid unto them, reſpectfully addreſſing them as magiſtrates and men of rank, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Iſrael, if we be examined as criminals this day, of the good deed done to the impotent man; and you demand information, by what means ſuch an act of mercy and power was performed, and he is made whole; we with pleaſure appear to give you the fulleſt ſatisfaction. Therefore, be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Iſrael, whom it highly concerns, that by the name, the precious, powerful, all-prevailing name of Jeſus of Nazareth, whom ye have treated with the higheſt contempt, and moſt ignominiouſly crucified, but whom God raiſed from the dead, diſappointing the impotent malice of his murderers: even by him, by this once deſpiſed, but now glorified Jeſus, and by no power of our own, by no magic charm, but by faith in him alone, doth this man ſtand here before you whole. This Jeſus is the ſtone ſpoken of, Pſ. cxviii. 22. which was ſet at nought of you, who by ſtation and office ſhould be builders of God's ſpiritual temple, but which is now exalted of God, and become the head of the corner, by which the church of God is ſupported, and firmly knit together. Neither is there ſalvation in any other; there is no ſpiritual or eternal ſalvation out of him, by the deeds of the law, or by any human power or righteouſneſs whatſoever; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we muſt be ſaved; God having appointed him to be the only redeemer from ſin, death, and hell, and all who believe not in him, muſt therefore periſh everlaſtingly. Note, (1.) Salvation is every ſinner's great concern. (2.) In and of ourſelves we have nothing but miſery, ſin, and wrath, and have no power of ourſelves to help ourſelves. (3.) Chriſt alone can ſave a ſinful ſoul by the merit of his blood and righteouſneſs. (4.) God freely offers him in the goſpel to the miſerable, and invites all men to believe on him to the ſaving of their ſouls. (5.) They muſt inevitably and eternally periſh, who neglect ſo great a ſalvation.

4. Such an anſwer quite confounded the court. When they ſaw the boldneſs of Peter and John, their undaunted courage, their readineſs of ſpeech, and powerful elocution; and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, had been brought up at none of the public ſeminaries, at the feet of none of their rabbins, nor had ever the leaſt advantages of education; they marvelled at the intrepidity, wiſdom, and eloquence that appeared in them; and they took knowledge of them that they had been with Jeſus, in whoſe company they recollected they had ſeen them formerly; and beholding the man which was healed ſtanding with them, who probably came ready to bear teſtimony for them, and to do honour to his benefactors, to whatever danger it might expoſe him, they could ſay nothing againſt it; the miracle was too notorious to be contradicted. Note, (1.) In Chriſt's cauſe, even before the greateſt, we may well boldly ſtand forth; he will bear us through. (2.) They who have been with Jeſus, will carry the marks of it viſibly about them: like Moſes on the mount, their faces will ſhine, and their holy and heavenly converſations proclaim their Maſter's glory.

15. But when they had commanded them to go aſide out of the council, they conferred among themſelves, 16. Saying, [n] What ſhall we do to theſe men? for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifeſt to all them that dwell in Jeruſalem, and [o] we cannot deny it. 17. But that it ſpread no further among the people, let us ſtraitly threaten them, that they ſpeak henceforth to no man in this name. 18. And they called them, and [p] commanded them not to ſpeak at all, nor teach in the name of Jeſus. 19. But Peter and John anſwered and ſaid unto them, [q] Whether it be right in the ſight of God, to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye. 20. For we cannot but ſpeak the things [r] which we have ſeen and heard. 21. So when they had further threatned them, they let them go, finding nothing how they might puniſh them, [s] becauſe of the people: for all men glorified God for that which was done. 22. For the man was above forty years old, on whom this miracle of healing was ſhewed.

[n] John xi. 47.
[o] Ver. 14.
[p] Chap. v. 40.
[q] Chap. v. 29.
[r] Ibid. xxii. 15. 2 Pet. i. 16. 1 John i. 3.
[s] Mat. xxi. 26. Luke xx. 6, 19. & xxii. 2. Chap. v. 26.

v. 15—22. How to puniſh thoſe againſt whom they had no charge to lay they knew not, yet fain would they brand them, if poſſible, with ſome mark of infamy.

1. In order to conſult upon the caſe the more freely, they commanded the apoſtles to be led out of the council-chamber, whilſt they conferred among themſelves, ſaying, what ſhall we do to theſe men? our difficulties are greater than ever; for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifeſt to all them that dwell in Jeruſalem, and we cannot deny it; ſo that to attempt it would but expoſe our own characters: but, that it ſpread no further among the people, neither the fame of the miracle, nor the doctrine of Chriſt in confirmation of which it was wrought, let us ſtraitly threaten them, on pain of our higheſt diſpleaſure, and at the peril of ſuffering the puniſhment due to their contumacy, that they ſpeak henceforth to no man in this name. Thus they hope, by ſilencing the miniſters, to ſuppreſs the doctrines of the goſpel. And they called them, and commanded them not to ſpeak at all, nor teach in the name of Jeſus; breathing forth their impotent malice. Note, (1.) The enemies of the goſpel often join in cloſe cabal how to ſuppreſs the growing progreſs of the truth; but he who ſitteth on the heavens laughs them to ſcorn. (2.) Many a faithful miniſter of Jeſus, for the truths which he hath maintained, hath met the frowns and threatnings of proud prieſts and prelates, who would fain intimidate and ſilence them, that they ſhould ſpeak no more in the name of Jeſus; but they deſpiſe their menaces; they are prepared to ſuffer, but will not be ſilent.

2. The priſoners give in their anſwers; they needed no premeditation to reply, and ſaid unto them, Whether it be right in the ſight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye. Can it be poſſible we ſhould be ſilent, when acting under his expreſs injunctions; or how can we thus acquit ourſelves to our conſciences, or mankind, for whoſe ſake we preach this ſalvation of Jeſus? Your commands therefore being incompatible with the ſuperior obedience we owe to God, cannot poſſibly be obſerved; for we cannot but ſpeak the things which we have ſeen and heard; a neceſſity is laid upon us, and wo unto us if we preach not the goſpel. Note, (1.) Where the injunctions of men are contrary to the word of God, we muſt not heſitate a moment which we ſhall obey. (2.) They who have experimentally known the ſalvation which is in Jeſus, and taſted its ſweetneſs, cannot but delight to ſpread the ſavour of his name, and to make all men, as far as their influence reaches, know the grace which is in him.

3. Unable to fix the leaſt accuſation againſt the apoſtles, they were compelled reluctantly to let them go, repeating their former threatnings, to try if that would intimidate them, and finding nothing how they might puniſh them, as they earneſtly wiſhed to do, becauſe of the people, who would have riſen up againſt them for ſuch a flagrant act of injuſtice; for all men glorified God for that which was done; the multitude in general were convinced that this was the finger of God, and could not but adore him, who had enabled theſe men to perform this act of power and mercy; for the man was above forty years of age, on whom this miracle of healing was ſhewed, and had been ſo long known by the people, that the cure was rendered thereby the more ſingular and aſtoniſhing. Note, (1.) God can put his reſtraints upon perſecutors, and prevent them, by various conſiderations, from doing all the miſchief to which they are inclined. (2.) They who in old age are cured by the goſpel word, are more eminent monuments of divine mercy.

23. ¶ And being let go, [t] they went to their own company, and reported all that the chief prieſts and elders had ſaid unto them. 24. And when they heard that, they lift up their voice to God with one accord, and ſaid, Lord, thou art God which haſt made heaven and earth, and the ſea, and all that in them is: 25. Who by the mouth of thy ſervant David haſt ſaid, [u] Why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things? 26. The kings of the earth ſtood up, and the rulers were gathered together againſt the Lord, and againſt his Chriſt. 27. For of a truth againſt thy holy child Jeſus, [x] whom thou haſt anointed, [y] both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the people of Iſrael, were gathered together, 28. For [z] to do whatſoever thy hand and thy counſel determined before to be done. 29. And now, Lord, behold their threatnings: and grant unto thy ſervants, [a] that with all boldneſs they may ſpeak thy word, 30. By ſtretching forth thine hand to heal: and [b] that ſigns and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy child Jeſus. 31. ¶ And when they had prayed, [c] the place was ſhaken where they were aſſembled together; and they were all filled with the holy Ghoſt, and they ſpake the word of God with boldneſs.

[t] Chap. xii. 12.
[u] Pſ. ii. 1.
[x] Iſa. lxi. 1. Luke iv. 18.
[y] Mat. xxvi. 3. Luke xxiii. 1, 8.
[z] Mat. xxvi. 24. Chap. ii. 23.
[a] Eph. vi. 19.
[b] Chap. iii. 16. Ver. 10.
[c] Chap. ii. 2, 4. & xvi. 26.

v. 23—31. No ſooner were the two apoſtles diſmiſſed than,

1. They returned to their own company, not aſhamed or afraid to join them, notwithſtanding all the threatnings of the prieſts; and reported all that the chief prieſts and elders had ſaid unto them, and moſt probably their reply. Note, We muſt never deſert the ſociety of our brethren. The world hath its end, if it can confine our religion to our cloſets, and prevent our open profeſſion of it, by joining thoſe who appear on the Lord's ſide.

2. When they heard that, they lift up their voice to God, in prayer and praiſe, with one accord, under the influence of the Holy Ghoſt, ſpeaking as if animated by one ſoul, and ſaid, Lord, thou art God, infinite in power, which haſt made heaven and earth, and the ſea, and all that in them is; the great Creator and Governor, in whoſe hands are the hearts of all men, and all events directed by thy providence and under thy controul; who by the mouth of thy ſervant David haſt ſaid, Why did the hea-rage, and the people imagine a vain thing? endeavouring to ſuppreſs the glorious goſpel of Jeſus. The kings of the earth ſtood up, and the rulers were gathered together againſt the Lord, and againſt his Chriſt. And now this prophecy is eminently fulfilled; for of a truth againſt thy holy child Jeſus, whom thou haſt anointed as the true Meſſiah promiſed ſo long before, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Iſrael, were gathered together, conſpiring to deſtroy the adorable Redeemer; but, in the execution of their barbarous and malicious deſigns, thou didſt over-rule their wickedneſs for to do whatſoever thy hand and thy counſel determined before to be done, executing thy eternal decrees, and bringing to thyſelf the greateſt glory, to the Redeemer the greateſt honour, and to loſt ſouls a free and full ſalvation. And now, Lord, behold their threatnings, reſtrain and diſappoint their rage and malice; and grant unto thy ſervants, that with all boldneſs they may ſpeak thy word, openly and zealouſly preaching thy goſpel, in nothing diſmayed by their adverſaries; and own them in their teſtimony, by ſtretching forth thine hand to heal: and that ſigns and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy child Jeſus; by the authority derived from this thy incarnate Son, and to the glory of his great name. Note, (1.) In all our dangers we ſhould make application to him who is able to help us. (2.) All the wickedneſs and wrath of man ſhall turn to God's praiſe, and the remainder of that wrath he will reſtrain. (3.) The ſin of perſecutors is not the leſs malignant, becauſe God over-rules it to ſubſerve purpoſes of his own glory. (4.) God takes cogniſance of all the malice of his people's foes, and hears their threatnings; therefore we need not fear them. (5.) They who are to preach the goſpel to a gainſaying world need to be often ſecretly looking up to God for boldneſs, that, through fear or ſhame, they may not be unfaithful to men's ſouls. (6.) Tokens of God's preſence and bleſſing with us, are the comfortable encouragement to us to perſevere even through much tribulation.

3. Their prayer receives an immediate anſwer from God. When they had prayed, the place was ſhaken where they were aſſembled together, as a ſenſible token of the divine preſence in the midſt of them; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, feeling a growing ardor in their ſouls, experiencing freſh meaſures of ſtrength, courage, and conſolation communicated to them; and they ſpake the word of God with boldneſs. Note, When God is for us, we need neither fear nor care who are againſt us.

32. And the multitude of them that believed, [d] were of one heart, and of one ſoul: [e] neither ſaid any of them, that ought of the things which he poſſeſſed was his own, but they had all things common. 33. And with great power [f] gave the apoſtles witneſs of the reſurrection of the Lord Jeſus: and [g] great grace was upon them all. 34. Neither was there any among them that lacked: for as many as were poſſeſſors of lands or houſes, ſold them, and brought the prices of the things that were ſold, 35. And [h] laid them down at the apoſtles feet: and diſtribution was made unto every man according as he had need. 36. And Joſes, who by the apoſtles was ſurnamed Barnabas (which is, being interpreted, The ſon of conſolation) a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, 37. Having land, ſold it, and brought the money, and [i] laid it at the apoſtles feet.

[d] 1 Pet. iii. 8.
[e] Chap. ii. 44.
[f] Chap. i. 8, 22.
[g] Chap. ii. 47.
[h] Ver. 37. Chap. v. 2.
[i] Ver. 35.

v. 32—37. How beautiful is the ſcene here preſented to us! how unlike the ſchiſms and diviſions which have ſince unhappily rent the church of Chriſt.

1. The multitude of them that believed, vaſt as the acceſſions lately made had been, were of one heart, knit together in love, united in ſentiment, and ſeemed as it were actuated by one ſoul.

2. With great power gave the apoſtles witneſs of the reſurrection of the Lord Jeſus, proving the fact by inconteſtible evidence, and enforcing the truths connected therewith, confirming their teſtimony with ſigns and wonders, and preaching, with the moſt intrepid boldneſs and zeal, the glorious goſpel committed to them; and great grace was upon them all, the moſt evident tokens of the divine favour reſted upon them; and the effects of it were an entire contempt of the world, and moſt fervent charity towards all men.

3. They had all things common, and none ſaid that ought of the things which he poſſeſſed was his own, but freely gave up all for the general ſervice; hence there was not any among them that lacked, the pooreſt being equally ſupported out of the common ſtock, whilſt the richer members of the church, as many as were poſſeſſors of lands or houſes ſold them, and, of their own accord, freely brought the prices of the things that were ſold, and laid them down at the apoſtles feet, as truſtees for the good of the community; and diſtribution was made unto every man, by theſe faithful ſtewards, according as he hod need. And Joſes, who was by the apoſtles ſurnamed Barnabas (which is, being interpreted, a ſon of conſolation) probably from the admirable faculty he poſſeſſed of ſpeaking peace to wounded conſciences; a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, having land, either in Judea or in his own country, ſold it, and brought the purchaſe money, which ſeems to have been very conſiderable, and laid it at the apoſtles feet: a noble inſtance of enlarged and diſintereſted charity, deſerving a particular memorial. Note, (1.) What we have in the world is not our own, but God's; and, whenever he is pleaſed to call for it, ſhould be employed in his ſervice. (2.) If we are not called now to the ſame exerciſe of charity as in theſe days of the church's infancy, yet the rich muſt remember they are ſtill but God's almoners, and ſhould approve themſelves faithful ſtewards of the gifts entruſted to them. (3.) Objects of real need have a title to our relief according to our ability, eſpecially thoſe that are of the houſehold of faith. (4.) One bright example provokes the zeal of others, and none that ſhew themſelves faithful to Jeſus and his cauſe ſhall be forgotten by him.

CHAP. V.

In this chapter we have, 1. The ſin and puniſhment of Ananias and Sapphira, ver. 1—11. 2. The flouriſhing ſtate of the church, in the power that went along with the preaching of the goſpel, ver. 12—16. 3. The impriſonment of the apoſtles, and their miraculous diſcharge out of priſon, with freſh orders to go on to preach the goſpel, which they did, to the great vexation of their perſecutors, ver. 17—26. 4. Their arraignment before the great Sanhedrim, and their juſtification of themſelves in what they did, ver. 27—33. 5. Gamaliel's counſel concerning them, that they ſhould not perſecute them, but let them alone, and ſee what would come of it; and their concurrence for the preſent with this advice, in the diſmiſſion of the apoſtles with no more but a ſcourging, ver. 34—40. 6. The apoſtles chearful progreſs in their work, notwithſtanding the prohibition laid upon them, and the indignity done them, ver. 41, 42.

1. BUT a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, ſold a poſſeſſion, 2. And kept back part of the price, his wife alſo being privy to it, and brought a certain part, and [a] laid it at the apoſtles feet. 3. But Peter ſaid, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the holy Ghoſt, and to keep back part of the price of the land? 4. Whilſt it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was ſold, was it not in thine own power? why haſt thou conceived this thing in thine heart? thou haſt not lied unto men, but unto God. 5. And Ananias hearing theſe words, fell down and gave up the ghoſt: and [b] great fear came on all them that heard theſe things. 6. And the young men aroſe, [c] wound him up, and carried him out, and buried him. 7. And it was about the ſpace of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in. 8. And Peter anſwered unto her, Tell me whether ye ſold the land for ſo much. And ſhe ſaid, Yea, for ſo much. 9. Then Peter ſaid unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together, [d] to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thy huſband are at the door, and ſhall carry thee out. 10. Then fell ſhe down ſtraightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghoſt: and the young men came in and found her dead, and carrying her forth, buried her by her huſband. 11. And [e] great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard theſe things.

[a] Chap. iv. 37.
[b] Chap. ii. 43. Ver. 13.
[c] John xix. 40.
[d] Ver. 3.
[e] Ver. 5.

v. 1—11. The pureſt ſocieties on this ſide heaven have ſome hypocrites, as we ſee here:

1. Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, willing to appear among the foremoſt of the diſintereſted diſciples of Jeſus, ſold a poſſeſſion, and publickly brought a part of the money, which they would inſinuate was the whole, and laid it at the apoſtles feet, whilſt their covetous hearts ſecretly reſerved a part, and ſtill halted between God and Mammon; though they deſired to make a fair ſhew in the fleſh, and thought to impoſe upon the apoſtles. Note, Hypocrites may go far in appearances, and even, through pangs of zeal, forego for a while ſome temporal advantage, or endure loſs; but their heart is not right with God, and therefore there is ſtill a reſerve made, which ſerves to make them more eminently miſerable, parting with many of the comforts of this world, and yet having no ſure portion in a better.

2. Peter, who knew by divine revelation the falſehood of this pretended diſciple, ſaid unto him, Why hath Satan filled thy heart with ſuch covetouſneſs and falſehood, to lie to the Holy Ghoſt; either to think thus to impoſe upon the apoſtles, who were endued with the diſcernment of ſpirits by the Holy Ghoſt; or by pretending to act under his impulſe and influence, when in fact he was under the ſpirit of the devil; and to keep back part of the price, though intimating that the land was parted with for pious purpoſes, and devoted to the ſervice of the church. While it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was ſold, was it not thine own? both the ſale and ſurrender of the price being a voluntary act, and none were compelled to do either, but were left to their own pious zeal. Why haſt thou conceived this thing in thine heart? and harboured the ſuggeſtion of Satan to contrive ſo baſe a deed; thou haſt not lied unto men, but unto God, to that eternal Spirit which reſided in the apoſtles, who ſearcheth the hearts of all men, and from whom nothing is hid, nothing is ſecret. Note, (1.) Nothing betrays perſons more frequently into the ſin of lying than the affectation of appearing high in others eſteem. (2.) They who conceive falſehood in their hearts are filled with Satan; a lying ſpirit is his ſtrongeſt reſemblance. (3.) The Holy Ghoſt is God omniſcient. Let thoſe whom pride, worldly-mindedneſs, or a maintenance, drives into the minſtry, take heed how they preſume to declare they are inwardly moved by him, leſt, like Ananias and Sapphira, their lie be detected, if not here, yet hereafter to their everlaſting confuſion.

3. Behold a fearful example of divine vengeance! No ſooner had Peter ſpoken than Ananias fell down and gave up the ghoſt, ſtruck by an inviſible hand, as the juſt puniſhment of his wickedneſs, and to make one example to deter others from ſuch impious hypocriſy. And great fear came on all them that heard theſe things: it impreſſed an awe upon the minds of thoſe who had joined themſelves to the church, and ſerved to keep off from the ſociety of the apoſtles thoſe who would have been ſpots in their aſſembly.

4. The young men preſent removed the corpſe, wrapped it in grave-clothes, and buried it.

5. Sapphira, the wife of Ananias, who was privy to his falſehood, ignorant of what had paſſed, about three hours after joined the aſſembly; and, being required of Peter to anſwer if they had ſold the land for ſo much, without heſitation ſhe affirmed the lie, fooliſhly preſuming none could diſprove it. Her doom therefore is pronounced; being the partner of her huſband's ſin, ſhe ſhares his puniſhment. Peter ſaid unto her, How is it that ye have agreed to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? how aſtoniſhing is your ſtupidity, as well as monſtrous your wickedneſs, to attempt impoſing upon the omniſcient God? behold the feet of them which have buried thy huſband are at the door, and ſhall carry thee out. Inſtantly, death-ſtruck, ſhe fell at his feet, and they carried her out and buried her with her huſband; whilſt all the church were filled with reverence and godly fear at that jealous God, who thus appeared the avenger of falſehood and hypocriſy; and all others, that heard theſe judgments, were afraid of provoking or tempting the apoſtles, whoſe very word ſeemed cloathed with death. Note, (1.) It is truly grievous when near relations ſerve to encourage each other in iniquity. (2.) God, though patient under numberleſs provocations, is pleaſed to make ſome ſinners monuments of his vengeance, that men may hear and fear, and do no more wickedly.

12. ¶ And [f] by the hands of the apoſtles were many ſigns and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord [g] in Solomon's porch. 13. And [h] of the reſt durſt no man join himſelf to them: but [i] the people magnified them. 14. And [k] believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women) 15. Inſomuch that they brought forth the ſick into the ſtreets, and laid them on beds and couches, [l] that at the leaſt the ſhadow of Peter paſſing by, might overſhadow ſome of them. 16. There came alſo a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jeruſalem, bringing [m] ſick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean ſpirits: and they were healed every one.

[f] Chap. ii. 43. Rom. xv. 19. Heb. ii. 4.
[g] Chap. iii. 11.
[h] John ix. 22. & xii. 42. & xix. 38.
[i] Chap. iv. 21.
[k] Chap. ii. 41, 47.
[l] Mat. ix. 21. & xiv. 36. Chap. xix. 12.
[m] Mark xvi. 17, 18.

v. 12—16. We are here told,

1. Of the many and great miracles performed by the apoſtles, in proof of their divine miſſion; and ſo much were the people in general convinced of the mighty powers they poſſeſſed, that they brought forth the ſick in beds and couches and laid them in the ſtreets, that at leaſt the ſhadow of Peter paſſing by might overſhadow ſome of them, perſuaded that this would be effectual to work a cure: and from the country vaſt multitudes of patients, ſick and vexed with unclean ſpirits, were brought to them, and they were healed every one: none being rejected who made application to them.

2. Of the vaſt veneration in which the apoſtles were held. They were all with one accord in Solomon's porch, appearing and teaching publickly in the temple with the greateſt unanimity among themſelves: and of the reſt durſt no man join himſelf unto them; either none of the diſciples preſumed to ſet themſelves on a level with the apoſtles, or rather none durſt make a hypocritical profeſſion of Chriſtianity, who were not conſcious of the ſimplicity of their hearts, being terrified with the doom of Ananias and Sapphira: but the people magnified them, held them in the higheſt veneration, and ſpoke of them with the higheſt eſteem, beholding the wonders which they wrought, and the preſence and power of God evident in the midſt of them.

3. Of the vaſt acceſſion of converts made to the church. Believers were the more added to the Lord, and made open profeſſion of their faith in Chriſt, multitudes both of men and women, ſo mightily grew the word of God and increaſed.

17. ¶ Then the high prieſt roſe up, and all they that were with him, (which is the ſect of the Sadducees) and were filled with † indignation, 18. And laid their hands on the apoſtles, and put them in the common priſon. 19. But [n] the angel of the Lord by night opened the priſon doors, and brought them forth, and ſaid, 20. Go, ſtand and ſpeak in the temple to the people, [o] all the words of this life. 21. And when they heard that they entred into the temple early in the morning, and taught. But [p] the high prieſt came, and they that were with

† Or envy.
[n] Chap. xii. 7. & xvi. 26.
[o] John vi. 68.
[p] Chap. iv. 5, 6.

with him, and called the council together, and all the ſenate of the children of Iſrael, and ſent to the priſon to have them brought. 22. But when the officers came, and found them not in the priſon, they returned, and told, 23. Saying, The priſon truly found we ſhut with all ſafety, and the keepers ſtanding without before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within. 24. Now when the high prieſt, and [q] the captain of the temple, and the chief prieſts heard theſe things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow. 25. Then came one and told them, ſaying, Behold, the men whom ye put in priſon, [r] are ſtanding in the temple, and teaching the people.

[q] Luke xxii. 4. Chap. iv. 1.
[r] Ver. 20, 21.

v. 17—25. It cannot be ſuppoſed that the inveterate enemies of the goſpel would long be quiet, or Satan reſt when his kingdom was falling to ruins before the goſpel word.

1. The apoſtles are ſeized and impriſoned. The hand of the high-prieſt was firſt in this tranſgreſſion, ſupported by the Sadducean ſect, who could not endure the teſtimony born to the reſurrection of Jeſus, which radically ſtruck at all their tenets: exaſperated to fury, they could contain no longer, and with lawleſs violence laid hands on them; and, to put the greater diſgrace upon them, dragged them to the common priſon among the vileſt malefactors. Note, (1.) The ſucceſs of the goſpel is a vexation to wicked men, and, when they have power in their hands, the diſciples of Jeſus ſhall feel their oppreſſion. (2.) It is Satan's artifice, by endeavouring to make the miniſters of Chriſt deſpicable, to prejudice the people againſt them.

2. The Lord miraculouſly delivers his ſervants, by the hand of an angel, from their confinement. The commitment was illegal; therefore the great Judge of all ſends his meſſenger to diſcharge them honourably: and, by his power opening the priſon-doors, he ſaid, Go, ſtand and ſpeak in the temple, to the people, all the words of this life; not the leaſt intimidated by all the malice of their inveterate foes, but in their very ears, in the temple, the moſt publick place, muſt they declare the life-giving truths of the goſpel word, and the offenſive doctrines of a riſen Redeemer. Note, (1.) God can make the moſt loneſome priſon a paradiſe of delights, when he manifeſts his preſence there. (2.) They who are put in truſt with the goſpel muſt not, in the moſt publick manner, ſhun to declare the whole counſel of God, however offenſive it may prove, and whatever may be the conſequence to themſelves.

3. Without delay they obey the heavenly command, and early, as ſoon as the temple doors were open, they went thither, and boldly taught as before, fearleſs of any conſequences. Note, When duty calls, no danger muſt deter us.

4. An extraordinary council was aſſembled by the high-prieſt and his abettors, conſiſting not only of the ſanhedrim, but of all the ſenate of the children of Iſrael. And now, ready to proceed to trial, the priſoners are commanded to be brought forth; when, big with expectations of their appearing in chains before them, they are aſtoniſhed with the report of their officers, that the priſon was ſafe as they left it, and the guards upon duty, but none of the priſoners, whom they had committed thither, were to be found. Such an account threw them into the greateſt perplexity; they knew not what courſe to take, and began to be under terrible apprehenſions whereunto this would grow: when, to their greater confuſion, tidings are brought them, that the men whom they ſought, and had the evening before committed to priſon, were preaching openly in the temple, in defiance of all their menaces. Note, (1.) They who fight againſt God muſt needs involve themſelves in many troubles. (2.) The Lord can deliver his people out of all their trials, in ſpite of the malice of their moſt invenomed perſecutors.

26. Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: (for [s] they feared the people, leſt they ſhould have been ſtoned.) 27. And when they had brought them, they ſet them before the council: and the high-prieſt aſked them, 28. Saying, [t] Did not we ſtraitly command you, that you ſhould not teach in this name? and behold ye have filled Jeruſalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring [u] this man's blood upon us. 29. ¶ Then Peter and the other apoſtles anſwered and ſaid, [x] We ought to obey God rather than man. 30. [y] The God of our fathers raiſed up Jeſus, whom ye ſlew and [z] hanged on a tree. 31. [a] Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be [b] a Prince and a Saviour, [c] for to give repentance to Iſrael, and [d] forgiveneſs of ſins. 32. And [e] we are his witneſſes of theſe things; and [f] ſo is alſo the holy Ghoſt, [g] whom God hath given to them that obey him. 33. ¶ [h] When they heard that, they were cut to the heart, and took counſel to ſlay them. 34. Then ſtood there up one in the council, a Phariſee, named [i] Gamaliel, a doctor of law, had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the apoſtles forth a little ſpace, 35. And ſaid unto them, Ye men of Iſrael, take heed to yourſelves, what ye intend to do as touching theſe men. 36. For before theſe days roſe up Theudas boaſting himſelf to be ſomebody, to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themſelves: who was ſlain, and all, as many as obeyed him, were ſcattered and brought to nought. 37. After this man roſe up Judas of Galilee, in the days of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: he alſo periſhed, and all, even as many as obeyed him, were diſperſed. 38. And now I ſay unto you, Refrain from theſe men, and let them alone: for [k] if this counſel, or this work be of men, it will come to nought: 39. But [l] if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it, leſt haply ye be found even [m] to fight againſt God. 40. And to him they agreed: and when they had called the apoſtles and [n] beaten them, [o] they commanded that they ſhould not ſpeak in the name of Jeſus, and let them go. 41. ¶ And they departed from the preſence of the council, [p] rejoicing that they were counted worthy to ſuffer ſhame for his name. 42. And daily [q] in the temple, and in every houſe, they ceaſed not to teach and preach Jeſus Chriſt.

[s] Mat. xxi. 26. Chap. iv. 21.
[t] Chap. iv. 18.
[u] Chap. ii. 23, 36.
[x] Chap. iv. 19.
[y] Chap. ii. 24. & iii. 13, 15.
[z] Chap. x. 39. 1 Pet. ii. 24.
[a] Chap. ii. 33, 36. Heb. ii. 10.
Luke xxiv. 47.
[b] Chap. iii. 15.
[c] Chap. iii. 26.
[d] Chap. xiii. 38.
[e] John xv. 27. Chap. i. 8. & ii. 32.
[f] John xv. 26.
[g] Chap. ii. 4.
[h] Chap. vii. 54.
[i] Chap. xxii. 3.
[k] Iſa. viii. 10. Mat. xv. 13.
[l] Prov. xxi. 30. 1 Cor. i. 25.
[m] Chap. vii. 51. & ix. 5. & xxiii. 9.
[n] Mat. x. 17. & xxiii. 34.
[o] Chap. iv. 18.
[p] Mat. v. 12. 2 Cor. xii. 10. Heb. x. 34. Jam. i. 2. 1 Pet. iv. 13.
[q] Chap. ii. 42, 46. Ver. 12.

v. 26—42. We have here,

1. The peaceable ſubmiſſion of the apoſtles to the officers, who came to ſeize them a ſecond time in the temple. They dared not uſe violence, for fear leſt the people ſhould have roſe upon them, who held in juſt veneration the character of the apoſtles. The captain of the temple therefore, with his attendants, ſpoke them fair; and they, not unwilling nor afraid to appear before the council, conſented to go with them.

2. The inſolent reprimand given them by the high-prieſt, for daring to diſobey the charge given them. Did not we ſtraitly command you, that you ſhould not teach in this name? and ye have treated our orders with contempt; and behold, ye have filled Jeruſalem with your doctrine, moſt deteſtable and pernicious as it is; and intend to bring this man's blood upon us, both to expoſe us to the people, and lay the guilt of it at our doors, as if we had murdered an innocent man, and one whom you cry up ſo highly. But had not the apoſtles told them before, they muſt obey God rather than man? and had they not themſelves invoked the blood of Jeſus upon them, when Pilate would have let him go? Why then ſhould they be angry?

3. The apoſtles boldly replied, We ought to obey God rather than man; and, far from ſoftening any of the truths they declared, or the accuſations they brought againſt them as the murderers of the Son of God, to their faces they dare declare it, and charge this atrocious deed on their conſciences. The God of our fathers raiſed up Jeſus, teſtifying his higheſt approbation of him, whom ye ſlew and hanged on a tree, with the moſt impious cruelty and injuſtice; him hath God exalted with his right hand to a throne of glory in the heavens, to be a Prince and a Saviour to his redeemed people, to give repentance to his Iſrael, and remiſſion of ſins, freely and fully pardoning the tranſgreſſions of all who by true faith turn unto him, and working that converſion and faith in their hearts by the power of his grace. And we are his witneſſes of theſe things, appointed by him, and ſpeaking with the greateſt aſſurance the truths we moſt certainly know; and ſo is the Holy Ghoſt, whom God hath given to thoſe that obey him, who in all his miraculous gifts, as well as by the mighty energy of his goſpel on our own hearts and the hearts of others, atteſts the truths which we declare. Note, (1.) Chriſt, as a Saviour, offers the free and full remiſſion of their ſins, be they never ſo many, great, or aggravated, to thoſe who fly to him as their refuge. (2.) The promiſes of pardon are the great motives and cauſes of evangelical repentance. (3.) All who embrace Jeſus as their Saviour, ſubmit to him as their Prince; they who would reign with him, muſt be ruled by him. (4.) Beſides all the great and glorious external evidences of Chriſtianity, every obedient believer hath the internal witneſs of the Spirit in his heart, which is to him inſtead of a thouſand arguments; and, without this divine conviction of the truth, though we may ſilence and confound gainſayers, we never can convert them.

4. When they heard this, far from ſubmitting to the Saviour, and ſeeking the remiſſion of ſins which he is exalted to give, they were cut to the heart; malice, indignation, and rage, burned in their boſom; and inſtantly they took counſel to ſlay them, reſolving to rid themſelves at once of their troublers, and murder them together. Note, The boſom of the wicked, when triumphant in iniquity, is a preſent hell; whilſt, even in their ſufferings for righteouſneſs ſake, the faithful feel their heaven begun.

5. To check the fury of theſe zealots, Gamaliel, a man of more moderate counſels, aroſe. He was a Phariſee, a doctor of the law by profeſſion; and his high reputation among the people gave him weight and influence in the aſſembly: and he is ſaid to have been now the preſident of the ſanhedrim. He commanded to put the apoſtles forth a little ſpace, that he might ſpeak more freely. Whereupon, addreſſing his brethren, (1.) He adviſes them not to act too raſhly. Ye men of Iſrael, take heed to yourſelves what ye intend to do as touching theſe men, leſt by ſome haſty reſolution ye bring guilt upon your ſouls, and provoke God's diſpleaſure. (2.) He inſtances the ruin of ſome late impoſtors, who ſoon came to nothing, which would now be the caſe with theſe men, if the matter was a mere human contrivance. Theudas and Judas, two late pretenders, had ariſen and collected a number of followers; but both were quickly deſtroyed, their followers diſperſed, and their attempts abortive: and they might reaſonably expect the ſame would be the iſſue of the preſent diſturbance, if the thing was a mere artifice of deceivers, without embroiling themſelves, and taking the matter out of God's hand. Therefore, (3.) His advice is for the preſent to refrain from theſe men, and let them alone, and wait a while to ſee what courſe matters may take; for if this counſel or this work be of men, a mere invention of the crafty, or the folly of deluded enthuſiaſts, it will come to nought, the deceit will be ſoon detected, and their attempts end in their own confuſion, without our interfering; but if it be of God, though you oppoſe it with never ſo much violence, ye cannot overthrow it, and reſiſtance would be as vain as impious. Therefore wait quietly the event, leſt haply ye be found even to fight againſt God; the madneſs of which is evident, and the conſequence cannot but be your own confuſion and ruin. Note, (1.) Perſecution for conſcience ſake is as abſurd as it is wicked. (2.) They who oppoſe Chriſt's miniſters and goſpel fight againſt God, and the iſſue of that conflict muſt needs be fatal to his enemies.

6. Gamaliel's counſel ſo far prevailed as to reſcue the apoſtles from immediate death; but their enemies could not ſo entirely abſtain from them as to diſcharge them unhurt; their rage muſt be vented on their backs, though reſtrained from their blood: they called in the apoſtles, and, having ignominiouſly and ſeverely ſcourged them as malefactors, diſmiſſed them, with the moſt expreſs injunctions of never more ſpeaking in the name of Jeſus, at the peril of all the pains and penalties which would attend their diſobedience.

7. With admirable conſtancy the apoſtles bore their ſufferings, and boldly perſiſted in their glorious work. They departed from the preſence of the council, without a word of reproach or reviling, patiently ſubmitting to theſe indignities, and, ſo far from being aſhamed or intimidated, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to ſuffer ſhame for his name. This reproach was their higheſt honour, theſe ſtripes their glory; and, ſo far from deſiſting and being ſilent, as they were commanded, daily in the temple, in defiance of their perſecutors, and in every houſe, where they reſorted, they ceaſed not to teach and preach Jeſus Chriſt. He was the great theme of all their diſcourſe, and the complete redemption which was in him they explained and enforced, inviting all to come and ſhare their mercy, and believe to the ſaving of their ſouls. Note, (1.) When for the ſake of Jeſus and his truth we are called to ſuffer, we ſhould take pleaſure in reproaches, and rejoice at the inſults we meet with: they ſhall iſſue to our more abundant glory. (2.) A crucified Jeſus muſt be the conſtant ſubject of our miniſtrations; and publickly when called into the pulpit, and privately, when viſiting from houſe to houſe, him ſhould we ceaſeleſs teach and preach.

CHAP. VI.

In this chapter we have, 1. The diſcontent about the diſtribution of the public charity, ver. 1. 2. The ordination of ſeven deacons to eaſe the apoſtles of the burden, ver. 2—6. 3. The increaſe of the church, ver. 7. 4. A particular account of Stephen, one of the ſeven: (1.) His great activity for Chriſt, ver. 8. (2.) The oppoſition he met with, ver 9, 10. (3.) The convening of him before the great ſanhedrim, and the crimes laid to his charge, ver. 11—14. (4.) God's owning him upon his trial, ver. 15.

1. AND in thoſe days, when [a] the number of the diſciples was multiplied, there aroſe a murmuring of [b] the Grecians againſt the Hebrews, becauſe their widows were neglected in [c] the daily miniſtration. 2. Then the twelve called the multitude of the diſciples unto them, and ſaid, [d] It is not reaſon that we ſhould leave the word of God, and ſerve tables. 3. Wherefore, brethren, [e] look ye out among you ſeven men of honeſt report, full of the holy Ghoſt and wiſdom, whom we may appoint over this buſineſs. 4. But [f] we will give ourſelves continually to prayer, and to the miniſtry of the word. 5. ¶ And the ſaying pleaſed the whole multitude: and they choſe Stephen, [g] a man full of faith and of the holy Ghoſt, and [h] Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and [i] Nicolas a proſelyte of Antioch. 6. Whom they ſet before the apoſtles: and when [k] they had prayed, [l] they laid their hands on them. 7. And [m] the word of God increaſed; and [n] the number of the diſciples multiplied in Jeruſalem greatly; and a great company of [o] the prieſts were obedient to the faith.

[a] Chap. ii. 41, 47. & v. 14.
[b] Chap. ix. 29. & xi. 20.
[c] Chap. iv. 35.
[d] Ex. xviii. 17.
[e] Deut. i. 13. Chap. i. 21. & xvi. 2. 1 Tim. iii. 7.
[f] Chap. ii. 42.
[g] Chap. xi. 41.
[h] Chap. viii. 5, 26. & xxi. 8.
[i] Rev. ii. 6, 15.
[k] Chap. i. 24.
[l] Chap. viii. 17. & xiii. 3. 1 Tim. iv. 14. & v. 22. 2 Tim. i. 6.
[m] Chap. xii. 24. & xix. 20. Col. i. 16.
[n] Ver. 1.
[o] John xii. 42.

v. 1—7. The admirable peace and harmony of the church here ſuffers ſome ſlight interruption, and yet good ariſes out of the evil. We have,

1. The cauſe, whether real or imaginary, of the diſcontent which appeared among ſome of the members of the church. In thoſe days, when the number of diſciples was multiplied; for the ſufferings of the apoſtles, ſo far from checking the progreſs of the goſpel, proved its furtherance; there aroſe a murmuring of the Grecians, or Heleniſt Jews, who were chiefly foreigners, and were ſo called from the Greek language, which they ſpoke, and uſed in their ſynagogues, againſt the Hebrews, who were inhabitants of Judea, and made uſe of the Hebrew language in reading the Old Teſtament; and they complained, becauſe their widows were neglected in the daily miniſtration, as if there was a partiality ſhewn to the poor, who were Hebrews, and theirs either paſſed over, or ſcantily ſupplied. The complaint might poſſibly be real; in the multiplicity of affairs which lay on the apoſtles hands, they might be unable to look minutely into the wants of the ſeveral widows, or other poor, who had made application to them for relief; or perhaps, as the public ſtock was chiefly raiſed by the Hebrews, they might count that the widows and other poor of that denomination were entitled to the preference; but probably mere ſuſpicion dictated the complaint, and, as they lay under ſome kind of diſadvantages as foreigners, they were jealous leſt they ſhould be ſlighted; for thoſe who are poor are too apt to be querulous, to eye with jealouſy what is beſtowed on others, and to clamour, as if any kindneſs done to them was an injuſtice to themſelves. Note, (1.) Money matters are too often the cauſes of much diſſatisfaction even among thoſe who profeſs to be dead to the world. (2.) In the beſt ordered church ſome imperfections will be found, and the moſt careful paſtors may hear of ſome real or pretended cauſe of complaint.

2. The apoſtles propoſe an excellent expedient to remove all cauſe of murmuring; and this not only for the ſatisfaction of others, but for their own relief; their neceſſary employment, in preaching the word of God, being too much interrupted by minding theſe ſecular concerns. They aſſembled the multitude of the diſciples, it being a matter of common concern, and ſaid, It is not reaſon that we ſhould leave the word of God, and ſerve tables; theſe avocations of providing for the poor diverting them too much from the great buſineſs of preaching the goſpel. Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you men of honeſt report, full of the Holy Ghoſt and wiſdom, whom we may appoint over this buſineſs, men of eſtabliſhed reputation and integrity, endued with a diſtinguiſhed meaſure of the gifts and graces of the Spirit, to enable them for the faithful diſcharge of their office, and whoſe wiſdom and prudence are eminent, that they may manage the church's ſtock to greateſt advantage. Theſe were to be choſen by the people themſelves, who could not afterwards reaſonably find fault with the perſons of their own appointment; and the apoſtles would ordain them to their office, that they might be inveſted with due authority, and that thoſe who were concerned might know to whom they muſt apply in theſe matters: but we will give ourſelves continually to prayer, and to the miniſtry of the word, as our more immediate and proper employment. Note, (1.) They who are appointed to any holy office, even the loweſt in the church, may here behold the requiſites thereto. They muſt be perſons of blameleſs character, men of parts and abilities for the diſcharge of their truſt with wiſdom, and above all experimentally acquainted with the grace of God in their ſouls, and partakers of the Holy Ghoſt. To ordain perſons immoral, ignorant, deſtitute of experimental religion, and to count them fit for the miniſtry who are fit for nothing elſe; how ſhocking! how contrary to the apoſtolical practice! and what a ſcandal muſt ſuch be to the office they bear! (2.) Diveſted as much as poſſible of worldly cares, Chriſt's immediate ambaſſadors ſhould be occupied wholly in his work and the ſervice of immortal ſouls, preaching his goſpel in ſeaſon and out of ſeaſon, and watering with their prayers the labours of the pulpit, that God may give the increaſe.

3. The propoſal met with general approbation, and, after ſerious deliberation, they, with joint concurrence and perfect unanimity, made choice of ſeven perſons, whoſe names are recited, and ſeem to be of the Helleniſt Jews, which would moſt effectually ſerve to ſilence all future murmurings among them. Stephen ſtands firſt in the catalogue, with a moſt honourable teſtimony born to him; he was full of faith and of the Holy Ghoſt, a man eminent for gifts and graces. Philip, who follows him, we find afterwards ſucceſsfully employed in preaching the goſpel, chap. viii. Of the reſt we have no particular account, unleſs Nicolas, as ſome have ſuggeſted, was the founder of that ſect which St. John mentions with abhorrence, Rev. ii. 6—15. Theſe ſeven being preſented to the apoſtles, they prayed with them and for them, that they might be qualified for their work, and approve themſelves faithful, and then, by the impoſition of hands, ſolemnly ſeparated them for this ſervice, to which they were choſen.

4. The church continued to increaſe greatly, the inteſtine murmurs being ſilenced, the apoſtles being more diſincumbered, and all zealouſly attending to their ſeveral charges. Thus the goſpel-word ſpread its bleſſed influence around; the diſciples multiplied in Jeruſalem, where, during our Lord's miniſtry, few ſeem to have believed in him; and what is ſtill more aſtoniſhing, and to be reckoned among the chief wonders of grace, a great company of the prieſts were obedient to the faith, who had been the moſt inveterate enemies of Chriſt and his goſpel, but now embraced the profeſſion of Chriſtianity, and proved by their holy converſation the unfeigned faith which was in them. Note, True faith in Jeſus as a Saviour ever produces ſincere obedience to him as our Maſter.

8. And Stephen [p] full of faith and power did great wonders and miracles among the people. 9. ¶ Then there aroſe certain of the ſynagogue, which is called the ſynagogue of the Libertines and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia, and of Aſia, diſputing with Stephen. 10. And [q] they were not able to reſiſt the wiſdom and the ſpirit by which he ſpake. 11. Then they ſuborned men which ſaid, We have heard him ſpeak blaſphemous words againſt Moſes, and againſt God. 12. And they ſtirred up the people, and the elders, and the ſcribes, and came upon him, and caught him, and brought him to the council, 13. And ſet up falſe witneſſes, which ſaid, This man ceaſeth not to ſpeak blaſphemous words againſt this holy place and the law. 14. For we have heard him ſay, that this Jeſus of Nazareth ſhall [r] deſtroy this place, and ſhall change the † cuſtoms which Moſes delivered us. 15. And all that ſat in the council, looking ſtedfaſtly on him, ſaw his face as it had been the face of an angel.

[p] Ver. 5. Chap. vii. 55.

[q] Luke xxi. 15. Ex. iv. 12. Iſa. liv. 17.

[r] 2 Chron. vii. 21. Dan. ix. 26. Mat. xxiv. 2. & xxvi. 61.

† Or rites.

v. 8—15. Stephen, the firſt of the ſeven deacons, not only diſcharged the office to which he was appointed, but alſo appeared a zealous preacher of the goſpel.

1. He was full of faith and power; endued with an eminent meaſure of courage and zeal for Chriſt, and, in confirmation of the truths he preached, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

2. He appeared a bold diſputant againſt thoſe who oppoſed the cauſe of truth. There aroſe certain of the ſynagogue, which is called the ſynagogue of the Libertines, ſuch Jews as were honoured with the freedom of the city of Rome, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia, and of Aſia, diſputing with Stephen. Theſe Heleniſt Jews and proſelytes being generally the greateſt zealots for Judaiſm, and perhaps being eminently ſkilled in Grecian literature, thought they could ſoon confute and confound this zealous advocate for Chriſtianity, and challenged him to a public diſputation. Probably Paul of Tarſus, a city of Cilicia, was among the foremoſt of them. Stephen declined not the opportunity of vindicating the glorious truths of the goſpel; and this he did with ſuch clearneſs of argument, force of reaſoning, energy of diction, and piercing application, that they were not able to reſiſt the wiſdom and the ſpirit by which he ſpake; confounded, ſilenced, and unable to make any reply which carried the ſhadow of argument.

3. Enraged at being thus baffled, and inſtigated by malice and revenge, they ſuborned witneſſes, which ſaid, We have heard him ſpeak blaſphemous words againſt Moſes, and againſt God; endeavouring by perjury and murder to ſilence him for ever, whoſe arguments they felt themſelves ſo utterly unable to anſwer. And, working upon their prejudices and paſſions, they ſtirred up the people, and the elders, and the ſcribes, and in a popular tumult they came upon him, and caught him, as a criminal, and brought him to the council, as a blaſphemer; and ſet up falſe witneſſes, which they had hired, and inſtructed what to ſwear againſt Stephen, who ſaid, This man ceaſeth not to ſpeak blaſphemous words againſt this holy place, the temple, and againſt the law. For we have heard him ſay, what fully amounts to the charge we produce againſt him, that this Jeſus, the contemptible Nazarene who was crucified, ſhall deſtroy this place, this ſacred houſe, and ſhall change the cuſtoms which Moſes delivered us; aboliſhing all the ceremonial inſtitutions of our celebrated law-giver, and introducing others of his own appointment in their ſtead.

Such was the charge; which, if real, was far from amounting to blaſphemy; and theſe things actually came to paſs; though probably even in this they falſified, as the apoſtles themſelves ſeem not to have been yet apprized, that the ceremonial law ſhould be utterly aboliſhed; but whatever he might have ſaid, we may ſuppoſe they put upon it the moſt malicious conſtruction it would bear. Note, It is no new thing for the faithful to be branded as blaſphemers; and it is only wonderful, that when the enemies of the goſpel make no conſcience of an oath, they do not by more frequent perjuries attempt to blacken or deſtroy thoſe whom they ſo much abhor.

4. God owned his ſuffering ſervant by a ſignal mark of his favour, viſible even to his perſecutors. All that ſat in the council, looking ſtedfaſtly on him, to obſerve if he betrayed any tokens of fear or guilt, ſaw his face as it had been the face of an angel; ſuch deliberate courage, ſuch undiſturbed ſerenity, ſuch majeſty and mildneſs ſat on his countenance; perhaps a divine ſplendor beamed from it, like that of Moſes when he came from the mount, and ſeemed to make him appear more than human.

CHAP. VII.

In this chapter we have the martyrdom of Stephen, the firſt of the noble army of martyrs. Here is his defence of himſelf before the council: 1. He ſhews, by going over the hiſtory of the Old Teſtament, that God never intended to confine his favours to that place, or that ceremonial law; and that they had no reaſon to expect he ſhould; for the people of the Jews had always been a provoking people, and had forfeited the privileges of their peculiarity: Nay, that that holy place and that law were but figures of good things to come, and it was no diſparagement at all to them to ſay, that they muſt give place to better things, ver. 1—50. And then, 2. He applies this to them that proſecuted him, and ſat in judgment upon him, ſharply reproving them for their wickedneſs, by which they had brought upon themſelves the ruin of their place and nation, and then could not bear to hear of it, ver. 51—53. 3. The putting of him to death by ſtoning of him, and his patient, chearful, pious ſubmiſſion to it, ver. 54—60.

1. THEN ſaid the high prieſt, Are theſe things ſo? 2. And he ſaid, [a] Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken; The God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham when he was in Meſopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran, 3. And ſaid unto him, [b] Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I ſhall ſhew thee. 4. Then [c] came he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Charran: and from thence, when his father was dead, he removed him into this land wherein ye now dwell. 5. And he gave him none inheritance in it, no not ſo much as to ſet his foot on: [d] yet he promiſed that he would give it to him for a poſſeſſion, and to his ſeed after him, when as yet he had no child. 6. And God ſpake on this wiſe, [e] that his ſeed ſhould ſojourn in a ſtrange land, and that they ſhould bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil [f] four hundred years. 7. And the nation to whom they ſhall be in bondage, will I judge, ſaid God: and after that ſhall they come forth, and [g] ſerve me in this place. 8. And [h] he gave him the covenant of circumciſion: and ſo [i] Abraham begat Iſaac, and circumciſed him the eighth day: and [k] Iſaac begat Jacob, and [l] Jacob begat the twelve patriarchs. 9. And [m] the patriarchs moved with envy ſold Joſeph into Egypt: but [n] God was with him, 10. And [o] delivered him out of all his afflictions, and [p] gave him favour and wiſdom in the ſight of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he made him governor over Egypt and all his houſe. 11. [q] Now there came a dearth over all the land of Egypt and Canaan, and great affliction; and our fathers found no ſuſtenance. 12. [r] But when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he ſent out our fathers firſt. 13. And [s] at the ſecond time Joſeph was made known to his brethren; and Joſeph's kindred was made known unto Pharaoh. 14. Then ſent Joſeph, and called his father Jacob to him, and [t] all his kindred, threeſcore and fifteen ſouls. 15. So [u] Jacob went down into Egypt, [x] and died, he and our fathers, 16. And [y] were carried over into Sychem, and laid in [z] the ſepulchre that Abraham bought for a ſum of money of the ſons of Emmor, the father of Sychem.

[a] Chap. xxii. 1.

[b] Gen. xii. 1, 5, 6.

[c] Gen. xi. 31.

[d] Gen. xii. 7. & xiii. 15. & xv. 18.

[e] Gen. xv. 13.

[f] Ex. xii. 40. Gal. iii. 17.

[g] Ex. iii. 12.

[h] Gen. xvii. 10, 11.

[i] Ib. xxi. 2, 3, 4.

[k] Ib. xxv. 26.

[l] Ib. xxix. 31, &c. & xxx. 5, &c. & xxxv. 23.

[m] Ib. xxxvii. 4, 28. Pſ. cv. 17.

[n] Gen. xxxix. 2, 21.

[o] Pſ. cv. 20.

[p] Gen. xli. 37.

[q] Ib. 52. Pſ. cv. 16.

[r] Gen. xlii. 1.

[s] Ib. xlv. 4, 16.

[t] Ib. xlvi. 27. Deut. x. 22.

[u] Gen. xlvi. 5.

[x] Ib. xlix. 33.

[y] Ex. xiii. 19. Joſh. xxiv. 32.

[z] Gen. xxiii. 16. & xxxiii. 19.

v. 1—16. This noble confeſſor is now before his judges aſſembled in full council, with the high prieſt at their head; all his known, avowed, and inveterate enemies: yet, in anſwer to the high prieſt's demand, Are theſe things ſo? he boldly undertakes his defence. The ſcriptures are the armoury from whence he draws the weapons of his warfare, and we find him a compleat maſter of his ſubject. Being a Heleniſt Jew, he quotes the ſeptuagint, as the verſion commonly in uſe in their ſynagogues, though containing ſome variations from the original Hebrew. He begins,

1. With a reſpectful and affectionate addreſs, intreating their unprejudiced attention; Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken.

2. He lays before them a conciſe view of the patriarchal hiſtory, in order that they might remember, that God had a church and people in the world before the law was given, and ſtill would have one when all the ceremonial inſtitutions were aboliſhed.

1. He opens with the call of Abraham, to whom the God of glory appeared, in ſome viſible diſplay of his preſence, when he was in Meſopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran, in an idolatrous land, and ſaid unto him, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come unto the land which I ſhall ſhew thee: accordingly he immediately left his country, and removed to Charran, and after his father's death, receiving a ſecond call, he came into the land of Canaan, and abode there where they now dwelt.

From hence it appeared, that Abraham was in God's favour before he was circumciſed, and that God's Shechinah had viſited Ur of the Chaldees, before it appeared in Canaan; and therefore they might ſee, that neither the diſpenſation of the law, nor the land of Iſrael, were needful for the acceptable worſhip of God. Note, (1.) Though we may not ſee clearly whither God is leading us, yet when we have his call we may confidently go forward. (2.) They who are travelling to the heavenly Canaan, chearfully turn their backs on earth with all its allurements.

2. Though God had promiſed Abraham the land of Canaan for a poſſeſſion, and to his ſeed after him, when as yet he had no child, yet he gave him not a foot of land for a preſent inheritance; nor for four hundred years after, reckoning from the birth of Iſaac, did any of his poſterity enjoy the promiſed inheritance, but lived unſettled, and afflicted, under the tyranny of ſtrangers, till at the expiration of the time appointed, God engaged to judge their Egyptian oppreſſors, and to bring them at laſt to ſerve him in this place. And this Stephen ſuggeſts, in order to lower their pride on their original; and from the length of time which elapſed between the promiſe and the fulfilment of it, as well as from the hardſhips their fathers endured in the intermediate ſpace, to ſhew them, that the principal object to which the Lord intended to lead them, was the heavenly Canaan, of which this was but the figure; and therefore it could be no blaſphemy to ſay, that Jeſus would deſtroy this country, when he promiſed to bring them to the heavenly Canaan, and the Jeruſalem which is above. Note, (1.) Though God's promiſes may be long in their fulfilment, they are ſure. (2.) The children of God's love may be, and uſually are, called to endure the ſevereſt afflictions here. (3.) He will finally avenge them on their oppreſſors.

3. Having called Abraham to be his ſervant, God gave him the covenant of circumciſion, as a ſeal of the righteouſneſs of that faith which he had being yet uncircumciſed; and this rite he tranſmitted to his poſterity, circumciſing his ſon Iſaac on the eighth day, according to the divine command. And Iſaac begat Jacob and the twelve patriarchs, in whom the family of Abraham began to enlarge: yet even then did the ſame ſpirit of envy break forth againſt Joſeph, as they who boaſted themſelves deſcendants from theſe patriarchs afterwards ſhewed to Jeſus, of whom Joſeph was an eminent type, both in his ſufferings and exaltation. The patriarchs, moved with envy, ſold him into Egypt: but God was with him, and delivered him out of all his afflictions; and endued him with ſuch wiſdom as recommended him to Pharaoh's favour, who conſtituted him governor over Egypt and all his houſe. And thus had God exalted his ſon Jeſus, whom they had brought to the loweſt ſtate of ignominy and abaſement, to a throne of glory. A dearth which Joſeph had foretold, ſhortly after drove the brethren of Joſeph from Canaan to Egypt, where, through his care, proviſion had been laid up againſt the years of famine. There at the ſecond interview, to the aſtoniſhment of his brethren, Joſeph made himſelf known to them; and Pharaoh being acquainted with his kindred, at his deſire Joſeph invites his father and all his family into Egypt, conſiſting of ſeventy-five perſons. There Jacob with the patriarchs died, and in the faith of the fulfilment of God's promiſe to Abraham, the patriarchs' bones were carried out of Egypt, and laid in the ſepulchre which Jacob the grandſon of Abraham bought for a ſum of money of the ſons of Emmor the father of Sychem. Thus they might obſerve, that the land on which they ſet ſo high a value was afflicted with famine; that the patriarchs, of whom they boaſted, all died in a ſtrange country, yet were accepted of God, and died in faith, expecting that heavenly country to which Jeſus was appointed to bring all the Iſrael of God.

17. But when the time of the promiſe drew nigh,
[a] Ex. i. 7— 9. Pſ. cv. 24. which God had ſworn to Abraham, [a] the people grew and multiplied in Egypt, 18. Till another king aroſe, which knew not Joſeph. 19. The ſame dealt ſubtilly [b] Ex. i. 22. with our kindred, and evil entreated our fathers, ſo [b] that they caſt out their young children, to the end they might [c] Ex. ii. 2. not not live. 20. [c] In which time Moſes was born, and [d] Heb. xi. 23. [d] was † exceeding fair, and nouriſhed up in his father's † Gr. Fair to God, i. e. divinely fair. houſe three months: 21. And when he was caſt out, [e] Ex. ii. 7. [e] Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nouriſhed him [f] Luke xxiv. 19. for her own ſon. 22. And Moſes was learned in all the wiſdom of the Egyptians, and [f] was mighty in words and in deeds. 23. And when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to viſit his brethren the children of Iſrael. 24. [g] And ſeeing one of them ſuffer [g] Ex. ii. 11.
wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was op-preſſed, and ſmote the Egyptian: 25. For he ſuppoſed his brethren would have underſtood how that God by his hand would deliver them: but they underſtood not.
26. [h] And the next day he ſhewed himſelf unto them as [h] Ex. ii. 13.
they ſtrove, and would have ſet them at one again, ſaying, Sirs, ye are brethren, why do ye wrong one to another? 27. But he that did his neighbour wrong, thruſt him away, ſaying, [i] Who made thee a ruler and a judge [i] Chap. iv. 7.
over us? 28. Wilt thou kill me as thou killedſt the Egyptian yeſterday? 29. [k] Then fled Moſes at this ſay- [k] Ex. ii. 15.
ing, and was a ſtranger in the land of Madian, where he begat two ſons.

v. 17—29. Stephen proceeds with the hiſtory of the Jewiſh people.

1. When the time of the promiſe drew near, they multiplied exceedingly. Then a new king aroſe, which knew not Joſeph, nor remembered what a ſaviour he had been to the land; but, jealous of the increaſe of the Iſraelites, with helliſh craft he ſought to extirpate them by a bloody edict to kill all the male children which ſhould be born; whilſt by the moſt ſervile and inceſſant toils and labour he ſought to harraſs to death their fathers. And thus were they acting againſt the diſciples of Jeſus and his infant church; but their ſubtilty and malice would be equally abortive; the followers of Jeſus but increaſed and multiplied the more.

2. In this ſtate of diſtreſs Moſes was born, deſigned of God for their great deliverer; for when God's people are at the laſt extremity, he is ready glorioully to appear on their behalf. The child was exceeding fair; ſomething peculiarly beautiful appeared on his infant countenance. After being concealed three months, he was at laſt expoſed; and ſo providence ordered it, that Pharaoh's daughter, coming down to the ſpot to bathe, found the babe, and was ſo ſtruck with his beauty and tears, that ſhe took and brought him up as her own ſon, giving him the moſt accompliſhed education; ſo that he was learned in all the wiſdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and deeds; remarkably judicious in his counſels, and eminent for his courage.

Stephen ſhewed hereby, that, far from diſhonouring Moſes, he regarded him with greateſt admiration, and ſpoke of him with the higheſt encomiums. He was alſo an eminent figure of Chriſt, expoſed to like danger in his infancy, and raiſed up of God to be a greater Saviour to his people.

3. Being arrived at the prime of life, and at the height of grandeur and affluence, moved by a divine impulſe, he reſolved to leave the court of Pharaoh, and viſit his afflicted brethren. And ſeeing one of them moſt unjuſtly abuſed and beaten, he interpoſed in his behalf, and ſlew the Egyptian, as a ſpecimen of that authority with which he was inveſted, as their appointed deliverer; ſuppoſing by this action they would underſtand what God intended to do for them by his means; but they underſtood not. The next day he ſhewed himſelf again unto them as they ſtrove, and as a peace-maker would fain have reconciled the two Hebrews which quarrelled with each other, ſuggeſting their near relation, and how unbecoming it was in them to abuſe and fight with one another. But he who was the aggreſſor, impatient of the rebuke, (as thoſe uſually are, who are in the wrong) inſultingly rejects his interpoſition, ſaying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us? as if he aſſumed an authority to which he had no title, and upbraids him with what he had done the day before; Wilt thou kill me as thou killedſt the Egyptian yeſterday? Perceiving hereby the danger in which he was, and the ingratitude and baſeneſs of his brethren, Moſes fled, leſt the fact being publiſhed, he ſhould be arreſted as a murderer; and taking up his abode in the land of Madian, he ſpent another forty years there, where he begat two ſons.

Now Stephen inſinuates it was no new thing with them to reject and ill-uſe their divinely-appointed deliverers. As their fathers perverſely ſhut their eyes againſt the pretenſions of Moſes, ſo had they refuſed Jeſus the prince of glory, who came to deliver them from a worſe than Egyptian bondage, even from the tyranny of ſin and Satan, and from the power of death and hell.

30. [l] And when forty years were expired, there ap- [l] Ex. iii. 2.
peared to him in the wilderneſs of mount Sina, an angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a buſh. 31. When Moſes ſaw it, he wondered at the ſight: and as he drew near to behold it, the voice of the Lord came unto him, 32. Saying, [m] I am the God of thy fathers, the God of [m] Mat. xxii. 32. Heb. xi. 16.
Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob.
Then Moſes trembled, and durſt not behold. 33. [n] Then [n] Joſh. v. 15.
ſaid the Lord to him, Put off thy ſhoes from thy feet:
for

for the place where thou ſtandeſt is holy ground. 34.
I have ſeen, I have ſeen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them. And now come, I will ſend thee into Egypt. 35. This Moſes whom they refuſed, ſaying, [o] Who made thee a ruler and a judge? [p] the ſame did God ſend to be a ruler, and a deliverer, [q] by the hands of the angel [r] which appeared to him in the buſh. 36.
He brought them out, after that he had [s] ſhewed wonders and ſigns in the land of Egypt, and in the Red ſea, and [t] in the wilderneſs forty years. 37. ¶ This is that Moſes which ſaid unto the children of Iſrael, [u] A prophet ſhall the Lord your God raiſe up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; [x] him ſhall ye hear. 38. [y] This is he that was in the church in the wilderneſs, with [z] the angel which ſpake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers: who received the lively [a] oracles to give unto us. 39. To whom our fathers would not obey, but thruſt him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt, 40. [b] Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moſes, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him. 41. And [c] they made a calf in thoſe days, and offered ſacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands. 42. Then God turned, and [d] gave them up to [e] worſhip the hoſt of heaven; as it is written in the book of the prophets, [f] O ye houſe of Iſrael, have ye offered to me ſlain beaſts, and ſacrifices, by the ſpace of forty years in the wilderneſs? 43.
Yea, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the ſtar of your god Remphan, figures which ye made, to worſhip them: and I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

[o] Ver. 27.
[p] Ex. iii. 10.
[q] Num. xx. 16.
[r] Ex. iii. 2.
[s] Ex. vii.—xiv.
[t] Ex. xvi. 1.
[u] Deut. xviii. 15, 18. Chap. iii. 22.
[x] Mat. xvii. 5.
[y] Ex. xix. 3, 17.
[z] Iſa. lxiii. 9. Gal. iii. 19.
[a] Ver. 53. Rom. iii. 2.
[b] Ex. xxxii. 1.
[c] Deut. ix. 16. Neh. ix. 18. Pſ. cvi. 19.
[d] Pſ. lxxxi. 12. Rom. i. 24. 2 Theſ. ii. 11.
[e] Jer. viii. 2. & xix. 13. & xliv. 17. Ezek. viii. 16.
[f] Am. v. 25.

v. 30—43. Stephen proceeds in his account of Moſes, and, far from ſpeaking ought that could be conſtrued into blaſphemy againſt him, none could ever make more honourable mention of this great law-giver.

1. At the expiration of forty years, the great angel of the covenant, who in the fulneſs of time was to come into the world as God incarnate, in the perſon of the man Chriſt Jeſus, appeared to him in a buſh, which ſeemed all on fire, yet remained unconſumed. Struck with aſtoniſhment at this ſtrange ſight, when Moſes approached to take a nearer view, the voice of God was heard from the midſt of the buſh, ſaying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob, remembring his covenant, and now about to fulfil his promiſes to their ſeed, after ſo long a time. The doctrine of a reſurrection then, at which the Sadducees were ſo offended, hath Moſes for its voucher: and God had not limited his preſence to the temple, but had here diſplayed his glory in a wilderneſs; and that very covenant of promiſe made unto the fathers, which God ſpake of to Moſes, Stephen preached, ſhewing its moſt evident and glorious accompliſhment in the ſpiritual ſalvation of Jeſus; ſo far was he from contradicting, and much more from blaſpheming Moſes, as they alledged.

2. Struck with ſacred reverence, his eyes fixed on the earth, Moſes durſt not behold. Then God bids him put his ſhoes from his feet, as ſtanding now on holy ground, and gives him his commiſſion. I have ſeen, I have ſeen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them. Though God ſuffer his people to be in diſtreſs, he hears their cry, and in his good time will help them. This Moſes whom they refuſed, ſaying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? the ſame did God ſend to be a ruler, and a deliverer, by the hands of the angel which appeared to him in the buſh; and thus had God exalted Jeſus, whom they had in like manner rejected, to be a Prince and Saviour.

3. Moſes faithfully executed his commiſſion, and brought them out from the houſe of bondage, after he had ſhewed ſigns and wonders in the land of Egypt, and in the Red ſea, and in the wilderneſs forty years. So highly does he ſpeak of Iſrael's deliverer; nor was it any derogation from him, that a greater than he ſhould ariſe, accompliſhing a more glorious redemption for them, ſince of ſuch a one doth Moſes himſelf propheſy.

4. This is that Moſes, the very perſon for whoſe honour they were ſo jealous was he which ſaid unto the children of Iſrael, A prophet ſhall the Lord your God raiſe up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; a new law-giver, who ſhould introduce another diſpenſation; or as me, as he hath raiſed up me, ſo ſhall there ariſe another, inveſted with divine authority and power: him ſhall ye hear, ſubmitting to his word, and obedient to his voice in all things. Far therefore from diſhonouring Moſes, Stephen ſhews the accompliſhment of his prophecy, and that they ought to teſtify their real veneration for his memory, by obeying his injunctions, and ſubmitting to that new and ſpiritual diſpenſation which Jeſus the great prophet came to introduce.

5. Notwithſtanding all the ſervices which Moſes did them, and all the honour God had conferred upon him, their fathers had treated him with the higheſt contempt and ingratitude. This is he that was in the church in the wilderneſs, as their captain and leader, with the angel, that uncreated angel of the covenant, the great Jehovah Jeſus, which ſpake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers, face to face, as a man talketh to his friend; who received the lively oracles to give unto us; oracles, as being of infallible certainty; and lively, ſharp, and piercing the conſcience, or leading thoſe who truly underſtood them to eternal life. Yet greatly as Moſes was honoured of God herein, our fathers would not obey him, but thruſt him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt; murmuring and mutinying againſt him; and, at the very time when, as their mediator, he was in the mount with God, ſinking into the groſſeſt idolatry, ſaying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moſes, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him. So diſreſpectfully did they ſpeak of their great deliverer. And accordingly they made a calf in thoſe days, in imitation of the Egyptian god Apis, and offered ſacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the work of their own hands. Inſtead therefore of charging Stephen with blaſphemy, they would do well to remember what their own anceſtors had done.

6. For theſe abominations God was juſtly provoked. Then he turned, withdrew from them his grace and favour, and gave them up to worſhip the hoſt of heaven, leaving them in righteous judgment to their own inventions. In conſequence of which they neglected God, and all the newly-inſtituted ordinances, and relapſed, after they came into Canaan, into the groſſeſt idolatry; for which he quotes a prophet's word, whoſe authority they would not diſpute, (Amos v. 25—27.) Have ye offered unto me ſlain beaſts, and ſacrifices, by the ſpace of forty years in the wilderneſs? No: they neglected his worſhip, and what they offered was to devils, and not to God, (Deut. xxxii. 17.) ſo that they themſelves diſuſed for forty years thoſe very cuſtoms which Moſes had delivered to them. And, worſe ſtill, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, the image of this idol incloſed in a ſhrine; and the ſtar of your god Remphan, figures which ye made to worſhip them, in expreſs contradiction to the commands of God: and for this he threatens them with condign puniſhment; I will carry you away beyond Babylon, (See 2 Kings xvii. 5—8.)

Now if God dealt thus ſeverely with them for deſpiſing Moſes's law, of how much ſorer puniſhment, than even their anceſtors received, would they be counted worthy, for rejecting the diſpenſation of grace which Jeſus, ſo far greater than Moſes, came from God to reveal to them?

44. Our fathers had the tabernacle of witneſs in the wilderneſs, as he had appointed, † ſpeaking unto Moſes, [g] that he ſhould make it according to the faſhion that he had ſeen. 45. [h] Which alſo our fathers ‡ that came after, brought in with § Jeſus into the poſſeſſion of the Gentiles, [i] whom God drave out before the face of our fathers, unto the days of David. 46. [k] Who found favour before God, and [l] deſired to find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob. 47. [m] But Solomon built him an houſe. 48. Howbeit [n] the moſt High dwelleth not in temples made with hands; as ſaith the prophet, 49.
[o] Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footſtool: what houſe will ye build me? ſaith the Lord: or what is the place of my reſt? 50. Hath not my hand made all theſe things?

† Gr. Who ſpake.
[g] Ex. xxv. 40. Heb. viii. 5.
[h] Joſh. iii. 14.
‡ Or having received.
§ i. e. Joſhua. So Heb. iv. 8.
[i] Deut. iv. 38. & vii. 1. Pſ. lxxviii. 55.
[k] 1 Sam. xvi. 1. Chap. xiii. 22.
[l] Pſ. cxxxii. 4.
[m] 1 Kings vi. 1. 1 Chron. xvii. 12.
[n] 1 Kings viii. 27. Chap. xvii. 24.
[o] Iſa. lxvi. 1. Mat. v. 34. & xxiii. 22.

v. 44—50. The accuſation lodged againſt Stephen was for ſpeaking againſt the temple, as if that was blaſphemous; whereas he ſhews, that their fathers worſhipped God acceptably for ages before any temple was built.

1. It was not till they came into the wilderneſs, that the tabernacle of witneſs was reared, according to the model which God ſhewed to Moſes in the mount. God accepted his faithful worſhippers before there was any tabernacle; and they might again ſerve him as acceptably, if the holy place, the temple, was deſtroyed: and the very care ſhewn in the making of this tent according to the divine model, intimated, that it was a ſhadow of good things to come, being typical of the incarnation of the Son of God, and of his ſpiritual and gracious preſence in his church.

2. This tabernacle Joſhua brought into the poſſeſſion of the Gentiles, whom God drave out before him; and if it was ſet up in that polluted land of Canaan, why might not God now erect his ſpiritual tabernacle among the nations of the heathen?

3. Till David's time God was pleaſed to dwell in this mean and moveable tent, above four hundred years; and when David was deſirous to build a temple for the Lord, he forbad him, reſerving that honour for Solomon, who built him an houſe. It appeared therefore evident, that God was not ſollicitous to have a temple for his abode, as if that was neceſſary for their acceptable worſhip; and alſo, that if Solomon might change the tabernacle for a temple, God might no doubt, if he pleaſed, deſtroy that, and make his abode in his ſpiritual temple, the church of the redeemed.

4. Though God ordered the erection of the tabernacle, and the building of the temple, it could not be conceived, that his immenſity could be circumſcribed by theſe narrow bounds, when, as the prophet, (Iſa. lxvi. 1, 2.) had obſerved, Heaven is his throne, and earth his footſtool. No houſe made with hands can then be comparable to that glorious temple the univerſe, which himſelf hath reared: nor can he need a place to repoſe himſelf, when all things and creatures whatever are the work of his hands. Therefore it was no diſparagement to the temple, to affirm, that Jeſus ſhould deſtroy this temple, and ſet up another, into which all nations ſhould flow together, and their worſhip be acceptable to him.

51. ¶ Ye [p] ſtiff-necked and [q] uncircumciſed in heart and ears, ye do always reſiſt the holy Ghoſt: as your fathers did, ſo do ye. 52. [r] Which of the prophets have not your fathers perſecuted? and they have ſlain them which ſhewed before of the coming of [s] the juſt One, [t] of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers: 53. [u] Who have received the law by the diſpoſition of angels, and have not kept it.

[p] Ex. xxxii. 9. Iſa. xlviii. 4.
[q] Lev. xxvi. 41. Jer. vi. 10. & ix. 26.
[r] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16. Mat. xxiii. 34.
[s] Chap. iii. 14.
[t] Chap. ii. 23. 1 Theſ. ii. 15.
[u] Ex. xx. 1. Gal. iii. 19. Heb. ii. 2.

v. 51—53. Probably Stephen was proceeding to ſhew, that the temple and its ſervice muſt come to an end; but perceiving the rage that fired the boſoms of his enemies ſparkling in their eyes, and expecting ſoon to be interrupted, he cloſes with a word of piercing application.

1. He charges them with their obſtinacy and ſtubbornneſs, like unto their fathers. Ye ſtiff-necked, and uncircumciſed in heart and ears; in profeſſion God's ſervants, but hardened in pride and prejudice againſt the cleareſt intimations of his will; ye do always reſiſt the Holy Ghoſt; rejecting the evidence of his miracles, wilfully blind to the cleareſt prophecies, and fighting againſt the convictions of your own conſciences. As your fathers did, ſo do ye; refuſing to hearken unto us the inſpired ſervants of Jeſus, as they turned a deaf ear to the warnings of the prophets: and juſt is it in God to devote thoſe to ruin, who will not hearken to his admonitions, but obſtinately harden their hearts.

2. They were perſecutors and murderers, like their fathers. Which of the prophets have not your fathers perſecuted? more or leſs reviling or oppoſing them: and they have ſlain them which ſhewed before the coming of the juſt One, the divine Meſſiah, Jeſus, the holy One of God, ſent to bring in an everlaſting righteouſneſs, by his perfect obedience in the ſinner's ſtead, of whom ye, treading cloſely in your anceſtor's ſteps, and exceeding them in wickedneſs, have been the betrayers and murderers.

3. They had rejected God's word, as their fathers before them, who have received the law, delivered in the moſt auguſt manner, by the diſpoſition of angels, whoſe miniſtry God employed on mount Sinai, when in ſhining ranks they graced that ſolemnity, as attendants on the King of Glory; and have not kept it; have, like them, broken its moſt eſſential precepts, and added to all their guilt the rejection of the goſpel alſo, notwithſtanding all the glorious evidence wherewith it hath been attended; and how then can ye hope to eſcape the vengeance of an offended God?

54. ¶ [x] When they heard theſe things, they were cut to the heart, and they gnaſhed on him with their teeth. 55. But [y] he being full of the holy Ghoſt, looked up ſtedfaſtly into heaven, and ſaw the glory of God, and Jeſus ſtanding on the right hand of God. 56. And ſaid, Behold, [z] I ſee the heavens opened, and [a] the Son of man ſtanding on the right hand of God. 57. Then they cried out with a loud voice, and ſtopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord, 58. And [b] caſt him out of the city, and ſtoned him: and [c] the witneſſes laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whoſe name was Saul. 59. And they ſtoned Stephen, [d] calling upon God, and ſaying, Lord Jeſus [e] receive my ſpirit. 60. And he kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, [f] Lord, lay not this ſin to their charge. And when he had ſaid this, he fell aſleep.

[x] Chap. v. 33.
[y] Chap. vi. 5.
[z] Ezek. i. 1. Mat. iii. 16. Chap. x. 11.
[a] Dan. vii. 13.
[b] 1 Kings xxi. 13 Luke iv. 29. Heb. xiii. 12.
[c] Deut. xvii. 7. Chap. xxii. 20.
[d] Chap. ix. 14.
[e] Pſ. xxxi. 5. Luke xxiii. 46.
[f] Mat. v. 44. Luke xxiii. 34.

v. 54—60. We have here the glorious and triumphant death of the firſt chriſtian martyr.

1. When they heard theſe things, they were cut to the heart, ſo filled were they with envy, indignation, and malice, as if ſawn aſunder; and they gnaſhed upon him with their teeth, as if they would have devoured him alive. Note, Wicked men carry their hell about with them, in thoſe diabolical tempers and raging paſſions, which make them their own tormentors.

2. Stephen, unterrified with their malice, and being full of the Holy Ghoſt, receiving an abundant increaſe of grace and conſolation ſuited to his preſent condition, looked up ſtedfaſtly into heaven; appealing to God, confidently expecting divine ſupport, and eagerly longing after that crown of glory that now ſhone bright in his view, and enabled him to look down with contempt upon the malice of his enemies; and, by a miraculous manifeſtation, ſaw the glory of God, ſome viſible emblem of the eternal Majeſty, ſuch as the Shechinah, and Jeſus ſtanding at the right hand of God, in his human nature as mediator, exalted to the higheſt honour and dignity, appearing as the advocate of his ſuffering ſaint, to ſtrengthen him boldly to reſiſt unto blood, to crown him with martyrdom, and ſhortly to avenge him of his bloody perſecutors. Tranſported with this beatific viſion, he ſaid, with wonder and delight, Behold, I ſee the heavens opened, and the ſon of man ſtanding at the right hand of God. Note, (1.) In times of ſuffering, our eyes ſhould be lifted up to heaven, for from thence cometh our help. (2.) As our tribulations for Chriſt abound, he is pleaſed, by the moſt gracious manifeſtation of himſelf, to cauſe our conſolations to abound alſo. (3.) A ſight of Jeſus, at the right hand of God, will carry us triumphantly through death, armed with all its terrors, and enable us to defy the ſtroke.

3. Concluding now that they had full cauſe for his condemnation, They cried with a loud voice, to drown his ſpeech, to expreſs their deteſtation of what they heard, and ſharpen each others fury; and ſtopped their ears, as if ſhocked at his blaſphemy, and ran upon him with one accord; the whole multitude of the people riſing in tumultuous rage; and caſt him out of the city, as a wretch not fit to live, and who defiled that holy place where he ſtood, and ſtoned him, as a blaſphemer, Lev. xxiv. 16. and the witneſſes, whoſe hands were firſt upon him, Deut. xvii. 6, 7. laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whoſe name was Saul, a fiery zealot, who with pleaſure ſaw the bloody execution of this holy martyr. Note, (1.) The cauſe of Chriſt is often run down with clamour, and rage ſupplies the place of reaſon. (2.) Many of the deareſt ſaints upon earth have been counted as the off-ſcouring of all things, and thought unworthy of the air they breathed.

4. They ſtoned Stephen, calling upon God; tho' caſt out from earth, as unworthy to live, he had a ſure intereſt in heaven, ſaying, Lord Jeſus receive my ſpirit; and, now ready to expire, he kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, expreſſive of the vehemence of his deſire, Lord, lay not this ſin to their charge, copying cloſely his divine Maſter's example; and when he had ſaid this he fell aſleep, as theſe words dropped from his lips, the mortal blow reached him, and in the arms of everlaſting love he ſweetly reſted from ſuffering and ſorrow for ever. Note, (1.) In a dying hour, we cannot be better employed than in commending our ſouls into the arms of Jeſus. (2.) If our immortal part be ſafe, it little matters what becomes of the fleſhly tabernacle. (3.) Jeſus is very God, the object of his people's adoration; and as by faith in him we can only live comfortably, ſo by an eye to him, as the reſurrection and the life, can we die happily. (4.) Our bittereſt perſecutors muſt ſhare our prayers; and the more wicked they are, the more they need them. (5.) When we come to die, it will be eſſential to our own comfort, that we are truly in charity with all men. (6.) Death to a believer is but a ſleep; repoſing a while in that bed of duſt where our Lord hath lain, his voice ſhall waken us up in the reſurrection morn, and we ſhall ariſe to ſhare with him the triumphs of that eternal day, when our ſun ſhall no more go down, nor our moon withdraw itſelf, but the Lord ſhall be our everlaſting light, and our God our glory.

CHAP. VIII.

We have here, 1. The perſecution of the church, ver. 1—3. 2. Its enlargements by Philip's preaching at Samaria, ver. 4—13. 3. Peter and John confirm the diſciples there, and rebuke Simon Magus, ver. 14—25. 4. Philip, by divine direction, preaches to, converts, and baptizes the Ethiopian eunuch, ver. 26—38. 5. He returns, ver. 39, 40.

1. AND [a] Saul was conſenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great perſecution againſt the church which was at Jeruſalem; and [b] they were all ſcattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apoſtles. 2. And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and [c] made great lamentation over him. 3. As for Saul, [d] he made havock of the church, entring into every houſe, and haling men and women, committed them to priſon.

[a] Chap. vii. 58. & xxii. 20.
[b] Chap. xi. 19.
[c] Gen. xxiii. 2. & l. 10. 2 Sam. iii. 31.
[d] Chap. ix. 1. & xxii. 4. & xxvi. 10, 11. 1 Cor. xv. 9. Gal. i. 13 1 Tim. i. 13.

v. 1—3. We are here told,

1. The pleaſure and ſatisfaction Saul took in ſeeing the firſt martyr bleed. He not only conſented to the deed, but, as the word ſignifies, feaſted his eyes with the ſhocking ſpectacle, in hopes ſuch ſharp methods would ſoon put a ſtop to the progreſs of that goſpel which he abhorred.

2. The chief prieſts and rulers determined to purſue their blow, and whilſt the fury of the people laſted, ſeverely perſecuted the church at Jeruſalem, ſo that the preachers, who were the great objects of enmity, were forced to withdraw, and diſperſe themſelves through Judea and Samaria, except the apoſtles, who ſtill continued at Jeruſalem, and were preſerved ſafe from the rage of their blood-thirſty enemies.

3. Stephen's friends, devout men, eminent for their piety, dared, notwithſtanding the danger to which they were expoſed, to gather up his broken remains, and carried him to his burial; and though they could not but rejoice in his triumphant death, they bewailed their own and the church's loſs, deprived of ſo able an advocate for the cauſe of Chriſt. Note, (1.) The departure of the eminent ſervants of Jeſus demands a tear; though it be their gain, it is our loſs, and we ſhould weep for ourſelves. (2.) The corpſe is honourable in which a heavenly ſpirit hath dwelt, and ſhould be decently laid in the duſt, in ſure and certain confidence of a glorious reſurrection, when it ſhall awake in brighter array.

4. Saul, the invenomed foe to the Chriſtian name, a fiery zealot, the fitteſt tool the prieſts could have choſen for their ſervice, made havock of the church, perſecuting them even unto death, as he owns, (Acts xxii. 4.) entring into every houſe, and, ſparing neither age nor ſex, haling men and women, committed them to priſon. To ſuch low and dirty work doth enmity againſt the goſpel lead a man of note, a gentleman, a ſcholar; as if every mark of contempt and cruelty to a Chriſtian was meritorious and commendable.

4. Therefore [e] they that were ſcattered abroad, went every where preaching the word. 5. Then [f] Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Chriſt unto them. 6. And the people with one accord gave heed unto thoſe things which Philip ſpake, hearing and ſeeing the miracles which he did. 7. For [g] unclean ſpirits, crying with a loud voice, came out of many that were poſſeſſed with them: and many taken with palſies, and that were lame, were healed. 8. And there was great joy in that city. 9. But there was a certain man called Simon, which before-time in the ſame city [h] uſed ſorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himſelf was ſome great one. 10. To whom they all gave heed from the leaſt to the greateſt, ſaying, This man is the great power of God. 11. And to him they had regard, becauſe that of long time he had bewitched them with ſorceries. 12. But when they believed Philip, preaching the things [i] concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jeſus Chriſt, [k] they were baptized both men and women. 13. Then Simon himſelf believed alſo; and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondred, beholding the † miracles and ſigns which were done.

[e] Mat. x. 23. Chap. xi. 19.
[f] Chap. vi. 5.
[g] Mark xvi. 17.
[h] Chap. xiii. 8.
[i] Chap. i. 3.
[k] Mat. xxviii. 19.
† Gr. Signs and great miracles.

v. 4—13. The attempt to extinguiſh and ſuppreſs the riſing flame of Chriſtianity, ſerved but the more to ſpread the ſacred fire. They that were ſcattered abroad, went every where preaching the word; not hiding themſelves in corners, or ſeeking concealment by their ſilence; but publiſhing throughout the country the glad tidings of ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt. Philip, the ſecond of the deacons, and now the firſt ſince Stephen had finiſhed his glorious courſe, was among the chief of theſe diſperſed Evangeliſts.

1. He went down to the city of Samaria, to the metropolis of the country, which was either Samaria, or, as ſome think, Sychar, or Shechem, where Jeſus had been formerly, (John iv. 5.) and preached Chriſt unto them. As an herald he publickly proclaimed his name, as exalted to the throne of glory, and invited all to come and ſhare the bleſſings of his happy government: and this muſt be our conſtant theme, Chriſt crucified, glorified.

2. Great was the ſucceſs that attended his labours. The people with one accord, in general, gave heed unto thoſe things which Philip ſpake; ſhewing the moſt ſerious attention to his diſcourſes, hearing and ſeeing the miracles which he did, in proof of his divine miſſion, and of the goſpel of Jeſus which he declared unto them. Miracles of the moſt ſtupendous nature, ſuch as diſpoſſeſſing unclean ſpirits, who with the utmoſt rage exclaimed at the power they could not withſtand; curing the paralytic, and reſtoring the uſe of their limbs to the lame, when all human help was deſperate. And there was great joy in that city; the people tranſported beheld theſe amazing works of divine power and grace, and rejoiced in the glad news of pardon and ſalvation preached to them through the Redeemer. Note, (1.) So far as the goſpel effectually reaches the heart, Satan's power is broken, and his kingdom of uncleanneſs within is deſtroyed. (2.) The grace of God cures the moral impotence of our fallen nature, and enables the lame man to leap like an hart, and the paralytic ſoul to ariſe and run the way of God's commandments. (3.) The great things which make for our everlaſting peace, deſerve our moſt ſerious attention; and the more we attend unto them, the more ſhall we conſult our own happineſs. (4.) True religion will make none melancholy; but wherever the goſpel is known and believed, there the ſoul will taſte the ſweeteſt and moſt ſubſtantial joy.

3. What made the ſucceſs of the goſpel in this place ſtill more extraordinary, was the deluſion under which the people had lain, through the feats of a certain ſorcerer named Simon, who had bewitched the people of Samaria, aſtoniſhing them with his magic arts and diabolical illuſions; giving out that himſelf was ſome great one, the great God himſelf, or, as others ſuppoſe, the expected Meſſiah: and ſuch was the influence which his pretended miracles had on the minds of the people, that they all gave heed unto him, from the leaſt to the greateſt, high and low, young and old, ſaying, This man is the great power of God; as if he was endued with almighty power, equal to the great God himſelf; ſo ſtrangely had he for a conſiderable time bewitched them with his ſorceries.

4. Before the goſpel word the kingdom of Satan fell. When they believed Philip, preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, the bleſſings and privileges, the doctrines and ordinances of it, and the name of Jeſus Chriſt, as the great Saviour of loſt ſinners, the head of his church, the author of all mercies here, and glorious hopes hereafter, they gladly embraced his ſalvation, abandoned the impoſtor Simon, and by baptiſm made open profeſſion of their faith in Jeſus, both men and women. Note, (1.) They who are moſt bewitched by Satan's ſorceries, and the power of ſin, are not beyond the recovering influence of the Redeemer's grace. (2.) When we truly believe in Jeſus, we ſhall openly and boldly profeſs him before men.

5. Even Simon the magician himſelf was ſo aſtoniſhed at the real miracles and ſigns which Philip wrought, that he believed alſo; ſo far at leaſt, as to make outward profeſſion of Chriſt as the true Meſſiah, and to deſire and be admitted to baptiſm in his name. Note, (1.) They who have been moſt atrociouſly wicked, when they make profeſſion of repentance and converſion to God, are to be received cordially into the church, notwithſtanding all that is paſt. (2.) Though many hypocrites may and do join themſelves with God's people, yet we muſt leave men's hearts to the ſearcher of hearts, and judge of others with all candour and charity, till they give evident proofs of their unfaithfulneſs.

14. Now when the apoſtles which were at Jeruſalem, heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they ſent unto them Peter and John. 15. Who when they were come down, prayed for them [l] that they might receive the holy Ghoſt. 16. (For [m] as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only [n] they were baptized in [o] the name of the Lord Jeſus) 17. Then [p] laid they their hands on them, and they received the holy Ghoſt. 18. And when Simon ſaw that through laying on of the apoſtles hands the holy Ghoſt was given, he offered them money, 19. Saying, Give me alſo this power, that on whomſoever I lay hands, he may receive the holy Ghoſt. 20. But Peter ſaid unto him, Thy money periſh with thee, becauſe [q] thou haſt thought that the gift of God may be purchaſed with money. 21. Thou haſt neither part nor lot in this matter: for thy heart is not right in the ſight of God. 22. Repent therefore of this thy wickedneſs, and pray God, [r] if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee. 23. For I perceive that thou art in [s] the gall of bitterneſs, and in the bond of iniquity. 24. Then anſwered Simon, and ſaid, [t] Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of theſe things which ye have ſpoken come upon me. 25. And they, when they had teſtified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jeruſalem, and preached the goſpel in many villages of the Samaritans.

[l] Chap. ii. 38.
[m] Chap. xix. 2.
[n] Mat. xxviii. 19.
[o] Chap. x. 48. & xix. 5.
[p] Chap. vi. 6. & xix. 6. Heb. vi. 2.
[q] Mat. x. 8. 2 Kings v. 16.
[r] Dan. iv. 27. 2 Tim. ii. 25.
[s] Heb. xii. 15.
[t] Num. xxi. 7. 1 Kings xiii. 6.

v. 14—25. The glad tidings ſoon reached Jeruſalem of the happy progreſs of the goſpel at Samaria; and the apoſtles, for the furtherance of the bleſſed work, diſpatched two of their body, Peter and John, immediately, to confirm the diſciples, and communicate unto them thoſe extraordinary gifts which the apoſtles alone could confer. We have,

1. The ſucceſs of their journey. They prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghoſt, in his miraculous gifts, and be ſet on a level with the Jewiſh converts; for as yet he had fallen upon none of them, though they had experienced his illuminating, ſanctifying, and comforting influence upon their ſouls, in conſequence of which they had been baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus; yet they had not, by any viſible appearance of the Holy Ghoſt, received the gift of tongues, or prophecy, or the power to work miracles. But when the apoſtles had prayed, and were aſſured of an anſwer to their requeſts, then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghoſt, in ſome viſible manner, at leaſt many of them, on whom the apoſtles laid their hands; and probably ordained them to the miniſtry of the word, for which they were thus more eminently qualified. Note, Though we may not expect miraculous powers, yet the ſame

Holy Ghoſt, in all his gracious influences, is ſtill given in anſwer to the prayer of faith.

2. Simon's hypocriſy on this occaſion appeared. When he ſaw that through the laying on of the apoſtles hands the Holy Ghoſt was given, he was vaſtly ambitious of poſſeſſing the ſame apoſtolic power, and thought he could well reimburſe himſelf any expence, could he but obtain it; therefore, ſuppoſing their views mercenary as his own, he offered them money, ſaying, Give me this power alſo, that on whomſoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghoſt; thus diſcovering both his ambition and avarice, and ſhewing the rotteneſs of his heart, notwithſtanding his pretended converſion.

3. Peter, with abhorrence, rejects the propoſal, and denounces his doom. Thy money periſh with thee; thou and it muſt periſh together, if in this temper of mind thou abideſt: as for us, we deteſt thy mercenary offer, becauſe thou haſt thought that the gift of God may be purchaſed with money; an imagination as abſurdly fooliſh, as impiouſly wicked. Thou haſt neither part nor lot in this matter, art neither a partaker of the gifts or graces of the Spirit, and as yet an alien from the kingdom of grace, and deſtitute of the hope of glory: for thy heart is not right in the ſight of God; but under the ſpecious profeſſion of Chriſtianity, lurks the fouleſt hypocriſy. Repent therefore of this thy wickedneſs, ſo great and aggravated, if yet repentance may be given, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee, and there be a poſſibility of pardon. For I perceive by this propoſal, that thou art in the gall of bitterneſs; in a ſtate of unregeneracy, under the dominion of the moſt abhorred corruptions, and in the bond of iniquity; enſlaved by Satan and ſin; and as a criminal carrying to execution, expoſed to the ſevereſt vengeance of an offended God. Note, (1.) The fatal bait of money, how many ſouls hath it plunged into perdition and deſtruction? (2.) Where the heart is not right with God, though a form of godlineſs may conceal the hypocriſy from men, there is one that ſeeth and judgeth. (3.) Sin is the odious thing which renders the ſoul abominable to God; and when it breaks forth in an apoſtate, juſtly expoſes his character to the deteſtation of all good men. (4.) They who are now held in bonds of iniquity, may aſſuredly expect to be bound over to everlaſting ſhame and puniſhment. (5.) The vileſt of ſinners muſt not be abandoned, but ſtill invited to repentance and prayer; whilſt there is life, there is hope.

4. Simon, terrified at this dire commination and reproof, intreats their prayers for him; not ſo much that his heart might be renewed, as that the threatned vengeance might be averted: and that is a ſure ſign of an unhumbled ſpirit, when it is more affected with the dread of ſuffering, than with the evil of ſin.

5. The apoſtles, when they had teſtified and preached the word of the Lord, confirming and eſtabliſhing the faith of the diſciples at Samaria, returned to Jeruſalem, to give an account to their brethren, of their proceedings and ſucceſs; and, in their way, they preached the goſpel in many villages of the Samaritans, improving every ſtage of their journey, and taking every opportunity of publiſhing the great ſalvation of their maſter Jeſus. Let us imitate ſuch worthy examples, preaching the word in ſeaſon, and as ſome may think, out of ſeaſon.

26. And the angel of the Lord ſpake unto Philip, ſaying, Ariſe and go toward the ſouth, unto the way that goeth down from Jeruſalem unto Gaza, which is deſert.
[u] Pſ. lxviii. 30. Zeph. iii. 10. 27. And he aroſe and went: and behold, [u] a man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her [x] John xii. 20. treaſure, and [x] had come to Jeruſalem for to worſhip, 28. Was returning, and ſitting in his chariot, read Eſaias the prophet. 29. Then the Spirit ſaid unto Philip, Go near, and join thyſelf to this chariot. 30. And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the prophet Eſaias, and ſaid, Underſtandeſt thou what thou readeſt?
31. And he ſaid, How can I, except ſome man ſhould guide me? and he deſired Philip that he would come up and ſit with him. 32. The place of the ſcripture [y] Iſa. liii. 7. which he read, was this, [y] He was led as a ſheep to the ſlaughter, and like a lamb dumb before his ſhearer, ſo opened he not his mouth: 33. In his humiliation his judgment was taken away: and who ſhall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth. 34.
And the eunuch anſwered Philip, and ſaid, I pray thee, of whom ſpeaketh the prophet this? of himſelf, or of ſome other man? 35. Then Philip opened his mouth, [z] Chap. x. 47. and began at the ſame ſcripture, and preached unto him [a] Mat. xvi. 16. John vi. 69. & xi. 27. Chap. ix. 20. Jeſus. 36. And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch ſaid, See, here is water; [z] what doth hinder me to be baptized? 37. And Philip ſaid, If thou believeſt with all thine heart, thou
John iv. 15. & v. 5. mayeſt. And he anſwered and ſaid, I believe that [a] Jeſus Chriſt is the Son of God. 38. And he commanded the chariot to ſtand ſtill: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. 39. And when they were come up out of the water, [b] the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that [b] 1 Kings xviii. 12. 2 Kings ii. 16. Ezek. iii. 12, 14.
the eunuch ſaw him no more: and he went on his way rejoicing. 40. But Philip was found at Azotus: and paſſing through, he preached in all the cities till he came to Ceſarea.

v. 26—40. We have here the converſion of the Ethiopian eunuch, by whom it is generally ſuppoſed Chriſtianity was firſt planted in that country, and the ſcripture fulfilled, Pſal. lxviii. 30.

1. Philip, who continued ſtill at Samaria, is directed by an angel to depart thence, and go towards the ſouth, unto the way that goeth from Jeruſalem to Gaza, which is deſert. And immediately, obedient to the heavenly call, he aroſe and went. Note, Though we ſee not at firſt the reaſons on which God's providential diſpoſition of us is founded, yet when we bow to his command, we ſhall ſee cauſe to acknowledge his wiſdom and goodneſs.

2. He there met a man of ſingular diſtinction, an Ethiopian, an inhabitant of Africa, an eunuch; either really ſuch, they being formerly often preferred to the firſt offices of ſtate; or this may ſignify his ſtation at the court, as the word is uſed of Potiphar, Gen. xxxix. 1. being a man of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treaſure, a poſt of diſtinguiſhed eminence, and had come to Jeruſalem for to worſhip; either being a Jew, or a proſelyte to their religion. Note, God hath taken ſome of all nations, and all ranks, to be to the praiſe of the glory of his grace.

3. Philip receives an intimation from the Holy Spirit, to go near, and join himſelf to this chariot, where he found him reading aloud the prophet Eſaias, perhaps the portions which he had heard expounded at Jeruſalem; where though he muſt have heard of Chriſt and his apoſtles, yet he ſeems to have paid no regard to them, and was returning attached as much as ever to the Jewiſh religion. Note, (1.) The Lord, by ſtrange providences, often brings about great events; even when we travel on the road, we know not what good may be done, though among ſtrangers, if we have but the heart to ſpeak a word for Chriſt. (2.) The ſcriptures ſhould be much in our hands; they are the beſt companion on our journeys, and will ſupply matter for the choiceſt meditation. (3.) It is no evil for men of ſtation and affluence to ride in their chariots, if that, as well as every other gift, be ſanctified by the word of God, and by prayer.

4. Philip hearing him read the prophet Eſaias, puts a queſtion to him of great moment, and which we ſhould often put to ourſelves, when peruſing the ſacred oracles, Underſtandeſt thou what thou readeſt? His reply was ſingularly humble: far from taking the queſtion ill, though from a ſtranger on foot, and meanly dreſſed, he anſwers with the moſt modeſt acknowledgment of his own poor attainments, How can I, except ſome man ſhould guide me? and, willing to be inſtructed, and glad to embrace every opportunity of increaſing his knowledge of theſe bleſſed prophecies, he deſired Philip, who appeared to be intelligent in theſe matters, to come up into the chariot, and ſit with him, well judging that the honour he did the evangeliſt, would be abundantly repaid by the inſtructions he ſhould receive. Note, (1.) To ſhew a teachable ſpirit, is the ſureſt way to become wiſe unto ſalvation. (2.) The ſcriptures, eſpecially the prophecies, are many of them hard to be underſtood; and we ſhould therefore call in the aſſiſtance of good men, and good books, to aſſiſt our enquiries; and above all, look up to the Spirit of wiſdom for an enlightened underſtanding.

5. This illuſtrious Ethiopian having ſeated him in the chariot, enquires of Philip the meaning of the paſſage he had been reading, Iſa. liii. 7, 8. where, according to the ſeptuagint verſion, it was written, He was led as a ſheep to the ſlaughter, and like a lamb dumb before his ſhearer, ſo opened he not his mouth: in his humiliation his judgment was taken away, and who ſhall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth; the Ethiopian therefore begs Philip to inform him, of whom the prophet in this paſſage ſpeaks, of himſelf, or of ſome other man? Hereupon Philip opened his mouth, and, glad of ſo fair an opening, began at the ſame ſcripture, and preached unto him Jeſus, the great ſubject of the prophecy. He was the ſheep led to the ſlaughter, willingly offering himſelf a ſacrifice for the ſins of his people; ſilent before his ſhearers as a lamb, neither upbraiding nor threatning, but meek and patient under all the indignities ſhewn him; he humbled himſelf to the loweſt ſtate, to the life of a ſervant, and the death of a ſlave: his judgment was taken away; he was treated in the moſt unjuſt and cruel manner, hurried from one judgment ſeat to another; and though confeſſedly innocent, executed as the vileſt of malefactors: and who ſhall declare his generation? the wickedneſs and impiety of the men of that age in which he ſuffered theſe things; for his life is taken from the earth, and by wicked hands he was crucified and ſlain, cut off as a criminal unworthy to live. Yet God raiſed him from the dead, exalted him to his right hand, in token of his fulleſt approbation; and having accepted his ſacrifice for the ſins of his people, hath given power to his miniſters to preach remiſſion of ſins to all nations; and by the ordinance of baptiſm, to admit thoſe who profeſſed faith in him to baptiſm, as the initiatory ordinance into his church.

6. Convinced of the truth by Philip's diſcourſe, he embraced the goſpel of Jeſus which the evangeliſt preached; and as they went on their way, Philip opening the truth at large, and the eunuch attentively liſtening, they came unto a certain water, when, deſirous to make open profeſſion of his faith by baptiſm, if Philip had no objection, he humbly propoſes it, that he might be baptized. Philip ſaid, If thou believeſt with all thine heart, the great truths on which I have been diſcourſing, truſting on Jeſus alone for pardon, righteouſneſs, and ſalvation, and willing to yield thyſelf to his government and ſervice, thou mayeſt. He anſwered, I believe that Jeſus Chriſt is the Son of God, the divine, all-ſufficient, and promiſed Saviour, the true Meſſiah, God incarnate. Satiſfied with this confeſſion of his faith, Philip conſents to his propoſal; and the eunuch ordering his chariot to ſtop, they went down into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. Note, (1.) Nothing affects the conſciences of men like the preaching of a crucified Jeſus. (2.) Faith is not a mere ſpeculative aſſent to goſpel truths, but the embracing with the heart a ſalvation ſuited to the caſe of a loſt ſinner. (3.) No man can truly ſay that Jeſus is the Chriſt, but by the Spirit of God; and the real knowledge of this truth ſecures eternal life.

7. Philip and the eunuch are parted as miraculouſly as they were brought together. When they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch ſaw him no more; and this miracle ſerved to bear teſtimony to his doctrine, and he went on his way rejoicing in Chriſt Jeſus, with whoſe ſalvation he was now become acquainted, and happy in the hope of carrying the glad tidings to his countrymen. But Philip was found at Azotus, or Aſhdod, upwards of thirty miles from Gaza; and paſſing through, he preached as he travelled, in all the cities, till he came to Ceſarea, where afterwards, it ſeems, he chiefly took up his abode, Acts xx. 8.

CHAP. IX.

In this chapter we have, 1. The famous ſtory of St. Paul's converſion. (1.) His awakening call as he went to Damaſcus, ver. 1—9. (2.) How he was baptized by Ananias, ver. 10—19. (3.) How he immediately preached the faith of Chriſt, ver. 20—22. (4.) How he was perſecuted, and narrowly eſcaped with his life, ver. 23—25. (5.) How he was admitted among the brethren at Jeruſalem, how he preached and was perſecuted there, ver. 26—30. (6.) The reſt and quietneſs which the churches enjoyed for ſome time after this, ver. 31. 2. The cure wrought by Peter on Æneas, who had long been laid up of a palſy, ver. 32—35. 3. The raiſing of Tabitha from death to life at the prayer of Peter, ver. 36—44.

[a] Chap. viii. 3. Gal. i. 13. 1 Tim. i. 13.
[b] Chap. xix. 9, 23.
[c] Chap. xxii. 6. & xxvi. 12. 1 Cor. xv. 8.
[d] Mat. xxv. 10, &c.
[e] Chap. v. 39.
[f] Luke iii. 10. Chap. ii. 37. & xvi. 30.
[g] Dan. x. 7. Chap. xxii. 9. & xxvi. 13.

1. AND [a] Saul yet breathing out threatnings and ſlaughter againſt the diſciples of the Lord, went unto the high-prieſt, 2. And deſired of him letters to Damaſcus to the ſynagogues, that if he found any of [b] this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jeruſalem. 3. And [c] as he journeyed, he came near Damaſcus: and ſuddenly there ſhined round about him a light from heaven. 4. And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice ſaying unto him, Saul, Saul, [d] why perſecuteſt thou me? 5. And he ſaid, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord ſaid, I am Jeſus whom thou perſecuteſt: [e] It is hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks. 6. And he trembling and aſtoniſhed ſaid, Lord, [f] what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord ſaid unto him, Ariſe, and go into the city, and it ſhall be told thee what thou muſt do. 7. And [g] the men which journeyed with him ſtood ſpeechleſs, hearing a voice, but ſeeing no man. 8. And Saul aroſe from the earth; and when his eyes were opened, he ſaw no man: but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damaſcus. 9. And he was three days without ſight, and neither did eat nor drink.

v. 1—9. Saul, the bloody perſecutor of the church, again appears, but henceforward to ſupport a very different character. His Hebrew name, Saul, ſignifies deſired; his Roman name, Paul, little. He was by birth a Cilician, of the city of Tarſus; ſprung from the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews; ſkilled deeply in Grecian literature, as well as Jewiſh theology; brought up under the greateſt maſters of the time, a fiery zealot for the law; a man of rank, though a tent-maker (it being a cuſtom with the Jews to inſtruct all thoſe, who were bred ſcholars, in ſome handicraft trade) and a Roman, born a freeman of that city. His converſion, which holds ſo diſtinguiſhed a place in the records of Chriſtianity, happened about a year after our Lord's aſcenſion. We are here told, in conformity with the former account given of him,

1. With what rage he perſecuted the diſciples of Jeſus. He yet breathed out threatnings and ſlaughter; not ſatiated with the blood of martyrs which he had ſhed, his fury graſped at the utter extirpation of the Chriſtian name; determined to intimidate them from their profeſſion, and drive them to blaſpheme, or murder the obſtinately faithful. For this end, not content with the miſchief he had done at Jeruſalem, he purſued them to other cities; and deſired, and obtained, letters from the high-prieſt, and the whole eſtate of the elders, Acts xxii. 5. empowering him to act in their name at Damaſcus; and if in the ſynagogue there he found any of this way, favourers of this new religion, Chriſtianity, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jeruſalem, to be tried and puniſhed by their ſpiritual court, the Sanhedrim. Thus was Saul employed when the Lord ſtopped him in his mad career. Let us admire the wonders of grace, and never deſpair of the chief of ſinners.

2. God marvellouſly arreſts him in the midſt of his mad career. He was now arrived near the place of his deſtination, and already, in imagination, triumphed in the havock he ſhould make: but how far are God's ways above our ways, and his thoughts above our thoughts! When ſinners are driving to the heighth of wickedneſs, he is ſometimes pleaſed to magnify his power and grace, in bending their iron necks to his yoke. As he journeyed, he came near Damaſcus: and ſuddenly there ſhined round about him a light from heaven, brighter than the meridian ſun, the dazzling luſtre of which quite overpowered him; and the preſence of Jeſus in his glory filled him with ſuch amazement and confuſion, that he fell to the earth, unable to ſtand on his feet; or being more probably on horſeback, he was ſtruck down, as with a blaſt of lightning. Note, Thoſe whom God deſigns for eminent uſefulneſs, he ſometimes exerciſes with the deepeſt terrors and diſtreſs, and lays them in the loweſt pit of humiliation.

3. Chriſt having ſeized him as his priſoner, addreſſes him out of the glorious light which ſhone around him. He heard a voice ſaying, Saul, Saul; Chriſt ſpeaks with vehemence, as to one who ſtood on the precipice of ruin, inſenſible of his danger; and with fervent compaſſion, as deſirous to ſnatch him from inſtant ruin; why perſecuteſt thou me? with daring impiety lifting thy rebel arm againſt the Almighty; with black ingratitude thus returning the love of him who died to redeem thee; with cruel enmity perſecuting thoſe who never injured thee; and in them, my people, ſtriking at me their Lord and Maſter. Note, (1.) When Chriſt comes with his Spirit, convincing the ſoul of ſin, he brings the matter home to the conſcience, and the ſinner hears him ſay, Thou art the man. (2.) The Lord reſents the inſults ſhown to his people, as injuries done to himſelf.

4. The affrighted criminal, now cited to anſwer at the bar of this juſtly offended Redeemer, with terror replies, Who art thou, Lord? deſirous to be acquainted with him, whoſe heavenly voice he heard: And the Lord ſaid, I am Jeſus, whom thou perſecuteſt; that name thou haſt ſo often blaſphemed, and againſt whom thou art now acting with ſuch invenomed malice and enmity; it is hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks; as abſurd and ſelf-deſtructive muſt theſe attempts againſt my church and people prove, as with the naked foot to kick againſt a ſharp iron goad. Trembling and aſtoniſhed, Saul enquires, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? A flood of light now broke in upon his ſoul; his ſins, in all their aggravations, roſe up to his view; the dreadful conſequences he had juſtly to apprehend from the wrath of an offended Saviour, ſtared him in the face, and made him willing now to do and ſuffer any thing, if he may eſcape the vengeance which he hath provoked: he earneſtly begs information, if yet there may be hope of mercy, pardon, and ſalvation. And the Lord ſaid unto him, Ariſe, and go into the city, and it ſhall be told thee what thou muſt do; he leaves him for a while to ruminate in darkneſs on the paſt, yet with ſome gracious hope of hearing farther from him; for he might well conclude, that had Chriſt intended to deſtroy him, he would not thus have ſpared and ſpoken to him. Note, (1.) They who rebel againſt the convictions of their conſcience, the warnings of God's word, and the calls of God's miniſters, will pierce themſelves through with many ſorrows. (2.) When God's Spirit ſets a man's ſins in array before him, and opens his eyes to ſee the flaming gulph on the brink of which he ſtands, no marvel if horror and a terrible dread ſeize upon him; and like Belſhazzar, his knees ſmite againſt each other. (3.) Our terrors of conſcience muſt not drive us from Chriſt, but to him; enquiring into his will, and what hope of ſalvation remains for us. Let not the greateſt ſinner add deſpair to all his crimes. (4.) Though the Lord may not give preſent eaſe, or relief, to the troubled conſcience, yet we muſt wait his leiſure, and be found at his feet, where never miſerable ſoul yet periſhed.

5. Saul's fellow-travellers, the guards, ſent to aſſiſt him in executing the high prieſts and ſanhedrim's commiſſion, ſtood ſpeechleſs, when riſen from the ground to which they had been ſtruck down; hearing a voice, ſome tremendous ſound, like thunder; or words, the meaning of which they did not underſtand: and though they heard Paul ſpeak, ſeeing no man, to whom he addreſſed himſelf.

6. Saul himſelf aroſe from the earth at Chriſt's bidding; and now opening his eyelids, his ſightleſs eyeballs no longer met the light of day; he is taken off from the view of outward objects, that he may turn his thoughts more intenſely to what appears within. Thus blind, his companions led him by the hand, and brought him to Damaſcus, a ſpectacle of wretchedneſs; where he purpoſed, a few moments before, in pomp to make his entry: ſo ſoon can God change the ſinner's mirth into mourning, and humble his pride in the duſt. Three days and nights he continued dark in his body, and probably under deeper diſtreſs and darkneſs in his ſoul; and he neither did eat nor drink: his troubled mind deſtroyed all reliſh for food, and in faſting and prayer he ſpent thoſe three melancholy days, the moſt fearful hours that he ever knew.

10. ¶ And there was a certain diſciple at Damaſcus, [h] named Ananias, and to him ſaid the Lord in a viſion, Ananias. And he ſaid, Behold, I am here, Lord. 11. And the Lord ſaid unto him, Ariſe, and go into the ſtreet which is called Straight, and inquire in the houſe of Judas, for one called Saul [i] of Tarſus: for behold, he prayeth, 12. And hath ſeen in a viſion a man named Ananias, coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his ſight. 13. Then Ananias anſwered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, [k] how much evil he hath done to thy ſaints at Jeruſalem: 14. And here he hath authority from the chief prieſts, to bind all [l] that call on thy name. 15. But the Lord ſaid unto him, Go thy way: for [m] he is a choſen veſſel unto me, [n] to bear my name before the [o] Gentiles, and [p] kings, and the children of Iſrael. 16. For [q] I will ſhew him how great things he muſt ſuffer for my name's ſake. 17. And [r] Ananias went his way, and entred into the houſe, and [s] putting his hands on him, ſaid, Brother Saul, the Lord (even Jeſus that appeared unto thee in the way as thou cameſt) hath ſent me, that thou mighteſt receive thy ſight, and [t] be filled with the Holy Ghoſt. 18. And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been ſcales; and he received ſight forthwith, and aroſe, and was baptized. 19. And when he had received meat, he was ſtrengthned. Then was Saul certain days with the diſciples which were at Damaſcus. 20. And ſtraightway he preached Chriſt in the ſynagogues, that [u] he is the Son of God. 21. But all that heard him were amazed, and ſaid, [x] Is not this he that deſtroyed them which called on this name in Jeruſalem, and came hither for that intent, that he might bring them bound unto the chief prieſts? 22. But Saul increaſed the more in ſtrength, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damaſcus, proving that this is very Chriſt.

h Chap. xxii. 12.
i Chap. xxi. 39. & xxii. 3.
k Ver. 1.
l Ver. 21. Chap. xxii. 16. 1 Cor. i. 2. 2 Tim. ii. 22.
m Chap. xxii. 14. Gal. i. 15.
n Eph. iii. 8. 1 Tim. ii. 7. 2 Tim. i. 11.
o Rom. i. 5.
p Chap. xxv. 22.
q Chap. xxi. 11. 2 Cor. xi. 23.
r Chap. xxii. 12.
s Chap. viii. 17.
t Chap. viii. 15.
u Chap. viii. 37.
x Ver. 1, 14. Gal. i. 13, 23.

v. 10—22. The Lord now returns to viſit the diſtreſſed, afflicted Saul; for he will not leave thoſe to deſpair whom he caſts down with convictions.

1. The Lord in a viſion ſpeaks to a diſciple at Damaſcus named Ananias, who, with ready attention and obedience, attends his orders. He bids him Ariſe, and go into the ſtreet which is called Straight, and enquire in the houſe of Judas, for one Saul of Tarſus, a perſon of diſtinguiſhed name; for behold, an aſtoniſhing change is paſſed upon him, humbled in the duſt he prayeth, and hath, in anſwer to his prayer, ſeen in a viſion a man named Ananias, coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his ſight; he being therefore the perſon pointed out for this ſervice, muſt go without delay. Note, (1.) God ſees the diſtreſſes of the afflicted, he alſo will hear their cry, and will help them. (2.) The moment a ſoul is truly turned to God, this evidence of ſpiritual life will immediately appear, behold, he prayeth. Thoſe who are prayerleſs, are evidently yet dead in treſpaſſes and ſins. (3.) When Chriſt calls us to his ſervice, we ſhould with delight and readineſs anſwer, Here am I.

2. Ananias at firſt objects to go, but is quickly ſatisfied. The well-known character of Saul made him apprehenſive of danger, ſhould he put himſelf within the reach of ſuch a bigotted perſecutor, who had not only done ſo much evil at Jeruſalem, but had come to Damaſcus, armed with the chief prieſt's commiſſion, to bind all that called on the name of Jeſus, and carry them as criminals to Jeruſalem. But Chriſt ſilences his objections; the Lord ſaid unto him, Go thy way, there is no danger; for he is a choſen veſſel unto me, appointed to diſtinguiſhed honour and eminent uſefulneſs; to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Iſrael, preaching that faith he once deſtroyed. For I will ſhew him how great things he muſt ſuffer for my name's ſake, and will enable him to endure the moſt ſevere perſecutions; and at laſt, in teſtimony of the truth of his miſſion, to ſeal it with his blood. Note, (1.) All God's people are elect veſſels, though ſome are choſen to more diſtinguiſhed honour and uſefulneſs than others. (2.) They who embark in Chriſt's cauſe, eſpecially as miniſters of his goſpel, muſt prepare for the croſs, and learn to endure hardneſs, as good ſoldiers.

3. Ananias hereupon immediately obeys; and entring the houſe where Saul lodged, and putting his hands on him, ſaid, Brother Saul, now adopted into the family of God, a child of grace, an heir of glory with us, and henceforward aſſociated into the miniſtry of the goſpel, the Lord (even Jeſus that appeared to thee in the way as thou cameſt, and ſtruck thee with blindneſs) hath ſent me, that thou mighteſt receive thy bodily ſight, the emblem of the happier illumination of thy ſoul, with the light of truth; and that thou mighteſt be filled with the Holy Ghoſt, with his miraculous gifts, as well as the moſt abundant meaſure of his grace, in order to qualify thee for the great and glorious ſervice to which thou art appointed. Note, (1.) When God is pleaſed to work a change on the vileſt, we muſt, with open arms, receive them as our brethren. (2.) Where the Lord wounds, he will heal.

4. No ſooner had Ananias ſpoken, than the cure was wrought. The ſcales fell from his eyes, he received ſight forthwith, and aroſe, and was baptized; openly making profeſſion of that faith which he now moſt heartily embraced. No longer the blind Phariſee, but the enlightened Chriſtian; delivered from the horrible darkneſs of terrifying guilt, and rejoicing in the ſun of righteouſneſs ariſen upon him with healing in his wings.

5. Behold the fierce perſecutor inſtantly commencing a faithful preacher. Having refreſhed himſelf with proper food after ſo long faſting, he was ſtrengthened in body, as well as ſoul; then he joined the faithful diſciples of Jeſus at Damaſcus; and inſtead of the threatnings he lately breathed againſt them, he was united with them in the cloſeſt bonds of Chriſtian communion; appeared openly among them, and immediately preached Chriſt in the ſynagogues, that he is the Son of God, the true Meſſiah, to the aſtoniſhment of all who heard him; for knowing his paſt conduct, and the intention of his journey thither, they could not but ſtand amazed at this wondrous change. But far from being aſhamed of the apoſtacy with which ſome reproached him, or dubious about the merits of that cauſe, which his former Jewiſh friends ſo decried, and ſtill with bitterneſs oppoſed, Saul increaſed the more in ſtrength, ſupernaturally taught and ſtrengthened, and daily growing more bold and zealous in defence of that faith which he had embraced, pleading the cauſe of Jeſus againſt every gainſayer, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damaſcus, proving that this is very Chriſt, by ſuch irrefragable arguments, as left them nothing to reply. Note, (1.) Chriſt is the glorious ſubject, on which his faithful miniſters delight to dwell. (2.) It juſtly excites aſtoniſhment, and ſerves for a freſh confirmation of the truth of the goſpel, when bitter oppoſers, by the power of divine grace, appear advocates for the cauſe which they once decried.

23. ¶ And after that many days were fulfilled, the Jews took counſel to kill him: 24. But [y] their laying await was known of Saul: and they watched the gates day and night to kill him. 25. Then the diſciples took him by night, and [z] let him down by the wall in a baſket. 26. And [a] when Saul was come to Jeruſalem, he aſſayed to join himſelf to the diſciples: but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a diſciple. 27. But [b] Barnabas took him, and brought him to the apoſtles, and declared unto them how he had ſeen the Lord in the way, and that he had ſpoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damaſcus in the name of Jeſus. 28. And [c] he was with them coming in, and going out at Jeruſalem. 29. And [d] he ſpake boldly in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and diſputed againſt the Grecians, [d] but they went about to ſlay him. 30. Which when the brethren knew, they brought him down to Ceſarea, and ſent him forth to Tarſus. 31. Then [e] had the churches reſt throughout all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria, and were edified, and walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghoſt, were multiplied.

y 2 Cor. xi. 32.
z Joſh. ii. 15. 1 Sam. xix. 12.
a Chap. xxii. 17.
b Chap. iv. 36.
c Gal. i. 18.
dd Chap. vi. 10, &c.
e Prov. xvi. 7.

v. 23—31. The tranſactions here recorded, happened three years after the foregoing; during which, the apoſtle went into Arabia, preaching to the Jews who were ſettled in that country, and then returned again to Damaſcus, Gal. i. 15, 18. where we find,

1. The narrow eſcape he had out of the jaws of his invenomed perſecutors. Enraged at his apoſtacy from them, as they regarded it, and unable to bear the powerful energy of his diſcourſes, inculcating the glorious truths of the goſpel, they reſolved to diſpatch him; and having gained the governor to their ſide, they watched the gates day and night in order to murder him: but impotent is the malice of the wicked againſt thoſe whom the Lord will protect; their ſcheme was diſcovered either by ſome friend, or by revelation; and the brethren, in order to elude the vigilance of theſe bloody-minded perſecutors, let the apoſtle down by the wall in a baſket by night, and ſo he eſcaped. Note, If we are for the Lord's ſake brought into the greateſt ſtraits and temptations, he is ſtill able to make a way for us to eſcape.

2. He proceeded to Jeruſalem, and there he met new diffities. See Gal. i. 18.

(1.) From the brethren themſelves. He immediately aſſayed to join himſelf to the diſciples; his former noble friends he had now forſaken, and wiſhed to be admitted among the poor and perſecuted diſciples of Jeſus: but they were at firſt afraid of him, not having heard ought about him probably during the three years he was in Arabia, and believed not that he was a diſciple: knowing his paſt enmity, they ſuſpected his preſent converſion might be feigned. Caution is needful; we ſhould be well acquainted with thoſe whom we admit into our communion, leaſt they be wolves in ſheep's cloathing: believe not every ſpirit. But Barnabas, who had received full information concerning Paul's caſe, ſoon ſatisfied the minds of the diſciples; and bringing Paul to the apoſtles James and Peter, who alone were then at Jeruſalem, he told them all the circumſtances of his extraordinary converſion, and his approved fidelity and zealous labours ever ſince, particularly at Damaſcus. Hereupon they gladly gave him the right hand of fellowſhip, and he appeared publickly among the diſciples, going in and out with them, joining in their worſhipping aſſemblies, and ſpake boldly in the name of Jeſus. They who have ſo good a cauſe, may well courageouſly appear in defence of it; Chriſt's ſervice will bear us out.

(2.) From the Jews. The Helleniſts, who were moſt bigotted to Judaiſm, encountered him, and he diſputed with them with ſuch evidence, power, and demonſtration, that unable to ſtand before the force of his arguments, they determined to ſilence him by the ſword. Therefore, after a ſhort abode of fifteen days at Jeruſalem, having received a revelation from God, directing him in his labours, Acts xxii. 17, 18. and the brethren being ſollicitous for his ſafety, he was brought by them as far as Ceſarea, and from thence was ſent to Tarſus, his native city, where he continued preaching the goſpel, till Barnabas joined him, chap. xi. 25. Note, (1.) It is a ſure ſign of a bad cauſe, where recourſe is had to violence inſtead of argument. (2.) Whatever plots the wicked contrive againſt the miniſters of truth, the Lord will take care of them, till they have finiſhed their teſtimony.

3. Then had the churches reſt throughout all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria; Paul being removed, the flames of perſecution which were again kindling, abated: and a little reſpite was a great mercy to them, after they had been ſo harraſſed by their foes; nor did they fail to improve it; they were edified in knowledge and faith, enjoying more quietly the means of grace, and aſſembling more undiſturbed; and walking in the fear of God, a filial, reverential fear, which made them circumſpect and holy in all manner of converſation, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghoſt, enjoying much of his light, love, and conſolations, were multiplied; increaſing in numbers, and growing in grace. Note, They who walk moſt nearly and humbly with God, will enjoy moſt of the comforts of his Spirit.

32. ¶ And it came to paſs, as Peter paſſed throughout all quarters, he came down alſo to the ſaints which dwelt at Lydda. 33. And there he found a certain man named Eneas, which had kept his bed eight years, and was ſick of the palſy. 34. And Peter ſaid unto him, Eneas, Jeſus Chriſt maketh thee whole: ariſe and make thy bed. And he aroſe immediately. 35. And all that dwelt at Lydda, and [f] Saron, ſaw him, and turned to the Lord.

[f] 1 Chron. v. 16.

v. 32—35. The hiſtorian for a while leaves Paul to his labours, and returns to relate the miniſtry of Peter.

1. He travelled about to viſit the churches which had been planted, to confirm the diſciples, and ordain miniſters among them; and among other places, he came down to the ſaints which dwelt at Lydda. Note, They who are called to be Chriſtians, are by their very profeſſion ſaints, ſeparated from the world, and devoted to God.

2. Peter there performed a notable miracle, which is here recorded. A man, whoſe name was Eneas, had lain bed-ridden eight years, through the palſy, and all poſſibility of a cure by human means, was deſpaired of; but when the apoſtle ſaw him, he ſaid, Eneas, Jeſus Chriſt maketh thee whole: ariſe, and make thy bed: inſtantly the cure was wrought, and the man aroſe reſtored to perfect health and ſtrength. Note, (1.) By nature we are abſolutely impotent to all good, and no man can afford us the leaſt relief. (2.) Chriſt is the great phyſician; he can cure thoſe whoſe ſtate is the moſt deplorable and deſperate. (3.) When he ſpeaks to the ſoul, power accompanies his word, and we are enabled to riſe from the bed of ſpiritual weakneſs and impotence, by the mighty power of his grace.

3. Great was the effect produced by this miracle. The people of Lydda and Saron in general, convinced of the divine power evident in the cure, turned to the Lord, and made profeſſion of Chriſtianity; and then was the ſcripture eminently fulfilled, which ſaid, They ſhould ſee the glory of the Lord, and become a fold of flocks, Iſa. xxxv. 2. lxv. 10.

36. ¶ Now there was at Joppa a certain diſciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called † Dorcas: this woman was [g] full of good works and almsdeeds which ſhe did. 37. And it came to paſs in thoſe days, that ſhe was ſick, and died: whom when they had waſhed, they laid her in [h] an upper chamber. 38. And foraſmuch as Lydda was nigh to Joppa, and the diſciples had heard that Peter was there, they ſent unto him two men, deſiring him that he would not delay to come to them. 39. Then Peter aroſe, and went with them. When he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber: and all the widows ſtood by him weeping, and ſhewing the coats and garments which Dorcas made while ſhe was with them. 40. But Peter put them all forth, and [i] kneeled down and prayed, and turning him to the body, ſaid, Tabitha, ariſe. And ſhe opened her eyes: and when ſhe ſaw Peter, ſhe ſat up. 41. And he gave her his hand, and lift her up: and when he had called the ſaints and widows, preſented her alive. 42. And it was known throughout all Joppa, and many believed in the Lord. 43. And it came to paſs, that he tarried many days in Joppa with one [k] Simon a tanner.

† i. e. A doe, hind, or deer.
[g] Tit. iii. 8.
[h] Chap. i. 13.
[i] Chap. vii. 60.
[k] Chap. x. 6.

v. 36—43. Another, and a ſtill greater miracle is here wrought, in confirmation of the divine authority, under which Peter acted. We have,

1. The ſickneſs and death of an excellent woman, whoſe name was Tabitha; in Greek, Dorcas, or a Doe; ſhe was an inhabitreſs of Joppa, and adorned the profeſſion of Chriſtianity which ſhe made; being full of good works, the genuine proofs of the truth of the faith ſhe poſſeſſed, and of alms-deeds which ſhe did; not only beſtowing her ſubſtance liberally to the neceſſitous, but labouring with her hands, that ſhe might be more extenſive in her beneficence; for real Chriſtians will ſhew the fruits of grace, their works will ſpeak their praiſe. In the midſt of her uſeful life, it pleaſed God to cut her off; ſhe fell ſick and died. From the ravages of mortality the beſt have no exemption; and according to their cuſtom, they had now waſhed the body, and laid it out for interment.

2. The diſciples at Joppa who heard of Peter's being ſo near as Lydda, and of the miracle he had there wrought, ſent two of their number to him, informing him of the preſent afflictive Providence, and intreating him to come to them, to comfort them under their grief; and probably with ſome expectations, that he might yet reſtore to life their departed ſiſter.

3. Peter, without delay, complied with their requeſt; and when he came, found the body laid out in the upper chamber, and the widows lamenting their loſs of ſuch a bountiful friend; ſhewing the coats and garments which perhaps they then wore, the tokens of her charity, diligence, and pity to the poor, whilſt ſhe was with them. Note, (1.) The fatherleſs and widows are peculiar objects of compaſſion; to them the hand of charity ſhould be liberally ſtretched forth. (2.) Though they who are truly charitable will ever be ſilent, and deſire no commendation or return; yet thoſe who reap the bleſſings of their bounty, ought not to be ſo: gratitude, at leaſt, is the tribute which they owe.

4. Peter, who following his maſter's example, Mat. ix. 25. declined all appearance of vain-glory, put forth the company; and after kneeling down and praying, he turned to the body, and ſaid, Tabitha, ariſe, in the full confidence of the power which accompanied his word; and immediately opening her eyes, which had been cloſed in death, when ſhe ſaw Peter, ſhe ſat up; and Peter giving her his hand, aſſiſted her to riſe from the bier where ſhe lay, and calling the widows, preſented her alive, to their great aſtoniſhment and joy.

5. The fame of the miracle quickly ſpread through Joppa, and was in every body's mouth; and many, ſtruck with the evidence of God's approbation of the doctrine which Peter preached, believed in the Lord, and made public profeſſion of his goſpel. Encouraged by ſuch a proſpect of ſucceſs, the apoſtle made ſome conſiderable abode in that place, lodging in the houſe of one Simon a tanner; ſatisfied with any accommodations, and only intent upon preaching the goſpel of his adored Lord and Maſter.

CHAP. X.

The Gentiles here begin to be admitted into the church. 1. Cornelius is directed by a viſion to ſend for Peter, and did ſend for him accordingly, ver. 1—8. 2. Peter is directed by a viſion to go to Cornelius, though he was a Gentile, ver. 9—23. 3. The happy interview between Peter and Cornelius at Ceſarea, ver. 24—33. 4. The ſermon Peter preached in the houſe of Cornelius to him and to his friends, ver. 34—43. 5. The baptizing of Cornelius and his friends with the Holy Ghoſt firſt, and then with water, ver. 44—48.

1. THere was a certain man in Ceſarea, called Cornelius, a centurion of the band called the Italian band, 2. [a] A devout man, and one that feared God with all his houſe, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway. 3. He ſaw in a viſion evidently, about the ninth hour of the day, an angel of God coming in to him, and ſaying unto him, Cornelius. 4. And when he looked on him, he was afraid, and ſaid, What is it, Lord? And he ſaid unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God. 5. And now ſend men to Joppa, and call for one [b] Simon, whoſe ſurname is Peter: 6. He lodgeth with one [c] Simon a tanner, whoſe houſe is by the ſea-ſide: [d] he ſhall tell thee what thou oughteſt to do. 7. And when the angel, which ſpake unto Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his houſhold ſervants, and a devout ſoldier of them that waited on him continually: 8. And when he had declared all theſe things unto them, [e] he ſent them to Joppa.

[a] Chap. xxii. 12.

[b] Ver. 32.

[c] Chap. ix. 43.

[d] Ibid. xi. 14.

[e] Ver. 33. Chap. xi. 11.

v. 1—8. The goſpel had for about ſeven years been preached to Jews only, and the apoſtles as yet ſeem not to be fully apprized of the extent of their commiſſion. But now a door of faith is opened to the Gentiles, and Peter is firſt ſent expreſsly to preach the goſpel to them. We have an account,

1. Of Cornelius, the firſt fruits of the Gentiles unto Chriſt. He was a centurion, captain over a hundred ſoldiers, belonging to the regiment or band called the Italian, in garriſon at Cæſarea; and though arms were his profeſſion, and from a Gentile nothing good could well be expected; yet he was ſingularly devout, having abandoned the idolatry in which he was bred, and become a proſelyte of righteouſneſs, worſhipping and fearing God with all his houſe, who were influenced by his pious example; a man of diſtinguiſhed liberality, who gave much alms to the people, Jews or Gentiles, who appeared truly neceſſitous; and prayed to God always, obſerving the Jewiſh ſtated hours of prayer. Note, (1.) It is no diſparagement to a ſoldier to be found upon his knees: he who truly fears God, will be moſt ready to fight and die for his country. (2.) Where the maſter of a family fears God, we may be aſſured his houſe will be a houſe of prayer. (3.) Charity is the inſeparable attendant on a gracious character; whilſt a niggard's hand and heart prove the total abſence of vital godlineſs.

2. An angel appears to Cornelius as he was at prayer, about three o'clock in the afternoon, at the time of the evening oblation. Affrighted with this celeſtial viſitant, the centurion with deepeſt reverence deſires to know the purport of his coming, fearing leſt he brought ſome meſſage of evil. But the angel ſoon quieted his fears, and ſaid unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God; are graciouſly accepted as the genuine fruits of thy faith and love, according to the meaſure of light thou haſt received. And now ſend men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whoſe ſirname is Peter; he lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whoſe houſe is by the ſea-ſide; he ſhall tell thee what thou oughteſt to do. Cornelius ſeems already to have been a proſelyte, and to have been living in the faith of the promiſed Meſſiah, according to the prophecies; but as yet he had not heard him preached as actually become incarnate, and this was moſt needful for him to know, according to the preſent diſpenſation of grace, in order to his ſalvation. And to put an honour on the goſpel miniſtry, the angel gives him no farther information, but refers him to the divinely-appointed miniſters of the word.

3. No ſooner was the angel departed, than immediately Cornelius called two of his houſhold ſervants, and a devout ſoldier that waited on him continually, who being truly religious, like his maſter, was always kept near his perſon. To theſe he related his extraordinary viſion, and ordered them early in the morning to proceed to Joppa, and telling Peter the occaſion, to deſire he would return with them to Cæſarea. Note, They who are truly godly themſelves, delight to have thoſe near them as ſervants, who are partakers of the ſame grace.

9. ¶ On the morrow as they went on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, [f] Peter went up upon the houſe top, to pray, about the ſixth hour. 10. And he became very hungry, and would have eaten: but while they made ready, he fell into a trance, 11. And [g] ſaw heaven opened, and a certain veſſel deſcending unto him, as it had been a great ſheet, knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth: 12. Wherein were all manner of four-footed beaſts of the earth, and wild beaſts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air. 13. And there came a voice to him, Riſe, Peter; kill, and eat. 14. But Peter ſaid, Not ſo, Lord; for I have never eaten [h] any thing that is common or unclean. 15. And the voice ſpake unto him again the ſecond time, [i] What God hath cleanſed, that call not thou common. 16. This was done thrice: and the veſſel was received up again into heaven. 17. Now while Peter doubted in himſelf what this viſion which he had ſeen ſhould mean; behold, the men which were ſent from Cornelius, had made enquiry for Simon's houſe, and ſtood before the gate, 18. And called, and aſked whether Simon which was ſurnamed Peter, were lodged there. 19. ¶ While Peter thought on the viſion, the Spirit ſaid unto him, Behold three men ſeek thee. 20. [k] Ariſe therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing: for I have ſent them.

[f] Chap. xi. 5, &c.

[g] Chap. vii. 56. Rev. xix. 11.

[h] Lev. xi. 4, &c. Deut. xiv. 7, &c. Ezek. iv. 14.

[i] Mat. xv. 11. Chap. xi. 9. Rom. xiv. 17, 20. 1 Tim. iv. 4. Tit. i. 15.

[k] Chap. xv. 7.

v. 9—20. The ſervants of Cornelius departing early in queſt of Peter, the Lord prepares him to give them a welcome reception. He, like his countrymen, was ſtill prejudiced againſt the Gentiles, and thought all familiar communication with them was unlawful; the Lord therefore in a marvellous way is pleaſed to over-rule theſe prepoſſeſſions.

1. A viſion appears to him when he went up to the top of the houſe to pray, where he might be moſt retired, juſt before the ſervants of Cornelius arrived. It was noon, and whilſt he was thus devoutly engaged, he became very hungry, and would have eaten; but while they made ready ſome refreſhment for him, he fell into a trance; a ſupernatural ecſtacy came upon him, and, to ſhew him the myſtery of the calling of the Gentiles into the church, whom he had been uſed to regard as perſons unclean, he ſaw heaven opened, in token of ſome farther revelation of God's will now about to be made to him; and a certain veſſel deſcending unto him, as it had been a great ſheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth, wherein, ſuitably to his preſent hungry ſituation, there were all manner of four-footed beaſts of the earth, and wild beaſts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air; and there came a voice to him, ſaying, Riſe, Peter; kill and eat, without diſtinction of clean or unclean. Peter, though hungry, objected to the propoſal, Not ſo, Lord: he could not think of tranſgreſſing the ceremonial law; for, ſaith he, I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean. The voice a ſecond time addreſſed him, ſaying, What God hath cleanſed, that call not thou common. He who firſt commanded a diſtinction of meats, had a right to abrogate it again if he pleaſed; and as he had taken the Jews for his peculiar people, he might alſo bring the Gentiles to ſhare the bleſſings of the ſame gracious covenant: and as this was now his purpoſe, Peter might ſafely eat whatever was ſet before him, and go and converſe with, and preach to the Gentiles, without fear of pollution. This was done thrice, to ſhew the certainty of the viſion, and engage his attention to it, and the veſſel was received up again into heaven.

2. The viſion ſoon receives an explication. Peter was now ſeriouſly conſidering, but at a loſs to know what this viſion meant; and juſt then the men whom Cornelius had ſent were at the door enquiring for him. The Spirit therefore gives him an intimation what meſſengers waited for him below, and tho' they were Gentiles, bid him go with them, doubting nothing of the unlawfulneſs of being in their company, for they were divinely ſent by his orders. Note, Whilſt we are in ſimplicity deſiring in our difficulties to know God's will, he will by ſome gracious intimations direct us aright.

21. Then Peter went down to the men which were ſent unto him from Cornelius; and ſaid, Behold, I am he whom ye ſeek: what is the cauſe wherefore ye are come? 22. And they ſaid, Cornelius the centurion, [l] a juſt man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by an holy angel, to ſend for thee into his houſe, and to hear words of thee. 23. Then called he them in, and lodged them. And on the morrow Peter went away with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him. 24. And the morrow after they entred into Ceſarea: and Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinſmen and near friends. 25. And as Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worſhipped him. 26. But Peter took him up,

ſaying,

[l] Ver. 2. Chap. xxii. 12.

ſaying, Stand up; [m] I myſelf alſo am a man. 27. And as he talked with him, he went in, and found [n] many that were come together. 28. And he ſaid unto them, Ye know how that [o] it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew, to keep company, or come unto one of another nation: but [p] God hath ſhewed me, that I ſhould not call any man common or unclean. 29. Therefore came I unto you without gainſaying, as ſoon as I was ſent for: I aſk therefore for what intent ye have ſent for me.
30. And Cornelius ſaid, Four days ago I was faſting until this hour, and at the ninth hour I prayed in my houſe, and behold, [q] a man ſtood before me [r] in bright clothing, 31. And ſaid, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the ſight of God. 32. Send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon whoſe ſurname is Peter; he is lodged in the houſe of one Simon a tanner, by the ſea-ſide; who when he cometh, ſhall ſpeak unto thee. 33. Immediately therefore I ſent to thee; and thou haſt well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all here preſent before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

[m] Chap. xiv. 15. Rev. xix. 10. & xxii. 9.
[n] Ver. 24.
[o] John iv. 9. & xviii. 28. Chap. xi. 3.
[p] Ver. 15. Chap. xv. 8. Eph. iii. 6.
[q] Ver. 3. Chap. i. 10.
[r] Mat. xxviii. 3. Luke xxiv. 4.

v. 21—33. Peter, having received full ſatisfaction, went down without delay to the meſſengers.

1. Having told them he was the perſon whom they ſought, he deſired to be informed of the cauſe of their coming: and they ſaid, Cornelius the centurion, a juſt man, eminent for his probity and integrity among men, and one that feareth God, though a Gentile, a worſhipper of the God of Iſrael, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, who reſpect his amiable and exemplary character, was warned of God by an holy angel to ſend for thee into his houſe, and to hear words of thee concerning the things that make for his everlaſting peace.

2. Peter courteouſly hereupon received and lodged the meſſengers that night, and on the morrow went away with them for Ceſarea, accompanied by certain brethren from Joppa, who might deſire to be preſent at this interview, or more probably went at Peter's requeſt, that they might be witneſſes for him, if at any time he ſhould be blamed by his Jewiſh brethren for viſiting a Gentile family. Note, (1.) It becomes miniſters and all Chriſtians to be hoſpitable. (2.) When there is danger that our conduct may be cenſured, or our converſation miſrepreſented, it is prudent to have witneſſes for what paſſes, to whom we can appeal.

3. The ſecond day, in the afternoon, Peter and the meſſengers entered Ceſarea, where Cornelius with eager expectation waited his arrival, having called his kinſmen and near friends to ſhare with him the bleſſing of Peter's diſcourſe. Note, The greateſt kindneſs we can ſhew our friends is to invite them to partake with us our ſpiritual mercies, and to join in our religious exerciſes.

4. Cornelius received the Apoſtle with deepeſt reverence and reſpect, and paid him honour which Peter thought exceſſive; he fell at his feet, as he entered the houſe, and worſhipped him, proſtrate before him, as if he had been the mightieſt potentate. But the apoſtle, too humble and modeſt to accept ſuch profound admiration, took him up, and would not ſuffer him to ſtay in that poſture, ſaying, Stand up, I myſelf am alſo a man, a poor ſinful worm, though honoured with this office of apoſtleſhip. And thereupon familiarly converſing with him, he entered into the houſe, where a number of perſons was aſſembled, deſirous to hear Peter's words, and affording him a larger field of uſefulneſs than he might have expected. Note, It is a great encouragement to ſpeak where we meet a large and attentive audience.

5. Peter enquires the cauſe wherefore Cornelius ſent for him, ſaying to him and the company, Ye know that it is unlawful, and looked upon as an abominable thing, for one that is a Jew, as I am, to keep company or come unto one of another nation in any way of familiar intercourſe. But, though I long thought ſo, God hath of late ſhewed me, that I ſhould not call any man common or unclean, on account of his being of a different nation. Obedient therefore to the admonition of God, came I unto you, without gainſaying, as ſoon as I was ſent for; perfectly perſuaded of his will in this matter. I aſk therefore for what intent ye have ſent for me? that I may be able ſuitably to improve the preſent opportunity, to God's glory, and for your good.

6. Cornelius relates the late occurrences, which occaſioned the preſent meeting. Four days ago I was faſting unto this hour, and at the ninth hour I prayed in my houſe, when the evening ſacrifice was offering, the uſual hour of prayer; and behold, in anſwer to my requeſts for divine direction and guidance, a man ſtood before me in bright clothing, an angel in a human form; and, addreſſing me, ſaid, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the ſight of God: ſend therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whoſe ſurname is Peter; he is lodged in the houſe of one Simon, a tanner, by the ſea-ſide, who, when he cometh, ſhall ſpeak unto thee, and give thee the direction thou art ſeeking. Immediately therefore, without delay, I ſent to thee; and thou haſt well done that thou art come; we regard it as a ſingular kindneſs done to us, and doubt not but it will be highly pleaſing to God. Now therefore are we all here preſent before God; met in his fear, hoping for his mercy, and expecting his ſpecial preſence and bleſſing, ſeriouſly diſpoſed to hear, and deſirous to embrace and obey all things that are commanded thee of God, whom we with all reverence receive as a meſſenger expreſsly ſent from him to lead us in the way of ſalvation. Note, (1.) The goſpel then comes with effect, when thoſe who ſit under it ſhew ſolemn attention and ſeriouſneſs, receiving it not as the word of man, but as the word of God. (2.) They who are ſincere with God deſire to hear and know all his will; not merely what he promiſes, but what he commands, however diſpleaſing it may be to fleſh and blood.

34. ¶ Then Peter opened his mouth, and ſaid, [s] Of a truth I perceive that God is no reſpecter of perſons:
35. But [t] in every nation, [u] he that feareth him, and worketh righteouſneſs, is accepted with him. 36. The word which God ſent unto the children of Iſrael, [x] preaching peace by Jeſus Chriſt ([y] he is Lord of all) 37. That word (I ſay) you know, which was publiſhed throughout all Judea, and [z] began from Galilee, after the baptiſm which John preached: 38. How [a] God anointed Jeſus of Nazareth with the holy Ghoſt, and with power; who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppreſſed of the devil: for [b] God was with him. 39. And [c] we are witneſſes of all things which he did, both in the land of the Jews, and in Jeruſalem: whom they ſlew and hanged on a tree: 40. [d] Him God raiſed up the third day, and ſhewed him openly, 41. [e] Not to all the people, but unto witneſſes, choſen before of God, even to us, [f] who did eat and drink with him after he roſe from the dead. 42. And [g] he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to teſtify that [h] it is he which was ordained of God to be the judge [i] of quick and dead.
43. [k] To him give all the prophets witneſs, that through his name [l] whoſoever believeth in him, ſhall receive remiſſion of ſins.

[s] Deut. x. 17. Job xxxiv. 19. Rom. ii. 11. Gal. ii. 6. Eph. vi. 9. Col. iii. 25. 1 Pet. i. 17.
[t] Rom. iii. 29. & x. 12. Gal. iii. 28.
[u] Gen. iv. 7. 1 John ii. 29.
[x] Iſa. lvii. 19. Eph. ii. 14—17. Col. i. 20.
[y] Rom. x. 12. Rev. xvii. 14.
[z] Luke iv. 14.
[a] Ibid. 18. Chap. ii. 22. & iv. 27.
[b] John iii. 2.
[c] Chap. ii. 32. & iii. 15. & v. 30, 32.
[d] Chap. ii. 24.
[e] John xiv. 17, 22. Chap. xiii. 31.
[f] Luke xxiv. 43. John xxi. 13.
[g] Mat. xxviii. 19. Chap. i. 8.
[h] John v. 22, 27. Chap. xvii. 31.
[i] Rom. xiv. 9, 10. 2 Tim. iv. 1. 1 Pet. iv. 5.
[k] Jer. xxxi. 34. Dan. ix. 24. Mic. vii. 18. Chap. xxvi. 22.
[l] Chap. xv. 9.

v. 34—43. Peter, on comparing his own viſion with that which Cornelius related, was now fully perſuaded of God's gracious deſigns towards the Gentiles; and therefore with great warmth of affection, delight, and earneſtneſs, addreſſed this attentive auditory.

1. He expreſſes his full perſuaſion, notwithſtanding all his former prejudices, that the Lord had now aboliſhed all national diſtinctions, and deſigned his goſpel ſhould indiſcriminately be preached to Jews and Gentiles. Of a truth I perceive that God is no reſpecter of perſons, on account of any external circumſtances of birth, rank, or country; but in every nation, he that feareth him, and worketh righteouſneſs, is accepted with him. Not that we are to conceive that any unenlightened Gentile was capable of fearing God or working righteouſneſs by any power in himſelf, or that theſe are the ground of acceptance before God: no: they are only the fruits of faith, and are deſcriptive not of the conditions of acceptance with God, but of the perſon who is in a ſtate of favour with him. The meaning of the Apoſtle ſeems to be, That Gentiles, as well as Jews, though uncircumciſed, were capable of partaking of God's favour through the goſpel, and their works were accepted through faith. Of this number Cornelius was one, who had known ſo much of the goſpel doctrine as a proſelyte, as to build his hopes thereon, and act agreeably thereunto: and God in mercy therefore was now leading him into fuller diſcoveries of the truth, as it is in Jeſus.

2. He refers them to the reports that had been every where ſpread of the life, miracles, doctrines, death and reſurrection of Jeſus. The word which God ſent unto the children of Iſrael, preaching peace by Jeſus Chriſt, the glad tidings of reconciliation with an offended God through him, (He is Lord of all, the ſelf-exiſtent Deity, God over all, and as Mediator incarnate inveſted with all power in heaven and earth) that word, I ſay, you know, which was publiſhed throughout Judea, after the baptiſm which John preached, by Jeſus himſelf and his diſciples, the fame of which could not but have reached them; How God anointed Jeſus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghoſt and with power, authoriſing and enabling him to perform the moſt aſtoniſhing miracles in proof of his divine miſſion; who went about doing good to the bodies and ſouls of men, by his heavenly doctrine inſtructing them, and by his miracles of grace healing all that were oppreſſed of the devil, under whatever diſeaſe or torment, or corporal poſſeſſion, they laboured: for God was with him, mightily ſupporting him, and teſtifying his high approbation of him. And we are witneſſes of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews and in Jeruſalem, having been his conſtant followers and diſciples; whom they ſlew and hanged on a tree, a death the moſt painful and ignominious, in hatred of his pretenſions as the promiſed Meſſiah, becauſe he correſponded not with their carnal notions of his character and office: him God raiſed up the third day, to their confuſion, and in teſtimony of his perfect ſatisfaction in this divine Redeemer's undertaking, and ſhewed him openly, after his reſurrection; not to all the people, who had ſo obſtinately rejected the cleareſt evidence of truth; but unto witneſſes choſen before of God, even to us, who did eat and drink with him after he roſe from the dead, and, from the fulleſt conviction of our ſenſes, were aſſured of his reſurrection, and were appointed by him to bear our teſtimony thereto. And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to teſtify that it is he which was ordained of God to be the Judge of quick and dead, before whom all muſt appear, and give an account of the things done in the body. To him give all the prophets witneſs, from the beginning ſpeaking of him as the great ſubject of their diſcourſes, and pointing to him under various types and figures, that through his name, through his ſacrifice and obedience unto death, whoſoever believeth in him ſhall receive remiſſion of ſins, juſtified freely and fully from all his tranſgreſſions, whether he be Jew or Gentile, and thus prepared to ſtand before his judgment-ſeat with confidence of acceptance. Note, (1.) The remiſſion of ſins is the firſt and great goſpel promiſe, and the door of admiſſion to all the reſt. (2.) If we believe that Jeſus ſhall indeed ſhortly be our Judge, we cannot but be anxiouſly ſollicitous to ſecure an intereſt in his favour.

44. ¶ While Peter yet ſpake theſe words, [m] the holy Ghoſt fell on all them which heard the word. 45. And they of the circumciſion which believed, were aſtoniſhed, as many as came with Peter, becauſe that on the Gentiles alſo was poured out the gift of the holy Ghoſt: 46. For they heard them ſpeak with tongues, and magnify God. Then anſwered Peter, 47. Can any man forbid water, that theſe ſhould not be baptized, which have received the holy Ghoſt [n] as well as we? 48. And [o] he commanded them to be baptized [p] in the name of the Lord. Then prayed they him to tarry certain days.

[m] Chap. iv. 31. & xi. 15.
[n] Chap. xv. 8.
[o] Chap. ii. 38. 1 Cor. i. 16, 17.
[p] Chap. viii. 16.

v. 44—48. While theſe words were yet dropping from the Apoſtle's lips, God himſelf appears, bearing witneſs to the goſpel which Peter preached.

1. The Holy Ghoſt, in his miraculous gifts as well as gracious influences, fell on all them which heard the word, as on the diſciples at the day of Pentecoſt; and they of the circumciſion, which believed, were aſtoniſhed, as many as came with Peter, becauſe that on the Gentiles alſo was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghoſt, though they were neither circumciſed nor baptiſed; for they heard them ſpeak with tongues, and magnify God; like the other miniſters of the goſpel, they were equally qualified for that ſervice, in which probably the Lord deſigned to employ the firſt fruits of the Gentiles, and in the various languages which they ſpoke adored God for the bleſſings of that redemption in Chriſt Jeſus, of which they now were made partakers. Note, They who have received the Holy Ghoſt cannot but deſire to magnify God, both in the exerciſe of his gifts and graces ſeeking the divine glory.

2. Peter, no longer dubious, heſitates not to admit them into the church by the inſtituted rite of baptiſm. It would be highly abſurd for the moſt rigid Jewiſh Chriſtian to object againſt admitting thoſe to the ſign and ſeal of the covenant, who had received the gifts and graces of the covenant. Can any man forbid water, that theſe ſhould not be baptiſed, which have received the Holy Ghoſt as well as we? The point was too clear to admit of a ſcruple, and therefore he commanded them to be baptiſed in the name of the Lord. Hence it appears evidently, that water-baptiſm is an ordinance to be uſed by thoſe who are moſt clearly baptiſed with the Holy Ghoſt.

3. They entreated Peter to tarry certain days with them, that they might enjoy the edification and comfort of his farther miniſtrations. Note, (1.) They who have received a bleſſing under the diſcourſe of a goſpel miniſter, covet to hear more. (2.) The moſt advanced in gifts and graces are never to think themſelves above the miniſtry of the word.

CHAP. XI.

In this chapter we have, 1. Peter's neceſſary vindication of what he did in receiving Cornelius and his friends into the church, from the cenſure he lay under for it among the brethren, and their acquieſcence in it, ver. 1—18. 2. The good ſucceſs of the goſpel at Antioch, and the parts adjacent, ver. 19—21. 3. The carrying on of the good work that was begun at Antioch, by the miniſtry of Barnabas firſt, and afterwards of Paul in conjunction with him, and the laſting name of Chriſtian firſt given to the diſciples there, ver. 22—26. 4. A prediction of an approaching famine, and the contribution that was made among the Gentile converts for the relief of the poor ſaints in Judea upon that occaſion, ver. 27—30.

1. AND the apoſtles and brethren that were in Judea, heard that the Gentiles had alſo received the word of God. 2. And when Peter was come up to Jeruſalem, [a] they that were of the circumciſion contended with him, 3. Saying, [b] Thou wenteſt in to men uncircumciſed, [c] and didſt eat with them. 4. But Peter rehearſed the matter from the beginning, and expounded it [d] by order unto them, ſaying, 5. [e] I was in the city of Joppa praying; and in a trance I ſaw a viſion, A certain veſſel deſcend, as it had been a great ſheet, let down from heaven by four corners; and it came even to me. 6. Upon the which when I had faſtned mine eyes, I conſidered, and ſaw four-footed beaſts of the earth, and wild beaſts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air. 7. And I heard a voice ſaying unto me, Ariſe, Peter, ſlay and eat. 8. But I ſaid, Not ſo, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath at any time entred into my mouth. 9. But the voice anſwered me again from heaven, What God hath cleanſed, that call not thou common. 10. And this was done three times: and all were drawn up again into heaven. 11. And behold, immediately there were three men already come unto the houſe where I was, ſent from Ceſarea unto me. 12. And [f] the Spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting. Moreover, theſe ſix brethren accompanied me, and we entred into the man's houſe: 13. And he ſhewed us how he had ſeen an angel in his houſe, which ſtood and ſaid unto him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whoſe ſurname is Peter: 14. Who ſhall tell thee words, whereby thou and all thy houſe ſhall be ſaved. 15. And as I began to ſpeak, the holy Ghoſt fell on them, [g] as on us at the beginning. 16. Then remembred I the word of the Lord, how that he ſaid, [h] John indeed baptized with water; but [i] ye ſhall be baptized with the holy Ghoſt. 17. Foraſmuch then as [k] God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [l] what was I, that I could withſtand God? 18. When they heard theſe things they held their peace, and glorified God, ſaying, Then hath God alſo to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

[a] Chap. x. 45.
[b] Chap. x. 25.
[c] Gal. ii. 12.
[d] Luke i. 3.
[e] Chap. x. 9, &c.
[f] Chap. x. 19. & xv. 7.
[g] Chap. ii. 4. & x. 44, 47.
[h] John i. 26. Chap. i. 5. & xix. 4.
[i] Iſa. xliv. 3. Joel ii. 28. & iii. 18.
[k] Chap. xv. 8.
[l] Chap. x. 47.

v. 1—18. The converſion of the Gentiles, and the admiſſion of thoſe into the Chriſtian church who were uncircumciſed, was a thing ſo new and extraordinary, that it ſoon reached Jeruſalem. And we are told,

1. What offence it gave to ſome of the Chriſtians there, who were as yet wedded to the Jewiſh ritual. They that were of the circumciſion contended with Peter; ſo far were they from entertaining any thought of his ſupremacy or infallibility, which his pretended ſucceſſors have ſince claimed, that they called him to account for what he had done, as if it was a matter of blame, ſaying, Thou wenteſt in to men uncircumciſed, and didſt eat with them; ſuppoſing it a proſtitution of their privileges, and a high diſgrace to the apoſtolic character. Note, (1.) Even good men are ſometimes ſtrangely enſlaved by prejudices and bigotry. (2.) Raſh cenſures ſometimes drop from gracious men, and we muſt mildly bear with them, and anſwer in the ſpirit of meekneſs. Even godlike charity will be ſometimes called latitudinarian by narrow minds, that never taſted the warm ſenſations of generous, catholic love.

2. Peter relates the whole tranſaction from the beginning, and then refers the matter to their judgment. He might have deſpiſed their cenſures; but it is a debt we ſometimes owe ourſelves, to ſet what is miſrepreſented in its true colours, and remove, as far as we can, the prejudices of our brethren.

(1.) He informs them of the viſion which he himſelf had ſeen in all its particulars: wherein God intimated to him that all the Moſaical diſtinctions between meats and perſons were now at an end.

(2.) He relates the viſion which Cornelius was favoured with, and the expreſs command given him to ſend for Peter from Joppa, as the perſon by whoſe words he and his houſe ſhould be ſaved, through faith in that Saviour whom the Apoſtle ſhould preach unto him, and out of whom there is no ſalvation.

(3.) He declares the expreſs command he had from the Spirit to go with the meſſengers Cornelius ſent, and his prudent precaution to take ſeveral of the brethren with him, that his journey might be the leſs ſubject to any miſrepreſentation, when he had them as witneſſes for his conduct.

(4.) He pleads what above all other arguments vindicated his procedure, the atteſtation which the Holy Ghoſt bore to his word almoſt as ſoon as he began to ſpeak to them of the goſpel ſalvation, giving them the ſame miraculous gifts as he beſtowed on themſelves at the beginning. And this brought to his mind the word of the Lord, juſt before his aſcenſion, Acts i. 5. how that he ſaid, John indeed baptiſed with water, but ye ſhall be baptiſed with the Holy Ghoſt. Seeing therefore this promiſe thus eminently fulfilled, and that God made no diſtinction between Gentile and Jewiſh converts, who, though of the ſeed of Abraham, believed in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and expected ſalvation by faith in him alone, what was I that I could withſtand God? or refuſe to admit to baptiſm thoſe whom he had ſo eminently called into the participation of the glorious privileges of the goſpel.

3. An account ſo ſatisfactory ſilenced every cavil. No objections could poſſibly be made to Peter; but contrariwiſe, they glorified God for this unexpected event, ſaying, with wonder and delight, Then hath God alſo to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life. Note, (1.) Repentance is God's gift: it is not in the power of our own will, nor to be produced by judgments or mercies, but comes purely from his Spirit working effectually upon the conſcience, without which we muſt for ever continue under our native blindneſs and hardneſs of heart. (2.) Where repentance is evangelical, and the gift of God, there it is the ſure ſymptom of preſent ſpiritual life, and the earneſt of that which is eternal.

19. ¶ Now they which were [m] ſcattered abroad, upon the perſecution that aroſe about Stephen, travelled as far as Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none but unto the Jews only. 20. And ſome of them were men of Cyprus and Cyrene, which when they were come to Antioch, ſpake unto the Grecians, preaching the Lord Jeſus. 21. And [n] the hand of the Lord was with them: and [o] a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord. 22. ¶ Then tidings of theſe things came unto the ears of the church which was in Jeruſalem: and they ſent forth Barnabas, that he ſhould go as far as Antioch. 23. Who when he came, and had ſeen the grace of God, was glad, and [p] exhorted them all, that with purpoſe of heart they would cleave unto the Lord. 24. For he was a good man, and [q] full of the holy Ghoſt, and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord. 25. Then departed Barnabas to [r] Tarſus, for to ſeek Saul. 26. And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to paſs, that a whole year they aſſembled themſelves † with the church, and taught much people; and the diſciples were called Chriſtians firſt in Antioch.

[m] Chap. viii. 1.
[n] Chap. ii. 47.
[o] Ver. 24.
[p] Chap. xiii. 43. & xiv. 22.
[q] Chap. vi. 5.
[r] Chap. ix. 30.
† Or in the church.

v. 19—26. We have here an account of the planting the goſpel at Antioch the metropolis of Syria, and one of the moſt famous cities in the Roman empire.

1. The preachers of the goſpel, who, on the perſecution which aroſe after Stephen's death, were diſperſed abroad, carried the glad tidings of the goſpel as far as Phenice, a province of Syria and Cyprus, a large iſland of the Mediterranean ſea, and Antioch. But, as they knew not yet the extent of their commiſſion, as reaching to all nations and every creature, they confined themſelves wholly to the Jews who were diſperſed in theſe countries. And ſome of them were men of Cyprus and Cyrene, a city in Africa, which, when they were come to Antioch, ſpake unto the Grecians; either unto the Helleniſt Jews, or, as ſome ſuppoſe, on hearing of the converſion of Cornelius and his friends, and that the preaching the goſpel to the Gentiles had been approved by the apoſtles, they enlarged their field of uſefulneſs, preaching to the Grecian Gentiles the Lord Jeſus, whoſe character, offices, grace, and glory, were the conſtant ſubject of their miniſtrations. And the hand of the Lord was with them, not only enabling them to perform aſtoniſhing miracles, but bleſſing their labours with ſignal ſucceſs; and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord, effectually brought to Jeſus as their only Redeemer and Saviour, on whoſe righteouſneſs and grace they placed their entire dependance. Note, (1.) The labours of God's miniſters are only then effectual, when the hand of the Lord is with them: without him, Paul muſt plant and Apollos water in vain. (2.) True faith will ever ſhew itſelf in real converſion of heart, from the ways of ſin and the world, to the love and ſervice of the bleſſed God.

2. The church at Jeruſalem, whither the apoſtles ſtill frequently reſorted, no ſooner heard theſe glad tidings, than they ſent forth Barnabas, a Helleniſt, a native of Cyprus, and a man of ſingular abilities, that he ſhould go as far as Antioch, paſſing through the places where the goſpel had got footing, to ſtrengthen and eſtabliſh the new converts. Barnabas readily accepted the miſſion, and proceeded to Antioch; and when he had ſeen the grace of God, viſibly manifeſted in the converſion and converſation of thoſe whom the Lord by his goſpel had called in that city, he was glad, and exhorted them all, that with purpoſe of heart they would cleave unto the Lord; encouraging them to maintain their profeſſion amidſt all oppoſition, and ſuggeſting the moſt powerful arguments to eſtabliſh their fidelity; for he was a good man, of a noble, generous, diſintereſted ſpirit, ſweet and affable in his diſcourſe, and full of the Holy Ghoſt, poſſeſſed of very eminent gifts and graces, and of faith in a moſt abundant meaſure; and much people was added unto the Lord by his miniſtry and labours. Note, (1.) They who are truly partakers of the grace of God in their own ſouls, behold with ſingular delight the powerful effects of the ſame grace upon the hearts of others. (2.) They who turn to the Lord muſt cleave to him in a perſevering courſe of fidelity: but if any man draw back, aggravated perdition muſt be the conſequence. (3.) When we are ourſelves deeply and fully perſuaded of the truth, we ſhall be enabled to ſpeak more forcibly and powerfully to others.

3. The field being large, and the proſpect promiſing, Barnabas ſought an able fellow-helper; and knowing that Paul was yet at Tarſus, about an hundred miles off, he went to ſeek him, and invite him to Antioch, where his labours were greatly wanted. Having found him at Tarſus, he invited him to return with him Antioch, to which Paul readily conſented; and for a year they aſſembled themſelves with the church, leading the religious aſſemblies of the faithful, and taught much people, vaſt multitudes attending their miniſtrations. Note, (1.) They who have the glory of their Lord ſimply at heart, can take pleaſure in the greater gifts and abilities of others, and are happy to procure their aſſiſtance, though they may be more admired and uſeful preachers than themſelves. (2.) The work of the miniſtry is doubly pleaſing, when we ſee the fruits of our labour in the growing edification of the faithful, and the converſion of ſinners to God.

4. The diſciples were called Chriſtians firſt at Antioch, not probably by their enemies as a term of reproach, but, as the word (χρηματίσαι) ſeems to imply, by ſome divine intimation, and ſolemn act of their own. Thus they would aboliſh the diſtinction of Jew and Gentile, and in their very name, as Chriſtians, make profeſſion of their full and entire dependance on Chriſt as their Lord and Saviour. Are we Chriſtians then? let our lives prove the reality of the profeſſion we make.

27. ¶ And in theſe days came [s] prophets from Jeruſalem unto Antioch. 28. And there ſtood up one of them named [t] Agabus, and ſignified by the Spirit, that there ſhould be great dearth throughout all the world: which came to paſs in the days of Claudius Ceſar. 29. Then the diſciples, every man according to his ability, [u] determined to ſend relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea. 30. [x] Which alſo they did, and ſent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

[s] Chap. xiii. 1. & xv. 32. 1 Cor. xii. 28.
[t] Chap. xxi. 10.
[u] 2 Cor. ix. 2. Gal. ii. 10.
[x] Chap. xii. 25.

v. 27—30. Among the eminent gifts beſtowed on the primitive Chriſtians, ſome were endued with the ſpirit of prophecy. We are here told,

1. Of a viſit from certain prophets of Jeruſalem, who, hearing the great ſucceſs of the goſpel at Antioch, came thither to help forward the glorious work, and to comfort and eſtabliſh the hearts of the diſciples.

2. One of them, named Agabus, had it revealed to him by the Spirit, that there ſhould be a great dearth throughout all the world; and, ſtanding up in the midſt of the aſſembled church, ſignified to them this afflictive event, which accordingly came to paſs about two years afterwards, in the reign of Claudius Ceſar.

3. Then the diſciples, every man according to his ability, determined to ſend relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea, who, by the perſecutions they had ſuffered, were greatly reduced; and thoſe who had riches, had at the firſt parted with all for the ſervice of the goſpel; and probably it was ſuggeſted that the famine would be moſt ſeverely felt in thoſe parts. No ſooner was the matter reſolved than the contribution was made, and they ſent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul, to be diſtributed according to the neceſſities of the faithful; than which nothing could ſerve more to conciliate their minds to the Gentile converts, and to remove their deep-rooted prejudices. Note, (1.) Every Chriſtian, according to his ability, is bound to contribute to the aſſiſtance of his brethren. (2.) God will take care of his poor, and by ſome means or other provide that in the time of dearth they ſhall be ſupplied. He that feedeth the ravens, will not leave his children to famiſh.

CHAP. XII.

In this chapter we have the ſtory, 1. Of the martyrdom of James the apoſtle, and the impriſonment of Peter, by Herod Agrippa, who now reigned as king in Judea, ver. 1—4. 2. The miraculous deliverance of Peter out of priſon, ver. 5—19. 3. The cutting off of Herod in the height of his pride by the ſtroke of an angel, the miniſter of God's juſtice, ver. 20—23. 4. Barnabas and Saul return to Antioch, ver. 24, 25.

1. NOW about that time, Herod the king ſtretched forth his hands to vex certain of the church. 2. And [a] he killed James, [b] the brother of John with the ſword. 3. And becauſe he ſaw it pleaſed the Jews, he proceeded further to take Peter alſo. (Then were [c] the days of unleavened bread.) 4. And [d] when he had apprehended him, he put him in priſon, and delivered him

[a] Mat. xx. 23.
[b] Mat. iv. 21.
[c] Ex. xxiii. 15.
[d] John xxi. 18.

to four quaternions of ſoldiers, to keep him, intending after Eaſter to bring him forth to the people.

v. 1—4. Herod, the grandſon of Herod the great, and father of Agrippa, before whom Paul pleaded his cauſe, chap. xxvi. 1—28. had now, through the favour of Claudius the Roman emperor, received the government of Judea as well as Galilee. Being a bitter enemy to Chriſtianity, he interrupted the reſt which the church had for a while enjoyed, and lighted up afreſh the fire of perſecution.

1. He began to harraſs and diſtreſs the ſaints at Jeruſalem; either countenancing thoſe who inſulted and abuſed them, or impriſoning and perſecuting them on account of their profeſſion. The faithful may expect ſhort reſpite from tribulation in this world, and muſt be always prepared to ſuffer.

2. He killed James, the brother of John, with the ſword. Thus did he drink of the cup with his Lord, as was foretold, Matth. xx. 23. and firſt of the apoſtles ſealed his teſtimony with his blood. He was probably executed in priſon, like the Baptiſt, by a private order from the king, and led the way to his brethren, who were hereby taught to prepare for the like fate, and be faithful unto death.

3. Becauſe he ſaw it pleaſed the Jews, he proceeded further to take Peter alſo; glad to ingratiate himſelf with the people, at the ſame time that he gratified his own enmity againſt the diſciples of Jeſus: and Peter, as an eſpecially active, zealous preacher, was peculiarly obnoxious. Then were the days of unleavened bread, the feaſt of the paſſover approaching. When therefore he had apprehended him, he put him in priſon, and delivered him to four quaternions of ſoldiers, ſixteen in number, who guarded him by four at a time, and relieved each other, to keep him, that he might not eſcape, intending after Eaſter, or the Paſſover, to bring him forth to the people, to gratify them with the pleaſing ſpectacle of his ignominious execution. Note, (1.) They who ſtudy to pleaſe men will be led into many a guilty deed. (2.) Succeſs in wickedneſs often emboldens ſinners to proceed to greater lengths.

5. Peter therefore was kept in priſon; but † prayer was made without ceaſing of the church unto God for him. 6. And when Herod would have brought him forth, the ſame night Peter was ſleeping between two ſoldiers, bound with two chains; and the keepers before the door kept the priſon. 7. And behold, [e] the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light ſhined in the priſon: and he ſmote Peter on the ſide, and raiſed him up, ſaying, Ariſe up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands. 8. And the angel ſaid unto him, Gird thyſelf, and bind on thy ſandals: and ſo he did. And he ſaith unto him, Caſt thy garment about thee, and follow me. 9. And he went out, and followed him, and [f] wiſt not that it was true which was done by the angel: but thought he ſaw a viſion. 10. When they were paſt the firſt and the ſecond ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city, [g] which opened to them of his own accord: and they went out, and paſſed on through one ſtreet, and forthwith the angel departed from him. 11. And when Peter was come to himſelf, he ſaid, Now I know of a ſurety, that [h] the Lord hath ſent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews. 12. And when he had conſidered the thing, [i] he came to the houſe of Mary the mother of [k] John, whoſe ſurname was Mark, where many were gathered together, [l] praying. 13. And as Peter knocked at the door of the gate, a damſel came to ‡ hearken, named Rhoda. 14. And when ſhe knew Peter's voice, ſhe opened not the gate for gladneſs, but ran in, and told how Peter ſtood before the gate. 15. And they ſaid unto her, Thou art mad. But ſhe conſtantly affirmed that it was even ſo. Then ſaid they, It is [m] his angel. 16. But Peter continued knocking: and when they had opened the door, and ſaw him, they were aſtoniſhed. 17. But he [n] beckening unto them with the hand to hold their peace, declared unto them how the Lord had brought him out of the priſon. And he ſaid, Go ſhew theſe things unto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and went into another place. 18. Now as ſoon as it was day, there was no ſmall ſtir among the ſoldiers, what was become of Peter. 19. And when Herod had ſought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, and commanded that they ſhould be put to death. And he went down from Judea to Ceſarea, and there abode.

† Or earneſt prayer was made.

[e] Chap. v. 19.

[f] Pſ. cxxvi. 1.

[g] Chap. xvi. 26.

[h] Dan. vi. 22.

[i] Chap. iv. 23.

[k] Chap. xv. 37.

[l] Ver. 5.

‡ Or aſk who was there.

[m] Mat. xviii. 10.

[n] Chap. xiii. 16. & xix. 33. & xxi. 40.

v. 5—19. To human view Peter's caſe ſeemed deſperate, and a few days would complete the triumph of his perſecutors: But God had otherwiſe ordained, and then the craft of the wiſeſt and the power of the mightieſt are alike vain.

1. During Peter's impriſonment, prayer was made without ceaſing of the church unto God for him; they were fervent and frequent at a throne of grace; perhaps one company after another continued their inceſſant ſupplications, deeply concerned for fear of loſing him after all their other breaches, and truſting that, though no human proſpect of his deliverance appeared, the Lord would, in his own time and way, reſcue his ſuffering ſervant from the hands of his blood-thirſty perſecutors. Note, When the faithful miniſters of Jeſus are ſuffering for their teſtimony, the church is called to pray earneſtly for them, that, if the Lord ſo pleaſes, they may be delivered from unreaſonable and wicked men, and ſpared for farther uſefulneſs.

2. The time appointed for Peter's execution now drew near; the next was the fatal day appointed to bring him forth to the people. Peter mean-time was kept with greateſt care, chained to two ſoldiers within the priſon, whilſt without the guards kept the door, to prevent any reſcue or eſcape; and never could greater precaution be taken. Yet, though his danger was ſo imminent, his caſe ſo deſperate, unterrified, compoſed, in peace he ſweetly ſlept, whilſt probably the eyes of his malicious foes were held waking, and their diſturbed minds could take no reſt on beds of ivory. A good cauſe, a good conſcience, and the deſire to glorify God, whether by life or death, raiſed him ſuperior to every fear; and, though expecting no deliverance, he took his wonted repoſe. Note, (1.) God ſuffers us ſometimes to be reduced to extremities, that his power and grace in reſcuing us from our trials may appear with more diſtinguiſhed luſtre. (2.) When wicked men ſeem to have enſured the ſucceſs of their enterpriſes, God is often pleaſed to blaſt their deſigns, and to cover them with confuſion.

3. God ſends his angel to deliver the faithful priſoner; and he, whom gates nor guards could exclude, ſuddenly entering the priſon in a blaze of light, with a gentle touch awakened Peter from his ſlumbers; then, bidding him ariſe, his chains marvellouſly fell off from his hands; and, being now at liberty, the angel ſaid unto him, Gird thyſelf, and bind on thy ſandals; and ſo he did. And he ſaith unto him, Caſt thy garment about thee, and follow me. Peter obeyed, and as yet apprehended not the reality of the facts, but ſuppoſed the ſcene was merely viſionary. Paſſing now the firſt and ſecond bodies of guards without moleſtation, who were caſt into a profound ſleep, or terrified with the angelic miniſter's appearance, they came unto the iron gate, which opened of its own accord; and, being now in the city, the angel accompanied Peter through one ſtreet, and then departed, his preſence being no longer needful, and Peter could then provide for his own ſafety. Note, (1.) We have in Peter's deliverance a lively image of our redemption. We lie by nature faſt bound in the chains of ſin, and ſleep ſecurely, not apprehenſive of danger, though ruin is before us. Then God ſends his goſpel as this angel, and by his Spirit ſmiting our hearts awakens us from our ſecurity and inſenſibility. Quickened by grace, the chains of corruption fall off, and we are now enabled to riſe and walk, clothed with the garments of righteouſneſs, and our feet ſhod with the preparation of the goſpel of peace. Under divine light and guidance we are enabled to paſs through numberleſs difficulties, and through hoſts of enemies hold on our way, till the iron gate of death appears in view, and, opening wide, admits us into the new Jeruſalem. (2.) No difficulties are inſurmountable, if God be for us. (3.) When we have the ordinary means before us, we are not to expect miracles.

4. Peter, being left alone, ſoon recovered from his ſurpriſe, and, reflecting on what was paſt, was fully aſſured the ſcene was not viſionary, but real; that the Lord had ſent his angel, and delivered him out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews, who waited impatiently for his execution. Deliberating then whither in prudence he ſhould direct his ſteps, he came to the houſe of Mary the mother of John, whoſe ſurname was Mark, where many were gathered together, praying; and importunate no doubt they were when the danger was now ſo near: when, lo! a moſt aſtoniſhing anſwer is given to their prayers; behold, Peter knocked at the door; a viſitant little expected by them. A damſel, named Rhoda, ran immediately into the porch, to liſten whether it were a friend or foe, before ſhe opened the gate; when, hearing Peter's well-known voice, ſo tranſported was ſhe, that, inſtead of opening the door, ſhe ran to her miſtreſs, where they were all aſſembled for prayer, and told them, to their aſtoniſhment, that Peter ſtood before the gate. Unable to credit ſo ſtrange a ſtory, they ſaid, thou art mad; it is impoſſible. But ſhe conſtantly affirmed the certainty of the fact, that it was even ſo. Then ſaid they, It is his angel, a meſſenger come from him, or one of the celeſtial ſpirits, who imitates his voice, and brings ſome tidings concerning him. Mean-time Peter repeated his knocks at the gate; and, going down, they opened the door, when with amazement they beheld him; and, eager to know the circumſtances of this extraordinary event, they together began to aſk him concerning it: whereupon he beckoned with his hand, commanding ſilence, whilſt he declared to them his miraculous deliverance. And, as no time was to be loſt to ſecure himſelf, having charged them to inform James and the brethren of his eſcape, for their comfort and encouragement, he departed, and went into another place, where he might be ſecured from the danger. Note, (1.) They who perſevere in prayer will at laſt meet an anſwer of peace. (2.) Sudden and great joy for the time often deſtroys reflection, and makes us forget what we ſay or do. (3.) Though, when called of God, neither death nor danger muſt deter us from the way of duty, yet, when the Lord opens a door for our eſcape, we may lawfully provide for our own ſafety.

5. The next morning the guards were in the utmoſt conſternation at finding their priſoner gone, and juſtly dreaded the rage of the king, as if they had been chargeable with neglect or connivance. In vain ſtrict ſearch is made by Herod every where; and, unable to find Peter, he wreaks his vengeance on the keepers, who could not give the leaſt ſatisfactory account of the matter, and therefore were ordered to be put to death for their ſuppoſed negligence or corruption. Then retiring from Judea to Ceſarea, in order, it is ſaid, to celebrate games in honour of Auguſtus Ceſar, for ſome time he abode there. Note, God can, when he pleaſes, hide his people from the malice of their moſt invenomed foes.

20. ¶ And Herod was highly diſpleaſed with them of Tyre and Sidon: but they came with one accord to him, and having made Blaſtus the king's chamberlain their friend, deſired peace; becauſe [o] their country was nouriſhed by the king's country. 21. And upon a ſet day, Herod arrayed in royal apparel, ſat upon his throne, and made an oration unto them. 22. And the people gave a ſhout, ſaying, It is the voice of a god, and not of a man. 23. And immediately the angel of the Lord ſmote him, becauſe he gave not God the glory: and he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghoſt. 24. ¶ But [p] the word of God grew and multiplied. 25. And Barnabas and Saul returned from Jeruſalem, when they had fulfilled their † miniſtry, and [q] took with them John whoſe ſurname was Mark.

[o] 1 Kings v. 9, 11. Ezek. xxvii. 17.

[p] Iſa. lv. 11. Chap. vi. 7. & xix. 20. Col. i. 6.

† Or charge. Chap. xi. 29, 30.

[q] Chap. xiii. 5, 13.

v. 20—25. Proud perſecutors juſtly meet an avenging God.

1. Herod's pride now reached the ſummit of wickedneſs. On ſome provocation given him by the maritime cities of Tyre and Sidon, Herod was highly offended; and, juſtly fearing the wrath of this haughty monarch, they inſtantly diſpatched embaſſadors to him to make their ſubmiſſion, and deprecate his diſpleaſure; for, as they chiefly drew their proviſion from his territories, if he prohibited his ſubjects from ſupplying them, it would have expoſed them to a famine. Therefore having, by preſents probably, gained Blaſtus the king's chamberlain for their friend, who had a conſiderable influence with his maſter, they deſired peace; and a day was fixed to give them public audience. Herod, arrayed in royal robes, glittering, ſays Joſephus, with ſilver, and reflecting the ſun-beams ſo ſtrongly as dazzled the eyes of the ſpectators, and ſeated on his gorgeous throne, made an oration to the people, probably expatiating on the provocations of the Tyrians, and diſplaying his own clemency in pardoning them on their ſubmiſſion. The people, delighted with his ſplendid appearance, pleaſed with his diſcourſe, and willing to flatter his pride, ſhouted their blaſphemous admiration, as if they heard a preſent deity, ſaying, It is the voice of a god, and not of a man; whilſt he, well-pleaſed, received the impious adulation.

2. Inſtantly God ſmote him, and hurled him from his towering height of pride into the abyſs of deſpicable wretchedneſs. An angel, the executioner of wrath, ſtruck the fatal blow, becauſe he gave not God the glory, and dared accept ſuch adoration. A foul, filthy, and tormenting diſeaſe ſeized his vitals; in agonies he lingered five days; worms bred in his putrid carcaſe; and, devoured alive, he miſerably periſhed, a ſpectacle of horror to every beholder. So eaſily can God abaſe thoſe who walk in pride, and make the meaneſt worm that crawls an inſtrument of his vengeance.

3. In ſpite of all perſecution and oppoſition, the word of God grew and multiplied, ſpreading with rapidity and vaſt ſucceſs. And Barnabas and Saul, having finiſhed their buſineſs at Jeruſalem, returned again to Antioch, taking with them John, whoſe ſurname was Mark, Barnabas's nephew. Note, When miniſters are called abroad, and have finiſhed their work, they muſt haſten home again, where their ſtated labour awaits them.

CHAP. XIII.

Here is, 1. The ſolemn ordination of Barnabas and Saul, by divine direction, to the great work of ſpreading the goſpel among the Gentiles, ver. 1—3. 2. Their preaching the goſpel in Cyprus, and the oppoſition they met with there from Elymas the ſorcerer, ver. 4—13. 3. The heads of a ſermon which Paul preached at Antioch in Piſidia, ver. 14—41. 4. The preaching of the goſpel to the Gentiles at their requeſt, and upon the Jews refuſal of it, ver. 42—49. 5. The trouble which the infidel Jews gave to the apoſtles, which obliged them to remove to another place, ver. 50—52.

1. NOW there were [a] in the church that was at Antioch, certain prophets and teachers; as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and [b] Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. 2. As they miniſtred to the Lord, and faſted, the holy Ghoſt ſaid, [c] Separate me Barnabas and Saul, for the work [d] whereunto I have called them. 3. And [e] when they had faſted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they ſent them away.

[a] Chap. xiv. 26.

[b] Rom. xvi. 21.

[c] Chap. ix. 15. & xxii. 21. Rom. i. 1. Gal. ii. 9.

[d] Mat. ix. 38. Rom. x. 15. Heb. v. 4.

[e] Chap. vi. 6.

v. 1—3. Though the goſpel had now begun to make its entrance into the Gentile world, none had yet been particularly ordained and appointed to that ſervice, till Paul and Barnabas, by the immediate order of the Holy Ghoſt, were called thereunto.

1. The church at Antioch flouriſhed greatly. There were certain prophets, who ranked next to the apoſtles in the church; and teachers, eminent for their gifts and graces; as Barnabas and Simeon, who, probably from his dark complexion, was called Niger; and Lucius of Cyrene, an African by birth; and Manaen, who had been brought up with Herod Antipas, the tetrarch of Galilee, his friend and companion; but now had quitted the honours of a court for the reproach of the goſpel; and Saul, ſo famous in the records of Chriſtianity. Theſe miniſtred to the Lord, and faſted, diligently employed in the ſervice of immortal ſouls; and at ſeaſons, in more ſolemn acts of prayer and faſting, waited upon God for his bleſſing and direction.

2. Whilſt they were, on a certain day, thus engaged, the Holy Ghoſt, by his immediate ſuggeſtion, and by his own divine authority, ſaid, Separate me Paul and Barnabas for the work whereunto I have called them, to preach among the Gentiles the unſearchable riches of Chriſt, and to be chiefly employed in their ſervice. Learn hence, (1.) The perſonality of the Holy Ghoſt, and his co-equal glory with the Father and Son. (2.) The true call to the miniſtry muſt come from above.

3. Purſuant to this order, Paul and Barnabas were ſolemnly ſet apart, with faſting and prayer and impoſition of hands, for the peculiar ſervice to which the Holy Ghoſt had appointed them: and, wiſhing them all ſucceſs in their arduous undertaking, the brethren ſent them away. And henceforward we find them the two great apoſtles of the Gentiles ſpread the glorious goſpel to diſtant lands, whither the glad tidings had never reached before.

4. ¶ So they being ſent forth by the holy Ghoſt, departed unto Seleucia; and from thence they ſailed to [f] Cyprus. 5. And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the ſynagogues of the Jews: and they had alſo [g] John to their miniſter. 6. And when they had gone through the iſle unto Paphos, they found a certain ſorcerer, a falſe prophet, a Jew, whoſe name was Barjeſus: 7. Which was with the deputy of the country, Sergius Paulus, a prudent man; who called for Barnabas and Saul, and deſired to hear the word of God. 8. But [h] Elymas the ſorcerer (for ſo is his name by interpretation) withſtood them, ſeeking to turn away the deputy from the faith. 9. Then Saul (who alſo is called Paul) filled with the holy Ghoſt, ſet his eyes on him, 10. And ſaid, O full of all ſubtilty and all miſchief, [i] thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteouſneſs, wilt thou not ceaſe to pervert the right ways of the Lord? 11. And now behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou ſhalt be blind, not ſeeing the ſun for a ſeaſon. And immediately there fell on him a miſt and a darkneſs, and he went about ſeeking ſome to lead him by the hand. 12. Then the deputy, when he ſaw what was done, believed, being aſtoniſhed at the doctrine of the Lord. 13. Now when Paul and his company looſed from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia: and [k] John departing from them, returned to Jeruſalem.

[f] Chap. iv. 36.

[g] Chap. xii. 25. & xv. 37.

[h] Ex. vii. 11. 2 Tim. iii. 8.

[i] Mat. xiii. 38. John viii. 44. 1 John iii. 8.

[k] Chap. xv. 38.

v. 4—13. Being in this ſolemn manner ſent forth, Paul and Barnabas immediately applied themſelves to their work.

1. They directed their courſe to Cyprus, the native land of Barnabas, going to Seleucia, and thence ſailed for Salamis, the chief town of the eaſtern part of the iſland. And firſt, as was their cuſtom, they preached the word in the ſynagogue of the Jews, giving them the preference; and, if they rejected the goſpel, leaving them thereby inexcuſeable: and they had John to their miniſter, to aſſiſt them in their work, provide neceſſaries for them, and execute any ſervice which might be appointed him.

2. They travelled through the greateſt part of the iſland, preaching the goſpel, till they came to Paphos, the chief city, on the weſtern coaſt, famous for the temple of Venus. There they met with one Barjeſus, which ſignifies the ſon of Joſhua, a Jew by birth, addicted to magic, who ſet up for a prophet, and had inſinuated himſelf into the favour of Sergius Paulus, the Roman governor of the iſland, a prudent, conſiderate, thinking man, who, hearing of the fame of Barnabas and Saul, deſired to learn from themſelves that new doctrine which they taught as a revelation from God. But Elymas, the ſorcerer, knowing that, if the deputy received the goſpel, his influence with him would be at an end, ſet himſelf to oppoſe theſe miniſters of Chriſt, and to turn away the deputy from the faith. Note, (1.) It is prudence to prove all things, and hold faſt that which is good. (2.) Where-ever the goſpel comes, Satan will find ſome tool to employ, in order to caſt ſtumbling-blocks in the way of thoſe who deſire to hear.

3. Saul, who henceforward is always called by his Roman name Paul, as more agreeable to the Gentiles, among whom for the future he chiefly converſed, filled with the Holy Ghoſt, fired with zeal for the goſpel, and under a divine afflatus, ſet his eyes on him, with indignation and abhorrence of his wickedneſs, and ſaid, O full of all ſubtilty, expert in every art of deceit, taught by the great deceiver, and, like him, ſet on all miſchief, thou enemy of all righteouſneſs, the implacable foe to truth and godlineſs, and that goſpel which is deſigned to promote them, wilt thou not ceaſe to pervert the right ways of the Lord? to miſrepreſent them, and by every artful and malicious ſuggeſtion to prejudice men againſt the Lord Jeſus, and thoſe ways of his grace, which alone can lead to eternal life and glory? And now behold, as an evident token of God's diſpleaſure, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, in righteous judgment; and thou ſhalt be blind, not ſeeing the ſun for a ſeaſon: the emblem and puniſhment of the wilful blindneſs of thy heart. Note, (1.) Subtilty and delight in miſchief united, form the ſtrongeſt image of the devil. (2.) They who are enemies to the goſpel, muſt be enemies to all righteouſneſs, ſince this alone can effectually produce true holineſs in the heart. (3.) The Lord's ways are all right, and lead direct to happineſs and heaven: they who pervert or miſrepreſent them, as unreaſonable, unpleaſant, or unprofitable, ſhall bear their burden.

4. His doom is no ſooner pronounced than executed. Immediately there fell on him a miſt and darkneſs, and, his ſight being entirely loſt, he went about groping his way, and ſeeking ſome to lead him by the hand. Struck with the evidence of the miracle, perceiving the ſorcerer confounded by the arguments, and unable to ſtand before the power with which Paul appeared to be inveſted, the deputy believed in Jeſus, being aſtoniſhed at the doctrine of the Lord, which came with ſuch convincing power and energy to his heart, and contained ſuch amazing diſcoveries of God and his great ſalvation, with which he had been before utterly unacquainted.

5. Having ſhortly after ſet ſail from Paphos, Paul and his companions directed their courſe to Perga, a city of Pamphilia, ſituate in leſſer Aſia. There John, their miniſter, quitted them, and returned to Jeruſalem. A worldly or timid ſpirit prevailed againſt him: he wanted to ſee his mother; or he was weary of the fatigues of the Gentile miſſion; or ſome temporal affair drew off his attention from the miniſtry of the word: which Paul much reſented, and laid a ground of future contention between him and Barnabas.

14. ¶ But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in Piſidia, and [l] went into the ſynagogue on the ſabbath-day, and ſat down. 15. And [m] after the reading of the law and the prophets, the rulers of the ſynagogue ſent unto them, ſaying, Ye men and brethren, if ye have [n] any word of exhortation for the people, ſay on. 16. Then Paul ſtood up, and [o] beckning with his hand, ſaid, Men of Iſrael, and [p] ye that fear God, give audience. 17. The God of this people of Iſrael choſe our fathers, and exalted the people, when [q] they dwelt as ſtrangers in the land of Egypt, and [r] with an high arm brought he them out of it. 18. And [s] about the time of forty years † ſuffered he their manners in the wilderneſs. 19. And when [t] he had deſtroyed ſeven nations in the land of Canaan, [u] he divided their land to them by lot. 20. And after that [x] he gave unto them judges about the ſpace of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the prophet. 21. And afterward [y] they deſired a king: [z] and God gave unto them Saul the ſon of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the ſpace of forty years. 22. And when he had removed him, [a] he raiſed up unto them David to be their king; to whom alſo he gave teſtimony, and ſaid, [b] I have found David the ſon of Jeſſe, [c] a man after mine own heart, which ſhall fulfil all my will. 23. [d] Of this man's ſeed hath God, [e] according to his promiſe, raiſed unto Iſrael a Saviour Jeſus. 24. [f] When John had firſt preached before his coming, the baptiſm of repentance to all the people of Iſrael. 25. And as John fulfilled his courſe, he ſaid, [g] Whom think ye that I am? I am not he. But behold, there cometh one after me, whoſe ſhoes of his feet I am not worthy to looſe. 26. Men and brethren, children of the ſtock of Abraham, and whoſoever among you feareth God, [h] to you is the word of this ſalvation ſent. 27. For they that dwell at Jeruſalem, and their rulers, [i] becauſe they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the prophets [k] which are read every ſabbath-day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him. 28. And [l] though they found no cauſe of death in him, yet deſired they [m] Pilate that he ſhould be ſlain. 29. And when they had fulfilled all that was written of him, [n] they took him down from the tree, and laid him in a ſepulchre. 30. But [o] God raiſed him from the dead: 31. And [p] he was ſeen many days of them which came up with him [q] from Galilee to Jeruſalem, [r] who are his witneſſes unto the people. 32. And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that [s] the promiſe which was made unto the fathers, 33. God hath fulfilled the ſame unto us their children, in that he hath raiſed up Jeſus again; as it is alſo written in the ſecond pſalm, [t] Thou art my ſon, this day have I begotten thee. 34. And as concerning that he raiſed him up from the dead, now no more to return to corruption, he ſaid on this wiſe, [u] I will give you the ‡ ſure mercies of David. 35. Wherefore he ſaith alſo in another pſalm, [x] Thou ſhalt not ſuffer thine holy One to ſee corruption. 36. For David, after he had § ſerved his own generation by the will of God, [y] fell on ſleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and ſaw corruption. 37. But he whom God raiſed again, ſaw no corruption. 38. ¶ Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that [z] through this man is preached unto you the forgiveneſs of ſins: 39. And [a] by him all that believe are juſtified from all things, from which ye could not be juſtified by the law of Moſes. 40. Beware therefore, leſt that come upon you [b] which is ſpoken of in the prophets, 41. Behold, ye deſpiſers, and wonder, and periſh: for I work a work in your days, a work which ye ſhall in no wiſe believe, though a man declare it unto you.

[l] Chap. xvi. 13. & xvii. 2. & xviii. 4.
[m] Luke iv. 16. Ver. 27.
[n] Heb. xiii. 22.
[o] Chap. xii. 17.
[p] Ver. 42, 43.
[q] Ex. i. 1.
[r] Ex. vi. 6. & xiii. 14, 16.
[s] Exod. xvi. 35. Pſ. xcv. 10.
† Or bore them like a nurſe. Deut. i. 31.
[t] Deut. vii. 1.
[u] Joſh. xiv. 1, 2. Pſ. lxxviii. 55.
[x] Judg. ii. 16. & iii. 9.
[y] 1 Sam. viii. 5.
[z] 1 Sam. x. 1.
[a] 1 Sam. xvi. 13.
[b] Pſ. lxxxix. 20.
[c] 1 Sam. xiii. 14.
[d] Iſa. xi. 1. Mat. i. 1.
[e] 1 Sam. xiii. 14. Pſ. cxxxii. 11. Jer. xxiii. 5.
[f] Mat. iii. 1.
[g] Mat. iii. 11. John i. 20, 27.
[h] Mat. x. 6. Chap. iii. 26. Ver. 46.
[i] Chap. iii. 17. 1 Cor. ii. 8. 1 Tim. i. 13.
[k] Chap. xv. 21.
[l] Mat. xxvii. 22. John xix. 6.
[m] Chap. iii. 13.
[n] Mat. xxvii. 59.
[o] Chap. ii. 24.
[p] Mat. xxviii. 16. Chap. i. 3. 1 Cor. xv. 5, 6.
[q] Chap. i. 11.
[r] Chap. ii. 32.
[s] Gen. iii. 15. & xxii. 18. Deut. xviii. 15. Iſa. liii. 10. Jer. xxiii. 5, 6. Dan. ix. 24.
[t] Pſ. ii. 7. Heb. i. 5.
[u] Iſa. lv. 3.
‡ Holy or juſt things.
[x] Pſ. xvi. 10. Chap. ii. 27, 31.
§ Or ſerved the will of God in his generation.
[y] 1 Kin. ii. 10. Chap. ii. 29.
[z] Dan. ix. 24. Luke xxiv. 47. Chap. iv. 12. & v. 31. & x. 43. Rom. iii. 25. Heb. ix. 15.
[a] Rom. iii. 28. & viii. 3. Heb. vii. 19.
[b] Iſa. xxviii. 14. Hab. i. 5.

v. 14—41. How long they ſtayed, and what ſucceſs the apoſtles had at Perga, is not recorded; but more is preſerved of their labours at Antioch, the capital of Piſidia, which was their next remove.

1. On the ſabbath-day, according to their cuſtom, they went into the ſynagogue, and ſat down, waiting a proper opportunity to deliver the meſſage which they brought.

2. After the reading the law and prophets as uſual, the rulers of the ſynagogue, probably being acquainted with their public characters, and willing to hear what they had to ſay, ſent unto them, ſaying, Ye men and brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation, or conſolation, to the people, ſay on. Note, (1.) In public worſhip the reading the Scriptures ſhould always have a place. (2.) The preaching the word, and expounding it with application to the hearts of the hearers, is one moſt eſſential end and uſe of our aſſembling on the Lord's day.

3. Paul declined not the invitation, but gracefully riſing, and waving his hand that ſilence might be kept, he very affectionately and ſeriouſly addreſſes his brethren, intreating a patient and attentive audience.

1. He opens with reminding them of the peculiar favour which God had ſhewn to their fathers. God had choſen the Jewiſh people in a covenant of peculiarity, and, according to the promiſe made unto their fathers, had wonderfully multiplied and exalted them in Egypt, where they ſojourned; and at laſt, when they were oppreſſed by Pharaoh, had brought them thence with a high hand, v. 17. In the wilderneſs, amidſt all their provocations, his patience bore with them, his bounteous hand fed them forty years, v. 18. After deſtroying the accurſed nations of Canaan, he gave them the country, by lot, for their inheritance, v. 19. and, for about a ſpace of four hundred and fifty years from their deliverance from Egypt, continued, in their emergencies, to raiſe them up divinely appointed officers, called judges, to ſave them from the hands of their enemies, until the times of Samuel the prophet, v. 20. Afterwards, indulging them in their deſire, he appointed Saul the ſon of Cis, a Benjamite, their king, whoſe reign, with Samuel's government, filled the ſpace of forty years, v. 21. And when he was rejected, then was David anointed to ſit on Iſrael's throne, and raiſed from his low eſtate to that high dignity, a man, to whom God bore the moſt honourable teſtimony, as one after mine own heart, approved and known to be faithful, which ſhall fulfil all my pleaſure, and anſwer all my purpoſes and deſigns.

Herein the apoſtle ſeems to deſire to conciliate the Jews to him, and engage their regard to his diſcourſe; when it appears, that, far from having any prejudice againſt the Jewiſh nation, as was ſuggeſted, or deſpiſing their peculiar honours, he dwells upon them with pleaſure, in order to introduce the diſcourſe of that Meſſiah, the Son of David, which was the great object he had in view.

2. As God had made to David a promiſe, that of his ſeed the Meſſiah ſhould ſpring, the glorious hope of Iſrael, that promiſe he had now fulfilled in Jeſus, the Saviour of his people from ſin, miſery, death, and hell; to introduce whoſe appearing, John had preached the baptiſm of repentance to all the people of Iſrael, inviting them to turn to that Meſſiah, whoſe forerunner he was, that by faith in him they might obtain remiſſion of ſins, (Mark i. 4. Luke iii. 3.) diſclaiming that title himſelf, when the people were in doubt whether he were the Chriſt or not, but directing them to one preſently to appear after him, ſo far tranſcending him in dignity, that he ſhould count it an honour of which he was unworthy, to perform the meaneſt offices to him. This being then the main point in view, to bring them acquainted with him, to whom John bore record, he pathetically urges them to conſider the matter. Men and brethren, poſſeſſed of rational and immortal ſouls, children of the ſtock of Abraham, and of the promiſe made unto our fathers, and whoſoever among you feareth God, whether Jews or proſelytes, to you is the word of this ſalvation ſent, and you are firſt called to partake of the ineſtimable bleſſings of the redemption which this Jeſus hath obtained. Note, (1.) It is among the moſt invaluable mercies, to have the word of ſalvation ſent to us. (2.) No condemnation will be ſo great and aggravated as theirs who reject the goſpel-word.

3. He plainly tells them of the great guilt and wickedneſs of the Jewiſh rulers, in rejecting, perſecuting, and murdering the Lord's Chriſt. They knew him not, ſo fatally blinded were their minds by the prejudices which they had entertained, and the expectations they had formed of a temporal Meſſiah; nor yet the voices of the prophets, which are read every ſabbath-day, in which the ſufferings and death of the Meſſiah were at large foretold: but God ſo over-ruled their wickedneſs, that undeſignedly they have fulfilled theſe ſcriptures in condemning him: and though, even by the confeſſion of his judge, his innocence was acknowledged, and they found no cauſe of death in him; yet, ſo malicious and enraged were they againſt him, they deſired Pilate that he ſhould be ſlain. And when they had fulfilled all that was written of him, concerning his ſufferings and death, even in the moſt minute particulars, they took him down from the tree, and laid him in a ſepulchre; brought to the duſt of death, the loweſt ſtep of his humiliation. Note, (1.) Ignorance of the ſcriptures is often found, where the ſound of them in the ears is heard every ſabbath-day. (2.) It will not excuſe the ſins of perſecutors, that they did it ignorantly in unbelief, when they rejected the means of better information.

4. He inſiſts at large on his glorious reſurrection, as the grand foundation on which all the ſure hope of ſalvation through Jeſus was built. His enemies thought they had effectually defeated all his pretenſions when they laid him in the grave; but God raiſed him from the dead, to their confuſion, and as a token of the fulleſt approbation of his character and undertaking; a fact atteſted by a great cloud of witneſſes, who had been moſt intimately acquainted with him before his death, and, during forty days, had many conferences with him, and eat and drank with him after his reſurrection; the truth of which ſome of them had already ſealed with their blood, and others in the face of death and danger ſtill continued to declare. And to this reſurrection of Jeſus we now preſent bear teſtimony, proclaiming it as the moſt joyful tidings, that the promiſe made unto the fathers, of that Meſſiah in whom all nations of the world ſhould be bleſſed, he hath now fulfilled unto us their children, in that he hath raiſed up Jeſus again; whereby it appears that he was the glorious perſonage of whom David ſpeaks; as it is written alſo in the ſecond Pſalm, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee; from eternity the relation ſubſiſted; and as God bore teſtimony to the dignity and divine character of his Son, his baptiſm and transfiguration, ſo moſt eminently was Jeſus declared to be the Son of God with power by the reſurrection from the dead, (Rom. i. 4.) And that God raiſed him from the dead, no more to ſee corruption, is evident from Iſa. lv. 3. where he ſaith, I will give you the ſure mercies of David. Having there appointed his Son, according to the tenor of the everlaſting covenant, the leader and commander of the people, and by an oath confirmed his promiſe, it became neceſſary, that he who by his ſufferings and death was to ratify the covenant, and obtain theſe mercies for his people, ſhould riſe again to make them ſure, and ever live to maintain them in the poſſeſſion of their invaluable privileges. In farther proof of which, he ſaith in another Pſalm, Thou ſhalt not ſuffer thine holy One to ſee corruption, (Pſ. xvi. 10.) which words can only be applicable to the Meſſiah; for as to David himſelf, it is evident, after he had ſerved his generation by the will of God, diſcharging his high office with great fidelity for his people's good, he fell aſleep in the arms of death, reſting from all his labours, and was laid unto his fathers, and ſaw corruption, his corpſe, like others, returning unto duſt: but he whom God raiſed, even Jeſus, the Meſſiah, of whom David ſpake in this Pſalm, exactly fulfilled it, and riſing on the third day, ſaw no corruption, nor ever ſhall, God having exalted him to his own right hand in glory everlaſting, to beſtow theſe covenant mercies on all his redeemed people, until time ſhall be no more. Note, (1.) Like David we muſt learn not to live for ourſelves, but for God's glory, and the good of mankind. (2.) To a faithful ſoul death is but a ſleep, when he reſts from his labours, and is in joy and felicity. (3.) The more we examine the ſcriptures, the more confirmed ſhall we be, that Jeſus is the Chriſt, in whom we ſhall ſee all the prophecies ſo eminently and exactly fulfilled.

5. He applies what he ſaid to their hearts, as a matter in which they were moſt nearly concerned. Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveneſs of ſins; by his ſufferings it is obtained, in his name it is declared, and by his authority beſtowed: and by him, through the merit of his obedience unto death, all that believe are juſtified from all things; diſcharged from the condemnation of the law, and the guilt of all their tranſgreſſions, be they never ſo many, great, or aggravated; from which ye could not be juſtified by the law of Moſes, legal or ceremonial, none being able to fulfil the moral law in perfection, and the ceremonial preſcribed no ſacrifice for wilful tranſgreſſion: and therefore all who looked for juſtification by the deeds of the law, were neceſſarily left under wrath and condemnation. Note, (1.) The great goſpel promiſe and privilege is forgiveneſs of ſins. In Chriſt Jeſus there is a free and full pardon promiſed to the miſerable and the deſperate. (2.) It is impoſſible for a fallen ſinner to be juſt before God by any obedience of his own, or by any other means and method than that of his own appointment, even faith in the blood and righteouſneſs of him who juſtifieth the ungodly. (3.) All who truly believe in Jeſus, are compleat in him; all he did, all he ſuffered, is reckoned to our account, and God is therefore righteous and juſt in forgiving our ſins, ſince he hath accepted one for all, the juſt for the unjuſt.

Laſtly, He ſolemnly warns them of the danger of rejecting this ſalvation. Beware therefore, leſt, through your obſtinate infidelity, that fearful and alarming threatning ſhould come upon you, which is ſpoken of in one of the prophets, (Hab. i. 5.) concerning the men of that generation in which he lived; Behold, ye deſpiſers, and wonder at your own ſtupidity, and my vengeance ready to light upon you; and periſh, be covered with ſhame, and hide yourſelves in terrors at the approaching judgments; for I work a work, which you ſhall in no wiſe believe, though a a man declare it unto you; ſuch as the deſtruction of their temple and nation by the Romans, a judgment more terrible than ever before fell upon them by the hand of the Chaldeans. Or perhaps it may refer to the glorious work of redemption and mercy which ſhould be extended to the Gentiles, whilſt the Jews would be rejected for their wilful unbelief and impenitence; neither of which would they believe, though told them by perſons of the moſt undoubted credit and authority.

42. And when the Jews were gone out of the ſynagogue, the Gentiles beſought that theſe words might be preached to them † the next ſabbath. 43. Now when the congregation was broken up, many of the Jews, and religious proſelytes followed Paul and Barnabas; who ſpeaking to them, perſuaded them to [c] continue in the grace of God. 44. ¶ And the next ſabbath-day came almoſt the whole city together to hear the word of God. 45. But when the Jews ſaw the multitudes, they were filled with envy, and [d] ſpake againſt thoſe things which were ſpoken by Paul, contradicting and blaſpheming. 46. Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and ſaid, [e] It was neceſſary that the word of God ſhould firſt have been ſpoken to you: but [f] ſeeing ye put it from you, and judge yourſelves unworthy of everlaſting life, lo, [g] we turn to the Gentiles. 47. For ſo hath the Lord commanded us, ſaying, [h] I have ſet thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou ſhouldeſt be for ſalvation unto the ends of the earth. 48. And when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and [i] as many as were ordained to eternal life, believed. 49. And the word of the Lord was publiſhed throughout all the region. 50. But the Jews ſtirred up the devout and honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and [k] raiſed perſecution againſt Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coaſts. 51. But [l] they ſhook off the duſt of their feet againſt them, and came unto Iconium. 52. And the diſciples were filled with joy, and with the holy Ghoſt.

v. 42—52.

† Or in the week between.

[c] Chap. xi. 23. & xiv. 22. Heb. iii. 6, 14.

[d] Chap. xviii. 6. 1 Pet. iv. 4.

[e] Mat. x. 6. Chap. iii. 26. Rom. i. 16.

[f] Ex. xxxii. 10. Iſa. lv. 5. Mat. xxi. 43. Rom. x. 19.

[g] Chap. xviii. 6. & xxviii. 28.

[h] Iſa. xlii. 6, & xlix. 6. Luke ii. 32.

[i] Chap. ii. 47.

[k] 2 Tim. iii. 11.

[l] Mat. x. 14. Chap. xviii. 6.

v. 42—52. Nothing could be more kindly ſpoken than this diſcourſe of the apoſtle, and more reſpectful to the Jewiſh people. But we are told,

1. The ill reception many of the Jews gave to his ſermon. They went out of the ſynagogue, in open contempt of the apoſtle, and of the doctrine of Chriſt which he preached; intimating thereby an avowed reſolution never to hear him again, or regard ought that he could ſay. And juſtly are they abandoned to their infidelity, who obſtinately reject the counſel of the Lord againſt their own ſouls, and will not even give the goſpel a candid hearing.

2. The Gentiles hereupon, the proſelytes of righteouſneſs, who attended the Jewiſh worſhip, beſought, that if the Jews refuſed to receive the gracious meſſage, theſe words might be preached to them the next ſabbath. They longed for that ſalvation which the others ſlighted.

3. Though the generality of the Jews turned their backs on the apoſtles and their preaching, many were affected by what they heard, both of the native Jews, and religious proſelytes, and they followed Paul and Barnabas, that they might in private have ſome farther conference with them on a matter ſo important: and glad to ſee them thus impreſſed, they converſed freely with them on the ſubject, to carry on the good work begun on their hearts, warmly exhorting and perſuading them by every powerful argument, to continue in the grace of God, faithfully embracing, and boldly profeſſing the goſpel doctrines, depending on the Spirit's influence, and waiting in the uſe of all appointed means upon the Lord. Note, (1.) They who truly receive the word of Chriſt, will follow his miniſters, and long for farther inſtruction in righteouſneſs. (2.) Continuance in the grace of God, muſt prove we are truly partakers of it.

4. The next ſabbath the auditory was immenſe. Probably in the week days, the apoſtles had improved every opportunity to ſpread the truths of God; and as the Gentiles were graciouſly received by them, they flocked together on the ſabbath; and not only the religious proſelytes, but many of thoſe who were before idolatrous, invited by curioſity, or from better motives, aſſembled to hear the word of God.

5. When the Jews, who were enemies to the goſpel, ſaw the multitudes, and among them many of the idolatrous Gentiles whom they abhorred, they were filled wich envy, that to them the word of God ſhould be ſpoken, and that theſe new preachers ſhould grow ſo popular; and ſpake againſt thoſe things which were ſpoken by Paul, contradicting and blaſpheming; with the utmoſt rage and paſſion they diſputed againſt the doctrines of the goſpel, abuſed and vilified the preacher, and blaſphemed the holy name of Jeſus, who was the great ſubject of the apoſtle's diſcourſe. Note, It is no new thing to hear the glorious truths of Chriſt and his ſalvation, treated with virulence and blaſphemy by men of corrupt minds.

6. Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold; far from being intimidated by ſuch oppoſition, they appeared inſpired with greater zeal, and ſhewed more undaunted courage in delivering their meſſage, and ſaid, It was neceſſary that the word of God ſhould firſt have been ſpoken unto you; in reſpect to the privileges of your birth, and the command of our maſter, who ſent us forth to publiſh his goſpel, beginning at Jeruſalem, and ſending the firſt calls to the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael: but ſeeing ye put it from you, and wilfully reject and vilify this great ſalvation of the Meſſiah, and judge yourſelves unworthy of eternal life, which can only be obtained by that faith in him and his goſpel, which you deſpiſe, and are unworthy to hear any more, lo, we turn to the Gentiles, leaving you of this place to your obſtinate impenitence and infidelity, and henceforth proclaiming the ſalvation which is in Jeſus Chriſt to the heathen; and herein we act by divine warrant, and in exact correſpondence with the ſcriptures. For ſo hath the Lord commanded us, ſaying, I have ſet thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou ſhouldeſt be for ſalvation unto the ends of the earth, Iſa. xlix. 6. Note, (1.) The more obſtinately ſinners oppoſe the word of God, the more bold and zealous ſhould his miniſters be, in maintaining the truths of his goſpel. (2.) They who reject God's miniſters, and their meſſage, pronounce ſentence on themſelves, as unworthy of eternal life. (3.) Chriſt is the ſun of righteouſneſs ariſen on this benighted world; in him we ſee the way to preſent and eternal ſalvation opened; and all, to the ends of the earth, are invited to look to him, and be ſaved.

7. When the Gentiles heard this, that the ſalvation which the apoſtles preached extended to them, according to God's expreſs word and warrant, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord, praiſing him for ſending the light of his truth among them; and as many as were ordained to eternal life, who not only, like the ſtony ground hearers, expreſſed a tranſitory joy in what they heard, but were in God's eternal and all-wiſe decrees appointed unto glory, to ſtand amidſt the ſhining ranks of the church triumphant, they believed to the ſaving of their ſouls. And the word of the Lord, which was with ſuch gracious effect preached in the capital, was publiſhed throughout all the region, both by the apoſtolic labours, and the Gentile converts, who longed to engage their brethren to ſhare with them in this common ſalvation. Note, (1.) The goſpel is glad news to the ſinner that ſees and feels the need of that pardon and grace therein promiſed. (2.) They who have taſted the preciouſneſs of God's word, cannot but glorify him for his unſpeakable gift. (3.) Eternal life is the gift of God; and in their hearts, who are ordained to partake of it, doth he work the work of faith with power. (4.) If we have ourſelves received the knowledge of Jeſus, and his rich grace, we ſhall delight to ſpread abroad the ſavour of his name.

8. The unbelieving Jews, filled with malice and enmity againſt the apoſtles, ſtirred up the devout and honourable women, who were proſelytes, and moſt zealous for Judaiſm, and the chief men of the city, probably by their means, repreſenting the apoſtles as dangerous men; and raiſed perſecution againſt Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coaſts. Note, (1.) Wherever the goſpel is preached with ſucceſs, there the miniſters of it may expect the devil's rage. (2.) None perſecute ſo bitterly as thoſe who are devout, and make profeſſion of religion. (3.) The beſt of men have been expelled with ignominy from places where their ſucceſsful labours provoked the enmity of thoſe, who ſhould have protected and honoured them; but ſuch reproach is their higheſt honour, ſuch ſuffering their trueſt preferment.

Laſtly, Being thus violently driven out of the city, they ſhook off the duſt of their feet againſt them, in deteſtation of their wickedneſs; and as a teſtimony againſt their perſecutors in the judgment-day, according to their maſter's order, Luke ix. 5. and they came to Iconium, the chief city of Lycaonia, a neighbouring province. And the diſciples, whom they left behind, though deprived of theſe faithful teachers, and beholding theſe perſecutions, far from being diſheartned, were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghoſt; bleſt with the moſt abundant conſolations in their ſouls, mightily enriched with the gifts and graces of the Spirit, and making a bold and noble profeſſion of their faith, amidſt all oppoſition. Note, (1.) Wo to the place againſt which the rejected miniſters of Jeſus ſhake off the duſt of their feet; Sodom's vengeance ſhall be lighter than the doom of that city. (2.) As our tribulations for Chriſt abound, he can, and uſually doth, cauſe our conſolations to abound alſo.

CHAP. XIV.

We have in this chapter a further account of the progreſs of the goſpel, by the miniſtry of Paul and Barnabas, among the Gentiles. Here is, 1. Their ſucceſsful preaching time at Iconium, and their being driven thence by the violence of their perſecutors, ver. 1—7. 2. Their healing of a lame man at Lyſtra, and the difficulty they found to reſtrain the people from worſhipping them as gods, ver. 8—18. 3. The outrage of the people againſt Paul, at the inſtigation of the Jews, the effect of which was, that they ſtoned him, as they thought, to death; but he was wonderfully reſtored to life again, ver. 19, 20. 4. The viſit which Paul and Barnabas made to the churches which they had planted, to confirm and put them into order, ver. 21—23. 5. Their return to Antioch, from whence they were ſent forth; the good they did by the way, and the report they made to the church of Antioch of their expedition, ver. 24—28.

1. AND it came to paſs in Iconium, that they went both together into the ſynagogue of the Jews, and ſo ſpake, that a great multitude both of the Jews and alſo of the Greeks believed. 2. But the unbelieving Jews ſtirred up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil affected againſt the brethren. 3. Long time therefore abode they ſpeaking boldly in the Lord, [a] which gave teſtimony unto the word of his grace, and granted [b] ſigns and wonders to be done by their hands. 4. But the multitude of the city was divided: and part held with the Jews, and part with the apoſtles. 5. And when there was an aſſault made both of the Gentiles, and alſo of the Jews, with their rulers, [c] to uſe them deſpitefully, and to ſtone them, 6. They were ware of it, and [d] fled unto Lyſtra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that lieth round about: 7. And there they preached the goſpel.

[a] Mark xvi. 20. Heb. ii. 4.
[b] Chap. xix. 11.
[c] 2 Tim. iii. 11.
[d] Mat. x. 23. Chap. viii. 1.

v. 1—7. Though the apoſtles were ſo ignominiouſly treated by the Jews at Antioch, yet did they not deſiſt from their accuſtomed manner of viſiting their ſynagogues firſt at Iconium, and making them the offer of the goſpel.

1. They went both together into the ſynagogue, as mutual fellow-helpers, and that out of the mouth of two witneſſes every word might be eſtabliſhed; and ſo ſpake, that a great multitude both of Jews and alſo of the Greeks believed; ſo powerful was their preaching, and ſo mightily did the Spirit of God bleſs their miniſtrations, to the conviction and converſion of their hearers.

2. This ſucceſs, as uſual, exaſperated the infidel Jews, who ſpirited up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil affected againſt the brethren, by repreſenting them as dangerous men, who were carrying on ſome bad deſign. Perſecutors would thus always cover malignity under ſpecious pretences.

3. Though the apoſtles ſaw the prejudices and rancour entertained againſt them and their new converts, they were not diſheartened, but abode long time ſpeaking boldly in the Lord, in his glorious cauſe, and ſupported by his power and Spirit, which gave teſtimony unto the word of his grace, and granted ſigns and wonders to be done by their hands, as an atteſtation to the truth of the goſpel which they preached. Note, (1.) The goſpel is the word of Chriſt's grace, containing the richeſt diſcoveries of free, boundleſs, and undeſerved mercy to the ſinful ſons of men. (2.) They who go forth in the ſtrength of the Lord, will not be diſmayed at the frowns of their enemies.

4. Notwithſtanding the malice of the Jews, a ſtrong party was formed for the apoſtles, and the city was divided, and for a time the perſecution was reſtrained. At laſt, the Jewiſh party prevailing, an aſſault was made both of the Gentiles and Jews, ſupported by the magiſtrates, in order to ſeize the apoſtles, and uſe them deſpitefully, treating them with every kind of ignominy, and then to ſtone them, as blaſphemers and miſcreants unworthy to live. Note, (1.) If the goſpel makes a diviſion in a place or city that was before at peace, it is not to be imputed to any tendency which the gracious meſſage hath to create ſuch diſturbance, but to the enmity of the natural heart againſt God, which cannot bear to ſee the power of goſpel grace in the converſations of others: and far better is it to bear reproach and perſecution, as the troublers of the falſe peace of ſinners, than to ſuffer them to ſwim ſecurely down the ſtream into the gulph of perdition. (2.) If the enemies of the truth are ſo unanimous in oppoſition, ſhall the friends of the goſpel be leſs united in the glorious cauſe?

5. The apoſtles got intelligence of this conſpiracy, and to eſcape from the hands of theſe blood-thirſty men, fled to Lyſtra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that lieth round about; and there they preached the goſpel, not deſiſting from their labours, though compelled to fly for their lives. Thus the enmity of their perſecutors contributed but the more to ſpread that goſpel which they oppoſed.

8. ¶ And [e] there ſat a certain man at Lyſtra, impotent in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked. 9. The ſame heard Paul ſpeak:
who ſtedfaſtly beholding him, and perceiving that [f] he had faith to be healed, 10. Said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. [g] And he leaped and walked.
11. And when the people ſaw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, ſaying in the ſpeech of Lycaonia, [h] The gods are come down to us in the likeneſs of men.
12. And they called Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercurius, becauſe he was the chief ſpeaker. 13. Then the prieſt of Jupiter, which was before their city, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, and [i] would have done ſacrifice with the people. 14. Which when the apoſtles Barnabas and Paul heard of, [k] they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out, 15. And ſaying, Sirs, [l] why do ye theſe things? [m] We alſo are men of like paſſions with you, and preach unto you, that ye ſhould turn from [n] theſe vanities unto the living God, [o] which made heaven and earth, and the ſea, and all things that are therein: 16. [p] Who in times paſt ſuffered all nations to walk in their own ways. 17. [q] Nevertheleſs he left not himſelf without witneſs, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful ſeaſons, filling our hearts with food and gladneſs. 18.
And with theſe ſayings ſcarce reſtrained they the people, that they had not done ſacrifice unto them.

[e] Chap. iii. 2.
[f] Mat. ix. 28.
[g] Iſa. xxxv. 6.
[h] Chap. xxviii. 6.
[i] Dan. ii. 46.
[k] Mat. xxvi. 65.
[l] Chap. x. 25, 26. Rev. xix. 10. & xxii. 9.
[m] Jam. v. 17.
[n] 1 Sam. xii. 21.
[o] Gen. i. 1. Pſ. cxlvi. 6. Rev. xiv. 7.
[p] Pſ. lxxxi. 12. Chap. xvii. 30. 1 Pet. iv. 3.
[q] Chap. xvii. 27. Rom. i. 20.

v 8—18. During their ſtay at Lyſtra we are told,

1. Of a notable cure performed by Paul on a man lame from his birth. In the aſſembly where Paul was preaching, he ſat attentive to his diſcourſe, when the apoſtle ſtedfaſtly beholding him, and perceiving, by the ſpirit of diſcernment, that he had faith to be healed, and was perſuaded of the power with which the apoſtles were endued to cure his lameneſs, incurable as it was by any human means; he ſaid with a loud voice, that all preſent might hear and take notice of the miracle, Stand upright on thy feet; and inſtantly he leaped and walked, reſtored to perfect ſtrength. Note, (1.) They who love the word of God, though they are lame, and cannot walk, will be carried to hear it. (2.) The pains which ſome take to attend God's worſhip, though lame and infirm, will riſe up to condemn their ſloth and negligence, who, though ſo much better able to go, indulge themſelves at home. (3.) When Jeſus ſpeaks to the impotent ſoul in his word, then, tho' helpleſs to all good before, our hearts exult with holy joy, and riſe to run the way of his commandments.

2. Aſtoniſhed at what they had ſeen, the idolatrous Gentiles who were preſent, concluded, according to the notions of their pagan theology, that the gods were come down to them in the likeneſs of men, and in an ecſtacy of joy at this ſuppoſed honour done them, in their own language expreſſed aloud the ſentiments of their hearts; and, agreeable to the abſurd ideas which they had received of their gods, they called Barnabas Jupiter, being probably the elder man, and his ſtature more majeſtic; and Paul Mercurius, becauſe he was the chief ſpeaker, Mercury being the god of eloquence, and reputed the meſſenger who went on the errands of Jove and the ſuperior deities. Then the prieſt of Jupiter which was before their city, reputed their patron God, or whoſe temple ſtood in the ſuburbs, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, the place of concourſe, where Paul and Barnabas were ſpeaking to the people, or to the door of the houſe where they lodged, and would have done ſacrifice with the people, crowning them with their garlands, and offering their ſacrifices before them.

3. With horror and indignation, when the apoſtles perceived their deſign, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out, and ſaying, Sirs, why do ye theſe things? Far from ſuffering the people to continue in ſo dangerous a miſtake, though it brought them ſuch honour, they deſired to renounce all ſuch vain glory, and with earneſtneſs remonſtrated againſt a deſign ſo impious and idolatrous. Far from aſſuming divinity, we alſo are men of like paſſions with you, ſubject to all the infirmities of humanity, and corrupt and ſinful worms of the earth, as the reſt of mankind, and preach unto you, as miniſters and ambaſſadors of Chriſt, which is the higheſt honour we claim, that ye ſhould turn from theſe vanities, theſe abſurd, uſeleſs, unprofitable deities, which are mere nothings, creatures of the fancy which never exiſted, and whoſe worſhip is the height of folly, as well as impiety; and that ye ſhould be brought unto the worſhip and ſervice of the living God, who alone is worthy to be feared and adored, as the fountain of life, and the great Creator of all; which made heaven and earth, and the ſea, and things that are therein, viſible or inviſible; who in times paſt, in his myſterious ways of providence, which are all righteous and juſt, ſuffered all nations to walk in their own ways, with much long-ſuffering bearing with their provocations. Nevertheleſs, he left not himſelf without witneſs, but gave them ſufficient evidences of his wiſdom and goodneſs, of his eternal power and Godhead, (Rom. i. 20.) in that he did good, and and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful ſeaſons, filling our hearts with food and gladneſs, which gifts of his beneficence ſhould have led up our hearts unto him, and left us without excuſe in our ignorance of him, neglect, and unthankfulneſs: to perſiſt therefore in theſe abominations of idolatry, now the goſpel light was come unto them, would be peculiarly criminal. Note, (1.) All our temporal mercies ſhould lead up our hearts to God, and looking above all ſecond cauſes, the great Author of all ſhould be conſtantly ſeen in all the bounties of his providence, in every drop of dew that waters the earth, and every blade that breaks the clod. (2.) The goodneſs of God to us ſhould engage our hearts towards him, and if we have lived in ignorance before, we are called to improve what better light he now graciouſly communicates. (3.) Our gratitude is due to God, not only for the food he beſtows, but for the gladneſs of heart which he gives to make uſe of his bleſſings.

4. With theſe ſayings ſcarce reſtrained they the people, that they had not done ſacrifice unto them; all their expoſtulations and entreaties with difficulty prevailed upon them to deſiſt, ſo fooliſhly obſtinate were they in their miſtaken perſuaſion.

19. ¶ And there came thither certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who perſuaded the people, and [r] having ſtoned Paul, drew him out of the city, [s] ſuppoſing he had been dead. 20. Howbeit, as the diſciples ſtood round about him, he roſe up, and came into the city: and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe. 21. And when they had preached the goſpel to that city, and had † taught many, they returned again to Lyſtra, and to Iconium, and Antioch. 22. Confirming the ſouls of the diſciples, and [t] exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that [u] we muſt through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God. 23.
And when [x] they had ‡ ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with faſting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed. 24. And after they had paſſed through Piſidia, they came to Pamphylia. 25. And when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down into Attalia: 26. And thence ſailed to Antioch, [y] from whence they had been recommended to the grace of God, for the work which they fulfilled. 27. And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, [z] they rehearſed all that God had done with them, and how he had [a] opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles. 28. And there they abode long time with the diſciples.

[r] 2 Cor. xi. 25. 2 Tim. iii. 11.
[s] 2 Cor. i. 8. & iv. 10.
† Gr. Made diſciples of many. So Mat. xxviii. 19.
[t] Chap. xi. 23. & xiii. 43.
[u] Mat. x. 38. & xvi. 24. Rom. viii. 17. 2 Tim. iii. 12.
[x] Tit. i. 5.
‡ Gr. Choſe them by lifting up of hands.
[y] Chap. xiii. 1, 3.
[z] Chap. xv. 4, 12. & xxi. 19.
[a] 1 Cor. xvi. 9. 2 Cor. ii. 12.

v. 19—28. How fickle is the mind of vain men! how ſoon are they, who have no foundation, carried about with every wind. They who are deified to day, are thus often deteſted to-morrow. It becomes us, if we would have abiding honour, to ſeek that which cometh from God only.

1. The apoſtles are brought into the moſt imminent danger, and Paul ſtoned and left for dead. The Jews, their implacable enemies, followed them from Iconium and Antioch on purpoſe to counteract their labours; and with diabolical malice to prevent, to their utmoſt, the progreſs of the goſpel. And ſoon they found means to perſuade the wavering multitude that theſe men were deceivers, turbulent and ſeditious; and exaſperated them ſo highly that ſeizing Paul, againſt whom they bore the bitтereſt grudge as the chief preacher, they ſtoned him in a popular tumult, and drew him out of the city, ſuppoſing he had been dead. Howbeit, as the diſciples ſtood round about him, lamenting over him, praying he might be reſtored to life, or with an intent to bury him, he roſe up, quickened by miraculous power; and, notwithſtanding the late wounds and bruiſes he had received, he came into the city, ſtrengthened in his body, and not daunted in his mind by all that he had endured. Note, (1.) True diſciples will not forſake their perſecuted miniſters, but own them in the face of every reproach and danger. (2.) God's faithful ſervants, though brought to the gates of the grave, ſhall not die till their work is done.

2. The next day Paul departed with Barnabas for Derbe; and when, as uſual, they had preached the goſpel, and taught, their miniſtry being bleſſed to the converſion of many, they returned back again to the cities of Lyſtra, Iconium, and Antioch, confirming the ſouls of the diſciples, ſettling them on Chriſt the great foundation, that no troubles felt or feared, no careſſes or temptations, might move them away from the hope of the goſpel; and exhorting them to continue in the faith of Jeſus, in the belief of his office, glory, and goſpel, and in the bold and open profeſſion of his name; and ſaying, that we muſt through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God, for which therefore they muſt prepare, not count as if ſome ſtrange thing happened unto them, ſince all that will live godly in Chriſt Jeſus, muſt ſhare this common lot. Note, (1.) They who have received the goſpel-word, have ſtill need of farther confirmation, that they may be built up on their moſt holy faith; and miniſters muſt labour to eſtabliſh the profeſſors, as well as to awaken the careleſs. (2.) Nothing but faith can enable us to overcome the ſnares, the allurements, and diſcouragements of this preſent evil world; they who would ſtand in the evil day, muſt continue to hold faſt on Chriſt. (3.) The way to heaven lies through much tribulation; but let us look to the end, and keep the far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory in view, and then we ſhall count all the ſufferings of the preſent time as light afflictions that are but for a moment.

3. They ordained elders, or preſbyters, in every church, to lead their devotions, miniſter the ſacraments, preach the word, and watch over the flock of God committed to their charge; men of gravity and piety, ſelected from the other diſciples, and judged beſt qualified for the arduous work of the miniſtry; and having prayed with faſting, for the ſupplies of grace and the divine benediction upon them, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed, both the elders and their congregations; begging that the Lord, who had begun the good work, would perfect the ſame; nouriſhing them up in the words of ſound doctrine, and preſerving them unto his everlaſting kingdom. Note, (1.) The work of the miniſtry cannot be undertaken with too great ſolemnity; and they who feel the weight of it, will not fail importunately to ſeek, by prayer, for more than human power, to carry them through. (2.) We may comfortably and confidently commit to the divine keeping, thoſe who have faithfully obeyed the calls of divine grace, for none ſhall pluck them out of the Saviour's hand. (3.) The beſt parting of friends is in prayer to the Lord, mutually commending ourſelves to his care and love.

4. The apoſtles continued their journey to Antioch in Syria, paſſing through Piſidia, till they came to Pamphylia, where they preached the word at Perga, a city of that province, and Attalia another town on the ſea-coaſt, and from thence they ſailed to Antioch, from whence they had been recommended to the grace of God, for the work which they fulfilled; and now were returned from their ſucceſsful expedition, bringing back a full anſwer to the prayers that had been put up at their departure. And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they rehearſed all that God had done with them, aſcribing nothing to themſelves, but giving him the glory to whom alone the praiſe of all was due; and how he had opened a door of faith unto the Gentiles, great multitudes of whom had been converted unto the faith of Jeſus. And there, at Antioch, they abode long time with the diſciples; comforting, eſtabliſhing, ſtrengthening them. Note, (1.) Whatever good is done by our preaching, we muſt remember that all the efficacy proceeds not from us, but from the grace of God. (2.) The way into the kingdom of grace and glory lies through the door of faith, which God alone can open.

CHAP. XV.

Unhappy diviſions here firſt appear in the Chriſtian church, but they are ſoon allayed. Here is, 1. A controverſy raiſed at Antioch by the judaizing teachers, about circumciſing the Gentile converts, and cauſing them to obſerve the ceremonial law. ver. 1, 2. 2. A conſultation had with the church at Jeruſalem about this matter, and the ſending of delegates thither for that purpoſe, ver. 2—5. 3. An account of what paſſed in the ſynod that was convened upon this occaſion, ver. 6. What Peter ſaid, ver. 7—11. What Paul and Barnabas diſcourſed of, ver. 12. And laſtly, what James propoſed for the ſettling of this matter, ver. 13—21. 4. The reſult of this debate, and the circular letter that was written to the Gentile converts, directing them how to govern themſelves with reſpect to the Jews, ver 23—29. 5. The delivering of this determination to the church at Antioch, and the ſatisfaction it gave them, ver. 30—35. 6. A ſecond expedition deſigned by Paul and Barnabas to preach to the Gentiles, in which they quarrelled about their aſſiſtant, and parted upon it, one ſteering one courſe, and the other another, ver. 36—41.

1. AND certain men which came down from Judea, taught the brethren, and ſaid, [a] Except ye be circumciſed [b] after the manner of Moſes, ye cannot be ſaved. 2. When therefore Paul and Barnabas had no ſmall diſſention and diſputation with them, they determined that [c] Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, ſhould go up to Jeruſalem unto the apoſtles and elders about this queſtion. 3. And [d] being brought on their way by the church, they paſſed through Phenice and Samaria, [e] declaring the converſion of the Gentiles: and they cauſed great joy unto all the brethren. 4. And when they were come to Jeruſalem, they were received of the church, and of the apoſtles and elders, and [f] they declared all things that God had done with them. 5. But † there roſe up certain of the ſect of the Phariſees which believed, ſaying, [g] That it was needful to circumciſe them, and to command them to keep the law of Moſes.

[a] John vii. 22. Gal. v. 2. Phil. iii. 2. Col. ii. 8, 11, 16.

[b] Gen. xvii. 10. Lev. xii. 3.

[c] Gal. ii. 1.

[d] Rom. xv. 24. 1 Cor. xvi. 6, 11.

[e] Chap. xiv. 27.

[f] Ver. 12.

† Or, there roſe up, ſaid they, certain.

[g] Ver. 1.

v. 1—5. The peace of that happy ſociety at Antioch, which was the envy of the devil, begins to be interrupted by ſome, who ſowed the ſeeds of controverſy, the bane of the Chriſtian church.

1. Certain men came down from Judea, not ſent by the apoſtles, but inſtigated by their own pride and prejudices, and taught the Gentile brethren, ſaying, Except ye be circumciſed after the manner of Moſes, ye cannot be ſaved; as if their faith in Chriſt and adherence to the goſpel was inſufficient, unleſs they alſo ſubmitted to this diſtinguiſhing ordinance, and the other rites of the ceremonial law. The Jewiſh Chriſtians, it ſeems, themſelves were zealous for the law, (Acts xxi. 20.) and were permitted to obſerve the Jewiſh ritual as a thing in its nature indifferent, and from which the deſtruction of the temple, and the diſſolution of the Jewiſh polity, would ſoon emancipate them: but not ſatisfied with being themſelves indulged in this practice, they wanted to enſlave the conſciences of the Gentile converts under the ſame yoke, and that on peril of their damnation if they rejected it. Note, Men are ſtrangely diſpoſed to make their own opinion and practice the ſtandard for others, and to enforce their fancies and inventions as of eſſential conſequence; liberally denouncing their anathemas, and conſigning to the pit of deſtruction all who will not conform to their mode of thinking and worſhip, and ſubmit their conſciences to their yoke: but when we are making God's word our rule, and, according to our beſt light, following his will, we need little regard theſe raſh denunciations

2. Paul and Barnabas boldly withſtood theſe Judaizing teachers, and diſputed againſt them as the corrupters of genuine Chriſtianity; and when a growing diſſention ſeemed to threaten this flouriſhing church, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, ſhould go up to Jeruſalem unto the apoſtles and elders about this queſtion, that the matter being diſcuſſed in a full aſſembly of all the chief miniſters of the church, the pretenſions of theſe corruptors might be confounded, and the liberty of the Gentiles confirmed.

3. The two great Apoſtles of the Gentiles hereupon departed, being reſpectfully attended part of the way by ſome chief brethren of the church; and as they paſſed through Phenice and Samaria, they cauſed great joy unto all the brethren, declaring the converſion of the Gentiles; for to a faithful ſoul nothing is matter of more pure unfeigned delight, than to hear that others are made partakers of the ſame grace which we have taſted.

4. The church of Jeruſalem, and the Apoſtles Cephas, James, and John, and the elders, or preſbyters, received theſe diſtinguiſhed meſſengers with high reſpect, and expreſſed their full approbation of their conduct, when they heard what they had done, and their ſucceſs among the Gentiles: but certain of the ſect of the Phariſees, which believed in Jeſus as the Meſſiah, and made profeſſion of faith in him, ſtill retained many of their former tenets, and were bigotted to the ceremonial law; they roſe up therefore, inſiſting, that it was needful for them not only to believe in Jeſus, but alſo to be circumciſed, and keep the law, in order to obtain acceptance with God; thus moſt highly derogating from the free grace of God, and the great doctrine of juſtification by faith alone.

6. ¶ And the apoſtles and elders came together for to conſider of this matter. 7. And when there had been much diſputing, Peter roſe up and ſaid unto them, [h] Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago, God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth ſhould hear the word of the goſpel, and believe. 8. And God [i] which knoweth the hearts, bare them witneſs, [k] giving them the holy Ghoſt, even as he did unto us: 9. And [l] put no difference between us and them, [m] purifying their hearts by faith. 10. Now therefore why tempt ye God, to [n] put a yoke upon the neck of the diſciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear? 11. But [o] we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt we ſhall be ſaved even as they. 12. ¶ Then all the multitude kept ſilence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, [p] declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them. 13. ¶ And after they had held their peace, [q] James anſwered, ſaying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me. 14. Simeon hath declared how God at the firſt did viſit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. 15. And to this agree the words of the prophets: as it is written, 16. [r] After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down: and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will ſet it up: 17. That the reſidue of men might ſeek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, ſaith the Lord, who doth all theſe things. 18. Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world. 19. Wherefore [s] my ſentence is, that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God: 20. But that we write unto them, that they abſtain [t] from pollutions of idols, and [u] from fornication, and from things ſtrangled, and [x] from blood. 21. For Moſes of old time hath in every city them that preach him, [y] being read in the ſynagogues every ſabbath-day.

[h] Chap. x. 20. & xi. 12.
[i] 1 Chron. xxviii. 9. Jer. xi. 20. & xvii. 10. Chap. i. 24.
[k] Chap. x. 44.
[l] Chap. x. 28.
[m] Chap. x. 43. 1 Cor. i. 2. 1 Pet. i. 22.
[n] Mat. xxiii. 4. Gal. v. 1.
[o] Gal. ii. 16. Eph. ii. 8. Tit. ii. 11. & iii. 4.
[p] Chap. xiv. 27.
[q] Chap. xii. 17.
[r] Am. ix. 11, 12.
[s] Ver. 28.
[t] Ex. xxxiv. 15. 1 Cor. viii. 1. & x. 20.
[u] 1 Theſ. iv. 3.
[x] Gen. ix. 4. Lev. iii. 17. & vii. 26. & xvii. 14.
[y] Chap. xiii. 15, 27.

v. 6—21. The firſt general council that had yet ſat to decide on the unhappy diſputes which were beginning to ariſe in the church, is here with great ſeriouſneſs aſſembled, to hear, conſider, and determine. After much diſputing on the ſubject, we have,

1. Peter's ſpeech on the occaſion. He had heard what had been ſaid on both ſides of the argument, and therefore, as one of the moſt reſpectable perſonages in that aſſembly, riſes to deliver his opinion.

He reminds them how God had ſent him ſeveral years before to preach the goſpel to Cornelius and the Gentiles who were with him, and had thereby led them by faith to Jeſus Chriſt for life and ſalvation. The ſame gifts had been beſtowed on them, as on the Jewiſh converts, and God had himſelf herein teſtified his acceptance and approbation of them; making no difference between them, purifying their hearts by faith, as juſtified and ſanctified by the blood, the righteouſneſs, and grace of Jeſus, without the leaſt need of circumciſion and the ceremonial obſervances. Since therefore God had ſo evidently decided the matter, it was the higheſt preſumption, and no better than tempting God, arraigning his wiſdom and authority, to pretend a right to counteract what he had done, and repeal what he had determined: and it was a great injury to the Gentile brethren, to put that yoke of ceremonial inſtitutions upon their neck, that had been ſo burthenſome to themſelves and their fathers, and which was now abſolutely uſeleſs, ſince the ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt was alike free to Jew and Gentile, and both were to be ſaved by grace through faith, without the leaſt reſpect to circumciſion, or any legal inſtitutions: We therefore, ſays Peter, expect to be ſaved even as they, and they as freely as we. Note, (1.) The ſalvation of the goſpel is a common ſalvation, free from all terms and conditions whatſoever, beſtowed by grace, and accepted by faith alone. (2.) They who have the real faith of the goſpel, will certainly evidence its purifying efficacy upon their hearts. (3.) All who hold the head Chriſt, and walk in holineſs as Chriſt alſo walked, however in ſome ſentiments they may differ from us, are cordially to be embraced by us as brethren.

2. Paul and Barnabas, inſtead of ten thouſand arguments, related ſimply the miracles and wonders which God had wrought among the Gentiles by them, whilſt all the multitude kept a profound ſilence, liſtening attentively to ſo wonderful and pleaſing a narrative; wherein it evidently appeared, both by the miracles which God enabled them to work, and by the ſucceſs he gave them in the converſion of the Gentiles, that he approved their labours, and bore teſtimony to the acceptance of theſe Gentile converts. What need could there be, that they ſhould be burdened with the works of the law, who had received the Holy Ghoſt by the hearing of faith? (See Gal. iii. 2.)

3. On their cloſing their diſcourſe, James, the laſt ſpeaker in this council, ſums up the debate, and delivers his opinion.

[1.] After a reſpectful addreſs to them, as men of reaſon and conſideration, and brethren in the Lord, he reminds them of what Peter had ſaid, by whoſe preaching firſt God did viſit the Gentiles with the knowledge of his goſpel, and the gifts of his grace, to take out of them a people for his name, to be to the praiſe of his glory.

[2.] He obſerves, that God herein exactly fulfilled his own word in the mouth of his prophets, which had ſo long ago foretold this great event, as it is written, (Amos ix. 11.) After this I will return, and recover the ſcattered remnant of Iſrael, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down, in and by the divine Meſſiah, who, when the houſe of David was reduced to the loweſt ſtate of want and contempt, ſhould ariſe to ſet up that ſpiritual and everlaſting kingdom, of which David's houſe and kingdom were the figures: and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will ſet it up, great and glorious, that the reſidue of men, even the nations who had before been left of God to walk in their own ways, might ſeek after the Lord, ſubmitting to the Meſſiah's ſceptre, and becoming obedient to the goſpel-word; and all the Gentiles, whether proſelytes or idolaters, converted to the faith of Chriſt, upon whom my name is called, as elect veſſels, ſeparated for his glory, ſaith the Lord, who doth all theſe things, whoſe word is faithful, whoſe power alone could effect this wondrous converſion in the heathen world, and who in ſo doing teſtified his acceptance of the Gentile converts.

[3.] He reſolves the matter into God's eternal purpoſe. Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world; what he decreed from eternity he had foretold, and now fulfilled; and they might be fully aſſured, all his counſels were holy, juſt, and good, and therefore to be acquieſced in by them without a moment's heſitation.

[4.] He delivers his opinion concerning what he judges proper to be done on the preſent occaſion. My ſentence is, that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God, by the impoſition of the unneceſſary yoke of legal obſervances on their conſciences; but that, to avoid all offence to the believing brethren among the Jews, and to remove whatever would prevent their communion with the Gentile converts, we write unto them, that they abſtain from the pollution of idols; from eating or drinking any thing offered to idols; and from fornication, and all impure embraces; and from things ſtrangled, and from blood; for as fornication, though ſo common and allowed among the Gentiles, muſt be abſtained from as a moral evil; other things, though indifferent in themſelves, were then needful to be obſerved, in order to promote mutual love and communion between the Jewiſh and Gentile brethren. For as the writings of Moſes, in which theſe things are forbidden, had been of old read every ſabbath-day, and the Jewiſh converts ſtill retained a high veneration for the law, they owed them this indulgence to their long-received uſage in theſe indifferent matters. Note, Great allowances are to be made for the prejudices of education; and therefore in indifferent matters we ſhould ſhow to each other a ſpirit of mutual charity and forbearance, deſiring to pleaſe every man his neighbour for his good to edification.

22. Then pleaſed it the apoſtles and elders, with the whole church, to ſend choſen men of their own company to Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas; namely, Judas ſurnamed [z] Barſabas and Silas, chief men among the brethren: 23. And wrote letters by them after this manner, The apoſtles, and elders, and brethren ſend greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia. 24. Foraſmuch as we have heard, that [a] certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, ſubverting your ſouls, ſaying, Ye muſt be circumciſed, and keep the law; to whom we gave no ſuch commandment: 25. It ſeemed good unto us, being aſſembled with one accord, to ſend choſen men unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul; 26. [b] Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 27. We have ſent therefore Judas and Silas, who ſhall alſo tell you the ſame things by † mouth. 28. For it ſeemed good to the holy Ghoſt, and

[z] Chap. i. 23.
[a] Ver. 1.
[b] Chap. xiii. 50. & xiv. 19.
† Gr. word.

and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than theſe neceſſary things; 29. [c] That ye abſtain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things ſtrangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourſelves, ye ſhall do well. Fare ye well. 30. So when they were diſmiſſed, they came to Antioch: and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epiſtle. 31. Which when they had read, they rejoiced for the † conſolation. 32. And Judas and Silas being prophets alſo themſelves, [d] exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them. 33. And after they had tarried there a ſpace, they were let [e] go in peace from the brethren unto the apoſtles. 34. Notwithſtanding it pleaſed Silas to abide there ſtill. 35. Paul alſo and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others alſo.

[c] Ver. 20. Chap. xxi.
† Or, exhortation.
[d] Chap. xiv. 22.
[e] 1 Cor. xvi. 11. Heb. xi. 31.

v. 22—35. The matter being now brought to a concluſion, and the aſſembly concurring in their approbation of the opinion which James had delivered, we have,

1. The choice of two perſons from the brethren at Jeruſalem, eminent for their gifts and graces, Barſabas and Silas, to accompany Paul and Barnabas to Antioch, with letters containing the decree of the council, both as a teſtimony of reſpect towards their Gentile fellow-Chriſtians, and as helpers to eſtabliſh the work begun among them.

2. The letters themſelves contained,

[1.] A moſt reſpectful addreſs. The apoſtles, and elders, and brethren ſend greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia: they aſſume no authoritative ſtile, nor ſounding titles; but ſtretch out the hand of fellowſhip, giving them the reſult of their conſultations.

[2.] They recite the cauſe on which their council was held, marking with juſt diſapprobation the diſturbers of the church's peace. We have heard, that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, ſubverting your ſouls, ſaying, Ye muſt be circumciſed, and keep the law; to whom we gave no ſuch commandment: they pretended that they acted under the apoſtolic commiſſion and authority, but this is here utterly diſclaimed. Note, (1.) Nothing ſo fatally ſubverts the ſoul, as the inſiſting upon any thing, as neceſſary to our acceptance and juſtification before God, beſides faith only. (2.) Many pretend a miſſion from God and his church, whoſe pretenſions, when examined, are found utterly falſe and deluſive.

[3.] They make honourable mention of the bearers of their epiſtle, whom they with one accord agreed to ſend. It ſeemed good unto us, being aſſembled with one accord, to ſend choſen men unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, for whom they expreſſed their higheſt regard, and teſtified the moſt entire approbation of their conduct; men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; a noble evidence of their approved fidelity. We have ſent therefore Judas and Silas, who, leſt any cavil ſhould be raiſed about the meaning or intention of the contents of our letters, ſhall alſo tell you the ſame things by mouth.

[4.] They plainly determine concerning the diſputed point. It ſeemed good to the Holy Ghoſt, according to his word in the prophets, and the intimations of his will in the converſions alreawrought among the Gentiles by his power; and to us, aſſembled in his name, and under his influence, to lay upon you no greater burden than theſe neceſſary things: That ye abſtain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things ſtrangled, and from fornication. The avoiding fornication is neceſſary for Chriſtians at all times; the other things were merely temporal prohibitions, enjoined for a particular purpoſe, in order to prevent offence, and to remove all cauſe of diſunion between them and their Jewiſh brethren; but theſe were not things of moral and perpetual obligation, but were to ceaſe when, the Jewiſh polity being deſtroyed, all the ceremonial inſtitutions would be at an end.

[5.] They bid them a kind farewel, wiſhing them all proſperity in body and ſoul, and recommending them to ſubmit to their deciſions; not with proud anathemas if they diſobeyed, but with the more apoſtolic language of kind entreaty and affectionate perſuaſion: If ye keep yourſelves from theſe things, ye ſhall do well; it will be to the glory of God, the peace of the church, and the furtherance of the goſpel.

3. The bearers no ſooner arrived, than they aſſembled the multitude, and delivered the epiſtle, who read with pleaſure the determination of the controverſy ſo much to the ſatisfaction of the Gentile brethren: and Judas and Silas being prophets alſo themſelves, endued with eminent gifts of wiſdom and knowledge, exhorted the brethren with many words, to perſevere in the faith and obedience of the goſpel, and confirmed them in the doctrines of truth which they had embraced. Where the goſpel is truly and powerfully preached, the occaſional aſſiſtance of new miniſters is ſtill advantageous, and ſerves to help forward the work of God.

4. After ſome conſiderable ſtay, the meſſengers from the apoſtles were let go in peace, with the thanks of the church for all their kind and uſeful labours, and had the ſatisfaction to ſee peace perfectly re-eſtabliſhed, which could not but be glad news to the brethren at Jeruſalem. Silas however choſe ſtill to continue at Antioch, where Paul and Barnabas, and many others, with great ſucceſs, taught and preached the word of the Lord. Note, Where God opens a great door of uſefulneſs, there a double obligation lies upon his miniſters to improve the opportunity, and to labour more abundantly in the bleſſed work.

36. ¶ And ſome days after Paul ſaid unto Barnabas, Let us go again and viſit our brethren, in every city [f] where we have preached the word of the Lord, and ſee how they do. 37. And Barnabas determined to take with them [g] John, whoſe ſurname was Mark. 38. But Paul thought not good to take him with them, [h] who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work. 39. And the contention was ſo ſharp between them, that they departed aſunder one from the other: and ſo Barnabas took Mark, and ſailed unto Cyprus; 40. And Paul choſe Silas, and departed, [i] being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God. 41. And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches.

[f] Chap. xiii. 4, 13. & xiv. 1, 21.
[g] Chap. xii. 12, 25. & xiii. 5. Col. iv. 10.
[h] Chap. xiii. 13.
[i] Chap. xiv. 26.

v. 36—41. The beſt of men are but men at the beſt, and liable to the ſame paſſions as others. The ſacred hiſtorians generouſly record their own faults, that we ſhould not think of them more highly than we ought to think.

1. The zealous Paul propoſes to his faithful aſſociate Barnabas a ſecond expedition among the Gentiles, and particularly with a view to viſit their brethren in all the places where they had preached the word, to ſee how they ſtood, to communicate a ſecond bleſſing to them, and to exhort, encourage, rebuke, and quicken them according to their ſeveral needs. Note, Thoſe lie eſpecially near a miniſter's heart, to whom, under God, he hath been a ſpiritual father: and if providence removes him for a while from them, he cannot but be anxiouſly concerned for their welfare, and long for their eſtabliſhment.

2. A diſagreement unhappily aroſe between Paul and Barnabas on this occaſion. Barnabas readily conſented to the propoſal, but determined to take his nephew John Mark, partial probably to him on account of his relation. Paul warmly oppoſed it, and would by no means conſent, thinking him unworthy of that honour, who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work, intimidated by the danger, or weary of the fatigue, or diverted by ſome worldly motive from the ſervice of the goſpel. They who have proved themſelves unfaithful, ſhould be tried, ere they are again truſted.

3. The iſſue of the contention was ſo ſharp that they parted. Both were obſtinate, both heated with the diſpute, and, whichever was in the right in the ſubject of the contention, both were, it ſhould ſeem, wrong in the haſty unyielding ſpirit with which it was managed. Note, (1.) Tho' we may ſee good men upon a time unhappily betrayed into a temporary fit of paſſion, we muſt beware not to make their evil a plea in our own excuſe. (2.) Truly wiſe and good men may differ in ſome opinions, ſentiments, and views, and contend too warmly for their own. Let us not be offended thereat; it is the infirmity of this mortal ſtate, where darkneſs and imperfection will ſtill be found. It is reſerved for the felicity of the heavenly ſtate, to be entirely of one heart and one mind.

4. Though they diſputed about a circumſtance of little importance perhaps, (and ſuch hath often bred the ſharpeſt contentions) yet both heartily perſiſted in their former gracious purpoſe; and even their ſeparation was over-ruled for the furtherance of the goſpel. Barnabas took Mark, and ſailed unto Cyprus; and Paul choſe Silas, and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God; which ſeems to intimate, that they thought Paul in the right in refuſing Mark, and favoured him with a particular mark of their approbation. And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches, and eſtabliſhing them in the faith and practice of the goſpel.

Whatever juſt cauſe of diſpleaſure Paul might now have againſt Mark, we find with pleaſure, that afterwards he ſhewed him the moſt cordial regard, and profeſſed the higheſt opinion of him, (2 Tim. iv. 11. Col. iv. 10.) We ſhould learn therefore to judge with much temper and candour, even of thoſe who may have taken a wrong ſtep, leſt their future conduct ſhould make us grieve for the ſeverity with which we treated them: and though they have juſtly deſerved ſharp rebuke, when they again approve their fidelity, and teſtify their repentance, we ſhould forget all that is paſt, give them the right hand of fellowſhip, and truſt and honour them as before.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVI.

This hiſtory henceforward chiefly records the travels, labours, and ſufferings of Paul. Here is, 1. The beginning of his acquaintance with Timothy, and taking him to be his aſſiſtant, ver. 1—3. 2. The viſit he made to the churches for their eſtabliſhment, ver. 4, 5. 3. His call to Macedonia, and his coming to Philippi, with his entertainment there, ver. 6—13. 4. The converſion of Lydia, ver. 14, 15. 5. The caſting of an evil ſpirit out of a damſel, ver. 16—18. 6. The accuſing and abuſing Paul and Silas for it, their impriſonment, and the indignities done them, ver. 19—24. 7. The miraculous converſion of the jailer to the faith of Chriſt, ver. 25—34. 8. The honourable diſcharge of Paul and Silas by the magiſtrates, ver. 35—40.

1. THEN came he to [a] Derbe and Lyſtra: and behold, a certain diſciple was there [b] named Timotheus, [c] the ſon of a certain woman, which was a Jeweſs, and believed; but his father was a Greek: 2. Which was [d] well reported of by the brethren that were at Lyſtra and Iconium. 3. Him would Paul have to go forth with him; and [e] took and circumciſed him, becauſe of the Jews which were in thoſe quarters: for they knew all that his father was a Greek. 4. And as they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, [f] that were ordained by the apoſtles and elders which were at Jeruſalem. 5. And [g] ſo were the churches eſtabliſhed in the faith, and increaſed in number daily.

[a] Chap. xiv. 6.
[b] Rom. xvi. 21. Phil. ii. 19. 1 Theſ. iii. 2.
[c] 2 Tim. i. 5.
[d] Chap. vi. 3.
[e] 1 Cor. ix. 20. Gal. ii. 3.
[f] Chap. xv. 29.
[g] Ibid. 41.

v. 1—5. We have here an account of Paul's travels, and his acquaintance with Timothy, who under his tuition afterwards grew ſo eminent.

1. Paul's firſt viſit was to Derbe and Lyſtra, where the Lord had provided for him an aſſiſtant and companion in his travels, a certain diſciple, a young man named Timothy, whoſe mother was a Jeweſs, his father a Gentile. His exemplary conduct and excellent parts had gained him a great character among the brethren at Lyſtra and Iconium; Paul therefore was deſirous to engage him to go with him, and the zealous youth readily conſenting, he took and circumciſed him; not as neceſſary to ſalvation, or as an obligation on him to obſerve the ceremonial law, that having been ſettled by the apoſtolic decree; but as a matter in itſelf indifferent, and becauſe he knew the prejudices the Jews who believed not would entertain againſt him, becauſe they knew his father was a Greek, and that unleſs he were circumciſed, they never would admit him to preach in any of their ſynagogues, or converſe with him, which might greatly obſtruct the uſefulneſs of his miniſtry. In condeſcention therefore to the prejudices of his countrymen he took this ſtep, and to the Jews became as a Jew, that he might gain the Jews; a proof of his warm affection towards his kinſmen after the fleſh, though perſecuted by them as their inveterate enemy.

2. As they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, that were ordained by the apoſtles and elders which were at Jeruſalem. Though he had for a particular reaſon circumciſed Timothy, he meant not to lay any ſtumbling-block in the way of the Gentile converts thereby, but aſſerted their entire liberty from all the legal inſtitutions, according to the copies of the apoſtolic decree which he delivered to them. And ſo were the churches eſtabliſhed in the faith; in the great doctrines of juſtification by faith alone, and of acceptance with God through Jeſus Chriſt, without any reſpect to circumciſion or the Moſaical ordinances; and increaſed in number daily, the Lord, by the miniſtrations of Paul and his young aſſiſtant, adding to the church ſuch as ſhould be ſaved. And that is the ſupreme joy of the faithful miniſters of Chriſt, and a freſh bond to quicken their zeal and diligence, when Chriſt is pleaſed to make them ſee this travail of their ſoul.

6. Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia, and the region of Galatia, and were forbidden of the holy Ghoſt to preach the word in Aſia, 7. After they were come to Myſia, they aſſayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit ſuffered them not. 8. And they paſſing by Myſia, [h] came down to Troas. 9. And a viſion appeared to Paul in the night: There ſtood [i] a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, ſaying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us. 10. And after he had ſeen the viſion, immediately we endeavoured to go [k] into Macedonia, aſſuredly gathering, that the Lord had called us for to preach the goſpel unto them. 11. Therefore looſing from Troas, we came with a ſtrait courſe to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis: 12. And from thence to Philippi, which is the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a colony: and we were in that city abiding certain days. 13. And on the ſabbath we went out of the city by a river-ſide, where prayer was wont to be made; and we ſat down, and ſpake unto the women which reſorted thither. 14. ¶ And a certain woman named Lydia, a ſeller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, which worſhipped God, heard us: [l] whoſe heart the Lord opened, that ſhe attended unto the things which were ſpoken of Paul. 15. And when ſhe was baptized, and her houſhold, ſhe beſought us, ſaying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my houſe and abide there. And [m] ſhe conſtrained us.

[h] 2 Cor. ii. 12.
[i] Chap. x. 30.
[k] 2 Cor. ii. 13.
[l] Luke xxiv. 45.
[m] Gen. xix. 3. & xxxiii. 11. Judg. xix. 21. Luke xxiv. 29. Heb. xiii. 2.

v. 6—15. We have here,

1. Paul's travels continued through Phrygia and Galatia. He had purpoſed to go on through the proconſular Aſia; but by a ſecret impulſe of the Holy Ghoſt, he was forbid, other work being provided for him. His next remove was to Myſia, a people deſpicable to a proverb; but the grace of Jeſus knows no reſpect of perſons. From thence they had deſigned to go into Bithynia, another province of leſſer Aſia; but the Spirit ſuffered them not, under whoſe guidance they directed all their motions. Therefore paſſing by Myſia, without making any ſtay, they came to Troas, near the place where the ancient city of Troy had ſtood; and here, it is ſuppoſed, Luke, the writer of this hiſtory, joined Paul and his company, as henceforward he uſually ſays, we, as one of thoſe who travelled with the apoſtle.

2. At Troas, the Lord in a viſion directed Paul which way to bend his courſe. An angel, in the garb of a Macedonian, ſtood by him, and intreated him to come over into Macedonia and help them, by his prayers and preaching. Hereupon, aſſuredly concluding this was a divine call to preach the goſpel unto them, he and his fellow-travellers immediately prepared for their voyage, and came to Samothracia, a little iſland lying in the Archipelago, or Ægean Sea; and the next day they arrived at Neapolis, a port on the confines of Macedonia; and continuing their courſe, they reached Philippi, the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a Roman colony, governed by the Roman laws and magiſtrates. Note, (1.) When we ſee an evident call of God to a place, we may go to our work with confidence, aſſuredly gathering that God hath there a people to praiſe him. (2.) They who are ſent on God's work, muſt run at his bidding, and make no delay. (3.) Chief cities uſually afford the greateſt field of uſefulneſs, and the goſpel ſent thither becomes a more general bleſſing.

3. The firſt days of their arrival ſeemed to promiſe but little ſucceſs: they abode there certain days, perhaps unnoticed, and unable to find a door of utterance. There ſeems to have been no ſynagogue of the Jews in this place, but ſome devout women, whether Jews or proſelytes, reſorted to an oratory without the city, near the river ſide, where they uſed to meet for prayer on the ſabbath-day: thither the apoſtle and his fellow-travellers went, and joined their devotions, taking an opportunity to preach to them the goſpel, and lead them to the knowledge of the great ſalvation which is in Jeſus Chriſt.

4. A bleſſing attended their labours. A certain woman named Lydia, a ſeller of purple, either of ſilk or cloth, or the purple dye, a native of Thyatira, a city of Aſia, but who was now ſettled at Philippi, and worſhipped God, as a proſelyte of the gate, heard us with great ſeriouſneſs, whoſe heart the Lord opened by the powerful efficacy of his grace, that ſhe attended unto the things which were ſpoken of Paul, and received the truth, in the light and love of it. And as ſhe made immediate profeſſion of her faith, ſhe was baptized, and her houſhold; whereupon ſhe beſought Paul and his friends, ſaying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, ſeeing ye have received me into your number, ſhew me the confidence you place in me, and come into my houſe and abide there; ſo deſirous was ſhe of teſtifying her gratitude to thoſe from whom ſhe had received ſo great ſpiritual bleſſings, and ſollicitous to enjoy as much as poſſible of their converſation, that ſhe might grow more eſtabliſhed in the truth; and ſhe conſtrained us; unwilling to be burdenſome, they were at firſt backward to accept her invitation; but at laſt, overcome with her importunity, they conſented. Note, (1.) One ſoul turned to God is a great acquiſition, and well worthy to be recorded. (2.) Providence ſometimes brings us far from our native home, with views we little thought of, and ſo orders the place of our abode as to be greatly ſubſervient to the ſalvation of our ſouls. (3.) Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God; they who ſit under a preached goſpel are in the Lord's way. (4.) The heart, by nature, is cloſe ſhut againſt the light of truth by ignorance, blindneſs, prejudice, and error: it is God's almighty power and grace alone which can open a way for the entrance of his goſpel, and make it effectual to the converſion of the ſoul. (5.) They who have received a bleſſing from God's miniſters, and owe to them, under God, their ſouls, think they can never ſufficiently ſhew their gratitude to them for their labours of love. (6.) We cannot but deſire the approbation of thoſe who are eminently good, and wiſh ſo to act, as that they may judge us faithful to the Lord.

16. ¶ And

16. ¶ And it came to paſs, as we went to prayer, a certain damſel, [n] poſſeſſed with a ſpirit of † divination, met us, which brought her maſters [o] much gain by ſoothſaying: 17. The ſame followed Paul and us, and cried, ſaying, Theſe men are the ſervants of the moſt high God, which ſhew unto us the way of ſalvation. 18. And this did ſhe many days. But Paul [p] being grieved, turned and ſaid to the ſpirit, I command thee in the name of Jeſus Chriſt to come out of her. And [q] he came out the ſame hour. 19. ¶ And [r] when her maſters ſaw that the hope of their gains was gone, [s] they caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the ‡ market-place, unto the rulers; 20. And brought them to the magiſtrates, ſaying, Theſe men being Jews, [t] do exceedingly trouble our city, 21. And teach cuſtoms which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to obſerve, being Romans. 22. And the multitude roſe up together againſt them: and the magiſtrates rent off their clothes, and [u] commanded to beat them. 23. And when they had laid many ſtripes upon them, they caſt them into priſon, charging the jailer to keep them ſafely. 24. Who having received ſuch a charge, thruſt them into the inner priſon, and [x] made their feet faſt in the ſtocks.

[n] 1 Sam. xxviii. 7.
† Gr. Python.
[o] Chap. xix. 24.
[p] Mark i. 25, 34.
[q] Mark xvi. 17.
[r] Chap. xix. 25, 26.
[s] 2 Cor. vi. 5.
‡ Or court.
[t] 1 Kings xviii. 17. Chap. xvii. 6.
[u] 2 Cor. xi. 25. 1 Theſ. ii. 2.
[x] Jer. xx. 2.

v. 16—24. A ſingular occurrence ſoon made the preachers of the goſpel more taken notice of.

1. There was a damſel poſſeſſed with a ſpirit of divination; for in theſe times of ignorance and idolatry, the devil uſed many ſuch deluding inſtruments, who pretended to foretel future events, and to return oracular anſwers to thoſe who fooliſhly put their truſt in ſuch jugglers: and as they paid for conſulting them, this maid being reputed of extraordinary ſkill, brought her maſters much gain by her ſoothſaying. And when Paul and his companions went out of the city to their oratory, this damſel for ſeveral days followed them, crying, Theſe men are the ſervants of the moſt high God, which ſhew unto us the way of ſalvation; and this was either a teſtimony extorted by the divine power to leave the men of Philippi more inexcuſable, for rejecting what themſelves deemed to be oracular; or as others ſuggeſt, the devil deſigned to prejudice the cauſe of Chriſt, as if theſe preachers were promoting the ſame intereſts, and influenced by the ſame ſpirit as this ſoothſayer. Note, (1.) It is the honour of miniſters, that they are ſervants of the moſt high God. (2.) There is no way of ſalvation, but that which the goſpel points out to us; without it we muſt for ever lie down in ignorance, guilt, and miſery.

2. Grieved at her continual clamours, and juſtly apprehenſive, leaſt there ſhould ſeem to be a confederacy between them and her; or ſorry that Satan, by her means, ſhould deceive and delude the people of Philippi, Paul turned and ſaid to the ſpirit, I command thee in the name of Jeſus Chriſt, to come out of her, and inſtantly Satan's power was broken, and he came out the ſame hour.

3. Her maſters, highly exaſperated to find all their gains gone, and her ſoothſaying at an end, caught Paul and Silas, the two moſt active perſons; and dragging them violently along to the forum, where the magiſtrates ſat to adminiſter juſtice, preferred a heavy complaint againſt them, covering their private revenge with the pretence of zeal for the public welfare, ſaying, Theſe men being Jews, the refuſe of the earth, and the peſts of ſociety, do exceedingly trouble our city, fomenting riots and diſturbances, and interrupting the peace of the people; and teach cuſtoms which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to obſerve, being Romans; their doctrines and practices being utterly oppoſite to, and ſubverſive of the worſhip of our gods, the manners of our country, and the laws of the empire. Note, (1.) The love of money is the root of all evil. (2.) Revenge and malice often wear the cloak of religious zeal, to conceal their malignity. (3.) They who are the preachers of the goſpel of peace, have often thus been branded as the diſturbers of ſociety, and as the firebrands of diſcord.

4. The giddy multitude, inflamed by a charge ſo invidious, roſe up in a popular tumult, ready to tear them in pieces; and the magiſtrates, without form of trial, ſwimming with the ſtream, rent off their clothes, and commanded the lictors, their officers, to ſcourge them with rods ſeverely, as the moſt infamous malefactors, 1 Theſ. ii. 2. and not content with this cruel treatment, after the many and deep ſtripes they had laid on them, they committed them to the town priſon, ſtrictly charging the jailer to keep them ſafely, that they might not eſcape, whilſt they conſulted what farther to do with them. And he, an inſtrument, ſavage as his maſters could deſire, failed not to execute the charge with abundant ſeverity, thruſting them into the inner priſon, the place allotted to the vileſt criminals; and to prevent all poſſibility of eſcape, as well as to add to the miſeries of theſe innocent ſufferers, he made their feet faſt in the ſtocks. Note, Chriſt's ſervants muſt prepare for ſufferings, and not ſtagger at any reproach which, for his ſake, they may be called to bear.

25. ¶ And at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and ſang praiſes unto God: and the priſoners heard them. 26. [y] And ſuddenly there was a great earthquake, ſo that the foundations of the priſon were ſhaken: and immediately [z] all the doors were opened, and every ones bands were looſed. 27. And the keeper of the priſon awaking out of his ſleep, and ſeeing the priſon doors open, he drew out his ſword, and would have killed himſelf, ſuppoſing that the priſoners had been fled. 28. But Paul cried with a loud voice, ſaying, Do thyſelf no harm; for we are all here. 29. Then he called for a light, and ſprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas: 30. And brought them out, and ſaid, [a] Sirs, what muſt I do to be ſaved? 31. And they ſaid, [b] Believe on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and thou ſhalt be ſaved, and thy houſe. 32. And they ſpake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his houſe. 33. And he took them the ſame hour of the night, and waſhed their ſtripes; and was baptized, he and all his, ſtraightway. 34. And when he had brought them into his houſe, [c] he ſet meat before them, and rejoiced, believing in God with all his houſe.

[y] Chap. iv. 31.
[z] Ibid. v. 19. & xii. 7.
[a] Luke iii. 10. Chap. ii. 37. & ix. 6.
[b] John iii. 16, 36. & vi. 47. 1 John v. 10.
[c] Luke v. 29. & xix. 6.

v. 25—34. The miſery, pain, and wretched condition in which theſe two innocent priſoners might be ſuppoſed to lie, would lead us to expect many a doleful groan; but, wonderful to tell! we find them happier in their filthy priſon, than their perſecutors on beds of down.

1. At midnight Paul and Silas prayed, committing themſelves chearfully to God, and looking up to him for ſtrength to bear whatever more might be laid upon them; remembering, no doubt, their perſecutors, and begging God to forgive them, not forgetting their inhuman jailor; and they not only prayed, but ſang praiſes unto God, rejoicing in their bonds, that they were counted worthy to ſuffer for their maſter's name, and were filled with ſuch divine conſolations as made them forget all the horrors of a priſon, and brought down to that dreary manſion a taſte of heavenly felicity; and the priſoners heard them; ſo loud, ſo hearty were their praiſes, not aſhamed of their maſter's name and ſervice. Note, (1.) Prayer is an eaſe to the heart in every affliction, and joint ſufferers ſhould unite their ſupplications. (2.) Our trials ſhould never untune our hearts for praiſe; in the midſt of all, we have much, very much, for which we ſhould be thankful. (3.) Pſalm-ſinging is a bleſſed goſpel ordinance, and we ſhould never be aſhamed of being heard in our families, though fooliſh and wicked men may ridicule the ſervice.

2. God miraculouſly gives a token of his preſence with them, and of his acceptance of their prayers and praiſes. Suddenly there was a great earthquake, a teſtimony of God's diſpleaſure againſt their perſecutors, and of his appearance on the behalf of his ſuffering miniſters, ſo that the foundations of the priſon were ſhaken, and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were looſed; an intimation to the priſoners, that the goſpel which theſe faithful preachers declared, was deſigned to deliver their ſouls from the more grievous bondage of guilt and corruption.

3. The jailor himſelf becomes a convert.

(1.) Awaked by the terrible ſhock, and ſtarting from his bed, he ſaw with aſtoniſhment the priſon doors wide open, and ſuppoſing all the priſoners fled, for whoſe eſcape his own life muſt pay, in the firſt tranſports of deſpair he drew his ſword, to put an end to his life, in order to prevent a more dreaded public execution.

(2.) Paul, who probably by divine revelation knew the fatal reſolution the jailor was about to take, with a loud voice ſtays his uplifted arm, ſaying, Do thyſelf no harm; for we are all here. Paul and Silas thought not of eſcaping, and the reſt were held by an inviſible power, faſt as the chains which bound them. Note, The goſpel-word is, Do thyſelf no harm; all God's warnings, rebukes, and calls, are purely to reſcue us from the ruin into which we were running, and to ſave us from ſin, the cauſe of all our miſeries.

(3.) The jailor, whoſe conſcience the convictions of ſin had now ſhook more terribly, than the earthquake the priſon's foundations, called for a light, and ſprang in eagerly; and came trembling, under the moſt fearful ſenſe of his dreadful guilt, and fell down before Paul and Silas, with deepeſt reſpect and veneration, and brought them out of the horrid dungeon where they were, and ſaid, Sirs, What muſt I do to be ſaved? He now felt all the wickedneſs of his paſt conduct, particularly his cruel behaviour to theſe meſſengers of God, and confounded at his provocations, eagerly begs their forgiveneſs and direction, how he may obtain pardon at the hands of God. Note, (1.) God's Spirit works in different ways on different perſons; ſome, like Lydia, are gently led to Chriſt; others paſs firſt through the moſt dreadful terrors, ſometimes brought to the gates of deſpair, and even tempted to ſelf-murder; and yet even this works together for their good, in order to make Chriſt more precious to their ſouls. (2.) They who have deſpiſed and ill uſed God's miniſters before, when ſeized by convictions of ſin, will entertain very different apprehenſions of them, and addreſs them with very different language. (3.) To a ſoul convinced of ſin, all other conſiderations are ſwallowed up in that one great concern, What muſt I do to be ſaved?

(4.) Paul and Silas have an immediate anſwer ready for his queſtion. Believe on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and thou ſhalt be ſaved, and thy houſe; the ſalvation which they preached, being free for him, though an idolatrous Gentile and bitter perſecutor; and his family alſo would be admitted to ſhare his bleſſing. And they ſpake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in the houſe, who were aſſembled on this joyful occaſion. Note, (1.) The goſpel propoſes a free ſalvation in Jeſus Chriſt to the chief of ſinners. (2.) Nothing but faith in a Redeemer can bring true peace to a guilty conſcience, or obtain the ſalvation which a ſinner needs. (3.) Maſters of families, who know the Lord themſelves, cannot but be deſirous that all under their roof may ſhare their bleſſings, and be brought with them to the knowledge of the truth.

(5.) Filled now with gratitude and love, the jailor, deeply affected with the bleſſed truths which he heard, took them, and waſhed their ſtripes, to ſupple and eaſe the wounds which their ſevere ſcourging had made in their backs, and was baptized, he and all his, ſtraightway, deſirous to come under the bonds of the covenant with his family, and to make public profeſſion of Chriſtianity. Which done, he brought Paul and Silas into his houſe, and ſet meat before them, to refreſh them, after the fatigues and faſting which they had endured; and rejoiced, believing in God with all his houſe, who rejoiced with him in the ſalvation which they had now embraced, or over all his houſe, going from one room to another in a tranſport of joy. Note, (1.) Believing in Chriſt, is called believing in God, for he is very God; and on his being ſo, our everlaſting hopes depend. (2.) Joy is the happy fruit of faith; they who ſee a reconciled God blotting out all their tranſgreſſions, cannot but rejoice in his ſalvation.

35. And when it was day, the magiſtrates ſent the ſerjeants, ſaying, Let thoſe men go. 36. And the keeper of the priſon told this ſaying to Paul, The magiſtrates have ſent to let you go: now therefore depart, and go in peace. 37. But Paul ſaid unto them, They have beaten us openly uncondemned, [d] being Romans, and have caſt us into priſon; and now do they thruſt us out privily? nay, verily, but let them come themſelves, and fetch us out. 38. And the ſerjeants told theſe words unto the magiſtrates: and they feared when they heard that they were Romans. 39. And they came and beſought them, and brought them out, and [e] deſired them to depart out of the city. 40. And they went out of the priſon, and [f] entred into the houſe of Lydia: and when they had ſeen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

[d] Chap. xxii. 25.

[e] Mat. viii. 34.

[f] Ver. 14.

v. 35—40. We have here,

1. The meſſage of the magiſtrates to theſe priſoners. In the morning, when their paſſion was cooled, they probably reflected upon the illegality of their proceedings; and if they felt the earthquake, this might ſtill more alarm their fears. Therefore they ſent their ſerjeants to the jailor, with orders to diſmiſs the priſoners, willing to huſh up the matter, without farther animadverſion.

2. The jailor, glad to convey this meſſage to his gueſts now, rather than his priſoners, informed them they were at liberty to depart, and adviſes them to haſte away, leaſt perhaps the preſent mind of theſe magiſtrates ſhould change, and he wiſhes that all bleſſings and happineſs may attend them.

3. Paul appears in no haſte to go. His own innocence required vindication; and for the ſake of the diſciples, he meant to aſſert his civil rights and privileges, and therefore bid the ſerjeants carry back this meſſage to their maſters, They have beaten us openly, cruelly and ignominiouſly, tho' uncondemned, without even a form of trial, being Romans, whoſe privileges, as citizens, are not thus inſolently to be trampled upon; and have caſt us into priſon, as if we were the vileſt ſlaves and criminals, and now do they thruſt us out privily? as if we wanted a clandeſtine eſcape, and had broke from priſon? nay, verily, we will accept of our liberty on no ſuch terms; but let them come themſelves, and fetch us out, acknowledging our innocence publickly, removing the reproach they have caſt upon our characters, and taking ſhame to themſelves for their illegal and tyrannical procedure, that they may act more gently for the future. Our civil rights are thus often a barrier againſt the fury of perſecutors: the fear of the law often reſtrains thoſe, who are with-held from injuring us by no fear of the Lord.

4. The magiſtrates, juſtly apprehenſive of the conſequence, if Paul ſhould cite them before the tribunal of their ſuperiors for their illegal proceedings, came very ſubmiſſively, and beſought them not to take advantage of the law againſt them, but to forgive the injuries they had received; and brought them out of the priſon, publickly acknowledging hereby their innocence, and deſired them to depart out of their city, that there might be no farther diſturbance. Thus hath the violence of perſecutors often involved them in proceedings which they were unable to vindicate, and which have at laſt brought ſhame and confuſion upon their own heads.

5. Being thus honourably diſcharged, they went out of the priſon, and entred into the houſe of Lydia, their former hoſteſs; and when they had ſeen the brethren, they comforted them, with an account of God's wondrous appearance for them, and the ſucceſs of the goſpel, even in their priſon; encouraging them therefore to ſtand faſt in the confidence of ſupport under all their trials, and hereupon they departed, to ſpread the goſpel through the other provinces of Greece; leaving behind them a very flouriſhing church, which, from theſe ſmall beginnings, roſe to ſingular eminence.

CHAP. XVII.

Here is a further account of the travels of Paul, and his ſervices and ſufferings for Chriſt. We have him, 1. Preaching and perſecuted at Theſſalonica, another city of Macedonia, ver. 1—9. 2. Preaching at Berea, where he met with an encouraging auditory, but was driven thence alſo by perſecution, ver. 10—15. 3. Diſputing at Athens, the famous univerſity of Greece, ver. 16—21. and the account he gave of natural religion, for the conviction of thoſe that were addicted to polytheiſm and idolatry, and to lead them to the Chriſtian religion, ver. 22—31. together with the ſucceſs of this ſermon, ver. 32, 33, 34.

1. NOW when they had paſſed through Amphipolis, and Apollonia, they came to Theſſalonica, where was a ſynagogue of the Jews. 2. And Paul, as his manner was, [a] went in unto them, and three ſabbath-days reaſoned with them out of the ſcriptures, 3. Opening and alledging, [b] that Chriſt muſt needs have ſuffered, and riſen again from the dead: and [c] that this Jeſus † whom I preach unto you is Chriſt. 4. And [d] ſome of them believed, and conſorted with Paul and Silas: and of [e] the devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few. 5. ¶ But the Jews which believed not, moved with envy, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baſer ſort, and gathered a company, and ſet all the city on an uprore, and aſſaulted the houſe of Jaſon, and ſought to bring them out to the people. 6. And when they found them not, they drew Jaſon, and certain brethren, unto the rulers of the city, crying, Theſe that [f] have turned the world upſide down, are come hither alſo; 7. Whom Jaſon hath received: and theſe all do contrary to the decrees of Ceſar, [g] ſaying, that there is another king, one Jeſus. 8. And they troubled the people, and the rulers of the city, when they heard theſe things. 9. And when they had taken ſecurity of Jaſon, and of the other, they let them go.

[a] Luke iv. 16.

[b] Luke xxiv. 26, 46.

[c] Chap. xviii. 28.

† Or whom, ſaid he, I preach.

[d] Chap. xxviii. 24.

[e] Ver. 17.

[f] 1 Kings xviii. 17. Chap. xvi. 20.

[g] Luke xxiii. 2. John xix. 12.

v. 1—9. As the ſtile of this chapter and the following changes from we to they, it hath been conjectured that Luke ſtaid at Philippi till Paul returned thither, chap. xx. 5, 6. His farther travels are here recorded.

1. He, with his companions, Silas and Timothy, paſſed through Amphipolis and Apollonia; whether he preached in either of theſe places, is not ſaid; his rout was directed probably under a divine impulſe to Theſſalonica, the metropolis of Macedonia. Not diſcouraged by his ill uſage at Philippi, he was bold in his God, to ſpeak the goſpel unto them alſo, 1 Theſ. ii. 2. and as his manner was, having found there a ſynagogue of Jews, he went in unto them, to make them the firſt tender of the goſpel word. Three ſabbath-days ſucceſſively he reaſoned with them out of the ſcriptures; and as they admitted the ſacred authority of Moſes and the prophets, he appealed to their writings, in proof of the doctrines which he advanced, opening their ſcope and intention; and particularly by the texts which related to the Meſſiah, alledging from them, that Chriſt, far from being this temporal king and earthly conqueror, which they expected, muſt needs have ſuffered, in order to obtain ſpiritual and eternal redemption for his people, and muſt have riſen again from the dead, in proof of his having compleated the work which he had undertaken; evidently proving from the ſcriptures, that theſe things muſt be accompliſhed in the Meſſiah; and that this Jeſus whom I preach unto you, is Chriſt, in whom all the prophecies concerning the Meſſiah were fulfilled, and in no other; and that therefore this muſt be he that ſhould come, nor muſt they look for another.

2. His preaching was powerful and convincing, and the ſpirit of truth ſet it home to the conſciences of many of his hearers. Some of them, who were Jews, believed, and made immediate profeſſion of the truth which they had embraced; they conſorted with Paul and Silas, as caſting in their lot with them, and ready to ſhare their weal and woe; and of the devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few. Thus the foundations were laid of a moſt flouriſhing church; multitudes of Gentiles, as well as proſelytes, being converted by the great apoſtles' labours, 1 Theſ. i. 9.

3. No where could they find reſt from the malice of their inveterate enemies. The Jews which believed not, moved with envy at the ſucceſs of Paul's preaching, and the reſpect paid to him by the Gentiles, as well as by many of their own ſynagogue, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baſer ſort, and gathered a company, a profligate mob, the ſcum of the earth; and by theſe they ſet all the city in an uproar, raiſing a riot againſt the preachers of the goſpel, and aſſaulted the houſe of Jaſon where Paul and his companions lodged, and ſought to bring them out to the people, that they might expoſe them to the exaſperated populace. And when they found them not, they having prudently withdrawn for their ſecurity, they drew Jaſon, and certain brethren, who were at his houſe, unto the rulers of the city, crying, Theſe that have turned the world upſide down, are come hither alſo, ſpreading their peſtilential errors, to the deſtruction of all peace and good neighbourhood, and ſowing the ſeeds of diſcord and ſedition, to the ruin of the ſtate, whom Jaſon hath received into his houſe, countenanced and abetted. And theſe all do contrary to the decrees of Ceſar, and evidently ſhew their diſaffection and diſloyalty to his government, ſaying, that there is another king, one Jeſus, who is the univerſal Lord of all, to whom every knee muſt bow, in oppoſition to Ceſar our only lord and emperor. And they troubled the people and rulers of the city when they heard theſe things, leſt ſome rebellion was really meditating, or leſt the jealous emperor Claudius ſhould entertain ſuſpicions of their negligence, however innocent they knew the apoſtles to be, and however ſatisfied they were of the injuſtice of the accuſation. Note, (1.) They who are the enemies and diſturbers of the people of God, are uſually the vileſt of mankind, abandoned profligates, loſt to all ſenſe of juſtice and virtue. (2.) If men offend, the magiſtrates are to judge; but to make the rabble judges and executioners, is to place madneſs on the ſeat of juſtice. (3.) It hath been a common accuſation, that the goſpel turns the world upſide down, and creates all diſturbances; but they who bring the charge, will not ſee that they themſelves are the troublers, and that their own paſſions and perverſeneſs occaſions the very evils of which they complain. (4.) The kingdom of Jeſus is far from interfering with the civil government; nay, it is one eſſential part of it to be ſubmiſſive to the powers that be; ſo malicious is the accuſation of thoſe, who would inſinuate its dangerous tendency to the peace of kingdoms.

4. The magiſtrates, on enquiry, finding no ground for the accuſation, diſcharged Jaſon and his friends, on ſecurity taken for their appearance, if required. And thus ended this threatning affair, through the moderation of the rulers, without any farther ill conſequence.

10. ¶ And [h] the brethren immediately ſent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea: who coming thither, went into the ſynagogue of the Jews. 11. Theſe were more noble than thoſe in Theſſalonica, in that they received the word with all readineſs of mind, and [i] ſearched the ſcriptures daily, whether thoſe things were ſo. 12. Therefore many of them believed: alſo of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men not a few. 13. But when the Jews of Theſſalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of Paul at Berea, they came thither alſo, and ſtirred up the people. 14. And [k] then immediately the brethren ſent away Paul, to go as it were to the ſea: but Silas and Timotheus abode there ſtill. 15. And they that conducted Paul, brought him unto Athens: and [l] receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timotheus, for to come to him with all ſpeed, they departed.

[h] Chap. ix. 25.

[i] Iſa. xxxiv. 16. Luke xvi. 29. John v. 39.

[k] Mat. x. 23. Chap. xiv. 6.

[l] Chap. xviii. 5.

v. 10—15. Though to avoid the preſent ſtorm, Paul and his companions were obliged to fly from Theſſalonica, the Lord had work for them to do elſewhere.

1. The brethren ſent them away by night unto Berea, to conceal them from the fury of their perſecutors; and no ſooner were they arrived, than they took the firſt opportunity of going into the ſynagogue of the Jews, to preach the goſpel to them, evilly entreated, as they had ſo lately been by them at Philippi and Theſſalonica. True charity is never weary of well doing, nor tired out with repeated provocations.

2. Theſe Jews of Berea were more noble than thoſe of Theſſalonica, freer from prejudices, more candid enquirers after truth, of more enlarged ſentiments, and ready to give a fair hearing to thoſe who differed from them in opinion; and therefore they received the word with all readineſs of mind, embracing it moſt chearfully, as ſoon as they were convinced of the truth; and not taking the matter upon truſt, but they ſearched the ſcriptures daily, whether theſe things were ſo; comparing diligently Paul's preaching with the ſcriptures to which he appealed, and examining carefully the paſſages which he explained, that they might comprehend their genuine meaning. Note, (1.) The doctrines of the goſpel fear no ſcrutiny; we wiſh for nothing more, than that our hearers would ſeriouſly examine whether theſe things are ſo. (2.) Searching the ſcriptures ſhould be our daily buſineſs and delight; and their minds will be filled with noble and exalted ſentiments and principles, who follow in ſimplicity theſe ſacred oracles.

3. Great was the effect of Paul's preaching, on minds ſo diſpoſed to examine candidly into what they heard. Many of the Jews believed: alſo of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men not a few.

4. The reſtleſs malice of the Jews will not ſuffer the apoſtle to reſt in peace in any place. Hearing of the ſucceſs of the word of God at Berea, they came thither alſo, and ſtirred up the people, uſing every calumny to incenſe the mob againſt them.

5. The brethren at Berea knowing that againſt Paul the malice of the Jews was principally levelled, ſent him away, as it were unto the ſea, to prevent farther ſearch. But Silas and Timotheus abode ſtill at Berea, to confirm the diſciples, and carry on the work of God.

6. Paul, with thoſe who accompanied him, took the road to Athens, the moſt renowned univerſity of Greece; and when the brethren returned, he ſent orders to Silas and Timothy to follow him ſpeedily.

16. ¶ Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, [m] his ſpirit was ſtirred in him, when he ſaw the city wholly given to idolatry. 17. Therefore diſputed he in the ſynagogue with the Jews, and with [n] the devout perſons, and in the market daily with them that met with him. 18. Then certain philoſophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoics, encountred him: and ſome ſaid, What will this babbler ſay? other ſome, He ſeemeth to be a ſetter forth of ſtrange gods: becauſe he preached unto them Jeſus, and the reſurrection. 19. And they took him, and brought him to † Areopagus, ſaying, May we know what this new doctrine whereof thou ſpeakeſt is? 20. For thou bringeſt certain ſtrange things to our ears: we would know therefore what theſe things mean. 21. (For all the Athenians and ſtrangers which were there, ſpent their time in nothing elſe, but either to tell or to hear ſome new thing.

[m] 2 Pet. ii. 8.

[n] Ver. 4.

† Or Mars-hill. Ver. 22. It was the higheſt court in Athens.

v. 16—21. While Paul waited at Athens for the arrival of his fellow-labourers, we are told,

1. With what grief and indignation he beheld the idolatry of the inhabitants, and what zeal burned in his boſom, on ſeeing theſe abominations. Unable, therefore, to contain any longer, he entered the ſynagogue; beginning, as uſual, with the Jews and devout proſelytes, diſputing mildly with them, and anſwering all their objections againſt that Meſſiah which he preached unto them: and not reſting there, he daily talked with thoſe he met in the places of public concourſe, remonſtrating againſt their abſurd idolatry, and ſeeking to turn them from theſe ſtocks and ſtones which they worſhipped, to the ſervice of the living God. Note, When we have Chriſt's cauſe at heart, we ſhall be ready to ſpeak a word for him in all companies, and have his intereſts conſtantly uppermoſt.

2. The philoſophers, with which this ſeat of Grecian literature abounded, could not ſilently paſs by, unnoticed, this zealous diſputant; and therefore ſome of the Stoics and Epicureans, their two moſt famed ſects, though in opinions utterly oppoſite, united their forces againſt him. Some of them with infinite contempt ſaid, What will this babbler ſay? prating at this ſtrange rate: others, with indignation at his attempt to introduce what they thought new deities, ſaid, He ſeemeth to be a ſetter forth of ſtrange gods, or foreign demons, becauſe he preached unto them Jeſus, and the reſurrection (αναςασιν) which they took to be a goddeſs, according to their dark and blinded apprehenſions.

3. In order to hear at large what he had to ſay for himſelf, they invited him to Areopagus, a hill dedicated to Mars, where the ſupreme court of the judges ſat, who determined all matters, civil or religious; and a number of philoſophers being aſſembled, they ſaid, May we know what this new doctrine whereof thou ſpeakeſt is? For thou bringeſt certain ſtrange things unto our ears: we would know therefore what theſe things mean. Among all the volumes that crowded their libraries, the writings of Moſes and the prophets, probably, were unknown to them: and ſince their profeſſed reſearch was after truth, they deſired, if, like the myſteries of their gods, no ſecreſy was enjoined, that they might hear a full and plain diſcuſſion of the doctrine which he maintained and inculcated. And in this matter, curioſity ſeems to have prompted them more than any real deſire of being informed. It being the character of the Athenians in general, that they, and the ſtrangers who reſorted thither, ſpent their time in nothing elſe, but either to tell or to hear ſome new thing. Note, It is a miſerable abuſe of precious time, thus to ſpend it in gaping after news and novelty; and inſtead of real wiſdom, can only produce ſuperficial talkativeneſs.

22. ¶ Then ſtood Paul in the midſt of Mars-hill, and ſaid, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too ſuperſtitious. 23. For as I paſſed by, and beheld † your devotions, I found an altar with this inſcription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worſhip, him declare I unto you. 24. [o] God that made the world, and all things therein, ſeeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, [p] dwelleth not in temples made with hands: 25. Neither is worſhipped with men's hands, [q] as though he needed any thing, ſeeing [r] he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; 26. And hath made of one blood, all nations of men, for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and [s] the bounds of their habitation: 27. [t] That they ſhould ſeek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, [u] though he be not far from every one of us: 28. For [x] in him we live, and move, and have our being; [y] as certain alſo of your own poets have ſaid, For we are alſo his offspring. 29. Foraſmuch then as we are the offspring of God, [z] we ought not to think that the God-head is like unto gold, or ſilver, or ſtone graven by art and man's device. 30. And [a] the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now [b] commandeth all men every where to repent: 31. Becauſe he hath appointed a day in the which [c] he will judge the world in righteouſneſs, by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given aſſurance unto all men, in that [d] he hath raiſed him from the dead.

† Or the gods that you worſhip.
2 Theſ. ii. 4.
o Chap. xiv. 15.
p Chap. vii. 48.
q Pſ. l. 8.
r Gen. ii. 7. Job xii. 10. & xxxiii. 4. Iſa. xlii. 5.
s Deut. xxxii. 8.
t Rom. i. 20.
u Chap. xiv. 17.
x Col. i. 17. Heb. i. 3.
y Tit. i. 12.
z Iſa. xl. 18.
a Chap. xiv. 16. Eph. iii. 5. 1 Pet. i. 14.
b Luke xxiv. 47.
c John v. 22. Chap. x. 42. Rom. ii. 16. 2 Tim. iv. 1.
d Chap. ii. 24.

v. 22—31. Never was diſcourſe more admirably ſuited to the auditory, than this. Having now to do, not with Jews who admitted revelation, but with idolatrous philoſophers, who, amidſt their innumerable deities, were without God in the world, the apoſtle ſets him to lead them to the knowledge of Him, whom they ignorantly worſhipped.

1. In the midſt of a numerous audience of ſenators, philoſophers, and others, who deſired to hear what he had to ſay, he begins with a general remark, which he had made during his abode among them; Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too ſuperſtitious (δεισιδαιμονεστερους) more addicted to the worſhip of gods than other people; which he mentions, not perhaps with a view immediately to upbraid them with it, as their crime, but to engage their attention to his diſcourſe, as perſons of more than ordinary profeſſed devotion.

2. He informs them, that he had particularly obſerved on one of their altars, this inſcription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD, which though a confeſſion of their ignorance, intimated a deſire to know and worſhip him; and ſome have thought that this altar was dedicated to the God of Iſrael, whoſe name Jehovah, the Jews never pronounced.

3. He tells them that this God whom they ignorantly worſhipped, him declared he unto them. Not as a ſetter forth of ſtrange gods, to add to their number other deities, nor of new gods; but to bring them to the knowledge of him, who was the only living and true God, and to direct them how he was acceptably to be ſerved; whom they, with blind devotion adored, though unknown. So prudently and perſuaſively does he introduce and urge the glorious truths he had to deliver, even from the idolatry which he condemned.

4. He deſcribes the God he preached as the great Creator, Governor, and Lord of all; the author of life and being to every creature, and who filleth heaven and earth with his preſence. He made the world, and all things therein, which ſprung not from a fortuitious concourſe of atoms, nor ſubſiſted from eternity, as the different ſects of philoſophers taught, but was the work of the Almighty, and ſpoken into being at his word; who, ſeeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, the author and owner of all, dwelleth not in temples made with hands, nor can his immenſity be circumſcribed by theſe narrow bounds: neither is worſhipped, or ſerved with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, images, ſhrines, temples, or offerings, to increaſe his felicity; who is in himſelf infinitely bleſſed and glorious, and incapable of receiving any addition to his ſelf-ſufficient happineſs; ſeeing all that the creature poſſeſſes comes from him; for he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; their being, with all the ſupports and comforts of it, they receive from him, but can add nothing to him: and hath made of one blood, all nations of men, for to dwell on all the face of the earth, who are originally deſcended from the ſame pair, which ſhould ſtain the pride of pedigree, and teach us to love as brethren; and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitations, having fixed in his eternal purpoſe the various events, and the periods of time in which each ſhould happen; appointing to nations and individuals their place and abode on this habitable globe. And in all the diſpenſations of his providence, the end he propoſes is, that they ſhould ſeek the Lord, engaged by all the kindneſs and bounties of his providential hand, if haply, amidſt the darkneſs, blindneſs, and ignorance of their fallen minds, they might feel after him, and find him, groping as the blind, through the creatures, and riſing from the conſideration of the viſible objects around them, to the knowledge of his eternal power and godhead: though he be not far from every one of us, filling heaven and earth with his preſence, and exerting in every place his perpetual agency, for in him we live, and move, and have our being; brought into being by his power, ſupported by his providence, and preſerved by his care; as certain alſo of your own poets have ſaid, particularly Aratus, For we are his offspring. Note, (1.) He who gave us our being, has a full right to diſpoſe of us according to the good pleaſure of his will: to murmur at our lot, is to rebel againſt his providence. (2.) Our times are in God's hand, the number of our days is with him, he hath appointed us our bounds, which we cannot paſs. (3.) Though God hath revealed enough of his glory to leave the world without excuſe, yet ſuch is the blindneſs of fallen man, that the wiſeſt of men knew not God, nor ever would have known him, but for the fooliſhneſs of preaching, even that preaching, which the wiſdom of this world ſtill brands as folly. (4.) We can never enough be thankful for that bleſſed book of God that teaches more ſubſtantial wiſdom in one page, yea, in one line, than is contained in all the volumes of poets and philoſophers.

4. As the conſequence of the doctrine which he advanced, he infers the abſurdity of idolatry, and exhorts them to turn unto the living God. Foraſmuch then as we are the offspring of God, created by him, and in his image, we ought not to put ſo groſs an affront upon him, as to think that the godhead is like unto gold or ſilver, or ſtone graven by art and man's device, however rich the materials, or exquiſite the workmanſhip. And the times of this ignorance God winked at, with wondrous patience and long-ſuffering bearing with theſe abominations, and leaving the Gentiles as neglected, without the light of revelation; but now, in the riches of his grace, overlooking all that is paſt, he is pleaſed to make a revelation of himſelf, and his deſigns to the world in general, and commandeth all men every where to repent; engaging them thereunto by the moſt engaging promiſes of pardon and acceptance through a Redeemer, and warning them by all the awful judgments which will deſcend on the heads of thoſe who perſiſt in their impenitence and idolatry, becauſe he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteouſneſs, by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given aſſurance unto all men, in that he hath raiſed him from the dead. The day is fixed in the eternal counſels; the judgment will be impartial and ſtrict, from the fulleſt knowledge of the characters of men; the perſon is appointed to whom all judgment is committed; his reſurrection from the dead gives the fulleſt aſſurance to all who will enquire into the evidence of the fact, with its connections, of God's approbation of him, and his appointment to this high office: and as there can be no exception to his ſentence, there lies no appeal from his bar. An awful ſcene, which we cannot too often place before us, and under which our daily conduct ſhould be influenced, that we may be found of him in peace at that day.

32. ¶ And when they heard of the reſurrection of the dead, ſome mocked: and others ſaid, [e] We will hear thee again of this matter. 33. So Paul departed from among them. 34. Howbeit, certain men clave unto him, and believed: among the which was Dionyſius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

e Chap. xxiv. 25.

v. 32—34. We have here an account of the effects of Paul's preaching to this philoſophic audience.

1. Some ridiculed his ſtrange notions, and on the mention of the reſurrection of the dead, ſo contrary to the maxims of their philoſophy, they mocked at the abſurdity of ſuch an aſſertion; whilſt others, deferring to determine upon the matter for the preſent, promiſed to give it a ſecond hearing at their leiſure. Note, (1.) We are not to think the worſe of the ſacred truths of God, becauſe profane philoſophers or wits ridicule, and make a jeſt of them. (2.) They who put off the concerns of their ſouls, which demand preſent attention, to ſome future day, uſually find ſomething elſe conſtantly to engage them, till it is too late.

2. The apoſtle's words were not however wholly ineffectual. Though the generality perſiſted in their ſcientific ignorance and philoſophic pride, yet when Paul departed, and the aſſembly broke up, certain men clave unto him; immediately commencing a connection with him, and believed that goſpel which he preached unto them; among the which was Dionyſius the Areopagite, a member of the ſupreme court of judicature before whom Paul appeared; and a woman of note and diſtinction, named Damaris; and others with them, who by the power of divine grace were effectually turned from idols to ſerve the living and true God.

CHAP. XVIII.

In this chapter we have, 1. Paul's coming to Corinth, his private converſe with Aquila and Priſcilla, and his public reaſonings with the Jews, from whom, when they rejected him, he turned to the Gentiles, ver. 1—6. 2. The great ſucceſs of his miniſtry there, and the encouragement Chriſt gave him in a viſion to continue his labours there, ver. 7—11. 3. The moleſtations which after ſome time he met with there from the Jews, but Gallio the Roman gover refuſed to intermeddle in the cauſe, ver. 12—17. 4. The progreſs Paul made through many countries, after he had continued long at Corinth, for the edifying and watering of the churches which he had founded and planted, in which circuit he made a ſhort viſit to Jeruſalem, ver. 18—23. 5. An account of Apollos's improvement in knowledge, and of his uſefulneſs in the church, ver. 24—28.

1. AFTER theſe things, Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth; 2. And found a certain Jew named [a] Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priſcilla (becauſe that Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome) and came unto them. 3. And becauſe he was of the ſame craft, he abode with them, and [b] wrought (for by their occupation they were tent-makers.) 4. And he reaſoned in the ſynagogue every ſabbath, and perſuaded the Jews, and the Greeks. 5. And [c] when Silas and Timotheus were come from Macedonia, Paul [d] was preſſed in ſpirit, and teſtified to the Jews, that Jeſus was Chriſt. 6. And [e] when they oppoſed themſelves, and blaſphemed, [f] he ſhook his raiment, and ſaid unto them, [g] Your blood be upon your own heads; [h] I am clean: [i] from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles.

[a] Rom. xvi. 3 1 Cor. xvi. 19.
[b] Chap. xx. 34. 1 Cor. iv. 12. 1 Theſ. ii. 9. 2 Theſ. iii. 8.
[c] Chap. xvii. 14, 15.
[d] Job xxxii. 18.
[e] Chap. xiii. 45. 1 Pet. iv. 4.
[f] Neh. v. 13. Mat. x. 14. Chap. xiii. 51.
[g] 2 Sam. i. 16. Ezek. xxxiii. 4.
[h] Ezek. iii. 18, 19. & xxxiii. 9. Chap. xx. 26.
[i] Chap. xiii. 46. & xxviii. 28.

v. 1—6. At Athens Paul ſeems to have made no long ſtay. Probably the pride of philoſophy promiſed little ſucceſs to the goſpel which he preached. He therefore next viſited Corinth, a city famous through all Greece for trade and opulence.

1. The apoſtle, unwilling to be burdenſome for a maintenance, highly as he was intitled to the moſt liberal proviſion, worked for bread at his trade of tent-making; all the Jewiſh ſtudents being brought up to ſome handicraft buſineſs. Aquila, a converted Jew, with his wife Priſcilla, who were of this occupation, being baniſhed from Rome, with all the other Jews, by the jealous emperor Claudius, had ſettled at Corinth. To them, whom he found excellent people, and deeply verſed in the things of God, he applied for work, and diſdained not to labour for a ſubſiſtence. A noble inſtance of that diſintereſted zeal which burned in his boſom, and made him willing to undergo any hardſhip, to prevent the leaſt prejudice which might ariſe, however unreaſonably, againſt the goſpel that he preached! Note, Thoſe who are ſeeking a ſervice would do well to ſettle with thoſe from whom they are likely to reap good to their ſouls.

2. Whilſt he laboured ſix days for a maintenance, every ſabbath, with indefatigable diligence and zeal, he viſited the ſynagogue, where he reaſoned with the Jews and Grecian proſelytes, proving from the Scriptures the doctrines which he preached with unanſwerable arguments, and ſilencing all their objections; and perſuaded them to embrace the ſalvation which was in Chriſt Jeſus: and, with reſpect to many, not without ſucceſs. And being ſtill more animated by the coming of Silas and Timothy, who brought him the glad tidings of the eſtabliſhment and increaſe of the churches which he had planted, he urged with greater warmth and earneſtneſs the grand truth, that Jeſus is the Chriſt, the promiſed Meſſiah, and that there was no ſalvation out of him; grieved to behold the obſtinate infidelity of the Jews, and mightily conſtrained with love towards them, and deſire after their converſion. Note, A true zeal for Jeſus, and love for immortal ſouls, will give warmth, energy, and ſpirit to our diſcourſes.

3. When he found all his labours for them rejected with ſcorn, and returned with reviling; that they oppoſed with determined obſtinacy what they could not anſwer, and blaſphemed that divine Redeemer whom he preached unto them; with juſt indignation he ſhook his raiment, and, abandoning them to their wilful impenitence, ſaid unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean; having given you ſolemn warning, and laboured to reſcue you from that guilt and ruin which ye are terribly and ſurely bringing upon your ſouls: from henceforth, ſince all my words are ineffectual, and rejected by you, I will go unto the Gentiles; not doubting but they will give the goſpel word a more welcome reception. Note, (1.) They who wilfully oppoſe the goſpel, exaſperated, inſtead of convinced, go on often to add blaſphemy to impenitence. (2.) It is a comfort to a faithful miniſter at leaſt to be conſcious that he is free from the blood of all men. (3.) Woe unto thoſe againſt whom the very miniſters of grace ſhall riſe up in judgment to accuſe and condemn them.

7. ¶ And he departed thence, and entred into a certain man's houſe, named Juſtus, one that worſhipped God, whoſe houſe joined hard to the ſynagogue. 8. [k] And Criſpus the chief ruler of the ſynagogue believed on the Lord with all his houſe: and many of the Corinthians, hearing, believed, and were baptized. 9. Then [l] ſpake the Lord to Paul in the night by a viſion, Be not afraid, but [m] ſpeak, and hold not thy peace: 10. For [n] I am with thee, and [o] no man ſhall ſet on thee to hurt thee: for I have much people in this city. 11. And he † continued there a year and ſix months, teaching the word of God among them.

[k] 1 Cor. i. 14.
[l] Chap. xxiii. 11.
[m] Iſa. lxii. 1.
[n] Mat. xxviii. 20.
[o] Jer. i. 19.
† Gr. Sat.

v. 7—11. Having ſolemnly warned the Jews of the danger and ruin which would be the conſequence of their impenitence, he departed.

1. From the ſynagogue he went to the houſe adjoining, which belonged to one named Juſtus, a proſelyte; whither thoſe who deſired to hear him might reſort. And though the generality of the Jews rejected his preaching, yet he ſaw rich fruits of his labours; Criſpus, the ruler of the ſynagogue, being converted to the faith, with all his houſe: and a great number of the Corinthians, hearing the goſpel, believed and were baptiſed. Note, (1.) Though ſome reject the goſpel, it is a great comfort to a miniſter's ſoul to ſee others not only hear it with attention, but embrace it with affection. (2.) Not many nobles and rulers are called; yet here and there one, to leave the reſt at leaſt inexcuſeable.

2. Amidſt all Paul's diſcouragements the Lord is with him to ſupport and comfort him, and by a viſion in the night animates him boldly to perſevere, ſaying, Be not afraid of the oppoſition and malice of the Jews; but ſpeak, and hold not thy peace; with all diligence, fidelity, and zeal, declaring the goſpel, deterred by no menaces or oppoſition of the moſt malignant perſecutors; for I am with thee, to ſupport, protect, and proſper thee in all thy labours; and no man ſhall ſet on thee to hurt thee, reſtrained by a ſecret over-ruling hand from injuring your perſon, or ſilencing your miniſtry; for I have much people in this city, whom I have ordained unto eternal life, and who ſhall be called and converted by thy miniſtry. Note, (1.) If God be with us and for us, we need not be intimidated by the many or the mighty who may riſe up againſt us. (2.) They who are labouring for Chriſt, though they be not viſited with night viſions, ſhall find internal divine ſupports miniſtered to them amidſt all their tribulations. (3.) Where God hath a people, he will ſend to them his goſpel, and all that the Father hath given his Son ſhall come unto him.

3. Encouraged by this declaration, the apoſtle continued at Corinth a year and ſix months, with unwearied diligence and fervent zeal preaching the goſpel, and ſeeing numbers daily added to the church of ſuch as ſhould be ſaved, God opening to him a great door and effectual, though there were many adverſaries, 1 Cor. xvi. 9.

12. ¶ And when Gallio was the deputy of Achaia, the Jews made inſurrection with one accord againſt Paul, and brought him to the judgment-ſeat, 13. Saying, This fellow perſuadeth men to worſhip God contrary to the law. 14. And when Paul was now about to open his mouth, Gallio ſaid unto the Jews, [p] If it were a matter of wrong or wicked lewdneſs, O ye Jews, reaſon would that I ſhould bear with you: 15. But if it be a queſtion of words and names, and of your law, look ye to it; for I will be no judge of ſuch matters. 16. And he drave them from the judgment-ſeat. 17. Then all the Greeks took [q] Soſthenes, the chief ruler of the ſynagogue, and beat him before the judgment-ſeat: and Gallio [r] cared for none of thoſe things.

[p] Chap. xxv. 11.
[q] 1 Cor. i. 1.
[r] Am. vi. 6.

v. 12—17. Though God had promiſed to ſave the apoſtle from hurt, he doth not engage to exempt him from the malicious efforts of his enemies.

1. The Jews, as they had elſewhere done, raiſed an inſurrection, and in a popular tumult dragged Paul before Gallio the proconſul, who was the brother of the famous Seneca, and is ſaid to have been of the moſt ſweet and gentle diſpoſition, and univerſally beloved. Their accuſation againſt the apoſtle was, that this fellow, ſo contemptuouſly do they ſpeak of him, perſuadeth men to worſhip God contrary to the law; and becauſe they were allowed the exerciſe of ther religion by the edicts of the Roman emperor, they pretend it was highly criminal for any Jew to worſhip God any other way than they did.

2. Paul was juſt going to make his defence, and ſhew the falſehood as well as malignity of the accuſation. But Gallio, underſtanding it was a merely religious matter, refuſed to interfere, and diſmiſſed the cauſe, ſaying, If it were a matter of wrong, or wicked lewdneſs, where any injury had been done, or theft or immorality committed, O ye Jews, reaſon were that I ſhould bear with you, and do you juſtice, indecently clamorous as you are: but if it be a queſtion of names and of your law, whether Jeſus, whom Paul preaches, be your Meſſiah, and what obligation there lies on him, or thoſe whom he teaches, to worſhip God after the law of Moſes, look ye to it, and end ſuch diſputes among yourſelves, for I will be no judge of ſuch matters, it is no concern to me how any man worſhips God, whilſt he approves himſelf a good ſubject, and diſturbs not the peace of the ſtate. And he drave them from the judgment-ſeat, expreſſing his diſpleaſure at their troubleſome and impertinent clamours. Note, Magiſtrates are bound to right the injured; but, where the accuſation is evidently frivolous or malicious, ſuch cauſes ſhould be diſcountenanced and diſmiſſed.

3. Exaſperated at their diſappointment, the unbelieving Greeks took hold of Soſthenes, the chief ruler of the ſynagogue, Paul's friend, 1 Cor. i. 1. and fellow-labourer, and, to vent their reſentment, they beat him before the judgment-ſeat, in the face of the governor. And Gallio cared for none of theſe things, rather chuſing to wink at the affront and injuſtice, than embroil himſelf with an enraged populace.

Some ſuppoſe that Soſthenes was not yet a convert, but headed the accuſation againſt the apoſtle; and that, as the Jews were in general hated, the profane Greeks, ſeeing the governor favourable to Paul, were encouraged to put this inſult upon them in the perſon of their chief ruler. Whichever was the caſe, the behaviour of Gallio was juſtly to be blamed; for, whether Soſthenes was a good or bad man at that time, ſuch illegal proceedings deſerved animadverſion: but he ſeems to have been too indifferent about the matter, and merely to conſult his own eaſe.

18. ¶ And Paul after this tarried there yet a good while, and then took his leave of the brethren, and ſailed thence into Syria, and with him Priſcilla and Aquila: [s] having ſhorn his head in Cenchrea: for he had a vow. 19. And he came to Epheſus, and left them there: but he himſelf entred into the ſynagogue, and reaſoned with the Jews. 20. When they deſired him to tarry longer time with them, he conſented not: 21. But bade them farewel, ſaying, [t] I muſt by all means keep this feaſt that cometh in Jeruſalem: but I will return again unto you, [u] if God will. And he ſailed from Epheſus. 22. And when he had landed at Ceſarea, and gone up and ſaluted the church, he went down to Antioch. 23. And after he had ſpent ſome time there, he departed, and went over all the country of [x] Galatia and Phrygia in order, [y] ſtrengthning all the diſciples.

[s] Numb. vi. 18. Chap. xxi. 24.

[t] Chap. xix. 21.

[u] 1 Cor. iv. 19. Heb. vi. 3. Jam. iv. 15.

[x] Gal. iv. 14.

[y] Chap. xiv. 22. & xv. 32.

v. 18—23. After a long abode at Corinth, and ſeeing abundant ſucceſs of his labours, we have here,

1. The apoſtle's departure. Having taken a ſolemn farewell of the brethren, he ſet ſail for Syria, Priſcilla and Aquila accompanying him, having ſhorn his head at Cenchrea; for he had a vow; willing, as far as was lawful, to comply with the Jews, that he might gain them the more readily to hear him. And now the time of his vow of Nazaritiſm, under which he had bound himſelf, being expired, his head was ſhaved according to the law, Numb. vi. 1—21. Note, In all indifferent matters we ſhould become all things to all men, in order, if it pleaſe God, that we may by any means gain ſome to the knowledge of Chriſt.

2. His arrival at Epheſus, the chief city of the proconſular Aſia. There, as his cuſtom was, he entred into the ſynagogue of the Jews, and reaſoned with them concerning the great truths of Chriſtianity. But his ſtay was very ſhort, as he haſtened to Jeruſalem: and therefore, leaving Aquila and Priſcilla there, though they, and probably the other Jews, deſired him to make ſome longer abode with them, they could not prevail with him, he having urgent buſineſs which called him to Jeruſalem, where he intended to keep the approaching feaſt, probably the paſſover. But with God's permiſſion he engaged to return to them again, and make ſome longer ſtay among them, to diſpenſe that goſpel which they ſeemed deſirous to hear. Note, As all our motions are under the Divine Providence, and our times are in his hands, a gracious ſoul determines nothing abſolutely, but adds to all his purpoſes, if it pleaſe the Lord.

3. Sailing from Epheſus, he arrived at Ceſarea, where landing, he went up to Jeruſalem, and ſaluted the church, enquiring of their welfare, gladdening them with the tidings he brought, and maintaining communion with his brethren the apoſtles, who might ſtill make that the chief place of their reſort. And ſuch friendly viſits of Chriſt's miniſters are a great comfort and mutual encouragement to each other.

4. From Jeruſalem he departed for Antioch, the moſt famed Gentile church, from whence he had been at firſt ſent forth, and whither now the ſecond time he returned with ſtill more joyful accounts of the progreſs of the goſpel. After ſome time ſpent there, he proceeded on a third viſitation, going over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia in order, ſtrengthening all the diſciples, confirming them in the faith, encouraging them to perſevere, and ſuggeſting the ſtrongeſt motives and arguments to engage them to take up the croſs, and patiently in well-doing to approve their fidelity to their bleſſed Lord and Maſter.

24. ¶ And [z] a certain Jew named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man, and mighty in the ſcriptures, came to Epheſus. 25. This man was inſtructed in the way of the Lord; and [a] being fervent in the ſpirit, he ſpake and taught diligently the things of the Lord, [b] knowing only the baptiſm of John. 26. And he began to ſpeak boldly in the ſynagogue. Whom when Aquila and Priſcilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly. 27. And when he was diſpoſed to paſs into Achaia, the brethren wrote, exhorting the diſciples to receive him: who, when he was come, [c] helped them much which had believed through grace. 28. For he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, [d] ſhewing by the ſcriptures that Jeſus was Chriſt.

[z] 1 Cor. i. 12.

[a] Rom. xii. 11.

[b] Chap. xix. 3.

[c] 1 Cor. iii. 6.

[d] Ver. 5.

v. 24—28. Whilſt the apoſtle was on his travels, under a promiſe of returning to Epheſus, the Lord was raiſing up in that place an eminently uſeful miniſter in the perſon of Apollos.

1. The account given of him is, that he was a Jew by birth, a native of Alexandria in Egypt, a man of ſingular abilities, poſſeſſed of a fund of ſolid learning, and endued with a moſt perſuaſive faculty of elocution, deeply read in the Scriptures, and every way highly qualified for the work of the miniſtry. This man was inſtructed in the way of the Lord, and, as far as John's miniſtry went, embraced the principles of the doctrine of Chriſt; and, ſo far as his knowledge reached, being fervent in ſpirit, and impreſſed with a warm zeal for God's glory, and the good of men's ſouls, he ſpake and taught diligently the things of the Lord, with much ſtudy and pains, according to his beſt light; knowing only the baptiſm of John, who ſpake of the approaching Meſſiah, and exhorted all men to prepare for his reception. And he began to ſpeak boldly in the ſynagogue, with great freedom of ſpeech and intrepidity of mind, fearleſs of the faces of men. A noble pattern for our imitation! And happy is it for that people to whom the Lord is pleaſed to ſend ſuch a helper, whoſe heart, enriched with grace, zealouſly longs for their ſalvation, and whoſe gifts of wiſdom and elocution enable him in the moſt engaging and powerful manner to urge the truths he preaches upon the conſcience.

2. Aquila and Priſcilla with pleaſure heard him, and, obſerving his ſimplicity and zeal, they invited him to their lodging; and, being far more experienced and enlightened Chriſtians, they expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly, which it ſeems he never had an opportunity of being informed of before, having probably lived at Alexandria till now; and he immediately embraced the goſpel, as ſoon as he heard it. Herein we may obſerve, (1.) The gracious conduct of Aquila and Priſcilla. Though far more experienced in the truths of God, they attended the miniſtry of Apollos, encouraged him in his work, and helped him greatly by their private converſation with him. Older Chriſtians ſhould thus be ready to aſſiſt young miniſters with their advice, and countenance them in their labours. (2.) The great teachableneſs of Apollos. Though a man ſo ingenious, learned, and eloquent, he diſdained not to ſit as a ſcholar at the feet of a poor tent-maker and his wife, and to learn of them the good ways of God. Thus ſhould young miniſters covet the acquaintance of more aged and wiſer Chriſtians: and much, very much, may be learned from converſing with poor old men and women, deſpicable as they may appear in the eyes of ſcientific pride. (3.) Whatever our attainments are, we ſhould never think ourſelves too wiſe to learn. They who know moſt will covet to know more, and have their ears open to thoſe who can expound to them the way of God more perfectly.

3. When, after ſome ſtay at Epheſus, Apollos was diſpoſed to paſs into Achaia, to preach the goſpel there, particularly at Corinth, Aquila and Priſcilla recommended him by letter to the brethren as an able and faithful ſervant of the Lord Jeſus; and, when he came thither, he helped them much which had believed through grace, eſtabliſhing their faith, comforting their hearts, and building them up on that foundation which Paul had laid; for he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publickly, in their ſynagogues and before all the people, ſhewing by the ſcriptures, with the moſt convincing arguments and cloſeſt application, that Jeſus was Chriſt, the true, expected Meſſiah, by faith in whom alone ſalvation could be obtained. Note, (1.) Faith is the gift of God; it is by his grace alone that we are enabled to receive the ſalvation which is in his Son. (2.) Though we have true faith, yet we need help and quickning, that we may be more confirmed and eſtabliſhed in the truth. (3.) They who are put in truſt with the goſpel ſhould be able to defend the great truths which they preach, and from the Scriptures, with all zeal and meekneſs, to convince gainſayers and confirm the faithful.

CHAP. XIX.

We have here Paul's return to Epheſus according to his promiſe, and his imparting the Holy Ghoſt to ſome who had known only John's baptiſm, preaching the goſpel to the Jews three months, and being perſecuted by them, he turns to the Gentiles, preaching the goſpel to them in the ſchool of one Tyrannus during two years, and confirming his preaching by miracles, ver. 1—12. 2. What was the fruit of his labour, ver. 13—20. 3. What projects he had of further uſefulneſs, ver. 21, 22. and what trouble at length he met with at Epheſus from the ſilverſmiths, which forced him thence to purſue the meaſures he had laid; how a mob was raiſed by Demetrius to cry up Diana, ver. 23—34. and how it was ſuppreſſed and diſperſed by the town-clerk, ver. 35—41.

1. AND it came to paſs, that while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having paſſed through the upper coaſts, [a] came to Epheſus: and finding certain diſciples, 2. He ſaid unto them, Have ye received the holy Ghoſt ſince ye believed? And they ſaid unto him, [b] We have not ſo much as heard whether there be any holy Ghoſt. 3. And he ſaid unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? And they ſaid, [c] Unto John's baptiſm. 4. Then ſaid Paul, [d] John verily baptized with the baptiſm of repentance, ſaying unto the people, That they ſhould believe on him which ſhould come after him, that is, on Chriſt Jeſus. 5. When they heard this, they were baptized [e] in the name of the Lord Jeſus. 6. And when Paul had [f] laid his hands upon them, the holy Ghoſt came on them; and [g] they ſpake with tongues, and propheſied. 7. And all the men were about twelve.

[a] Chap. xviii. 19, 21.
[b] Chap. viii. 16. 1 Sam. iii. 7.
[c] Chap. xviii. 25.
[d] Mat. iii. 11. Chap. i. 5. & xi. 16.
[e] Chap. viii. 16.
[f] Chap. vi. 6. & viii. 17.
[g] Chap. ii. 4. & x. 46.

v. 1—7. Whilſt Apollos was at Corinth, labouring in the vineyard which Paul had planted, he was travelling through Phrygia and Galatia towards Epheſus, where he arrived.

1. He found there certain diſciples, who had been baptiſed either by John or ſome of his followers, with a reference to the Meſſiah as ready to appear, and who, till now, ſeem to have been out of the way of receiving farther information concerning him. Paul therefore enquired of them, as they made profeſſion of their faith, Have ye received the Holy Ghoſt, ſince ye believed in his miraculous gifts? They own they had not, nor even heard that any ſuch were beſtowed by him, We have not ſo much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghoſt. They knew there would be an abundant effuſion of his mighty influences, according to the promiſe, in the days of the Meſſiah; but as yet they had received no intelligence that any ſuch extraordinary gifts had been beſtowed. The Apoſtle, with ſome ſurprize, then aſked them, Unto what then were ye baptiſed? on what account, in whoſe name, or to the profeſſion of what doctrine? They ſaid, Unto John's baptiſm, in the faith of the Meſſiah, who was quickly to be revealed. Note, (1.) Though we may not look for the miraculous powers, we may, we muſt, be partakers of the mighty influences of the Spirit in our hearts. If we make profeſſion of our faith, we ſhould therefore ſeriouſly enquire into its reality, and whether the Holy Ghoſt witneſſes to his own work in our ſouls. (2.) They who are baptiſed, and have received the outward and viſible ſign, ſhould often examine themſelves, whether they poſſeſs the inward and ſpiritual grace; elſe the waſhing of water will be a merely unprofitable ceremony.

2. Paul hereupon ſet himſelf to explain the true intent of John's baptiſm. John verily baptiſed with the baptiſm of repentance, engaging and encouraging men to turn to God, from the views of the riches of his grace, ſhortly about to be diſplayed in the kingdom of the Meſſiah, ſaying unto the people, that they ſhould believe in him which ſhould come after him, that is, on Jeſus Chriſt, as the only Saviour from guilt and miſery. And when the people, who attended John's miniſtry, heard this, they were baptiſed in the name of the Lord Jeſus, as devoted to the Meſſiah's ſervice, who was then juſt appearing, and profeſſing their faith in him. This Meſſiah was now come; had accompliſhed the work of redemption; was exalted to the right hand of God; and had already poured out his Spirit in a miraculous manner upon his diſciples.

3. When the Apoſtle had thus informed them of the grand intention of John's baptiſm, and they gladly embraced his word, he laid his hands upon them, and the Holy Ghoſt came on them, enduing them with miraculous gifts, and they ſpake with tongues and propheſied, as the diſciples did at the firſt effuſion of the Spirit. They were twelve in number, and probably deſigned for the miniſtry of the word at Epheſus, for which they were hereby eminently qualified.

8. And [h] he went into the ſynagogue, and ſpake boldly for the ſpace of three months, diſputing and [i] perſuading the things concerning the kingdom of God. 9. But [k] when divers were hardned, and believed not, but [l] ſpake evil of [m] that way before the multitude, he departed from them, and ſeparated the diſciples, diſputing daily in the ſchool of one Tyrannus. 10. And [n] this continued by the ſpace of two years; ſo that all they which dwelt in Aſia, heard the word of the Lord Jeſus, both Jews and Greeks. 11. And [o] God wrought ſpecial miracles by the hands of Paul: 12. [p] So that from his body were brought unto the ſick handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diſeaſes departed from them, and the evil ſpirits went out of them.

[h] Chap. xviii. 4.
[i] Chap. i. 3.
[k] 2 Tim. i. 15.
[l] 2 Pet. ii. 2.
[m] Chap. ix. 2. & xxiv. 14. Ver. 23.
[n] Chap. xxx. 31.
[o] Mark xvi. 20. Chap. xiv. 3.
[p] Chap. v. 15. 2 Kings iv. 29.

v. 8—12. Paul having thus opened his miniſtry, and produced ſuch authentic evidences of his miſſion, we find him,

1. According to his cuſtom in the ſynagogue, where, durin three months, he continued ſpeaking boldly in the name of the Lord Jeſus, preaching his goſpel, and diſputing and perſuading the things concerning the kingdom of God, reaſoning with them on the ſubject, rectifying their miſtaken notions, anſwering their objections, earneſtly and affectionately urging them to accept the proffered grace of the Redeemer, and commence ſubjects of that happy kingdom which the adored Meſſiah was come to erect here below, that they might be admitted hereafter to partake of his glory in a better world.

2. When, after ſo long a ſeaſon, the generality ſeemed but more rivetted in their pride and prejudices, and hardened in their ſins, not only obſtinately rejecting the goſpel themſelves, but ſeeking to prejudice others againſt it, ſpeaking evil of that way before the multitude, he then departed from them, abandoning them to their determined infidelity, and ſeparated the diſciples from ſuch incorrigible blaſphemers, erecting them into a Chriſtian ſociety, and laying the foundation of the Epheſian church, afterwards ſo renowned; diſputing daily in the ſchool of one Tyrannus, whither all, both Gentiles and Jews, might reſort to him, and hear the goſpel which he preached defended by the moſt convincing arguments. Two years he continued there his daily labours, ſo that all they that dwelt in Aſia, who reſorted on various accounts to this famed city, firſt or laſt heard the word of the Lord Jeſus, both Jews and Greeks, either from Paul himſelf, or from thoſe who ſpread the report of his preaching on their return into the country; as perhaps ſome of his aſſiſtants made excurſions into parts adjacent, and helped to ſpread abroad the glad tidings.

3. In confirmation of the doctrine which Paul preached, and to give greater weight to his diſcourſes, God wrought ſpecial miracles by his hands, ſuch as were not only out of the common courſe of nature, but which none of the other apoſtles had wrought; ſo that even handkerchiefs or aprons, either ſuch as he wore at his trade, or which were ſent to him, were brought from his body unto the ſick; and with ſuch miraculous efficacy were they as it were impregnated by his touch, that the diſeaſes were inſtantly cured, and the devil diſpoſſeſſed. An emblem of the greater cures which the goſpel he preached was deſigned to work, even to deliver the ſouls of ſinners from their more fatal ſpiritual maladies, and to reſcue them from the bondage of ſin and Satan.

13. ¶ [q] Then certain of the vagabond Jews, exorciſts, [r] took upon them to call over them which had evil ſpirits the name of the Lord Jeſus, ſaying, We adjure you by Jeſus whom Paul preacheth. 14. And there were ſeven ſons of one Sceva a Jew, and chief of the prieſts, which did ſo. 15. And the evil ſpirit anſwered and ſaid, Jeſus I know, and Paul I know; but who are ye? 16. And the man in whom the evil ſpirit was, leapt on them, and overcame them, and prevailed againſt them, ſo that they fled out of that houſe naked and wounded. 17. And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks alſo dwelling at Epheſus; and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jeſus was magnified. 18. And many that believed came, and [s] confeſſed, and ſhewed their deeds. 19. Many alſo of them which uſed curious arts, brought their books together, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thouſand pieces of ſilver. 20. [t] So mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed.

[q] Mat. xii. 27.
[r] Mark ix. 38.
[s] Mat. iii. 6.
[t] Iſa. lv. 11. Chap. vi. 7. & xii. 24.

v. 13—20. We have here,

1. The profane attempt of certain vagabond Jews, exorciſts, who pretended by charms to cure diſeaſes and tell fortunes.

Obſerving the admiration in which the apoſtle was held through the aſtoniſhing miracles he performed, they undertook to do the ſame, and to caſt out devils as well as he, ſuppoſing that the name of Jeſus, invoked and pronounced by way of charm, would enable them to perform the ſame cures. And there were ſeven ſons of one Sceva a Jew, and chief of the prieſts, who was probably at the head of one of the twenty-four courſes, which did this, leading this ſtrolling life, and pretending to perform theſe feats of conjuration. Accordingly, having a patient brought to them, poſſeſſed of a devil, they began their exorciſms over him, ſaying, We adjure you by Jeſus, whom Paul preacheth, ſolemnly commanding you, by that name which Paul proclaims, to depart immediately.

2. Far different was the effect of their adjuration from their expectations. Inſtead of obeying their commands, the evil ſpirit, uſing the man's organs of ſpeech, inſultingly replied, in contempt of their word, Jeſus I know, and Paul I know; too well he knew the divine power of the one, and the authority with which the other was inveſted; but who are ye? a vagabond crew, without power or authority; and the man, in whom the evil ſpirit was, leapt on them with fury and rage, and overcame them, and, in ſpite of all their efforts, prevailed againſt them, ſo that they fled out of that houſe naked and wounded, their cloaths torn from their back, and heartily beaten, bruiſed, and bloody, the juſt deriſion of the ſpectators. And, as this was tranſacted publickly, it was known to all the Jews and Greeks dwelling at Epheſus; and fear fell on them all, dreading the power of theſe infernal ſpirits, nor daring any more to mock God by ſuch incantations, leſt he ſhould let looſe theſe furies upon them; and the name of the Lord Jeſus was magnified, it evidently appearing that he alone could diſpoſſeſs theſe fiends of darkneſs, and therefore he was regarded with higheſt honour, and his name mentioned with reverence.

3. Seeing theſe exorciſts thus ſhamefully defeated, many who had before time uſed the like magic arts and charms, but now by the grace of God were brought to faith in the Lord Jeſus, came and confeſſed their deeds, with ſhame and confuſion of face before God and man; and brought their books together, out of which they had learnt their ſpells and methods of divination, fortune-telling, caſting of nativities, interpreting dreams, diſcovering loſt goods, laying ſpirits, and the like diabolical arts, and burned them before all men, in deteſtation of ſuch wickedneſs, and to prevent their falling into the hands of others: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thouſand pieces of ſilver; for ſcarce and curious were theſe manuſcripts: ſo mightily grew the word of God and prevailed. Note, (1.) They who are brought to the faith of the goſpel, will be inſtantly led to ſacrifice their deareſt and moſt beloved iniquities, with holy indignation at the remembrance of them. (2.) They who know the evil of ſin, will be careful to remove every temptation thereunto out of their own and others way. (3.) True converts deſire to take ſhame before all men, and to give to the Lord Jeſus the glory due unto his name in the moſt ſubſtantial proofs of their real converſion to him.

21. ¶ [u] After theſe things were ended, Paul [x] purpoſed in the ſpirit, when he had paſſed through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jeruſalem, ſaying, After I have been there, [y] I muſt alſo ſee Rome. 22. So he ſent into Macedonia two of [z] them that miniſtred unto him, Timotheus and [a] Eraſtus, but he himſelf ſtayed in Aſia for a ſeaſon. 23. And [b] the ſame time there aroſe no ſmall ſtir about [c] that way. 24. For a certain man named Demetrius, a ſilverſmith, which made ſilver ſhrines for Diana, brought [d] no ſmall gain unto the craftſmen: 25. Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and ſaid, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth: 26. Moreover, ye ſee and hear that not alone at Epheſus, but almoſt throughout all Aſia, this Paul hath perſuaded and turned away much people, ſaying, That [e] they be no gods which are made with hands: 27. So that not only this our craft is in danger to be ſet at nought; but alſo that the temple of the great goddeſs Diana ſhould be deſpiſed, and her magnificence ſhould be deſtroyed, whom all Aſia and the world worſhippeth. 28. And when they heard theſe ſayings, they were full of wrath, and cried out, ſaying, Great is Diana of the Epheſians. 29. And the whole city was filled with confuſion: and having caught [f] Gaius and [g] Ariſtarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions in travel, they ruſhed with one accord into the theatre. 30. And when Paul would have entred in unto the people, the diſciples ſuffered him not. 31. And certain of the chief of Aſia, which were his friends, ſent unto him, deſiring him that he would not adventure himſelf into the theatre. 32. Some therefore cried one thing, and ſome another: for the aſſembly was confuſed, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together. 33. And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And Alexander [h] beckned with the hand, and would have made his defence unto the people. 34. But when they knew that he was a Jew, all with one voice about the ſpace of two hours cried out, Great is Diana of the Epheſians. 35. And when the town-clerk had appeaſed the people, he ſaid, Ye men of Epheſus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of the Epheſians is a † worſhipper of the great goddeſs Diana, and of the image which fell down from Jupiter? 36. Seeing then that theſe things cannot be ſpoken againſt, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing raſhly. 37. For ye have brought hither theſe men, which are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blaſphemers of your goddeſs. 38. Wherefore if Demetrius and the craftſmen which are with him, have a matter againſt any man, ‡ the law is open, and there are deputies; let them implead one another. 39. But if ye inquire any thing concerning other matters, it ſhall be determined in a lawful aſſembly. 40. For we are in danger to be called in queſtion for this days uprore, there being no cauſe whereby we may give an account of this concourſe. 41. And when he had thus ſpoken, he diſmiſſed the aſſembly.

[u] Rom. xv. 25. Gal. ii. 1.
[x] Chap. xx. 22.
[y] Chap. xviii. 21. Rom. xv. 24—28.
[z] Chap. xiii. 5.
[a] Rom xvi. 23. 2 Tim. iv. 20.
[b] 2 Cor. i. 8.
[c] Chap ix. 2. Ver. 9.
[d] Chap. xvi. 16, 19.
[e] Pſ. cxv. 4. Jer. x. 3.
[f] 1 Cor. i. 14.
[g] Chap. xx. 4. & xxvii. 2. Col. iv. 10.
[h] Chap. xii. 17. & xxi. 40.
† Or the keeper of the temple.
‡ Or the court-days are kept.

v. 21—41. Juſt as Paul thought of departing from Epheſus, an unexpected ſtorm aroſe.

1. After a ſtay of about three years at Epheſus from his firſt coming thither, he reſolved to viſit the churches he had planted in Macedonia and Achaia, purpoſing from thence to go to Jeruſalem; and, under the influence of the Holy Ghoſt, determined afterwards to ſee Rome alſo, the ſeat of empire, and there preach the glorious goſpel of Chriſt. He ſent therefore Timotheus and Eraſtus before him, to give them notice of his intentions, and prepare their collection for the poor ſaints at Jeruſalem; whilſt he himſelf ſtayed a while in Aſia, carrying on the bleſſed work which was there begun.

2. During his ſtay, there aroſe no ſmall ſtir about that way, the way of Chriſt, which Paul preached; the occaſion and conſequences of which are here related:

(1.) The ringleader, who ſtirred up the tumult was one Demetrius, a ſilverſmith, whoſe moſt gainful branch of buſineſs lay in making ſilver models of the temple of Diana, with her image in miniature within, which the ſuperſtitious worſhippers uſed to carry home with them, for the gratifying the curioſity of their neighbours, or for the purpoſes of devotion. This man, calling his fellow craftſmen together, harangued them on the danger in which their trade ſtood, from whence all their wealth aroſe; and this through the preaching of Paul, who, inſtead of paying the leaſt regard to their ſhrines, or the great Diana and her temple, perſuaded and turned away the people, almoſt throughout all Aſia, from the worſhip of their goddeſs, ſaying, That they be no gods which are made with hands, deſpiſing the images and deities to whom their anceſtors had ever paid ſuch veneration: and, in conſequence thereof, not only their craft was in danger, and that was a point which he knew lay near their hearts; but he pretends a higher motive for his preſent application to them, even his zeal for the great goddeſs Diana, the object of their own and of univerſal adoration, who was now likely to grow into contempt, and her magnificent temple to be abandoned, if this new religion ſhould be ſuffered to gain ground; and therefore it was high time for them to beſtir themſelves, and oppoſe the growing evil. Note, (1.) Pomp and numbers are ſtill on the ſide of idol worſhip in the papal church, falſely called Chriſtian. (2.) They who make gain of their religion, and follow it as their craft, evidently ſhew to whom they pay their adorations, not to God, but Mammon.

(2.) This harangue had its deſired effect. The craftſmen, enflamed to fury with the apprehenſion that both their gain and their goddeſs were in danger, with wild uproar filled the ſtreets, ſhouting, Great is Diana of the Epheſians. The mob readily joined them, and the whole city immediately became a ſcene of tumult and confuſion.

3. Gaius and Ariſtarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions, falling in their way, they ſeized them, and hurried them to the theatre, where the public games were celebrated, and criminals thrown to wild beaſts, and compelled to fight them; ſee 1 Cor. xv. 32. intending probably thus to diſpatch theſe fellow-labourers of the apoſtle. Paul, nobly prodigal of life in defence of the goſpel and of his ſuffering friends, would fain have entred in to the people, and attempted to reaſon with them on their wickedneſs: but the diſciples, juſtly apprehenſive of the imminent danger to which he would be expoſed, earneſtly diſſuaded him, and inſiſted upon his not going: which was alſo further inforced by a meſſage from certain of the chief of Aſia, who preſided over the public games, and had the direction of the theatre, which were his friends, and conſulted his ſafety, and therefore deſired that he would not adventure himſelf into the theatre, where all their influence and authority might be unable to reſtrain an enraged populace from ſome fatal acts of violence. Note, The lives of great and good men are precious: though they are prodigal of them, and willing to ſpend and be ſpent in the ſervice of Chriſt, their friends ſhould be more careful of them than they are of themſelves.

4. The mob, now prodigiouſly increaſed, rored out, ſome one thing, ſome another; for the aſſembly was confuſed, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together: and ſome of them drew Alexander out of the multitude, to call him to an account, the Jews putting him forward; either helping to expoſe him to the rage of the people, being equally enemies to the Chriſtian name; or, if he was one of their body, encouraging him to declaim againſt Paul, and excuſe them, who were alike hated on account of their known averſion to idolatry. And Alexander beckoned with his hand, deſiring ſilence, and would have made his defence unto the people; either for himſelf and the Chriſtians, if he was of their number; or rather, being a Jew, he intended to throw the odium upon the apoſtle, and exculpate his countrymen. But no ſooner was it known that he was a Jew, the profeſſed enemy of idol-worſhip, than they ſtopped their ears, and would not hear a word; but all with one accord, about the ſpace of three hours, continued crying out and ſhouting, Great is Diana of the Epheſians! as if their noiſe and riot proved the truth of her deity. Thus often is the cauſe of God and truth run down by thoſe who madly refuſe to hear the voice of reaſon.

5. The town-clerk, or rather the chief magiſtrate, who preſided over the public games, with difficulty at laſt ſilenced the uproar, and remonſtrated againſt the tumult, ſaying, Ye men of Epheſus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of the Epheſians is a worſhipper of the great goddeſs Diana, devoted to her ſervice, and by their charter engaged to take care of her temple and worſhip; and of the image which fell down from Jupiter, which therefore is not of the gods made with men's hands, againſt whom Paul declaims. Seeing then that theſe things cannot be ſpoken againſt, being univerſally received among us as certain, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing raſhly againſt the perſons whom ye have ſeized. For ye have brought hither theſe men as criminals, which are neither proved to be robbers of temples, nor yet blaſphemers of your goddeſs, treating her with no opprobrious language, nor guilty of any ſacrilege. Wherefore if Demetrius and the craftſmen which are with him, who have fomented this riot, have a matter againſt any man, the law is open, and there are deputies, where juſtice will readily be done them; let them implead one another, and ſubmit to the deciſion of the proper judges. But if ye enquire any thing concerning other matters, of more general concern, relative to the ſtate or religion, it ſhall be determined in a lawful aſſembly, convoked for that purpoſe. For, ſo far from deciding at preſent upon the merits of the cauſe, we are in danger of being called in queſtion for this day's uprore, if complaint be carried to the emperor againſt us; there being no juſt cauſe whereby we may give an account of this concourſe, if we ſhould be ſummoned before our ſuperiors.

And when he had thus ſpoken, to ſoothe and quiet the inflamed multitude, he diſmiſſed the aſſembly, enjoining them peaceably to retire to their own homes. Note, (1.) God hath a variety of ways to reſcue his people out of their troubles, and can raiſe them up friends from quarters where they leaſt expected them. (2.) It is a conſtant and univerſal rule to do nothing raſhly; for whatever is done in a paſſion we ſhall infallibly wiſh undone. (3.) The terror of the law is uſually a greater reſtraint than the fear of God. Happy were it for us if we remembered, whenever inordinate paſſion begins to ſwell in our boſom, that we are liable to be called in queſtion for the uproar, and ſhould therefore check the riſing ſtorm.

CHAP. XX.

In this chapter we have, 1. Paul's travels through Macedonia, Greece, and Aſia, and his coming at length to Troas, ver. 1—6. 2. A particular account of his ſpending one Lord's day at Troas, and his raiſing Eutychus to life there, ver. 7—12. 3. His progreſs, or circuit, for the viſiting of the churches he had planted, in his way towards Jeruſalem, where he deſigned to be by the next feaſt of pentecoſt, ver. 13—16. 4. The farewel ſermon he preached to the preſbyters of Epheſus, now he was leaving that country, ver. 17—35. 5. The very ſorrowful parting between him and them, ver. 36, 37, 38.

1. AND[a] after the uproar was ceaſed, Paul called unto him the diſciples, and[b] embraced them, and[c] departed for to go into Macedonia. 2. And when he had gone over thoſe parts, and had given them much exhortation, he came into Greece. 3. And there abode three months: and when[d] the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to ſail into Syria, he purpoſed to return through Macedonia. 4. And there accompanied him into Aſia, Sopater of Berea; and of the Theſſalonians, [e] Ariſtarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe, and Timotheus; and of Aſia, [f] Tychicus and [g] Trophimus. 5. Theſe going before, tarried for us at Troas. 6. And we ſailed away from Philippi, after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them [h] to Troas in five days, where we abode ſeven days.

[a] Chap. xix. 40, 41.
[b] 1 Cor. xvi. 20. 2 Cor. xiii. 12.
[c] 1 Tim. i. 3.
[d] Chap. xiv. 5. & xxvi. 21.
[e] Chap. xix. 29.
[f] Eph. vi. 21. Col. iv. 7.
[g] Chap. xxi. 9.
[h] Chap. xvi. 8.

1—6. Soon after the uproar, which Demetrius had raiſed, was ceaſed, Paul determined to proceed on his journey, as he had before purpoſed.

1. After an affectionate parting with the brethren, Paul departed for Macedonia to viſit the churches he had planted; and, having gone over thoſe parts, and given them much exhortation to perſevere, amidſt all oppoſition, in the profeſſion of the faith which they had embraced, he came into Greece, into Achaia; where he abode three months, employed in the ſame profitable manner, confirming and ſtrengthening the faithful: and from thence was purpoſing to ſail for Syria, in order to go directly to Jeruſalem; but, by intelligence or inſpiration, having learnt that the Jews intended to way-lay, murder, and rob him of the collection which the churches had made for their poor brethren in Judea, he changed his rout, and returned through Macedonia.

2. The companions of his travels into Aſia were Sopater of Berea, Rom. xvi. 21. of the Theſſalonians, Ariſtarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe, and Timotheus; and of Aſia, Tychicus and Trophimus; and now Luke the hiſtorian, who had probably been left in thoſe parts before, to carry on the work ſo proſperouſly begun, ſeems to have joined the apoſtle's train. The reſt, going before, tarried for Paul and Luke, and thoſe who accompanied them at Troas; whither they followed immediately after the paſſover, ſailing from Philippi; and in five days joined their companions at Troas, where they ſtayed ſeven days.

7. And upon[i] the firſt day of the week, when the diſciples came together[k] to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow, and continued his ſpeech until midnight. 8. And there were many lights in the upper[l] chamber, where they were gathered together. 9. And there ſat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into a deep ſleep: and as Paul was long preaching, he ſunk down with ſleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead. 10. And Paul went down, and[m] fell on him, and embracing him, ſaid,[n] Trouble not yourſelves; for his life is in him. 11. When he therefore was come up again, and had broken bread, and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, ſo he departed. 12. And they brought the young man alive, and were not a little comforted.

[i] 1 Cor. xvi. 2. Rev. i. 10.
[k] Chap. ii. 42, 46. 1 Cor. x. 16. & xi. 20, &c.
[l] Chap. i. 13.
[m] 1 Kings xvii. 21. 2 Kings iv. 34.
[n] Mat. ix. 24.

v. 7—12. Seven days the apoſtle abode at Troas, deſirous to ſpend one Lord's day with the diſciples before he went on his journey. And a bleſſed day, no doubt, it was to the church in that place.

1. According to their eſtabliſhed cuſtom, upon the firſt day of the week, which had ſucceeded to the Jewiſh ſabbath, and in memory of the Lord's reſurrection, and the deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt, was conſecrated henceforward to God's more immediate ſervice in all acts of religious worſhip, and for the publick adminiſtration of the ordinances, the diſciples came together to break bread, commemorating, as they conſtantly did every week, the ſacrifice and ſufferings of their Lord. Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow; and, having much to ſay, and being probably not likely ever again to have another opportunity of ſpeaking to them, his warm heart led him on, ſo that he continued his ſpeech until midnight, unwearied in exhortation, and addreſſing himſelf to thoſe who counted the longeſt of his diſcourſes ſhort. And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where they were gathered together; they were content to put up with this mean inconvenient place of meeting; and, as no deeds of darkneſs were found among them, they took care the place ſhould be well illumined, to confute the malicious inſinuations of their enemies. Note, According to the practice of the apoſtles and the primitive church, the firſt day of the week is appointed for the aſſemblies of the faithful diſciples of Jeſus to join in all acts of religious worſhip, hear his word, partake of his ordinances, and maintain communion with each other. They who neglect the aſſembling of themſelves together, as the manner of ſome is, evidently ſhew that they have renounced Chriſtianity, and have no part nor lot among the faithful in Chriſt Jeſus.

2. A melancholy accident happened to a youth in the company, whoſe name was Eutychus. He ſat in a window that was open; and, the apoſtle lengthening his ſermon ſo much more than uſual, ſleep overtook the young man, and falling backward through the window, which was three ſtories high, he was killed on the ſpot. A warning to thoſe who ſleep under ſermons, where they have none of thoſe things to plead which might be urged in his excuſe.

3. Paul raiſes him again to life. It ſerved for a momentary interruption to the aſſembly, but in the iſſue contributed to the furtherance of their faith and joy. The apoſtle immediately went down, and fell on him, and embracing him, as Elijah ſtretched himſelf on the dead corpſe of the widow of Sarepta's ſon, 1 Kings xvii. 21. ſaid, Trouble not yourſelves, for his life is in him, reſtored by divine power. Then he returned to the room where they had aſſembled, and, after the adminiſtration of the Lord's ſupper, ſpent the remainder of the night, till break of day, in ſweet communion and converſation; when, in the moſt affectionate manner, he took his leave. But, before they parted, they brought the young man alive into the aſſembly; and were not a little comforted, as ſome reproach might have been caſt upon them, had he thus died; but now it tended to the credit of the goſpel. Note, (1.) They who know the ſweetneſs and profit of Chriſtian conference, are glad to improve every moment of the company of thoſe faithful miniſters whoſe diſcourſe ſo greatly tends to quicken and comfort them. (2.) Providences that appear at firſt view very afflictive, God can and often doth over-rule to the increaſe of our joy.

13. ¶ And we went before to ſhip, and ſailed unto Aſſos, there intending to take in Paul: for ſo had he appointed, minding himſelf to go afoot. 14. And when he met with us at Aſſos, we took him in, and came to Mitylene. 15. And we ſailed thence, and came the next day over againſt Chios; and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium; and the next day we came to Miletus. 16. For Paul had determined to ſail by Epheſus, becauſe he would not ſpend the time in Aſia: for [o] he haſted, if it were poſſible for him, [p] to be at Jeruſalem the day of Pentecoſt.

[o] Chap. xxi. 4, 12.
[p] Chap. xxiv. 17.

v. 13—16. Paul now without delay haſtened to Jeruſalem. His companions went by ſhip before to Aſſos, where they were to take in Paul, who for ſome important reaſons, which we are not told, reſolved to go thither a-foot. There embarking, they all ſailed for Mitylene, the chief city of the iſle of Leſbos, from whence, without ſtopping, they proceeded the next day as far as the iſle of Chios, and the next, arriving at Samos, they made a ſhort ſtay at Trogyllium, a harbour in the promontory of Mycele in Aſia, and the next day arrived at Miletus, ſailing by Epheſus, becauſe he would not ſpend the time in Aſia: for he haſted, if it were poſſible for him, to be at Jeruſalem the day of Pentecoſt; and he apprehended the importunity of his Epheſian friends might have delayed him. Note, When the glory of God, and the buſineſs of our ſtation, calls for our attendance, pleaſant and delightful as it is to enjoy the company of our dear friends, we muſt forego that ſatisfaction.

17. ¶ And from Miletus he ſent to Epheſus, and called the elders of the church. 18. And when they were come to him, he ſaid unto them, Ye know, [q] from the firſt day that I came into Aſia, after what manner I have been with you at all ſeaſons, 19. Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears, and temptations which befel me by the lying in wait of the Jews: 20. And how [r] I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have ſhewed you, and have taught you publickly, and from houſe to houſe. 21. Teſtifying both to the Jews, and alſo to the Greeks, [s] repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 22. And now behold, [t] I go bound in the ſpirit unto Jeruſalem, not knowing the things that ſhall befal me there: 23. Save that [u] the holy Ghoſt witneſſeth in every city, ſaying, that bonds and [x] afflictions abide me. 24. But [y] none of theſe things move me, [z] neither count I my life dear unto myſelf, [a] ſo that I might finiſh my courſe with joy, and [b] the miniſtry, [c] which I have received of the Lord Jeſus, to teſtify the goſpel of the grace of God. 25. And now behold, I know that ye all among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, [d] ſhall ſee my face no more. 26. Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am [e] pure from the blood of all men. 27. For [f] I have not ſhunned to declare unto you all [g] the counſel of God. 28. ¶ [h] Take heed therefore unto yourſelves, and to all the flock, over the which [i] the holy Ghoſt hath made you overſeers, to [k] feed the church of God, [l] which he hath purchaſed [m] with his own blood. 29. For I know this, that after my departing [n] ſhall grievous wolves enter in among you, not ſparing the flock. 30. Alſo [o] of your own ſelves ſhall men ariſe, [p] ſpeaking perverſe things, to draw away diſciples after them. 31. Therefore watch, and remember that [q] by the ſpace of three years, I ceaſed not to warn every one night and day with tears. 32. And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and [r] to the word of his grace, which is able [s] to build you up, and to give you [t] an inheritance among all them which are ſanctified. 33. [u] I have coveted no man's ſilver, or gold, or apparel. 34. Yea, you yourſelves know, that [x] theſe hands have miniſtred unto my neceſſities, and to them that were with me. 35. I have ſhewed you all things, how [y] that ſo labouring ye ought to ſupport the weak; and to remember the words of the Lord Jeſus, how he ſaid, It is more bleſſed to give than to receive.

[q] Chap. xviii. 19. & xix. 1, 10.
[r] Ver. 27. Pſ. xl. 9, 10.
[s] Mark i. 15. Luke xxiv. 47.
[t] Chap. xix. 21.
[u] Chap. xxi. 4, 11.
[x] 1 Theſ. iii. 3.
[y] 2 Cor. vii. 4. & xii. 10. Col. i. 24.
[z] Chap. xxi. 13.
[a] 2 Tim. iv. 7.
[b] Chap. i. 17.
[c] Gal. i. 1. Tit. i. 3.
[d] Ver. 38.
[e] Chap. xviii. 6.
[f] Ver. 20.
[g] Luke vii. 30. Eph. i. 11.
[h] 1 Tim. iv. 16.
[i] Chap. xiii. 2.
[k] John xxi. 15. 1 Pet. v. 2.
[l] Eph. i. 7. Col. i. 14. 1 Pet. i. 19. Rev. v. 9.
[m] Heb. ix. 14.
[n] Mat. vii. 15. 2 Pet. ii. 1.
[o] 1 Tim. i. 20. Rev. ii. 6. Mat. xxvi. 21.
[p] 2 Pet. ii. 1.
[q] Chap. xix. 10.
[r] Heb. xiii. 9.
[s] Chap. ix. 31.
[t] Chap. xxvi. 18. Eph. i. 18.
[u] 1 Sam. xii. 3. 1 Cor. ix. 12. 2 Cor. vii. 2. & xii. 17.
[x] Chap. xviii. 3. 1 Cor. iv. 12. 1 Theſ. ii. 9. 2 Theſ. iii. 8.
[y] Eph. iv. 28.

v. 17—35. Though Paul would not call at Epheſus, he greatly deſired to ſee the * elders of the church, and therefore ſent for them to Miletus, who gladly attended him, where he addreſſed to them this moſt affecting and ſolemn diſcourſe, that can ſcarce now be read by any gracious heart without a tear.

1. He opens with a noble appeal to them concerning his life and doctrine during the time he had ſojourned among them.

(1.) As to his life. Ye know from the firſt day that I came into Aſia, after what manner I have been with you at all ſeaſons, how exemplary, holy, and unblameable his converſation had been; how uniform his conduct; how ſteady amidſt all his trials; ſerving the Lord with all humility of mind. His Maſter's ſervice was his one buſineſs; and, amidſt all the honour which the Lord had put upon him, he ſought no glory nor applauſe; but, with the lowlieſt thoughts of himſelf, and deepeſt condeſcenſions towards others, was ready to ſtoop to any ſervice, even to the meaneſt, whereby the Saviour might be glorified, and the bodies or ſouls of men be benefited; and with many tears, in his prayers for them, and affectionate diſcourſes to them, deeply concerned for thoſe who obſtinately rejected the counſel of God againſt their own ſouls, tenderly ſympathizing with the afflictions of the faithful, and lamenting over backſliders and apoſtates; and with many temptations which befel me by the lying in wait of the Jews, ever contriving his deſtruction: in all which his approved fidelity had been abundantly manifeſted, and his example remained for their imitation.

(2.) As to his doctrine. Ye know how I kept back from you nothing that was profitable unto you, not ſhunning with all ſimplicity and ſincerity to declare the whole counſel of God; unawed by fears, undiſmayed by difficulties, uninfluenced by any worldly motives; and have ſhewed and taught you publickly in the congregation, and privately from houſe to houſe, continually labouring to diffuſe a ſweet ſavour of Chriſt, and to communicate edification, encouragement, and conſolation, wherever he went; teſtifying both to the Jews, and alſo to the Greeks, with the moſt earneſt affection and concern, repentance towards God, the neceſſity and nature of it, as implying a deep and humbling ſenſe of ſin, its evil, malignity, and danger; a genuine ſelf-abhorrence in the view of its guilt and ingratitude, with an unfeigned and unreſerved renunciation of it, and real converſion of heart to the love and ſervice of a pardoning God; and faith toward our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, directing ſinners to him as the great object of all their hopes, deſcribing the fulneſs, freedom, and all-ſufficiency of his ſalvation, and urging them to truſt in his blood, righteouſneſs, and grace, for pardon, peace, adoption, glory. Note, (1.) What was Paul's doctrine muſt be ours, if ever we would approve ourſelves to God, and profit men's ſouls; under the influence of the Spirit deſiring to lead them to a deep conviction of their ruin, and a humbling ſenſe of their ſin, and then to point out the glorious remedy provided in a crucified Jeſus. (2.) They who have the care of immortal ſouls lying upon them can never be enough diligent. Their private converſation muſt breathe the ſame ſpirit as their diſcourſes in the pulpit, and every company where they are found ſhould be the wiſer and better for them. (3.) No fear or ſhame ſhould ever lead us to ſuppreſs a tittle of thoſe glorious goſpel truths which are ſo offenſive to human pride; at leaſt it ſhould be our labour to deliver our own ſouls, whether men will hear or whether they will forbear.

---

* It has been urged by thoſe who plead for a parity among the miniſters of the goſpel, that theſe elders are called επισκοποι, biſhops, v. 28. But, ſince John addreſſes himſelf to a perſon in the ſingular number as the angel of the church, Rev. ii. 1. and it appears from Ignatius that Oneſimus was in his time biſhop of that church, not long after the death of the apoſtle John, who is generally ſuppoſed to have ſpent his latter days there and in the parts adjacent, I cannot but think it carries with it the ſtrongeſt argument, that though, during the time they were under immediate apoſtolic inſpection, they were preſbyters of the ſame rank and order, yet that the apoſtles appointed ſuperior officers over them, as they themſelves were removed, who were inveſted with the ſuperintendency of the preſbytery in the great cities and adjacent country, and who tranſmitted to their ſucceſſors the power delegated to them for the well government of the church. Be it admitted that there be a difference, however wide, between modern and primitive epiſcopacy, yet the order is not at all thereby impeached or ſhaken.

2. He lets them know what a ſcene of ſufferings were before him. He left them not to avoid the croſs, but was about to encounter greater perſecutions than ever. And now, behold, I go bound in the Spirit unto Jeruſalem, by the mighty conſtrainings of the Holy Ghoſt led thither, and fully determined in my own ſoul to follow his guidance and direction; not knowing the things that ſhall befal me there; the particular ſufferings to which he ſhould be expoſed God had not revealed to him; ſave that the Holy Ghoſt witneſſeth in every city, ſaying, that bonds and afflictions abide me; either in general he had this notice given him, or in every city he paſſed through the divinely inſpired prophets foretold the ſufferings which awaited him: but none of theſe things move me, to terrify him from his duty, or ſhake his conſtant mind; neither count I my life dear unto myſelf; valuable as it was, he paid no regard to it, when the cauſe of Chriſt called him to brave death and danger, content to ſuffer whatever the Lord pleaſed to permit, ſo that I might finiſh my courſe with joy, accompliſhing his bleſſed Maſter's work, and reaching the prize of his high calling; and the miniſtry which I have received of the Lord Jeſus, to teſtify the goſpel of the grace of God, freely and openly publiſhing the unſearchable riches of Chriſt, and proving by the fulleſt evidence the truth he declared; diſplaying in the moſt reviving manner the ſovereign, unmerited, boundleſs love and effectual grace of God, manifeſted in the goſpel of his dear Son towards ſinners. Note, (1.) If our hearts are truly fixed on God, and our converſation in heaven, we ſhall look down upon the malice of men and devils as unable to hurt us, and fearleſs put our lives in our hands, when Chriſt calls for them. (2.) Life is our race, and death the goal; our one concern is to finiſh our courſe with joy, and that, by perſevering fidelity approving ourſelves to God, we may receive the crown of life and glory which the Lord, the righteous Judge, ſhall give to all his faithful ſervants. (3.) Our miniſtry is received of the Lord, and to him muſt we ſhortly render up the ſolemn account. (4.) The grand ſubject of all our diſcourſes, if we would fulfil that miniſtry we have received of the Lord, muſt be the goſpel of the grace of God, in oppoſition to all the pride of duties and human ſelf-ſufficiency, labouring to make loſt ſinners know the neceſſity of a free juſtification through the blood and righteouſneſs of a Redeemer, and, from a view of their utter impotence and corruption, to lead them to thoſe ſupplies of grace and ſtrength which can only be derived from him.

3. He informs them that he is now taking his laſt leave of them, and appeals to God for his freedom from the blood of all men. And now, behold, I know, that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, the doctrines, privileges, and duties thereof, ſhall ſee my face no more, nor ever again enjoy my perſonal miniſtry among you. Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men; for I have not ſhunned to declare unto you all the counſel of God. He appeals therefore to them in the preſence of God for his fidelity: the whole truth of the goſpel, ſo far as God had revealed it to him, he had declared; and now, if any ſoul among them periſhed, their blood was on their own heads; he was free. Note, (1.) It is a ſingular ſatisfaction when we can make ſuch an appeal to God, and thoſe to whom we have miniſtred, for our ſimplicity and faithfulneſs in the diſcharge of our ſacred truſt. (2.) The whole counſel of God, without reſerve, muſt be declared; the truths of God need no concealment: and they ſhew their ignorance of the ſpirit of the goſpel, who with timidity mention its glorious privileges, pretending fear leſt the ſovereign, free, and boundleſs grace of God ſhould be perverted to licentiouſneſs. We muſt declare it: let men abuſe it at their peril.

4. He gives them a ſolemn parting charge. Take heed to yourſelves, that your own converſation may be exemplary, and your ſouls influenced by that goſpel you preach to others; and to the flock committed to your charge, for whom you muſt give an awful account ſhortly before the great Shepherd and Biſhop of ſouls; over the which the Holy Ghoſt hath made you overſeers, appointing you to your office, and furniſhing you with gifts for the diſcharge of it; to feed the church of God with knowledge and underſtanding, and with wiſdom and meekneſs to preſide over them; which he hath purchaſed with his own blood; the ineſtimable value of their ſouls therefore is evident, when he who is very God became incarnate, and ſubmitted to the death of the croſs, to make atonement for their ſins, and to purchaſe them for his own. Did Jeſus bleed to redeem his people, and can we be his ſervants, and not deſire to ſpend and be ſpent in the ſervice of their faith? Surely a negligent miniſter, beyond all others, tramples under foot the blood of the Son of God.

5. He warns them of the dangers which they would be called to contend againſt, and exhorts them to be watchful. For I know this, by revelation, that after my departure ſhall grievous wolves enter in among you; both perſecutors will ravage, and falſe teachers more terribly ſeek to corrupt the faith, and ruin the ſouls of the people, not ſparing the flock, uſing every vile art to ſeduce, enſnare, and deſtroy them. Alſo of your own ſelves ſhall men ariſe, of thoſe who now perhaps make a fair profeſſion, and in whom you place confidence; ſpeaking perverſe things, departing from the ſimplicity of the goſpel, broaching pernicious hereſies, and introducing dangerous innovations, to draw away diſciples after them, and erect themſelves into heads of ſects and parties; ſee 2 Tim. i. 15. ii. 18. Therefore watch; the greateſt vigilance would be neceſſary, and being forewarned they were forearmed, and ſhould with indefatigable diligence endeavour to confirm the diſciples faith, and caution them againſt thoſe deluders, that they may not by them be moved away from the hope of the goſpel; and remember the example which I have ſet you, which you are called to imitate, that by the ſpace of three years I ceaſed not to warn every one night and day with tears, ſo fervently and affectionately had he been concerned for them, carefully obſerving the firſt efforts of deceivers, jealous over the leaſt appearances of a declenſion from the purity of the faith, and the ſimplicity of the goſpel, lamenting with deepeſt ſorrow when any ſtaggered or fainted in their mind, and declined from their holy profeſſion; and, ceaſeleſs in his admonitions, he endeavoured to recover the fallen, and to warn others to be more watchful, taught by their ſad examples. Oh that we, who are put in truſt with the goſpel, may be enabled to ſhew ſuch zeal, fidelity, and affectionate concern towards the ſouls of our people!

6. He ſolemnly commends them to the divine care and keeping. And now, brethren, having admoniſhed you of the dangers you muſt encounter, and knowing that more than mortal wiſdom and ſtrength is needful for you, that you may approve your fidelity to Chriſt, I commend you to God, to his power to protect, his wiſdom to guide, his Spirit to comfort you; and to the word of his grace, to his written and revealed word, for your conduct and direction, or to the eſſential word Chriſt Jeſus, out of whoſe fulneſs they ſhould receive grace, and by him be preſerved and kept ſtedfaſt amidſt all the wiles of deceivers and the oppoſition of perſecutors; which is able to build you up, in faith, hope, and holineſs, to eſtabliſh you unto the end, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are ſanctified, preparing you for that kingdom which he hath prepared for you, and bringing you at laſt to an inheritance among his ſaints in light and glory everlaſting. Note, (1.) Our keeping is not in our own hands: left to ourſelves we muſt ſoon fail; but by grace we are ſaved. (2.) None may hope for a part among God's ſaints in heaven, who are not partakers of their grace upon earth, and ſanctified by the Holy Ghoſt. (3.) The goſpel is the great means of producing, through the power of divine grace, true ſanctification. (4.) The kingdom of glory is the inheritance of God's people, being choſen in Chriſt Jeſus before the foundation of the world, called by his word, and juſtified by faith; their title is indefeaſible, and the poſſeſſion ſecured; they can never periſh, but ſhall have everlaſting life.

7. He particularly reminds them of the deadneſs which he had ſhewn to this world, and his labours, that he might not be beholden to any man for a proviſion, whilſt he freely preached the goſpel. I have coveted no man's ſilver or gold, or apparel, content with what he could obtain from his own induſtry, and burdenſome to none of them for a maintenance. Yea, you yourſelves know, that theſe hands have miniſtred to my neceſſities; entitled as he was to a liberal proviſion, he choſe for the ſake of the goſpel to wave his right, and to work hard at his trade, by which he was enabled to earn a ſubſiſtence not only for himſelf, but alſo to help them that were with me, who were leſs able to provide for themſelves: and this he did with a view particularly to the falſe teachers, that he might remove every ſhadow of objection which they would have been glad to urge againſt him. Thus, by my example, I have ſhewed you all things, how that ſo labouring, as I have done, ye ought to ſupport the weak, aſſiſting the neceſſitous and relieving their wants, and removing every handle of prejudice which the deceivers might ſeek to inſtil into the minds of the weak brethren, as if they laboured for mercenary ends. And, to encourage them hereunto, he begs them to remember the words of the Lord Jeſus, how he ſaid, It is more bleſſed to give than to receive; it is more godlike, a mark of a more noble Chriſtian ſpirit, to relieve the wants of others, and lay out ourſelves for their good without a recompence, than to be burdenſome to them for a maintenance.

36. ¶ And when he had thus ſpoken, [z] he kneeled down, and prayed with them all. 37. And they all wept ſore, and fell on Paul's neck, and kiſſed him, 38. Sorrowing moſt of all for the words which he ſpake, [a] that they ſhould ſee his face no more. And they accompanied him unto the ſhip.

[z] Chap. vii. 60. & xxi. 5.

[a] Ver. 25.

v. 36—38. Having finiſhed this moſt affecting diſcourſe,

1. He kneeled down and prayed with them all, commending them ſolemnly to the Lord Jeſus, and begging, no doubt, that they might be enabled faithfully to diſcharge the ſolemn truſt committed to them, and obſerve the good counſel he had delivered. Note, (1.) Miniſters muſt water the word ſown with their prayers, that God may give the increaſe. (2.) Friends will do well to part in prayer, that if it pleaſe God they may meet here again in peace; and, if not, that they may together ſhortly unite their never-ending praiſes before the throne of God and of the Lamb.

2. They parted with floods of tears and the moſt affectionate embraces. They all wept ſore, deeply affected with his diſcourſe, his prayer, and his departure from them; and fell on Paul's neck and kiſſed him, taking their laſt farewel of their dear paſtor, with hearts full of love, and ſwelling with grief; ſorrowing moſt of all for the words which he ſpake, that they ſhould ſee his face no more. To part was bitter; to part for a long while, would have been yet more irkſome; but to part, without the hope of ever meeting again among the living, this added peculiar anguiſh to the ſeparation, and antedated the funereal ſorrows: it was a kind of living burial. And they accompanied him unto the ſhip, willing to enjoy his company to the laſt moment, and to teſtify their deep reſpect and fervent love towards him. Note, Tho' our friends may be ſeparated from us, ſo that we can ſee their face no more, it is our conſolation, if we are united in one Jeſus, that we ſhall aſſuredly meet in a better world, never to part again.

CHAP. XXI.

In this chapter we have, 1. A journal of Paul's voyage from Epheſus to Ceſarea, ver. 1—7. 2. The ſtruggles he had with his friends at Ceſarea, who mightily oppoſed his going up to Jeruſalem, but could not prevail, ver. 8—14. 3. Paul's journey from Ceſarea to Jeruſalem, and the kind entertainment which the Chriſtians there gave him, ver. 15—17. 4. In condeſcenſion to the prejudices of the Jews, and by the advice of the brethren, he purifies himſelf in the temple according to the law, ver. 18—26. 5. The turning of this very thing againſt him by the Jews, and the apprehending of him in the temple as a criminal thereupon, ver. 27—30. 6. The fair eſcape he had of being pulled to pieces by the rabble, and the taking of him into fair and legal cuſtody by the chief captain, who permitted him to ſpeak for himſelf to the people, ver. 31—40.

1. AND it came to paſs, that after we were † gotten from them, and had lanched, we came with a ſtraight courſe unto Coos, and the day following unto Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara. 2. And finding a ſhip ſailing over unto Phenicia, we went aboard, and ſet forth. 3. Now when we had diſcovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and ſailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ſhip was to unlade her burden. 4. And [a] finding diſciples, we tarried there ſeven days: [b] who ſaid to Paul through the Spirit, that he ſhould not go up to Jeruſalem. 5. And when we had accompliſhed thoſe days, we departed, and went our way, and they all brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and [c] we kneeled down on the ſhore, and prayed. 6. And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ſhip; and they returned home again. 7. And when we had finiſhed our courſe from Tyre, we came to Ptolemais, and ſaluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.

† Gr. Torn or pulled away with violence.

[a] Iſa. xxiii. 18.
[b] Chap. xx. 23. Ver. 12.
[c] Chap. xx. 36.

v. 1—7. With deepeſt reluctance he had, as it were by violence, torn himſelf from the embraces of his dear Epheſian brethren; and now, ſince God had ſo ordained, he purſues his voyage.

1. He proceeds to Tyre. They came in a ſtraight courſe to Coos; the next day to Rhodes, famed for its Coloſſus; and thence to Patara, whither the ſhip in which they ſailed was bound, or was from thence to take a different courſe from that which they purſued; therefore providentially finding another ſhip ready to ſail for Phenicia, they embarked, and leaving Cyprus on the left, arrived on the coaſts of Syria, and landed at Tyre, where the ſhip was to unlade her burden.

2. Seven days Paul and his companions halted at this famed mart, ſpending one Lord's day with the diſciples which they found there, and improving his ſhort ſtay for their edification and comfort. Note, When we travel, we ſhould enquire after the diſciples; their profeſſion will make them ſingular, and they may be eaſily found.

3. There he received from ſome of the inſpired prophets of the church, a warning of the dangers which were before him, and that if he meant to eſcape them, he muſt not go to Jeruſalem; but his reſolution was fixed, and his call evident, and therefore he departed at the expiration of the ſeven days.

4. They took a ſolemn farewel of him, when he thus determined to proceed, and brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city, willing to ſhew the apoſtle and his companions the greateſt honour and reſpect, and deſirous that they and theirs might to the laſt moment improve the bleſſing of his preſence and company: and we kneeled down on the ſhore, and prayed for the bleſſing of God on this voyage, and upon thoſe who were left behind. Then affectionately taking their leave of each other, the apoſtle and his friends proceeded on their courſe, and the Tyrian brethren returned.

5. From Tyre they ſailed to Ptolemais, where Paul went on ſhore, deſirous to ſalute the brethren, though he could ſtay but one day with them, yet one day of his company muſt have been a ſingular bleſſing and comfort to them. The viſits of ſuch men, though ſhort, are highly to be prized.

8. And the next day we that were of Paul's company departed, and came unto Ceſarea; and we entred into the houſe of Philip [d] the evangeliſt, ([e] which was one of the ſeven) and abode with him. 9. And the ſame man had four daughters, virgins, [f] which did propheſy. 10. And as we tarried there many days, there came down from Judea a certain prophet, named [g] Agabus. 11. And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and ſaid, Thus ſaith the holy Ghoſt, [h] So ſhall the Jews at Jeruſalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and ſhall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles. 12. And when we heard theſe things, both we and they of that place, [i] beſought him not to go up to Jeruſalem. 13. Then Paul anſwered, What mean ye to weep, and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, [k] but alſo to die at Jeruſalem for the name of the Lord Jeſus. 14. And when he would not be perſuaded, we ceaſed, ſaying, [l] The will of the Lord be done.

[d] Eph. iv. 11. 2 Tim. iv. 5.
[e] Chap. vi. 5. & viii. 26.
[f] Chap. ii. 17.
[g] Chap. xi. 28.
[h] Chap. xx. 23. Ver. 33.
[i] Mat. xvi. 22.
[k] Chap. xx. 24. 1 Cor. xv. 31.
[l] Mat. vi. 10. Luke xi. 2. & xxii. 42.

v. 8—14. From Ptolemais they journeyed to Ceſarea, where they deſigned to make ſome conſiderable ſtay.

1. At Ceſarea Philip the evangeliſt hoſpitably received them. He was one of the ſeven deacons, and, after his ſucceſsful labours among the Samaritans, and with the Ethiopian eunuch, was now ſettled in this great city. He had four daughters, virgins, which did propheſy, endued with the miraculous gift of foretelling future events, (Joel ii. 28.)

2. There Paul receives a full prediction of the ſufferings which were before him. As we tarried there many days, there came down from Judea a certain prophet, named Agabus, who had foretold the famine, (chap. xi. 28.) and now probably on purpoſe came with this prophetic intelligence. Taking up Paul's girdle, he bound his own hands, and then his feet therewith, to affect the ſpectators the more by this ſignificant action, which he explained, as what ſhould ſhortly happen to the owner of that girdle, whom the Jews ſhould thus bind, and deliver as a criminal to the Romans.

3. Paul's companions, as well as the brethren at Ceſarea, hearing theſe melancholy tidings, united in diſſuading him from going to Jeruſalem; and with tears entreated him to conſult the ſafety of that life, which, however ready he might be to part with, would be to them a loſs irreparable.

4. Paul nobly replied to their intreaties, What mean ye to weep, and to break mine heart? Their tears affected him more than all his own expected ſufferings; they were a temptation to ſhake his courage; and it troubled him, both that they ſhould ſhew ſuch timorouſneſs, and diſſuade him from what was his duty, and that he ſhould be obliged to deny them any requeſt; ſince he could not comply with them without grieving the Spirit under whoſe influence he now acted, and therefore he dares defy the fury of all his perſecutors; for I am ready not to be bound only, but alſo to die at Jeruſalem for the name of the Lord Jeſus; prepared, if God ſo pleaſed, to ſhed his blood in confirmation of the truth which he preached, and to glorify his Maſter, as a martyr in his cauſe. Note, (1.) The fooliſh fondneſs of our friends is often a more dangerous trial than the avowed oppoſition of our enemies. (2.) Faithful ſouls are unmoved with the fear of ſufferings. Death is welcome, if Jeſus be but glorified thereby.

5. Perceiving his unſhaken reſolution, his friends deſiſted, ſubmitting to the will of God, and acquieſcing in his determination, which they perceived proceeded not from any inflexibility of temper, but from the conviction that he acted agreeably to the call of God's Spirit. Note, Submiſſion to God's will is not only our duty, but ſhould be our delight, when we know that all he does is righteous, and that it will ultimately tend to our good, as well as his own glory.

15. And after thoſe days we took up our carriages, and went up to Jeruſalem. 16. There went with us alſo certain of the diſciples of Ceſarea, and brought with them one Mnaſon of Cyprus, an old diſciple, with whom we ſhould lodge. 17. And when we were come to Jeruſalem, the brethren received us gladly. 18. And the day following, Paul went in with us unto [m] James; and all the elders were preſent. 19. And when he had ſaluted them, he [n] declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his miniſtry. 20. And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and ſaid unto him, Thou ſeeſt, brother, how many thouſands of Jews there are which believe, and they are all [o] zealous of the law. 21. And they are informed of thee, that [m] Chap. xv. 13. Gal. i. 19.

[n] Chap. xv. 12.
[o] Rom. x. 2. Gal. i. 14.

that thou teacheſt all the Jews which are among the Gentiles, to forſake Moſes, ſaying, that they ought not to circumciſe their children, neither to walk after the cuſtoms. 22. What is it therefore? the multitude muſt needs come together: for they will hear that thou art come. 23. Do therefore this that we ſay to thee: we have four men which have a vow on them; 24. Them take, and purify thyſelf with them, and be at charges with them, that they may [p] ſhave their heads: and all may know that thoſe things whereof they were informed concerning thee, are nothing, but that thou thyſelf alſo walkeſt orderly, and keepeſt the law. 25. As touching the Gentiles which believe, [q] we have written and concluded, that they obſerve no ſuch things, ſave only that they keep themſelves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from things ſtrangled, and from fornication. 26. Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himſelf with them, [r] entred into the temple, [s] to ſignify the accompliſhment of the days of purification, until that an offering ſhould be offered for every one of them.

[p] Num. vi. 2, 13, 18. Chap. xviii. 18.

[q] Chap. xv. 20, 29.

[r] Chap. xxiv. 18.

[s] Num. vi. 13.

v. 15—26. We have here,

1. The journey of Paul and his companions to Jeruſalem. His reſolution was taken, and they, if they cannot diſſuade him from his purpoſe, are ready chearfully to ſhare the danger: they therefore packed up their baggage, which they perhaps carried on their backs, and marched forward, accompanied by other brethren of Ceſarea, and brought with them one Mnaſon of Cyprus, an old diſciple, venerable for his age, and his long ſtanding in the profeſſion of Chriſtianity, with whom we ſhould lodge, he having a houſe at Jeruſalem, and during the feſtival lodgings were difficult to be obtained.

2. The brethren at Jeruſalem gave him at his arrival a moſt hearty welcome. And the day following Paul went in with us unto James, the only apoſtle who ſeems to have been at that time reſident at Jeruſalem; and all the elders were preſent; when, after friendly ſalutations paſſed, Paul gave them a particular and diſtinct account of all the churches which had been planted by his miniſtry, and the great ſucceſs which God had given to his labours; which gave them the moſt ſingular ſatisfaction, and excited their warmeſt praiſes, they glorified the Lord, who had done ſuch great things by him. Note, God muſt have the glory of all our ſucceſs; for whatever our labours are, it is he who giveth the increaſe.

3. James, in the name of the reſt, hereupon offers his brother Paul his advice, deſiring him, in condeſcenſion to the prejudices of the Jewiſh brethren, to ſhew his compliance with the ceremonial law. For though it was by no means to be impoſed on the Gentile converts, nor was any juſtification before God in whole or in part to be expected from it; yet being ſtill attached to theſe rites, to which from their infancy they had been taught to pay ſuch reverence, as being of divine appointment, the Jewiſh converts in general were zealous for their obſervance; and as it was not ſinful to comply with them herein, they judged it would be prudent in him to conform to them for the maintainance of mutual love and peace. The number of the diſciples from the Jews was now increaſed to many thouſands, or rather myriads, ten thouſands; and many had imbibed prejudices againſt Paul, through the falſe reports of the Judaizing teachers, as if, not content with teaching the Gentiles that they were free from the ceremonial law, he had alſo diſſuaded the Jews from conforming thereto, leading them to apoſtatize from the inſtitutions of Moſes, and to diſcontinue the uſage of circumciſion. What therefore was to be done in the preſent caſe? the multitude muſt ſoon know of his coming, and there was danger of their aſſembling together to complain of him, as prejudiced againſt him. To promote therefore Paul's uſefulneſs, which might be impeded hereby; and to reconcile them to him, who had deſerved ſo highly of the church of God; they propoſe to him an expedient which would ſilence the cavillers, and remove the prejudices of his Jewiſh brethren, who, when they ſaw him conform to the law, would be convinced of the falſhood of the reports which had been propagated concerning him. They adviſe him therefore to join himſelf with four other converted Jews, who were under a vow of Nazaritiſm, and to go through the uſual rites with them, providing the ſacrifices offered on this occaſion, (Numb. vi. 1—8.) which would moſt effectually ſilence gainſayers: not that this ſhould be any infringement of the Gentile liberty, that being already determined by a ſolemn decree.

4. Paul, willing to the weak to become as weak, readily yielded to their propoſal; and taking with him the men who were under a vow of Nazaritiſm, entered peaceably into the temple, to ſignify the accompliſhment of the days of purification to the prieſts, which they would obſerve with the uſual rites, until that an offering ſhould be offered for every one of them, as the law directed, Numb. vi. 13—20.

Some have cenſured Paul's compliance, as countenancing the Jews in prejudices which ought to have been oppoſed; but it ſhould ſeem that the thing was juſtifiable, and agreeable to the avowed maxim on which he always proceeded, (1 Cor. ix. 20.) for which end he had alſo circumciſed Timothy; willing to pleaſe all men for their good to edification; charitably condeſcending to the infirmities of the weak; deſirous, as far as he could with a good conſcience, to comply with them in all indifferent matters, if by any means he might ſave ſome.

27. And when the ſeven days were almoſt ended, [t] the Jews which were of Aſia, when they ſaw him in the temple, ſtirred up all the people, and [u] laid hands on him, 28. Crying out, Men of Iſrael, help: this is the man that teacheth all men every where againſt the people, and the law, and this place: and farther, [x] brought Greeks alſo into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place. 29. (For they had ſeen before with him in the city, [y] Trophymus an Epheſian, whom they ſuppoſed that Paul had brought into the temple.) 30. And [z] all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took Paul, and drew him out of the temple: and forthwith the doors were ſhut. 31. And as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band, that all Jeruſalem was in an uproar. 32. Who immediately took ſoldiers, and centurions, and ran down unto them: and when they ſaw the chief captain and the ſoldiers, they left beating of Paul. 33. Then the chief captain came near and took him, and commanded him [a] to be bound with two chains; and demanded who he was, and what he had done. 34. And ſome cried one thing, and ſome another, among the multitude: and when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he commanded him to be carried into the caſtle. 35. And when he came upon the ſtairs, ſo it was that he was born of the ſoldiers, for the violence of the people. 36. For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, [b] Away with him. 37. And as Paul was to be led into the caſtle, he ſaid unto the chief captain, May I ſpeak unto thee? Who ſaid, Canſt thou ſpeak Greek? 38. Art not thou that Egyptian which before theſe days madeſt an uproar, and leddeſt out into the wilderneſs four thouſand men that were murderers? 39. But Paul ſaid, [c] I am a man which am a Jew of Tarſus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city: and I beſeech thee, ſuffer me to ſpeak unto the people. 40. And when he had given him licence, Paul ſtood on the ſtairs, and [d] beckened with the hand unto the people: and when there was made a great ſi-ſilence, he ſpake unto them in the Hebrew tongue, ſaying,

[t] Chap. xxiv. 18.

[u] Chap. xxvi. 21.

[x] Chap. xxiv. 6.

[y] Chap. xx. 4.

[z] Chap. xxvi. 21.

[a] Chap. xx. 23. Ver. 11.

[b] Luke xxiii. 18. John xix. 15. Chap. xxii. 22.

[c] Chap. ix. 11. & xxii. 3.

[d] Chap. xii. 17. & xix. 33.

v. 27—40. Henceforward we ſhall find the faithful Paul in bonds, and ſee him no more at liberty to the end of this hiſtory.

1. A tumult is raiſed againſt Paul. When he had nearly accompliſhed the ſeven days attendance on the temple, and was about to offer his ſacrifice, the Jews of Aſia, who had come up to celebrate the paſſover, obſerved him in the temple; and, fired with rage, as if his preſence there was a profanation of the holy place, they incenſed the people againſt him; and raiſing a mob, as if he was the vileſt criminal alive, they cried out for every Iſraelite to help in ſeizing and puniſhing moſt exemplarily ſuch a miſcreant, whom they accuſe of apoſtacy from their religion, and as the arch ſeducer, teaching every where, with a view to prejudice men againſt the Jewiſh church and nation, againſt the ſacred law of Moſes, and that hallowed temple in which they ſo highly gloried. And not content herewith, they charge him with the moſt atrocious profanation of that holy place, by introducing uncircumciſed Gentiles into the court of the Iſraelites; a calumny malicious and falſe in the higheſt degree, and grounded on the mere ſeeing Trophymus, an Epheſian, in Paul's company in the city. Note, (1.) The cauſe of Chriſt hath been often run down by noiſe and clamour; and the miniſters of truth have been firſt branded with an ill name, and then ſuggeſtions have been caſt out againſt them, as if they were guilty of ill things. (2.) Innocence is no protection againſt calumny: ſome ſtrained innuendo, or miſrepreſentation, eaſily turns the moſt innocent word or action into ſomething highly criminal.

2. The city was ſoon in an uproar: exaſperated by theſe ſuggeſtions, the people ran together, and ſeized the apoſtle, dragged him out of the temple, and forthwith the door was ſhut, to prevent Paul's flying to the horns of the altar, or the Gentiles from ruſhing in, or that this holy place might not be defiled with his blood; for the intention of the people was evidently to murder him; and they began now violently to beat him, and muſt quickly have diſpatched him.

3. Paul is through the divine providence reſcued from inſtant death. The chief captain of the Roman forces, which kept garriſon in the caſtle of Antonia, hearing of the uproar, ran down with a detachment to quell the tumult; and ſeeing him appear with an armed force, the people immediately deſiſted from beating Paul. The captain hereupon having ſeized and bound him, that it might appear he intended not to reſcue him, but to proceed againſt him in a legal way, demanded who he was, and what he had done. Note, (1.) Popular tumults are highly dangerous, and to be ſuppreſſed at their firſt riſing. (2.) God can raiſe up inſtruments to reſcue his ſuffering ſervants from a quarter they leaſt expected, and often makes even the earth to help the woman, Rev. xii. 16.

4. The noiſe was ſo great, and the clamours ſo various, that it was impoſſible for the chief captain to get a ſatisfactory anſwer, whilſt ſome cried one thing, ſome another, among the multitude. Therefore he commanded the priſoner to be carried into the caſtle, where he might examine into the affair; and as the ſoldiers guarded Paul thither, the crowd preſſed ſo hard upon them, crying, Away with him, hang him, crucify him, that they were forced to take him in their arms, to prevent his being pulled to pieces, or ſmothered in the throng.

5. The apoſtle reſpectfully begs leave to ſpeak a word with the chief captain, who expreſſes his ſurprize to hear him talk the Greek language, and intimates his ſuſpicion of him, that he had been that Egyptian impoſtor, who, a few years before, had raiſed a ſedition at the head of four thouſand murderers, who ſoon increaſed to a conſiderable army; but they were defeated, and the ringleader, with a few of his accomplices only, eſcaped. Paul ſoon undeceived him, informing him, that he was by birth and religion a Jew, a citizen of Tarſus in Cilicia, a city of diſtinguiſhed renown, and wiſhed he might be permitted to ſpeak unto the people, to clear himſelf from the malicious accuſations of his perſecutors. Note, Many are run down thro' miſrepreſentation, and oppreſſed by thoſe who, if they knew the truth, would never have joined in the cry againſt them.

6. Lyſias, the chief captain, readily granted his requeſt; when Paul ſtanding on the ſtairs, beckoned with his hand, intimating his deſire to ſpeak to them; and a great ſilence being made thereupon, he addreſſed to them, in the Hebrew tongue, in that dialect which was in common uſe, the noble defence recorded in the following chapter.

CHAP. XXII.

We have here, 1. Paul's addreſs to the people, and their attention to it, ver. 1, 2. 2. The account he gives of himſelf: (1.) What a bigotted Jew he had been in the beginning of his time, ver. 3—5. (2.) How he was miraculouſly converted, and brought over to the faith of Chriſt, ver. 6—11. (3.) How he was confirmed and baptized by the miniſtry of Ananias, ver. 12—16. (4.) How he was afterwards called, by an immediate warrant from heaven, to be the apoſtle of the Gentiles, ver. 17—21. 3. The interruption given him upon this by the rabble, ver. 22, 23. 4. Paul's ſecond reſcue out of their hands, and the further courſe which the chief captain took to find out the true reaſon of this mighty clamour againſt Paul, ver. 24, 25. 5. Paul's pleading his privilege as a Roman citizen, by which he was exempted from ſcourging, ver. 25—29. 6. The chief captain's removing the cauſe into the high prieſt's court, and Paul's appearing there, ver. 30.

1. MEN, [a] brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence which I make now unto you. 2. (And when they heard that he ſpake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more ſilence: and he ſaith) 3. [b] I am verily a man which am a Jew, born in Tarſus, a city in Cilicia, yet brought up in this city, [c] at the feet of [d] Gamaliel, and taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and [e] was zealous towards God, [f] as ye all are this day. 4. And [g] I perſecuted [h] this way unto the death, binding and delivering into priſons both men and women. 5. As alſo the high prieſt doth bear me witneſs, and [i] all the eſtate of the elders: [k] from whom alſo I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damaſcus, to bring them which were there bound unto Jeruſalem, for to be puniſhed. 6. And it came to paſs, that [l] as I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damaſcus, about noon, ſuddenly there ſhone from heaven a great light round about me. 7. And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice ſaying unto me, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? 8. And I anſwered, Who art thou, Lord? And he ſaid unto me, I am Jeſus of Nazareth whom thou perſecuteſt.

[a] Chap. vii. 2.
[b] Chap. xxi. 39. 2 Cor. xi. 22.
[c] Deut. xxxiii. 3. 2 Kings iv. 38. Luke x. 39.
[d] Chap. v. 34.
[e] Chap. xxi. 20. Gal. i. 14.
[f] Rom. x. 2.
[g] Chap. viii. 3.
[h] Chap. ix. 2.
[i] Luke xxii. 66.
[k] Chap. ix. 2.
[l] Ib. ix. 3, &c. & xxvi. 12, &c.

9. And [m] they that were with me ſaw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they † heard not the voice of him that ſpake to me. 10. And I ſaid, What ſhall I do, Lord? And the Lord ſaid unto me, Ariſe, and go into Damaſcus, and there it ſhall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do. 11. And when I could not ſee for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into Damaſcus. 12. And [n] one Ananias, a devout man according to the law, [o] having a good report of all the Jews which dwelt there, 13. Came unto me, and ſtood, and ſaid unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy ſight. And the ſame hour I looked up upon him. 14. And he ſaid, The God of our fathers [p] hath choſen thee, that thou ſhouldeſt know his will, and [q] ſee [r] that juſt One, and ſhouldeſt hear the voice of his mouth. 15. For thou ſhalt be his witneſs unto all men, of [s] what thou haſt ſeen and heard. 16. And now why tarrieſt thou? ariſe, and be baptized, and [t] waſh away thy ſins, [u] calling on the name of the Lord. 17. And [x] it came to paſs, that when I was come again to Jeruſalem, even while I prayed in the temple, I was in a trance; 18. And ſaw him, ſaying unto me, [y] Make haſte, and get thee quickly out of Jeruſalem: for they will not receive thy teſtimony concerning me. 19. And I ſaid, Lord, they know [z] that I impriſoned and [a] beat in every ſynagogue them that believed on thee. 20. And [b] when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was ſhed, I alſo was ſtanding by, and [c] conſenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that ſlew him. 21. And he ſaid unto me, Depart: for [d] I will ſend thee far hence unto the Gentiles.

[m] Chap. ix. 7. Dan. x. 7.
† i. e. Not diſtinctly, ſo as to underſtand it.
[n] Chap. ix. 17.
[o] Chap. x. 22. 1 Tim. iii. 7.
[p] Chap. xxvi. 16.
[q] 1 Cor. ix. 1. & xv. 8.
[r] Chap. iii. 14. & vii. 52.
[s] Chap. iv. 20. & xvi. 16.
[t] Chap. ii. 38. Heb. x. 22.
[u] Chap. ix. 14.
[x] Ib. 28.
[y] Mat. x. 14.
[z] Ver. 4.
[a] Mat. x. 17.
[b] Chap. vii. 58. & viii. 1.
[c] Luke xi. 48. Rom. i. 32.
[d] Chap. ix. 15. & xxvi. 17. Gal. i. 16. Eph. iii. 8. 1 Tim. ii. 7. 2 Tim. i. 11.

v. 1—21. No ſooner had he obtained permiſſion to ſpeak, and all in ſilence liſtened, than with noble compoſure of mind, and in the moſt reſpectful manner, he addreſſed himſelf unto the people, ſaying, Men, brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence which I make now unto you. He makes no mention of their violence, but merely aims to apologize for himſelf, and undeceive them, reſpecting the falſe charges laid againſt him; and it is the greateſt injuſtice to condemn any man, till he hath been heard impartially in his own defence.

As he ſpoke aloud to them in the Hebrew dialect, which they underſtood, they kept the more ſilence, and he proceeded as follows.

1. He gives them an account of his parentage and education. He was one of their own body, a native Jew, a Hebrew of Hebrews; not a poor obſcure fellow, nor illiterate, as ſome might have ſcandalized him; but a freeman of Tarſus in Cilicia, and educated under the moſt famous of their Rabbi's, at the feet of the learned Gamaliel: and as he was thus early initiated in the moſt critical and accurate knowledge of the Moſaical law, with all the traditional comments of the elders thereupon; ſo was he moſt zealous for theſe inſtitutions, and for the obſervance of theſe traditions, from a conſcientious regard to God's glory, as they themſelves now appeared to be.

2. He informs them of the bitter enmity which he had himſelf formerly expreſſed againſt that religion of Jeſus which he now preached. He had been a bloody perſecutor of the diſciples of Jeſus; furious to extirpate the Chriſtian name from the earth; ſeizing, without reſpect of rank, age, or ſex, the profeſſors of Chriſtianity; and dragging them to priſons, endeavoured by every ignominy and cruelty to compel them to blaſpheme and recant. And for this he appeals to the high prieſt and ſanhedrim, by whom he had been employed, and under the ſanction of whoſe commiſſion he had been ſent to Damaſcus, to ſeize and carry priſoners to Jeruſalem all who ſhould be there found profeſſing the Chriſtian religion, that they might be proceeded againſt, and puniſhed as apoſtates. None could have been farther from Chriſtianity than himſelf: the bittereſt of thoſe who now perſecuted him, came ſhort of the enmity which he had ſhewn againſt it.

3. He relates the hiſtory of his converſion. It proceeded from no affectation of novelty, no diſcontent at being diſappointed of preferment, from no worldly motives, nor the ſophiſtry of others; but was the immediate miraculous work of God. For as he was ready to enter Damaſcus, with all his prejudices, and breathing out threatnings and ſlaughter, ſuddenly at noon a light from heaven, brighter than the meridian ſun, ſhone around him; and falling in terror to the earth, he heard the voice of Jeſus, ſaying, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? And when, trembling and aſtoniſhed, he anſwered, Who art thou, Lord? it was replied, I am Jeſus of Nazareth, whom thou perſecuteſt. Convinced now of his own dreadful guilt, and earneſt to eſcape the fearful conſequences thereof, he begs to be informed what he muſt do; when the Lord bid him go to Damaſcus, and there he ſhould receive information of every thing that was appointed for him to do. And being now raiſed from the earth, and blinded with the heavenly light, his companions led him by the hand to Damaſcus, for the truth of which facts they could witneſs, this being no fancy or deluſion; for though they heard not diſtinctly the words that were ſpoken, they ſaw the light, were terrified, and fell to the earth together with him, and heard the ſound of a voice, though not the articulate diſcourſe.

4. He declares the farther inſtructions and cure which he received from Ananias, whoſe character he deſcribes, to recommend him to their regard. He was a devout man according to the law, and, though a Chriſtian, ſtill zealouſly obſerved the ritual ſervice, having a good report of all the Jews that dwelt there, for his exemplary life and converſation, and attachment to the temple worſhip. He came, and ſaid, Brother Saul, receive thy ſight, which was no ſooner ſpoken than done: the ſame hour I looked up upon him. Then Ananias delivered his meſſage, and ſaid, The God of our fathers hath choſen thee, in his eternal counſels, that thou ſhouldeſt know his will, as revealed in the goſpel, and ſee that juſt One, who ſo wrongfully ſuffered; and ſhouldeſt hear the voice of his mouth, and in ſome future time receive a fuller commiſſion and farther inſtructions from him. For thou ſhalt be his witneſs unto all men, to the Jews and Gentiles, of what thou haſt ſeen and heard. And now why tarrieſt thou? without delay ariſe, and be baptized, receiving this inſtituted ſign of admiſſion into his church, and to all the privileges of it; and waſh away thy ſins, now pardoned through his atoning blood, calling on the name of the Lord, the only Saviour, that all the bleſſings of his everlaſting covenant may be conferred upon thee, according to his promiſes. Note, (1.) The great goſpel privilege is remiſſion of ſins. (2.) All who are brought truly to the Lord, from that hour ceaſe not to call upon him, living in conſtant dependance on his grace.

5. He informs them of the divine warrant by which he was commiſſioned to go and preach to the Gentiles. It was given him at Jeruſalem, while he was in the temple praying, where he fell into a trance, and ſaw this divine Redeemer, who ſaid unto him, Get thee quickly out of Jeruſalem; for they will not receive thy teſtimony, being obſtinately prejudiced againſt it. And I ſaid, unwilling to leave my dear countrymen, for whoſe ſouls I ſo earneſtly longed, and to whom I fancied my miniſtry might be more particularly convincing, Lord, they know that I impriſoned and beat in every ſynagogue them that believed on thee. And when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was ſhed, I alſo was ſtanding by, and conſenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that ſlew him. And this he urges as a reaſon why the people would now more readily regard his teſtimony, when he preached that faith he once deſtroyed, ſince it muſt needs be a ſupernatural power which could produce ſo wonderful a converſion. But the Lord, who knew the hearts of all men, and that his miniſtry would be rejected by the Jews, repeated his commands, Depart; and appointed him other work; for I will ſend thee far hence unto the Gentiles.

From all which they might ſee clearly how far he was from being that enemy to the Jewiſh nation and worſhip which he was repreſented to be; how earneſtly he would have continued labouring amongſt them; how reluctantly he quitted Jeruſalem; and by what moſt expreſs divine authority he acted in his labours among the Gentiles.

22. And they gave him audience unto this word, and then lifted up their voices, and ſaid, [e] Away with ſuch a fellow from the earth: for [f] it is not fit that he ſhould live. 23. And as they cried out, and caſt off their clothes, and threw duſt into the air, 24. The chief captain commanded him to be brought into the caſtle, and bade that he ſhould be examined by ſcourging: that he might know wherefore they cried ſo againſt him. 25. And as they bound him with thongs, Paul ſaid unto the centurion that ſtood by, [g] Is it lawful for you to ſcourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned? 26. When the centurion heard that, he went and told the chief captain, ſaying, Take heed what thou doſt; for this man is a Roman. 27. Then the chief captain came, and ſaid unto him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? He ſaid, Yea. 28. And the chief captain anſwered, With a great ſum obtained I this freedom. And Paul ſaid, But I was free-born. 29. Then ſtraightway they departed from him which ſhould have † examined him: and the chief captain alſo was afraid after he knew that he was a Roman, and becauſe he had bound him. 30. On the morrow, becauſe he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accuſed of the Jews, he looſed him from his bands, and commanded the chief prieſts and all their council to appear, and brought Paul down, and ſet him before them.

[e] Chap. xxi. 36.
[f] Chap. xxv. 24.
[g] Chap. xvi. 37.
† Or tortured him. Ver. 24. Heb. xi. 35.

v. 22—30. Hitherto with patience the Jews gave audience to the apoſtle's diſcourſe; but the very mention of the Gentiles fired their indignation, and they would hear no more.

1. They cried out with the moſt raging fury, Away with ſuch a fellow from the earth; for it is not fit that he ſhould live. The very thought, that the idolatrous Gentiles ſhould be preferred to them, exaſperated them beyond bounds, and they imagined no puniſhment was equal to the deſert of ſuch a miſcreant, who could dare plead a divine commiſſion to preach to the abhorred heathen. Therefore they cried out againſt him with the utmoſt deteſtation, and caſt off their clothes, reſolved to ſtone him on the ſpot as an apoſtate and blaſphemer; and threw duſt into the air, as if they wanted to bury him alive. Thus have the greateſt and beſt of men the world was ever bleſt with, been treated as the off-ſcouring of all things, and unworthy of the air they breathed.

2. The chief captain Lyſias, ſeeing ſuch madneſs and fury expreſſed by the people, commanded Paul to be brought into the caſtle, partly to ſhelter him from the popular rage, partly from the apprehenſion, that he muſt needs have been guilty of ſome enormous wickedneſs, which could occaſion ſuch general abhorrence; and therefore moſt unjuſtly commanded, without further enquiry, that he ſhould be examined by ſcourging, to extort a confeſſion from himſelf of the ſuppoſed crime, which made the people ſo violent againſt him.

3. When the ſoldiers, who were about to execute the chief captain's commands, were binding him with thongs to the pillar, in order to be ſcourged, Paul mildly addreſſed himſelf to the centurion who ſtood by, and ſaid, Is it lawful for you to ſcourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned? The centurion, ſtartled at this intimation, and knowing the dangerous conſequence of ſuch a procedure, ſtayed the ſoldiers, and went immediately to acquaint the chief captain, ſuggeſting to him the neceſſity of proceeding with caution, ſince the perſon whom they had in cuſtody was one of much greater diſtinction than they apprehended, and a Roman citizen.

4. The chief captain Lyſias, knowing the jealouſy of the Roman citizens, and the ſeverity of the law againſt thoſe who ſhould dare to bind or ſcourge any of them, eſpecially without a fair and public trial, came directly, and deſired to be informed in this point, ſaying, Art thou a Roman citizen? Paul ſaid, Yea. The chief captain, ſurprized at this, anſwered, With a great ſum obtained I this freedom; and you ſeem a poor Jew, unable to purchaſe ſo high a dignity: and Paul, who held his privilege from a more honourable ſource, ſaid, But I was free-born.

5. Inſtantly orders were given for his being looſed; they who were about to ſcourge him departed, and the chief captain himſelf was under terrible apprehenſions, leſt, if Paul ſhould complain of this outrage, it might be attended with very ill conſequence to him, that he had raſhly proceeded ſo far as to bind him, being a Roman. Our civil privileges are an invaluable bleſſing, and the fear of man often reſtrains thoſe who know no fear of God.

6. The next day the governor, deſirous of coming at the certainty of the thing laid to Paul's charge, commanded the chief prieſts and all their council to appear; and having looſed him from his bands, that he might not ſeem to prejudge his cauſe, and treat him as a criminal without proof, he brought Paul down, and ſet him before them, that they might bring their accuſations, and he be at liberty to anſwer in his own defence.

CHAP. XXIII.

We have here, 1. Paul's proteſtation of his own integrity, and of a civil reſpect to the high prieſt, however he had upon a ſudden ſpoken warmly to him, and juſtly, ver. 1—5. 2. Paul's prudent contrivance to get himſelf clear of them, by ſetting the Phariſees and Sadducees at variance one with another, ver. 6—9. 3. The governor's ſeaſonable interpoſal to reſcue him out of their hands likewiſe, ver. 10. 4. Chriſt's more comfortable appearing to him, to animate him againſt thoſe difficulties that lay before him, and to tell him what he muſt expect, ver. 11. 5. A bloody conſpiracy of ſome deſperate Jews to kill Paul, ver. 12—15. 6. The diſcovery of this conſpiracy to Paul, and by him to the chief captain, ver. 16—22. 7. The chief captain's care of Paul's ſafety, who ſent him away immediately under a ſtrong guard from Jeruſalem to Ceſarea, which was now the reſidence of Felix the Roman governor, and there he ſafely arrived, ver. 23—35.

1. AND Paul earneſtly beholding the council, ſaid, Men and brethren, [a] I have lived in all good conſcience before God until this day. 2. And the high prieſt Ananias commanded them that ſtood by him [b] to ſmite him on the mouth. 3. Then ſaid Paul unto him, God ſhall ſmite thee, thou whited wall: for ſitteſt thou to judge me after the law, and [c] commandeſt me to be ſmitten contrary to the law? 4. And they that ſtood by ſaid, Revileſt thou God's high prieſt? 5. Then ſaid Paul,

[a] Chap. xxiv. 16. 2 Cor. i. 12. 2 Tim. i. 3. Heb. xiii. 18.
[b] 1 Kings xxii. 24. Jer. xx. 2. John xviii. 22.
[c] Lev. xix. 35. Deut. xxv. 1, 2.

Paul, I wiſt not, brethren, that he was the high prieſt. For it is written, [d] Thou ſhalt not ſpeak evil of the ruler of thy people.

v. 1—5. Paul with undaunted courage appears before this auguſt aſſembly, nor fears their faces, though well perſuaded of their inveterate enmity againſt him.

1. He makes a ſolemn profeſſion of his own integrity. Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conſcience before God until this day; even in his unregenerate ſtate he had, according to his beſt light and knowledge, acted with conſcientious zeal for God's glory; and his outward converſation had been ever unimpeached. And as in his converſion to Chriſtianity he had embraced the goſpel upon the ſtrongeſt evidence, ſo had he ever ſince with all fidelity approved himſelf to God; and they who have this teſtimony of a good conſcience, need never be aſhamed.

2. Ananias the high prieſt, highly offended at ſuch a proteſtation of his innocence, commanded one of the officers who ſtood by Paul to ſtrike him on the mouth, and not ſuffer him to proceed with ſuch confidence and familiarity of addreſs.

3. Juſtly indignant at ſuch an inſult, and not actuated by private revenge, but by prophetic impulſe, he denounces the doom of this proud high prieſt: God ſhall ſmite thee, thou whited wall, with ſome ſtroke of his vengeance for thy pride and hypocriſy: for ſitteſt thou to judge me after the law, and commandeſt me to be ſmitten contrary to the law? how unjuſt and iniquitous is ſuch a procedure! Note, Proud perſecutors are but whited walls, and ſhall ſoon feel how unable they are to ſtand before the ſtorm of divine judgments.

4. Some who were preſent were highly offended at the apoſtle's freedom, as an unbecoming inſult on the high prieſt's character and office, ſaying, Revileſt thou God's high prieſt?

5. Paul immediately apologized for what he had ſaid, unwilling to prejudice his Jewiſh brethren againſt him, however great the provocation which had been given him: I wiſt not, brethren, that he was the high prieſt; either he did not advert to his dignity at that time, or he did not conſider him as the high prieſt, another being lawfully entitled to that office, and Ananias but an intruder: for he meant not to ſpeak diſreſpectfully of that high office, ſince it is written, Thou ſhalt not ſpeak evil of the ruler of thy people; and he always deſired to have his conduct governed by God's revealed word, and to honour the magiſtrate, however wicked the man might be.

6. But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Phariſees, he cried out in the council, Men and brethren, [e] I am a Phariſee, the ſon of a Phariſee: [f] of the hope and reſurrection of the dead, I am called in queſtion. 7. And when he had ſo ſaid, there aroſe a diſſenſion between the Phariſees and Sadducees: and the multitude was divided. 8. For [g] the Sadducees ſay that there is no reſurrection, neither angel nor ſpirit: but the Phariſees confeſs both. 9. And there aroſe a great cry: and the ſcribes that were of the Phariſees part aroſe, and ſtrove, ſaying, [h] We find no evil in this man: but [i] if a ſpirit or an angel hath ſpoken to him, [k] let us not fight againſt God. 10. And when there aroſe a great diſſenſion, the chief captain fearing leſt Paul ſhould have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the ſoldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the caſtle. 11. And [l] the night following, the Lord ſtood by him, and ſaid, Be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou haſt teſtified of me in Jeruſalem, ſo muſt thou bear witneſs alſo at Rome.

v. 6—11. Since the apoſtle had to do with men on whom he might now eaſily perceive he could not hope to prevail by pleading the cauſe which they were determined to perſecute, he here,

1. Prudently diſconcerted all their meaſures by a plea which they little apprehended. He obſerved the council was divided into two ſects, of Phariſees and Sadducees; and if he can wiſely gain one party of them to his ſide, he may more eaſily extricate himſelf from his difficulties. Accordingly he cried aloud, Men and brethren, I am a Phariſee, the ſon of a Phariſee; have always been brought up in the faith of their diſtinguiſhing tenets; and among the chief articles thereof we reckon the reſurrection of the dead, for which hope I am called in queſtion, the grand foundation of all that doctrine of the goſpel which I preach being built on the reſurrection of the Redeemer.

2. This immediately, as he expected, raiſed a diviſion in the houſe; the Phariſees eſpouſing this great truth, the Sadducees oppoſing it: for the Sadducees denied the reſurrection of the body, the immortality of the ſoul, and any future ſtate of rewards and puniſhments; whilſt the Phariſees, though wedded to their traditions, ſtiffly maintained theſe great doctrines of truth. Hence aroſe the ſchiſm between them, and their fury againſt Paul was now turned into a ſharp contention between themſelves; ſo that a great cry aroſe, and in mere oppoſition to the Sadducees, the Phariſees took the apoſtle's part, and contended for him as orthodox in his principles, and innocent in his behaviour. But if an angel or ſpirit hath ſpoken to him, as it is poſſible may be the caſe, let us not fight againſt God; ſince all oppoſition to ſuch a heavenly meſſage would be in fact rebellion againſt God himſelf, according to the advice which Gamaliel had formerly given, (chap. v. 38, 39.)

3. A violent tumult hereupon aroſe; the Sadducees were enraged at the oppoſition they met with, and in the quarrel between his friends and foes, Paul was in danger of being torn limb from limb; ſo that the chief captain was again compelled to interpoſe, and with his ſoldiers to carry him off, and ſecure him in the caſtle, leſt he ſhould be pulled in pieces by them. Thus the Lord again providentially reſcued him from the jaws of death.

4. The night following the Lord ſtood by him, in a viſion, to comfort and encourage him with unſhaken fortitude to ſtand faſt, and ſaid, Be of good chear, Paul; be confident of the ſupports of my power and love, and let no dangers diſmay thee: for as thou haſt teſtified of me in Jeruſalem, ſo muſt thou bear witneſs alſo at Rome. So he had deſigned formerly, (chap. xix. 21.) and now the Lord will make even the malice of his perſecutors the means of carrying him thither. Note, If the Lord ſpeak comfort to our ſouls, and ſtand by us, then our priſon ſhall be a palace, and our ſufferings our joy.

12. And when it was day, certain of the Jews banded together, and [m] bound themſelves † under a curſe, ſaying, that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul. 13. And they were more than forty which had made this conſpiracy. 14. And they came to the chief prieſts and elders, and ſaid, We have bound ourſelves under a great curſe, that we will eat nothing until we have ſlain Paul. 15. Now therefore ye with the council ſignify to the chief captain, that he bring him down unto you to-morrow, as though you would enquire ſomething more perfectly concerning him: and we, or ever he come near, [n] are ready to kill him. 16. And when Paul's ſiſter's ſon heard of their lying in wait, he went and entred into the caſtle, and told Paul. 17. Then Paul called one of the centurions unto him, and ſaid, Bring this young man unto the chief captain: for he hath a certain thing to tell him. 18. So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and ſaid, Paul the priſoner called me unto him, and prayed me to bring this young man unto thee, who hath ſomething to ſay unto thee. 19. Then the chief captain took him by the hand, and went with him aſide privately, and aſked him, What is it that thou haſt to tell me? 20. And he ſaid, The Jews have agreed to deſire thee, [o] that thou wouldeſt bring down Paul to-morrow into the council, as though they would enquire ſomewhat of him more perfectly. 21. But do not thou yield unto them: for there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, which [p] have bound themſelves with an oath, that they will neither eat nor drink till they have killed him: and now are they ready, looking for a promiſe from thee. 22. So the chief captain then let the young man depart and charged him, See thou tell no man that thou haſt ſhewed theſe things to me. 23. And he called unto him two centurions, ſaying, Make ready two hundred ſoldiers to go to Ceſarea, and horſemen threeſcore and ten, and ſpearmen two hundred, at the third hour of the night. 24. And provide them beaſts, that they may ſet Paul on, and bring him ſafe unto Felix the governor. 25. And he wrote a letter after this manner: 26. Claudius Lyſias, unto the moſt excellent governor Felix, ſendeth greeting. 27. [q] This man was taken of the Jews, and ſhould have been killed of them: then came I with an army, and reſcued him, having underſtood that he was a Roman. 28. And [r] when I would have known the cauſe wherefore they accuſed him, I brought him forth into their council: 29. Whom I perceived to [s] be accuſed of queſtions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of death or of bonds. 30. And when it was told me, how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I ſent ſtraightway to thee, and [t] gave commandment to his accuſers alſo, to ſay before thee what they had againſt him. Farewel. 31. Then the ſoldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul and brought him by night to Antipatris. 32. On the mor-

[d] Exod. xxii. 28. 2 Pet. ii. 10.

[e] Chap. xxvi. 5. Phil. iii. 5.

[f] Chap. xxiv. 15, 21. & xxvi. 8.

[g] Mat. xxii. 23.

[h] Chap. xxv. 25. & xxvi. 31.

[i] Chap. xxii. 7, 17, 18.

[k] Chap. v. 39.

[l] Chap. xviii. 9.

[m] Ver. 14, 21.

† Or, with an oath of execration. Mat. xxvi. 74. Rom. ix. 3.

[n] Chap. xxv. 3.

[o] Ver. 14.

[p] Ver. 12, 14.

[q] Chap. xxi. 32.

[r] Chap. xxii. 30.

[s] Chap. xviii. 15.

[t] Chap. xxiv. 8.

row they left the horſemen to go with him, and returned to the caſtle. 33. Who when they came to Ceſarea, and delivered the epiſtle to the governor, preſented Paul alſo before him. 34. And when the governor had read the letter, he aſked of what province he was. And when he underſtood that he was of Cilicia; 35. I will hear thee, ſaid he, when thine accuſers are alſo come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment-hall.

v. 12—35. We have here a deſperate plot laid againſt the innocent apoſtle, but by the divine providence diſcovered and defeated.

1. The plot was deeply laid, and ready to be executed. Since they could gain their ends no other way, the next day ſome of his moſt invenomed foes determined to aſſaſſinate him. The number of the conſpirators amounted to more than forty, who by a dreadful oath bound their ſouls to be faithful to each other, and neither to eat or drink till they had killed Paul. And this their horrid deſign they communicated to the chief prieſts and elders for their approbation, who they knew would ſtick at nothing to deſtroy a man whom they ſo abhorred. They propoſed thereſore, that they ſhould deſire the chief captain to bring Paul once more to the council-board to be examined, and they undertook to diſpatch him by the way as he came: nor did the chief prieſt, it ſeems, or elders, heſitate at the propoſal.

2. God brought this bloody conſpiracy to light. A nephew of Paul's, his ſiſter's ſon, got ſome intelligence of their deſign, and inſtantly ran to the caſtle, to acquaint the apoſtle of his danger, who begged the favour of one of the centurions to introduce the young man to the chief captain, having ſome very intereſting intelligence to communicate. The centurion very obligingly went, and informed Lyſias of Paul's requeſt, and he without delay gave the young man a private audience. Taking him kindly by the hand, he led him aſide, and bid him ſpeak freely what he had to ſay: whereupon he informed him of the whole conſpiracy, which was ready to be put in execution; and that they were now coming to aſk his conſent to their requeſt, with regard to the bringing down of Paul before them, under pretence of a more exact enquiry into the charges laid againſt him: the young man therefore humbly begs, that he will not yield to them in this matter. The chief captain, with a ſolemn injunction of ſecreſy, hereupon diſmiſſed him, engaging to take effectual care of Paul. Note, (1.) The Lord often wonderfully brings to light the hidden things of darkneſs, and lays open by ſtrange methods the deep deſigns of bloody conſpirators. (2.) It is a high commendation to men of rank who are in office, to be eaſy of acceſs, and not proudly to diſregard their poor ſuitors. (3.) Secreſy is often moſt eſſential to the ſucceſs of our affairs.

3. Lyſias immediately took the moſt effectual method to prevent this horrid aſſaſſination; and fearing leſt, if he kept Paul in the caſtle, their madneſs might hurry them to ſome dreadful outrage, or to attempt by one method or other to compaſs his death, he called two centurions, and bid them get two hundred ſoldiers, and as many ſpearmen, with ſeventy horſemen, ready to march to Ceſarea by nine o'clock that evening; and to provide beaſts, one or more, for Paul's uſe, or perhaps for ſome of his companions who might chuſe to attend him, and deliver him up ſafe to Felix the governor; treating the priſoner with all poſſible reſpect, and deſirous thus to reſcue him from the hands of the conſpirators.

4. With the priſoner he ſent the following letter. Claudius Lyſias unto the moſt excellent Felix, ſendeth greeting, wiſhing him all proſperity. This man, whom I have ſent, was taken of the Jews, in a tumultuous manner, and would have been killed by them, had I not interpoſed. Then, hearing of the riot which was made, I came with an army to quell the diſturbance, and reſcued him, having underſtood that he was a Roman citizen. And when I would have known the cauſe wherefore they accuſed him, willing to give the matter an impartial hearing, I brought him forth into their council, to know what they had to ſay againſt him, whom I perceived to be accuſed of queſtions of their law, but to have nothing really criminal laid to his charge worthy of death or of bonds. And when it was told me, how that the Jews laid wait for the man to aſſaſſinate him, to prevent ſo baſe a deed, I ſent ſtraightway to thee, referring the whole matter to your Excellency's cognizance; and gave commandment to his accuſers alſo, to ſay before thee what they had againſt him, as a more competent judge, and fitter to decide on this matter. Farewel.

5. The ſoldiers under the command of the centurions at night departed, and before morning had brought Paul ſafe to Antipatris; when, being out of danger, the ſoldiers and ſpearmen returned, and left the ſeventy horſe to conduct him to Ceſarea, who on their arrival delivered the letter to the governor, and preſented the priſoner before him. When Felix had peruſed the contents, he aſked Paul of what province he was; and having underſtood that he belonged to Cilicia, I will hear thee, ſaid he, when thine accuſers are alſo come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment-hall, aſſigning him an apartment in the palace; and, though under confinement, permitting his friends to viſit him without reſtraint.

CHAP. XXIV.

We left Paul a priſoner at Ceſarea; in this chapter we have his arraignment and trial before Felix the governor. Here is, 1. The appearing of the proſecutors againſt him, and the ſetting of the priſoner to the bar, ver. 1, 2. 2. The opening of the indictment againſt him by Tertullus, ver. 2—8. 3. The corroborating of the charge by the teſtimony of the witneſſes, or rather the proſecutors themſelves, ver. 9. 4. The priſoner's defence, in which, with all due deference to the governor, ver. 10. he denies the charge, and challengeth them to prove it, ver. 11—13. owns the truth, and makes an unexceptionable profeſſion of his faith, which he declares was it that they hated him for, ver. 14—16. and gives a more particular account of what had paſſed from their firſt ſeizing of him, challenging them to inſtance in any ill that they had found in him, ver. 17—21. 5. The adjourning of the cauſe, and the continuing of the priſoner in cuſtody, ver. 22, 23. 6. The private converſation that was between the priſoner and the judge, by which the priſoner hoped to do good to the judge, and the judge thought to get money by the priſoner, but both in vain, ver. 24—26. 7. The lengthening out of Paul's impriſonment for two years, till another governor came, ver. 27.

1. AND after five days, [a] Ananias the high prieſt deſcended with the elders, and with a certain orator named Tertullus, who informed the governor againſt Paul. 2. And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuſe him, ſaying, Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietneſs, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence, 3. We accept it always, and in all places, moſt noble Felix, with all thankfulneſs. 4. Notwithſtanding, that I be not further tedious unto thee, I pray thee, that thou wouldeſt hear us of thy clemency a few words. 5. For we have found this man [b] a † peſtilent fellow, and a mover of ſedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the ſect of the Nazarenes: 6. [c] Who alſo hath gone about to profane the temple: whom we took, and would have judged according to our law. 7. But the chief captain Lyſias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands, 8. [d] Commanding his accuſers to come unto thee: by examining of whom, thyſelf mayeſt take knowledge of all theſe things whereof we accuſe him. 9. And the Jews alſo aſſented, ſaying, that theſe things were ſo.

[a] Chap. xxiii. 2.

[b] 1 Kings xiii. 17. Chap. xvi. 20. & xvii. 6.

† Gr. a peſt.

[c] Chap. xxi. 28.

[d] Chap. xxiii. 30. & xxv. 16.

v. 1—9. Lyſias no doubt informed the chief prieſts and elders what he had done, and referred them to Felix, if they choſe further to proſecute Paul. Whereupon,

1. Without loſs of time, after five days, reckoning from the time they firſt apprehended him, they came down to Ceſarea, with Ananias the high prieſt at their head; and appearing in a body before Felix, to give the greater weight to their cauſe, they deſired to be heard againſt Paul, and had engaged an artful and plauſible counſellor, one Tertullus, to plead for them. Note, Inveterate malice againſt the goſpel will ſometimes make the moſt reverend characters ſtoop to the meaneſt actions.

2. Paul being brought forth, Tertullus, with many oratorial flouriſhes, and a moſt flattering addreſs to the judge, opens his ſpeech againſt the priſoner at the bar.

[1.] He compliments the governor on his adminiſtration. Though univerſally known to be one of the moſt oppreſſive, covetous, and cruel, that had ever ruled over Judea; yet, to court his favour, and win him to their party, he, as one that pleaded not for truth but for hire, daubs thick his adulations. Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietneſs, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence, penetration, and prudent care; we accept it always, and in all places, moſt noble Felix, with all thankfulneſs; profeſſing the deepeſt ſenſe of our obligations for ſuch ſingular favours, and emboldened thereby to hope more confidently for the juſtice we demand againſt the priſoner. But that I be not further tedious unto thee, I pray thee, that thou wouldeſt hear us of thy clemency a few words; the caſe being ſo clear, that it can take up very little of your Excellency's time, to be convinced of the priſoner's guilt.

It was well known how the Jewiſh nation in general, and the elders in particular, hated Felix and his government; but now, when they have a point to carry, they liberally offer at his feet their flattering applauſe.

[2.] He comes to the point, and boldly alledges many grievous crimes, with which he charges the innocent priſoner. We found this man a peſtilent fellow, propagating his pernicious tenets like a plague; the very peſt of ſociety, and a mover of ſedition among all the Jews throughout the world, exciting tumults wherever he goes againſt the Roman government; and a ringleader of the ſect of the Nazarenes; a promoter of that deteſtable hereſy, for which, and his notoriouſly ſeditious principles, the firſt author of it, one Jeſus of Nazareth, was crucified ſome years ago. Who alſo hath gone about to profane the temple, with daring impiety introducing thoſe who were by the law forbid admiſſion there.

All theſe charges are a tiſſue of falſhoods. All the peſtilence Paul carried with him was the goſpel of ſalvation, doing good to men's bodies and ſouls wherever he came. Far from ſedition, he taught the moſt conſcientious obedience to the ruling powers. The tumults complained of, were made not by him, but by his accuſers themſelves. He ſet himſelf up for no head of a ſect, nor attempted to draw any man to his ſtandard, but to his divine Maſter: and ſo far from profaning the temple, none could behave with greater piety, ſeriouſneſs, and conformity to the law, than he had done. Note, (1.) The pureſt innocence is no protection from the vileſt aſperſions. They who make no conſcience of lies, with ſolemn aſſurances, and repeated falſhoods, will ſtrive hard but they will blacken the faireſt character. (2.) The charge againſt the goſpel and its miniſters hath often been, that they raiſe diſturbances and riots; when in fact the very perſons who lay this accuſation againſt them, are the very perſons who raiſe the tumults; like Nero, who ſet Rome on fire, and then perſecuted the Chriſtians for that atrocious deed: but there is one who ſeeth and judgeth.

[3.] He inſinuates the equity with which they were proceeding againſt the priſoner, by a fair trial according to the law; when Lyſias, the chief captain, interrupting the courſe of juſtice, by violence ſeized the priſoner, and carried him off, obliging them to all this trouble and expence, by bringing the cauſe hither: but he hopes now at leaſt juſtice will be done, and that the governor, fully ſatisfied of Paul's guilt, will pronounce ſentence againſt him.

Nothing could be more falſe and invidious than this aſſertion; but Lyſias was not here to diſprove it, and he hoped the weight of evidence which he brought with him would prevail.

3. The high prieſts and elders added their ſolemn atteſtation to the truth of Tertullus's harangue: nor is it a marvel, that they who wanted to murder Paul by aſſaſſination, ſhould now attempt to carry their point by the blackeſt perjury.

10. Then Paul, after that the governor had beckoned unto him to ſpeak, anſwered, Foraſmuch as I know that thou haſt been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do the more chearfully anſwer for myſelf: 11. Becauſe that thou mayeſt underſtand, that there are yet but twelve days ſince I went up to Jeruſalem for to worſhip. 12. And [e] they neither found me in the temple diſputing with any man, neither raiſing up the people, neither in the ſynagogues, nor in the city. 13. Neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuſe me. 14. But this I confeſs unto thee, that after [f] the way which they call hereſy, ſo worſhip I [g] the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in [h] the law and the prophets: 15. And have hope towards God, which they themſelves alſo allow, that [i] there ſhall be a reſurrection of the dead, both of the juſt and unjuſt. 16. And herein do I exerciſe myſelf [k] to have always a conſcience void of offence toward God and toward men. 17. Now after many years, [l] I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings. 18. Whereupon [m] certain Jews from Aſia found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude, nor with tumult. 19. [n] Who ought to have been here before thee, and object, if they had ought againſt me. 20. Or elſe let theſe ſame here ſay, if they have found any evil-doing in me, while I ſtood before the council, 21. Except it be for this one voice, that I cried ſtanding among them, [o] Touching the reſurrection of the dead, I am called in queſtion by you this day.

[e] Chap. xxv. 8. & xxviii. 17.

[f] Chap. ix. 2.

[g] 2 Tim. i. 3.

[h] Chap. xxvi. 22. & xxviii. 23.

[i] Dan. xii. 2. John v. 28, 29. Chap. xxiii. 6.

[k] 2 Cor. i. 12. & iv. 2. Heb. xiii. 18.

[l] Chap. xi. 29, 30. Rom. xv. 25. Gal. ii. 10.

[m] Chap. xxi. 26, 27.

[n] Chap. xxiii. 30. & xxv. 16.

[o] Chap. xxiii. 6.

v. 10—21. How different is the ſpirit which breathes in the defence of Paul, from that which actuated the plauſible orator, Tertullus. He is not exaſperated with the falſehoods which were advanced, or in a heat to reply, but waited the governor's permiſſion to ſpeak; which when Felix had ſignified, he roſe with conſcious integrity, to pour confuſion on the charges of his adverſaries.

1. With deep reſpect for his judge, which was conſiſtent with that ſevere regard to truth which became him, he opens his diſcourſe; Foraſmuch as I know that thou haſt been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do the more chearfully anſwer for myſelf: Felix well knew the ſpirit and temper of the Jews by his long acquaintance with them, and could not wonder at the malice of theſe furious zealots: had half the things been true which they alledged, the governor had, no doubt, heard of Paul before.

2. He flatly denies the charges of ſedition, of which he was accuſed. It was but twelve days ſince he came to Jeruſalem, not to profane the temple, but, with high reſpect of that ſacred place, to worſhip there, where they neither found him diſputing with any man, either about religion or government, nor fomenting the leaſt diſturbance in the ſynagogues or the city, but demeaning himſelf with all peaceableneſs; and he defies his accuſers to prove one of the charges which they ſo peremptorily alledged. Note, It is in every villain's power to propagate falſhood, and to bring the heavieſt charges againſt the nobleſt characters; but every ſedate hearer and upright judge will not reſt in his aſſertions, but requires proof of the facts.

3. He owns and glories in the acknowledgment, that after the way which they ſtigmatized as hereſy, ſo worſhipped he the God of his fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and the prophets; the divine authority of the precepts, and the accompliſhment of the promiſes, and his hope towards God, and preaching, were in exact correſpondence with the fundamental doctrine of the orthodox faith which they themſelves held, that there ſhould be a reſurrection of the dead, both of the juſt and of the unjuſt; who muſt anſwer before the eternal judge, that divine Meſſiah, Jeſus of Nazareth, whom the Jews had crucified. And herein do I exerciſe myſelf, perſuaded of this ſolemn day's approach, and expecting to ſtand before the great Judge of all, endeavouring to keep a conſcience void of offence toward God and toward men. Note, (1.) The ſcriptures are the only rule of faith and practice; to them we muſt cleave. (2.) As there will be a reſurrection of the juſt and of the unjuſt, it is a matter of awful conſideration to enquire, which character is ours. (3.) Hope towards God, is an anchor which will keep the ſoul ſtedfaſt in every ſtorm. (4.) A good conſcience is our beſt friend. Perfection is not attainable in this world; but that in ſimplicity and godly ſincerity we deſire to have our converſation, this is our rejoicing.

4. As to his profaning the temple, this was of a piece with the other falſhoods advanced; the very contrary was evident. He had, after a conſiderable abſence from Jeruſalem, returned with charitable contributions for the poor ſaints who dwelt there; and having a religious vow, had brought his own offerings to the temple, where certain Jews of Aſia ſaw him, purifying himſelf according to the law, neither with multitude nor with tumult; only four perſons who had vows, like himſelf, were with him, demeaning themſelves with all poſſible quietneſs and regularity: and as to the ſuppoſed offence of having brought Greeks into the temple, which was ſuggeſted as the occaſion of the riot which was raiſed, he challenges them to produce theſe men of Aſia who raiſed this report, and ought to be here, if they had any thing to object. Or ſince they were abſent, he appeals to his accuſers themſelves, if on examination before the council, any one miſdemeanour was ſo much as proved againſt him, except they reckoned his declaration concerning the reſurrection of the dead to be ſuch, wherein he had been ſupported and countenanced by the moſt reſpectable part of that aſſembly.

A defence ſo clear, ſo ingenuous, ſo convincing, as carried its own evidence along with it, and demonſtrated his innocence of every crime they had alledged againſt him.

22. And when Felix heard theſe things, having more perfect knowledge of that way, he deferred them, and ſaid, when Lyſias the chief captain ſhall come down, I will know the uttermoſt of your matter. 23. And he commanded a centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have liberty, and [p] that he ſhould forbid none of his acquaintance to miniſter, or come unto him. 24. And after certain days, when Felix came with his wife, Druſilla, which was a Jeweſs, he ſent for Paul, and heard him concerning [q] the faith in Chriſt. 25. And as he reaſoned of [q] righteouſneſs, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix trembled, and anſwered, Go thy way for this time; [r] when I have a convenient ſeaſon, I will call for thee. 26. He hoped alſo that money ſhould have been given him of Paul, that he might looſe him: wherefore he ſent for him the oftner, and communed with him. 27. But after two years, Porcius Feſtus came into Felix room: and Felix [s] willing to ſhew the Jews a pleaſure, left Paul bound.

[p] Chap. xxvii. 3. & xxviii. 16.

[q] [q] Tit. ii. 11, 12.

[r] Chap. xvii. 32.

[s] Chap. xxv. 9.

v. 22—27. Felix patiently heard the parties, but deferred paſſing judgment upon the cauſe.

1. He put off the determination till the arrival of Lyſias, on whom they ſeemed to reflect, when he could more thoroughly examine into the circumſtances; and probably, though unwilling to diſoblige the chief men of the nation, he was little apprehenſive of any danger of ſedition from the profeſſors of chriſtianity, having more perfect knowledge of that way. As Cornelius, a centurion, long ago had been converted to the Chriſtian faith at Ceſarea, and many others, Felix was no doubt well acquainted with their principles, and an eye-witneſs of their peaceable conduct; and therefore did not readily believe theſe atrocious accuſations againſt Paul.

2. He committed the apoſtle to the cuſtody of a centurion, who ſhould let him enjoy all liberty to walk about as a priſoner at large, permitting any of his friends to viſit, converſe with him, and ſupply him with whatever he wanted. Thus the malignant prieſts were diſappointed; and Paul, though juſtice was delayed, had reaſon to be thankful for his eſcape from their malice.

3. The curioſity of Felix, and of his wife Druſilla, who, though a Jeweſs, had married him a heathen, and had forſaken her former huſband Azizus, king of Emeſſa, prompted them to hear from this celebrated preacher, an account of the Chriſtian religion, and of that faith in Chriſt which he inculcated. Note, Many are willing to know the ſpeculative principles of religion, whoſe hearts have no reliſh for the practice of it.

4. Paul readily appeared to give an account of his doctrine before them, not as mere ſpeculative opinions, but as practical principles; and knowing the characters of the perſons before whom he ſpoke, he failed not to reaſon powerfully on the nature and neceſſity of righteouſneſs and temperance, the guilt and danger of the oppoſite vices, of injuſtice, oppreſſion, exceſs, and impurity; and on the awful account which all muſt ſhortly give before the Judge of quick and dead, when, without reſpect of perſons, the everlaſting ſtate of men muſt be determined. So faithfully ſhould Chriſt's miniſters bring home to men's conſciences the word of truth, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

5. Felix, with conſcious guilt, trembled as he ſat; and affrighted, heard theſe alarming words. But more in haſte to get rid of his convictions than his ſins, he diſmiſſed the apoſtle with an intimation, that when his affairs were leſs urgent, he would hear him again on the ſubject. Note, (1.) The word of God will ſometimes make the ſtouteſt hearted ſinner tremble. (2.) Many are terrified with the apprehenſions of their ſins, and dread to think of death and judgment, who, notwithſtanding, live and die the ſlaves of corruption. (3.) In the concerns of our ſouls, nothing is more fatal than delay. If God's word hath ſpread an alarm in the conſcience, Satan ſeldom aſks more than to defer the matter to a more convenient ſeaſon, till we are older, or have leſs worldly engagements: and if he can thus far prevail, the cauſe is gained; and we, like Felix, are undone.

6. Though many future conferences paſſed between them, Felix never brought religion on the carpet. His covetous heart thought to make a good advantage of his priſoner; and knowing how high Paul was in the eſteem of his friends, he hoped they would have propoſed a conſiderable ranſom to obtain his diſcharge: but though they would have done ſo, probably Paul reſolved never to be indebted for his liberty to any ſuch indirect method; and therefore, after two years, Felix being recalled from his government, to anſwer for his male-adminiſtration, and juſtly apprehenſive that the rulers of Judea would ſwell the number of his accuſers, he endeavoured to gain their favour, by leaving Paul bound in the hands of Porcius Feſtus, his ſucceſſor.

CHAP. XXV.

We have here, 1. Paul accuſed before Feſtus, ver. 1—7. 2. His appeal unto Cæſar, ver. 8—12. 3. Feſtus relating the caſe to king Agrippa, he deſires to hear him, and Paul is accordingly brought forth, ver. 13—27.

1. NOW when Feſtus was come into the province, after three days he aſcended from Ceſarea to Jeruſalem. 2. Then [a] the high prieſt, and the chief of the Jews informed him againſt Paul, and beſought him, 3. And deſired favour againſt him, that he would ſend for him to Jeruſalem, [b] laying wait in the way to kill him. 4. But Feſtus anſwered, that Paul ſhould be kept at Ceſarea, and that he himſelf would depart ſhortly thither. 5. Let them therefore, ſaid he, which among you are able, go down with me, and accuſe this man, if there be any wickedneſs in him. 6. And when he had tarried among them † more than ten days, he went down unto Ceſarea, and the next day ſitting on the judgment-ſeat, commanded Paul to be brought. 7. And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jeruſalem, ſtood round about, and laid many and grievous complaints againſt Paul, which they could not prove; 8. While he anſwered for himſelf, [c] Neither againſt the law of the Jews, neither againſt the temple, nor yet againſt Ceſar, have I offended any thing at all. 9. But Feſtus, [d] willing to do the Jews a pleaſure, anſwered Paul, and ſaid, Wilt thou go up to Jeruſalem, and there be judged of theſe things before me? 10. Then ſaid Paul, I ſtand at Ceſar's judgment-ſeat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knoweſt. 11. For [e] if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuſe not to die: but if there be none of theſe things whereof theſe accuſe me, no man may deliver me unto them. [f] I appeal unto Ceſar. 12. Then Feſtus when he had conferred with the council, anſwered, Haſt thou appealed unto Ceſar? unto Ceſar ſhalt thou go.

v. 1—12. No ſooner was Feſtus entered upon his government, than Paul's implacable enemies beſet him.

1. After three days ſtay at Ceſarea, Feſtus proceeded to Jeruſalem; where he no ſooner arrived, than the high prieſt and elders, coming in a body to pay their compliments to the governor, failed not to ſeize the opportunity to prepoſſeſs his mind; informing him againſt Paul, and ſetting the affair in the moſt invidious light, they beſought him to give judgment againſt the priſoner; and for that purpoſe, begged the favour of him, that he might be ſent for to Jeruſalem, reſuming the old ſcheme to aſſaſſinate him by the way. How reſtleſs are the ſtruggles of malice! and what wickedneſs is not the wretched heart of man capable of, when enſlaved by envy and revenge?

2. Feſtus excuſed himſelf from granting their requeſt, chuſing rather to decide the matter at Ceſarea; either he thought their deſire unreaſonable, or perhaps ſuſpected ſome deſign; and therefore informing them that he ſhould ſhortly depart thither, he aſſured them, if they would prepare their evidence, and thoſe who were beſt able to manage the proſecution would go down with him, and could prove him guilty of any crime or miſdemeanour, he would grant them impartial juſtice.

3. After ten days ſtay at Jeruſalem, Feſtus went down to Ceſarea with thoſe who were to carry on the proſecution againſt Paul; and without delay, the very next day the priſoner is brought to the bar; and his enemies ſurrounding the judge, as if to intimidate him into compliance, or by their number to give weight to the cauſe, laid many and grievous accuſations againſt the apoſtle, as if he was the vileſt of the vile: but when the evidences which ſhould ſupport theſe allegations were required, it evidently appeared they could not prove one of their charges. While, in his defence, Paul confidently denied every accuſation, having neither offended againſt the law, the temple, or the civil government; and defied them to produce a ſingle inſtance wherein he had acted unbecoming his profeſſion, as a Jew, or his allegiance to Cæſar. Note, Nothing is eaſier than to advance high charges againſt Chriſt's people, but ſaying and proving are uſually found to be different things.

4. Feſtus could not but perceive the malice of the accuſation, and the innocence of the priſoner; but willing on his firſt coming to Ceſarea, to ingratiate himſelf with the Jews, by granting them the favour which they deſired, of having Paul tried at Jeruſalem, he aſked him whether he would go up thither, and have the cauſe decided by him in preſence of the Sanhedrim? Too well Paul knew the deſigns of his perſecutors, to conſent to a propoſal ſo dangerous; therefore he wiſely pleads his privilege as a Roman, and appeals unto Cæſar. I ſtand, ſaith he, at Ceſar's judgment-ſeat, where I ought to be judged, and am ready to appear: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knoweſt. For if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, according to the laws of the empire, I refuſe not to die, content to ſuffer the deſert of my offences: but if there be none of theſe things whereof they accuſe me, and the charge be evidently falſe and malicious, no man may deliver me unto them, and put me in their power. I claim my right, as a freeman of Rome, to be only judged there, and appeal unto Ceſar. Note, (1.) The wiſdom of the ſerpent is as needful as the harmleſſneſs of the dove, when we have to do with unreaſonable and wicked men. (2.) It is a debt we owe ourſelves to claim the protection of the law, againſt thoſe who maliciouſly attempt to wound our fame, or injure our perſon.

5. Feſtus acquieſces in his appeal. He conferred with the council, who aſſiſted him in the management of affairs; and as they admitted the right of the priſoner to claim this privilege, he anſwered, Haſt thou appealed unto Ceſar, unto Ceſar ſhalt thou go; not unwilling, perhaps, thus to rid his hands ſo fairly of a cauſe which might have involved him in much trouble.

13. And after certain days, king Agrippa and Bernice came unto Ceſarea to ſalute Feſtus. 14. And when they had been there many days, Feſtus declared Paul's cauſe unto the king, ſaying, [g] There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix: 15. [h] About whom, when I was at Jeruſalem, the chief prieſts and the elders of the Jews informed me, deſiring to have judgment againſt him. 16. To whom I anſwered, It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die, before that he which is accuſed have the accuſers face to face, and have licence

[a] Chap. xxiv. 1.

[b] Chap. xxiii. 15.

† Or, as ſome copies read it, no more than eight or ten days.

[c] Chap. xxiv. 12. & xxviii. 17.

[d] Chap. xxiv. 27.

[e] Chap. xxiii. 29.

[f] Chap. xxvi. 32.

[g] Chap. xxiv. 27.

[h] Ver. 2, 3.

to anſwer for himſelf concerning the crime laid againſt him. 17. Therefore when they were come hither, without any delay on the morrow I ſat on the judgment-ſeat, and I commanded the man to be brought forth. 18. Againſt whom when the accuſers ſtood up, they brought none accuſation of ſuch things as I ſuppoſed: 19. But had [i] certain queſtions againſt him of their own ſuperſtition, and of one Jeſus which was dead, whom Paul affirmed [k] to be alive. 20. And becauſe I doubted of ſuch manner of queſtions, I aſked him whether he would go to Jeruſalem, and there be judged of theſe matters. 21. But when Paul had appealed to be reſerved unto the † hearing of Auguſtus, I commanded him to be kept till I might ſend him to Ceſar. 22. Then Agrippa ſaid unto Feſtus, I would alſo hear the man myſelf. To-morrow, ſaid he, thou ſhalt hear him. 23. And on the morrow, when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, [l] with great pomp, and was entred into the place of hearing, with the chief captains, and principal men of the city, at Feſtus commandment Paul was brought forth. 24. And Feſtus ſaid, King Agrippa, and all men which are here preſent with us, ye ſee this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have dealt with me, both at Jeruſalem, and alſo here, crying that [m] he ought not to live any longer. 25. But when I found that [n] he had committed nothing worthy of death, and that he himſelf hath appealed to Auguſtus, I have determined to ſend him. 26. Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto ‡ my lord. Wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and [o] eſpecially before thee, O king Agrippa, that after examination had I might have ſomething to write. 27. For it ſeemeth to me unreaſonable to ſend a priſoner, and not withal to ſignify the crimes laid againſt him.

[i] Chap. xviii. 15. & xxiii. 29.
[k] Rev. i. 18.
† Or cognizance.
[l] Eccleſ. i. 2. 1 Cor. vii. 31.
[m] Chap. xxii. 22.
[n] Chap. xxiii. 9. & xxvi. 31.
‡ Gr. The Lord. Job xxxii. 21.
[o] Chap. xxvi. 3.

v. 13—27. As Chriſt had told his diſciples that they ſhould be brought before governors and kings, ſo doth he order it in his providence, that their perſecutors are made the inſtruments of leading thoſe great men to hear the goſpel, who perhaps otherwiſe never would have heard it. We have here,

1. The viſit of Agrippa to Feſtus, to congratulate him on his coming to his government. He was the ſon of that Herod who ſlew the apoſtle James: Claudius, the Roman emperor, had given him the tile of king, and the tetrarchy which belonged to his uncle Philip. Bernice, who accompanied him, was his ſiſter; but was accuſed of too great familiarity with her brother: ſuch were the great folks of thoſe times; when viewing then the preſent corruptions of the age, ſay not the former days were better, the world was always the ſame.

2. As Agrippa and Bernice were both brought up in the Jewiſh religion, after they had been at Ceſarea ſome time, in converſation one day Paul's caſe happened to be the ſubject, which Feſtus related to the king, either to entertain him with the ſtory, or to have his advice how to act, as better acquainted with the Jewiſh rites and cuſtoms, than he, a ſtranger, could be ſuppoſed to be. He had found Paul in bonds, when Felix reſigned the government to him, and had no ſooner come to Jeruſalem, to take poſſeſſion of his province, than the chief prieſts and elders clamoured for judgment againſt him; but he excuſed himſelf from a haſty deciſion of the matter, alledging the conſtant cuſtom of the Romans to adjudge no man to death, nor to conſign him to deſtruction, through any favour or partiality; but firſt to have the perſon accuſed, and his accuſers, face to face, that he might have liberty to exculpate himſelf from any crime laid to his charge. And to diſpatch the matter without delay, the next day after his arrival, the priſoner was brought to the bar; when, to his ſurprize, he found no one accuſation of a criminal nature could be proved, ſuch as came under his cognizance as a magiſtrate; but that the charge turned upon certain queſtions of a religious nature, reſpecting the tenets he held, contrary to their law, and about one Jeſus, who was crucified, whom Paul affirmed to be alive again: counting himſelf an incompetent judge of ſuch ſuperſtitious controverſies, as he regarded them, he propoſed to Paul to have the matter canvaſſed before the Sanhedrim at Jeruſalem; but the priſoner objecting to them, had pleaded his privilege, and appealed unto Cæſar; he was therefore ſtill in cuſtody, till an opportunity offered to ſend him to Rome. Note, (1.) Every man has a natural right to be heard before he is condemned. To determine a caſe where only one ſide of the queſtion is told, is the ſure way to err, and may be the means of irreparable injury to the pureſt innocence. (2.) They who know not Jeſus, ſpeak ſlightly of him; but to thoſe who feel their guilt, and need of a Saviour, whether he be alive again or no, is a matter of infinite importance, on which their everlaſting hopes depend.

3. Agrippa, curious to know what Paul had to ſay for himſelf, intimated a deſire to hear him; Feſtus gladly conſented to it, and appointed the next day. On the morrow Agrippa and Bernice in vaſt pomp, arrayed in gorgeous apparel, attended by their royal retinue, entered the judgment-hall, where all the chief captains and principal men of the city attended, drawn by curioſity, or to pay their reſpects to the noble perſonages who were preſent: when being ſeated, the priſoner, at the commandment of Feſtus, is brought forth, more adorned with his priſon garments and glorious bonds, than they in all their vain ſplendor and empty magnificence.

4. Feſtus with reſpect hereupon addreſſed himſelf to King Agrippa, and the principal men who were preſent, and opened the occaſion of their meeting with an account of the priſoner before them, concerning whom he had been ſollicited with great importunity by all the Jews, both at Jeruſalem and Ceſarea, to paſs ſentence of death upon him, as a miſcreant unworthy to live. But when on a fair trial nothing criminal could be proved againſt him, and Paul had appealed to Auguſtus for the final deciſion of his cauſe, he was reſolved to ſend him: and as it looked abſurd and unreaſonable to ſend a priſoner, without ſignifying what crimes he ſtood accuſed of, he had therefore brought Paul forth before that honourable aſſembly, eſpecially before King Agrippa, who was moſt acquainted with the Jewiſh laws and cuſtoms, that after a full diſcuſſion of the caſe, he might have ſomething determinate to write to his imperial maſter, concerning the priſoner who had appealed to his judgment.

CHAP. XXVI.

In this chapter we have, 1. The account Paul gives of himſelf in anſwer to the calumnies of the Jews. And in that, (1.) His humble addreſs to king Agrippa, and the compliment he paſſed upon him, ver. 1—3. (2.) His account of his original and education, and his profeſſion as a Phariſee, and his adherence ſtill to that which was then the main article of his creed, in diſtinction from the Sadducees, the reſurrection of the dead; however in rituals he had ſince departed from it, ver. 4—8. (3.) Of his zeal againſt the Chriſtian religion, and the profeſſors of it in the beginning of his time, ver. 9—11. (4.) Of his miraculous converſion to the faith of Chriſt, ver. 12—16. (5.) Of the commiſſion he received from heaven to preach the goſpel to the Gentiles, ver. 17, 18. (6.) Of his proceedings purſuant to that commiſſion, which had given this mighty offence to the Jews, ver. 19—21. (7.) Of the doctrine which he had made it his buſineſs to preach to the Gentiles; which was ſo far from deſtroying the law and the prophets, that it ſhewed the fulfilling of both, ver. 22, 23. 2. The remarks that were made upon his apology. (1.) Feſtus thought he never heard a man talk ſo madly, and ſlighted him as crazed, ver. 24. And in anſwer to him he denies the charge, and appeals to king Agrippa, ver. 25, 26. (2.) King Agrippa being more cloſely and particularly dealt with, thinks he never heard a man talk more rationally and convincingly, and owns himſelf almoſt his convert, ver. 28. And Paul heartily wiſhes him ſo, ver. 29. (3.) They all agree that he was an innocent man, and that he ought to be ſet at liberty, and it was pity he was provoked to put a bar in his own door by appealing to Ceſar, ver. 30, 31.

1. THEN Agrippa ſaid unto Paul, Thou art permitted to ſpeak for thyſelf. Then Paul ſtretched forth the hand, and anſwered for himſelf; 2. I think myſelf happy, king Agrippa, becauſe I ſhall anſwer for myſelf this day before thee, touching all the things whereof I am accuſed of the Jews: 3. Eſpecially becauſe I know thee [a] to be expert in all cuſtoms and queſtions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beſeech thee to hear me patiently. 4. My manner of life from my youth, which was at the firſt among mine own nation at Jeruſalem, know all the Jews, 5. Which knew me from the beginning, (if they would teſtify) that [b] after the moſt ſtraiteſt ſect of our religion, I lived a Phariſee. 6. And now I ſtand, and am judged for the hope of [c] the promiſe made of God unto our fathers: 7. Unto which promiſe our twelve tribes inſtantly ſerving God [d] day and night, [e] hope to come: for which hope's ſake, king Agrippa, I am accuſed of the Jews. 8. Why ſhould it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God ſhould raiſe the dead? 9. I verily thought with myſelf that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jeſus of Nazareth. 10. [f] Which thing I alſo did in Jeruſalem: and many of the ſaints did I ſhut up in priſon, [g] having received authority from the chief prieſts; and when they were put to death I gave my voice againſt them. 11. And [h] I puniſhed them oft in every ſynagogue, and compelled them to blaſpheme; and being exceedingly mad againſt them, [i] I perſecuted them even unto ſtrange cities.

[a] Deut. xvii. 18.
[b] Chap. xxii. 3. & xxiii. 6. Phil. iii. 5.
[c] Gen. iii. 15. & xxvi. 4. & xlix. 10. See more on Luke xxiv. 27. or Job xix. 25, 26. Iſa. xxvi. 19. Dan. xii. 2.
[d] Luke ii. 37. 1 Tim. v. 5.
[e] Luke vii. 19, 20. or Chap. xxiv. 15.
[f] Chap. viii. 3.
[g] Chap. ix. 14.
[h] Chap. xxii. 19.
[i] Chap. xxii. 4. Gal. i. 13. 1 Tim. i. 13.

v. 1—11. As Agrippa was the principal perſonage in that aſſembly to whom Feſtus had particularly addreſſed himſelf, he ſignified to Paul, who waited the order of his ſuperiors, that he was permitted to ſpeak for himſelf. Glad of the opportunity to vindicate the glorious cauſe of God and truth, whilſt he apologized for himſelf, with dignity ſtretching out his hand, the great apoſtle, with conſcious uprightneſs and unaffected ſimplicity, began,

1. With the ſatisfaction he felt on the occaſion now given him of anſwering before ſo able and candid a judge. I think myſelf happy, king Agrippa, becauſe I ſhall anſwer for myſelf this day before thee, concerning the charges laid againſt me by my countrymen, eſpecially becauſe I know thee to be expert in all queſtions and cuſtoms which are among the Jews. Wherefore I beſeech thee to hear me patiently, whilſt I deſire, without art or diſguiſe, to relate the principles which have influenced my conduct from the firſt day until now.

2. He freely appeals to the Jews themſelves, who knew his manner of life from his youth up, that he had been educated at Jeruſalem, under the moſt celebrated of their doctors, had early embraced the principles of Phariſaiſm, and, according to their moſt rigid interpretations, had conformed to all the rites, Moſaical or traditionary, and obſerved, with moſt conſcientious regard, the commandments of the law, blameleſs in all his converſation. So that it was neither ignorance, prejudice, looſe principles, or immoral conduct, which could be urged as a reaſon for the change wrought upon him.

3. He declares freely the cauſe of his preſent bonds. It was for holding the hope of the promiſe made of God unto the fathers, of a reſurrection to eternal life and glory through the divine Meſſiah, who had appeared in the perſon of Jeſus of Nazareth, and by his riſing from the dead had fully proved his own glorious character, and ſecured the reſurrection of all his redeemed people. Unto which promiſe not only he, but all the truly religious of the twelve tribes, hoped to come, with fervency and conſtancy, day and night, in their prayers, labouring to arrive at the poſſeſſion of the bleſſings promiſed through this Meſſiah. And for this hope's ſake was he accuſed, for preaching this Meſſiah, the ſalvation which was in him, and a reſurrection to everlaſting bleſſedneſs through faith in his name. So that, inſtead of being an apoſtate from the fundamental articles of the Jewiſh faith, according to the malicious accuſations of his perſecutors, he maintained them with all his might and diligence. Nor did he urge any thing abſurd or unreaſonable, when he aſſerted the reſurrection of Jeſus, as the firſt fruits of his people: for why ſhould it be thought a thing incredible that God ſhould raiſe the dead? is any thing beyond God's power? and ought we not implicitly to credit his promiſe? Note, (1.) All our hopes towards God are founded on his promiſes. (2.) They who would come to the poſſeſſion of the eternal bleſſedneſs, are called upon to ſerve God day and night in ceaſeleſs and importunate prayer.

4. He owns the inveterate prejudices againſt Chriſtianity under which he formerly lay. I verily thought with myſelf that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jeſus of Nazareth, ſuppoſing it a duty I owed to God and my brethren, to ſuppreſs, by every means, the doctrine and pretenſions of one who appeared ſo deſpicable: which thing alſo I did in Jeruſalem, being moſt zealous againſt his diſciples; and many of the ſaints did I ſhut up in priſon, having received authority from the high-prieſts; and, when they were put to death, I gave my vote againſt them, juſtifying the moſt bloody meaſures, and teſtifying my fulleſt approbation of theſe horrid executions: and I puniſhed them oft in every ſynagogue, with reſtleſs eagerneſs purſuing them, and compelled them, through the dread of ſcourgings, infamy, or death, to blaſpheme that holy Name whereby they were called; and, being exceedingly mad againſt them, to find many of them obſtinate in their faith, and to ſee the number of the diſciples increaſe in ſpite of all the load of oppreſſion, I perſecuted them even unto ſtrange cities, longing, if poſſible, to extirpate the very Chriſtian name. If he was now therefore a preacher and a ſufferer for that faith which once he ſo furiouſly perſecuted, it could ariſe only from the deepeſt conviction; and his converſion was itſelf a proof of the truth of Chriſtianity. Note, (1.) It is poſſible for thoſe who ſeem moſt confident they are in the right, and are moſt violent in ſupport of their opinions, to be moſt dangerouſly deceived. I doubt not that many to this hour perſecute the truth, and think they do God ſervice. (2.) Nothing will lie heavier on the awakened conſcience than the remembrance of former injuries done to the ſouls of men, the effects of which perhaps are now irreparable.

12, Whereupon [k] as I went to Damaſcus, with authority and commiſſion from the chief prieſts; 13. At mid-day, O king, I ſaw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightneſs of the ſun, ſhining round about me, and them which journeyed with me. 14. And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice ſpeaking unto me, and ſaying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? It is hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks. 25. And I ſaid, Who art thou, Lord? And he ſaid, I am Jeſus whom thou perſecuteſt. 16. But riſe, and ſtand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpoſe, [l] to make thee a miniſter and a witneſs both [m] of theſe things which thou haſt ſeen, and [n] of thoſe things in the which I will appear unto thee; 17. Delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, [o] unto whom now I ſend thee, 18. [p] To open their eyes, and [q] to turn them from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, [r] that they may receive forgiveneſs of ſins, and [s] inheritance among them which are [t] ſanctified by faith that is in me. 19. Whereupon, O king Agrippa, [u] I was not diſobedient unto the heavenly viſion: 20. But [x] ſhewed firſt unto them of Damaſcus, and at Jeruſalem, and throughout all the coaſts of Judea, and then [y] to the Gentiles, that they ſhould repent and turn to God, and do [z] works meet for repentance. 21. For theſe cauſes [a] the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me. 22. Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witneſſing both to ſmall and great, ſaying none other things than thoſe [b] which the prophets and Moſes did ſay ſhould come: 23. That [c] Chriſt ſhould ſuffer, and [d] that he ſhould be the firſt that ſhould riſe from the dead, and [e] ſhould ſhew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

[k] Chap. ix. 2. & xxii. 6.
[l] 1 Tim. i. 12.
[m] Chap. xxii. 10.
[n] 2 Cor. xii. 2.
[o] Chap. ix. 15.
[p] Iſa. xxxv. 5. & xlii. 7. Luke i. 79. Eph. i. 18.
[q] 2 Cor. vi. 14. Eph. v. 8. Col. i. 13. 1 Pet. ii. 25.
[r] Luke i. 77.
[s] Eph. i. 11. Col. i. 12.
[t] Chap. xx. 32.
[u] Iſa. l. 5.
[x] Chap. ix. 20.
[y] Chap. xiii. 21.
[z] Mat. iii. 18.
[a] Chap. xxi. 30.
[b] Luke xxiv. 27. John i. 45.
[c] Dan. ix. 26.
[d] 1 Cor. xv. 20. Col. i. 18. Rev. i. 5.
[e] Iſa. xlii. 6. Luke ii. 32.

v. 12—23. The apoſtle, having related his former life and converſation, proceeds to account for the amazing change which had been wrought in him.

1. He declares the manner of his converſion. As he approached Damaſcus to execute the high-prieſt's commiſſion, at mid-day a light, brighter than the ſun, darted from heaven upon him and his companions; and, when in conſternation they were fallen together to the earth, a voice of majeſty addreſſed him, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? It is hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks: theſe mad attempts to wound me in my members muſt be attended with ruin to thy own ſoul. Terrified with this interrogation, when he replied, Who art thou, Lord? the voice anſwered, I am Jeſus, whom thou perſecuteſt. That deſpiſed Nazarene, whom he branded as an impoſtor, now demonſtrated to him his divine power and glory with ſuch evidence as in a moment bore down all his prejudices, and ſtruck him to the heart with horror, ſhame, and remorſe.

2. He who had laid him in the duſt, with infinite condeſcenſion raiſed him up, and inveſted him with that commiſſion under which he now acted. He ſaid, Riſe, and ſtand upon thy feet; for I have appeared unto thee, not to deſtroy thee, as thou haſt deſerved, but for this purpoſe, to make thee a miniſter and a witneſs both of theſe things which thou haſt ſeen, and of thoſe things in the which I will appear unto thee, giving thee farther diſcoveries of my mind and will, and directions for thy conduct; and, amidſt all the dangers to which hereafter for my name's ſake thou mayſt be expoſed, delivering thee from the Jewiſh people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I ſend thee, with an apoſtolic commiſſion to publiſh the glad tidings of ſalvation, to open their eyes, through a divine illumination attending thy preaching; to turn them from the darkneſs of ſuperſtition, idolatry, ignorance, and error, to the ſaving light and knowledge of the grace which is in Jeſus Chriſt; and from the power of Satan, who now reigns in their hearts, unto God; effectually converting their ſouls from the dominion of ſin to the love and ſervice of the holy, ever-bleſſed God; that they may receive forgiveneſs of ſins, through me, the great Redeemer of loſt ſouls, and inheritance among them that are ſanctified by faith that is in me, prepared for and intitled to the eternal manſions of bleſſedneſs, through that divine faith which worketh by love, and purifies the ſouls of all my redeemed people. Note, (1.) The whole world lieth in darkneſs and wickedneſs, until the light of the goſpel-word and the power of goſpel-grace be ſhed abroad in the heart. (2.) The great end of the Chriſtian miniſtry is in order to the converſion of men's ſouls to God. They are not ſent of him, who are never made uſe of by him to this bleſſed end, and neither know nor expect ſuch fruit of their labours. (3.) Forgiveneſs of ſins is the great foundation on which alone repentance towards God can be effectually preached. We muſt believe that he is a pardoning God, before we can have any hope of returning to his favour. (4.) There can be no true ſanctification but what flows from faith which worketh by love. (5.) Our title to glory is not of debt, but of grace. Jeſus hath purchaſed it for us, and freely beſtows it upon his people, who are the children which his Father hath given him. (6.) Though our title to the eternal inheritance is the finiſhed work of Jeſus, it becomes us to experience a meetneſs for it by the power of his Spirit in our hearts. We muſt be ſanctified before we can be glorified.

3. Born down by ſuch irreſiſtible evidence, he could not heſitate a moment. Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not diſobedient unto the heavenly viſion; but, inſtantly becoming a convert to the truth, I ſhewed firſt to them of Damaſcus, and then at Jeruſalem, and throughout all the coaſt of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, according to the orders given me, that they ſhould repent and turn to God, deeply convinced of their guilt and danger, filled with ſelf-abhorrence, and in ſimplicity deſiring to renounce their ſins, whilſt they drew near to a throne of grace through a crucified Jeſus; and do works meet for repentance, to evidence the genuine converſion of their hearts to God. Note, Unleſs our fruits prove the truth of the grace which is in us, we deceive ourſelves, if we think that we are real converts.

4. His indefatigable labours and zeal in preaching theſe benevolent and infinitely momentous doctrines were the only cauſes of provocation given to his unbelieving brethren, who, obſtinate againſt his teſtimony, and exaſperated at his preaching, ſeized him in the temple, and in a tumultuous manner, if he had not been reſcued, would have pulled him in pieces on the ſpot. Let the impartial judge if he had deſerved ſuch treatment.

5. Not intimidated by his paſt dangers, and having, according to the divine promiſe, v. 17. obtained help from God, he ſtedfaſtly perſevered, ſupported and encouraged by the Spirit's inward aſſiſtances, and the gracious interpoſitions of the Lord's providence in his behalf; witneſſing both to ſmall and great, without reſpect of perſons, or fear of man, that great ſalvation which is brought to light by the goſpel, and moſt clearly revealed through the death and reſurrection of Jeſus; ſaying none other things than theſe which the prophets and Moſes did ſay, that Chriſt ſhould ſuffer, and not be a temporal conqueror, but devoted to death for the ſins of his people, Iſa. liii. 8. and that he ſhould be the firſt that ſhould riſe from the dead, to die no more, and as the firſt fruits of them that ſlept, who, by virtue of their relation to him, ſhould be quickened by his power at the laſt day; and ſhould ſhew light unto the people and to the Gentiles, diffuſing the knowledge of his great ſalvation not only among his ancient favourites the Jews, but extending his grace to the ends of the earth, and ſending out the light of his goſpel, as the light of his ſun, to his people of all nations, tongues, and languages, who are freely called to partake of all the bleſſings and privileges of his kingdom.

24. And as he thus ſpake for himſelf, Feſtus ſaid with a loud voice, Paul, [f] thou art beſide thyſelf: much learning doth make thee mad. 25. But he ſaid, I am not mad, moſt noble Feſtus; but ſpeak forth the words of truth and ſoberneſs. 26. For the king knoweth of theſe things, before whom alſo I ſpeak freely: for I am perſuaded that none of theſe things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner. 27. King Agrippa, believeſt thou the prophets? I know that thou believeſt. 28. Then Agrippa ſaid unto Paul, Almoſt thou perſuadeſt me to be a Chriſtian. 29. And Paul ſaid, [g] I would to God, that not only thou, but alſo all that hear me this day, were both almoſt, and altogether ſuch as I am, except theſe bonds. 30. And when he had thus ſpoken, the king roſe up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that ſat with them. 31. And when they were gone aſide, they talked between themſelves, ſaying, [h] This man doth nothing worthy of death, or of bonds. 32. Then ſaid Agrippa unto Feſtus, This man might have been ſet at liberty, [i] if he had not appealed unto Ceſar.

[f] 2 Kings ix. 11. John x. 20. 1 Cor. iv. 10.

[g] 1 Cor. vii. 7.

[h] Chap. xxiii. 9. & xxv. 25.

[i] Chap. xxv. 11.

v. 24—32. Whilſt Paul, warmed by the glorious ſubject on which he had entred, was proceeding to diſplay the great truths of his Redeemer's perſon, offices, and character, he is here,

1. Interrupted by Feſtus. Unable to hear with patience what he, a heathen, counted ſo abſurd as the reſurrection of a dead man, and ſo ſtrange as this miraculous converſion, he ſaid aloud, Paul, thou art beſide thyſelf: much learning doth make thee mad. He looked upon him with an air of diſdain, as rather to be pitied as a lunatic, than condemned as a criminal. Perhaps the warmth which Paul expreſſed, as he advanced in his ſpeech, made him think his imagination was over-heated with the intenſeneſs of his application. Note, It is no unuſual thing for thoſe who never knew the light of truth, and the zeal of warm affection for a Redeemer, to ſtamp thoſe who appear fervent in his cauſe as enthuſiaſts or madmen.

2. Paul's reply was a ſufficient proof of the falſeneſs of this invidious imputation. I am not mad, moſt noble Feſtus; but ſpeak forth the words of truth and ſoberneſs, matters of infinite importance, and ſupported by the moſt ſubſtantial evidence. He does not reſent the ſuggeſtion of the governor, but by the meekneſs of his reply proves the unruffled ſerenity of his own mind; and, referring himſelf to Agrippa, he adds, For the king knoweth of theſe things, before whom I ſpeak freely, being converſant in the writings of Moſes and the prophets, where the ſufferings and reſurrection of the Meſſiah are foretold; and hath heard how they have been fulfilled in Jeſus of Nazareth: for I am perſuaded that none of theſe things are hidden from him; he muſt have been long ago told of the death and reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, and of my ſingular converſion; for this thing was not done in a corner, but publickly known, and atteſted by unexceptionable witneſſes, many of whom have, and many more are ready to ſeal their teſtimony with their blood.

3. Turning then from Feſtus to Agrippa, in the moſt affecting and pathetic manner he applied himſelf to the conſcience of his royal auditor. King Agrippa, believeſt thou the prophets? I know that thou believeſt. He cannot entertain a ſuſpicion to the contrary; and with confidence expreſſes his aſſurance of his faith in the inſpired writings: paying him the greateſt compliment, whilſt he preſſes on him the moſt important truths.

4. Agrippa is nearly ſtaggered with this cloſe application; and, ſtruck with the polite yet ſerious addreſs of the apoſtle, replies, Almoſt thou perſuadeſt me to be a Chriſtian: ſo much reaſon and evidence appeared in Paul's diſcourſe, that, were it not for a regard to his dignity and temporal intereſts, he could become a convert to Chriſtianity. Note, Many, unable to ſtand before the evidence of truth, are almoſt perſuaded; but the world holds them in fetters, and they dare not purſue their own convictions.

5. With inimitable addreſs, where the piety of the Chriſtian was blended with the politeneſs of the Roman, Paul replied, I would to God that not only thou, but alſo all that hear me this day, were both almoſt and altogether ſuch as I am, except theſe bonds. He wiſhed him and them all the happineſs which himſelf enjoyed in Chriſt, and exemption from all the ignominy and ſufferings to which for the ſake of Jeſus he was expoſed.

6. The king hereupon aroſe, unable perhaps any longer to ſtand againſt the powerful evidence of truth, and afraid of ſome more moving ſtrokes on his conſcience: the governor and Bernice followed him, with the reſt of the principal perſons. And as they retired together, and talked of Paul's caſe and his defence, they perfectly agreed that this man, however great the clamour was againſt him, had done nothing worthy of death or of bonds; ſo clear was the innocence of the apoſtle. Then ſaid Agrippa unto Feſtus, This man might have been ſet at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Ceſar.

CHAP. XXVII.

This whole chapter is taken up with an account of Paul's voyage towards Rome, when he was ſent thither a priſoner by Feſtus the governor, upon his appeal to Ceſar. 1. The beginning of the voyage was calm and proſperous, ver. 1—8. 2. Paul gave them notice of a ſtorm coming, but could not prevail with them to lie by, ver. 9—11. 3. As they purſued their voyage, they met with a great deal of tempeſtuous weather, which reduced them to ſuch extremity that they counted upon nothing but being caſt away, ver. 12—20. 4. Paul aſſured them, that though they would not be adviſed by him to prevent their coming into this danger, yet by the good providence of God they ſhould be brought ſafely through it, and none of them ſhould be loſt, ver. 21—26. 5. They are ſhipwrecked in the iſle of Malta, and by Paul's counſel all got ſafe to land, ver. 27—44.

1. AND when [a] it was determined that we ſhould ſail into Italy, they delivered Paul and certain other priſoners unto one named Julius, a centurion of Auguſtus's band. 2. And entring into a ſhip of Adramyttium, we lanched, meaning to ſail by the coaſts of Aſia, one [b] Ariſtarchus a Macedonian, of Theſſalonica, being with us. 3. And the next day we touched at Sidon. And Julius [c] courteouſly entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refreſh himſelf. 4. And when we had lanched from thence, we ſailed unto Cyprus, becauſe the winds were contrary. 5. And when we had ſailed over the ſea of Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra a city of Lycia. 6. And there the centurion found a ſhip of Alexandria ſailing into Italy; and he put us therein. 7. And when we had ſailed ſlowly many days, and ſcarce were come over againſt Cnidus, the wind not ſuffering us, we ſailed under Crete, over againſt Salmone: 8. And hardly paſſing it, came unto a place which is called The fair havens, nigh whereunto was the city of Laſea. 9. Now when much time was ſpent, and when ſailing was now dangerous, becauſe [d] the faſt was now already paſt, Paul admoniſhed them, 10. And ſaid unto them, Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with hurt and much damage, not only of the lading and ſhip, but alſo of our lives. 11. Nevertheleſs the centurion believed the maſter and the owner of the ſhip, more than thoſe things which were ſpoken by Paul. 12. And becauſe the haven was not commodious to winter in, the more part adviſed to depart thence alſo, if by any means they might attain to Phenice, and there to winter; which is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the ſouth-weſt, and north-weſt.

[a] Chap. xxv. 12.

[b] Chap. xix. 29. & xx. 4.

[c] Chap. xxiv. 23. & xxviii. 16.

[d] Lev. xxiii. 27.

v. 1—12. How long Paul continued at Ceſarea is not ſaid; probably on the firſt opportunity he was ſhipped for Rome. We have here,

1. His embarkation. Paul and ſome other priſoners were put on board a ſhip of Adramyttium, under the care of one Julius, a centurion of the legion which bore the name of Auguſtus Luke the evangeliſt, and Ariſtarchus a Macedonian, accompanied the apoſtle, whoſe preſence and ſociety could not but be a ſingular bleſſing to him in this tedious voyage.

2. His progreſs. The next day after they ſailed they touched at Sidon; where Julius repoſed ſuch confidence in his priſoner, that, on his parole, he permitted him to viſit his friends, that he might have the comfort of refreſhing himſelf with their company and converſation, and be ſupplied with proper proviſions for the voyage. Looſing from thence they beat up under the iſland of Cyprus, the wind being againſt them, and, coaſting the Cilician and Pamphylian ſhore, they arrived at Myra a city of Lycia. There the centurion finding a ſhip of Alexandria ſailing to Italy with a loading of wheat, he contracted for a paſſage, and carried the priſoners and the companions of the apoſtle aboard; and putting to ſea, through contrary winds, they made but little way, in many days ſcarce reaching Cnidus, a promontory in Caria, and, inſtead of leaving Crete on the left, they were forced to beat up on the other ſide, over againſt the eaſtern cape called Salmone, and, with great difficulty weathering the point, caſt anchor in a bay called The fair havens, near the city of Laſea. Note, (1.) In our voyage through this tempeſtuous world we may expect to meet many an unfavourable gale. (2.) Though the wind of afflictions and temptations blow hard againſt us, and we can ſcarcely bear up againſt it, if we ſteadily hold on our courſe, we ſhall at laſt reach the fair havens where we would be.

3. His advice. As the autumn was far advanced, and the faſt on the great day of atonement was now paſſed, the ſeaſon of the year began to grow tempeſtuous, and ſailing to be dangerous. Paul therefore admoniſhed them not to proceed farther till the ſpring, foretelling by a prophetic impulſe, that if they did they would repent their raſhneſs, and not only ſuſtain great damage in the loſs of their ſhip, but alſo greatly endanger their lives. But, the maſter and owner of the ſhip being of a different opinion, the centurion, who choſe rather to be guided by their judgment in this matter, diſregarded Paul's admonition; and The fair havens being an inconvenient port to winter in, the majority of the ſhip's company adviſed to ſail for Phenice, a haven in Crete, at no great diſtance, that was made by two points of land that ran ſouth-eaſt and north-weſt, and was more ſheltered from the winds, and more commodious for a winter ſtation.

13. And when the ſouth wind blew ſoftly, ſuppoſing that they had obtained their purpoſe, looſing thence they ſailed cloſe by Crete. 14. But not long after there † aroſe againſt it a tempeſtuous wind, called Euroclydon. 15. And when the ſhip was caught, and could not bear up into the wind, we let her drive. 16. And running under a certain iſland which is called Clauda, we had much work to come by the boat: 17. Which when they had taken up, they uſed helps, undergirding the ſhip; and fearing leſt they ſhould fall into the quickſands, ſtrake ſail, and ſo were driven. 18. And we being exceedingly toſſed with a tempeſt, the next day they lightened the ſhip; 19. And the third day [e] we caſt out with our own hands the tackling of the ſhip. 20. And when neither ſun nor ſtars in many days appeared, and no ſmall tempeſt lay on us, all hope that we ſhould be ſaved was then taken away.

† Or beat.

[e] Jonah i. 5.

v. 13—20. In conſequence of the advice of the majority, we have here,

1. The ſhip purſuing her voyage with a proſperous gale. The ſouth wind blowing gently encouraged them to put to ſea; and now, concluding they could not fail to reach their deſired port, they coaſted along the iſland of Crete: but the gale of proſperity is often but a ſhort-lived deluſion. For,

2. The wind ſuddenly ſhifted to an oppoſite quarter, and a hurricane, called Euroclydon, aroſe, and blew ſo vehemently, that the ſhip was ready to be ſwallowed up in the waves; ſo that, unable to bear up againſt the ſtorm, or keep their courſe, they let her drive at random; and, running under an iſland called Clauda, with great difficulty they hoiſted the boat on board; then undergirding the ſhip with ropes, to prevent her going to pieces, and fearing leſt they ſhould be driven on the quickſands of the African ſhore, they reefed their ſails, and drove before the wind under the bare poles. Thus they continued to be toſſed about violently, whilſt lowring clouds obſcured the ſkies, and neither ſun nor ſtars for many days appeared; ſo that they knew not where they were. Note, (1.) We ſhould never be too elated: the tranſition from the height of proſperity to the depth of adverſity is often very ſudden. (2.) Many of God's deareſt children have known ſuch melancholy ſeaſons, when Chriſt, their polar ſtar, hath been obſcured, and ſpiritual darkneſs hath compaſſed them round on every ſide.

3. All attempts which human prudence dictated they now made uſe of. The next day after the ſtorm began, in order to lighten the ſhip, they caſt out the merchandize into the ſea; and, when ſtill the danger increaſed, paſſengers as well as ſeamen were called upon deck; and the third day they threw overboard the utenſils and unneceſſary tackling of the ſhip; when their lives were each moment in jeopardy, they cared not for any loſs beſides: but when, after all their efforts, for many days the ſtorm raged with unabating ſeverity, deſpair ſat in general upon the countenance of the ſeamen, and they expected nothing but to be ſwallowed up of the mercileſs waves. Note, (1.) If men are ſo prodigal of their goods to ſave their bodies, when in danger, how much readier ſhould we be to part with them, rather than ſeek to preſerve them at the peril of our ſouls? (2.) Long-continued trials are apt to lead us to deſpair. It requires ſtrong faith to walk in darkneſs and ſee no light, and yet to ſtay ourſelves upon God.

21. But after long abſtinence, Paul ſtood forth in the midſt of them, and ſaid, Sirs, ye ſhould have hearkned unto me, and not have looſed from Crete, and to have gained this harm and loſs. 22. And now I exhort you to be of good cheer: for there ſhall be no loſs of any man's life among you, but of the ſhip. 23. For there ſtood by me this night the angel of God, whoſe I am, and [f] whom I ſerve, 24. Saying, Fear not, Paul; [g] thou muſt be brought before Ceſar: and lo, [h] God hath given thee all them that ſail with thee. 25. Wherefore, Sirs, be of good cheer: for [i] I believe God, that it ſhall be even as it was told me. 26. Howbeit [k] we muſt be caſt upon a certain iſland. 27. But when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down in Adria about midnight, the ſhipmen deemed that they drew near to ſome country: 28. And ſounded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they ſounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms. 29. Then fearing leſt they ſhould have fallen upon rocks, they caſt four anchors out of the ſtern, and wiſhed for the day. 30. And as the ſhipmen were about to flee out of the ſhip, when they had let down the boat into the ſea, under colour as though they would have caſt anchors out of the foreſhip, 31. Paul ſaid to the centurion, and to the ſoldiers, Except theſe abide in the ſhip, ye cannot be ſaved. 32. Then the ſoldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off. 33. And while the day was coming on, Paul beſought them all to take meat, ſaying, † This day is the fourtenth day that ye have tarried, and continued faſted, having taken nothing. 34. Wherefore I pray you to take ſome meat; for this is for your health: for [l] there ſhall not an hair fall from the head of any of you. 35. And when he had thus ſpoken, he took bread, and [m] gave thanks to God in preſence of them all, and when he had broken it, he began to eat. 36. Then were they all of good cheer, and they alſo took ſome meat. 37. And we were in all in the ſhip, two hundred and threeſcore and ſixteen ſouls. 38. And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ſhip, and caſt out the wheat into the ſea. 39. And when it was day they knew not the land: but they diſcovered a certain creek with a ſhore, into the which they were minded, if it were poſſible, to thruſt in the ſhip. 40. And when they had taken up the anchors, they committed themſelves unto the ſea, and looſed the rudder-bands, and hoiſted up the mainſail to the wind, and made towards ſhore. 41. And falling into a place where two ſeas met, [n] they ran the ſhip aground; and the forepart ſtuck faſt, and remained unmoveable, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves. 42. And the ſoldiers counſel was to kill the priſoners, leſt any of them ſhould ſwim out and eſcape. 43. But the centurion, willing to ſave Paul, kept them from their purpoſe, and commanded that they which could ſwim, ſhould caſt themſelves firſt into the ſea, and get to land: 44. And the reſt, ſome on boards, and ſome on broken pieces of the ſhip: And ſo it came to paſs that they eſcaped all ſafe to land.

[f] Rom. i. 9. 2 Tim. i. 3.

[g] Chap. xxiii. 11.

[h] Gen. xxxix. 5.

[i] Luke i. 45. John iv. 50. Rom. iv. 20. 2 Tim. i. 12.

[k] Chap. xxviii. 1.

† Or ye have continued without meat, expecting the 14th day.

[l] 1 Kin. i. 52. Mat. x. 30.

[m] 1 Sam. ix. 13. John vi. 11. 1 Tim. iv. 3, 4.

[n] 2 Cor. xi. 25.

v. 21—44. Man's extremity is God's opportunity: when we are at our wit's end, he can ſtill open a door for us to eſcape.

1. Paul chears their hearts with the aſſurance, that though they gave themſelves over for loſt, and abandoned themſelves to deſpair, not a man of the company ſhould periſh.

(1.) He gently reminds them of his advice which they had diſregarded. They ſhould have followed his prophetic warning, and then they would have prevented the danger, loſs, and injury, which they had now ſuſtained. Note, Moſt of the miſeries in which we involve ourſelves, are owing to our own obſtinacy, and diſregard of the admonitions of our wiſer friends.

(2.) He confidently aſſures them of the ſafety of their perſons, though their ſhip muſt be wrecked; and therefore exhorts them to be of good cheer. Notwithſtanding their contempt of his advice, he deſired to revive their deſponding hearts, and to quicken them to beſtir themſelves in the confidence of being preſerved through the divine mercy. Note, Though others involve themſelves in trouble by neglecting our counſel, we muſt nevertheleſs be ready to lend them our aſſiſtance, to comfort them under their trials, or to extricate them from their difficulties.

(3.) He produces divine authority for what he ſaid, that they might reſt ſatisfied with the truth of his aſſertion, however improbable it might appear. There ſtood by me this night, in viſion, the angel of God, a celeſtial meſſenger ſent from that glorious Lord, whoſe I am; his peculiar property by redemption, as well as creation, and by his ſpecial appointment conſtituted an apoſtle; and whom I ſerve, making it the buſineſs and happineſs of my life to promote his glory in the goſpel of his dear Son, and yielding up my body, ſoul, and ſpirit, with unreſerved devotedneſs, to his bleſſed work and ſervice. And this heavenly miniſter addreſſed me, ſaying, Fear not, Paul; thou art ſafe in the midſt of danger; for thou muſt be brought before Ceſar: and lo! God hath given thee all them that ſail with thee, who for thy ſake ſhall be preſerved. Such a public bleſſing is one good man; and they who are hated and perſecuted of the world, as not worthy to live, are indeed the very perſons for whoſe ſake it is preſerved.

(4.) He comforts them, and encourages them to truſt in God. Wherefore, ſirs, be of good cheer: for I believe God that it ſhall be even as it was told me, and doubt not but the event will confirm his gracious promiſe.

(5.) He tells them, they muſt, however, expect to be ſhipwrecked on a certain iſland; which, among other things, when it came to paſs, would evidence the divine inſpiration by which the apoſtle ſpoke.

2. After many days of terror and diſmay, on the fourteenth night, as they were toſſed to and fro by the tempeſt in the Adriatic ſea, the ſeamen about midnight apprehended they were near land; and ſounding, at firſt found twenty fathoms of water, and a little farther, fifteen: leſt therefore they ſhould be driven aſhore in the dark, or ſtrike upon ſome rock, they caſt anchor, and longed impatiently for day-light, that they might ſee in what ſituation they were. Note, In the dark and ſtormy night of temptation, deſertion, or affliction, the anchor of hope, which enters into that within the vail, muſt hold the ſoul ſure and ſtedfaſt, until the ſun of righteouſneſs ariſe, and lift up the light of his countenance upon us.

3. The ſailors, diſregarding Paul's aſſurances of ſafety, thought to ſecure themſelves, whatever became of the reſt; and therefore hoiſting out the boat, under pretence of caſting anchor out of the foreſhip, they intended to make for the ſhore, and leave the ſhip and the paſſengers to ſhift for themſelves. Paul, probably by divine intimation, perceived their deſign, and immediately acquainted the centurion and ſoldiers, aſſuring them, that though God had promiſed to preſerve them, it was to be effected in the uſe of the neceſſary means; and that if the ſeamen, who ſhould work the ſhip, were ſuffered to eſcape, they muſt not expect to be ſaved. In the way of duty we may only hope for the fulfilment of the promiſes. The ſoldiers therefore, apprized of the danger, immediately cut the ropes, and let the boat drive.

4. While they waited for the morning light, Paul, the comforter and encourager of his dejected ſhip-mates, beſought them to take meat, and refreſh themſelves after their toils, ſaying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, in ſuſpenſe between life and death, and continued faſting, without any inclination to food, having taken nothing, at leaſt no regular nor hearty meal: wherefore I pray you to take ſome meat, for this is for your health, and will conduce to your ſafety: for there ſhall not an hair fall from the head of any of you. And when he had thus heartened them with his chearful counſel and countenance, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in the preſence of them all, for their paſt preſervation, the promiſe of aſſured ſafety, and the proviſion that was now before them: and when he had broken it, he began to eat, ſetting them an example. Revived by this repeated aſſurance and exhortation, and ſeeing him ſo ſatisfied, they all took refreſhment, their number conſiſting of two hundred and threeſcore perſons; and being ſtrengthened by a hearty meal, they cleared the ſhip, caſting the wheat, of which part of her cargo conſiſted, into the ſea, that ſhe might draw the leſs water, as they intended to run her aſhore.

5. When welcome day-light appeared, they deſcried the land not very diſtant, though what country it was they knew not: but obſerving a creek which ran up within the ſhore, they reſolved, if poſſible, to ſteer the ſhip thither; and weighing the anchors, or ſlipping the cables, they hoiſted the mainſail, and looſed the rudder, which had been faſtened, and made for ſhore: but ſtriking on a ſhoal where two currents met, the prow ſtuck faſt, and the waves daſhing on the ſtern, ſhe ſoon went to pieces.

6. In this extremity the inhuman ſoldiers propoſed the bloody expedient of murdering all the priſoners, leſt any of them ſhould eſcape, and they become anſwerable for them: a ſhocking propoſal! But the centurion, who now ſaw more reaſon than ever to value Paul, for his ſake would not permit ſo cruel a project to be executed: and therefore commanded every one to conſult in the beſt manner poſſible for their own ſafety; whereupon ſome by ſwimming, and others on parts of the wreck, got ſafe to ſhore, and not one perſon of the whole company was drowned, according to Paul's prediction. Note, (1.) Many a faithful ſoul reaches the ſhores of eternal reſt in a ſtorm; and however great his fears, or imminent his danger, he will find his ſafety ſecured. (2.) After long beating on life's tempeſtuous ocean, though we leave earth and all its things behind us, we ſhall not regret their loſs, when we feel ourſelves entred into the land of reſt which remaineth for the people of God.

CHAP. XXVIII.

We have here, 1. Paul's miraculous eſcape, after his ſhipwreck, from a viper which faſtened on his hand, ver. 1—6. 2. The great good he did in the iſland of Malta, and the reſpect ſhewed him there, ver. 7—10. 3. The completion of his voyage, and his journey to Rome, ver. 11—16. 4. The conference he held with the Jews on his arrival, ſome of whom believed, and others were hardened, ver. 17—29. 5. The liberty he had, though a priſoner, to preach in his own hired houſe during two years, ver. 30, 31.

1. AND when they were eſcaped, then they knew that [a] the iſland was called Melita. 2. And the barbarous people ſhewed us no little kindneſs: for they kindled a fire, and received us every one, becauſe of the preſent rain, and becauſe of the cold. 3. And when Paul had gathered a bundle of ſticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and faſtned on his hand. 4. And when the barbarians ſaw the venomous beaſt hang on his hand, they ſaid among themſelves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom though he hath eſcaped the ſea, yet vengeance ſuffereth not to live. 5. And he ſhook off the beaſt into the fire, and [b] felt no harm. 6. Howbeit, they looked when he ſhould have ſwoln, or fallen down dead ſuddenly: but after they had looked a great while, and ſaw no harm come to him, they changed their minds, and [c] ſaid that he was a god. 7. In the ſame quarters were poſſeſſions of the chief man of the iſland, whoſe name was Publius, who received us and lodged us three days courteouſly. 8. And it came to paſs that the father of Publius lay ſick of a fever, and of a bloody flux, to whom Paul entred in, and [d] prayed, and laid his hands on him, and healed him. 9. So when this was done, others alſo which had diſeaſes in the iſland came and were healed: 10. Who alſo [e] honoured us with many honours, and when we departed they laded us with ſuch things as were neceſſary.

[a] Chap. xxvii. 26.

[b] Mark xvi. 18. Luke x. 19.

[c] Chap. xiv. 11.

[d] Jam. v. 14, 15.

[e] 1 Tim. v. 17.

v. 1—10. The iſle of Melita, or Malta, ſince ſo famed for the noble ſtand its knights made againſt all the power of the Ottoman empire, was the place where they found themſelves on ſhore.

1. They received great courteſy from the people of the iſland, who are called barbarous, not as being ſavage in their manners, the very contrary of which appeared, but as unpoliſhed iſlanders, and unacquainted with Grecian literature. They were ſo far from being engaged in plundering the wreck, that their attention was taken up about the poor people who had eſcaped, wet and cold as they were: they therefore kindled a fire to dry them, and took them under ſhelter from the rain, which fell heavily, and from the cold. Note, (1.) Shipwrecked mariners are entitled to the greateſt humanity. It is a pitch of ſavage brutality beyond what heathens ſhewed, to plunder the little remains of their misfortune; yet, ſhocking to tell, even in a Chriſtian land, are wretches found ſo deſtitute of every feeling of humanity, as to be more intent on the wreck, than ſollicitous about the lives of the people: yea, to ſtrip and rob them even when caſt on ſhore, inſtead of helping and aſſiſting them. Surely ly they will receive judgment without mercy, who have thus ſhewed no mercy. (2.) Fuel is as needful a charity for the poor as food or raiment. When we hear the wintry winds blow, and feel the cold even in our warm rooms, we ſhould remember thoſe who ſhiver over the ſcarce ſmoaking embers, and through whoſe miſerable cottages the wind and rain find a free paſſage.

2. Paul, ever active and ready to ſerve his fellow-creatures in the loweſt offices of kindneſs, had gathered a bundle of ſticks, and laid them on the fire, when a viper, which had been unobſerved in the faggot, perceiving the heat, leaped out and faſtened on his hand; which when theſe unlettered iſlanders beheld, they concluded this muſt be ſome notorious murderer, who, though he had eſcaped ſhipwreck, the divine vengeance thus ſignally overtook, and would not ſuffer to live; and they expected each moment to ſee him ſwell and drop down dead. Note, (1.) Though this is not uſually the place of retribution, yet God is ſometimes pleaſed to make even here ſome ſignal monuments of his vengeance. (2.) We muſt not interpret every ſudden ſtroke of God, or remarkable affliction, as a divine judgment: the beſt of men have been often moſt ſeverely exerciſed.

3. The apoſtle, with perfect compoſure of mind, and truſt on Chriſt's promiſe, (Mark xvi. 18.) ſhook off the venomous animal into the fire; and remaining to their aſtoniſhment unhurt, they, after a while, changed their opinion of him, and fancied he muſt be more than human, even one of their immortal gods, who could thus defy the viper's venom. So changeable are the ſentiments of the populace; he that is run down as a murderer to-day, is ſometimes cried up as a god to-morrow.

4. The poſſeſſions of the chief man of the iſland, whoſe name was Publius, lay near the place where the ſhip had been caſt away, and he moſt hoſpitably entertained them three days, till they could be otherwiſe provided for: and in return for his civility God ſo ordered it in his providence, that he ſhould not loſe his reward. Publius's father now lay dangerouſly ill of a fever and the bloody flux; Paul therefore went in, and praying over him, laid his hands on him, and in the name of his divine Maſter healed him inſtantaneouſly. The fame of which miracle ſoon ſpread, and others who were diſeaſed made their applications to the apoſtle, and freely received the cure of all their ſeveral maladies. Note, (1.) They who have large poſſeſſions ſhould exerciſe proportionable hoſpitality, and be generous ſtewards of theſe temporal gifts of God. (2.) Kindneſs ſhewn to God's miniſters, their Maſter ſomehow or other will take care to repay.

5. This grateful people, during their ſtay, failed not to pay them the higheſt veneration and reſpect. Moſt probably the apoſtle not only healed their bodily diſeaſes, but with his companions preached to them the goſpel of Jeſus for the healing of their ſouls; and therefore the Malteſe at their departure liberally furniſhed them with all neceſſaries for the voyage. Having ſhared their ſpiritual things, they gladly in return communicated of their worldly things.

11. And after three months we departed in a ſhip of Alexandria, which had wintered in the iſle, whoſe ſign was Caſtor and Pollux. 12. And landing at Syracuſe, we tarried there three days. 13. And from thence we fet a compaſs, and came to Rhegium: and after one day the ſouth wind blew, and we came the next day to Puteoli: 14. Where we found brethren, and were deſired to tarry with them ſeven days: and ſo we went toward Rome. 15. And from thence, when the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us as far as Appii-forum, and the three taverns: whom when Paul ſaw, he thanked God, and took courage. 16. And when we came to Rome, the centurion delivered the priſoners to the captain of the guard: but [f] Paul was ſuffered to dwell by himſelf, with a ſoldier that kept him.

[f] Chap. xxiv. 23. & xxvii. 3.

v. 11—16. After three months ſtay on the iſland, when the ſpring returned, they once more purſued their voyage, and met with no more difficulties.

1. They embarked in another ſhip of Alexandria, which had wintered at Malta, and bore the images of Caſtor and Pollux, under whoſe protection the wretched idolaters expected ſafety.

2. After a proſperous voyage they landed at Syracuſe in the iſle of Sicily, where they ſtayed three days. From thence they fetched a compaſs round, and arrived at Rhegium, the firſt port they made in Italy. The next day, taking advantage of the ſouth wind, they proceeded to Puteoli, near Naples, from whence they were to travel by land to Rome. At Puteoli Paul and his companions, to their great comfort, found ſome Chriſtian brethren, who requeſted him to ſtay a week with them, that they might ſpend one Lord's day together, which the centurion kindly permitted him to do; and from thence they ſet forward for the great metropolis of the world, the place of their deſtination.

3. The Chriſtians who were at Rome no ſooner heard of his coming from Puteoli, than they ſet forward to meet him on the road, to ſhew reſpect to one who had ſo eminently diſtinguiſhed himſelf in the cauſe, and was particularly endeared to them by the affectionate epiſtle which they had received from him. Some of them went as far as the town called Appii-forum, above fifty miles; and others as far as the three taverns, (triæ tabernæ), a place upwards of thirty miles from Rome, to receive him, not aſhamed of his bonds. Their preſence much refreſhed his heart; when he ſaw them, he thanked God for the grace which appeared in theſe faithful brethren, and took courage; his drooping ſpirits revived, and now he can boldly face the bloody Nero, before whom he muſt appear. Nothing ſo encourages the hearts of miniſters amidſt the greateſt oppoſition of enemies, as the company and countenance of ſome faithful friends, who dare own and ſtand by them in defiance of reproach or danger.

4. On their arrival at Rome, the centurion delivered up his charge of priſoners to the captain of the guard. The reſt probably were committed to cloſe cuſtody; but Paul, either thro' the letter of Feſtus, or the requeſt of Julius, was left a priſoner at large, being permitted to dwell in lodgings, with a ſoldier chained to him as his guard.

17. And it came to paſs, that after three days, Paul called the chief of the Jews together. And when they were come together, he ſaid unto them, Men and brethren, though [g] I have committed nothing againſt the people or cuſtoms of our fathers, yet [h] was I delivered priſoner from Jeruſalem into the hands of the Romans. 18. Who [i] when they had examined me, would have let me go, becauſe there was no cauſe of death in me. 19. But when the Jews ſpake againſt it, [k] I was conſtrained to appeal unto Ceſar; not that I had ought to accuſe my nation of. 20. For this cauſe therefore have I called for you, to ſee you, and to ſpeak with you: becauſe that [l] for the hope of Iſrael I am bound with [m] this chain. 21. And they ſaid unto him, We neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither any of the brethren that came, ſhewed or ſpake any harm of thee. 22. But we deſire to hear of thee what thou thinkeſt: for as concerning this ſect, we know that [n] every where it is ſpoken againſt.

[g] Chap. xxv. 8.
[h] Chap. xxi. 33.
[i] Chap. xxii. 24. & xxiv. 10. & xxv. 8. & xxvi. 31.
[k] Chap. xxv. 11.
[l] Chap. xxvi. 6, 7.
[m] Ibid. 29. Eph. ii. 20. & vi. 20. 2 Tim. i. 16.
[n] Luke ii. 34. Chap. xxiv. 5. 14.

v. 17—22. Though by the edict of Claudius all the Jews had been baniſhed from Rome, at the acceſſion of Nero they returned, and many were now ſettled there, opulent and men of diſtinction. To them, after three days reſt from his journey, Paul addreſſed himſelf; and, ſince he could not wait on them, begged the favour of their company at his lodgings; and when they were aſſembled there, being deſirous to ſtand right in their opinion,

1. He relates his caſe to them, as to men of humanity, his brethren after the fleſh, and worſhippers of the true God, from whom he might expect friendſhip and affection. Though he appeared in bonds, it was not for any crime he had committed, nor for any violation of the ſacred rites and inſtitutions delivered by Moſes to their fathers, that he had been ſent a priſoner to Rome. The Roman governors, both Felix and Feſtus, before whom he had been examined, were ſenſible of his innocence, and would have diſcharged him; but ſome violent perſons of his own countrymen, filled with prejudices againſt him, objected to his releaſe, and urged the governor Feſtus to bring him back to Jeruſalem; ſo that he was obliged to appeal unto Ceſar, merely for his own preſervation; not that he meant any accuſation of his countrymen before the emperor, but only to defend himſelf, and obtain his liberty. He therefore called them together to aſſure them, that the chain he wore was purely for preaching the hope of every true Iſraelite, even the coming of the divine Meſſiah, who had, according to the prophecies, appeared, and accompliſhed the ſalvation of his people; and for declaring the reſurrection to eternal life, as the privilege of all who believed in him. Note, Chriſt is the only hope of the Iſrael of God. A ſinner who knows his real ſtate, ſees nothing out of Jeſus but black deſpair and wrath to the uttermoſt; but in him there appears grace abounding to the miſerable and the deſperate, and reigning through righteouſneſs unto eternal life.

2. In reply the Jews ſaid unto him, We neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither any of the brethren that came ſhewed or ſpake any harm of thee; ſo that they own they had no crime to charge him with. Probably his accuſers dared not appear before the emperor, conſcious of the danger to which they might expoſe themſelves. But we deſire to hear of thee what thou thinkeſt, and would impartially examine into the new opinions you broach; and are willing to know how you can prove, that Jeſus of Nazareth is that hope of Iſrael, of whom the prophets have ſpoken: for this ſeems to us highly improbable; and as concerning this ſect, which he hath founded, we know that every where it is ſpoken againſt, as maintaining heretical opinions, and diſturbing the peace of mankind. Note, (1.) Chriſtianity is no ſect, built on narrow opinions, aiming at ſecular advantages, or tending to ſow diviſion in the world: No: juſt the very contrary: it embraces all mankind who acknowledge Jeſus as the Saviour, directs us to ſeek our happineſs and true intereſts in another world, and breathes nothing but peace and love. (2.) We may not wonder if the true goſpel of the grace of God be ſtill every where ſpoken againſt: it muſt be ſo, whilſt the generality reſt in the form, and deny the power of godlineſs.

23. And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging: to whom he expounded and teſtified the kingdom of God, perſuading them concerning Jeſus, [o] both out of the law of Moſes, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening. 24. And [p] ſome believed the things which were ſpoken, and ſome believed not. 25. And when they agreed not among themſelves, they departed, after that Paul had ſpoken one word, Well ſpake the holy Ghoſt by Eſaias the prophet unto our fathers, 26. Saying, [q] Go unto this people, and ſay, Hearing ye ſhall hear, and ſhall not underſtand; and ſeeing ye ſhall ſee, and not perceive. 27. For the heart of this people is waxed groſs, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they cloſed; leſt they ſhould ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and underſtand with their heart, and ſhould be converted, and I ſhould heal them. 28. Be it known therefore unto you, that the ſalvation of God is ſent [r] unto the Gentiles, and that they will hear it. 29. And when he had ſaid theſe words, the Jews departed, and had great reaſoning among themſelves.

[o] Luke xxiv. 27. John i. 45.
[p] Chap. xvii. 4.
[q] Iſa. vi. 9. Mat. xiii. 14. Mark iv. 12. Luke viii. 10. John xii. 40. Rom. xi. 8.
[r] Chap. xiii. 46. & xviii. 6.

v. 23—29. Though naturally prejudiced, as Jews, againſt the doctrines of Jeſus, they conſented to appoint a day, and met at the apoſtle's lodgings in great numbers, to hear what he had to ſay on the ſubject. Hereupon,

1. Paul expounded to them the nature, doctrines, and privileges of that kingdom of God which he preached; explained to them all the prophecies and types of the Old Teſtament, ſhewing how they centred in Jeſus of Nazareth, and received their full accompliſhment in his life, death, and reſurrection; teſtifying, from his own and others experience, the power of this divine Saviour's grace upon the heart; and perſuading them with the warmeſt affection and zeal, to ſubmit to this Redeemer, and embrace that divine Meſſiah, to whom both the law and the prophets bore witneſs, that they might partake of that ſpiritual ſalvation which he had obtained for his people. As the matter was of ſuch vaſt importance, he reaſoned with them from morning until evening, anſwering probably all their objections, and proving at large, by the moſt convincing arguments, that Jeſus is the Chriſt.

2. His diſcourſe, as uſual, produced different effects on his hearers. Some believed the truths he preached, and others remained hardened in their prejudices, and believed not; which occaſioned a diſagreement in their ſentiments, the infidel party being incenſed againſt the goſpel word. Thus is the ſame goſpel to ſome a ſavour of life unto life; to others, of death unto death.

3. Before they parted, the apoſtle addreſſed to them one awakening word. Well ſpake the Holy Ghoſt by Eſaias the prophet, even that glorious Jehovah who inſpired the ſacred penmen, ſaying, Go unto this people, and ſay, Hearing ye ſhall hear, and ſhall not underſtand; and ſeeing ye ſhall ſee, and not perceive; amidſt the cleareſt preaching of the goſpel-word, and the fulleſt diſcoveries of goſpel-grace, they were abandoned of God for their obſtinacy to judicial blindneſs and obduracy. For the heart of this people is waxed groſs; ſtupid, ſenſeleſs, and obſtinate, thro' pride, prejudice, and paſſion: and their ears are dull of hearing; inattentive to the preaching of the truth: and their eyes have they cloſed; wilfully blind againſt the evidence of miracles performed, of prophecies fulfilled, and the divine atteſtation given to the character of Jeſus as the Meſſiah; leſt they ſhould ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and underſtand with their heart, and ſhould be converted, and I ſhould heal them. Be it known therefore unto you, that, ſince ye thus with determined obſtinacy reject the counſel of God againſt your own ſouls, and exactly fulfil this prophecy, in your preſent rejection of Chriſt and his goſpel; the ſalvation of God, which you neglect and deſpiſe, is ſent unto the Gentiles, and they will hear it, and partake of the invaluable bleſſings and privileges of the Meſſiah's kingdom. Note, They who refuſe to hearken to God's word, and wilfully harden their hearts againſt his warnings, are juſtly given up to a reprobate mind, and left to the ruin which they have choſen.

4. The aſſembly hereupon broke up, and warm debates enſued on the ſubjects concerning which he had ſpoken; ſome vindicating what they had heard, as righteous, juſt, and good; others exaſperated againſt the preacher and his doctrine, and unable to think of the Gentiles being admitted into the Meſſiah's kingdom, without the utmoſt indignation.

30. And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired houſe, and received all that came in unto him, 31. Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching thoſe things which concern the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [s] with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

[s] Chap. iv. 31.

v. 30, 31. The apoſtle had been already near three years a priſoner, and ſtill longer is ordained to wear the honourable bonds of Chriſt. It was at Rome however a conſolation to him, that he was ſo much his own maſter, as to be able to dwell in his own hired houſe, and to have all company whom he choſe admitted: theſe years therefore that he abode at Rome, we are told, were profitably ſpent.

1. He received all that came to him; his doors were ever open, and whoſoever would, might hear him: and, no doubt, multitudes, drawn by the deſire of inſtruction, the comfort of his company, or curioſity to know what ſo remarkable a perſon had to ſay, attended him. Note, (1.) Every miniſter's houſe ſhould be readily acceſſible to all who ſeek inſtruction for their ſouls. (2.) Our houſes, by godly converſation and diſcourſe, by prayer and praiſe, ſhould be conſecrated to God's ſervice; and where two or three are met in his name, he will be in the midſt of them.

2. The ſubject of his preaching to thoſe who came to hear, was concerning the kingdom of God, and the things which related to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Alpha and Omega of all his diſcourſes. His perſon, offices, character; his incarnation, ſufferings, and glory; with all the great and ineſtimable bleſſings and privileges derived from thence, were the delightful theme on which he inſiſted. Happy were it, if all who call themſelves Chriſt's miniſters followed ſo bright an example. How dry and unaffecting is that diſcourſe, where Jeſus is not exalted as all and in all!

3. He preached with all confidence; with the greateſt liberty and freedom in his own ſpirit; moſt fully aſſured of the doctrines which he taught; uſing all plainneſs of ſpeech, and with the moſt undaunted courage; no man forbidding him; neither the Roman emperor reſtrained him, nor could the Jews hinder him: ſo that, though a priſoner, God made him eminently uſeful in his bonds; and there were ſaints converted by his miniſtry even in Ceſar's houſhold, Phil. iv. 22. Here alſo he wrote thoſe epiſtles to the Epheſians, Coloſſians, Philemon, and the Philippians; wherein, though dead, he yet ſpeaketh, and we in them enjoy the moſt bleſſed fruits of his priſon labours.

The hiſtorian leaves him in this confinement. After two years he regained his liberty. Concerning his future labours we have nothing certain: the received tradition is, that after viſiting Spain, Crete, Judea, and the churches of Aſia, he came to Rome the ſecond time, where he ſuffered martyrdom, and went to receive the crown of glory which fadeth not away.

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
UPON THE
Epiſtle of St. Paul to the ROMANS.

WE are now entring upon the moſt peculiarly profitable parts of the book of God. All ſcripture is given by inſpiration of God; but among the bright volumes it contains, Paul's Epiſtles ſhine with diſtinguiſhed luſtre; in which the grand truths of Chriſtianity appear in all their glory, illuſtrated, defended, the objections againſt them anſwered, and the doctrines of grace explicitly taught, and urged with the warmth of a heart which felt its need of them.

Though others of the epiſtles in order of time precede this to the Romans, it ſtands firſt in the collection, as being the largeſt, and containing the moſt comprehenſive view of the peculiar doctrines and duties of our holy religion. It was written, as is generally ſuppoſed, about the year 57, from Corinth, juſt before the apoſtle departed for Troas in his way to Jeruſalem, See Acts xx. 2, 3, &c.

The chief deſign of this epiſtle is to ſhew the only way of a ſinner's acceptance with God, whether he be Jew or Gentile, even through faith in the blood and righteouſneſs of Jeſus; to exalt the glory of God's grace in this method of ſalvation; and to vindicate it from the objections of the Judaizing Chriſtians, who by placing ſome dependance on the works of the law, moral and ceremonial, debaſed the purity of the goſpel. In the firſt fifteen verſes the apoſtle introduces and aſſerts the doctrine of a free ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt; the neceſſity of which he proves in the remaining part of that chapter and the following, where it appears, that the Gentiles could not be juſtified by the law of nature, nor the Jews by the law of Moſes; that both being guilty before God, muſt be juſtified freely by faith in Jeſus Chriſt, or periſh; and that Abraham, the father of the faithful, thus found acceptance with God, (chap. iv. 1, 2, 3, 4.) He purſues the argument in the 5th chapter as far as the fall of man, the cauſe of all the ſin and miſery which are in the world, and forms a ſtriking contraſt between the firſt covenant-head of mankind, who fell, and the ſecond man the Lord from heaven, who came to reſcue his people from the miſeries in which they were involved. And here the glory of the Redeemer's grace ſhines the more illuſtrious, when conſidered in the view of the deſperateneſs and univerſality of the guilt and ruin in which we are involved. From the views of the grace which is in Jeſus Chriſt, he proceeds to infer the neceſſity of dying unto ſin, and living unto God; declares, amidſt all the ſtruggles of in-dwelling corruption, the happy deliverance from the dominion of ſin which believers enjoy; deſcribes their tranſcendently great and glorious privileges in Chriſt, including deliverance from condemnation, the ſpirit of adoption, victory over all tribulation, even death itſelf, the redemption of the body in the reſurrection-day, and the perfection of bliſs and bleſſedneſs in the eternal enjoyment of the love of God, (chap. vi, vii, viii.) He thence traces up theſe ineſtimable mercies to their ſource, as flowing from the eternal, ſovereign, and abſolutely free purpoſe and grace of God; wherein he ſhews, that the rejection of the Jews, and the calling of the Gentiles, were according to the everlaſting counſels of his own will, revealed in the prophetic word, and every way conſiſtent with his wiſdom, righteouſneſs, and grace. He anſwers the objections of thoſe who cavilled at the divine ſovereignty diſplayed in this awful pleaſing diſpenſation, (chap. ix, x, xi.) On theſe doctrines he grounds his exhortations to the practice of a variety of perſonal relative duties, whereby the faithful in Chriſt Jeſus are bound to adorn the doctrine of God their Saviour in all things, (chap. xii, xiii, xiv, xv, to ver. 14.) and the whole cloſes with affectionate ſalutations, the promiſe of a ſpeedy viſit, if the Lord permitted, his benediction, and doxology.

Many expoſitors have grievouſly debaſed the great and glorious doctrines herein contained, reſpecting the free grace and juſtification of the goſpel, and would fain inſinuate, that the works concerning which the apoſtle ſpeaks, are not the moral, but ceremonial works of the law; that the election ſpoken of is national, reſpecting Jews and Gentiles, and not to be interpreted of individuals; and the privileges to which ſome are choſen in preference to others, are merely external, and have no reference to their eternal ſtate: the contrary of which many faithful and able advocates have fully evinced; among the leaſt of whom I ſhall count it an honour to be numbered, and wiſh to plead with them the cauſe of ſovereign grace. Not that any one can be reaſoned into the reception of theſe humbling truths: man's fallen ſpirit, his pride, and prejudices, muſt revolt againſt them; till enlightened from above, brought under a divine conviction of ſin, and led to a diſcovery of the deſperate wickedneſs, the abſolute impotence, and the inconceivable deceitfulneſs of his naturally corrupted heart, he bows into the duſt, is content to be ſaved as deſperate, and to acknowledge himſelf indebted for his whole ſalvation to God's free choice and everlaſting love. All the truths of God here deſcribed muſt till then appear abſurd, unreaſonable, derogatory, according to the notions he hath formed, to all the divine perfections, perhaps impious, nay even blaſphemous. But when the Spirit of God diſcovers to us our real ſtate of enormous guilt, the exceeding ſinfulneſs of ſin, and writes deſpair on every effort and attempt to help ourſelves; then, like a mathematical propoſition, which before appeared inexplicable, becauſe the principles on which alone it could be ſolved were unknown; we trace, admiring and adoring, the various ſteps of goſpel grace from everlaſting to everlaſting: divine evidence accompanies the proceſs, and in the full blaze of truth we diſcover in this moſt aſtoniſhing ſcheme of ſalvation the offspring of eternal love, planned by infinite wiſdom, and executed by almighty power; we diſcover glory given to God in the higheſt; the honour of the incarnate Saviour exalted to the uttermoſt; the ſinner reduced to the loweſt ſtate of humiliation, yet moſt effectually engaged to love and ſerve the God of all grace. Thus as many as it pleaſeth the Lord our God to call out of darkneſs into his marvellous light, they ſee and believe the love which God hath towards them; whilſt all the labour of critics, philoſophers, and merely letter-learned divines, leaves them juſt where it found them, groping for the wall as blind.

CHAP. I.

In this chapter we may obſerve, 1. The preface or introduction to the whole epiſtle, to ver. 16. 2. A deſcription of the deplorable condition of the Gentile world, which begins the proof of the doctrine of juſtification by faith, here laid down at ver. 17.

1. PAUL a ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, called to be [a] an apoſtle, [b] ſeparated unto the goſpel of God, 2. ([c] which he had promiſed afore by his prophets in the holy ſcriptures) 3. Concerning [d] his Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, which was made of [e] the ſeed of David according to the fleſh; 4. And declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holineſs, [f] by the reſurrection from the dead: 5. [g] By whom [h] we have received grace and [i] apoſtleſhip [k] for obedience to the faith among all nations for his name: 6. Among whom are ye alſo the called of Jeſus Chriſt. 7. To all that be in Rome, beloved of God, [l] called to be ſaints: [m] Grace to you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

[a] 1 Cor. ix. 1. 2 Cor. xii. 11.
[b] Acts ix. 15. & xiii. 2. Gal. i. 15, 16.
[c] Gen. iii. 15. & xxii. 18. & xlix. 10. Deut. xviii. 15. Iſa. vii. 14. & ix. 6. & xl. 10. & liii. 4, &c. Jer. xxiii. 5, 6. Dan. ix. 24. Acts x. 43. Gal. iii. 8. 1 Pet. i. 10, 11.
[d] Mat. iii. 17. 2 Pet. i. 17.
[e] Mat. i. 1. Luke i. 32.
[f] Mat. xii. 40. Acts xiii. 33.
[g] John i. 16. Chap. v. 2.
[h] Chap. iii. 29. & ix. 24. Eph. ii. 16, 18.
[i] Mat. xxviii. 19. Eph. iii. 8. 1 Tim. ii. 7.
[k] Chap. xii. 3. 1 Theſ. iv. 7. 1 Pet. i. 2.
[l] 1 Cor. i. 2.
[m] Chap. xvi. 24. 1 Cor. i. 3. 2 Cor. i. 2. 2 Theſ. iii. 17.

v. 1—7. The epiſtle opens,

1. With an account of the author. Paul a ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, once an invenomed perſecutor, but now called to be an apoſtle, and glorying in this honourable name; ſeparated unto the goſpel of God; to that delightful and happy work of preaching the glad tidings of ſalvation through a dying Redeemer; ſignally diſtinguiſhed by the Spirit's call, qualified by the effectual working of his mighty power, and ſolemnly dedicated and devoted to this ſervice.

2. The apoſtle no ſooner mentions the goſpel of God, than his heart fires at the views of its glory and excellence. The wondrous ſcheme had been planned in the divine mind from eternity; had been the burden of the prophetic word from the beginning, where various hints of it had been given, and promiſes made of a more clear revelation of the divine mind and will, which might be expected in the fulneſs of time. The grand ſubject of this goſpel is Jeſus Chriſt, the Meſſiah, the anointed Saviour, and our Lord; the object of our faith and worſhip, and the King to whom we owe all duty and allegiance; who in his human nature was made of the ſeed of David according to the fleſh, as had been foretold, (Pſ. cxxxii. 11.) and as to his divine nature, he was declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holineſs, by the reſurrection from the dead. As the eternal Son of God, he poſſeſſed the ſame divine nature and perfections with the Father, they being one in the Spirit of holineſs, in the eſſence of the undivided Godhead; a demonſtration of which appeared, when by the exertion of his own power, through the operation of the holy Spirit, he raiſed his body from the grave; ſo that he appears to be God and man in one Chriſt.

3. From this riſen Saviour he profeſſes to have received, together with his brethren, grace and apoſtleſhip; both the high honour of that office, and ability to diſcharge it to the glory of God; for obedience to the faith among all nations for his name; this being the great end of their miniſtry, to bring all men, both Jews and Gentiles, to the faith of the goſpel, and that holy obedience which flows from it, by which the name of Jeſus ſhould be to eternity exalted. Note, As obedience to God's law is the great fruit of faith, ſo is faith itſelf a moſt eminent part of obedience, when conſidered as an act of ſubmiſſion to the righteouſneſs of God.

4. He with pleaſure mentions the happy lot they had among thoſe who were become obedient to the faith; among whom are ye alſo the called of Chriſt Jeſus; by his word and ſpirit effectually brought to the participation of all the privileges of the goſpel; beloved of God from eternity, and in his good time called to be ſaints; ſeparated from a world that lieth in wickedneſs, for his peculiar people. Note, Every one truly called of Jeſus is the happy object of the divine regard, and obliged to anſwer in their ſpirit and converſation the honourable title they bear, as the ſaints of God.

5. To theſe the apoſtle addreſſes his epiſtle. To all that be in Rome, profeſſors of the faith, and in the judgment of charity partakers of the grace of God in truth, may grace, pardoning, comforting, quickening, ſanctifying, be multiplied to you; and peace, the bleſſed effect thereof, from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

8. Firſt, [n] I thank my God through Jeſus Chriſt for you all, that [o] your faith is ſpoken of throughout the whole world. 9. For [p] God is my witneſs, [q] whom I ſerve with my ſpirit in the goſpel of his Son, that [r] without ceaſing I make mention of you always in my prayers, 10. Making requeſt (if by any means now at length I might have a proſperous journey [s] by the will of God) to come unto you. 11. For I long to ſee you, that [t] I may impart unto you ſome ſpiritual gift, to the end you may be eſtabliſhed; 12. That is, that [u] I may be comforted together with you, by the mutual faith both of you and me. 13. Now I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that [x] oftentimes I purpoſed to come unto you (but was let hitherto) that [y] I might have ſome fruit among you alſo, even as among other Gentiles. 14. [z] I am debter both to the Greeks, and to the barbarians, both to the wiſe, and to the unwiſe. 15. So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the goſpel to you that are at Rome alſo.

[n] Eph. v. 20.
[o] Chap. xvi. 19. 1 Theſ. i. 8. 2 John 4.
[p] Chap. ix. 1. 2 Cor. i. 23. & xi. 31.
[q] John iv. 23. Phil. iii. 3.
[r] 1 Theſ. iii. 10. 2 Tim. i. 3.
[s] Jam. iv. 15.
[t] Chap. xv. 29.
[u] Ibid. 32. 3 John 3.
[x] Acts xix. 21. 1 Theſ. ii. 8.
[y] Phil. iv. 17.
[z] 1 Cor. ix. 16—22. 2 Cor. xi. 28, 29.

v. 8—15. After the warmeſt wiſhes for all ſpiritual bleſſings upon them, and his authoritative benediction, in the fulleſt confidence that the grace and peace he prayed for, would be beſtowed upon them,

1. He thanks God on their behalf, whom he calls my God, happy in an aſſured intereſt in his favour and love through Jeſus Chriſt, by whom alone every mercy deſcended on him or them. And the matter of his thankſgiving was, their faith ſpoken of throughout the world; they had approved themſelves eminently faithful, and were the glory and joy of the churches, who triumphed in their eminent attainments. Note, (1.) When faith can ſay, my God, then the heart will be filled with thankſgiving and praiſe. (2.) A Chriſtian's heart glows with gratitude, when he beholds the power of divine grace ſhining in the converſation of his brethren. (3.) Though we may not affect a name in the world, yet it is highly deſireable to be ſpoken of by good men, and that our faith and conduct ſhould receive their approbation.

2. He appeals to God for his inceſſant prayers on their behalf. God is my witneſs, whom I ſerve with my ſpirit in the goſpel of his Son;

Son, moſt willingly, affectionately, and faithfully preaching the glad tidings of ſalvation through the divine Redeemer; that without ceaſing I make mention of you always in my prayers, begging the beſt of bleſſings may deſcend upon you; and particularly making requeſt, (if by any means now at length I might have a proſperous journey by the will of God) to come unto you, and enjoy the comfort of perſonal converſation with you. Note, (1.) Thoſe whom we truly love, we ſhall remember without ceaſing at the throne of grace. (2.) God's ſervice muſt engage our ſouls: nothing is acceptable to him, but what is done heartily with an eye to his glory. (3.) In all our journeys the Lord ſhould be regarded: though we deviſe our way, he muſt direct our ſteps.

3. The ends he propoſed to himſelf in this viſit, were, [1.] Their benefit. For I long to ſee you, that I may impart unto you ſome ſpiritual gift, to the end you may be eſtabliſhed; confirmed, if it pleaſe God, by his labours and miniſtry in the faith; guarded againſt ſeducers, and their miniſters furniſhed with greater gifts for the edifying of the church. [2.] Their mutual conſolation. That is, that I may be comforted together with you, by the mutual faith both of you and me; when by communicating their mutual experience, they might diſcover the effectual workings of the ſame divine faith, and rejoice together in the glorious hope ſet before them. Note, (1.) The higheſt advanced in faith and grace have need of farther eſtabliſhment. We have not yet attained, nor are already perfect. (2.) Mutual communications of the dealings of God with our ſouls, greatly tend both to our comfort and eſtabliſhment in the faith.

4. He informs them that he had long meditated a viſit to them, though hitherto he had been providentially hindered by the difficulties he had to encounter, and the engagements which lay upon him; being earneſtly deſirous to have ſome fruits among them, even as among other Gentiles; that he might ſee his miniſtry attended with the ſame bleſſed effects, as in ſo many other places. And in theſe his labours he looked upon himſelf as a debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbarians; his call of God to the office of apoſtleſhip, and the qualifications he was endued with, obliged him to be faithful to his truſt: and as the deepeſt adepts in Grecian literature were, reſpecting the way of ſalvation, as far removed from the truth as the moſt unpoliſhed barbarian, he endeavoured to ſuit his diſcourſes to both, that the wiſe men of this world might become wiſe unto ſalvation thro' the goſpel word, and the weaker and more unlearned be fed with the ſincere milk of heavenly truth. Note, (1.) All our abilities and gifts of nature, providence, or grace, are lent us of the Lord, and to be accounted for to him, as being his debtors for them. (2.) We muſt ſuit our diſcourſes to our auditory; and though the matter be the ſame, the manner ſhould be varied, to give every man his portion in due ſeaſon.

5. He profeſſes the alacrity and chearfulneſs wherewith he looks towards Rome, amidſt all the dangers he might expect to encounter there, ready to preach the goſpel in the moſt public manner, and fearleſs of any conſequences from the oppoſition of the many or the mighty. The miniſters of grace ſhould thus be bold as lions in the cauſe of truth, nor fear the faces of men.

16. For [a] I am not aſhamed of the goſpel of Chriſt: for [b] it is the power of God unto ſalvation, to every one that believeth, to the Jew firſt, and [c] alſo to the Greek. 17. For therein is [d] the righteouſneſs of God revealed [e] from faith to faith: [f] as it is written, The juſt ſhall live by faith. 18. For [g] the wrath of God is revealed from heaven againſt all ungodlineſs, and unrighteouſneſs of men, who hold the truth in unrighteouſneſs.

[a] Mark viii. 38. Acts v. 41. 2 Tim. i. 8.
[b] 1 Cor. i. 18. & xv. 2.
[c] Acts xiii. 42.
[d] Chap. iii. 21. & ix. 30. Phil. iii. 9.
[e] John iii. 36. Acts x. 43.
[f] Hab. ii. 4. Gal. iii. 11. Heb. x. 38.
[g] Gen. vi. 5, 7. & xix. 13. Ex. xv. 7. v. 6.

v. 16—18. The apoſtle having experienced the power of the goſpel on his own ſoul, ſo far was he from being aſhamed of the reproach of the croſs, which to the Jews was a ſtumbling-block, and to the Greeks fooliſhneſs, that he gloried in the honour of being ſent to publiſh to ſmall and great the glad tidings of ſalvation through a crucified Jeſus; and he gives his reaſons for ſo doing.

1. Becauſe the goſpel which he preached was the power of God unto ſalvation, to every one that believeth, to the Jew firſt, and alſo to the Greek; this being the great means God is pleaſed to make uſe of, and through the Spirit's effectual working comes with demonſtration to the ſinner's heart; and it was ſent to the Jews firſt, and then more generally to the Gentile world, that as many of both as were ordained unto eternal life, might believe the divine report, and by faith embrace and lay hold of the hope of eternal life revealed in the goſpel; for therein is the righteouſneſs of God revealed, that tranſcendently glorious righteouſneſs, which God the Son incarnate hath wrought out for us, and God the Father, according to the tenor of the everlaſting covenant of grace, hath appointed as the condition of our ſalvation; hath declared his acceptance of, by the reſurrection of Jeſus, and imputes to our account; and which is ſet forth in the goſpel, as the great object of our faith, the meritorious cauſe of our juſtification, and our title to eternal glory: from faith to faith, being wholly of faith, excluſive of all works and duties of our own, (See chap. vi. 12. 2 Cor. iii. 18.) or from the doctrine of faith in the word, to the grace of faith in the heart; or rather from one degree of faith to another, as we gain clearer diſcoveries of the fulneſs, ſuitableneſs, and tranſcendent glory of that finiſhed ſalvation which is revealed to us in the goſpel. As it is written, in the Old Teſtament, which exactly correſponds in doctrine with the New, The juſt, or juſtified man, ſhall live by faith; hereby he is brought into, and continues in, a ſtate of ſpiritual life; ſo that death, the wages of ſin, can have no more dominion over him; and being regarded in God's ſight as righteous and juſt, he poſſeſſes a title ſure and indefeaſible to that eternal life which is brought to light in the goſpel, as the reward of the Redeemer's obedience unto death, even the death of the croſs.

2. Becauſe without this method of goſpel grace every human creature muſt lie down under eternal wrath and deſpair: for the wrath of God is revealed from heaven againſt all ungodlineſs, and unrighteouſneſs of men, who hold the truth in unrighteouſneſs; God's word denounces vengeance on every tranſgreſſor; his judgments paſt have often fearfully ſpoken his diſpleaſure againſt ſin; and the whole world are found guilty before him, ſince all have ſinned in oppoſition to their better knowledge, whether Jews, who enjoyed the light of revelation; or Gentiles, whom God left not without witneſs, giving them ſufficient traditionary notices of his being, perfections, and attributes, which the viſible objects around them ſerved to explain, ſo as to leave them without excuſe in their idolatry and diſobedience. Note, (1.) Every ſinner at God's bar will ſtand ſelf-condemned; he will be made to own he knew better, and did worſe. (2.) Fearful is the wrath revealed againſt all ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs of men: if it once ſeize on the ſinner, it will burn, and never can be quenched. (3.) How highly ſhould we value, and how eagerly embrace that glorious goſpel, which alone can afford us ſhelter from thoſe terrible blaſts of the divine vengeance!

19. Becauſe [h] that which may be known of God, is manifeſt in them; for God hath ſhewed it unto them. 20. For [i] the inviſible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly ſeen, being underſtood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; ſo that they are without excuſe: 21. Becauſe that when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but [k] became vain in their imaginations, and their fooliſh heart was darkened. 22. [l] Profeſſing themſelves to be wiſe, they became fools: 23. And [m] changed the glory of the incorruptible God, into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beaſts, and creeping things. 24. Wherefore [n] God alſo gave them up to uncleanneſs, through the luſt of their own hearts, to diſhonour their own bodies between themſelves: 25. [o] Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worſhipped and ſerved the creature more than the Creator, [p] who is bleſſed for ever. Amen. 26. For this cauſe God gave them up unto vile affections: [q] for even their women did change the natural uſe into that which is againſt nature; 27. And likewiſe alſo the men, leaving the natural uſe of the woman, burned in their luſt one toward another, men with men working that which is unſeemly, and receiving in themſelves that recompenſe of their error which was meet. 28. And [r] even as they did not like † to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do thoſe things which are not convenient: 29. Being filled with all unrighteouſneſs, fornication, wickedneſs, covetouſneſs, maliciouſneſs; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity, whiſperers, 30. Backbiters, haters of God, deſpiteful; proud, boaſters, inventers of evil things, diſobedient to parents, 31. Without underſtanding, covenant-breakers, without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful: 32. Who knowing the judgment of God, (that they which commit ſuch things are worthy of death) not only do the ſame, but [s] have pleaſure in them that do them.

[h] Acts xiv. 17. Chap. ii. 15.
[i] Pſ. xix. 1. Acts xvii. 24.
[k] 2 Kings xvii. 15. Eph. iv. 18.
[l] Jer. x. 14. 1 Cor. i. 21. & iii. 20.
[m] 2 Kings xvii. 29. Pſ. cvi. 20. 1 Theſ. i. 9.
[n] Pſ. lxxxi. 12. Eph. iv. 19. 1 Pet. iv. 3.
[o] Iſa. xliv. 9, &c.
[p] 2 Cor. xi. 31.
[q] Eph. v. 12. Jude 7.
[r] Wiſd. xiv. 22, &c.
† Or to acknowledge.
[s] Hoſ. vii. 3. Chap. ii. 3, &c.

v. 19—32. The deplorable ſtate of guilt in which the Gentile world lay is here pathetically deſcribed, and the judgment of God againſt them therefore evidently appears to be moſt righteous.

1. They had, though not the light of revelation, yet ſuch notices of God's being and attributes, as left them inexcuſable. Becauſe that which may be known of God, is manifeſt in them, or among them; not, I apprehend, by any light of nature, which comes with every man into the world, as ſome ſuppoſe: for the fallen ſoul is darkneſs itſelf; but God hath ſhewed it unto them, by the traditionary notices delivered down from the beginning, and by the works of creation and providence, which confirm and evidence the truth of the being and glory of the eternal Jehovah, whoſe inviſible things, his divine perfections, his eternal power and Godhead, his ſelf-exiſtence, incorporeal nature, infinite wiſdom and goodneſs, are clearly ſeen, being underſtood by the things that are made: the intellectual faculties contemplating the viſible objects, and man himſelf (κτισις κοσμȣ) the moſt remarkable creature upon earth, might from the creation of the world receive the fulleſt confirmation of what God had ſhewed unto men concerning himſelf.

2. They notwithſtanding fell into the groſſeſt and moſt inexcuſeable idolatry. When they knew God, had ſome notions of his being and attributes, and might have obtained clearer diſcoveries had they attended to the means of inſtruction which he afforded them; they glorified him not as God, neither in their hearts, their worſhip, or their conduct, regarding and treating him ſuitably to his nature and perfections; neither were thankful, inſenſible to the bleſſings of his providence, and imputing to ſecond cauſes all the mercies which they received from the firſt. Hence they became vain in their own imaginations, indulging their fancies, and, proudly reaſoning about matters which were too high for them, the philoſophers ſet up their various ſyſtems, and in their conteſts and diſputations for their own opinions erred alike from the truth; and their fooliſh heart was darkened, their boaſted wiſdom became folly, the corruption of their nature blinded their underſtanding, and, in the midſt of the higheſt pretenſions to ſcience, they ſunk into the moſt fatal depths of ignorance and error; profeſſing themſelves to be wiſe, puffed up with the conceit of their vaſt attainments, they became fools, perfect ideots in the moſt obvious matters reſpecting the divine Being and worſhip; and, inſtead of a Spirit immortal, inviſible, eternal, they changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like unto corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beaſts, and creeping things; ſo ſhockingly debaſing his dignity; ſo horridly infatuated in their wild imaginations; changing the truth of God into a lie, aſcribing to idols the honour due to Jehovah; making ſuch falſe repreſentations of him, as if he was corporeal; and worſhipping and ſerving the creature more than the Greator, (παρα) above, beſides, or contrary to him. Though they acknowledged a ſupreme Numen, their worſhip was chiefly directed to their inferior deities; and all the ſervices which they paid to their idols were the greateſt diſhonour to God, and reflected moſt highly upon his being and perfections, who is bleſſed for ever. Amen! He is infinitely and neceſſarily bleſſed and glorious in himſelf, the only author of bleſſedneſs to all his creatures, and the alone worthy object of their worſhip and adoration, to whom may it be for ever rendered and aſcribed!

3. In juſt judgment upon them for ſuch abominable idolatry, and direct oppoſition to the notices he had given them concerning himſelf, He gave them up, abandoned them to their own hearts luſts, which, when his reſtraining grace was withdrawn, hurried them headlong into the fouleſt and moſt unnatural acts of uncleanneſs, the very mention of which ſhould make us ſhudder with horror; and to be ignorant of the very ideas of ſuch horrid deeds is moſt deſireable. To commit ſuch uncleanneſs with greedineſs was at once the filling up the meaſure of their iniquities, and the heavy and deſerved puniſhment inflicted for their idolatry, the recompence of their error which was meet. And as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, but quenched the gift he had beſtowed, and acted in oppoſition to the knowledge he had vouchſafed to them, God gave them up to a reprobate mind, rejected them with abhorrence, and left them to the blindneſs, hardneſs, and malignity of their fallen hearts, to do thoſe things which are not convenient, deteſtable to God, diſhonourable to themſelves, and the conſequences of which muſt be eternally ruinous: being filled with all unrighteouſneſs. And the dreadful catalogue of ſins here given, v. 29—31. was not merely applicable to the more ignorant and unrefined part of the Gentile world, but was notoriouſly true of their wiſeſt philoſophers and their moſt famed moraliſts, who knowing the judgment of God, and having ſufficient light in their conſciences to diſcover, that they which commit ſuch things are worthy of death, as tranſgreſſors againſt the majeſty on high: yet ſo enſlaved were they by their vile affections, that they not only do the ſame themſelves, but have pleaſure in them that do them, encourage, countenance, and take delight in others who commit the ſame abominations. From all which it is moſt evident, that men of ſuch a character as theſe can never, by any works of righteouſneſs which they can pretend to, be juſtified before God; but muſt be ſaved by abounding grace, or periſh. Note, (1.) Nothing is a ſorer puniſhment than for the ſinner to be given up to his own heart's luſts. (2.) When God withdraws his reſtraints, there are no abominations into which we ſhall not ruſh headlong, as the horſe ruſheth into the battle. (3.) When we ſee the dire iniquities here recorded, and behold them in the practice and temper of others, we ſhould reflect, for our own humiliation, that our hearts are the ſame, our nature alike corrupt, and that, if we are reſtrained from the like wickedneſs, we owe it not to ourſelves. (4.) Sin againſt light and knowledge is moſt exceeding ſinful; but the ſummit of iniquity is to take a diabolical pleaſure in the wickedneſs of others, and to love ſin for its own ſake.

CHAP. II.

The Gentiles have been found guilty. The Jews are here ſhewn to be in the ſame condemnation. 1. He proves in general that Jews and Gentiles ſtand upon the ſame level before the juſtice of God, to ver. 17. 2. He ſhews more particularly what ſins the Jews were guilty of, notwithſtanding their profeſſion and vain pretenſions, ver. 17. to the end.

1. [a] THerefore thou art inexcuſeable, O man, whoſover thou art that judgeſt: for wherein thou judgeſt another, thou condemneſt thyſelf; for thou that judgeſt doſt the ſame things. 2. But we are ſure that the judgment of God is according to truth, againſt them which commit ſuch things. 3. And [b] thinkeſt thou this, O man, that judgeſt them which do ſuch things, and doſt the ſame, that thou ſhalt eſcape the judgment of God? 4. Or deſpiſeſt thou [c] the riches of his goodneſs, and forbearance, and long-ſuffering; not knowing that [d] the goodneſs of God leadeth thee to repentance? 5. But [e] after thy hardneſs and impenitent heart, [f] treaſureſt up unto thyſelf wrath againſt the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God; 6. [g] Who will render to every man according to his deeds: 7. To them, who by patient continuance in well-doing, ſeek for glory, and honour, and immortality, eternal life: 8. But [h] unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteouſneſs, indignation and wrath: 9. Tribulation and anguiſh upon every ſoul of man that doth evil, [i] of the Jew firſt, and alſo of the Gentile. 10. But [k] glory, honour, and peace to every man that worketh good, to the Jew firſt, and alſo to the Gentile. 11. For [l] there is no reſpect of perſons with God. 12. For [m] as many as have ſinned without law, ſhall alſo periſh without law: and as many as have ſinned in the law, ſhall be judged by the law; 13. (For [n] not the hearers of the law are juſt before God, but the doers of the law ſhall be juſtified. 14. For when the Gentiles which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, theſe, having not the law, are a law unto themſelves: 15. Which ſhew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conſcience alſo bearing witneſs, and † their thoughts the mean while accuſing, or elſe excuſing one another) 16. In the day when [o] God ſhall judge the ſecrets of men [p] by Jeſus Chriſt, [q] according to my goſpel.

[a] 2 Sam. xii. 5. Mat. vii. 1, &c. Luke vi. 37. 1 Cor. iv. 5. Jam. iv. 11.
[b] Jam. ii. 13.
[c] Eph. i. 7, & 38.
[d] Iſa. xxx. 18. 2 Pet. iii. 9, 15.
[e] Iſa. xliv. 20. Chap. i. 28. 1 Tim. iv. 2.
[f] Amos iii. 10. Jam. v. 3.
[g] Job xxxiv. 11. Jer. xvii. 10. & xxxii. 19. Mat. xxv. 34, &c. 2 Cor. v. 10. Rev. xx. 12.
[h] Chap. i. 18. 2 Theſ. i. 8. & ii. 12.
[i] Luke xii. 47, 48. 1 Pet. iv. 17.
[k] 1 Pet. i. 7.
[l] Deut. x. 17. Job xxxiv. 19. Acts x. 34, 35. Gal. ii. 6.
[m] Luke xii. 48.
[n] Mat. vii. 21. John xiii. 17. Jam. i. 22, &c.
† Gr. Their thoughts among themſelves accuſing or excuſing their conduct.
[o] Eccleſ. xii. 14. 1 Cor. iv. 5.
[p] John v. 22. Acts x. 42. & xvii. 31.
[q] 1 Tim. i. 11.

v. 1—16. Nothing could be urged againſt the profane Gentiles which the Jews would not with ſatisfaction admit. But, whilſt they judged them, they in fact condemned themſelves, being chargeable with the ſame abominations, and that with more aggravated guilt becauſe of their ſuperior advantages. To them therefore the apoſtle addreſſes himſelf, and proves them moſt inexcuſeable in their cenſures, and liable to the ſame wrath of a juſtly offended God.

1. They were guilty of the ſame ſins which the Gentiles committed, yet flattered themſelves that they ſhould eſcape the judgment of God. But it was folly in them to promiſe themſelves impunity, when the God of truth and judgment had fully declared his determined purpoſe to puniſh ſuch workers of iniquity: and all who knew the unchangeableneſs of his word, were ſure that vengeance muſt overtake the tranſgreſſors, whether they were Jews or Gentiles. Note, (1.) It is vile hypocriſy to condemn that in others which we allow and practiſe ourſelves. (2.) God's judgment will be according to truth, and none ſhall be able to object to the righteouſneſs of his ſentence, any more than they can eſcape from the execution of it.

2. They abuſed God's patience, and made the moſt ungrateful returns for his goodneſs. Peculiar mercies they had enjoyed, the moſt wonderful forbearance they had experienced, and all his multiplied favours had the moſt direct tendency to melt down their obdurate hearts into ingenuous ſhame and contrition, and to engage them to return to God: but they conſidered not their deep obligations, were inſenſible to all the wonders of his grace, and after their hardneſs, and impenitent hearts, treaſured up unto themſelves wrath againſt the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God; ſo eager in purſuit of their iniquities, as if they were heaping up the moſt valuable treaſures. Note, (1.) There is a day of wrath, of terrible wrath, approaching, when inexorable judgment will ſeize the impenitent ſoul. (2.) In all God's deciſions his righteouſneſs will appear, and even the damned be forced to own their ſentence juſt. (3.) They are paſt remedy, whom the goodneſs of God leads not to repentance. (4.) A hard and impenitent heart is the direſt plague on this ſide of hell. (5.) The time of God's patience is expiring, and abuſed patience will bring down the heavieſt vengeance.

3. God, in his procedure at the day of judgment, will act with the greateſt impartiality, rendring to every man according to his works. (1.) To them who by patient continuance in well-doing, who in the perſevering exerciſe of faith in a Redeemer, are in the uſe of the appointed means working out their ſalvation; and ſeek for the glory, honour, and immortality which is brought to light in the goſpel; to them God will give eternal life: glory, honour, and peace, are the aſſured portion ſecured to every man that, under the influence of faith and love, worketh good, actuated by goſpel principles, and propoſing as his end the divine glory. And herein there is no difference between Jew or Gentile, nor is God a reſpecter of one more than the other; the faithful of both denominations ſhall ſhare the ſame bleſſedneſs; as they are intereſted in the ſame divine righteouſneſs, they ſhall be entitled to the ſame reward. (2.) On the other hand, unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, contradicting and oppoſing the method of divine grace revealed in the goſpel; but obey unrighteouſneſs, walking in unbelief, iniquity, and impenitence; indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguiſh, even all the terrors of vengeance which a righteous Judge will inflict, muſt be poured out upon every man that doth evil; of the Jew firſt, to whom all his outward privileges will be no protection; and alſo of the Gentile, who ſhall no more eſcape than the Jew, if he neglects the great ſalvation of the goſpel: and each will bear their puniſhment according to the advantages which they have enjoyed, and the means and mercies which they have abuſed.

4. In judging the world, God will regard the different meaſures of light againſt which men have ſinned, and will puniſh them according to the ſeveral aggravations of their guilt.

The Gentiles, who have ſinned without law, muſt periſh without law. They have not had indeed the ſame clear revelation as was made to the Jews at Sinai; but they have a law written on their hearts, ſome more obſcure traces of God's will have been delivered down to them, and their conſciences, though defiled, have ſome general notions of good and evil, right and wrong, truth and falſehood; by which means theſe heathens, though not having the law, are a law unto themſelves; and, when they correſpond in their practice with theſe dictates of natural conſcience, their thoughts and judgment acquit and approve them; or, if they deviate therefrom, they are accuſed, reproached, and condemned in their own hearts. The Gentiles therefore, though not ſo criminal as the Jews who reſiſt clearer manifeſtations of the divine will, yet cannot plead ignorance; they ſin againſt their partial convictions, are without excuſe, and God is juſt in executing his judgments againſt them.

The Jews, and as many as have ſinned in the law, againſt the holy commandments which were delivered unto them, ſhall be judged by the law; and, as their ſin is more aggravated, their condemnation will be more grievous. And though they valued themſelves highly on their external privileges as the diſciples of Moſes, and thought themſelves the favourites of heaven, becauſe they were acquainted with God's law, and heard it conſtantly read and explained to them, they were moſt fatally deceived; ſince not the hearers of the law are juſt before God, but the doers of the law ſhall be juſtified: and, if they cannot produce a righteouſneſs perfect and compleat, ſo far from profiting them, the law, in which they boaſt themſelves, denounces all its curſes on their guilty heads.

In the day therefore when God ſhall judge the ſecrets of men by Jeſus Chriſt, to whom all judgment is committed, according to the goſpel, which Paul calls my goſpel; not as if he was the author of it, but as being put in truſt with it; then ſhall impartial juſtice be executed on tranſgreſſors, and according to the meaſure of their guilt ſhall be their condemnation. Note, (1.) An awful day of judgment approaches: it highly imports every ſoul to enquire how they ſhall come and appear before God. (2.) Whatever is now concealed with moſt cautious care ſhall ſoon be brought to light; we believe that he ſhall be our Judge, from whom nothing is hid, nothing is ſecret.

17. Behold, thou art called a Jew, and [r] reſteſt in the law, and [s] makeſt thy boaſt of God: 18. And [t] knoweſt his will, and [u] approveſt the things that are more excellent, being inſtructed out of the law: 19. And [x] art confident that thou thyſelf art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkneſs, 20. An inſtructer of the fooliſh, a teacher of babes, [y] which haſt the form of knowledge and of the truth in the law. 21. [z] Thou therefore which teacheſt another, teacheſt thou not thyſelf? thou that preacheſt a man ſhould not ſteal, doſt thou ſteal? 22. Thou that ſayeſt a man ſhould not commit adultery, [a] doſt thou commit adultery? thou that abhorreſt idols, [b] doſt thou commit ſacrilege? 23. Thou that makeſt thy boaſt of the law, through breaking the law diſhonoureſt thou God? 24. [c] For the name of God is blaſphemed among the Gentiles, through you, as it is written. 25. For [d] circumciſion verily profiteth, if thou keep the law: but [e] if thou be a breaker of the law, thy circumciſion is made uncircumciſion. 26. Therefore, [f] if the uncircumciſion keep the righteouſneſs of the law, ſhall not his uncircumciſion be counted for circumciſion? 27. And [g] ſhall not uncircumciſion which is by nature, if it fulfil the law, judge thee, who by the letter and circumciſion doſt tranſgreſs the law? 28. For [h] he is not a Jew, which is one outwardly, neither is that circumciſion, which is outward in the fleſh. 29. But he is a Jew, [i] which is one inwardly, and [k] circumciſion is that of the heart, [l] in the ſpirit, and not in the letter, [m] whoſe praiſe is not of men, but of God.

[r] Jer. vii. 4. Zeph. iii. 11.
[s] Iſa. xlviii. 2. Mic. iii. 11. John viii. 33, 44.
[t] Pſ. cxlvii. 19.
[u] Phil. i. 10.
[x] Iſa. xlii. 19. Mat. xxiii. 24.
[y] 2 Tim. iii. 5.
[z] Pſ. l. 16, &c. Mat. xxiii. 3, 4.
[a] Jer. iii. 1.
[b] Mal. iii. 8.
[c] 2 Sam. xii. 14. Ezek. xxxvi. 20—23.
[d] Lev. xxvi. 41. Chap. iii. 2.
[e] Acts vii. 51. Gal. vi. 15.
[f] Mat. viii. 10.
[g] Mat. xii. 41.
[h] John viii. 39. Chap. ix. 6, 7. Rev. ii. 9.
[i] 1 Pet. iii. 4.
[k] Deut. xxx. 6. Jer. iv. 4. Col. ii. 11.
[l] Chap. vii. 6. Phil. iii. 3.
[m] 1 Cor. iv. 5. 1 Theſ. ii. 4.

v. 17—29. The great rock on which the Jews ſplit was their vain dependance on the law of Moſes, when in fact that very law on which they truſted denounced indignation and wrath upon them as tranſgreſſors of it.

1. The apoſtle mentions various particulars in which they proudly gloried. Behold thou art called a Jew; they valued themſelves highly on their deſcent from Abraham; and reſteſt in the law; ſecure of heaven becauſe they had Moſes for their teacher, though they obeyed not his injunctions; and makeſt thy boaſt in God, as if peculiarly intereſted in him, and, excluſive of all other nations, poſſeſſing his favour and regard; and knoweſt his will, and approveſt the things that are more excellent, being inſtructed out of the law, puffed up with the conceit of their ſuperior knowledge of God's mind above any other people, accurate to diſcern truth from falſehood, profeſſing their high eſtimation of the divine law, and from earlieſt youth (κατηχουμενος) catechiſed and inſtructed out of it; and art confident that thou thyſelf art a guide to the blind, a light of them which are in darkneſs, an inſtructor of the fooliſh, a teacher of babes; ſuch high and lofty titles they aſſumed, when regarding their Gentile neighbours, on whom they looked down with ſovereign contempt, and thought the wiſeſt heathens were but as infants to them, and needed to come to their ſchool to learn the elements of divine knowledge; when, in fact, all they poſſeſſed was but a form of knowledge and of the truth in the law; for in reality they neither underſtood its nature, extent, or ſpirituality; nor practiſed its precepts. Note, (1.) External privileges reſted upon, inſtead of improved, tend but more fatally to deceive and deſtroy us. (2.) Unſanctified knowledge is a dangerous poſſeſſion, puffing up the ſoul in pride, and leading it to perdition. (3.) A form of ſound words in our lips may impoſe upon men; but without the power of divine grace in the heart, all the reſt is no better than ſounding braſs and tinkling cymbal.

2. He charges them with various crimes, the more aggravated becauſe of the privileges in which they boaſted, and the knowledge which they profeſſed. Whilſt they taught others, they never preached to their own hearts; their lives gave the lie to their inſtructions. They declaimed againſt theft, yet practiſed it themſelves, Matth. xxiii. 14. and lived in that adultery they ſo ſharply condemned in others; they teſtified their abhorrence of idols, yet ſacrilegiouſly robbed God of his honour, not only withholding their tythes and offerings from his altar, but more abundantly by making void his law through their traditions, and, whilſt ſcrupulous in trifles, neglecting the weightier matters. Thus they ſtood moſt inexcuſeably guilty, and by ſuch flagrant breaches of his law, even whilſt they boaſted of it as their great privilege, and truſted on it as their ſecurity, they put the higheſt diſhonour upon God, and brought the greateſt reproach on their profeſſion, giving occaſion to the very Gentiles to blaſpheme and ſpeak evil of that religion, the profeſſors of which were ſo infamouſly vile; and acting over the ſame part as it is written their fathers had done before them, Ezek. xxxvi. 20—23. Note, (1.) Example influences more than precept. Indeed how can it be expected that the people ſhould believe thoſe, who ſhew by their practice that they do not believe themſelves. (2.) They who prove falſe to their profeſſions, give the deepeſt ſtab to the cauſe of God and truth.

3. The apoſtle conſiders the Jewiſh plea of circumciſion, and proves the vanity of it. It profited them, if they kept the law perfectly, to which they bound themſelves thereby; but, in caſe of tranſgreſſion, it ſtood them in no ſtead, nor were they at all more acceptable to God than an uncircumciſed Gentile. And if, for argument's ſake, it be ſuppoſed that a heathen ſhould obſerve all the precepts of the law, would he not be an object of God's regard, as much as if he had been circumciſed? and would not ſuch a moral heathen, though uncircumciſed, condemn thee a Jew, and circumciſed, if he obſerved that law, which you, though profeſſing to hold, and by circumciſion obliging yourſelf to keep, notwithſtanding tranſgreſs? Undoubtedly he would. Note, The comparative exemplarineſs of thoſe who enjoy leſs means, and make leſs profeſſion of religion, will juſtly condemn thoſe, who with greater advantages, and more pretenſions to piety, diſhonour, by their unfaithfulneſs, the holy name whereby they are called.

4. He deſcribes the true circumciſion. It is not mere outward profeſſion which ſeals a man a true Iſraelite, neither is that circumciſion, which is outward in the fleſh, available to any ſaving purpoſe: but he is the true ſon of Abraham, who in faith and ſpirit reſembles this eminent friend of God; and the true circumciſion, which God regards, is that of the heart, purified by faith; in the ſpirit, and not in the letter; where not only a profeſſion is made, but a real inward change is wrought by the power of the Holy Ghoſt; whoſe praiſe is not of men, but of God; it is what men cannot diſcern; and as they who poſſeſs it deſire not human but divine approbation, their great care and concern is that they may be accepted of God. Note, It is the heart which God regards. Let us remember then, that we have to do with him, on whom the moſt plauſible profeſſions cannot impoſe.

CHAP. III.

Having proved the guilt both of Gentiles and Jews, the apoſtle in this chapter, 1. Anſwers ſome objections that might be made againſt what he had ſaid about the Jews, ver. 1—9. 2. He aſſerts the guilt and corruption of mankind in common, both Jews and Gentiles, ver. 9—19. 3. He argues from thence, that juſtification muſt needs be by faith, and not by the law, ver. 19. to the end.

1. WHAT advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumciſion? 2. Much every way: [a] chiefly, becauſe that unto them were committed the oracles of God. 3. For what if [b] ſome did not believe? [c] ſhall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect? 4. God forbid: yea, [d] let God be true but [e] every man a liar: as it is written, [f] That thou mighteſt be juſtified in thy ſayings, and mighteſt overcome when thou art judged. 5. But if [g] our unrighteouſneſs commend the righteouſneſs of God, what ſhall
we ſay? Is God unrighteous who taketh vengeance?
(I ſpeak as a man) 6. God forbid: for then [h] how ſhall God judge the world? 7. For if the truth of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glory; why yet am I alſo judged as a ſinner? 8. And not rather, (as we be ſlanderouſly reported, and as ſome affirm that we
ſay) [i] Let us do evil that good may come? whoſe damnation is juſt. 9. What then? are we better than they?
No, in no wiſe: for we have before † proved both Jews and Gentiles, that [k] they are all under ſin; 10. [l] As it is written, There is none righteous, no not one: 11.
There is none that underſtandeth, there is none that ſeek-eth after God. 12. They are all gone out of the way, they are altogether become unprofitable; there is none that doth good, no not one. 13. [m] Their throat is an open ſepulchre; with their tongues they have uſed deceit; [n] the poiſon of aſps is under their lips: 14. [o] Whoſe mouth is full of curſing and bitterneſs. 15. [p] Their feet are ſwift to ſhed blood. 16. Deſtruction and miſery are in their ways: 17. And the way of peace have they not known. 18. [q] There is no fear of God before their eyes.

[a] Deut. iv. 8. Pſ. cxlvii. 19, 20. Chap. ix. 4.
[b] Heb. iv. 2.
[c] Num. xxiii. 19. Chap. ix. 6. 2 Tim. ii. 13.
[d] Job xl. 8. Pſ. lxxxvi. 15. & c. 5.
[e] Pſ. cxvi. 11.
[f] Pſ. li. 4.
[g] Chap. v. 8. 20.
[h] Gen. xviii. 25. Job viii. 3.
[i] Chap. vi. 1. 15.
† Gr. Charged.
[k] Gal. iii. 22.
[l] Pſ. xiv. 1—3. & liii. 1—3.
[m] Pſ. v. 9.
[n] Pſ. cxl. 3.
[o] Pſ. x. 7.
[p] Prov. i. 16. Iſa. lix. 7, 8.
[q] Pſ. xxxvi. 1.

v. 1—18. The apoſtle proceeds to anſwer the objections raiſed againſt the doctrine he had advanced, and to confirm the truth which he had aſſerted.

1. He anſwers the objections raiſed againſt his poſitions.

(1.) If the Jews are thus in the ſame condemnation as the Gentiles, what advantage have they, notwithſtanding the peculiar favours ſhewn them of God, and the divinely inſtituted rites, particularly circumciſion, which he appointed them? The apoſtle anſwers, Much every way: chiefly becauſe that unto them were committed the oracles of God. In the law and the prophets they had the moſt bleſſed means vouchſafed them to come to the knowledge of the truth, and eſpecially of that Meſſiah who was the ſum and ſubſtance of the oracles of God: and it was alſo their honour to be intruſted with the keeping of theſe ſacred records. Their advantages therefore above the Gentiles were very great and ſingular. Note, Among our moſt invaluable bleſſings we ſhould always reckon our Bibles; for in them we have eternal life revealed to us.

(2.) If it be objected to this, that, though the Jews had the oracles of God, ſome did not believe; admit it. But what then? Shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect? Shall the faithful God, becauſe of the infidelity of ſome, fail of fulfilling his promiſes to Abraham and his ſpiritual ſeed, who truſt upon him according to his word? God forbid! His word muſt be accompliſhed, and his promiſes are ſure. Yea, let God be true, let it be for ever acknowledged that he is ſo; but let every man, who dares diſpute his veracity and truth, know that he muſt be found a liar. Men are inconſtant, deceitful, and vain; no confidence is to be placed in them; but God never can nor will deceive us: as it is written, That thou mighteſt be juſtified in thy ſayings, and mighteſt overcome when thou art judged; as David acknowledged, Pſ. li. 4. for, notwithſtanding his foul falls and great unfaithfulneſs, God would not alter the word which was gone out of his mouth concerning that Meſſiah who ſhould ſpring from his loins. And he will for ever ſtand clear of all imputations which fooliſh men may caſt upon him, and be found faithful and true, though we preſumptuouſly dare arraign his righteouſneſs, or cenſure his conduct.

(3.) But ſome perverſe Jew may ſay, whoſe character I will perſonate, ſpeaking as ſuch a man, If our unrighteouſneſs commend the righteouſneſs of God, and he gains glory by our wickedneſs and unbelief, both glorifying his juſtice in our puniſhment, and his grace in calling the Gentile ſinners in our ſtead, and juſtifying them by the righteouſneſs of his Son, what ſhall we ſay? Is not God unrighteous (μη αδικος ο Θεος) who taketh vengeance for that unbelief and unrighteouſneſs, which ſerves as a foil more eminently to diſplay the luſtre of his divine perfections, his truth, holineſs, and grace? With abhorrence the apoſtle rejects the inſinuation. God forbid! for then how ſhall God judge the world? If he were not infinitely righteous in his nature, he would be unfit for this high office: and if he, by his overruling providence, brings good out of evil, and magnifies his grace more eminently where ſin hath moſt abounded, ſin hath not therefore the leſs evil or malignity, nor hath the ſinner ought to plead, ſince he deſigns nothing leſs than the divine glory.

(4.) But the ſame carnal Jew, whom I have perſonated before, may further urge, If the truth of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glory, and my unbelief, which gives the lie to his promiſes, and my wickedneſs, which gives the lie to my profeſſion, ſerves to magnify his veracity, why yet am I alſo judged as a ſinner? and puniſhed for tranſgreſſions that ſerve rather to magnify God than to diſhonour him? and may we not rather abandon ourſelves to evil, in order that good may come? and God's grace and truth receive greater glory in juſtifying thoſe who believe on his Son? And ſuch malicious and blaſphemous reports are ſpread by our Jewiſh enemies, who confidently affirm that this is the doctrine which we as apoſtles preach, and as Chriſtians believe. But we abhor the ſuggeſtion, and declare to ſuch ſlanderers of us and the truth, and to all who dare thus abuſe the holy doctrines of grace, that their damnation is juſt, and inevitable. Note, (1.) The beſt of miniſters and of men have had the fouleſt aſperſions caſt on them, and been charged with holding the moſt abhorred blaſphemies. (2.) The injured characters of his ambaſſadors God will avenge. (3.) They who abuſe the doctrines of grace, as arguments for licentiouſneſs, will periſh with moſt aggravated guilt.

2. The apoſtle returns, after confuting the Jewiſh objections, to the main point in debate, whether Jews, as well as Gentiles, were not all under ſin. Are we better than they? No, in no wiſe: for we have before proved at large in the two former chapters, that both Jews and Gentiles are all under ſin, condemned by the guilt, enſlaved by the power, and liable to the eternal wrath which is the wages of ſin; ſo that all need a better righteouſneſs than their own to juſtify them before God. And to enforce this truth, the apoſtle quotes the Scriptures, which the Jews admitted, as containing the fulleſt proof of his aſſertion. God declares, Pſ. xiv. 1. that there is none righteous, according to the perfect demands of his holy law, no not one: ſo corrupted is our nature, that there is none that underſtandeth; the human mind is darkened, and cannot diſcover or receive the things that be of the Spirit of God; there is none that ſeeketh after God, no one good diſpoſition remaining in the natural heart, nor deſire after communion with God; but evil, and only evil, and that continually. Hence of all men the Pſalmiſt aſſerts, that they are all gone out of the way, following the bent of their native corruption; they are altogether become unprofitable, bringing forth no fruit to God's glory; there is none that doth good, no not one. And the foul ſtreams which flow from this polluted fountain are deſcribed in other places of the Scripture: their throat is an open ſepulchre, voracious and inſatiable in the purſuits of their luſts and covetouſneſs; with their tongues they have uſed deceit, flattering, falſe, faithleſs; the poiſon of aſps is under their lips, ſecretly, artfully, incurably, does their tongue drop the malignant venom, to blaſt the fame or deſtroy the life of their neighbour; whoſe mouth is full of curſing and bitterneſs, blaſpheming God himſelf, and ſhooting out their bitter words of rancour and reviling againſt the people and the good ways of the Lord; their feet are ſwift to ſhed blood, every member of their body is a ready inſtrument of iniquity; deſtruction and miſery are in their ways, and wherever they go they mark their path with miſchief, ſpreading their wickedneſs as a plague, peſtilential to others, and at laſt bringing perdition on themſelves; and the way of peace have they not known, ſtrangers to whatever would conduce to their own peace and happineſs both here and hereafter; diſturbing, as far as they can, by their malignity and perverſeneſs, the peace of mankind: there is no fear of God before their eyes; deſtitute of every gracious principle: and this, as it is the root of all their wickedneſs, ſo it is the ſummit of all their ungodlineſs; they leave God far above out of their ſight. And ſuch being the divine deſcription of every man by nature, declared by him who ſearcheth the heart, and knoweth what is in man, the univerſal guilt and deſperate wickedneſs of the whole human race, both Jews and Gentiles, cannot but be moſt evident. Whilſt we read the dreadful charge, may we be led to a humbling acknowledgment of the truth, and from the deepeſt heartfelt conviction be laid in the duſt, ſubmitting wholly to the righteouſneſs of God!

19. Now we know that what things ſoever the law ſaith, [r] it ſaith to them who are under the law: that [s] every mouth may be ſtopped, and all the world may become guilty before God. 20. Therefore [t] by the deeds of the law there ſhall no fleſh be juſtified in his ſight: for [u] by the law is the knowledge of ſin. 21. But now [x] the righteouſneſs of God without the law is manifeſted, [y] being witneſſed by the law and the prophets; 22. Even the righteouſneſs of God, which is by faith of Jeſus Chriſt unto all, and upon all them that believe; [z] for there is no difference: 23. For [a] all have ſinned, and come ſhort of the glory of God; 24. Being juſtified [b] freely by his grace, [c] through the redemption that is in Jeſus Chriſt: 25. Whom [d] God hath ſet forth to be a propitiation [e] through faith in his blood, to declare his righteouſneſs for the remiſſion of ſins that are paſt, through the forbearance of God; 26. To declare, I ſay, at this time his righteouſneſs; that he might be juſt, and the juſtifier of him which believeth in Jeſus. 27. [f] Where is boaſting then? it is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay: but by the law of faith. 28. Therefore we conclude, [g] that a man is juſtified by faith without the deeds of the law. 29. Is he the God of the Jews only? Is he not alſo of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles alſo: 30. Seeing it is one God [h] which ſhall juſtify the circumciſion by faith, and uncircumciſion through faith. 31. Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: [i] yea, we eſtabliſh the law.

[r] Gal. iii. 10, 13, 23.
[s] Pſ. cvii. 42. Ezek. xvi. 63.
[t] Pſ. cxliii. 2. Gal. ii. 16. & iii. 10. Tit. iii. 5.
[u] Chap. v. 20. & vii. 7.
[x] Chap. i. 17. Phil. iii. 9.
[y] Acts x. 43.
[z] Chap. x. 12. Gal. iii. 28. Col. iii. 11.
[a] Chap. xi. 32. Gal. iii. 22.
[b] Iſai. lv. 1. Chap. viii. 32.
[c] Eph. i. 7. Heb. ix. 12.
[d] 2 Cor. v. 19. 1 John ii. 2. & iv. 10.
[e] John iii. 16. Acts xiii. 39.
[f] 1 Cor. i. 29, 31. Eph. ii. 9.
[g] Gal. ii. 16.
[h] Chap. iv. 11.
[i] Chap. x. 4. & viii. 4.

v. 19—31. The apoſtle proceeds to apply the truths which he had advanced and proved.

1. All the World is become guilty before God, and no fleſh can be juſtified in God's ſight by the deeds of the law, becauſe all have ſinned and come ſhort of the glory of God, have come ſhort of righteouſneſs, and therefore of heaven, v. 23. According to the ſeveral diſpenſations under which they have lived, the law ſpeaketh both to Jews and Gentiles, and condemns them as tranſgreſſors. The Gentiles have offended againſt thoſe precepts of the moral law, which God, though more obſcurely, hath ſhewed them. And the Jews, againſt the clearer revelation, which in the Scriptures they have enjoyed; ſo that every mouth muſt be ſtopped, and guilt evident and confeſſed appear upon every living ſoul. For by the law is the knowledge of ſin; ſo far from being able to juſtify any man, it is the glaſs that can only ſhew him his deformity, the ſtrait rule to mark his ſad deviations from it. Note, (1.) Man in his nature is become fleſh, fallen and corrupted; and therefore it is impoſſible that, in in his preſent ruined ſtate, he ſhould be juſt before God. (2.) The law is deſigned to diſcover ſin to the conſcience, not to juſtify any, but to convince all men of the neceſſity of a better righteouſneſs than their own to appear in before God. (3). All fleſh muſt plead guilty at God's bar; and no man can poſſibly be ſaved, till he has ſeen, felt, and owned that he hath deſerved moſt juſtly to be damned.

2. To thoſe who, from the conviction which the law brings to their conſciences, are driven to deſpair of acceptance with God, on account of any doings and duties of their own, the goſpel reveals the method of divine grace, appointed and provided for the ſinner's juſtification before God. But now, ſince all hope is fled of obtaining favour with God on the footing of our own obedience, the righteouſneſs of God, that divine righteouſneſs which God incarnate wrought out, and which God the Father accepts on our behalf, without the law, which the moral law never diſcovered, but required perſonal, not imputed righteouſneſs; and which is complete, excluſive of all reſpect to any obedience of ours to the law, is manifeſted in the perſon of Jeſus Chriſt, and by the preaching of the goſpel, being witneſſed by all the types and figures of the ceremonial law, and by the prophets, Iſai. xlv. 24, 25. Jer. xxiii. 6. Dan. ix. 24. So that even during the time that the Moſaical diſpenſation laſted, the Jews were taught to look for a better righteouſneſs than that which they could obtain by the deeds of the law; even the righteouſneſs of God, of our divine ſubſtitute and ſurety, who for us men and our ſalvation became obedient unto death, even the death of the croſs, and which is now received by faith in this adored redeemer Jeſus Chriſt, and judicially made over, and reckoned to the account of every ſoul who, renouncing every other, hope, lays hold on this ſet before him; and it is unto all and upon all them that believe, whether Jew or Gentile, for there is no difference; they alike need it, as having all ſinned and come ſhort of God's glory, and he freely beſtows it on them without any regard to the degrees of their guilt, or the different meaſures of their faith; the weakeſt believer, though the chief of ſinners, being freely, fully, and everlaſtingly juſtified before God thro' this divine righteouſneſs. Nor is there the leaſt moving cauſe in any of us to engage God to have reſpect to us, We lie in one promiſcuous maſs of corruption till juſtified freely by his Grace, by his ſovereign and undeſerved mercy, through the redemption which is in Jeſus Chriſt, who by his obedience unto death paid down the invaluable price of our redemption, which doth not at all affect the riches of the grace reſpecting us; though bought with his blood, it is ſovereignly and freely imputed to our account; and we owe it to God's boundleſs mercy, that he provided, qualified, and accepted our glorious ſurety, and freely gave him up for us all. Whom God hath ſet forth, predeſtinating him in his eternal counſels, and in the fullneſs of time ſending him in the human nature, to be a propitiation, to be the one great propitiatory ſacrifice, that through faith in his blood, the chief of ſinners might boldly approach a throne of grace. And hereby, (1.) The beſt of bleſſings is ſecured to us, even the remiſſion of ſins that are paſt, through the forbearance of God. The ſacrifices under the law were inſufficient to take away ſin; the faithful therefore under the Old Teſtament had recourſe to this atoning blood which in the fulneſs of time ſhould be ſhed, and in the view thereof God bore with them, pardoned and accepted them. And we are infinitely indebted to this blood, that ſpeaks before the throne, and to the forbearaace of God with us, in conſequence thereof, that we have not through our repeated provocations been cut off long ſince, as we have deſerved, and caſt into hell for our ſins. (2.) Hereby the greateſt honour redounds to God; for in this his method of dealing with ſinners, he ſhews and demonſtrates his own righteouſneſs, both the glory of his juſtice in the puniſhment of ſin, and the tranſcendent excellence and perfection of the Redeemer's righteouſneſs, by means of which, conſiſtent with the divine glory, an honourable proviſion was made for the pardon of ſin, and neither God's truth, juſtice, or holineſs impeached by the grace extended to the ſinner: ſo that at this time, under the goſpel diſpenſation, he declares his righteouſneſs, that he might be juſt, and withal, the juſtifier of him which believeth in Jeſus. Never was God's diſpleaſure againſt ſin more awfully diſplayed than when he laid upon his ſon the iniquities of us all. Having exacted from him the debt of ſuffering, it is now become an act of juſtice that we ſhould be diſcharged; our ſurety's obedience being accepted in our ſtead, we have by right a title to the divine favour. (3.) Hereby all boaſting is excluded from the ſons of men; none can ſay he is accepted before God on account of any works of righteouſneſs done by him, or foreſeen in him; all are excluded. By what Law? Of works? Nay, but by the law of faith, by that gracious evangelical diſpenſation, wherein the blood and righteouſneſs of God our Redeemer are propoſed as the only meritorious cauſe of the ſinner's acceptance.

The concluſion then from the above premiſes is evident, that a man is and can be juſtified before God in no other way than by faith only, without the deeds of the law, the only juſtifying righteouſneſs being that of the Saviour which faith apprehends, and excluſive of all other conſiderations, whether of our duties or our ſins, entitles the believer to the favour of God.

3. This privilege of free juſtification, through a Redeemer's righteouſneſs, is common to the Gentile as well as Jew. Is God then in this new diſpenſation of his grace in the goſpel of his dear ſon, the God of the Jews only? or peculiarly? Is he not of the Gentiles alſo? Yes, of the Gentiles alſo. It is a common ſalvation, and both are alike freely invited to partake of it. Seeing it is one God which ſhall juſtify the circumciſion by faith, and the uncircumſion through faith, both Jews and Gentiles ſtanding exactly on the ſame footing, without reſpect of perſons, or any difference in the way of their acceptance.

4. He concludes with obviating an objection, which ſome might raiſe, as if he hereby made void the moral law, the eternal rule of righteouſneſs, as uſeleſs and inſignificant; but he rejects with deteſtation the ſuggeſtion, God forbid! Yea, ſo far from making it void, we eſtabliſh the law. It's true uſe remains the ſame as ever to convince of ſin; to be not a covenant of life, but a rule of obedience; and that faith which ſhews it manifeſted in the higheſt, by the perfect righteouſneſs of our Redeemer, as it works by love, is the moſt powerful principle to engage our hearts to delight in the law of God after the inner man, and to run the way of his commandments, walking in the glorious liberty of the children of God, a liberty not to tranſgreſs, but to obey.

CHAP. IV.

Nothing could ſerve ſo effectually to prove the argument he advanced, as to ſhew that Abraham, in whom the Jews ſo highly gloried, was juſtified by faith only. The apoſtle therefore, in this chapter, 1. enters into the evidence of this fact, ver. 1—8. 2. He obſerves when and why Abraham was ſo juſtified, ver. 9—17. 3. He deſcribes and commends that faith of his, ver. 17—22. 4. He applies all this to us, ver. 23—25.

1. WHAT ſhall we ſay then, [a] that Abraham our father, as pertaining to the fleſh, hath found? 2. For [b] if Abraham were juſtified by works, he hath whereof to glory, but not before God. 3. For what ſaith the ſcripture? [c] Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteouſneſs. 4. Now [d] to him that worketh, is the reward reckoned not of grace but of debt. 5. But [e] to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteouſneſs. 6. Even as David alſo deſcribeth the bleſſedneſs of the man unto whom God imputeth righteouſneſs without works. 7. [f] Saying, Bleſſed are they whoſe iniquities are forgiven, and whoſe ſins are covered. 8. Bleſſed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute ſin.

v. 1—8. Abraham was the renowned anceſtor, on their deſcent from whom the Jews ſo highly prided themſelves. If therefore it can be made appear, that he who was ſo eminent for his obedience was juſtified not by works but by faith, then ſurely none of his deſcendants, who came ſo ſhort of his excellent character, may expect to be juſtified in any other way.

What ſhall we ſay then, that Abraham our father, as pertaining to the fleſh, hath found? Did he obtain juſtification by the efforts of his natural wiſdom and ſtrength, or by circumciſion, or his other outward privileges and performances? No, in nowiſe. For,

1. If he were juſtified by works, he might have had room for boaſting; but whatever excellence there was in his character before men, he had nothing whereof to glory before God: for in the Lord alone can we be juſtified or permitted to glory. Therefore, when ſpeaking of Abraham, the Scripture expreſly obſerves, Gen. xv. 6. Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteouſneſs, that which he believed reſpecting the promiſed ſeed, who ſhould ſuffer and obey in his ſtead, was reckoned to his account, as the ground of his juſtification and righteouſneſs before God, and not any doings or duties of his own: ſo that he had no room for glorying, except in the Lord his righteouſneſs.

2. If Abraham were juſtified by works, his reward would have been of debt, not of grace; for perfect obedience would have entitled any man to eternal life: but God called Abraham when he was (ασεϐη) an ungodly idolatrous heathen, and juſtified him through faith in the promiſed Meſſiah. And to him that worketh not, who is utterly unable to perform that perfect righteouſneſs which God requires, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, conſcious that this is his character, and perceiving the abſolute neceſſity of a better righteouſneſs than his own, even that which God hath provided in his Son; his faith, not the act, but the object of it, the righteouſneſs of Jeſus Chriſt, is counted and imputed to him for his juſtifying righteouſneſs and title to God's favour. If Abraham then muſt be juſtified as an ungodly ſinner, as one that worketh not, it would be ſtrange preſumption in his deſcendants, or any others, to expect juſtification in any other way.

3. He argues the neceſſity of free juſtification from the declarations of the pſalmiſt, who deſcribes him as the truly bleſſed man, not who hath no ſins to anſwer for, but who hath them not imputed to him, being juſtified from them all by the free grace of God, without any works of his own, of whatever kind, to recommend him to the divine regard. Indeed how elſe could he regard us, ſince all have ſinned, are chargeable with iniquity, and liable to wrath? But God forgives, covers, doth not impute our ſins to us, but to our ſurety, and reckons his righteouſneſs to our account; and this is the ground of all true bleſſedneſs in time or eternity. From hence flows forgiveneſs of ſin, admiſſion to God's favour, and a title to the eternal inheritance: and bleſſed indeed and happy are they, who through a Redeemer are thus juſtified from all things, and ſhall never more enter into condemnation!

9. Cometh this bleſſedneſs then upon the circumciſion only, or upon the uncircumciſion alſo? For we ſay that faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteouſneſs. 10. How was it then reckoned; when he was in circumciſion, or in uncircumciſion? not in circumciſion, but in uncircumciſion. 11. And [g] he received the ſign of circumciſion, a ſeal of the righteouſneſs of the faith, which he had yet being uncircumciſed: [h] that he might be the father of all them that believe, though they be not circumciſed; that righteouſneſs might be imputed unto them alſo: 12. And the father of circumciſion to them who are not of the circumciſion only, but alſo walk in the ſteps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had being yet uncircumciſed.

v. 9—12. The bleſſedneſs above deſcribed is, no doubt, moſt deſireable; the queſtion is, to whom it belongs? Is it peculiar to the circumciſed Jews, or common to the uncircumciſed Gentiles? The former would fain monopolize it as the ſole privilege of thoſe, who were within the pale of circumciſion; but the goſpel declares the uncircumciſed Gentiles alike capable of receiving it.

It was faith, the object of it, even the divine righteouſneſs of a Redeemer, not circumciſion, which was Abraham's juſtifying righteouſneſs, as hath before been ſhewn. This was imputed to him, and in conſequence thereof he was a juſtified man, fourteen years before he was circumciſed. It is evident therefore that when he afterwards ſubmitted to this inſtituted ordinance of God, and received the ſign of circumciſion, it was not in order to his being juſtified, ſince that he had been long before, but as a ſeal of the righteouſneſs of the faith which he had, being yet uncircumciſed; a viſible token that God had taken him and his ſeed into the bond of the covenant, and an aſſurance to him of all the bleſſings which were to be procured by that Redeemer in whom he had believed. Thus, in this eminent inſtance of him, who bore the diſtinguiſhed title of father of the faithful, and from whom the Meſſiah ſhould ſpring in whom all nations were to be bleſſed, the Gentiles, though uncircumciſed, might behold the way of juſtification freely opened to them, and ſtand in the neareſt relation to Abraham, whoſe faith they followed, as his ſpiritual children; and though they were not his natural deſcendants, might ſhare in all his moſt diſtinguiſhed bleſſings, through that righteouſneſs which ſhould be imputed unto them alſo, in like manner as it was to him, during his uncircumciſed ſtate.

And herein alſo God ſhewed to the Jews, that it was not their being the natural deſcendants of Abraham, and partakers of circumciſion with him, which entitled them to pardon, but that the diſtinguiſhing privileges of that covenant of grace into which Abraham was admitted, belonged only to thoſe who walked in the ſteps of that faith of our father Abraham which he had, being yet uncircumciſed; and without which, circumciſion, and all their other duties and performances, would never procure for them juſtification to life.

13. For [i] the promiſe that he ſhould be the heir of the world, was not to Abraham, or to his ſeed through the law, but through the righteouſneſs of faith. 14. For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promiſe made of none effect. 15. Becauſe [k] the law worketh wrath: for [l] where no law is, there is no tranſgreſſion. 16. Therefore it is of faith, that it might be by grace; to the end [m] the promiſe might be ſure to all the ſeed, not to that only which is of the law, but to that alſo which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all, 17. (As it is written, [n] I have made thee a father of many nations) before him whom he believed, even [o] God who quickneth the dead, and calleth thoſe things which be not as though they were. 18. [p] Who againſt hope believed in hope, that he might become the father of many nations: according to that which was ſpoken, So ſhall thy ſeed be. 19. And being not weak in faith, [q] he conſidered not his own body now dead, when he was about an hundred years old, neither yet the deadneſs of Sarah's womb. 20. He ſtaggered not at the promiſe of God through unbelief; but was ſtrong in faith, giving glory to God: 21. And being fully perſuaded, that what he had promiſed, [r] he was able alſo to perform. 22. And therefore it was imputed to him for righteouſneſs.

v. 13—22. As circumciſion was not a juſtifying righteouſneſs to Abraham, nor to any of his ſeed, neither was the law, in which the Jewiſh people truſted. For the promiſe, that he ſhould be heir of the world, inheriting all true bleſſedneſs both here and hereafter, was not to Abraham or to his ſeed through the law of Moſes, which was not yet given, nor in virtue of any perſonal obedience of his or theirs, but through the righteouſneſs of faith. For if they which are of the law be heirs, and the title to the bleſſings promiſed aroſe from the fulfilling the law, whether that of Moſes or any other, then faith is made void; there is no place for the exerciſe of it, and the promiſe is of no effect, ſince the inheritance would depend on our obedience, and if that were not perfect, the promiſe would be uſeleſs, which muſt neceſſarily be the caſe in our preſent corrupted ſtate, becauſe the law worketh wrath, and can only deliver over every man to the righteous judgment of God, as tranſgreſſors. Had there indeed been no law given, had no notice of God's will, traditionary or revealed, been afforded, there would have been no conſcience of ſin, for where no law is there is no tranſgreſſion; but now that there is a law, the offender is obnoxious to the curſe, which is the ſanction annexed to the tranſgreſſion of it. Therefore, ſince none by their obedience to any law, moral or ceremonial, could poſſibly be entitled to the promiſed bleſſings, God ſo ordained,

---

[a] Iſai. li. 2. Phil. iii. 4.

[b] Chap. iii. 27. Eph. ii. 9.

[c] Gen. xv. 6. Gal. iii. 6. Jam. ii. 23.

[d] Mat. xx. 7, 14. Chap. xi. 6.

[e] Joſh. xxiv. 2. Chap. v. 6.

[f] Pſ. xxxii. 1, 2.

[g] Gen. xvii. 11.

[h] Luke xix. 9. Ver. 12, 16. Gal. iii. 7.

[i] Gen. xii. 3. & xv. 6. & xvii. 10. Gal. iii. 18.

[k] Chap. iii. 20. & vii. 10. 2 Cor. iii. 7, 9. Gal. iii. 10.

[l] John xv. 22. Chap. v. 13.

[m] Chap. ix. 11. & xi. 29.

[n] Gen. xvii. 5. Heb. xi. 12.

[o] Chap. viii. 11.

[p] Gen. xv. 5, 6.

[q] Gen. xvii. 17. & xviii. 11. Heb. xi. 11, 12.

[r] Heb. xi. 19.

that it ſhould be of faith, that it might be of grace; that the promiſe, and all the bleſſings contained in it, of pardon, adoption, and eternal life, might appear to be given of God's mere goodneſs and ſovereign pleaſure, without the leaſt deſert on our part, faith ſtretching out its empty hand to receive the ineſtimable treaſure, and that faith too the gift of God, that it might be wholly of grace, to the end that the promiſe might be ſure; and notwithſtanding our unworthineſs, ſecured to us in our divine ſubſtitute and covenant head Chriſt Jeſus, independent of any obedience of our own: for ſuch is our frailty and corruption, that if it depended upon our own obedience as the condition of it, not a moment could we be ſure of it; but now it is infallibly aſcertained to all the ſeed, to the ſpiritual ſeed of Abraham, even all true believers, not to that only which is of the law, who live under the Moſaical diſpenſation, but to that alſo which is of the faith of Abraham, though Gentiles by birth and profeſſion, yet through faith become, in God's account, the children of this eminent patriarch, who is the father of us all, whether believing Jews or Gentiles; as it is written, I have made thee a father of many nations: in a ſpiritual ſenſe, before him whom he believed, even God, was he thus reputed as the father of nations; even before him who quickneth the dead, Abraham and his wife, whoſe bodies were now as good as dead; or the Gentiles dead in treſpaſſes and ſins; or the bodies of the deceaſed in the laſt day: and who in virtue of his almighty power, calleth the things which be not as though they were, ſince whatever he wills, at his word ſtarts into being. Perſuaded of this, notwithſtanding all the difficulties which his faith had to encounter, Abraham againſt hope, if reaſon were conſulted, believed in hope, and againſt all arguments which ſenſe or experience urged, he reſted ſatisfied in the fulfilment of the promiſe, that he ſhould become the father of many nations, according to that which was ſpoken, Gen. xv. 5. when, pointing him to the ſtars, God aſſured him, ſo ſhall thy ſeed be, ſo numberleſs, ſo illuſtrious. Having this divine promiſe, he ſtaggered not a moment through any improbabilities which unbelief might ſuggeſt, from the conſideration of his own great age, which, with regard to his having children, rendered his body as if already dead, nor at the deadneſs of Sarah's womb, long ſince paſt child-bearing, but was ſtrong in faith, giving glory to God, with the fulleſt aſſurance expecting the fulfilment of what God had promiſed, and was able alſo to perform. And therefore it was imputed to him for righteouſneſs; and what he ſaw about to be done by the promiſed ſeed, Chriſt Jeſus, was now reckoned to his account, and he ſtood thereby juſtified before God. Note, (1.) Where God hath promiſed, whatever objections carnal reaſon and unbelief may make, it is our wiſdom to turn a deaf ear to every ſuggeſtion, and confidently wait the accompliſhment of his word; and this gives God the higheſt glory. (2.) Though unbelief will war againſt the ſoul, yet in every child of Abraham faith will get the victory.

23. [s] Now it was not written for his ſake alone, that it was imputed to him; 24. But for us alſo, to whom it ſhall be imputed, if we believe on him [t] who raiſed up Jeſus our Lord from the dead, 25. [u] Who was delivered for our offences, and [x] was raiſed again for our juſtification.

[s] Chap. xv. 4. 1 Cor. x. 6, 11.
[t] Acts ii. 24.
[u] Iſai. liii. 5. Chap. v. 6. 2 Cor. v. 21. 1 Pet. ii. 24.
[x] 1 Cor. xv. 17.

v. 23—25. Great was the faith of the patriarch, great the honour put upon him thereby. But this record borne to him of his acceptance before God was not written for his ſake alone, hiſtorically to inform us of that which rendered him ſo eminent, but for us alſo, as a pattern, comfort, and encouragement to us, and an aſſurance that the ſame divine righteouſneſs ſhall be imputed to us, for our juſtification, if we, as true ſons of this father of the faithful, believe as he did, on him that raiſed up Jeſus Chriſt our Lord from the dead, who, as our ſubſtitute and ſurety, was delivered for our offences, to bear our ſins in his own body on the tree, and, by his obedience unto death, to bring in an everlaſting righteouſneſs; and, having ſo done, was raiſed again for our juſtification; who, in virtue of his finiſhed work, are now by faith in him entitled to pardon, acceptance, and eternal life. Note, There is but one juſtifying righteouſneſs before God, even that of Jeſus Chriſt. In that Abraham ſtood accepted, and all his ſeed muſt look for no other.

CHAP. V.

The apoſtle having made out his point, and fully proved juſtification by faith, doth in this chapter proceed in the explication, illuſtration, and application of that truth. (1.) He ſhews the fruits of juſtification, ver. 1—11. (2.) He ſhews the fountain and foundation of juſtification in the death and righteouſneſs of Jeſus Chriſt, which he diſcourſeth of at large in the reſt of the chapter.

1. THerefore [a] being juſtified by faith, [b] we have peace with God through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 2. [c] By whom alſo we have acceſs by faith into this grace wherein we ſtand, [d] and rejoice in hope of the glory of God. 3. And not only ſo, but [e] we glory in tribulations alſo, [f] knowing that tribulation worketh patience: 4. [g] And patience, experience: and experience, hope: 5. [h] And hope maketh not aſhamed, becauſe [i] the love of God is ſhed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghoſt which is given unto us.

[a] Chap. iv. 11.
[b] Iſai. xxvii. 5. Eph. ii. 15. Col. i. 20.
[c] John x. 9. Eph. ii. 18. Heb. x. 19.
[d] Heb. iii. 6.
[e] Acts v. 41. 2 Cor. xii. 10. Phil. i. 29. 1 Pet. iv. 13.
[f] Jam. i. 2, 12.
[g] Jam. i. 3.
[h] Phil. i. 20.
[i] Chap. viii. 16. 2 Cor. i. 22.

v. 1—5. The ſinner's juſtification before God through faith being ſet forth, the bleſſed effects of it are here deſcribed. Not that faith is the meritorious cauſe of our juſtification, as any act of our own, or any work of grace wrought in us, but we are juſtified by faith, as the means whereby we receive the righteouſneſs of Jeſus as our own, and thereby appear complete in him. And being now juſtified,

1. We have peace with God. The dreadful breach which ſin had made is repaired, the enmity between God and us is removed, and being reſtored to a ſtate of favour and reconciliation with him, we have that peace of God in our ſouls which paſſeth all underſtanding, and which none can know or taſte till they have, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, received the atonement, and ſeen the arms of everlaſting love ſtretched out to receive their ſinful ſouls.

2. We have, by him, acceſs into this grace wherein we ſtand; have freedom and liberty to approach a throne of grace, as abiding in a ſtate of conſtant acceptance before God; and are aſſured that all our requeſts ſhall, through our great high prieſt, be always heard and anſwered.

3. We rejoice in the hope of the glory of God, that glory which ſhall be revealed in us, at the day of the appearing of our great God and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, which being ſecured to us by the promiſes of the unchangeable God, and our title clear through the divine righteouſneſs of the Redeemer, we can even now antedate by faith our bleſſedneſs, and rejoice in the purchaſed poſſeſſion prepared for us in heaven.

4. Even our ſevereſt trials now have in them matter of abundant joy. And we can not only rejoice in the proſpect before us, but we glory in tribulations alſo, in all our afflictions, perſecutions, ſufferings, and reproaches for Chriſt, knowing that, however grievous to fleſh and blood theſe things at preſent may be, in the iſſue they ſhall prove bleſſings in diſguiſe, whilſt tribulation worketh patience, and gives us an opportunity to exerciſe ſubmiſſion to God's holy will; and, without repining, chearfully to reſign ourſelves into his hands, neither angry at the inſtruments of our troubles, nor reſenting their indignities. And patience brings experience of God's power, grace and faithfulneſs, ſupporting us under our trials, and extricating us out of them; and of our own frailty and fidelity, whilſt we feel how weak we are in ourſelves, yet that we can do all things through Chriſt ſtrengthening us. And experience begets hope; every ſupport he miniſters, every deliverance which he gives, confirms and encourages our hope in God; and hope maketh not aſhamed, will never diſappoint nor deceive us, becauſe the love of God is ſhed abroad in our hearts, by the Holy Ghoſt which is given unto us; and our hope reſts not on any goodneſs, or ſtrength in ourſelves, but on the ſovereign, free, and boundleſs love, which, in the moſt copious ſtreams, is poured forth by the Holy Ghoſt into our hearts, in the richeſt manifeſtations, and produces theſe bleſſed and happy effects.

6. For when [k] we were yet without ſtrength, in due time [l] Chriſt died for the ungodly. 7. For ſcarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet [m] peradventure for a good man ſome would even dare to die. 8. But [n] God commendeth his love towards us, in that while we were yet ſinners Chriſt died for us. 9. Much more then being now juſtified by his blood, we ſhall be ſaved [o] from wrath through him. 10. For if when we were enemies, [p] we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son: much more being reconciled, [q] we ſhall be ſaved by his life. 11. And not only ſo, but we alſo joy in God, through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by whom we have † now received the atonement.

[k] Chap. viii. 3. 2 Cor. iii. 5. Eph. ii. 1.
[l] Mark ii. 17. Luke xix. 10. 1 Tim. i. 15.
[m] John xv. 13.
[n] 1 John iv. 10.
[o] 1 Theſſ. i. 10.
[p] 2 Cor. v. 19. Col. i. 21. Chap. viii. 32, 34.
[q] Heb. vii. 25.
† Gr. laid hold of, or apprehended.

v. 6.—11. The apoſtle having mentioned that delightful theme, the love of God which is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, cannot but expatiate thereon. It is amazing love, if we conſider the perſons to whom it is ſhewn, the manner in which it is expreſſed, and the bleſſings thence derived. (1.) The perſons were ungodly wretches, apoſtates from God, deſperately wicked, ſunk in the loweſt abyſs of miſery, ſinners in nature, in practice, and expoſed to all the terrible wrath of an offended God, without ſtrength to afford ourſelves the leaſt relief, or to take a ſingle ſtep, in order to eſcape the juſt and inevitable deſtruction which was before us; yea, enemies, determinately ſet on evil, and rebels open and avowed againſt God's crown and dignity. (2.) In this ſtate of deadly guilt and hopeleſs miſery, in due time, according to the divine appointment, Chriſt died for the ungodly; an inſtance of ſuch tranſcendent grace and love, as never had appeared on earth before. Were we to ſearch the world throughout, out, ſcarce could we find a man who, for the moſt righteous, excellent, and amiable perſon, would lay down his own life to ranſom him: though peradventure for a good man, whoſe public uſefulneſs was eminent, or to whom he owed the deepeſt obligations, one might be found ſo generous and grateful, as even to dare to die in his ſtead. And with what aſtoniſhment would ſuch an heroic action be heard, and preſerved in the records of fame, for the admiration of all ſucceeding ages! But lo! with infinitely tranſcending glory doth God commend the ſurpaſſing excellence of his love towards us, in that while we were yet ſinners Chriſt died for us, took our nature, ſtood in our place, endured the curſe which we had deſerved, and by the ranſom of his own blood redeemed us from our ſtate of guilt, miſery, and deſpair. Hear it, ye angels, with admiration and aſtoniſhment! Hear it, ye ſinful ſons of men, with wonder and love, and henceforth let heaven echo and earth reſound with the praiſes of redeeming love! (3.) Ineſtimable are the bleſſings derived to us through this love of God in Jeſus Chriſt.

1. We are now juſtified through his blood, and reconciled to God by his death. All the enmity between us is done away, his favour is reſtored, and we are accepted in the beloved.

2. Much more then may be depended upon it, as a moſt aſſured truth, that if we are now juſtified before God, we ſhall be ſaved from wrath through him; ſhall never enter again into condemnation, but ſhall hold faſt the moſt aſſured hope of eternal life. For if when enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more being now in a ſtate of reconciliation, and having an everlaſting advocate in our aſcended Jeſus, to whom all power is given in heaven and in earth, ſhall we be ſaved by his life: becauſe he lives, we ſhall live alſo, and reign with him in glory everlaſting.

3. Such a proſpect miniſters the moſt enlivened delight to the ſoul: Not only are we reconciled, and raiſed ſuperior to all tribulations, but having through Jeſus Chriſt now received the atonement, and being actually made partakers of the juſtification, acceptance, and title to glory, which, by his obedience to death, he purchaſed for us, we joy in God through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as our God for ever and ever, our portion and exceeding great reward, in whoſe preſent and eternal favour we have a ſure and indefeaſible intereſt. Bleſſed and happy the people that are in ſuch a caſe!

[r] Gen. iii. 6.
[s] Chap. vi. 23. 1 Cor. xv. 21.
† Or, in whom.
[t] Chap. iv. 15. 1 John iii. 4.
[u] 1 Cor. xv. 21, 45.
[x] Mat. xx. 28. & xxvi. 28. John i. 10.
[y] Rev. v. 10. & xx. 4. & xxii. 5.
† Or one offence.
‡ Or one righteouſneſs.
[z] Chap. iii. 20. & iv. 15. & vii. 8. Gal. iii. 19, 23.
[a] Luke vii. 47. 1 Tim. i. 14.

12. Wherefore, [r] as by one man ſin entered into the world, and [s] death by ſin: and ſo death paſſed upon all men, † for that all have ſinned. 13. For until the law ſin was in the world; but [t] ſin is not imputed when there is no law. 14. Nevertheleſs, death reigned from Adam to Moſes, even over them that had not ſinned after the ſimilitude of Adam's tranſgreſſion, [u] who is the figure of him that was to come: 15. But not as the offence, ſo alſo is the free gift. For if through the offence of one, many be dead; much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jeſus Chriſt, hath abounded [x] unto many. 16. And not as it was by one that ſinned, ſo is the gift: for the judgment was by one to condemnation; but the free gift is of many offences unto juſtification. 17. For if by one man's offence, death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace, and of the gift of righteouſneſs, [y] ſhall reign in life by one, Jeſus Chriſt.
18. Therefore as by † the offence of one, judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even ſo ‡ by the righteouſneſs of one, the free gift came upon all men unto juſtification of life. 19. For as by one man's diſobedience many were made ſinners: ſo by the obedience of one ſhall many be made righteous, 20. Moreover [z] the law entred, that the offence might abound: but where ſin abounded, [a] grace did much more abound: 21. That as ſin hath reigned unto death, even ſo might grace reign through righteouſneſs unto eternal life, by Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

v. 12—21. In theſe verſes the apoſtle draws a parallel between the two covenant-heads, Adam and Chriſt; between the guilt and miſery derived from the one, and the bleſſedneſs obtained by the other for his people: where it appears how men came into the wretched ſtate of ſin in which at preſent they appear, and how rich was that love of God which drew them out of it.

By one man ſin entered into the world; one ſin opened the floodgates of ungodlineſs, and deluged the world, overwhelming it with miſeries unutterable; and death by ſin, in every tremendous form, ſeized on the human nature; and ſo death, the wages of ſin, death temporal, ſpiritual, and eternal, paſſed upon all men, for that, or in whom (ἐφ' ᾧ) all have ſinned. Adam was the common parent and covenant-head of mankind, and at that time poſſeſſed the whole human nature; ſo that all his poſterity, being in his loins, (Heb. vii. 9, 10.) fell with him: his offence became theirs, is imputed to them, and renders them obnoxious to the ſame puniſhment with himſelf. So that it appears hereby that Jews as well as Gentiles are in the ſame ſtate of condemnation. For until the law, before the revelation of God's will on mount Sinai was made, ſin was in the world, with death and all its attendant miſeries; but this ſuppoſes ſome law in force, before that which was given by Moſes; for ſin is not imputed where there is no law, nor would any puniſhment have been inflicted where there was no offence committed. But though the law of Moſes was not in being, nevertheleſs death reigned from Adam to Moſes, not only over actual tranſgreſſors, grown up to the knowledge of good and evil, but even over them that had not ſinned after the ſimilitude of Adam's tranſgreſſion, multitudes of infants ſuffering in the deluge and deſolations of Sodom and Gomorrah; and daily their dying groans and agonies teſtify that ſin is in them, becauſe the wages of it is exacted from them, and evidently prove that they are involved in the guilt of that one man's diſobedience by which ſin and death entered into the world, and who is the figure of him that was to come, the type of our ſecond covenant-head and repreſentative, Jeſus Chriſt, who in the fulneſs of time ſhould become incarnate; that as ſin and death are communicated to us by the one, ſo ſhould righteouſneſs and life be obtained for us by the other. But, though the parallel between them is ſtriking, yet in comparing them the latter far excelleth: for not as the offence, ſo alſo is the free gift; the benefit accruing from the divine righteouſneſs, doth not barely anſwer the dire effects of the firſt man's ſin, it doth much more. For if through the offence of one, many be dead, the dreadful ſentence being paſſed upon them, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jeſus Chriſt, who hath wrought out that righteouſneſs, by which the moſt unſearchable riches of divine grace are procured for his people, hath abounded unto mercy, ſecuring to them not merely ſuch a life as Adam had in innocence, but one far ſurpaſſing in glory, and eternal in its endurance. And not as it was by one that ſinned, ſo is the gift; the diſſimilitude is conſiderable with regard to the efficacious influence of the tranſactions of the two great covenant-heads: for the judgment, the guilt and ſentence in conſequence thereof, was by one ſin, of one man, to the condemnation of all his poſterity whom he repreſented; but the free gift of God through the Redeemer's obedience to death, reaches not to the pardon of one ſin, but of many offences unto juſtification: all the ſins of his elect, actual as well as original, being laid on their ſubſtitute, and they through faith in him are freely and fully delivered from all condemnation, and accepted as righteous before God. For if by one man's offence, or by one offence, death reigned by one, and ſet up the pillars of his throne, bringing the whole human race under his mortal power, much more they which receive abundance of grace, even all that fulneſs which is laid up for them in Jeſus Chriſt, and of the gift of righteouſneſs, that everlaſtingly glorious, and infinitely meritorious righteouſneſs of their Lord, ſhall reign in life by one, Chriſt Jeſus, triumphant over ſin, its guilt and power, quickened to ſpiritual life here, and looking for that life of glory hereafter, when they ſhall reign with Jeſus in heaven, and ſee ſin and death and hell for ever put under their feet. Therefore as by the offence of one, or by one offence, judgment came, (or, ſin entered, as it may be ſupplied) upon all men to condemnation, and they were expoſed to death eternal thereby, even ſo by the righteouſneſs of one, the ſecond man, the Lord from heaven, the free gift came upon all men to juſtification of life, their Redeemer having provided the complete righteouſneſs which contains their title to life and glory, and which God accepts and graciouſly makes over to all the heirs of promiſe; ſo that in both caſes God appears as a righteous judge, placing the acts of the repreſentatives to thoſe, whoſe perſons and characters they bore, and who were, in the eye of the law, one with them. For as by one man's diſobedience, many were made ſinners, (κατεϛαθησαν) and in virtue of the imputation of his ſin, regarded in the eye of the law as guilty, and condemed as one, in crime and puniſhment, with their covenant-head; ſo by the obedience of one ſhall many be made righteous, his righteouſneſs being imputed to them, and they thereby being, in the eye even of the holy law, regarded as righteous, and declared to be ſo, as complete in him. Moreover, let it be obſerved, that long after ſin and death were in the world, the law entred, which was given on mount Sinai, not that the Jews might be juſtified thereby, but that the offence might abound, and ſin be more clearly diſcovered to the conſcience, and appear exceeding ſinful: but where ſin abounded, grace did much more abound, God taking occaſion, even from the creature's vileneſs, to magnify the more tranſcendently the riches of his own free mercy, in pardoning, juſtifying, and ſaving loſt ſouls, and raiſing them to higher glory than that which they had loſt by the firſt man's diſobedience. So that as ſin hath reigned unto death, and, uſurping the throne, ſpreads its dire dominion over the fallen ſons of men, even ſo might victorious grace erect her throne on the ruins of theſe vanquiſhed foes, and reign through that righteouſneſs which is brought in, by Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, over all his redeemed people unto eternal life, reſcuing them from the power of ſin and death, bringing them into a ſtate of favour with God, which is better than life itſelf, quickning them to ſpiritual life here, and ſecuring to them eternal life hereafter. Thou God of all grace, ſet up this bleſſed kingdom in my heart, and reign for ever there !

CHAP. VI.

The apoſtle having at large aſſerted, opened, and proved the great doctrine of juſtification by faith, leſt any ſhould turn this grace of God into licentiouſneſs, he doth with a like zeal, copiouſneſs of expreſſion, and cogency of argument, preſs the abſolute neceſſity of ſanctification, as the inſeparable fruit and companion of juſtification. The water and the blood came ſtreaming together out of the pierced ſide of the dying Jeſus : and what God hath thus joined together, let not us dare to put aſunder.

1. WHAT ſhall we ſay then ? [a] ſhall we continue in ſin that grace may abound ? 2. [b] God forbid : [c] how ſhall we that are dead to ſin live any longer therein ? 3. Know ye not that [d] ſo many of us as were baptized into Jeſus Chriſt, were baptized into his death ? 4. Therefore [e] we are buried with him by baptiſm into death : that [f] like as Chriſt was raiſed up from the dead by the glory of the Father, [g] even ſo we alſo ſhould walk in newneſs of life. 5. For if we have been planted together in the likeneſs of his death : we ſhall be alſo in the likeneſs of his reſurrection : 6. Knowing this, that [h] our old man is crucified with him, that the body of ſin might be deſtroyed, that henceforth we ſhould not ſerve ſin. 7. For [i] he that is dead is freed from ſin. 8. Now [k] if we be dead with Chriſt, we believe that we ſhall alſo live with him : 9. Knowing that [l] Chriſt being raiſed from the dead, dieth no more, death hath no more dominion over him. 10. For in that he died, [m] he died unto ſin once : but in that he liveth, [n] he liveth unto God. 11. Likewiſe reckon ye alſo yourſelves [o] to be dead indeed unto ſin, but alive unto God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. 12. [p] Let not ſin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye ſhould obey it in the luſts thereof. 13. [q] Neither yield ye your members as † inſtruments of unrighteouſneſs unto ſin : but [r] yield yourſelves unto God, as thoſe that are alive from the dead ; and your members as ‡ inſtruments of righteouſneſs unto God. 14. For [s] ſin ſhall not have dominion over you : for ye are not under the law, but under grace. 15. What then ? [t] ſhall we ſin becauſe we are not under the law, but under grace ? God forbid. 16. Know ye not, that [u] to whom ye yield yourſelves ſervants to obey, his ſervants ye are to whom ye obey ; whether of ſin unto death, or of obedience unto righteouſneſs ? 17. But God be thanked, that ye were the ſervants of ſin ; but [x] ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine § which was delivered you. 18. [y] Being then made free from ſin, ye became the ſervants of righteouſneſs. 19. I ſpeak after the manner of men becauſe of the infirmity of your fleſh : for as ye have yielded your members ſervants to uncleanneſs and to iniquity, unto iniquity ; even ſo now yield your members ſervants to righteouſneſs, unto holineſs. 20. For [z] when ye were the ſervants of ſin, ye were free from righteouſneſs. 21. [a] What fruit had ye then in thoſe things, whereof ye are now aſhamed ? for the end of thoſe things is death. 22. But now being made free from ſin, and become ſervants to God, ye have your fruit unto holineſs, and [b] the end everlaſting life. 23. For [c] the wages of ſin is death : but [d] the gift of God is eternal life, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

[a] Chap. iii. 8.
[b] Mat. iv. 10.
[c] Col. iii. 3. 1 Pet. ii. 24.
[d] Gal. iii. 27.
[e] Col. ii. 12.
[f] Chap. viii. 11. Phil. iii. 10, 11.
[g] Eph. iv. 22. Col. iii. 10.
[h] Gal. ii. 20. & v. 24. Col. iii. 5, 9.
[i] 1 Pet. iv. 1.
[k] 2 Tim. ii. 11.
[l] Rev. i. 18.
[m] Heb. ix. 28.
[n] Luke xx. 38.
[o] Gal. ii. 19.
[p] Pſ. cxix. 133.
[q] 1 Pet. iv. 2.
† Gr. Weapons.
[r] Chap. xii. 1. Col. iii. 5.
[s] Chap. v. 20. Heb. viii. 10.
[t] 1 Cor. ix. 21. Gal. ii. 18.
[u] Mat. vi. 24. John viii. 34. 2 Pet. ii. 19.
[x] 2 Tim. i. 13.
‡ Whereto ye were delivered.
[y] John viii. 32. 1 Cor. vii. 22. Gal. v. 1.
[z] Mat. vii. 18.
[a] Chap. vii. 5.
[b] Chap. v. 17.
[c] Gen. ii. 17. Chap. ii. 8. & v. 12. Jam. i. 15.
[d] Eph. ii. 8. 1 Pet. i. 3.

v. 1—23. The riches of the grace which he had diſplayed in the former chapter, the apoſtle clearly foreſaw would furniſh objections againſt his doctrine, which he therefore ſtates and obviates. What ſhall we ſay then ? Is this a licentious doctrine ? and ſhall we continue in ſin, that grace may abound ? God forbid : the apoſtle rejects the thought with abhorrence, as the vileſt abuſe of this moſt bleſſed truth. How ſhall we that are dead to ſin, live any longer therein ? under its power and dominion : How inconſiſtent would it be with our character ; how contrary to the obligations of gratitude and duty lying upon us ; and how deſtructive of our peace and hope ! Our very baptiſm repreſents our profeſſion, and intimates to us the converſation becoming the name we bear. Know ye not, that ſo many of us as were baptized into Jeſus Chriſt, into the faith of his name, and obedience to his authority, were baptized into his death ? that we ſhould reſemble him, dying to ſin, as he died for it, and correſponding with his great deſign in ſuffering, which was to redeem us from all iniquity. Therefore we are buried with him by baptiſm into death ; partaking of the benefits of his death ; and, as a corpſe laid in the grave, which ceaſes from the actions of life, ſo ſhould we ſhew an abiding deadneſs to ſin ; that like as Chriſt was raiſed up from the dead by the glory of the Father, by his almighty power, even ſo we alſo ſhould walk in newneſs of life ; quickened by virtue derived from him, our head of vital influence, as well as repreſentative ; and having received a new nature, new principles, and new hearts from him, we are bound to his praiſe to ſhew forth in all holy converſation and godlineſs, the real and univerſal happy change which is paſſed upon us to the praiſe of the glory of his grace. For if we have been planted together in the likeneſs of his death ; engrafted into him, and one with him as the members of his body myſtical, ſharing in the bleſſed effects of his death, and experiencing its efficacy in ſeparating our ſouls from ſin, as death ſeparated his body and ſoul ; we ſhall be alſo planted in the likeneſs of his reſurrection ; quickened by his divine power, and enabled to walk before God in holineſs here, till we ſhall come in perfect holineſs to dwell with him for ever in glory. Knowing this, that our old man, that fallen nature derived from Adam, and coeval with our very being, is crucified with him ; ſo that its condemning guilt is aboliſhed, and its tyrannizing power is broken. And though it be a painful lingring death, and the remainders of in-dwelling ſin will ſtruggle to the laſt ; yet we know Chriſt died, that the body of ſin might be deſtroyed, that henceforth we ſhould not ſerve ſin ; ſhould no longer be the ſlaves of corruption as before, and that ſhortly its very being in us might be at an end. For he that is dead is freed from ſin : as a man that is dead can have no farther claims laid againſt him, ſo if we are crucified with Chriſt, we are freed from the legal power and dominion of our former maſter ; ſhall never periſh under guilt, nor return to the bondage of corruption : yea, though we may be overtaken by temptation, we ſhall not finally or fatally be enſlaved by ſin. Now if we be thus dead with Chriſt, through union with his crucified body, and virtue thence derived ; we believe that we ſhall alſo live with him, quickened to a life of grace here, and ſhortly to be raiſed to a life of eternal bleſſedneſs and glory, to reign with him in heaven. Knowing that Chriſt, our covenant-head and repreſentative, being raiſed from the dead, dieth no more, death hath no more dominion over him ; he hath for ever ſatisfied all the demands of juſtice : for in that he died, he died for ſin once, and by one oblation once offered hath obtained eternal redemption for us : but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God, a life heavenly, immortal, which death can never more affect, being exalted to the right hand of Majeſty on high, as our covenant-head of righteouſneſs, and the eternal ſource of vital influence to all the members of his body myſtical ; and becauſe he liveth, we muſt live alſo, our life being eternal as his own.

From theſe glorious views which the apoſtle ſets before us of our union and communion with Chriſt in his death and reſurrection, the apoſtle proceeds to urge upon the faithful two things : (1.) That they ſhould reckon themſelves dead indeed unto ſin ; not only diſcharged from its condemning guilt, but delivered from its power and dominion, ſo as henceforward willingly to have no more fellowſhip with the unfruitful works of darkneſs, ceaſing from them as a dead man does from the actions of life. (2.) That they ſhould reckon themſelves alive unto God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord ; quickened by his grace, as the divine principle, to newneſs of life, and engaged and inclined to live to his glory as their great end.

This being then the great privilege, dignity, and duty of believers, we are moſt powerfully urged to walk agreeably thereunto. Let not ſin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye ſhould obey the luſts thereof. Whilſt we carry a mortal body about us, we muſt expect to feel the warrings of in-dwelling ſin : till death comes, the conflict will not end ; we need therefore to watch and pray, which are the great appointed means of grace, that the tyrant which is dethroned, may not again uſurp dominion over us ; and particularly are called upon to deny the cravings of bodily appetite, by which the ſtrongeſt temptations to ſin enter ; that, however beſet, we may not yield a willing obedience to the former luſts, in which we walked in the days of our ignorance. But, though overtaken, nay overcome, we may not, muſt not, cannot lie down contented ſlaves ; but ſhall riſe thro' the power of divine grace, and caſt the hateful yoke away, under which we groan being burdened. Neither yield ye your members, neither thoſe of your bodies, nor the faculties of your ſouls, as inſtruments of unrighteouſneſs unto ſin, to war in that hateful cauſe, under ſo foul a captain : but yield yourſelves unto God, as thoſe that are alive from the dead ; and your members as inſtruments of righteouſneſs unto God, living henceforward for his glory, and employing body, ſoul, and ſpirit in his bleſſed ſervice, and to advance his kingdom and intereſts in the world, fighting under his banners, and faithful unto death. For ſin ſhall not have dominion over you ; though it may ſurprize and prevail againſt you for a while, it ſhall not gain your approbation, lord it over you abidingly or unreſiſted, nor obtain an allowed ſovereignty. But though the conflict be ſometimes ſharp and afflictive, the victory is ſure at the laſt; for ye are not under the law, as a covenant of works, which can give no hope of pardon for guilt, nor afford any aſſiſtance againſt the power of ſin; but under grace, under that gracious covenant eſtabliſhed with the ſecond Adam, wherein the pardon of all ſins is granted, where unchangeable promiſes ſecure our ſtability, and never-failing ſprings of divine ſupport and aſſiſtance ſhall make us at laſt more than conquerors: and what can afford ſuch an encouraging argument to ſtrive againſt ſin, as the aſſurance that we ſhall overcome?

But ſome man might object to this, that if this be the caſe, and we are no more under the law, we may live as we liſt. The apoſtle prevents and refutes the objection: What then? ſhall we ſin becauſe we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid: this would be to act in oppoſition to the whole deſign of the goſpel ſalvation, and inconſiſtently with all our profeſſions as children of grace. For know ye not, that it is a truth obvious and inconteſtable, to whom ye yield yourſelves ſervants to obey, his ſervants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of ſin unto death, or of obedience unto righteouſneſs? No man can ſerve two maſters utterly contradictory in their commands. The ſervants of ſin, who willingly ſurrender themſelves to this tyrant's will, muſt infallibly reap eternal death as the wages of their work; whilſt the ſervants of God are ſervants of obedience unto righteouſneſs, his intereſts being thus ſerved and advanced, and their end is eternal life: according therefore to the ſervice in which we are employed, we ſhew what maſter we ſerve, and to whom we belong. But God be thanked, that though ye were, in times paſt, the ſervants of ſin, ye do not continue ſo; but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered unto you; both in heart and conduct now caſt into the mould of the glorious goſpel, (τοπον εις ον παρεδοθητε) and bearing all its amiable lineaments, in the moſt bleſſed and happy conformity to him who is the great Author of it, Jeſus Chriſt.

Being then made free from ſin, by the power of the eternal Spirit through the goſpel effectually operating to deſtroy the dominion, tyranny, and love of ſin, ye became the ſervants of righteouſneſs; diſcharged from the hateful ſervitude of iniquity, and entered into the ſervice of a better maſter, which is perfect freedom, the willing ſubjects of the holy Jeſus, your rightful Lord and Sovereign. I ſpeak after the manner of men, repreſenting this matter under the familiar images of maſters and ſervants, becauſe of the infirmity of your fleſh, the underſtanding being ſtill dark thro' the remainders of corruption, and moſt eaſily receives ſpiritual ideas, when communicated under the vail of ſenſible objects. For as, in time paſt, ye yielded your members, both body and ſoul, ſervants to uncleanneſs, and to iniquity, unto iniquity, willing ſlaves to every vile affection, going from evil to worſe, and fulfilling all the corrupt deſires of the fleſh and of the mind; even ſo now yield your members ſervants of righteouſneſs, unto holineſs; let every member of your body and faculty of your ſoul be as freely, delightfully, conſtantly, and univerſally employed in the ſervice of the bleſſed Jeſus your Maſter, and in the practice of righteouſneſs and true holineſs, as by nature they were before engaged in the ſervice of ſin.

And ſurely the ſtrongeſt obligations now lie upon you thus to walk in holineſs: for when ye were the ſervants of ſin, wholly devoted to its ſervice, ye were free from righteouſneſs; not from the obligations to it, which are immutable and eternal; but ye caſt off all reſtraint, were utterly averſe to the rule of righteouſneſs, and boaſted of liberty, when the moſt wretched ſlaves of corruption. And a moment's reflection will now convince you of the miſery of that ſtate in which you lay; for what fruit had ye then in thoſe things, whereof ye are now aſhamed? did not the curſe of ſin follow you cloſe as your ſhadow? did not the ſting of it at times torment and make you miſerable in the midſt of your enjoyments? did not the very purſuits in which you were engaged, involve you in trouble, diſappointment, vexation? and were you not always unſatisfied, and felt an aching void, which nothing you poſſeſſed could fill? and with what ſhame, horror, and remorſe, do you now reflect upon your paſt conduct? for, careleſs and thoughtleſs as you then were, you now know, that the end of thoſe things is death eternal, which muſt have been your miſerable lot, if divine grace had not interpoſed, and plucked you as brands from the burning. But now being made free from ſin, and become ſervants to God, ſince this bleſſed exchange of maſters, ye have your fruit unto holineſs, walking in that good converſation and godlineſs which brings glory to God, and is moſt comfortable to your own ſouls, and the bleſſed end and iſſue of which will be everlaſting life: For the wages of ſin, the accurſed maſter whom ye formerly ſerved, is death, including all miſeries, both here and hereafter, of ſoul and body, and that to eternity: but the gift of God is eternal life, which he beſtows not out of reſpect of any ſervice or deſert of ours, but as a matter of mere grace and favour, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, in whom this eternal life is ſecured to us, and for whoſe righteouſneſs ſake it is beſtowed upon us, purchaſed by the Saviour, but abſolutely free to the ſinner.

Let us examine ourſelves then, whether we are in the faith, and with deepeſt ſelf-application conſider what the apoſtle hath here advanced. Our everlaſting hopes depend on our experience of theſe things. We moſt fatally deceive ourſelves, if we talk of grace, and promiſe ourſelves heaven, and live and die the ſervants of corruption.

CHAP. VII.

We may obſerve in this chapter, 1. Our freedom from the law further urged as an argument to preſs upon us ſanctification, ver. 1—6. 2. The excellency and uſefulneſs of the law aſſerted and proved from the apoſtle's own experience notwithſtanding, ver. 7—14. 3. A deſcription of the conflict between grace and corruption in the heart, ver. 14, 15, to the end.

1. KNOW ye not, brethren, (for I ſpeak to them that know the law) how that [a] the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth? 2. For [b] the woman which hath an huſband, is bound by the law to her huſband ſo long as he liveth: but if the huſband be dead, ſhe is looſed from the law of her huſband. 3. So then [c] if while her huſband liveth, ſhe be married to another man, ſhe ſhall be called an adultereſs: but [d] if her huſband be dead, ſhe is free from that law; ſo that ſhe is no adultereſs, though ſhe be married to another man. 4. Wherefore, my brethren, [e] ye alſo are become dead to the law [f] by the body of Chriſt, that [g] ye ſhould be married to another, even to him who is raiſed from the dead, that we ſhould bring forth fruit unto God, 5. For when we were in the fleſh, [h] the motions of ſins which were by the law, did work in our members [i] to bring forth fruit unto death. 6. But now we are delivered from the law, that being dead wherein we were held; [k] that we ſhould ſerve in newneſs of ſpirit, and not in the oldneſs of the letter.

[a] Chap. iii. 19.
[b] Prov. vi. 32. 1 Cor. vii. 10, 39.
[c] Num. v. 20, 21. Judg. xiv. 20. Mat. v. 32.
[d] Ruth. i. 13. 1 Tim. v. 14.
[e] Chap. viii. 2. Gal. ii. 19.
[f] Col. ii. 14.
[g] 2 Cor. xi. 2.
[h] Chap. vi. 19. Gal. v. 19.
[i] Chap. vi. 21. Jam. i. 15.
[k] Luke i. 74. John iv. 24. Chap. ii. 29. 2 Cor. iii. 6.

v. 1—6. The apoſtle had aſſerted, that we are not under the law, and in what ſenſe he here explains. He was addreſſing himſelf to them who knew the law, and would admit it as the moſt obvious truth, that the law can no longer be binding, than the perſon lives under it. As for inſtance: The woman which hath an huſband, is bound by the law to her huſband ſo long as he liveth: but if her huſband be dead, the bond of wedlock is diſſolved, and ſhe is looſed from the law of her huſband. So then if while her huſband liveth, ſhe be married to another man, ſhe ſhall be called an adultereſs; but the caſe is quite different if her huſband be dead, for then ſhe is free from the law; ſo that ſhe is no adultereſs, though ſhe be married to another man.

Now ſuch was our caſe:

1. Our firſt marriage was to the law; we were under it as a covenant of works, and the fruits of that marriage were dreadful. For when we, Jews as well as Gentiles, were in the fleſh, in our natural, corrupt, and unregenerate ſtate, the motions of ſin, the paſſions and vile affections of our fallen hearts, which were by the law conſidered as a covenant of works, which demanded a perfection we could not pay, and denounced a curſe we could not endure; our corruptions, I ſay, were but the more irritated by the ſtrictneſs of the prohibition, and the ſeverity of the ſanction, and did work in our members with ſuch mighty and irreſiſtible energy, as to bring forth fruit unto death, producing all thoſe actual tranſgreſſions which ſpring from the original root of bitterneſs in our nature; and, unleſs we were delivered from the guilt and dominion of them, muſt iſſue in eternal death: and as long as any ſoul is under the law as a covenant, this muſt be his miſerable caſe. But,

2. We are married to another, even to Chriſt Jeſus. Our firſt huſband the law being dead, wherein we were held, we are delivered from its obligations as a covenant, and from the curſe it denounced on the tranſgreſſors. We are no more in theſe reſpects under it, than a wife is ſubject to her departed huſband. We are become dead to the law, and the law unto us, by the body of Chriſt; for he hath ſatisfied all its demands: and we are thus diſcharged from all connection with, and obligation to, our former huſband, that we might be married to another, even to him who is raiſed from the dead, the riſen and exalted Saviour, to whom we now pledge our fidelity, and by ties of love, that never can be diſſolved, are drawn to a willing ſubjection to his pleaſing yoke, that we ſhould bring forth fruit unto God, the fruits of grace and holineſs produced through the quickening influences of his Spirit, which, till this union with Chriſt commences, never can be brought forth, and tending to advance the divine glory, acceptable alſo to God through Jeſus Chriſt; and that we ſhould ſerve in newneſs of ſpirit, and not in the oldneſs of the letter: though made free from the law as a covenant of life, yet under the law to Chriſt, receiving from him the new heart, walking before him under the influence of new principles, and enabled to ſhew forth a very different converſation in righteouſneſs and true holineſs, from what we ever did or could practiſe, when under the power of the old man; and regarding the law as a covenant of life, which only provoked, inſtead of reſtraining, the corruption of our hearts.

7. What ſhall we ſay then? Is the law ſin? God forbid. Nay, [l] I had not known ſin, but by the law: for I had not known † luſt, except the law had ſaid, [m] Thou ſhalt not covet. 8. But [n] ſin taking occaſion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiſcence. For [o] without the law ſin was dead. 9. For I was alive without the law once, [p] but when the commandment came, [q] ſin revived, and I died. 10. And the commandment [r] which was ordained to life, [s] I found to be unto death. 11. For ſin taking occaſion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it ſlew me. 12. Wherefore [t] the law is holy; and the commandment holy, and juſt, and good.

[l] Chap. iii. 20.
† Or concupiſcence.
[m] Ex. xx. 17.
[n] Chap. v. 20. 1 Cor. xv. 56.
[o] Mark x. 20.
[p] Chap. x. 5. Gal. iii. 10.
[q] Pſ. xxxviii. 4—8.
[r] Lev. xviii. 5.
[s] 2 Cor. iii. 7.
[t] Pſ. xix. 8. & li. 5. & cxix. 96.

v. 7—12. An objection might be raiſed from what the apoſtle had ſaid, as if he had moſt diſhonourably reflected on the law. What ſhall we ſay then? is the law ſin? with indignation he replies, God forbid: the law is good, the evil is all in ourſelves.

1. The law is in itſelf moſt holy, juſt, and good; it contains a tranſcript of God's purity, inculcates the moſt perfect obedience, demands nothing but what eſſentially flows from the very relation of Creator and creature, and in its nature is like its Author, excellent.

2. The advantages of the law are great, as it convinces the conſcience, and humbles the ſoul under a ſenſe of ſin. I had not known ſin, but by the law; ſo far is the law from leading to ſin, or approving it, that it diſcovers and condemns the moſt ſecret workings of evil. For I had not known luſt, the ſinfulneſs of the firſt motions of corrupt deſire, except the law had ſaid, Thou ſhalt not covet: the law therefore is not ſinful, but, as the bright mirror, diſcovers that deformity which would otherwiſe have been overlooked. The evil is all in ourſelves, where ſin taking occaſion by the commandment, raged even the more violently becauſe of the prohibition, and wrought in me all manner of concupiſcence. For without the law, whilſt in my Phariſaical ſtate I knew not its ſpirituality and extenſive demands, ſin was dead, did not terrify my conſcience, and to my apprehenſion was entirely ſubdued; ſo that I counted myſelf, as touching the righteouſneſs which is by the law, blameleſs. For I was alive without the law once; in thoſe days of my vanity, when Phariſaical pride ſwelled my boſom, I counted my title to life clear on the footing of my own obedience, being a perfect ſtranger to the ſpiritual nature and extent of the law: but when the commandment came, laid open to my conſcience by the Spirit in its purity and ſpirituality, conviction flaſhed on my mind; ſin revived, and brought unnumbered charges againſt me, which I had overlooked; and I felt its living power in my heart, when I thought it had been utterly deſtroyed, and, in conſequence thereof, I died; I ſaw myſelf a condemned criminal, moſt juſtly obnoxious to the divine diſpleaſure, and in the eye of the law under the fearful ſentence of eternal death. And the commandment which, if perfectly obeyed, was ordained to be a covenant of life to man in innocence, I found to be unto death; and through the corruption of my nature rendering me incapable of keeping it, I perceived the only thing it could do for me was, to conſign me over to the wrath of God as a tranſgreſſor. For ſin, that native principle of corruption in my heart, taking occaſion by the commandment to rebel againſt the law, as if it was unreaſonably ſevere, deceived me with hopes of pleaſure and impunity, and by it ſlew me, like an aſſaſſin, that having miſled the traveller, plunges his dagger into his heart. Wherefore all theſe dire conſequences are to be aſcribed wholly to our deſperate corruption, whilſt the law is holy, and no blame to be laid againſt it, and the commandment is holy, juſt, and good.

13. Was then that which is good made death unto me? God forbid. But ſin, that it might appear ſin, working death in me by that which is good; that ſin by the commandment might become exceeding ſinful. 14. For we know that [u] the law is ſpiritual: but [x] I am carnal, [y] ſold under ſin. 15. For that which I do, I allow not: [z] for that I would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I. 16. If then I do that which I would not, I conſent unto the law, that it is good. 17. Now then it is no more I that do it, but ſin that dwelleth in me. 18. For I know that [a] in me (that is in my fleſh) dwelleth no good thing: for to will is preſent with me, but how to perform that which is good I find not. 19. For the good that I would, I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do. 20. Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but ſin that dwelleth in me. 21. I find then a law, that when I would do good, evil is preſent with me. 22. For [b] I delight in the law of God, after the inward man. 23. [c] But I ſee another law in my members, warring againſt the law of my mind, and [d] bringing me into captivity to the law of ſin, which is in my members. 24. [e] O wretched man that I am! who ſhall deliver me from the body of this death? 25. [f] I thank God, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. So then with the mind I myſelf ſerve the law of God; but with the fleſh the law of ſin.

[u] Heb. iv. 12.
[x] 1 Cor. iii. 1.
[y] Iſa. l. 1, 10.
[z] Gal. v. 17.
[a] Gen. vi. 5. & viii. 21. Iſa. i. 6. & lxiv. 6.
[b] Pſ. i. 2. 2 Cor. iv. 16. Col. iii. 10.
[c] Gal. v. 17. Jam. iv. 5.
[d] Prov. xxiv. 16. Jam. iii. 2.
[e] Job xl. 4. Pſ. xxxviii. 4, 5. Iſa. vi. 5.
[f] 1 Cor. xv. 57.

v. 13—25. A new objection is ſtarted from the title he gives to the law as good. Was then that which is good made death unto me? might one ſuggeſt; can that which is ſo good in its nature be in its effects ſo deadly? and is the law of God the cauſe of all human miſeries? God forbid. It is not the law, but the crime committed againſt it, which cauſes the death of the malefactor. Thus ſin, the concupiſcence of my corrupted nature, that it might appear ſin, and be diſcovered to my conſcience in its true malignity, working death in me by that which is good, and taking occaſion to rebel from the very purity and perfection of the holy law of God, brought the ſentence of death upon me; that ſin by the commandment, ſo clearly forbidden, yet riſing in wilful oppoſition thereto, might appear exceeding ſinful; and that this corruption of my nature, the ſource of all my actual tranſgreſſions, might be ſeen in the blackeſt colours that words can expreſs, or thought conceive, (καθ υπερβολην αμαρτωλος).

Such was the apoſtle's ſtate before converſion; and afterwards he ſtill proved the ſevereſt conflicts with in-dwelling ſin, and ſaw how unable he was to ſtand before the demands of a holy law. For we know, I Paul, and all who are enlightened to a knowledge of the truth, that the law is ſpiritual, reaching to the thoughts and intents of the heart, and requiring perfection of nature, as well as outward obedience; but I am carnal, feel myſelf a poor fallen creature, ſold under ſin; by the firſt man's tranſgreſſion delivered into the tyrant's hands, and born the ſlave of corruption, the dire effects of which I daily feel, and groan under them. For that which I do, I allow not; when in thought, word, or deed, my wretched heart yields to the tempter's wiles, my judgment diſapproves the evil I commit; and, far from a deliberate choice, my ſoul riſes againſt it, and I loathe both the ſin and myſelf. For what I would, and in my better part approve and deſire, that do I not; I deſire always with the moſt intenſe application, that my ſoul ſhould be fixed on God, and engaged in his bleſſed work and ſervice: yet how ſhort do I come of that ſpirituality of temper and conduct which I wiſh to exerciſe? But what I hate, that do I; inſenſibly, through infirmity, ſurprize, or temptation, betrayed into things that habitually I abhor. If then I do that which I would not, and am overcome by the power of in-dwelling ſin, whilſt I feel a ſettled averſion to this hateful ſervice, I conſent unto the law, (συμφημι) give my full approbation to it, that it is good, moſt excellent in itſelf, moſt becoming God to enjoin, and me to obey; and even if its fearful penalty were levied upon me, I muſt own the ſentence righteous, juſt, and good. Now then it is no more I, as a new man, that do it; but ſin, the old native corruption, that dwelleth in me, like the Canaanites, and is as burdenſome to me, as they were to God's Iſrael. For I know, by ſad experience, that in me (that is in my fleſh), in my carnal ſelf, there dwelleth no good thing, but evil, and only evil, and that continually: for to will is preſent with me, and under the influence of the divine nature, of which I am made a partaker, my judgment approves the things that are excellent, and my choice determines me to walk and pleaſe God; but how to perform that which is good I find not; the ſtorms of temptation, and the current of corruption carry me out of the courſe I mean to ſteer; ſo that I cannot keep in the ſtraight way of holineſs, nor proceed with that ſteadineſs and ſpeed I hoped and purpoſed. For the good that I would, even to be found complete in all the will of God, I do not, cannot attain unto; but the evil which I would not, but condemn, diſapprove, and diſallow, that I do, feeling myſelf weak as an infant, and unable to make reſiſtance. Now if I do that I would not, as I ſaid before, it is no more I that do it; ſin is in my eyes an abominable thing, and my renewed part feels an averſion to it, and a hearty approbation of the holy law of God; but all the evil proceeds from ſin, that corrupted principle, which ſtill dwelleth in me. I find then a law, my fallen nature acting in me with ſuch mighty influence, that when I would do good, evil is preſent with me; ſome diſcouragement is ſuggeſted to deter me, ſome ſnare to allure me, or ſome evil deſire riſes up, quenches the gracious purpoſes I had formed, and turns me aſide from the path of righteouſneſs. For I can ſay with the greateſt truth, I delight in the law of God, after the inward man: my inmoſt ſoul, renewed by grace, doth not only approve the law in all its ſpirituality as good, but feels a complacency therein, and knows no happineſs equal to that perfect conformity thereto, which it deſires, and to which it hopes one day to arrive. But, what is the bittereſt burden I groan under, I ſee another law in my members, the mighty workings of remaining corruption, warring againſt the law of my mind, my better part, which divine grace has renewed; and though habitually the power of the new nature predominates, yet the war is often ſharp, and ſometimes corruption prevails, bringing me into captivity to the law of ſin, which is in my members; whilſt for a time overpowered, reluctantly I am drawn aſide, not a willing ſlave, but an unhappy captive. O wretched man that I am! thus tied and bound with the chain of my ſins, who ſhall deliver me from the body of this death? from this fallen nature, which, like a body conſiſting of various members, works ſo powerfully, and muſt, for any thing I can do to help myſelf, bring me under the ſentence of eternal death. But though I feel my helpleſſneſs, and lie down under ſelf-deſpair, I thank God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. By his grace I am already delivered from condemnation; by his Spirit I ſhall be ſaved from the power of evil; and his unchangeable promiſes aſſure me of a compleat victory ſhortly, when all the remainders of ſin ſhall be finally and utterly deſtroyed. So then the ſum of the matter is ſhortly this: with my mind, in my ſettled judgment and choice, I myſelf, (αυτος εγω) my real ſelf, with my renewed heart in the inner man, I ſerve the law of God, with full conſent, and willing ſubjection; but with my fleſh the law of ſin, feeling its workings in me, though diſallowed and condemned, and ſometimes, though reluctantly, brought under its hateful power.

Many have aſſerted, that Paul in this whole deſcription perſonates an unregenerate man, and ſeem to think it highly derogatory to his high character to ſuppoſe, that ſo great a Chriſtian, the chief of the apoſtles, ſhould feel ſuch a war of corruption as is here deſcribed: but if any man conſiders the expreſſions of his hating and not allowing the evil he did; his conſenting to the law as good; delighting in it after the inward man, (with which compare 2 Cor. iv. 16. Eph. [illegible]i. 16.) ſerving it with his mind, &c. and contraſts herewith the ſtate of unregeneracy deſcribed in the former chapter, v. 12, 13, 16, 19. he will ſee that the apoſtle ſpoke indeed of himſelf, and not another perſon. And will not the experience of the deareſt children of God correſpond herewith, whoſe minds are truly enlightened to know the ſpirituality of the law, and the corruption of their nature? Thoſe who are ignorant of the one, and feel not the other, may fancy themſelves indeed to have attained, and be already perfect: but to that the apoſtle pretended not, Phil, iii. 12. and thoſe who like him experimentally know their fallen ſtate, and impotence to obey the perfect law of God, will ſtill adopt his complaint, and feel the neceſſity of living conſtantly on the riches of that grace which is revealed in the goſpel.

CHAP. VIII.

The apoſtle having fully explained the doctrine of juſtification, and preſſed the neceſſity of ſanctification, in this chapter applies himſelf to the conſolation of the Lord's people. Miniſters are helpers of the joy of the ſaints. Comfort ye, comfort ye my people; ſo runs our commiſſion, Iſa. xl. 1. It is the will of God, that his people ſhould be a comforted people. And we have here ſuch a draught of the goſpel-charter, ſuch a diſplay of the unſpeakable privileges of true believers, as may furniſh us with abundant matter for joy and peace in believing, that by all theſe immutable things, in which it is impoſſible for God to lye, we might have ſtrong conſolation. And many of the people of God have accordingly found this chapter a well-ſpring of comfort to their ſouls, living and dying; and have ſucked and been ſatisfied from theſe breaſts of conſolation, and with joy drawn water out of theſe wells of ſalvation. There are three things in this chapter, 1. The particular inſtances of a Chriſtian's privileges, ver. 1—29. 2. The ground thereof laid in predeſtination, ver. 29, 30. 3. The apoſtle's triumph herein, in the name of all the ſaints, ver. 31, to the end.

1. [a] T*HERE is* therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Chriſt Jeſus, [b] who walk not after the fleſh, but after the Spirit. 2. For [c] the law of the Spirit of life in Chriſt Jeſus, hath made me free from the law of ſin and death. 3. For [d] what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the fleſh, [e] God ſending his own Son in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, and for ſin, condemned ſin in the fleſh: 4. That the righteouſneſs of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the fleſh, but after the Spirit. 5. For [f] they that are after the fleſh, do mind the things of the fleſh: but [g] they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit. 6. For [h] to be carnally minded, is death; but to be ſpiritually minded, is life and peace: 7. Becauſe [i] the carnal mind is enmity againſt God: [k] for it is not ſubject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. 8. So then they that are in the fleſh cannot pleaſe God.

[a] John xv. 4. Heb. vi. 18.
[b] Chap. vii. 6. Gal. v. 16, 22.
[c] John vi. 63. & viii. 32, 36. 2 Cor. iii. 6, Gal. ii. 19.
[d] Heb. vii. 18, 19. & ix. 9.
[e] John iii. 17. Acts xiii. 39. 2 Cor. v. 21. Gal. iii. 13.
[f] John iii. 6.
[g] Gal. v. 25.
[h] Chap. vi. 21. Gal. vi. 8.
[i] Jam. iv. 4.
[k] 1 Cor. ii. 14.

v. 1—8. This chapter opens with a moſt reviving view of the ſafety of every believer in their great covenant-head Chriſt Jeſus, notwithſtanding all the accuſations of guilt, and the ſtruggles of remaining corruption. There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Chriſt Jeſus; being united to him by faith as their ſurety, the ſentence of the law is reverſed: though they deſerve wrath as much as others; though Satan lays many grievous charges againſt them; and God himſelf is pleaſed to viſit ſometimes their iniquities with a rod, and their ſin with ſcourges, yet the bitterneſs of death is paſt. Since they have fled for refuge to the blood and righteouſneſs of a Redeemer, they are ſafe for eternity. And they are to be known by their daily converſation, as thoſe who walk not after the fleſh, under the habitual dominion of their fallen nature and corrupt affections; but after the Spirit, directed by God's word as their rule, and under the teachings, guidance, and influence of the Holy Ghoſt, who hath implanted a new and divine nature in them. For the law of the Spirit of life in Chriſt Jeſus, either that goſpel which, where truly embraced, operates moſt powerfully in conſtraining the conſcience by love unto obedience, through the quickening influence of the divine Spirit; or that moral law which, through the eternal Spirit, in its utmoſt perfection both in heart and practice, Jeſus, as our ſubſtitute, obeyed; and having thereby brought in an everlaſting righteouſneſs, hath made me free from the law of ſin and death, delivering me from the condemning ſentence of that law which diſcovered ſin to my conſcience, and denounced wrath as the wages due to it; and from the enſlaving power of corruption, through the grace purchaſed by the Redeemer's obedience unto death. For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the fleſh; becauſe of the corruption of our nature it was impoſſible that, as a covenant of works, any fallen creature could obtain life and ſalvation by the law, and it neither provided nor admitted any atonement or expiation for guilt; God ſending his own Son in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, and for ſin, condemned ſin in the fleſh; reſcuing us in his infinite grace from the ruin which a broken law, never to be repaired, threatned; and this in a way ſo tranſcendently glorious, even by the incarnation of his coequal Son, who took the human nature, with all its ſinleſs infirmities, and ſtood in the ſinner's ſtead; and laying upon him the iniquities of us all, God teſtified, in the ſufferings of his own Son for the ſin we had committed, the abhorrence he had of ſin, and exacted the puniſhment due to it from the incarnate Saviour; that the righteouſneſs of the law might be fulfilled in us, who, in virtue of our union with Jeſus, as our covenant-head and repreſentative, are now perſonally, legally, and perfectly juſtified, even by that law which before condemned us; becauſe being compleat in him, we are now poſſeſſed of a righteouſneſs adequate to all the demands of the law, yea in the higheſt magnifying the law, and making it honourable. And all who are thus vitally united to Chriſt as their head, walk not after the fleſh, but after the Spirit; for they are not only brought into a new ſtate, but are made partakers of a new and divine nature, which now influences and actuates them in all their converſation. For they that are after the fleſh, under the dominion of their native corruption, do mind the things of the fleſh; reliſh, delight in, and purſue the things that are pleaſing only to the carnal mind and ſenſual appetite: but they that are after the Spirit, partakers of his effectual grace, through union with Jeſus the living head of vital influence to his people; they (φρονουσι) underſtand, are attached to, delight in, and follow the things of the Spirit; both the doctrines he reveals, the bleſſings he beſtows, and the ſervices which he enjoins, and for which he enables them. For to be carnally minded, to live under the reigning dominion of the fallen ſpirit, governed by lawleſs paſſions and ſenſual appetites, is death; is a preſent ſtate of ſpiritual death, and muſt end in death eternal: but to be ſpiritually minded, renewed by the Holy Ghoſt, under the habitual influence of his grace, and ſupremely and abidingly attached to, and engaged in, the purſuit of ſpiritual objects; this is life and peace; it is the proof of the divine life begun in the ſoul; peace of conſcience is the preſent happy fruit which it produces, and it will iſſue in eternal peace and bleſſedneſs. Becauſe the carnal mind is enmity againſt God, and ſtands in direct oppoſition to his perfections and authority, abhorring the government of his providence, and hating the reſtraints and ſanctions of his law: for it is not ſubject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. There is an abſolute impoſſibility of ſuch a nature's being brought into conformity to the holy will of God; and till a new heart and right ſpirit be given from above, the enmity muſt for ever remain inveterate and unſubdued. So then they that are in the fleſh cannot pleaſe God; whilſt they continue in this ſtate, every thing they do is defiled, and the very duties they perform, however right in themſelves, are abominable in his ſight. So deſperate is our condition by nature, till the almighty grace of God works the bleſſed change, enabling us to walk and pleaſe God.

9. But ye are not in the fleſh, but in the Spirit, if ſo be that [l] the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now [m] if any man have not the Spirit of Chriſt, he is none of his. 10. And if [n] Chriſt be in you, the body is dead becauſe of ſin; but the Spirit is life, becauſe of righteouſneſs. 11. But if the Spirit of [o] him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead dwell in you; he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead [p] ſhall alſo quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. 12. Therefore, brethren, [q] we are debtors not to the fleſh, to live after the fleſh. 13. For [r] if ye live after the fleſh, ye ſhall die: but if [l] 1 Cor. iii. 16. & vi. 19.

[m] Gal. iv. 6.
[n] Eph. iii. 17.
[o] Acts ii. 24.
[p] Eph. ii. 5. Col. ii. 13. 1 Cor. xv. 16. 2 Cor. iv. 14.
[q] 1 Cor. vi. 20.
[r] Gal. vi. 8. Col. iii. 5, 6.

ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye ſhall live. 14. For [s] as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the ſons of God. 15. For [t] ye have not received the ſpirit of bondage again [u] to fear; but ye have received [x] the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. 16. [y] The Spirit itſelf beareth witneſs with our ſpirit, that we are the children of God.

[s] John i. 12. Gal. v. 18.
[t] 1 Cor. ii. 12.
[u] 2 Tim. i. 7. Heb. ii. 15.
[x] Iſa. lvi. 5. Gal. iv. 5, 6.
[y] 2 Cor. i. 22. & v. 5. Eph. i. 13. & iv. 30. 1 John iv. 13.

v. 9—16. With comfort the apoſtle addreſſes the believers at Rome, confident of their intereſt in the bleſſed Spirit of all grace. But ye are not in the fleſh, under the dominion and influence of the carnal mind; but in the Spirit, being regenerate and born again; if ſo be, or ſeeing that, the Spirit of God dwelleth in you, as in his peculiar temple, taking up his abode in your hearts, maniſeſting there his preſence and love, and ſhewing his powerful and perpetual agency. But now, if any man have not the Spirit of Chriſt, who is the very God from whom, as from the Father, that one Spirit proceeds, and be not renewed by his grace, and under his guidance and influence, he is none of his: whatever his profeſſions may be, he doth not belong to Chriſt as a member of his body myſtical, he is not a child of his family, nor a ſubject of his kingdom, and muſt be eternally diſowned by him and ſeparated from him, if he dies in this unregenerate ſtate. And, on the other hand, if Chriſt be in you, by his Spirit dwelling in your hearts, the body indeed is dead becauſe of ſin, and muſt lie down in the duſt; but the ſpirit, the immortal part, is life, becauſe of righteouſneſs, raiſed from ſpiritual death in virtue of the Redeemer's righteouſneſs here, and entitled to eternal life hereafter, and by the divine principle implanted in you made meet for the inheritance among the ſaints in light: but if the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, being one in eſſence and co-operation with the Father and the Son, (comp. 1 Cor. vi. 14. John v. 28, 29.) and concurring in the work of raiſing the body of Jeſus, dwell in you as his temple, he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, as the pledge of our reſurrection, and the firſt-fruits of them that ſlept, ſhall quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit which dwelleth in you; your bodies ſhall, by the ſame indwelling almighty power which raiſed him, be ranſomed from the grave, and become immortal and glorious, faſhioned like to your exalted Head. Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the fleſh, to live after the fleſh; we have neither obligation nor inducement to follow the cravings of corrupt nature; but, on the contrary, are under every bond of love and duty to live for God, in the daily and habitual mortification of every vile affection: for if ye live after the fleſh, the ſlaves of corruption, ye ſhall die eternally; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, denying your corrupt affections and ſenſual appetites, and through the power of the Spirit growing conformed to your crucified Lord, ye ſhall live with him in glory everlaſting. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, under his conduct, enlightened, directed, and ſupported by him, they are the ſons of God, made his children by adoption and grace, and bearing in their renewed minds his image and likeneſs. For ye have not received the Spirit of bondage again to fear, are not under that ſlavery to your luſts and paſſions, which was attended with a fearful looking for of judgment; nor under that legal diſpenſation which brought the conſcience into diſtreſs and darkneſs, exacting an obedience that could not be paid; nor under thoſe horrors which, on the firſt diſcoveries of your danger in a ſtate of unregeneracy, ſeized on your ſouls: but ye have received the Spirit of adoption; being admitted by God's ſovereign grace into that high relation of children, he hath ſent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, producing every childlike diſpoſition of filial love, confidence, and delight in him, whereby we are emboldened to approach him with faith and joy, and to cry, Abba, Father, before him. The Spirit itſelf, in ſuch approaches to God, when in ſimplicity we offer our hearts unto him, beareth witneſs with our ſpirits, ſhining upon his own work in our ſouls, and ſatisfying our conſciences that we are the children of God, and may take the comfort of that bleſſed and honourable relation.

17. And [z] if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Chriſt: [a] if ſo be that we ſuffer with him, that we may be alſo glorified together. 18. For I reckon, that [b] the ſufferings of this preſent time, are not worthy to be compared with the glory which ſhall be revealed in us. 19. For the earneſt expectation of the creature waiteth for [c] the manifeſtation of the ſons of God. 20. For [d] the creature was made ſubject to vanity, not willingly, but by reaſon of him who hath ſubjected the ſame in hope: 21. Becauſe [e] the creature itſelf alſo ſhall be delivered from the bondage of corruption, into the glorious liberty of the children of God. 22. For we know that [f] the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now: 23. And not only they, but ourſelves alſo, [g] which have the firſt-fruits of the Spirit, [h] even we ourſelves groan within ourſelves, [i] waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body. 24. For we are ſaved by hope: But [k] hope that is ſeen is not hope: for what a man ſeeth why doth he yet hope for? 25. But if we hope for that we ſee not, then do we with patience wait for it.

[z] Gal. iv. 7.
[a] Acts xiv. 22. 2 Tim. ii. 11, 12.
[b] Mat. v. 12. 2 Cor. iv. 17. 1 Pet. iv. 13.
[c] 1 John iii. 2.
[d] Gen. iii. 17.
[e] 2 Pet. iii. 13.
[f] Job xxxi. 38. Jer. xii. 11. Hab. ii. 11.
[g] Eph. i. 14.
[h] 2 Cor. v. 2, 4.
[i] Luke xxi. 28. Eph. iv. 30.
[k] 2 Cor. v. 7. Heb. xi. 1.

v. 17—25. The inheritance of glory is the neceſſary conſequence of our adoption of God. To this tranſcendently excellent privilege the apoſtle therefore paſſeth: and concludes, that if children by adoption and grace, then are we heirs, and entitled to the eternal inheritance; heirs of God, made ſo by his Spirit, and receiving from him all the bleſſedneſs which he hath to beſtow, and hath promiſed in his Son; and joint-heirs with Chriſt, who is the firſt-born of many brethren, and hath ſecured for them, as for himſelf, the title to eternal life: if ſo be that we ſuffer with him, as we muſt expect to do in his ſervice, this being the inſeparable attendant of it, that all who will live godly in Chriſt Jeſus muſt ſuffer perſecution; but the iſſue will be highly to our advantage; that we may be alſo glorified together at the great day of his appearing, when he ſhall beſtow the promiſed crown, and before men and angels acknowledge us as his brethren. And ſuch a proſpect makes all our trials light and eaſy. For I reckon (λογιζομαι), on ſumming up the account of our loſs and gain, that the ſufferings of this preſent time, however acute or continued, are not worthy to be compared with the glory which ſhall be revealed in us; but, when placed againſt the glories of eternity, they appear trivial and momentary, and ſink unnoticed as the drop into the boundleſs ocean. For the earneſt expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifeſtation of the ſons of God; which ſome underſtand of the Gentile world, and the elect of God among them who thro' the power of Satan had been made ſubject to vanity and idolatry; but now, being themſelves reſcued from the bondage of corruption, they earneſtly expected, as a woman in travail, the happy time, when, by the more abundant outpouring of the Spirit, a more general converſion ſhould be wrought in the earth, and far greater multitudes of loſt ſouls be reſcued from the dominion of the wicked one, and brought into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God. Others ſuppoſe that the creature, even the whole creation (πασα κτισις) in general, animate or inanimate, is here by a noble proſopopeia introduced, as waiting with eager impatience for that bleſſed alteration which the goſpel will make, when the creatures of God ſhall be no more abuſed as they have been, but ſhall be recovered from their preſent diſordered ſtate, and employed by the ſons of God, according to their original deſign, to exalt their Maker's glory. For the creature was made ſubject to vanity; the very ground being curſed for man's ſin, and all the creatures perverted, through the corruption which is in the human nature, from their original deſign and uſe; not willingly, by any choice or tendency of their own, or any ſin in them; but by reaſon of him who hath ſubjected the ſame, and by that ſin to which Adam was inſtigated through the malice of the devil, were involved in the miſeries of his fall. Not that they ſhould always remain under the dreadful abuſes which they ſuffer; but they reſt in hope that the creature itſelf alſo ſhall be delivered from the bondage of corruption, under which they lie at preſent, into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God, reſtored by them to anſwer the great end for which they were created, and expecting the general reſtitution of all things, when the new heavens and new earth ſhall ariſe, wherein dwelleth righteouſneſs. For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now, under the grievous burden of abuſes which the creatures ſuffer, and longing for deliverance. And not only they, but ourſelves alſo which have the firſt-fruits of the Spirit, in his preſent ſealing, ſanctifying, and comforting operations, the earneſts of the eternal felicity provided for us in a better world; even we ourſelves, notwithſtanding the riches of the grace of which we have been made partakers, yet, groan within ourſelves, under the remainder of indwelling ſin, and the afflictions which ſtill lie heavy upon us till death; waiting for the adoption, when Chriſt will publickly own the relation he bears to us before men and angels at the great day; to wit, the redemption of our body, when, triumphant over the grave, we ſhall reach the ſummit of heavenly felicity; our ſouls perfected in holineſs, our bodies faſhioned like to Chriſt's glorious body, and the whole man ſhall together be bleſt with the fruition of God himſelf as his everlaſting portion. For we are ſaved by hope; though we are not yet in poſſeſſion of the purchaſed glory, we hold our title in ſure and certain hope: but hope that is ſeen is not hope; when the object is poſſeſſed hope ceaſes: for what a man ſeeth why doth he yet hope for? But if we hope for that we ſee not, expecting ſhortly perfect deliverance from all our corruptions and afflictions; then do we with patience wait for it, perſuaded that the Lord, in his own good time, will fulfil his promiſes, and bring us at laſt, through all our trials, to the inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, which fadeth not away, reſerved for us in the heavens. And bleſſed and happy are all they who thus wait for him.

26. Likewiſe the Spirit alſo helpeth our infirmities: for [l] we know not what we ſhould pray for as we ought: but [m] the Spirit itſelf maketh interceſſion for us with groanings which cannot be uttered. 27. And he [n] that ſearcheth the hearts, knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, becauſe he maketh interceſſion for the ſaints, [o] according to the will of God. 28. And we know that [p] all things work together for good to them that love God, [q] to them who are called according to his purpoſe.

[l] Mat. xx. 22. Jam. iv. 3.
[m] Zech. xii. 10. Eph. vi. 18.

[n] 1 Chron. xxviii. 9. Pſ. vii. 9. Jer. xi. 20.
[o] 1 John v. 14.
[p] Gen. l. 20. Prov. xii. 21. Chap. v. 3, 4.
[q] Chap. ix. 11. 2 Tim. i. 9.

v. 26—28. We have not only a glorious hope before us, but have likewiſe the moſt reviving ſupports by the way; for the Spirit of our God, quickening, comforting, ſtrengthening us, helpeth our infirmities, that we may not ſink under our burdens, or be diſcouraged by our trials, or err through our remaining darkneſs (συναντιλαμϐανει) having implanted the graces of hope and patience, he ſtill ſupports us in the exerciſe of them, and particularly in our approaches to God in prayer; for we know not what to pray for as we ought; ignorant, and knowing not what is beſt for us; weak, and unable to expreſs our wants aright; our affections ſo cold, our attention ſo diſtracted, and ſometimes our lips ſealed up, that we cannot ſpeak before God: but the Spirit itſelf, by his gracious ſuggeſtions, maketh interceſſion for us, pouring out a ſpirit of prayer and ſupplication upon our hearts, giving us ſuch a ſenſe of our wants, and exciting deſires after God ſo intenſe and affecting as words cannot expreſs, which can only be breathed forth with groanings which cannot be uttered. And he that ſearcheth the hearts, the all-ſeeing God, knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit; though our tongue may not form an articulate ſound in prayer, God regards and will anſwer theſe gracious workings of his Spirit in our hearts, becauſe he maketh interceſſion for the ſaints according to the will of God, inclining us always to aſk according to the mind and will of God, and engaging us humbly to reſign ourſelves, for an anſwer to our prayers, in time, manner, and meaſure, to his good pleaſure. And we know, by the aſſured promiſes of his word, by the experience of all his ſaints, and by our own, when thus unreſervedly caſting our care upon him, that all things work together for good to them that love God; and however dark, and for the time grievous to fleſh and blood, the diſpenſations of Providence may appear, we are now aſſured, and we ſhall hereafter prove, that the circumſtances which ſeemed moſt afflictive we could not have done without, and that they eſpecially conduced to promote our ſpiritual and eternal welfare; and this is one of the ineſtimable privileges peculiar to them who are called according to his eternal purpoſe, and by the goſpel, through the power of the Spirit, effectually turned to God.

29. For [r] whom he did foreknow, [s] he alſo did predeſtinate [t] to be conformed to the image of his Son, [u] that he might be the firſt-born among many brethren. 30. Moreover, whom he did predeſtinate, [x] them he alſo called: and whom he called, [y] them he alſo juſtified: and whom he juſtified, [z] them he alſo glorified.

[r] Ex. xxxiii. 12. Jer. i. 5. Chap. xi. 2. 2 Tim. ii. 19.
[s] Eph. i. 5, 11.
[t] 2 Theſ. ii. 13. 1 Pet. i. 2.
[u] Col. i. 18.
[x] Iſa. xliii. 1. & li. 2.
[y] 1 Cor. i. 24. Heb. ix. 15. 1 Pet. iii. 9.
[z] Chap. v. 10. & ix. 23, 24. Tit. iii. 7.

v. 29, 30. The apoſtle, having mentioned ſeveral of the ineſtimable privileges which belong to the faithful in Chriſt Jeſus, here traces them up to their origin in God's predeſtination, and to their iſſue in our eternal glory. For whom he did foreknow, as the objects of his eternal love, choſen of his ſovereign will and pleaſure to be to the praiſe of the glory of his grace, he alſo did predeſtinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, in holineſs of heart and life, in ſufferings here, and in eternal glory hereafter; that he might be the firſt-born among many brethren, their Prince and Pattern, having in all things the pre-eminence, the firſt begotten from the dead, and the forerunner in our name and nature, entered for us into poſſeſſion of the heavenly inheritance. Moreover, whom he did predeſtinate to holineſs and ſufferings as the way, and heaven as the end, them he alſo called by his grace, through the goſpel word, to know, embrace, and profeſs the faith of Jeſus; and whom he called, them he alſo juſtified, diſcharging them from all guilt and condemnation, and accepting them as righteous through their Covenant-Head and Subſtitute; and whom he juſtified, them he alſo glorified, advancing them to his own right hand, and making them to ſit down with him on his eternal throne. And this, being ſure to be accompliſhed in all God's redeemed people, is ſpoken of as already done, becauſe not one can periſh of the many ſons whom the Lord Chriſt is appointed to bring unto glory. Note, (1.) God doth not chuſe us for any good in us, or done by us, or which he foreſaw we ſhould do afterwards; but merely of his ſovereign will and pleaſure. (2.) God's predeſtination is ſo far from leading us to live as we liſt, as ſome ſuppoſe, that it is the moſt powerful argument to walk in holineſs as Chriſt alſo walked, whereunto we are appointed. (3.) It were the height of folly to flatter ourſelves we ſhall live with Chriſt hereafter, if we are not like him now. (4.) The Redeemer's undertaking was not uncertain; he knew that none whom he purchaſed ſhould ever periſh. (5.) God by his word, his providences, his Spirit, calls all thoſe whom he hath choſen, and ſo effectually, that they cannot but hear and obey him. (6.) They who, obedient to the goſpel call, have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope ſet before them, are juſtified from all things, and ſhall never again enter into condemnation, ſo as finally to periſh. (7.) All the redeemed muſt be glorified. Our ſalvation ſtands not upon our frail and ſinful ſelves, but upon the well-ordered covenant, and the perfection of our divine Subſtitute; we are complete in him, and are already ſat down in heavenly places with and in Chriſt Jeſus.

31. What ſhall we then ſay to theſe things? [a] If God be for us, who can be againſt us? 32. [b] He that ſpared not his own Son, but [c] delivered him up for us all; [d] how ſhall he not with him alſo freely give us all things? 33. [e] Who ſhall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that juſtifieth: 34. [f] Who is he that condemneth? [g] It is Chriſt that died, yea rather that is riſen again, who is even at the right hand of God, [h] who alſo maketh interceſſion for us. 35. [i] Who ſhall ſeparate us from the love of Chriſt? ſhall tribulation? or diſtreſs? or perſecution? or famine? or nakedneſs? or peril? or ſword? 36. (As it is written, [k] For thy ſake we are killed all the day long; we are accounted as ſheep for the ſlaughter) 37. [l] Nay in all theſe things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. 38. For I am perſuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, [m] nor principalities, nor powers, nor things preſent, nor things to come, 39. Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, ſhall be able to ſeparate us from the love of God which is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.

[a] 2 Kin. vi. 16. Pſ. cxviii. 6.
[b] Gen. xxii. 12. Zech. xiii. 7.
[c] Iſa. liii. 5. John iii. 16. Chap. iv. 25.
[d] Pſ. xxxiv. 10. Mat. vi. 33. 1 Tim. iv. 8. 2 Pet. i. 3.
[e] Iſa. l. 8. Rev. xii. 10.
[f] Job xxxiv. 29.
[g] Chap. iv. 25.
[h] Chap. v. 1. Heb. vii. 25. 1 John ii. 1.
[i] John x. 28.
[k] Pſ. xliv. 22. 2 Cor. iv. 11.
[l] 2 Cor. ii. 14. & iv. 16. Rev. xii. 11.
[m] Eph. vi. 12.

v. 31—39. Having enumerated the diſtinguiſhing bleſſings of the faithful, the apoſtle triumphantly exults in the aſſurance of God's unchangeable regard.

1. In the view of what God hath done he defies all accuſers. What ſhall we then ſay to theſe things? ſhall we ſtart back from ſufferings when the iſſue is ſo glorious? what can we wiſh or deſire more tranſcendently glorious than theſe great and precious promiſes. If God be for us, with infinite wiſdom to guide, almighty power to protect, and boundleſs love to comfort us, who can be againſt us? what have we to fear from men or devils? they cannot fruſtrate his purpoſes of grace, nor diſappoint his deſigns. He that ſpared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, of his own good pleaſure freely gave him to become incarnate, laid upon him our iniquities, and exacted from him all that puniſhment which his people had deſerved; how ſhall he not with him alſo freely give us all things? what can he now withhold, when, compared with the gift of his Son, every thing beſide muſt appear but little? ſince he hath given him, we may ſurely conclude he will much more add all the reſt, and freely enrich us with all ſpiritual and eternal bleſſings in Chriſt Jeſus. Who ſhall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? be their tranſgreſſions never ſo many, great, and aggravated; it is God that juſtifieth them; and, ſince he hath accepted them in their Surety, they can appear with boldneſs at his tribunal, and plead that perfect atonement and righteouſneſs which even juſtice itſelf muſt approve: who is he that condemneth? let the law accuſe, let conſcience plead guilty; yet, ſince he who hath redeemed us from the curſe of the law is our Advocate, there is no condemnation; for it is Chriſt that died, he hath paid the ranſom; yea rather that is riſen again; God hath teſtified his full approbation therein of his undertaking, and that his juſtice is compleatly ſatisfied; ſo that we may ſafely truſt upon his finiſhed ſalvation; who is even at the right hand of God, exalted to the higheſt dignity and glory, as a Prince and Saviour, to give repentance and remiſſion of ſins; who alſo maketh interceſſion for us; our friend in every time of need, and, in the all-prevailing merit of his atonement, pleading effectually our cauſe, and ſecuring our eternal felicity. Note, The views of a dying, riſen, aſcended, glorified Redeemer, ſhould ſilence all our fears and doubts, and engage us comfortably and confidently to truſt him under all our trials for time and for eternity.

2. He profeſſes his confidence that, with ſuch a Saviour at the right hand of God, no ſufferings ſhall ever ſeparate our ſouls from Chriſt and his love. Who ſhall ſeparate us from the love of Chriſt? what ſhall be able to quench the fervor of his affection towards us, or extinguiſh the ſacred flame which he hath kindled in our boſoms? ſhall tribulation, or diſtreſs, or perſecution, or famine, or nakedneſs, or peril, or ſword, ſhall all the various ills that fleſh is heir to, from ſickneſs, pain, poverty, a malignant world, a corrupted nature, a tempting devil, ſhall theſe ſeparate us from the Redeemer's arms? No. That we muſt ſuffer he hath foretold us, as it is written, For thy ſake we are killed all the day long, we are accounted as ſheep for the ſlaughter, butchered without remorſe by our cruel perſecutors, and for the ſake of Jeſus in jeopardy every hour. But do theſe things move us? Nay: ſo far from it, that in all theſe things we are more than conquerors, riſing ſuperior to every foe, through him that loved us, whoſe inward ſupports and conſolations over-balance all our ſufferings, and whoſe power and grace, continually exerted on our behalf, carry us triumphantly through our conflicts. For

I am perſuaded, that neither death, with all its terrors; nor life, with all its allurements; nor angels, nor principalities; nor powers; neither the fiends of darkneſs, nor the perſecuting rulers of the earth; nor things preſent, the afflictions and temptations now felt; nor things to come, the greater evils which we fear; nor height of proſperity, nor depth of adverſity, nor any other creature, ſhall be able to ſeparate us from the love of God which is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. Till the Son be ſeparated from the Father's boſom, we never can be ſeparated from his love; for we are one with him in union indiſſoluble. When any gracious ſoul is tempted to doubt their final perſeverance, and ready to ſink under preſent trials, let them read this bleſſed chapter, and in the unchangeable love of God in Chriſt ſweetly repoſe. He is faithful; therefore we ſhall never periſh.

CHAP. IX.

The apoſtle, 1. Expreſſes his deep concern for his countrymen who rejected the goſpel, ver. 1—5. 2. He proves that the promiſes made to the fathers are nevertheleſs made good, ver. 6—13. 3. He anſwers the objections raiſed againſt God's ſovereignty and predeſtination, both with regard to his dealings with Jews and Gentiles, ver. 14—29. 4. If the Gentiles obtained righteouſneſs and ſalvation, and the Jews neither, it was becauſe they ſought it in a wrong way, ver. 30—33.

1. [a] I Say the truth in Chriſt, I lie not, my conſcience alſo bearing me witneſs in the holy Ghoſt, 2. That [b] I have great heavineſs and continual ſorrow in my heart. 3. For [c] I could wiſh that myſelf were accurſed from Chriſt for my brethren, my kinſmen according to the fleſh: 4. [d] Who are Iſraelites; to whom pertaineth [e] the adoption, and [f] the glory, and [g] the covenants, and [h] the giving of the law, and the ſervice of God, and the [i] promiſes; 5. [k] Whoſe are the fathers, and [l] of whom as concerning the fleſh Chriſt came, [m] who is over all, God bleſſed for ever. Amen.

[a] Chap. i. 9. 2 Cor. i. 23. & xi. 31.
[b] Chap. x. 1. Jer. ix. 1.
[c] Ex. xxxii. 32.
[d] Deut. vii. 6.
[e] Ex. iv. 22. Jer. xxxi. 9.
[f] 1 Sam. iv. 21.
[g] Jer. xxxi. 31, &c.
[h] Pſ. cxlvii. 19. Chap. iii. 2.
[i] Eph. ii. 12.
[k] Acts iii. 25. Chap. xi. 28.
[l] Heb. ii. 16.
[m] Eph. i. 21. Phil. ii. 9.

v. 1—5. The Jewiſh bigots looked upon Paul as a ſignal apoſtate, and perſecuted him with peculiar virulence and enmity. He wiſhed therefore to ſoften their exaſperated ſpirits, whilſt he makes profeſſion of his own tender concern for their welfare and ſalvation. And there is a peculiar propriety in his introduction, when we conſider the offenſive truths he was about to advance.

1. He makes a ſolemn proteſtation of the very fervent regard he bore towards them. I ſay the truth in Chriſt, ſolemnly appealing to him who is the ſearcher of hearts, and knoweth that I lie not, my conſcience alſo bearing me witneſs in the Holy Ghoſt to the ſimplicity and ſincerity of what I am going to ſay, that, far from entertaining the leaſt prejudice or ill-will againſt my countrymen, I have great heavineſs and continual ſorrow in my heart, feeling the acuteſt pangs of grief, when I think of their fearful condition, and what muſt be the inevitable conſequences of their unbelief. For I could wiſh that myſelf were accurſed from Chriſt (αναθεμα), content to be cut off from all my privileges as an apoſtle, and to be ſeparated from the ſociety of the faithful with ſhame and diſgrace, yea to undergo the moſt ignominious and tormenting death, for my brethren, my kinſmen according to the fleſh.

2. He mentions the diſtinguiſhed privileges with which they had been favoured of God, which could not but make their rejection peculiarly grievous to him. Who are Iſraelites, bearing the name of their eminent progenitor Jacob; to whom pertaineth the adoption, taken into that covenant of peculiarity in which God regarded the whole nation as his children, Exod. iv. 22. and the glory, the ark, the ſhechinah, the mercy-ſeat, the tokens and emblems of the Divine Preſence in the midſt of them; and the covenants, the covenant of circumciſion made with Abraham, and renewed with Iſaac and Jacob, and that of Sinai with the whole body of Iſrael; and the giving of the law, containing God's ordinances, moral, judicial, and ceremonial; and the ſervice of God, in what manner his worſhip ſhould be performed; and the promiſes, of temporal proſperity, which would be the reward of their obedience, and of the Meſſiah and his great ſalvation; whoſe are the fathers, the deſcendants of the famed patriarchs; and of whom, as concerning the fleſh, Chriſt came, the promiſed ſeed of Abraham in his human nature; but who, in his divine, is over all, God bleſſed for ever. Amen! Note, (1.) The divinity of our incarnate Saviour is a chief article of our creed. Thereon depends the perfection of his work on our behalf. (2.) As God, the Lord Jeſus is the great object of worſhip, and our prayers and praiſes muſt be addreſſed immediately to him.

6. [n] Not as though the word of God hath taken none effect. For [o] they are not all Iſrael, which are of Iſrael: 7. [p] Neither becauſe they are the ſeed of Abraham, are they all children: but [q] in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeed be called. 8. That is, They which are the children of the fleſh, theſe are not the children of God: but [r] the children of the promiſe are counted for the ſeed. 9. For this is the word of promiſe, [s] At this time will I come, and Sara ſhall have a ſon. 10. And not only this, but when [t] Rebecca alſo had conceived by one, even by our father Iſaac, 11. (For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the purpoſe of God according to election might ſtand, [u] not of works, but of him that calleth) 12. It was ſaid unto her, [x] The elder ſhall ſerve the younger. 13. As it is written, [y] Jacob have I loved, but Eſau have I hated.

[n] Iſa. lv. 11. Acts xiii. 32, 33. Chap. iii. 3.
[o] Chap. ii. 28. & xi. 25.
[p] John viii. 39. Gal. iv. 23.
[q] Gen. xxi. 12.
[r] Gal. iv. 28.
[s] Gen. xviii. 10.
[t] Gen. xxv. 21.
[u] 2 Tim. i. 9.
[x] Gen. xxv. 23.
[y] Mal. i. 1, 2.

v. 6—13. Grief for his unhappy countrymen filled the apoſtle's heart: but, though the generality of them periſhed, the promiſe made to Abraham would not be fruſtrated. He would not therefore have them ſuppoſe as though the word of God had taken none effect, and failed of its accompliſhment, becauſe they believed not. It is not poſſible (as the words may be rendered) that the word of God ſhould fall. For they are not all Iſrael, true Iſraelites, and ſavingly intereſted in the ſpiritual bleſſings of the covenant, which are of Iſrael, the offſpring of Jacob; neither becauſe they are the ſeed of Abraham, are they all children of God, and ſure of acceptance with him and of ſalvation, as they flattered themſelves. External privileges never intitled any ſoul to life and glory. And they might very early obſerve that,

1. In the difference made between the two ſons of Abraham, not in Iſhmael, but in Iſaac (ſays God, Gen. xxi. 12.) ſhall thy ſeed be called, from him the Meſſiah was to ſpring, in his line only was the favoured poſterity of Abraham to be reckoned, and like him were the ſpiritual ſeed to be, the children of the free woman, Gal. iv. 22. and partakers of eternal bleſſedneſs. That is, They which are the children of the fleſh, the natural deſcendants of Abraham, they are not all the children of God: but, as was evident from the firſt in the caſe of Iſhmael and Iſaac, the children of the promiſe are counted for the ſeed, even thoſe who, as Iſaac, are born not of the will of the fleſh, nor of man, but of God, and through faith embrace the great promiſe of ſalvation through Jeſus Chriſt. For this is the word of promiſe, At this time will I come, and Sarah ſhall have a ſon. When Sarah had been long ſince paſt child-bearing, this ſon, the type and figure of the ſpiritual ſeed, was raiſed up through the ſupernatural agency of God according to his promiſe.

2. The ſame diſtinction is alſo obſervable between the ſons of Iſaac, though ſprung from the ſame mother, and this too before they were born, and could have done any perſonal acts to cauſe the difference which God was pleaſed to put between them. And not only was this the caſe with the ſons of Abraham, but when Rebecca alſo had conceived by one, even by our father Iſaac, though twins in the ſame womb, God preferred one to the other. (For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, there could be nothing in them to influence God's choice, both being alike born in ſin: yet were they ſovereignly diſtinguiſhed from each other, that the purpoſe of God according to election might ſtand firm and immutable, not of works, either done or foreſeen, but of him that calleth effectually, according to the good pleaſure of his will). When therefore the children were yet in the womb, it was ſaid unto her, The elder ſhall ſerve the younger, Jacob inheriting the birthright and bleſſing, whilſt Eſau was rejected; and in after ages the poſterity of the elder became tributary to Iſrael, 2 Sam. viii. 14. As it is written, Jacob have I loved, but Eſau have I hated. Which ſome refer to the election and rejection of their poſterity; others of their perſons, God ſovereignly chuſing Jacob to be an heir of grace, and leaving Eſau under the corruption and wrath of a fallen nature. Note, Though none are damned but for their ſins, yet all who are ſaved owe it to God's free and ſovereign grace alone.

14. What ſhall we ſay then? [z] Is there unrighteouſneſs with God? God forbid. 15. For he ſaith to Moſes, [a] I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compaſſion on whom I will have compaſſion. 16. So then [b] it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that ſheweth mercy. 17. For the ſcripture ſaith unto Pharaoh, [c] Even for this ſame purpoſe have I raiſed thee up, that I might ſhew my power in thee, and that my name might be declared throughout all the earth. 18. [d] Therefore hath he mercy on whom he will have mercy, and whom he will he hardeneth. 19. Thou wilt ſay then unto me, Why doth he yet find fault? For who hath reſiſted his will? 20. [e] Nay but, O man, who art thou that replieſt againſt God? [f] ſhall the thing formed ſay to him that formed it, Why haſt thou made me thus? 21. [g] Hath not the potter power over the clay, of the ſame lump to make [z] Deut. xxxii. 4. 2 Chron. xix. 7. Pſ. xcii. 15.

[a] Ex. xxxiii. 19.
[b] Iſa. lxv. 1.
[c] Ex. ix. 16. Prov. xvi. 4.
[d] Luke x. 21.
[e] Job ix. 14, 15. & xl. 2, 4, 5.
[f] Iſa. xlv. 9. Dan. iv. 35. Mat. xx. 15.
[g] Iſa. lxiv. 8. Jer. xviii. 6. 2 Tim. ii. 20.

one veſſel unto honour, and another unto diſhonour? 22. What if God, willing to ſhew his wrath, and to make his power known, endured with much long-ſuffering [h] the veſſels of wrath [i] fitted to deſtruction: 23. And that he might make known [k] the riches of his glory on the veſſels of mercy, which he had afore prepared unto glory? 24. Even us whom he hath called, [l] not of the Jews only, but alſo of the Gentiles.

[h] 1 Theſ. v. 9.
[i] 1 Pet. ii. 8. Jude 4.
[k] Eph. i. 7. Col. i. 27. 2 Tim. i. 9. & ii. 21.
[l] Eph. ii. 14, &c.

v. 14—24. The apoſtle proceeds to vindicate the ways of God to men, and to anſwer the objections which every fallen ſpirit naturally raiſes againſt the ſovereignty of God. What ſhall we ſay then? If he thus of his mere pleaſure chuſes one, and leaves another, Is there not unrighteouſneſs with God? Is not this procedure unjuſt and partial? God forbid. His grace is his own. The favour ſhewn to ſome is no injuſtice to others from whom he is pleaſed to withhold it.

1. He ſovereignly extends mercy to ſome. For he ſaith to Moſes, I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compaſſion on whom I will have compaſſion. And ſuch an exerciſe of his power and grace, in reſcuing ſome of the apoſtate race of mankind who deſerve nothing from him, can be no injuſtice to the reſt. His prerogative it is to do what he will with his own; and whatever he doth muſt be right. So then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that ſheweth mercy; the ſinner's ſalvation comes not from any works or will, or ability of his own, recommending him to the divine favour in preference to another, but is an act of ſovereign mercy, according to God's eternal purpoſe.

2. He ſovereignly paſſes by others, and leaves them to the miſeries of their fallen nature; as in the caſe of Pharaoh. For the ſcripture ſaith unto Pharaoh, Even for this ſame purpoſe have I raiſed thee up to the throne of Egypt, that I might ſhew my power in thee, making this impious king's ſtubbornneſs and rebellion the means of more glorioully diſplaying his own might, and ſhewing, that thoſe who walk in pride he is able to abaſe; and that my name might be declared throughout all the earth, in the manifeſtation of my patience and righteous vengeance towards my enemics, and of my love and faithfulneſs to my choſen.

3. Therefore, it is evident, he hath mercy on whom he will have mercy, according to the good pleaſure of his own will; and whom he will he hardeneth, leaving them, like Pharaoh, to the ſtupidity and pride of their fallen hearts; and, when they have reſiſted all his warnings and corrections, he delivers them up to judicial blindneſs and impenitence. And herein he is righteous: as he owes no man any thing, thoſe who are left to themſelves have no right to complain, ſince they are alone the authors of their own miſeries; whilſt thoſe who are reſcued from the ruins of their fallen nature aſcribe their recovery to his ſovereign and boundleſs grace.

4. The apoſtle foreſees an objection which would immediately be ſtarted againſt the ſovereignty of God, in beſtowing his peculiar and diſtinguiſhing grace on ſome, and withholding it from others. Why doth he yet find fault? and threaten to puniſh the diſobedience he will not prevent? for who hath reſiſted his will? if he gives men up to follow their own hearts, and they cannot but do evil, how can that be conſtrued reſiſtance againſt him which he abandons them to commit? Note, When we hear the ſame objections now raiſed againſt us as were of old againſt the apoſtle, it is a ſtrong preſumption that our doctrine is the ſame; and we will anſwer as he doth.

5. Nay but, O man, who art thou that repliest againſt God? what arrogance for a deſpicable worm to diſpute with his Creator? for a fallen ſinner to queſtion a holy God on his procedures? and for folly itſelf to arraign infinite wiſdom at its bar? ſhall the thing formed ſay to him that formed it, Why haſt thou made me thus? in the diſpenſations of thy providence and grace leaving me to periſh, whilſt others equally guilty are ſaved? Hath not the potter power over the clay, of the ſame lump to make one veſſel unto honour, and another unto diſhonour? and hath not God the ſame authority, out of the ſame maſs of the human nature, to form veſſels of wrath and mercy; exalting ſome to undeſerved bleſſedneſs, and leaving others to moſt deſerved contempt? What if God, willing to ſhew his wrath, and to make his power known, in puniſhing the wicked, endured with much long-ſuffering the veſſels of wrath fitted to deſtruction: Is this unrighteous? No. The objects of his vengeance moſt juſtly ſuffer. They are corrupted creatures, children of wrath by nature, have rejected his warnings, abuſed his patience, and filled up the meaſure of their iniquities: and if God hath taken this courſe, that he might more eminently make known the riches of his glory on the veſſels of mercy, which he had afore prepared unto glory, can any man object to the riches of his grace, manifeſted to thoſe who in his eternal purpoſes were appointed, and in the fulneſs of time prepared, for the inheritance among the ſaints in light? Surely he hath full right to exerciſe ſuch ſovereign grace to others as he hath done even to us whom he hath called, not of the Jews only, but alſo of the Gentiles. If they are the objects of his love, and the people of his choice, it matters not of what nation they are, he regards them as Abraham's ſeed, and heirs according to the promiſe. Note, (1.) How hard is it to ſubmit to God's ſovereignty, and to be ſatisfied to lie paſſive as the clay in the hands of the potter? (2.) None go to hell but thoſe whoſe ſins have fitted them for deſtruction: none go to heaven but thoſe whom God hath afore prepared unto glory. For which place then are we on the wheel?

25. As he ſaith alſo in Oſee, [m] I will call them my people, which were not my people; and her, beloved, which was not beloved. 26. And [n] it ſhall come to paſs, that in the place where it was ſaid unto them, Ye are not my people; there ſhall they be called the children of the living God. 27. Eſaias alſo crieth concerning Iſrael, [o] Though the number of the children of Iſrael be as the ſand of the ſea, [p] a remnant ſhall be ſaved. 28. For he will finiſh the work, and cut it ſhort in righteouſneſs: becauſe a ſhort work will the Lord make upon the earth. 29. And as Eſaias ſaid before, [q] Except the Lord of ſabaoth had left us a ſeed, we had been [r] as Sodoma, and been made like unto Gomorrha.

[m] Hoſ. ii. 23. 1 Pet. ii. 10.
[n] Hoſ. i. 10.
[o] Iſa. x. 22, 23.
[p] Ezek. vi. 8. Chap. xi. 5.
[q] Iſa. i. 9. Lam. iii. 22.
[r] Gen. xix. 24. Iſa. xiii. 19, &c.

v. 25—29. As it was a truth ſo hard to be digeſted, and ſo contrary to the apprehenſions of the Jews concerning the promiſes made unto their fathers, the apoſtle from the Old Teſtament proves, that the calling of the Gentiles to all the privileges of children of Abraham had been long ſince foretold.

1. In Hoſea it was ſaid, I will call them my people, which were not my people; and her beloved, which was not beloved; bringing the Gentiles, who before were aliens, and diſregarded of God, into a covenant relation as his choſen, and treating them as the objects of his peculiar love. And again in another place, It ſhall come to paſs, that in the place where it was ſaid unto them, Ye are not my people, there ſhall they be called the children of the living God, admitted to all the privileges of adoption and grace.

2. In Iſaiah the rejection of the far greater number of the Jews is declared, into whoſe room the Gentiles were to ſucceed. Thus Eſaias alſo crieth concerning Iſrael, Though the number of the children of Iſrael be as the ſand of the ſea, a remnant only, according to the election of grace, ſhall be ſaved; for, the prophet in another place adds, He will finiſh the work, and cloſe his accounts, and cut it ſhort in righteouſneſs, conſuming with juſt vengeance the apoſtates: becauſe a ſhort work will the Lord make upon the earth; thoſe who are left as monuments of grace will be comparatively but few, whilſt the generality of the Jewiſh nation will quickly be conſumed from the face of the earth. And again, as Eſaias had ſaid before to the ſame purpoſe, he adds, Except the Lord of ſabaoth had left us a ſeed, at whoſe diſpoſal are all the hoſts of heaven and earth, we had been as Sodoma, and been made like unto Gomorrha, utterly cut off as theſe devoted cities. Note, Conſidering the ſinfulneſs of man, the wonder is not that ſo few but that any ſhould be ſaved. When juſtice might well have deſtroyed all, it is a matter of aſtoniſhing grace that mercy hath been extended to ſo many.

30. What ſhall we ſay then? That the Gentiles [s] which followed not after righteouſneſs, [t] have attained to righteouſneſs, even the righteouſneſs which is of faith: 31. But Iſrael, [u] which followed after the law of righteouſneſs, [x] hath not attained to the law of righteouſneſs. 32. Wherefore? Becauſe they ſonght it not by faith, but as it were by the works of the law: for [y] they ſtumbled at that ſtumbling-ſtone; 33. As it is written, [z] Behold, I lay in Sion a ſtumbling-ſtone, and rock of offence: and [a] whoſoever believeth on him, ſhall not be aſhamed.

[s] Iſa. lxv. 1.
[t] Chap. iv. 11.
[u] Chap. xi. 7.
[x] Chap. x. 3. Gal. v. 4.
[y] Luke ii. 34. 1 Cor. i. 23.
[z] Iſa. viii. 14. & xxviii. 16. Mat. xxi. 42. 1 Pet. ii. 8.
[a] Chap. x. 11.

v. 30—33. Having proved the rejection of the Jews and the calling of the Gentiles, he ſuggeſts the reaſon. What ſhall we ſay then farther in vindication of God's free grace in ſaving ſome, and leaving the reſt to periſh? It is evident, that the Gentiles, which followed not after righteouſneſs, neither knew their malady nor ſought their remedy, have notwithſtanding attained unto righteouſneſs, even the righteouſneſs which is of faith, being accepted of God as righteous through faith in Chriſt Jeſus: but Iſrael, which followed after the law of righteouſneſs, and ſought juſtification before God by their own obedience, hath not attained unto righteouſneſs, not being capable of performing that perfect righteouſneſs which the law demands, and therefore being left under the curſe as tranſgreſſors. Wherefore have they not attained? Becauſe they ſought it not by faith in the righteouſneſs of another; but as it were by the works of the law, placing their dependance upon their own doings and duties, either in part or in the whole, for their acceptance with God: for they ſtumbled at that ſtumbling-ſtone, the crucified Galilean, whoſe lowly appearance offended them, and they could not think of embracing him as their Meſſiah. As it is written in Iſaiah, Behold, I lay in Sion a ſtumbling-ſtone, and rock of offence, that Meſſiah who ſhould be the tried ſtone and ſure foundation to thoſe who believed, and would to thoſe who rejected him be as the rock which daſhes thoſe to pieces who fall thereon: and whoſoever believeth on him ſhall not be aſhamed; though the generality periſh in their impenitence and unbelief, yet thoſe few who dare truſt him for pardon, life, and ſalvation, ſhall never be diſappointed of their hopes, but find him a Saviour to the uttermoſt. Note, Nothing is ſo fatal to the ſoul as dependance upon our own righteouſneſs, either in whole or in part, for acceptance with God; whilſt thoſe who, ſelf-deſpairing, fly to the righteouſneſs of faith revealed in the goſpel, are ſure to be juſtified from all things, and ſaved with an everlaſting ſalvation.

CHAP. X.

The apoſtle again (1.) repeats his hearty wiſh for the ſalvation of his brethren. (2.) Shews the difference between the righteouſneſs of faith and the righteouſneſs of the law, by which they ought to be juſtified, ver. 5—11. (3.) Declares that Jews and Gentiles are on a level, with reſpect to juſtification before God, ver. 12—18. (4.) He proves this from their own ſcriptures, ver. 19—21.

1. [a] BRETHREN, my heart's deſire and prayer to God for Iſrael is, that they might be ſaved. 2. For I bear them record, [b] that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge. 3. For they being ignorant of [c] God's righteouſneſs, and [d] going about to eſtabliſh their own righteouſneſs, have not ſubmitted themſelves unto the righteouſneſs of God. 4. For [e] Chriſt is the end of the law for righteouſneſs to every one that believeth.

a Chap. ix. 1.
b Acts xxi. 20. & xxii. 3. Gal. i. 14. & iv. 17.
c Chap. i. 17.
d Luke xviii. 11. Chap. ix. 31. Phil. iii. 9.
e Mat. v. 17. Acts xiii. 39. Chap. viii. 3. Gal. iii. 24.

v. 1—4. The apoſtle here,

1. Expreſſes his fervent deſire for the ſalvation of his countrymen. Brethren, my heart's deſire and prayer to God for Iſrael is, that they might be ſaved. Notwithſtanding what he was, in the the diſcharge of his office, compelled to ſay concerning the general rejection of the Jews, he was yet affectionately deſirous of their ſalvation, and ceaſeleſs in ſupplications at a throne of grace that they might yet be convinced and converted, and thereby plucked as brands from the burning. Note, (1.) Thoſe we preach to, we muſt fervently pray for, that God may give them repentance to the acknowledgment of the truth. (2.) They who know the value of immortal ſouls, will feel their eternal intereſts warm upon their hearts.

2. He ſpeaks moſt reſpectfully of them, For I bear them record, that they have a zeal for God, a fixed averſion to idolatry, a ſtrong attachment to his law and divinely inſtituted ordinances, and in their perſecutions of Chriſtianity really think they do God ſervice; but they are miſguided, and do not act according to knowledge; they underſtand not the nature and deſign of the law, and have imbibed the ſtrongeſt prejudices againſt the true Meſſiah and the way of ſalvation, which he hath brought to light by the goſpel. For they being ignorant of God's righteouſneſs, ignorant of the perfection of obedience which he requires, as the only title to life by the law; ignorant of the ſtrictneſs of his juſtice, which can overlook no flaw, and will accept nothing but what is abſolutely compleat; and ignorant of that righteouſneſs, which he hath provided in the incarnate Redeemer whom they rejected, and going about to eſtabliſh their own righteouſneſs, reſting their acceptance before God on the footing of their own moral and ceremonial ſervices, have not ſubmitted to the righteouſneſs of God, even that divine righteouſneſs which he hath provided and accepted in his dear Son, and which, embraced by faith, is, and can be, the only ground of the ſinner's juſtification before God. For Chriſt is the end of the law for righteouſneſs to every one that believeth. He alone perfectly fulfilled the moral law, and in his life and death fully ſatisfied the demands of divine juſtice. He hath aboliſhed the ceremonial law, being himſelf the ſubſtance of which that was the ſhadow; and the righteouſneſs complete and perfect which he hath wrought out, is the only one, which, being embraced by faith, can juſtify the ſinner before God: to which all, both Jew and Gentile, muſt flee or periſh. Note, Nothing is more fatally dangerous to the ſoul, than ignorance of the ſpirituality of God's law, and of our own inability to anſwer its demands. The more zealouſly we ſtrive to commend ourſelves to God, on the footing of our own duties, the more fearfully do we ſeal up our ſouls under wrath.

5. For Moſes deſcribeth the righteouſneſs which is of the law, That [f] the man which doth thoſe things, ſhall live by them. 6. But the righteouſneſs which is of faith, ſpeaketh on this wiſe, [g] Say not in thine heart, Who ſhall aſcend into heaven? (that is, to bring Chriſt down from above). 7. Or, Who ſhall deſcend into the deep? (that is, to bring up Chriſt again from the dead.) 8. But what ſaith it? [h] The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is the word of faith which we preach, 9. That [i] if thou ſhalt confeſs with thy mouth the Lord Jeſus, and [k] ſhalt believe in thine heart that God hath raiſed him from the dead, thou ſhalt be ſaved. 10. For with the heart man believeth unto righteouſneſs, and [l] with the mouth confeſſion is made unto ſalvation. 11. For the Scripture ſaith, [m] Whoſoever believeth on him ſhall not be aſhamed.

f Lev. xviii. 5. Gal. iii. 12.
g Deut. xxx. 12.
h Deut. xxx. 14.
i Mat. x. 32.
k Acts viii. 37.
l Phil. ii. 11.
m Iſai. xxviii. 16. & xlix. 23. Jer. xvii. 7. Chap. ix. 33.

v. 5—11. There are two methods of righteouſneſs.

1. By the law; and that righteouſneſs is thus deſcribed by Moſes, The man that doth thoſe things, all that is written in the book of the law perfectly, univerſally, abidingly, without failure, flaw, or infirmity, ſhall live by them, and be entitled to life eternal. But no fallen creature ever did, or ever can do this; therefore juſtification and ſalvation are not this way attainable.

2. By the Redeemer's ſubſtitution and obedience in our ſtead. The law, in our preſent condition, only preaches deſpair; but the righteouſneſs which is of faith, which God hath provided and accepted, and faith embraces, ſpeaketh on this wiſe, to the conſcience burdened with ſin and guilt, Say not in thine heart, as if deſpairing of juſtification before God, Who ſhall aſcend into heaven, that is, to bring Chriſt down from above to make atonement for ſin: it is needleſs, ſeeing by one oblation, once offered, he hath perfected for ever his redeemed: or who ſhall deſcend into the deep? that is, to bring up Chriſt again from the dead. This is already done, and God, by the reſurrection of Jeſus, hath teſtified the full ſatisfaction which hath been made to his law and juſtice; ſo that the bar to our acceptance before God is now removed. Inſtead therefore of the impoſſibilities, which guilty fear and unbelief would ſuggeſt, the goſpel opens a door of hope to the miſerable and the deſperate. But what ſaith it? Why, all that we can wiſh and deſire, to ſilence our terrors and revive our drooping hearts. The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart; brought near in the goſpel revelation, acknowledged, and made effectual by the ſpirit to the heart; that is the word of faith which we preach, holding up Chriſt as the glorious object, whom faith embraces for righteouſneſs and ſalvation: the tenor of our declarations, as authorized of God to ſpeak, is this, that if thou ſhalt confeſs with thy mouth the Lord Jeſus, as the true Meſſiah, and ſhalt believe in thine heart that God hath raiſed him from the dead, thou ſhalt be ſaved. No works of the law, nor other title whatever, is needful to eternal life but this; and all who, renouncing themſelves, repoſe their whole confidence upon Jeſus, as delivered for their offences, and raiſed for their juſtification, are built on that foundation which never can be moved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteouſneſs; faith is not a mere notion entertained in the head, but the cordial ſubmiſſion of the heart to the Redeemer's righteouſneſs, as a matter in which it is deeply intereſted; and with the mouth confeſſion is made of our faith before God and men unto ſalvation, there being an inſeparable connection between true faith and eternal bleſſedneſs; for the ſcripture ſaith, whoſoever believeth on him ſhall not be aſhamed; whatever his condition hath been, he will never be aſhamed of Chriſt; and however great his guilt, no condemnation ſhall lie againſt him, either in time or eternity, but he ſhall have boldneſs in the day of judgment. Lord, in this faith may I be found, living and dying! making mention of thy righteouſneſs only!

12. For [n] there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the ſame Lord over all, [o] is rich unto all that call upon him. 13. For [p] whoſoever ſhall call upon the name of the Lord, ſhall be ſaved. 14. [q] How then ſhall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and [r] how ſhall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and [s] how ſhall they hear without a preacher? 15. And [t] how ſhall they preach, except they be ſent? as it is written, [u] How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the goſpel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things! 16. But [x] they have not all obeyed the goſpel. For Eſaias ſaith, [y] Lord, who hath believed our report? 17. So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God. 18. But I ſay, Have they not heard? Yes verily, [z] their ſound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world. 19. But I ſay, Did not Iſrael know? Firſt Moſes ſaith, [a] I will provoke you to jealouſy by them that are no people, and by a fooliſh nation I will anger you. 20. But Eſaias is very bold, and ſaith, [b] I was found of them that ſought me not! I was made manifeſt unto them that aſked not after me. 21. But to Iſrael he ſaith, [c] All day long I have ſtretched forth my hands unto a diſobedient and gainſaying people.

n Acts x. 35. & xv. 9. Chap. iii. 22, 29.
o Eph. i. 7. & ii. 4, 7.
p Joel ii. 32. Acts ii. 21.
q Heb. xi. 6.
r John xv. 22.
s Tit. i. 3.
t Mat. ix. 38.
u Iſai. lii. 7. Nah. i. 15.
x Heb. iv. 2.
y Iſai. liii. 1. John xii. 38.
z Pſ. xix. 4. Mat. xxiv. 14. & xxviii. 19. Col. i. 6, 23.
a Deut. xxxii. 21.
b Iſai. lxv. 1. Chap. ix. 30.
c Prov. i. 24. Iſai. lxv. 2.

v. 12—21. Under the goſpel diſpenſation mankind are on a level, without reſpect to any people or nation. For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek; both have ſinned, and come ſhort of the glory of God; both muſt be ſaved freely by grace, through the redemption which is in Jeſus Chriſt, or periſh everlaſtingly: for the ſame Redeemer, who is Lord over all, is rich in grace, and boundleſs in mercy unto all that call upon him, as periſhing and helpleſs without him. For, ſo it was foretold, Joel

Joel ii. 32. whoſoever, without exception, ſhall call upon the name of the Lord Jeſus, depending upon his atonement and righteouſneſs alone, ſhall be ſaved from guilt and ſin, and wrath and hell, and advanced to eternal glory. But if the Gentiles are included in the diſpenſation of the goſpel, then

1. It was needful that the goſpel ſhould be preached to them; and Paul's brethren had no juſt ground for their enmity againſt him, becauſe he was appointed the apoſtle of the Gentiles. For How then ſhall they call on him in whom they have not believed? Faith is eſſential to the very being of prayer, and without it the ſervice of the lip and the knee is vain and unprofitable; and how ſhall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? They muſt hear of Jeſus in his ſaving offices, before they can poſſibly truſt in him: and how ſhall they hear without a preacher, to make known to them the revelation of God's will? and how ſhall they preach, except they be ſent with a divine commiſſion? Note, Before any preſume to preach, let it be clear that they have a miſſion from God. To run unſent is inſolent preſumption.

2. The goſpel contains the beſt news which ever reached mortal ears, and ſhould be matter of joy wherever it is carried, as it is written, Iſaiah lii. 7. How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the goſpel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things! which prophecy terminated not in the joyful meſſages of Iſrael's deliverance from Babylon, but looked forward to the great redemption of Jeſus, and that goſpel which his miniſters ſhould publiſh, a goſpel of peace, where God was in Chriſt, reconciling ſinners to himſelf, and proclaiming the glad news of pardon and ſalvation to guilty and periſhing ſouls; and they who feel the comfort of the meſſage, cannot but, for its ſake, delight in and honour the meſſengers.

3. Though the goſpel in itſelf contained ſuch a welcome meſſage, yet in general, both among Jews and Gentiles, it hath been rejected. But they have not all obeyed the goſpel, and yielded themſelves up to the Saviour. No, contrariwiſe the generality of thoſe, to whom it is preached, harden their hearts. For Eſaias ſaith, foreſeeing the little ſucceſs which the miniſters of Chriſt ſhould meet with, Who hath believed our report? How few are found faithful among the many called? Yet the goſpel report is the ſavour of life unto life in them who are ſaved. So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God, this being the ordinary means, and made effectual by the Spirit's power, that arm of the Lord which reveals Chriſt to the heart.

4. But I ſay, have they not heard, both Jews and Gentiles, the goſpel word? Yes verily, their ſound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world. And this extenſive ſpread of the goſpel, by thoſe preachers whom he ſent forth, however the multitude rejected the counſel of God, was a token of his good will to the Gentiles, and of his deſign to gather out of them a people to be to the praiſe of the glory of his grace.

5. But I ſay, did not Iſrael know that God deſigned to ſhew mercy to the Gentiles? Had they attended to their own prophets, they would have ſeen how groundleſs their imaginations were that the bleſſings of the Meſſiah's kingdom ſhould be confined to them, and the Gentiles excluded. For firſt Moſes ſaith, for whom they profeſs peculiar veneration, I will provoke you to jealouſy by them that are no people, and by a fooliſh nation will I anger you. The Gentiles were long excluded from God's regard, and, amidſt all their wiſdom, were entirely ignorant of ſpiritual things: to have them now brought into favour, and made wiſe unto ſalvation, ſhould have provoked a holy emulation in the Jewiſh nation; but it wrought a contrary effect, exciting the greateſt bitterneſs and enmity againſt the converted Gentiles. (2.) He produces another ſcripture, ſtrongly proving the divine determination, with regard to the calling of the Gentiles and the rejection of the Jews. Moſes had intimated it, but Eſaias is very bold, and, with great plainneſs and freedom, foretels to his countrymen this mortifying event, and ſaith, I was found of them that ſought me not, I was made manifeſt unto them that aſked not after me, preventing the Gentiles with the bleſſings of his goodneſs, and the calls of his grace, when they were without one thought of God, worſhipping their idols, and had not ſo much as a deſire in their hearts after him. But to Iſrael he ſuith, now to be rejected for their impenitence and obſtinacy, all day long I have ſtretched forth my hands unto a diſobedient and gainſaying people; his patience therefore being wearied out, eſpecially by their oppoſition to the goſpel, he abandons them to ruin. Note, (1.) If God had not firſt ſought us, we ſhould never have enquired after him. (2.) When the Lord hath waited long to be gracious, and uſed the moſt powerful means to work upon the ſinner's heart, if he ſtill rejects the council of God againſt his own ſoul, juſtly doth God decree, my ſpirit ſhall not always ſtrive, and leaves him to the deſtruction which he hath choſen.

CHAP. XI.

The apoſtle having reconciled that great truth of the rejection of the Jews with the promiſe made unto the fathers, is in this chapter farther labouring to mollify the harſhneſs of it, and to reconcile it to the divine goodneſs in general. It might be ſaid, Hath God then caſt away his people? The apoſtle therefore ſets himſelf in this chapter to give an anſwer to this objection; and that two ways: 1. He ſhews at large what the mercy is, that is mixed with this wrath, ver. 1—32. 2. He inſers from thence the infinite wiſdom and ſovereignty of God; with the adoration of which he concludes this chapter and ſubject, ver. 33—36.

1. I SAY then, [a] Hath God caſt away his people? God forbid. For [b] I alſo am an Iſraelite, of the ſeed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. 2. God hath not caſt away his people [c] which he foreknew. Wot ye not what the ſcripture ſaith of Elias? how he maketh interceſſion to God againſt Iſrael, ſaying, 3. [d] Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars; and I am left alone, and they ſeek my life. 4. But what ſaith the anſwer of God unto him? [e] I have reſerved to myſelf ſeven thouſand men, who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal. 5. Even ſo then at this preſent time alſo [f] there is a remnant according to the election of grace. 6. And [g] if by grace, then is it no more of works: otherwiſe grace is no more grace. But if it be of works, then is it no more grace: otherwiſe work is no more work. 7. What then? [h] Iſrael hath not obtained that which he ſeeketh for; but the election hath obtained it, and [i] the reſt were blinded: 8. According as it is written, [k] God hath given them the ſpirit of ſlumber, [l] eyes that they ſhould not ſee, and ears that they ſhould not hear, unto this day. 9. And David ſaith, [m] Let their table be made a ſnare, and a trap, and a ſtumbling-block, and a recompence unto them. 10. Let their eyes be darkened, that they may not ſee, and bow down their back alway. 11. I ſay then, Have they ſtumbled that they ſhould fall? God forbid: but rather [n] through their fall ſalvation is come unto the Gentiles, [o] for to provoke them to jealouſy. 12. Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminiſhing of them the riches of the Gentiles: how much more their fulneſs? 13. For I ſpeak to you Gentiles, in as much as [p] I am the apoſtle of the Gentiles, I magnify mine office: 14. [q] If by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my fleſh, and might ſave ſome of them. 15. For if the caſting away of them be the reconciling of the world: what ſhall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead? 16. For [r] if the firſt fruit be holy, the lump is alſo holy: and if the root be holy, ſo are the branches. 17. And if [s] ſome of the branches be broken off, and [t] thou being a wild olive-tree, wert graffed in amongſt them, and with them partakeſt of the root and fatneſs of the olive-tree; 18. [u] Boaſt not againſt the branches: but, if thou boaſt, thou beareſt not the root, but the root thee. 19. Thou wilt ſay then, The branches were broken off, that I might be graffed in. 20. Well; becauſe of unbelief they were broken off, and thou ſtandeſt by faith. Be not high-minded, but [x] fear. 21. For if God ſpared not the natural branches, take heed leſt he alſo ſpare not thee. 22. Behold therefore the goodneſs and ſeverity of God; on them which fell, ſeverity; but towards thee, goodneſs, [y] if thou continue in his goodneſs: otherwiſe [z] thou alſo ſhalt be cut off. 23. And they alſo, if they bide not ſtill in unbelief, ſhall be graffed in: for God is able to [a] graff them in again. 24. For if thou wert cut out of the olive-tree which is wild by nature, and wert graffed contrary to nature into a good olive-tree: how much more ſhall theſe which be the natural branches, be graffed into their own olive-tree? 25. For I would not, brethren, that ye ſhould be ignorant of this myſtery, ([b] leſt ye ſhould be wiſe in your own conceits) that † blindneſs in part is happened to Iſrael, [c] until the fulneſs of the Gentiles be come in. 26. And ſo all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved: as it is written, [d] There ſhall come out of Sion the deliverer, and ſhall turn away ungodlineſs from Jacob. 27. For [e] this is my covenant unto them, when I ſhall take away their ſins. 28. As concerning the goſpel, they are enemies for your ſake: but as touching the election, [f] they are beloved for the fathers ſakes. 29. For the gifts and calling of God are [g] without repentance. 30. For [h] as ye in times paſt have † not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief: 31. Even ſo have

[a] 1 Sam. xii. 22. Jer. xxxi. 27.
[b] 2 Cor. xi. 22. Phil. iii. 5.
[c] Chap. viii. 29.
[d] 1 Kings xix. 10, 14.
[e] 1 Kings xix. 18.
[f] Chap. ix. 27.
[g] Deut. ix. 5. Chap. iv. 4, 5. Gal. v. 4. Eph. ii. 8.
[h] Chap. ix. 31. & x. 3.
[i] John xii. 40. 2 Cor. iii. 14.
[k] Iſai. xxix. 10.
[l] Iſai. vi. 9. Jer. v. 21. Ezek. xii. 2. Mat. xiii. 14.
[m] Pſ. lxix. 22.
[n] Acts xiii. 46. & xxviii. 28.
[o] Chap. x. 19.
[p] Chap. xv. 16. Gal. ii. 2, 8. Eph. iii. 8.
[q] Chap. ix. 3. 1 Cor. ix. 22. 1 Tim. iv. 16. Jam. v. 20.
[r] Lev. xxiii. 11.
[s] Jer. xi. 16.
[t] Eph. ii. 12, 13.
[u] 1 Cor. x. 12.
[x] Prov. xxviii. 14. Iſai. lxvi. 2. Phil. ii. 12.
[y] 1 Cor. xv. 2. Heb. iii. 6, 14.
[z] John xv. 2.
[a] 2 Cor. iii. 16.
[b] Chap. xii. 16.
† Or, hardneſs.
[c] Luke xxi. 24. 2 Cor. iii. 14. Rev. vii. 9.
[d] Iſai. lix. 20. See Pſ. xiv. 7. Iſai. lx. 15. Ezek. xx. 40.
[e] Jer. xxxi. 31. Heb. viii. 8. & x. 16.
[f] Lev. xxvi. 44.
[g] Num. xxiii. 19.
[h] Eph. ii. 2. Tit. iii. 3.
† Or, obeyed.

have theſe alſo now not † believed, that through your mercy they alſo may obtain mercy. 32. For [i] God hath concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all.

† Or, obeyed.
i Chap. iii. 9. Gal. iii. 22.

v. 1—32. Nothing could be more grating to the Jews than this ſubject of their rejection; and ſome one might ſay, Hath God caſt away his people, univerſally, and finally? God forbid.

1. Though ſome are caſt off, yet not all.
2. If the nation of Jews in general be at preſent abandoned, the Gentiles are called into the Meſſiah's kingdom.
3. The time will come when the Jews ſhall be brought back, and admitted into the church of the redeemed.

1. Though ſome are caſt off, yet not all: of this Paul was himſelf an inſtance. For I alſo am an Iſraelite, of the ſeed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin; and though none ſhewed greater bitterneſs againſt the goſpel, yet have I obtained mercy; and multitudes beſides, of the Jewiſh people, ſhare the ſame bleſſing, for God hath not caſt away his people which he foreknew, having a choſen generation, whom he from eternity decreed to bring unto glory, though the generality ſhould periſh in their unbelief; and theſe were more than might be at firſt imagined, as was the caſe in the days of Elias, when, on account of their general defection to idolatry, and perſecution of God's prophets, that zealous reformer complained to God as if he was left alone, and his life daily in jeopardy; and, from the melancholy appearances, could not but conclude that the people were ripe for ruin. But God informs him that, bad as things were, he had ſtill reſerved ſeven thouſand faithful worſhippers, who had not bowed to Baal; even ſo then at this preſent time alſo there is a remnant according to the election of grace. Note, (1.) There are many more faithful ſouls than we, looking round on the general apoſtacy, are ready to ſuppoſe. (2.) In every age the children of God have been but few, like theſe ſeven thouſand, compared with the myriads of Iſrael. (3.) If any ſoul be kept from ſwimming down the ſtream of general corruption, it is of God's mere grace, or we had been exactly like our neighbours. (4.) When religion is out of countenance, it is a great thing to dare to be ſingular, and not bow the knee to Baal. (5.) If there had not been an election of grace, the whole human race had been as the angels which left their firſt eſtate, and had periſhed with them.—And if this election of ſome, in preference to others, be by grace, of God's mere ſovereign and undeſerved favour, then is it no more of works, either done by them, or foreſeen in them, as the motive for his choice of them; for, otherwiſe, grace is no more grace. The very idea of grace would be deſtroyed, if any thing in the objects recommended them, in preference to others, to the divine regard. But if, on the other hand, it be of works, in any ſenſe whatever, then it is no more grace; otherwiſe work is no more work, theſe ſtanding in direct oppoſition to each other. Salvation muſt therefore be wholly of the one or the other; but it cannot be of works, for we have none which can bear the ſeverity of God's juſtice: it muſt therefore be of grace, or not at all. What then is the caſe? Why the fact is evident, Iſrael hath not attained that which he ſeeketh for; the reaſon of which is given, chap. ix. 31, 32. but the election hath obtained it, through faith in Jeſus, profeſſing that righteouſneſs which entitles them to life eternal, and the reſt were blinded, left to their impenitence and unbelief, and periſhing by the ſentence of that law, for their obedience to which they expected juſtification before God. Note, (1.) Our election of God is the groundwork of all our hopes and happineſs in time and eternity. (2.) They who truſt in whole or in part on their works for ſalvation, make Chriſt to have died in vain, and the grace of God of no effect. (3.) They who truſt on their own righteouſneſs, are ever moſt hardened againſt the goſpel method of ſalvation.

In proof of what he had alledged, terrible as it might appear to ſome, he appeals to the ſcriptures, according as it is written, God hath given them the ſpirit of ſlumber, eyes that they ſhould not ſee, and ears that they ſhould not hear unto this day. They are ſunk into ſtupidity and inſenſibility, and in juſt judgment for their rejection of all the means, mercies, and corrections vouchſafed to them, eſpecially for their wilful unbelief of the goſpel, God hath abandoned them to a reprobate mind; and unto this day it continues. And, to the ſame effect, David ſaith, when ſpeaking of the enemies of the Meſſiah, Let their table be made a ſnare, and a trap, and a ſtumbling-block, and a recompence unto them. The altar, and all the ritual ſervice on which they depended, would prove the means of their ruin; or thoſe bounties of Providence, which they abuſed to pride and luxury, ſhould intoxicate them, and, like drunken men, for the puniſhment of their infidelity, they ſhould ſtumble into perdition. Let their eyes be darkened, that they may not ſee; ſince they hate the light, they ſhall be left in blindneſ; and bow down their back alway, under perpetual bondage and ſervitude, enſlaved by the powers of earth, and more enſlaved by worldly-mindedneſs, by ſin and Satan. Note, (1.) Of all judgments, ſpiritual ones are moſt to be dreaded, and yet are uſually leaſt perceived. (2.) They who mind earthly things, cannot but walk in darkneſs.

2. Though the Jews were caſt off for a while, the Gentiles were called into the church.

I ſay then, have they ſtumbled that they ſhould fall, utterly and irrecoverably? God forbid: but rather, ſo hath God ordered it in his providence, that through their fall ſalvation is come unto the Gentiles, (ſee Acts xiii. 46, 47.) for to provoke them to jealouſy; that, aſhamed to be outdone by the Gentiles, they may be ſtirred up to a noble emulation. Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminiſhing of them the riches of the Gentiles, God in his infinite wiſdom and myſterious deſigns making the apoſtacy and obſtinacy of the Jews the occaſion of ſpreading his goſpel the ſooner among the Gentiles, whom he is pleaſed to enrich with the abundance of his grace; how much more will the Gentiles be confirmed in the faith, and the multitude of converts increaſe when they ſhall ſee their fulneſs, the reſtoration of the diſperſed Jews to their forfeited privileges, when at the laſt they ſhall be turned to the Lord? For I ſpeak to you Gentiles, for your comfort and caution, in as much as I am the apoſtle of the Gentiles, particularly appointed of God to preach the goſpel to you; I magnify mine office, I glory in my employment, and bleſs God for having honoured me ſo far as to appoint me thereunto. And this I ſay, If by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my fleſh, to outſtrip the Gentiles, aſhamed to be exceeded by them in faith and holineſs, and might thus ſave ſome of them, by leading them to Chriſt for pardon, grace, and eternal life; for, as I ſaid, if the caſting away of them be the reconciling of the world, the goſpel, through their infidelity, being ſent unto the Gentiles, what ſhall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead? How ſurprizing and delightful will that great event be, when the Jews in general ſhall be converted to Chriſt, and reſtored to the church as men raiſed from the dead; and their converſion inſpire the Gentiles with freſh life and vigour! For if the firſt fruits be holy, and ſome few converts of the Jewiſh people now appear the pledges and earneſts of what God will do for the nation hereafter, the lump is alſo holy, and they ſhall at laſt be wholly conſecrated as a nation to God: and if the root be holy, Abraham and the patriarchs, from whom the Jews deſcended, conſidered as their fœderal head, to whom and his ſeed the promiſes were made, ſo are the branches; they have a relative holineſs in virtue of their deſcent; and though at preſent their unbelief cuts them off from all the privileges of the covenant, yet for the fathers ſake, in future ages God's love to them, as a nation, ſhall appear, and they ſhall again be received into the boſom of his church. And if ſome of the branches be broken off, for their unbelief, and thou, a Gentile, being a wild olive-tree, by birth an alien from the commonwealth of Iſrael, and a ſtranger to the covenants of promiſe, wert graffed in amongſt them, and with them partakeſt of the root and fatneſs of the olive-tree, admitted in common with Abraham's natural deſcendants, who believe, to ſhare in all the bleſſings and privileges of the covenant of grace, boaſt not againſt the branches, looking down with ſcorn on the Jews, who for their infidelity are broken off; but if thou boaſt, and grow proud of thy advancement, remember, thou beareſt not the root, but the root thee, and all the mercies thou enjoyeſt are from the Jews; from them, according to the fleſh, Chriſt deſcended; the firſt preachers of the goſpel were of their nation; and all church privileges are derived from Abraham, the great father of the faithful: therefore this people, though now fallen, muſt not be trampled upon. Thou wilt ſay then, perhaps, The branches were broken off, that I might be graffed in; I was preferred to them, and have reaſon to eſteem myſelf above them. Well; becauſe of unbelief they were broken off; it was not on account of any goodneſs in you, but becauſe of their own infidelity; and thou ſtandeſt by faith, not holding your privileges on account of any deſcent, but through God's free grace in Chriſt Jeſus: and therefore all boaſting is excluded. Be not then high-minded, but fear, leſt you alſo fall, through the ſame example of unbelief. For if God ſpared not the natural branches, take heed leſt he alſo ſpare not thee; if the Gentiles imitated their pride and unbelief, they might much more apprehend he would deal with them in the ſame manner, and deprive them of all the privileges to which he had admitted them. Behold therefore, and admire the goodneſs and ſeverity of God: on them which fell, he hath exerciſed juſt ſeverity, cutting them off from his church, and depriving them of all the privileges of his people; but towards thee, unworthy as thou art, he hath ſhewn the moſt tranſcendent goodneſs, admitting thee, a deſpiſed idolatrous Gentile, into his kingdom, and will continue to bleſs thee, if thou continue in his goodneſs, and do not abuſe the merciful diſpenſation, under which you at preſent ſtand, by pride and infidelity: otherwiſe thou alſo ſhalt be cut off, and no nominal profeſſion of Chriſtianity, if the heart prove apoſtate, will ſecure any man from the wrath of God.

3. There is ſtill hope in the end, that all Iſrael, notwithſtanding their preſent rejection, ſhall at laſt be converted and ſaved. And they alſo, if they abide not ſtill in unbelief, ſhall be graffed in: and when they receive the goſpel, and believe in Jeſus, as the Meſſiah, ſhall be readmitted into the church of the redeemed, for God is able to graff them in again, as the children of believing Abraham. Nor is this at all inconceivable or improbable; for if thou wert cut out of the olive-tree, which is wild by nature, ſprung from the Gentile ſtock, which was out of the covenant, and wert graffed contrary to nature into a good olive-tree, which is like graffing a wild ſcion on a good tree, how much more ſhall theſe, which be the natural branches, and deſcendants of Abraham, be grafted into their own olive tree? and be received into the goſpel-church, which was once wholly confined to their people and nation. For I would not, brethren, that ye ſhould be ignorant of this myſtery, (leſt ye ſhould be wiſe in your own conceits; puffed up with an opinion of your own excellence, and fancying that the favour of God is henceforth to be confined to you alone), that blindneſs in part is happened to Iſrael, and they are left to their unbelief for a while, until the fulneſs of the Gentiles be come in, when in the latter days the nations of the earth ſhall, in a more general manner than ever, become obedient to the faith. And ſo all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved; in general they ſhall be brought into the goſpel-church, and converted to the Lord: as it is written, There ſhall come out of Sion the deliverer, and ſhall turn away ungodlineſs from Jacob; the adored Meſſiah in the laſt days ſhall go forth in the power of his goſpel, and by the efficacy of his word and Spirit ſhall turn theſe diſobedient unto the wiſdom of the juſt; ſo that all their iniquities ſhall be pardoned, and the enmity of their hearts be ſubdued by his almighty grace. For this is my covenant unto them; and he will fulfil his promiſes, as will be ſeen in the latter day; when I ſhall take away their ſins, freely pardoning, for his name's ſake, all that is paſt, and receiving them into the arms of his everlaſting love.

Upon the whole then the ſtate of the caſe ſtands thus. As concerning the goſpel, they are at preſent enemies to it, and permitted ſo to be for your ſake, that the goſpel might be the ſooner and farther diffuſed thro' the Gentile world, (Acts iii. 46, 47.) But as touching the election of them as a nation to be his peculiar people, they are beloved for the fathers' ſakes; and though for the preſent abandoned, yet there is ſtill mercy in ſtore for them. For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance; God is in one mind, and cannot change; and having made his promiſes to Iſrael, as a choſen nation, they ſhall aſſuredly be called again into his church, and the elect among them be made partakers of eternal ſalvation. For as ye in times paſt have not believed God, but lived without him in the world, ſerving ſtocks and ſtones, yet have now obtained mercy, through God's boundleſs grace admitted into the fellowſhip and privileges of the goſpel, through their unbelief, who put that goſpel from them: even ſo have theſe alſo now not believed, but have been left to infidelity, that through your mercy they alſo may obtain mercy; provoked to emulation by you, and led by faith to embrace the ſame Redeemer, through whom the Gentiles have found acceptance with God. And this converſion of the Jews is at leaſt as likely, and will be as ſure, as the converſion of the idolatrous Gentiles. For God hath concluded them all in unbelief; both Jews and Gentiles have been left by turns under the power of infidelity; that he might glorify the riches of his grace towards both, and have mercy upon all; upon the body of Jews and Gentiles in general, making them at laſt one fold under one ſhepherd.

Some ſuppoſe this converſion of the Jews is already paſt, and that, after the deſtruction of their city and temple, multitudes were convinced, and converted to Jeſus as the Meſſiah: but I am much more inclined to think, that this prophecy is yet to receive its accompliſhment. And it is a very remarkable circumſtance, that the Jewiſh people, in all their diſperſions, are ſtill as diſtinct from the nations among whom they dwell, as ever; and, no doubt, are thus by divine providence preſerved for this great event.

33. O the depth of the riches both of the wiſdom and knowledge of God! [k] how unſearchable are his judgments, and [l] his ways paſt finding out! 34. For [m] who hath known the mind of the Lord, or [n] who hath been his counſeller? 35. Or [o] who hath firſt given to him, and it ſhall be recompenſed unto him again? 36. For [p] of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen.

[k] Job v. 9. Pſ. xxxvi. 6.
[l] Job. xi. 7.
[m] Job xv. 8. Jer. xxiii. 18. Wiſd. ix. 13. 1 Cor. ii. 16.
[n] Iſa. xl. 13.
[o] Job xxxv. 7. & xli. 11.
[p] 1 Cor. viii. 6. Col. i. 16.

v. 33—36. Having evidently reconciled the rejection of the Jews with the juſtice and goodneſs of God, and ſhewn that there was mercy yet in ſtore for them; in the view of this aſtoniſhing diſpenſation the apoſtle breaks out, O the depth of the riches both of the wiſdom and knowledge of God! how unſearchable are his judgments, and his ways paſt finding out! Farther the apoſtle dares not pry into the divine counſels, but ſtands admiring on the ocean's brink, and cries, O the depth of the riches of that grace, which both Jews and Gentiles experience, unworthy as they are of the leaſt of it! What wiſdom and knowledge appear in the contrivance of this admirable ſcheme, planned in the divine mind, to make even the rejection of the Jews ſubſervient to the calling of the Gentiles; and their converſion, the means at laſt of reſtoring the Jews to the divine favour. Theſe counſels are too deep for us to fathom; the reaſons of his determinations are hid in his own eternal mind; and the methods which in his providence he takes to effect his own purpoſes, are beyond our ken; we are loſt in the labyrinth, of which he who is infinite in wiſdom only holds the clue. For who hath known the mind of the Lord? what creature ever pried into the deep things of God, or could diſcover his eternal counſels? Or who hath been his counſellor? nor man nor angel were conſulted in planning his deſigns of grace, where all was fixed by his infinite wiſdom, according to his ſovereign pleaſure. Or who hath firſt given to him, and it ſhall be recompenſed unto him again? Who can claim any thing by right from him? He is debtor neither to Jew nor Gentile; and how then dare any arraign his procedure, or ſay unto him, What doſt thou? For of him, and through him, and to him are all things; all things in nature and providence own him their former and upholder, their efficient cauſe, and ultimate end; and in the diſpenſation of his grace eſpecially, the whole of the ſinner's ſalvation from firſt to laſt is derived from him; ariſing from his ſovereign pleaſure, the effect of his infinite wiſdom and love, accompliſhed by his power, and deſigned for the advancement of his glory; to whom therefore it is moſt fit, that the redeemed upon earth, and the exalted ſpirits in heaven, ſhould aſcribe glory for ever! and all who have taſted of his grace, will add their joyful Amen! Note, Though we have the deepeſt inſight into the myſteries of grace, the wiſeſt muſt own, that they know but a part of God's ways. There are many things which our ſhort line cannot fathom, and we can only reſolve into the divine ſovereignty: our buſineſs there is not to diſpute, but believe; not to demand God's reaſons, but to acquieſce in his determinations; not to cavil, but to admire and adore!

CHAP. XII.

The apoſtle having at large cleared and confirmed the prime fundamental doctrines of Chriſtianity, comes in the next place to preſs the principal duties. We miſtake our religion, if we look upon it only as a ſyſtem of notions, and a guide to ſpeculation: No; it is a practical religion, that tends to the right ordering of the converſation. It is deſigned not only to inform our judgments, but to convert our ſouls, and amend our lives. The riches of grace revealed in the goſpel are deſigned to engage our hearts to God, and to make us holy and happy. This chapter contains an exhortation to believers, engaging them, 1. To dedicate themſelves wholly to God, ver 1, 2. 2. To walk humbly before him, ver. 3—5. 3. To uſe faithfully their gifts to God's glory, and their brethren's edification, ver. 6—8. 4. To diſcharge the various duties which adorn their character, ver. 9—21.

1. [a] I BESEECH you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that [b] ye preſent [c] your bodies [d] a living ſacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God [e] which is your reaſonable ſervice. 2. And [f] be not conformed to this world: but [g] be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, [h] that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God. 3. For I ſay, [i] through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, [k] not to think of himſelf more highly than he ought to think; but to think ſoberly, according [l] as God hath dealt to every man the meaſure of faith. 4. For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the ſame office: 5. So [m] we being many are one body in Chriſt, and every one members one of another. 6. [n] Having then gifts, differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether propheſy, let us propheſy [o] according to the proportion of faith: 7. Or miniſtry, [p] let us wait on our miniſtring; or he that teacheth, on teaching: 8. Or he that exhorteth, on exhortation: [q] he that giveth, let him do it with ſimplicity; [r] he that ruleth, with diligence; he that ſheweth mercy, with chearfulneſs. 9. [s] Let love be without diſſimulation. [t] Abhor that which is evil, cleave to that which is good. 10. [u] Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; [x] in honour preferring one another: 11. [y] Not ſlothful in buſineſs: [z] fervent in ſpirit; ſerving the Lord: 12. [a] Rejoicing in hope; [b] patient in tribulation; [c] continuing inſtant in prayer: 13. Diſtributing to the neceſſity of ſaints; [d] given to hoſpitality. 14. [e] Bleſs them which perſecute you: bleſs, and curſe not. 15. [f] Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep. 16. [g] Be of the ſame mind one towards another. [h] Mind not high things, but condeſcend to men of low eſtate. [i] Be not wiſe in your own conceits. 17. [k] Recompenſe to no man evil for evil. [l] Provide things honeſt in the ſight of all men. 18. If it be poſſible, as much as lieth in you, [m] live peaceably with all men. 19. Dearly beloved, [n] avenge not yourſelves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, [o] Vengeance is mine; I will repay, ſaith the Lord. 20. Therefore [p] if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirſt, give him drink: for in ſo doing thou ſhalt heap coals of fire on his

[a] 2 Cor. x. 1.
[b] 1 Pet. ii. 5.
[c] Chap. vi. 13, 16.
[d] Lev. i. 9. Col. i. 22. Heb. x. 22.
[e] 1 Cor. vi. 20.
[f] 1 Pet. i. 14. 1 John ii. 15.
[g] Eph. iv. 23.
[h] Eph. i. 18. & v. 10, 17.
[i] 1 Cor. iii. 10.
[k] Prov. xxv. 27. Chap. xi. 20. Gal. vi. 3.
[l] 1 Cor. xii. 11.
[m] Ib. 27.
[n] Ib. 8, 9, 28.
[o] 1 Pet. iv. 11.
[p] Acts xx. 31. 2 Tim. iv. 2.
[q] 2 Cor. ix. 7.
[r] 1 Tim. v. 17.
[s] 1 Pet. i. 22. 1 John iii. 18.
[t] Amos v. 15.
[u] 1 Pet. iii. 8.
[x] Phil. ii. 3.
[y] Prov. xix. 15.
[z] Rev. iii. 16.
[a] Chap. v. 2. & xv. 13.
[b] Jam. v. 7.
[c] Luke xviii. 1.
[d] Heb. xiii. 2. 1 Pet. iv. 9.
[e] Mat. v. 44.
[f] 1 Cor. xii. 26.
[g] 1 Cor. i. 10. Phil. ii. 2.
[h] Pſ. cxxxi. 1. Jer. xlv. 5.
[i] Prov. xxvi. 12. Iſa. v. 21.
[k] Mat. v. 39. 1 Theſ. v. 15.
[l] 2 Cor. viii. 21.
[m] Heb. xii. 14.
[n] Lev. xix. 18. Luke vi. 29
[o] Deut. xxxii. 35.
[p] Prov. xxv. 21.

his head. 21. [q] Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

[q] Prov. xxiv. 17.

v. 1—21. The doctrines of grace are ſo far from leading to licentiouſneſs, that nothing but theſe can effectually engage the heart to walk in holineſs as Chriſt alſo walked.

1. The apoſtle exhorts them to yield themſelves wholly to God. I beſeech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God; by the conſideration of that ſovereign, boundleſs, undeſerved grace, which you have taſted; that, conſtrained by a ſenſe of ſuch diſtinguiſhing and aſtoniſhing love, ye, as ſpiritual prieſts, preſent your bodies, not the carcaſe of a dead animal, but a nobler oblation than any which were offered under the law, even a living ſacrifice; your whole ſelves to be employed for God's glory, holy, without allowed guile; in ſpirit, temper, and conduct, conformed to his will; and acceptable to God thro' Jeſus Chriſt, in whom your perſons and ſervices are regarded as a ſacrifice of a ſweet ſmell; all which is your reaſonable ſervice, to be performed with all the powers of your rational ſouls, and moſt fit and right, conſidering the infinite obligations lying upon you. And in order hereunto, be not conformed to this world, to its temper, maxims, faſhions, manners; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, after the image of God in righteouſneſs and true holineſs, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God; diſcerning what is the mind of God in his word; commending to others the excellence and importance of the revelation he hath made; and caſt into the very mould of the goſpel, the beſt proof of your approbation of it. Note, (1.) No argument is ſo powerful to engage the ingenuous heart, as a ſenſe of the mercies of God. (2.) The moſt aceptable ſacrifice to God is the ſurrender of our whole ſelves to him at the feet of the croſs of Jeſus, the altar which ſanctifies the gift. (3.) They who yield themſelves to God, muſt prove their ſimplicity in all holy converſation and godlineſs. (4.) Religion is indeed a reaſonable ſervice; the more we conſider what we owe to God, the more ſhall we be bound to acknowledge, that he deſerves to be ſerved with every faculty of our ſoul, and every member of our body. (5.) They who partake of the true grace of God, and experience its transforming efficacy upon their tempers and conduct, they die unto the world, and live only for God.

2. He enforces upon them humility and lowlineſs of mind, that great ornament of the Chriſtian character. For I ſay, through the grace given unto me, in virtue of the office with which I am inveſted, to every man that is among you, whatever his rank or attainments may be, not to think of himſelf more highly than he ought to think; affecting a ſuperiority over others, or pretending to be wiſe above what is written, and to intrude into things that are too high for him; but to think ſoberly and lowly of his gifts, graces, and attainments, according as God hath dealt to every man the meaſure of faith; and acknowledging, that whatever meaſure of faith he poſſeſſes, or however diſtinguiſhed his endowments by nature or grace may be, yet he hath nothing which he hath not received, and therefore all boaſting is excluded. And as our talents are merely lent us for our own ſoul's good, and the edification of others, it will become us to ſee that our profiting appears. For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the ſame office, but each diſcharges his ſeparate function, and all are alike needful in their place, and contribute to the good of the whole; ſo we being many are one body in Chriſt, and every one members one of another; united under our adored head, each occupying his reſpective place according to the meaſure of the gift of Chriſt; and therefore, inſtead of being puffed up in pride, and deſpiſing one another, we ſhould give diligence to diſcharge the ſeveral ſervices allotted to every member, acknowledging the mutual obligation which one hath to the other, and contributing heartily to the proſperity of the whole. Having then gifts, differing according to the grace that is given unto us, as the Lord hath ſovereignly been pleaſed to diſpenſe to every man, let it be our care to improve them, according to our reſpective offices and ſtation, for the glory of God, and the good of our fellow-members. Whether propheſy, let us propheſy according to the proportion of faith. They who are put in truſt with the goſpel, muſt preach it with all fidelity and diligence, according to the meaſure of light, faith, and experience which they have received: or, according to the analogy of faith; in exact conſiſtence with the grand principles laid down in the word of God, in ſcripture-language, and with attention to the context. Or miniſtry, let us wait on our miniſtring, in the inferior departments of the church, where attention, care, and conſtancy are required. Or he that teacheth, on teaching; opening, explaining, and defending the doctrines of the ſcripture. Or he that exhorteth, on exhortation; with warmth applying the word to the conſcience, warning the unruly, ſupporting the feeble-minded, reproving the guilty, comforting the dejected, and, according to the different ſtate of the people's ſouls, ſuiting his diſcourſe for their edification and conſolation. He that giveth, and is entruſted with the diſtribution of the public ſtock appropriated to charitable uſes, let him do it with ſimplicity; without fraud, favour, or affection, according to the real wants of the church's poor. He that ruleth, and hath the management of affairs, muſt do it with diligence, careful that proper diſcipline be obſerved. He that ſheweth mercy, with chearfulneſs; ready to every work and labour of love; not dragged reluctantly to viſit the ſick or afflicted; or grudging the time, trouble, or expence; not treating the poor with coldneſs, or ſternneſs, but with that affability, tenderneſs, and compaſſion, which beſpeak the pleaſure that he takes in aſſiſting them. Note, (1.) Pride is a buſy ſin; we can never be enough on our guard againſt it. The very gifts and graces of God, (ſuch is our corruption) we are ready to abuſe, and plume ourſelves upon them. (2.) If God hath put us in truſt with any office, our buſineſs is to approve our fidelity to him, employing the talents which he hath lent us; not puffed up with any diſtinction which he may have made between us and others, but remembring the ſolemn account we muſt ſhortly make before him, when he calleth us to give an account of our ſtewardſhip. (3.) Miniſters have different gifts, all excellent in their place. One is bleſſed with a clearer judgment, another with a warmer heart, and all for the edification of the body of Chriſt.

3. The apoſtle proceeds to urge Chriſtians in general to walk before God and man in ſuch a way, as may moſt eminently adorn the doctrine they profeſs, and glorify their divine Maſter.

Let love be without diſſimulation. Let your love to God in Chriſt be ſupreme, and your love to your brethren unfeigned and hearty; the living principle of every good word and work, and without which all our doings are nothing worth.

Abhor that which is evil. Turn away with abhorrence from all manner of iniquity, harbouring no allowed ſin in yourſelf, and teſtifying your hatred of it wherever it appears, though in thoſe who are neareſt and deareſt to you. And, on the contrary, cleave to that which is good; to God, his people, his word, his worſhip, will, and ways; never deterred by any danger, or ſeduced by any allurements, from the path of duty.

Be kindly affectioned one to another; tenderly deſiring to promote each other's happineſs; delighting in each other's proſperity; bearing each other's burdens; and ready to every word and work which fervent charity dictates: with brotherly love in honour preferring one another; caſting the veil of oblivion over the faults of others, and humbly acknowledging your own; thinking and ſpeaking honourably of the gifts, graces, and attainments of your brethren, and entertaining lowly thoughts of yourſelves.

Not ſlothful in buſineſs. In the buſineſs of your ſtation be vigorous and active, and what thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; but eſpecially in all the work of God be lively, fervent in ſpirit, animated with burning love and holy zeal for his glory; ſerving the Lord in prayer, and praiſe, and all ordinances; in perſevering obedience to his will, and ſubmiſſion to his providences, approving your fidelity unſhaken to the adored Jeſus.

Rejoicing in hope; believing the faithfulneſs of God to his promiſes, and going forward with chearfulneſs and delight in his work and ways, knowing that your labour ſhall not be in vain in the Lord.

Patient in tribulation; reſigned to the divine providence; calm under every provocation; with holy courage ſuſtaining the rudeſt ſhocks of oppoſition and perſecution; and, under the longeſt afflictions, quietly waiting to ſee the ſalvation of God.

Continuing inſtant in prayer; fervently and frequently approaching a throne of grace; ſeeking help and ſtrength for all the work and ſervice to which you are called, deeply conſcious of your own inſufficiency, without continual ſupplies of power from on high, to do any thing aright before God.

Diſtributing to the neceſſity of ſaints; chearfully, liberally, according to their wants, and your abilities. Given to hoſpitality; welcoming to your houſe and tables thoſe who for the ſake of Chriſt are deſtitute, and giving them that warm and cordial reception which true charity dictates.

Bleſs them which perſecute you: bleſs, and curſe not: ſpeaking of them and to them reſpectfully; commending what is praiſeworthy in them; never returning railing for railing; never harbouring a thought of reſentment againſt your moſt malignant revilers; forgiving them, and praying to God that he would forgive them alſo, and turn their hearts.

Rejoice with them that do rejoice; ſharing their joys, and, inſtead of envying, ſincerely partaking of their proſperity: and weep with them that weep; feeling the tendereſt ſympathy with them in their ſufferings, and by prayer, advice, and every aſſiſtance, deſirous to alleviate or remove the ſorrows of the miſerable.

Be of the ſame mind one towards another; united as much as may be in ſentiment; and where any leſſer difference in judgment ſubſiſts, ſtill preſerving the ſame warm affection towards each other; wiſhing all good to your brethren, and ſeeking to promote each other's happineſs.

Mind not high things; affect not pre-eminence; aſpire not after the honours and dignities of the world; nor court the company of the great: but condeſcend to men of low eſtate; treating your inferiors with kindneſs; and to whatever eminence or affluence you may arrive, be courteous, affable, and free to the loweſt; ready to ſtoop to every proper office of love for the ſervice and comfort of the meaneſt ſaint of God. Or, condeſcend to low things, as the words may be rendered; let your mind be humbled to your condition, and chearfully acquieſce in every diſpenſation of providence, however ſtrait and neceſſitous your circumſtances may be.

Be not wiſe in your own conceits. Beware of entertaining a high imagination of your own abilities, gifts, or graces; treating the advice and admonitions of others with ſcorn, as if you were above all teaching, and ſatisfied in your own ſelf-ſufficiency.

Recompenſe to no man evil for evil, neither in looks, words, or works.

Provide things honeſt in the ſight of all men; not only taking care of your families and worldly concerns, but ſo ordering the general courſe of your conduct and converſation, that the unprejudiced part of mankind, at leaſt, may bear you an honourable teſtimony; and that none may be able to reproach you with any thing mean, or unbecoming your Chriſtian character.

If it be poſſible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men; ſtudiouſly avoiding whatever may bring on diſputes or uneaſineſs; and, as far as is conſiſtent with truth, charity, and the glory of God, cultivating a ſpirit of love and peace; that at leaſt, if through the perverſeneſs of others it be not poſſible to avoid contentions, you may have the ſatisfaction of your own conſcience in the reflection, that, as much as lieth in you, it hath been your endeavour to pleaſe all men for their good to edification.

Dearly beloved, avenge not yourſelves, but rather give place unto wrath: forgive the injuries you receive; take no private revenge; ſuppreſs the angry paſſions which naturally riſe within you; give the ſoft anſwer which turneth away wrath; nor, by oppoſing, irritate; but however unreaſonable others may appear, yield, or go away till the ſtorm hath ſubſided: and if, after all, you meet with implacable reſentment, refer the matter to God; for it is written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, ſaith the Lord. This is his prerogative, and not to be invaded by us. As magiſtracy is his ordinance, in ſome caſes for the good of ſociety we are bound to have recourſe thereto; in others, where ourſelves are only concerned, we muſt wait the great deciſive day, when every man ſhall receive according as his work is. Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirſt, give him drink: for in ſo doing thou ſhalt heap coals of fire on his head; either by ſuch inſtances of kindneſs you will melt him down, (as the refiners do their metals) into repentance, and gain his heart to love you; or, if he continues obſtinate in hatred, it will exceedingly aggravate his condemnation, to add baſe ingratitude to his unprovoked enmity.

Finally, Be not overcome of evil; let no ill uſage, however aggravated, repeated, or perſiſted in, diſcompoſe your ſpirit, weary out your patience, or quench your charity; ſo as that you ſhould give way to anger, be enſlaved by corruption, and afford the enemy an occaſion to triumph over your infirmity. But overcome evil with good, which is the moſt glorious conqueſt, the proof of the nobleſt ſpirit, and the aſſured evidence that you are born of him who cauſeth his ſun to riſe upon the evil and the good, and ſendeth his rain upon the juſt and upon the unjuſt. Lord Jeſus, give me ſuch a heart, and ſtamp this thy image on my ſoul!

CHAP. XIII.

There are three good leſſons taught us in this chapter: 1. A leſſon of ſubjection to lawful authority, ver. 1—6. 2. A leſſon of juſtice and love to our brethren, ver. 7—10. 3. A leſſon of ſobriety and godlineſs in ourſelves, ver. 11. to the end.

1. [a] LET every ſoul be ſubject unto the higher powers. For [b] there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God. 2. [c] Whoſoever therefore reſiſteth the power, reſiſteth the ordinance of God: and they that reſiſt ſhall receive to themſelves damnation. 3. [d] For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou ſhalt have praiſe of the ſame: 4. For he is the miniſter of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the ſword in vain: for [e] he is the miniſter of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doth evil. 5. Wherefore [f] ye muſt needs be ſubject, not only for wrath, [g] but alſo for conſcience ſake. 6. For, for this cauſe pay you tribute alſo: for they are God's miniſters, attending continually upon this very thing. 7. [h] Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due, cuſtom to whom cuſtom, [i] fear to whom fear, honour to whom honour.

a Tit. iii. 1. 1 Pet. ii. 15.
b Prov. viii. 15. Dan. ii. 21. & iv. 32.
c 1 Sam. xxvi. 9. Jer. xxvii. 8.
d 1 Pet. ii. 14. & iii. 13.
e Jer. xxv. 9.
f Eccleſ. viii. 2.
g 1 Pet. ii. 20.
h Mat. xxii. 21.
i Eph. x. 33. & vi. 5.

v. 1—7. From the duties they owed to each other, as members of civil ſociety, the apoſtle proceeds to enforce ſubmiſſion in all lawful things to the authority of the civil government under which they lived. The Chriſtian doctrine makes no alteration in the natural and civil rights of mankind. Dominion is not founded in grace; therefore let every ſoul be ſubject unto the higher powers; reſpectful and obedient to all lawful magiſtrates, from the higheſt to the loweſt, and willingly obſervant of the laws with the execution of which they are entruſted. For there is no power but of God; he is the ſource of all authority, dignity, and honour; by him kings reign. The powers that be are ordained of God; whatever be the mode of government, whether the ruling power be lodged in the hands of one perſon or many, ſubmiſſion is our duty; and though the men who are inveſted with the authority be never ſo vile and wicked, their lawful commands are nevertheleſs to be obeyed; and the magiſtrate is to be honoured, however deſpicable the man may appear. Whoſoever therefore reſiſteth the power, and refuſes obedience to the lawful orders of the eſtabliſhed government, reſiſteth the ordinance of God; and they that reſiſt ſhall receive to themſelves damnation, (κριμα), the puniſhment due to their offence, according to the laws, from the ſword of the magiſtrate, and judgment alſo from God, for the tranſgreſſion againſt his ordinance. For rulers are not a terror to good works: they who behave quiet and ſubmiſſive have nothing to fear, for ſuch ſubjects the magiſtrates are bound to protect and cheriſh; but they are appointed to reſtrain the evil actions of men, which tend to diſturb the peace of ſociety, to diſhonour God, or injure their neighbour. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, peaceable and obedient to the laws, and thou ſhalt have praiſe of the ſame; in every well-ordered government ſuch ſubjects will be protected and encouraged. For he is the miniſter of God, appointed to preſerve the peace of the ſtate, to redreſs injuries, adminiſter juſtice, ſuppreſs vice, prophaneneſs, and immorality; to puniſh offenders, and promote the general welfare: and therefore if thou art found obedient, the office of magiſtracy will be to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, and violate the eſtabliſhed laws, be afraid; for he beareth not the ſword in vain; being obliged by his very office impartially to inflict the penalty due to every offence; for he is the miniſter of God, who puts the ſword of judgment into his hands, as a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doth evil; not out of any private perſonal reſentment, but coolly as God's vicegerent, without partiality or favour, according to the dictates of juſtice. Wherefore ye muſt needs be ſubject, not only for wrath, merely through fear of puniſhment and penalties, but alſo for conſcience ſake; from a principle of duty towards God, whoſe ordinance is binding, and obedience for his ſake is due to human laws, though no pains or penalties were annexed. For, for this cauſe pay you tribute alſo; the taxes and duties neceſſary for the ſupport of the government, whoſe protection you enjoy: for they are God's miniſters, attending continually upon this very thing; and therefore every fraud committed againſt the public is even more criminal, than if it merely affected an individual. Render therefore to all their dues, according to the laws human or divine: tribute to whom tribute is due, cuſtom to whom cuſtom; all ſubſidies, taxes, &c. impoſed by lawful authority: fear to whom fear and reverence ſhould be paid; honour to whom honour is due, according to the ſuperior rank and relation in which by the providence of God they are placed.

8. Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for [k] he that loveth another, hath fulfilled the law. 9. For this, [l] Thou ſhalt not commit adultery, Thou ſhalt not kill, Thou ſhalt not ſteal, Thou ſhalt not bear falſe witneſs, Thou ſhalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this ſaying, namely, [m] Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thyſelf. 10. Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore [n] love is the fulfilling of the law.

k Gal. v. 14. 1 Tim. i. v. Jam. ii. 8.
l Ex. xx. 13, &c. Deut. v. 17, &c.
m Lev. xix. 18.
n Mat xxii. 40. Ver. 8.

v. 8—10. From the payment of dues to magiſtrates the apoſtle paſſes on to enforce the diſcharge of every debt, to whomſoever due.

Owe no man any thing; never run in debt where you have no immediate proſpect of paying, nor continue in debt when you have ability to diſcharge it; and in every relation of life be ready to fulfil the duty which you owe. One debt there is, however, and but one, where, though ever paying, you neither wiſh nor deſire that it ſhould be leſs, and that is, to love one another as men, and eſpecially as Chriſtians, ſeeking to promote each other's preſent and eternal welfare; and this, as the great and reigning principle in all your conduct: for he that loveth another, and, from a ſenſe of the love of God in Chriſt, experiences this God-like charity, hath fulfilled the law; if his love were perfect, he would be complete in all the will of God; which is not indeed the lot of man in this life; it is reſerved for the felicity of a better. Yet ſo far as love is in vigorous exerciſe, ſo far will his ſpiritual obedience advance towards perfection. For this, thou ſhalt not commit adultery, thou ſhalt not kill, thou ſhalt not ſteal, thou ſhalt not bear falſe witneſs, thou ſhalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this ſaying, namely, Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thyſelf, and act conſcientiouſly towards them, as, were our circumſtances reverſed, we might reaſonably expect they ſhould behave towards us; for then, were there no human reſtraints or puniſhments, love would itſelf effectually prevent every violation of our neighbour's perſon, goods, or fame: we cannot hurt the body, which we love; we cannot defraud thoſe we love; we cannot ſpeak evil of thoſe we love; we cannot defile thoſe we love; though lawleſs luſt (which is real hatred) often covers its horrid features with the falſe vizor of this ſacred name. Love worketh no ill to his neighbour, neither in act, or intention; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

11. And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to [o] awake out of ſleep: for now is our ſalvation nearer than when we believed. 12. The night is far ſpent, [p] the day is at hand: [q] let us therefore caſt off the works of darkneſs, and [r] let us put on the armour of light. 13. [s] Let us walk honeſtly as in the day; [t] not in rioting and drunkenneſs, [u] not in chambering and wantonneſs, [x] not in ſtrife and envying. 14. But [y] put ye on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and [z] make not proviſion for the fleſh, to fulfil the luſts thereof.

o 1 Cor. xv. 34. Eph. v. 14. 1 Theſſ. v. 6.
p 2 Pet. i. 19. or 1 Cor. vii. 29. 1 Pet. iv. 7.
q Eph. v. 11. Col. iii. 8.
r Eph. vi. 13. 1 Theſſ. v. 8.
s Phil iv. 8.
t Luke xxi. 34. 1 Pet. iv. 3.
u Eph. v. 3, 5.
x Jam. iii. 14.
y Gal. iii. 27.
z Gal. v. 24. 1 Pet. ii. 11.

v. 11—14. The apoſtle enforces what he had been recommending to their practice by a very awful conſideration. And this duty of love I preſs upon you, knowing the time, the day of goſpel grace and light having broke upon us; ſo that now it is high time to awake out of ſleep, and ſhake off all ſpiritual ſloth, and carnal ſecurity: for now is our ſalvation nearer than when we believed; and as our journey's end draws nearer, we ſhould mend our pace, nor loiter, when the manſions of eternal reſt are, as it were, in view. The night is far ſpent, the night of trials and afflictions, of remaining ignorance and corruption, is drawing to an end, the day of our complete redemption from darkneſs, trouble, ſin and ſuffering, is at hand, when in eternal glory our ſun ſhall riſe to ſet no more: let us therefore caſt off the works of darkneſs; as perſons riſing from their beds remove the cloaths, ſo muſt we reject and put far away all thoſe ſinful tempers and practices, which are oppoſite to the light of truth, are uſually done in ſecret, and for which the blackneſs of darkneſs is the reſerved puniſhment; and let us put on the armour of light, all thoſe bright and ſhining graces of the ſpirit, which adorn our holy profeſſion, and enable us to ſtand againſt the aſſaults of ſin, the world, and Satan, till triumphantly we ſhall appear in all the luſtre of eternal glory. Therefore let us walk honeſtly as in the day, ſhewing a converſation ſuch as becometh Godlineſs in the eyes of men; guided by the light of truth, and the ſpirit of purity; and able to bear the ſtricteſt ſcrutiny of our obſervers; not in rioting and drunkenneſs, indulging to exceſs in meat and drink our ſenſual appetites; not in chambering and wantonneſs, for which ſenſuality ſupplies the fuel; but reſtraining every laſcivious thought, immodeſt word, indecent action, as well as abſtaining from the groſſer pollutions which are in the world through luſt; not in ſtriſe and envying, contentious, quarrelſome, and grieved, inſtead of rejoicing in the proſperity of our neighbours. But put ye on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that you may be complete in him; put on his righteouſneſs, as your glorious dreſs; put on his image, that, being like him, you may come to be with him; put on his holy profeſſion, owning your entire dependance upon him, as your prophet, prieſt, and king, that all who ſee you may take knowledge of you that you indeed belong to him; and make not proviſion for the fleſh, to fulfil the luſts thereof; let your ſoul, and your eternal intereſts, be your great concern, without anxiety about a worldly proviſion; and, eſpecially, mortify your ſenſual appetites in whatever would tend to inflame the native corruption of your hearts; and to as many as walk after this rule, peace be on them and mercy, and on the Iſrael of God.

CHAP. XIV.

The apoſtle, in order to cultivate mutual love and peace between the Jewiſh and Gentile converts, (1.) Cautions the one againſt judging, and the other againſt deſpiſing their brethren in indifferent things, ver. 1—13. (2.) He exhorts the Gentiles rather to forego the uſe of their Chriſtian liberty, than offend their Jewiſh brethren in theſe things, ver. 14—23.

1. [a] HIM that is weak in the faith receive you, but not to doubtful diſputations. 2. For [b] one believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, eateth herbs. 3. [c] Let not him that eateth, deſpiſe him that eateth not; and let not him which eateth not, judge him that eateth: for God hath received him. 4. [d] Who art thou that judgeſt another man's ſervant? to his own maſter he ſtandeth or falleth: Yea, he ſhall be holden up: for God is able to make him ſtand. 5. [e] One man eſteemeth one day above another: another eſteemeth every day alike. [f] Let every man be fully perſuaded in his own mind. 6. [g] He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for [h] he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks. 7. For [i] none of us liveth to himſelf, and no man dieth to himſelf. 8. For [i] whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lord's. 9. For [k] to this end Chriſt both died, and roſe, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living. 10. But why doſt thou judge thy brother? or why doſt thou ſet at nought thy brother? for [l] we ſhall all ſtand before the judgment-ſeat of Chriſt. 11. For it is written, [m] As I live, ſaith the Lord, every knee ſhall bow to me, and every tongue ſhall confeſs to God. 12. So then [n] every one of us ſhall give account of himſelf to God. 13. Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that [o] no man put a ſtumbling-block, or an occaſion to fall in his brother's way.

a Iſai. xlii. 3. Ezek. xxxiv. 16. Chap. xv. 1. 7. 1 Cor. viii. 11.
b 1 Cor. x. 25.
c Col. ii. 16.
d Jam. iv. 12.
e Gal. iv. 10. Col. ii. 16.
f Phil. iii. 15.
g Gal. iv. 10.
h Mat. xiv. 19 & xv. 36. 1 Cor. x. 31. 1 Tim. iv. 3.
i 1 Cor vi. 19. Gal. ii. 20. 1 Theſſ. v. 10. 1 Pet. iv. 2.
k 2 Cor. v. 15.
l Eccleſ. xii. 14. Mat. xxv. 32. 2 Cor. v. 10.
m Iſai. xlv. 23. Phil. ii. 10.
n Mat. xii. 36. Gal. vi. 4.
o Mat. xviii. 7. 1 Cor. viii. 9. & x. 32.

v. 1—13. As many of the Jewiſh converts ſtill retained a high veneration for the Moſaical inſtitutions, and were ſcrupulous in obſerving a diſtinction of meats and days, from which the Gentile Chriſtians juſtly apprehended themſelves entirely at liberty; the apoſtle therefore recommends a kind condeſcenſion to the educational prejudices of the Jewiſh brethren, and that there ſhould be no coolneſs or diſtance between them on account of theſe indifferent matters. Him that is weak in the faith receive you, heartily embracing and welcoming them, but not to doubtful diſputations, not perplexing them with uſeleſs diſputes about things of a trivial nature.

1. Reſpecting meats. One believeth that he may eat all things; and, ſatisfied about the abolition of the ceremonial law, counts nothing any longer common or unclean, eating, without ſcruple, whatever kind of wholeſome food is ſet before him. Another who is weak, through the prejudice of education, or want of light, fearful of uſing any meat but what is permitted by the law of Moſes, and killed according to the manner there preſcribed, (Lev. xvii. 10—14.) when he is invited to eat with Gentiles, leaſt he ſhould incur ceremonial defilement, abſtains from their victuals, and eateth only herbs. Let not him that eateth, deſpiſe him that eateth not, as weak and ſuperſtitious, priding himſelf on his ſuperior knowledge, and clearer views of his Chriſtian liberty: and, on the other hand, let not him that eateth not, judge him that eateth; and being prejudiced and narrow in his own conceptions, dare uncharitably to cenſure his brother as a looſe liver, and irreligious profeſſor, becauſe he hath no ſuch ſcruples about indifferent matters; for God hath received him into his favour, and therefore, whom he accepts, none ſhould condemn. Who art thou that judgeſt another man's ſervant? to his own maſter he ſtandeth or falleth. It is the higheſt arrogance to uſurp God's throne, and ſit in judgment on our brother, who is reſponſible to God alone, and uſes only that liberty which he is in conſcience ſatisfied God allows. Yea, and whatever raſh cenſures the weak and ſuperſtitious may caſt upon him, he ſhall be holden up; the Lord will ſtrengthen and preſerve him through faith unto ſalvation, for God is able to make him ſtand, perſevering in fidelity unto the end, and appearing with boldneſs in the day of judgment. Note, (1.) Nothing is more contrary to the ſpirit of charity than raſh and haſty cenſures. (2.) We are to leave every man to the great judge, nor ſhould pretend to decide upon their everlaſting ſtate, without the cleareſt warrant of God's word.

2. Reſpecting days. One man eſteemeth one day above another, as the Jewiſh converts did, who paid a particular regard to the paſſover, pentecoſt, new moons, and other feaſt and faſt days, as more ſacred than others: another eſteemeth every day alike, counting all theſe Jewiſh diſtinctions aboliſhed. Let every man be fully perſuaded in his own mind; and, being ſatisfied in his own conſcience, be content that others ſhould judge for themſelves, allowing them the ſame liberty we claim ourſelves; charitably concluding, that he that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord, intending therein to glorify the Lord Jeſus, who on mount Sinai at firſt enjoined the ceremonial law; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it, from the ſame principle, and with a view to the Redeemer's glory, by whoſe authority they ſuppoſe the Moſaical inſtitutions are laid aſide. He that eateth, as the converted Gentile, every kind of meat without ſcruple, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and is perſuaded that all the creatures of God are good, when ſanctified by the word of God, and by prayer: and he that eateth not, ſuppoſing that the prohibition of a variety of meats enjoined by Moſes is ſtill in force, to the Lord he eateth not, perſuaded in conſcience he ought to abſtain, and giveth God thanks for the food which he hath allowed him under the law. In theſe points, therefore, we ſhould bear and forbear; nor, for ſuch trifles, diſpute and break the bands of Chriſtian love.

3. Our grand end and aim in theſe things, and all others, ſhould be the glory of God. For none of us liveth to himſelf; we are not our own, and muſt not live as ſelf-ſeekers, or ſelf-pleaſers; we are bought with a price, that we ſhould glorify God in our bodies and in our ſpirits, which are his; and no man dieth to himſelf, wiſhing to get rid of his troubles, or to gain a name; or ſelfiſhly deſiring his crown before the time when God ſhall appoint him an end to his warfare; for whether we, who are truly the ſervants of Jeſus, live, we live unto the Lord, deſirous to be, and do, and ſuffer according to his holy will and pleaſure; or whether we die a natural, lingring, ſudden, or violent death, we die unto the Lord, reſigned to his will, committing all our concerns into his hands, and with our departing breath deſiring to exalt his great and glorious name, and to commend the goodneſs of our God; whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lord's, belong to him as his devoted ſervants; as his inſeparable property depending on him, and ſingly aiming at his glory. And thus, whether we are weaker or ſtronger believers, we have all one purpoſe, one end, one home. For to this end Chriſt both died, and roſe and revived, having made the great atonement for the ſins of his people, and being raiſed in token of God's approbation of his undertaking, and ſeated on the mediatorial throne, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living, as head over all things to his church; inveſted with univerſal dominion and authority; to rule the living, to revive the dead; and when in the day of his appearing and glory, the dead ſhall riſe, the living be changed, he will be the object of their everlaſting praiſes. Since then we are Chriſt's, and he alone hath dominion over us, it becomes us never to uſurp authority over the conſciences of our brethren, or to paſs cenſures on the dead or the living. We have one maſter only, whoſe approbation we need be ſollicitous to ſecure.

4. We muſt each, ſhortly, anſwer for ourſelves before God; and therefore to his judgment all ſhould be referred. But why doſt thou judge thy brother, as lax and latitudinarian, becauſe you are rigid and ſcrupulous? or why, on the other hand, doſt thou ſet at nought thy brother, as an ignorant, weak, and deſpicable bigot, becauſe he thinks that evil, which you know to be innocent? This is to take the matter out of God's hands, and to erect an unhallowed tribunal; for we ſhall all ſtand before the judgment-ſeat of Chriſt, and by his ſentence, and no other, muſt ſtand or fall for ever. For it is written, As I live, ſaith the Lord, every knee ſhall bow to me, and every tongue ſhall confeſs to God; owning me the eternal Jehovah, acknowledging my eternal glory and Godhead, and bowing before the ſceptre of my judgment, as accountable to me alone, and expecting from my lips the deciſion of their eternal ſtate for happineſs or miſery: ſo then every one of us ſhall give an account of himſelf to God, to Chriſt, to whom all judgment is committed, and who is eſſentially very God. Let us not therefore judge one another any more with any raſh and precipitate cenſures, but judge this rather, that no man put a ſtumbling-block, or an occaſion to fall in his brother's way; and whatever knowledge he may have of Chriſtian liberty, yet to be careful ſo to uſe it, as not willingly to grieve or enſnare his brother, by tempting him to ſin, by giving a handle for cenſure, or emboldening him to do what his conſcience may not be ſatisfied is right. Note, Our great concern is to prepare for a judgment day, and the beſt means to be ready for it is to keep it often in our view, and to bring ourſelves thither in ſelf-examination, before the Lord ſhall cite us to his bar.

[p] Acts x. 15. 1 Tim. iv. 4. Tit i. 15.
[q] Ver. 23. Tit. i. 15.
[r] 1 Cor. viii. 11.
[s] 1 Cor. viii. 8. Heb. xiii. 9.
[t] Chap. xv. 13. Gal. v. 22.
[u] Pſ. xxxiv. 14.
[x] Chap. xv. 2. 1 Cor. xiv. 12. Eph. iv. 29.
[y] Mat. xv. 11. Ver. 14.
[z] 1 Cor. viii. 13.
[a] 1 John iii. 21.
[b] Tit. i. 15.

14. I know, and am perſuaded by the Lord Jeſus, that [p] there is nothing unclean of itſelf: but [q] to him that eſteemeth any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean. 15. But if thy brother be grieved with thy meat, now walkeſt thou not charitably. [r] Deſtroy not him with thy meat, for whom Chriſt died. 16. Let not then your good be evil ſpoken of. 17. For [s] the kingdom of God is not meat and drink, [t] but righteouſneſs, and peace, and joy in the holy Ghoſt. 18. For he that in theſe things ſerveth Chriſt, is acceptable to God, and approved of men. 19. Let us therefore follow after the things which [u] make for peace, and things [x] wherewith one may edify another. 20. For meat deſtroy not the work of God. [y] All things indeed are pure; but it is evil for that man who eateth with offence. 21. [z] It is good neither to eat fleſh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother ſtumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak. 22. Haſt thou faith? have it to thyſelf before God. [a] Happy is he that condemneth not himſelf in that thing which he alloweth. 23. And he that doubteth, is damned if he eat, becauſe he eateth not of faith: for [b] whatſoever is not of faith, is ſin.

v. 14—23. The apoſtle had juſt intimated, that they ſhould deſire mutual edification, and not abuſe their Chriſtian liberty to others detriment.

1. As to his own ſenſe of theſe ceremonial things, he ſaith, I know, and am perſuaded by the Lord Jeſus, that there is nothing unclean of itſelf, the ceremonial law concerning meats being wholly abrogated, and theſe communicate no moral defilement to the conſcience; but to him that eſteemeth any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean, as he would act againſt his conſcience if he ſhould eat; and though his conſcience be erroneous, he would do evil.

But, 2. Whatever conviction any man may have of the lawfulneſs of all kinds of food, yet, if thy brother be grieved with thy meat, through his educational prejudices, and you unkindly perſiſt in the uſe of your liberty, and eat before him what he eſteems forbidden, now walkeſt thou not charitably; deſtroy not him with thy meat, for whom Chriſt died; deſtroy not the peace of his mind, by giving him unneceſſary offence; or, at leaſt, be not the means of ſtumbling ſuch as, in the judgment of charity, we may reckon among the redeemed. Thoſe who are really the purchaſe of Chriſt's blood, can indeed never periſh; but what hath in its nature but the moſt diſtant tendency to endanger them, muſt carefully be avoided.

3. Another reaſon why you ſhould abridge yourſelf of ſomething of your Chriſtian liberty, is this: Let not then your good be evil ſpoken of; do not provoke thoſe who are miſinformed to ſpeak evil of you, for that which is itſelf lawful; nor do any thing which may leſſen you in men's eſteem, and prevent your uſefulneſs; nor give occaſion to the enemy, by needleſs contentions, to ſpeak evil of Chriſtianity itſelf.

4. As the greateſt points of Chriſtianity ſtand diſtinct from all theſe trivial matters, no ſtreſs ſhould be laid upon them. For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; conſiſts not in uſing or abſtaining from the ceremonial inſtitutions which the law preſcribed concerning theſe things; but it is righteouſneſs, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghoſt. Theſe are the grand eſſential matters: Righteouſneſs, imputed and implanted; peace with God through Jeſus Chriſt, and the ſenſe of his love kindling ours, and engaging us to live peaceably with all men; and joy in the Holy Ghoſt, which this divine ſpirit communicates to our ſouls, making us happy in God and his holy ways. For he that in theſe things ſerveth Chriſt; faithful to his cauſe, and in ſimplicity deſigning his honour, whatever his practice or ſentiments may be in uneſſential matters, is acceptable to God; his perſon and ſervices are accepted in the beloved, and he is approved of man, as a ſincere convert, at leaſt by all thoſe of ſound judgment and ſolid experience.

He therefore exhorts, 5. Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, laying aſide all uncharitable contentions; and things whereby one may edify another, not ſeeking our own pleaſure merely but others good. For ſo trivial a conſideration as this or that kind of meat, deſtroy not the work of God, nor diſturb the peace, and love, and harmony, which ſhould ſubſiſt between fellow-Chriſtians, and which it is the great deſign of God in his goſpel to produce in the hearts of the faithful. All things indeed are pure, I will admit, to thoſe who have knowledge; but it is evil for that man who eateth with offence; and the liberty of uſing any meat, which in itſelf was lawful, becomes criminal, when we chuſe rather to offend a weak brother, than forego the gratification of our appetite for his ſake. In ſuch a caſe it is good neither to eat fleſh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother ſtumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak. It would be right and prudent to abſtain from any of theſe creatures, however good in themſelves, and lawful to be uſed, rather than be a hindrance to the weak, grieve or diſcourage the leſs enlightened, or tempt our brother raſhly to cenſure us, or with a doubting conſcience to follow our example. Haſt thou faith, and art ſatisfied concerning the abrogation of the ceremonial inſtitutions; have it to thyſelf before God, and uſe thy liberty to God's glory on proper occaſions. Happy is he that condemneth not himſelf in that thing which he alloweth, and never expoſes himſelf to the juſt reproaches of his conſcience, by warping his better judgment to gratify his covetouſneſs, his pleaſure, or his pride. And where this is the caſe, he that doubteth about the propriety of what he is going to do, ſuppoſes there may be a difference between meats lawful and unlawful, and therefore heſitates whether he ſhall eat or not, is damned if he eat; his conſcience will condemn him, becauſe he is not ſure that he hath God's warrant for what he doth, and eateth not of faith; for whatſoever is not of faith, is ſin. God's word muſt be our rule; we muſt ever from thence receive our directions; and where our minds are not fully ſatisfied concerning his will, nothing muſt tempt us to take one ſtep further. We are ſafe, though miſtaken, when we thro' jealouſy abridge ourſelves of our liberty; but where we preſumptuouſly act, tho' doubts remain, we ſhew an evident diſregard to God's authority, and violate the ſacred dictates of conſcience.

CHAP. XV.

The apoſtle, in purſuance of his diſcourſe, (1.) Directs the ſtrong in faith to bear with the weak, ver. 1—6. (2.) That all ſhould receive one another as brethren, ver. 7—12. (3.) Draws to a concluſion of his epiſtle, ver. 13—33.

1. [a] WE then that are ſtrong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to pleaſe ourſelves. 2. [b] Let every one of us pleaſe his neighbour for his good [c] to edification. 3. For even Chriſt pleaſed not himſelf; but as it is written, [d] The reproaches of them that reproached thee, fell on me. 4. For [e] whatſoever things were written aforetime, were written for our learning; [f] that we through patience and comfort of the ſcriptures might have hope. 5. Now [g] the God of patience and conſolation grant you to [h] be like-minded one towards another, according to Chriſt Jeſus: 6. That ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

[a] Chap. xiv. 1. 1 Cor. ix. 22. Gal. vi. 1.
[b] 1 Cor. ix. 10. & x. 24, 33. Phil. ii. 4.
[c] Chap. xiv. 19.
[d] Pſ. lxix. 10. Iſa. liii. 4.
[e] Chap. iv. 23. 1 Cor. ix. 10. & x. 11. 2 Pet. i. 20.
[f] 2 Tim. iii. 16.
[g] 2 Cor. i. 3.
[h] Acts iv. 32. Chap. xii. 16. 1 Cor. i. 10. Phil. ii. 2.

v. 1—6. The apoſtle infers from what he had advanced in the foregoing chapter,

1. That, We then that are ſtrong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to pleaſe ourſelves; having compaſſion towards them; making every kind allowance for their prejudices and ſcruples; not provoked by their raſh cenſures, and deſirous to prevent them by foregoing our own pleaſure for their profit. Let every one of us therefore pleaſe his neighbour for his good to edification; not complying with him in any thing that is ſinful, but in all indifferent matters ready to yield to him, in order to inſinuate into his confidence, for the advantage of his ſoul.

2. He enforces his exhortation by the ſtrongeſt motive of Chriſt's example. For even Chriſt pleaſed not himſelf; when he was under no obligations to us, he freely ſubmitted to all hardſhips and ſufferings for our ſakes; as it is written, The reproaches of them that reproached thee, fell on me; he willingly bore the contradiction of ſinners againſt himſelf; and all the reproaches which tranſgreſſors by their offences had caſt on the bleſſed God, he bore in his own body on the tree, when he made atonement for them. And in this ſcripture, as well as others, we are not to ſuppoſe David ſpeaks of himſelf, but of Chriſt, and with a view to the edification of his people. For whatſoever things were written aforetime, were written for our learning; that we through patience and comfort of the ſcriptures might have hope; animated by the examples there ſet forth, to ſhew the ſame meekneſs, patience, and forbearance; revived by the views of the great and precious promiſes, and comforted in the aſſured hope of eternal life therein revealed to us. Note, (1.) Chriſt's pattern ſhould be ever in our view. "Would the Lord Jeſus "in our ſituation have thus thought, ſpoke, and acted," ſhould be our enquiry? (2.) They are the truly wiſe who are learned in the ſcriptures, and know the way to everlaſting life. (3.) The ſcriptures afford us the moſt powerful arguments for patience under all our trials and provocations, and furniſh us with the moſt ſubſtantial comforts under all our diſcouragements, both in the precious promiſes of preſent divine ſupport, and in the proſpect of the glory which ſhall be revealed.

3. He ſeconds his exhortations with his prayers. We can only ſpeak to the ear; God muſt make it effectual to the heart. Now the God of patience and conſolation, who is ſo long-ſuffering towards us, and ready to comfort the afflicted, and is the ſource and author of all patience, to us, and the giver of all conſolation, grant you to be like minded one towards another; united in ſentiment and affection; according to Chriſt Jeſus; copying his example, and obedient to his holy will; that ye may with one mind and one mouth, as if animated by one ſoul, in your religious aſſemblies, and in ſocial converſe, glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; in ſpirit and converſation deſirous to exalt his great and glorious name, and ſhew forth his praiſes. Note, (1.) Chriſtians ſhould be united in one mind, and join in the ſame worſhip; all ſchiſmatical diviſions are God's abhorrence. (2.) Our prayers muſt follow our preaching, that God may give the bleſſing.

7. Wherefore [i] receive ye one another, [k] as Chriſt alſo received us, to the glory of God. 8. Now I ſay, that [l] Jeſus Chriſt was a miniſter of the circumciſion for the truth of God, [m] to confirm the promiſes made unto the fathers: 9. And [n] that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy; as it is written, [o] For this cauſe I will confeſs to thee among the Gentiles, and ſing unto thy name. 10. And again he ſaith, [p] Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people. 11. And again, [q] Praiſe the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and laud him, all ye people. 12. And again Eſaias ſaith, [r] There ſhall be a root of Jeſſe, and he that ſhall riſe to reign over the Gentiles; in him ſhall the Gentiles truſt. 13. Now the God of hope fill you with [s] all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope through the power of the holy Ghoſt.

[i] Chap. xiv. 1.
[k] John vi. 37.
[l] Mat. xv. 24. Acts iii. 26.
[m] 2 Cor. i. 20.
[n] John x. 16.
[o] 2 Sam. xxii. 50. Pſ. xviii. 49.
[p] Deut. xxxii. 43.
[q] Pſ. cxvii. 1.
[r] Iſa. xi. 1, 10.
[s] Chap. xiv. 17. 1 Pet. i. 8.

v. 7—13. The apoſtle returns to enforce his former exhortation. Wherefore receive ye one another, with brotherly affection; in friendly intercourſe, and holy communion, as Chriſt alſo received us, whether Jews or Gentiles, notwithſtanding all our infirmities, to the glory of God; as this was the end he had in view, the ſame muſt we propoſe to ourſelves.

1. Chriſt had received the Jewiſh converts. Now I ſay, that Jeſus Chriſt was a miniſter of the circumciſion; ſubmitted himſelf to that bloody rite, and perſonally miniſtred to the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael, for the truth of God, to diſplay his faithfulneſs to his covenant, and to confirm the promiſes made unto the fathers, that of their ſeed Chriſt ſhould come. Now as this put a peculiar honour upon the Jews, their Gentile brethren ſhould not deſpiſe them, becauſe of any weak attachment to the ceremonial inſtitutions.

2. Chriſt had alſo received the Gentiles to the participation of the ſame privileges, and therefore this ſhould engage the brotherly regards of their Jewiſh brethren, ſince the ſalvation that Jeſus obtained was to extend to them, that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy, who now at laſt looked with compaſſion upon them, and had called them into his church: as it is written, For this cauſe I will confeſs to thee among the Gentiles, and ſing unto thy name. Becauſe thou haſt given me the heathen for my inheritance, I will declare thy word among them, and call upon them to offer their thankſgivings for the ineſtimable bleſſings of which in the goſpel they are made partakers. And again, in another prophecy, he ſaith, Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people; incorporated with them, ſharing their privileges, and therefore happy in the experience of the ſame goſpel grace. And again, it is ſaid, Praiſe the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and laud him, all ye people; joining your voices together in the great congregation, the partition-wall being taken down. And again, Eſaias ſaith, There ſhall be a root of Jeſſe, the divine Meſſiah, and he that ſhall riſe to reign over the Gentiles, exalted to the mediatorial throne, and extending his conqueſts over the ſouls of ſinners to the ends of the earth; in him ſhall the Gentiles truſt; placing their dependance upon him as their only Lord and Saviour. All which prophecies clearly ſhew, that the time ſhould come, when the Gentiles ſhould be fellow-heirs, and of the ſame body; and therefore the Jewiſh converts ſhould with hearty affection embrace their Gentile brethren, as all one in Chriſt Jeſus.

3. The apoſtle adds his affectionate prayer for them both. Now the God of hope, who in Chriſt Jeſus is the ground and author of our hope of all the ſpiritual and eternal bleſſings, fill you with all joy and peace in believing; enabling you to lay hold of the promiſes of the everlaſting covenant, and giving you the abundance of divine conſolations, and of that peace which paſſeth all underſtanding; that ye may abound in hope through the power of the Holy Ghoſt; in the fulleſt aſſurance of poſſeſſing the eternal bleſſedneſs above, the earneſts and foretaſtes of which the Spirit gives, in the light, ſtrength, and comfort which he now communicates. Note, (1.) When faith is in exerciſe, then our ſouls will be happy even here below. (2.) The Chriſtian's hope never makes aſhamed, becauſe it never can diſappoint him. (3.) They who would abound in hope, peace, and joy, ſhould be much in prayer to him who is the giver of every good gift, and whoſe face none ſeek in vain.

14. And I myſelf alſo am perſuaded of you, my brethren, that [t] ye alſo are full of goodneſs, filled with all knowledge, able alſo to admoniſh one another. 15. Nevertheleſs, brethren, I have written the more boldly unto you, in ſome ſort, [u] as putting you in mind, [x] becauſe of the grace that is given to me of God, 16. [y] That I ſhould be the miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt to the Gentiles, miniſtring the goſpel of God, that [z] the offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being ſanctified by the holy Ghoſt.

[t] 2 Pet. iii. 18. 1 John ii. 21.
[u] 2 Pet. i. 12.
[x] Chap. i. 5. & xii. 3.
[y] Acts ix. 15. Gal. i. 16. 1 Tim. ii. 7.
[z] Iſa. lxvi. 20. Phil. ii. 17.

v. 14—16. St. Paul here,

1. Expreſſes the high eſtimation in which he held them. And I myſelf alſo am perſuaded of you, my brethren, from the gracious teſtimony born to you by thoſe who are acquainted with your ſtate, that ye alſo are full of goodneſs; enriched with every gracious fruit of the Spirit, with tender benevolence and ſympathy willing to bear and forbear, and united in love and peace, notwithſtanding any leſſer differences of opinion: filled with all knowledge, in the great eſſential points of the goſpel revelation; able alſo to admoniſh one another, and to communicate your gifts for mutual edification.

2. He elegantly apologizes for the freedom he had taken in reproving, adviſing, and exhorting them, who were themſelves ſo eminent in gifts and graces. Nevertheleſs, brethren, I have written the more boldly unto you, in ſome ſort, as putting you in mind; rather as your monitor to refreſh your memory, than ſetting up myſelf for your inſtructor, as if you were ignorant. The liberty he uſed with them was what his office obliged him to: becauſe of the grace that is given to me of God; honoured by him with apoſtleſhip; that I ſhould be the miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt to the Gentiles, miniſtring the goſpel of God, diſcharging the office of a Chriſtian prieſt with unwearied diligence, fidelity, and zeal; that the offering up of the Gentiles, their ſpiritual ſacrifices of prayer and praiſe, might be acceptable through Jeſus Chriſt, being ſanctified by the Holy Ghoſt, and thereby infinitely more excellent, lent than any of the oblations that were ever made at the temple.

17. I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jeſus Chriſt, in [a] thoſe things which pertain to God. 18. For [b] I will not dare to ſpeak any of thoſe things, which Chriſt hath not wrought by me, [c] to make the Gentiles obedient, by word and deed, 19. [d] Through mighty ſigns and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God; ſo that from Jeruſalem, and round about Illyricum, I have fully preached the goſpel of Chriſt. 20. Yea, ſo have I ſtrived to preach the goſpel, not where Chriſt was named, [e] leſt I ſhould build upon another man's foundation: 21. But as it is written, [f] To whom he was not ſpoken of, they ſhall ſee: and they that have not heard, ſhall underſtand.

[a] Heb. v. 1.
[b] 2 Cor. x. 15.
[c] Chap. i. v. & xvi. 26.
[d] Acts xix. 11, 12. 2 Cor. xii. 12.
[e] 2 Cor. x. 15, 16.
[f] Iſa. lii. 15.

v. 17—21. Having mentioned his office, as the apoſtle of the Gentiles, he glories therein. I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jeſus Chriſt, by whoſe grace I have been ſo ſupported, and who hath given ſuch eminent ſucceſs to my labours, in thoſe things which pertain to God, wherein his glory is ſo greatly concerned, and in the converſion of the Gentiles ſo highly exalted. Or the words may be rendered, I have therefore a rejoicing in Chriſt concerning the things of God; that is, the Gentiles, who are offered up to him as living ſacrifices, in which he felt the moſt unfeigned ſatisfaction. For I will not dare to ſpeak of any of thoſe things which Chriſt hath not wrought by me; far be all arrogant boaſts from me; nor would I aſcribe the leaſt honour to myſelf, but only to him whoſe efficacious grace, under my preaching, hath wrought powerfully, to make the Gentiles obedient by word and deed; ſhewing forth by an open confeſſion, and a becoming converſation, the reality of their converſion to God, through mighty ſigns and wonders, which were wrought in confirmation of my divine miſſion, by the power of the Spirit of God, whoſe mighty influence gives energy and demonſtration to the word preached; ſo that from Jeruſalem and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the goſpel of Chriſt; diffuſing with indefatigable labours the light of truth through Syria, Leſſer Aſia, and Greece; and keeping back nothing of the whole counſel of God concerning the free and perfect ſalvation of ſinners through the great Redeemer. Yea, ſo have I ſtrived to preach the goſpel, not where Chriſt was named; but with a holy ambition I went rather to the places where he was wholly unknown, leſt I ſhould build upon another man's foundation, and be thought to be inferior to thoſe who went before, and to have borrowed my knowledge from them, and ſo ſhould have wanted a ſignal proof of my doctrine and office, as immediately received from Chriſt himſelf. But as it is written, (Iſa. lii. 15.) ſo hath it been fulfilled by my miniſtry; To whom he was not ſpoken of, they ſhall ſee; and they that have not heard, ſhall underſtand: the Gentiles, who lay in darkneſs, utterly ignorant of the Meſſiah and his kingdom, ſhall ſee the light of life, and be made wiſe unto ſalvation. Note, Whatever ſucceſs attends our labours, God muſt have all the glory, who alone giveth the increaſe.

22. For which cauſe alſo [g] I have been much hindred from coming to you. 23. But now having no more place in theſe parts, and [h] having a great deſire theſe many years to come unto you; 24. Whenſoever I take my journey into Spain, I will come to you: for I truſt to ſee you in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, if firſt I be ſomewhat filled with your company. 25. But now I go unto Jeruſalem to miniſter unto the ſaints. 26. For [i] it hath pleaſed them of Macedonia and Achaia, to make a certain contribution for the poor ſaints which are at Jeruſalem. 27. It hath pleaſed them verily, and their debtors they are. For [k] if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their ſpiritual things, their duty is alſo to miniſter unto them in carnal things. 28. When therefore I have performed this, and [l] have ſealed to them this fruit, I will come by you into Spain. 29. And [m] I am ſure that when I come unto you, I ſhall come in the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the goſpel of Chriſt.

[g] Chap. i. 13.
[h] Acts xix. 21. Chap. i. 11.
[i] 2 Cor. viii. 1, &c. & ix. 2.
[k] 1 Cor. ix. 11. Gal. vi. 6.
[l] Phil. iv. 17.
[m] Chap. i. 11.

v. 22—29. St. Paul had travelled far, but he intended ſtill to extend his labours to a wider circle, and viſit Rome alſo, and the regions beyond it.

1. He had long propoſed to viſit them, but his many avocations had hitherto prevented him. For which cauſe alſo I have been much hindered from coming to you; but now having no more place in theſe parts, the goſpel being fully preached, and Chriſtian churches planted throughout the country between Jeruſalem and Italy, and having a great deſire theſe many years to come unto you, that I might impart to you ſome ſpiritual gift, and be comforted by you; whenſoever I take my journey into Spain, where I purpoſe, God willing, to erect the goſpel-ſtandard, I will come to you, and take you in my way, for I truſt to ſee you in my journey, and, according to the kind reception I have met in other churches, to be brought on my way thitherward by you, ſome of you going with me, and giving me ſuch directions and neceſſaries as may conduce to the ſucceſs of the expedition; if firſt I be ſomewhat, or in part, filled with your company; enjoying the ſatiſfaction of their converſation, rejoicing in their ſteadfaſtneſs, and taſting a little of the ſweetneſs of that communion of ſaints which he hoped in perfection to enjoy with them in heaven. Note, (1.) When duty detains us from thoſe whoſe company we moſt delight in, we are ever chearfully to forego our own pleaſure, for the ſake of our maſter's ſervice. (2.) All our purpoſes ſhould be formed in ſubordination to Divine Providence. (3.) Chriſtian fellowſhip is one of the greateſt joys on earth, and a little foretaſte of what we expect, when we ſhall join the ſpirits of the juſt made perfect.

2. He at preſent was obliged to return to Jeruſalem with the collections of the ſeveral churches for their poor brethren in Judea, who by perſecution and the famine were in great diſtreſs. But now I go unto Jeruſalem to miniſter unto the ſaints, to diſtribute among them the generous contributions of their Gentile brethren; For it hath pleaſed them of Macedonia and Achaia, to make a certain contribution for the poor ſaints which are at Jeruſalem. It hath pleaſed them verily, thus freely and liberally to contribute of their ſubſtance, and afford a noble example of Chriſtian benevolence: and their debtors they are; gratitude as well as charity required this at their hands. For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their ſpiritual things, and have been called to ſhare in thoſe privileges that were long peculiar to the church of Iſrael, their duty is alſo, in return, to miniſter unto them in carnal things, (λειτουργησαι), honouring God by a conſcientious and liberal ſupply of their wants.

3. When he had finiſhed this work, he expreſſes his confidence that he ſhall come to them. When therefore I have performed my preſent journey and ſervice, and have ſealed to them this fruit, careful that it be rendered up to them undiminiſhed, I will come by you into Spain. And I am ſure that when I come unto you, I ſhall come in the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the goſpel of Chriſt; as a merchant veſſel richly fraught, bringing with me the ineſtimable treaſures of the goſpel-word, for your moſt abundant edification and comfort. Note, It is a happy meeting between a miniſter and his people, when he thus comes to them in the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the goſpel of Chriſt.

30. Now I beſeech you, brethren, for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt's ſake, and [n] for the love of the Spirit, that [o] ye ſtrive together with me in your prayers to God for me: 31. [p] That I may be delivered from them that do not believe in Judea; and that my ſervice which I have for Jeruſalem, may be accepted of the ſaints: 32. [q] That I may come unto you with joy [r] by the will of God, and may with you be refreſhed. 33. Now [s] the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

[n] Phil. ii. 1.
[o] 2 Cor. i. 11. Col. iv. 12.
[p] Acts xx. 23. & xxi. 27. 2 Theſ. iii. 2.
[q] Chap. i. 10.
[r] 1 Cor. iv. 19. Jam. iv. 15.
[s] Chap. xvi. 20. 2 Theſ. iii. 17.

v. 30—33. Having declared to them his purpoſe, he intreats their prayers, that he may be able to accompliſh it.

Now I beſeech you, brethren, for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt's ſake, by every powerful argument which can be drawn from the grace which is in him, whoſe I am, and whom I ſerve; and for the love of the Spirit, who viſited your ſouls with his bleſſed influence; and as a proof of your being poſſeſſed of this divine principle, that ye ſtrive together with me in your prayers to God for me; fervently and importunately joining me in my earneſt cries to God, that I may be delivered from them that do not believe in Judea, thoſe moſt invenomed foes, his own infidel and wicked countrymen; and that my ſervice which I have for Jeruſalem, may be accepted of the ſaints; that all their prejudices againſt him and the Gentile converts might be removed, and this benevolence thankfully and chearfully received, to the cementing a nearer union between them. And alſo, that I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, having found ſucceſs in this miniſtry, if the Lord ſo pleaſed; and may with you be refreſhed, in the enjoyment of your company, and the communication of our mutual happy experience. Now, in return for the favour I aſk, may the God of peace be with you all, uniting your hearts in love to his bleſſed ſelf, and to one another; and filling you with all peace and proſperity in your ſouls. Amen. I pray that this may, and truſt that it will, be your happy caſe. Note, (1.) We are bound to deſire each other's prayers, and ſhould count theſe among the greateſt obligations which can be conferred upon us. (2.) Our applications to a throne of grace muſt be fervent and agonizing, as becomes thoſe who know the ineſtimable value of the prize for which they wreſtle.

CHAP. XVI.

Paul is now concluding this long and excellent epiſtle, and he doth it with a great deal of affection. 1. He recommends one friend to the Roman Chriſtians, and particularly ſalutes ſeveral among them, ver. 1—16. 2. He gives a caution to take heed of thoſe who cauſed diviſions, ver. 17—20. 3. Salutations are added from ſome who were with Paul, ver. 21—24. 4. He concludes with a ſolemn celebration of the glory of God, ver. 25—27.

1. I Commend unto you Phebe our ſiſter, which is a ſervant of the church which is at Cenchrea: 2.
[a] Phil. ii. 29. That [a] ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh ſaints, and that ye aſſiſt her in whatſoever buſineſs ſhe hath need of you: for ſhe hath been a ſuccourer of many, and of [b] Acts xviii. 2. myſelf alſo. 3. Greet [b] Priſcilla and Aquila my helpers in Chriſt Jeſus: 4. (Who have for my life laid down their own necks: unto whom not only I give thanks, but alſo all the churches of the Gentiles) 5. Likewiſe [c] Mat. xviii. 20. 1 Cor. xvi. 19. Col. iv. 15. Philem. 2. greet [c] the church that is in their houſe. Salute my well-beloved Epenetus, [d] who is the firſt-fruits of Achaia unto Chriſt. 6. Greet Mary, who beſtowed much labour on us. 7. Salute Andronicus and Junia my kinſmen [d] 1 Cor. xvi. 15. and my fellow-priſoners, who are of note among the apo[e] Gal. i. 22. ſtles, [e] who alſo were in Chriſt before me. 8. Greet Amplias my beloved in the Lord. 9. Salute Urbane our helper in Chriſt, and Stachys my beloved. 10. Salute Apelles approved in Chriſt. Salute them which are of Ariſtobulus houſhold. 11. Salute Herodion my kinſ-man. Greet them that be of the houſhold of Narciſſus, which are in the Lord. 12. Salute Tryphena and Tryphoſa, who labour in the Lord. Salute the beloved Perſis, which laboured much in the Lord. 13. Salute [f] Mat. xii. 49. John xix. 27. Rufus choſen in the Lord, and his mother and [f] mine.
14. Salute Aſyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethren which are with them. 15.
Salute Philologus, and Julia, Nereus, and his ſiſter, and Olympas, and all the ſaints which are with them. 16.
[g] 1 Cor. xvi. 20. 2 Cor. xiii. 12. 1 Theſ. v. 26. 1 Pet. v. 14. [g] Salute one another with an holy kiſs. The churches of Chriſt ſalute you.

v. 1—16. The apoſtle now takes his leave of them:

1. With commending to them the bearer. I commend unto you Phebe our ſiſter in the Lord, which is a ſervant, or a deaconeſs, of the church which is at Cenchrea, in the neighbourhood of Corinth. She was one of thoſe who devoted her time and ſubſtance to the ſervice of the cauſe of Chriſt: probably her houſe ſerved for the aſſemblies of the church, and ſhe entertained thoſe who came to preach the goſpel among them. Therefore he deſires, That ye receive her in the Lord, with all holy affection, in the Redeemer's name and for his ſake, as becometh ſaints, ſuch as ye profeſs yourſelves to be; and that ye aſſiſt her in whatſoever buſineſs ſhe hath need of you, ſhewing her every mark of kindneſs and reſpect: for ſhe hath been a ſuccourer of many, and hath moſt hoſpitably received and entertained them; and of myſelf alſo; with gratitude therefore I deſire to acknowledge her kindneſs and generoſity. Note, The leaſt return we can make for favours is to teſtify our gratitude to our kind benefactors.

2. He ſends his affectionate ſalutations to many at Rome.

(1.) To Priſcilla and Aquila, of whom he ſpeaks with deepeſt regard as his helpers in Chriſt Jeſus, who had been particularly aſſiſtant to him in his labours at Corinth, and had for his life laid down their own necks, and when he was in danger reſcued him at the hazard of their lives, Acts xviii. 12—17. For which noble inſtance of generous love, ſaith he, not only I give thanks, but alſo all the churches of the Gentiles, who owe the continuance of my miniſtry to their zeal and interpoſition. Likewiſe greet the church that is in their houſe; either their family, who were all profeſſors of the faith; or the ſaints who uſually aſſembled there for publick worſhip.

(2.) To Epenetus, whom he entitles his well-beloved. So tenderly affectionate was the apoſtle's heart towards his ſpiritual children, and eſpecially to Epenetus, as being the firſt-fruits of his miniſtry in Achaia unto Chriſt, and the earneſt of that plenteous harveſt which followed.

(3.) To Mary, whom he diſtinguiſhes as having beſtowed much labour on us, peculiarly aſſiduous in every kind office of love towards me and my fellow-labourers.

(4.) To Andronicus and Junia, who ſome ſuppoſe to be huſband and wife, but others more probably to be brothers. They were Jews, near kinſmen to the apoſtle, had been endeared to him by confinement in the ſame priſon for Chriſt, were perſons eminent for their gifts, graces, ſufferings, and ſervices, and, he adds to their honour, who were in Chriſt before me, called among the earlieſt converts, and preaching the faith whilſt he deſtroyed it.

(5.) To divers others, the moſt of whom he mentions with ſome note of diſtinction. Greet Amplias, my beloved in the Lord, who bears his image, and is moſt amiable in the relation wherein he ſtands to the ſame divine Maſter. Salute Urbane, our helper in Chriſt, and fellow-labourer in the glorious goſpel; and Stachys my beloved. Salute Apelles, approved in Chriſt, whoſe conſtancy and fidelity have appeared in many trials. Salute them which are of Ariſtobulus' houſhold. Salute Herodion my kinſman both in the fleſh and in the ſpirit. Greet them that be of the houſhold of Narciſſus, which are in the Lord, vitally united by faith unto him. Salute Tryphena and Tryphoſa, thoſe excellent women, who labour in the Lord, in their place and ſtation indefatigable to ſerve the intereſts of the goſpel. Salute the beloved Perſis, which laboured much in the Lord, remarkably diligent in her ſphere to advance the cauſe of God. Salute Rufus, choſen in the Lord, eminent for gifts and graces, and an elect veſſel of diſtinguiſhed honour; and his mother and mine, whoſe kindneſs to me lays me under ſuch obligations of filial love as if I were by birth her ſon. Salute Aſyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethren which are with them, and belong to their families, from the higheſt to the loweſt. Salute Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his ſiſter, and Olympas, and all the ſaints which are with them, of their reſpective houſholds. Salute one another with an holy kiſs, loving one another out of a pure heart fervently. The churches of Chriſt ſalute you, joining me in the moſt affectionate remembrances, prayers, and good wiſhes.

17. Now I beſeech you, brethren, [h] mark them which [h] Acts xv. 24. Col. ii. 8.
cauſe diviſions and offences, contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and [i] avoid them. 18. For they [i] 1 Cor. v. 11. 2 Theſ. iii. 6.
that are ſuch, ſerve not our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, but [k] their [k] 1 Tim. vi. 3—5. 2 John 10.
own belly; and [l] by good words and fair ſpeeches de- [k] Phil. iii. 19.
ceive the hearts of the ſimple. 19. For [m] your obedience [l] Ezek. xiii. 18. 1 Tim. vi. 5.
is come abroad unto all men. I am glad therefore on your behalf: but yet [n] I would have you wiſe unto that 1 Pet. ii. 3. Jude 16.
which is good, and ſimple concerning evil. 20. And [m] Chap. i. 8.
[o] the God of peace [p] ſhall bruiſe Satan under your feet [n] Mat. x. 16. 1 Cor. xiv. 20.
ſhortly. [q] The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with [o] Chap. xv. 33.
you. Amen. [p] Gen. iii. 15. [q] Ver. 24.

v. 17—20. Having teſtified his own warm affection towards them, and ſought to unite them in mutual love, he adds,

1. A ſolemn caution. Now I beſeech you, brethren, mark them which cauſe diviſions and offences, ſo oppoſite to the ſpirit of vital Chriſtianity, and ſo contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned. Mark, with holy jealouſy, thoſe deceivers, who, under plauſible pretences of greater purity of worſhip, rend the peace of the church, and avoid them, join not with them in communion, and ſhun, as the greateſt evil, whatever would introduce or perpetuate needleſs diviſions.

2. He diſcovers to them the true character of theſe pretenders, as the ſtrongeſt argument to avoid them. For they that are ſuch, ſerve not our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; whatever plauſible pretences and profeſſions they make, they have not really his glory and intereſt at heart, but their own belly, deſigning ſome mean, ſelfiſh, ſiniſter, worldly advantage; and by good words and fair ſpeeches deceive the hearts of the ſimple, who credulouſly follow them in their deſtructive ways. Of you I am perſuaded better things; for your obedience is come abroad unto all men, and, to your honour, mention is made through all the churches of your profeſſed and exemplary ſubjection to the goſpel of Chriſt. I am glad therefore on your behalf, that you are ſo well eſtabliſhed, and have not been beguiled by theſe falſe teachers: but yet, knowing the weakneſs and folly of our fallen nature, and the ſubtilty of deceivers, I warn you to watch againſt the firſt efforts; for I would have you wiſe unto that which is good, and ſimple concerning evil, cautious to diſcern truth from error, and joining the wiſdom of the ſerpent to the harmleſſneſs of the dove.

3. He expreſſes his confidence in the Lord's preſervation of them from all their enemies and ſeducers. Now the God of peace, reconciled to you in a covenant of everlaſting love, to whoſe bleſſing and protection I have recommended you, ſhall bruiſe Satan under your feet ſhortly, and all his inſtruments, though never ſo crafty. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you, to ſtrengthen, ſtabliſh, ſettle you, and make you more than conquerors. Amen! Note, (1.) None do the devil's work more effectually than thoſe who foment needleſs diviſions among the people of God. (2.) Satan is a vanquiſhed foe; and whomſoever it is poſſible for him to deceive, he cannot, we know, deceive the elect. (3.) The confidence of victory ſecured for us in Chriſt is the greateſt encouragement boldly to conflict with our ſpiritual enemies. (4.) The time is ſhort; if faith and patience hold out a moment longer, we ſhall be placed for ever out of the reach of ſin and Satan, and reign triumphant with him who ſhall make our foes become our footſtool. (5.) The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt muſt do all for us, and therefore to his glory muſt all our victories be aſcribed.

r Acts xvi. 1.

21. [r] Timotheus my work-fellow, and Lucius, and Jaſon, and Soſipater, my kinſmen ſalute you. 22. I Tertius, who wrote this epiſtle, ſalute you in the Lord. 23. Gaius mine hoſt, and of the whole church, ſaluteth you. Eraſtus the chamberlain of the city ſaluteth you, and Quartus a brother. 24. [s] The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all. Amen.

s Ver. 20. 1 Cor. xvi. 23. Phil. iv. 23. 1 Theſ. v. 28. Rev. xxii. 21.

v. 21—24. As the apoſtle had before ſaluted many of the ſaints by name, he adds,

1. The affectionate remembrances of ſome of thoſe who were at preſent his companions. Timotheus my work-fellow, as a ſon with a father, ſerving with me in the goſpel; and Lucius, and Jaſon, and Soſipater, my kinſmen, ſalute you. I Tertius, who wrote this epiſtle, as the apoſtle's amanuenſis, ſalute you in the Lord. Gaius mine hoſt, and of the whole church, whoſe hoſpitable doors are ever open to the faithful, ſaluteth you. Eraſtus the chamberlain of the city ſaluteth you; ſuch had been his high office, and perhaps he ſtill continued in his poſt, though converted to the faith, one of the not many noble who were called; and Quartus a brother in Chriſt Jeſus; for all who have him for their Saviour, have one Father, even God.

2. He repeats his fervent prayers for their ſpiritual proſperity. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all. May you experience his pardoning, comforting, ſtrengthening, ſanctifying grace below, and come to his compleat and eternal glory above. Amen! I pray it may be ſo. I truſt it ſhall be.

t Eph. iii. 20. Jude 24.
u Chap. ii. 16.
x 1 Cor. ii. 7. Eph. iii. 3, 9. Col. i. 26.
y 2 Tim. i. 10. Tit. i. 3.
z Acts vi. 7. Chap. i. 5.

25. Now to him that is of power to ſtabliſh you [t] according to my goſpel, [u] and the preaching of Jeſus Chriſt, (according to the revelation of the myſtery [x] which was kept ſecret ſince the world began, 26. But [y] now is made manifeſt, and by the ſcriptures of the prophets according to the commandment of the everlaſting God, made known to all nations for [z] the obedience of faith) 27. [a] To God only wiſe, be glory through Jeſus Chriſt for ever. Amen.

a 1 Tim. i. 17. Jude 25.

v. 25—27. Once and again, when he ſeemed to cloſe his epiſtle, ſome new matter aroſe to his mind; here he ſolemnly takes his leave of them.

1. He commends them to God and the word of his grace. Now I commend you to him that is of power to eſtabliſh you, and keep you from falling, according to my goſpel, which, by divine authority commiſſioned, I here declare unto you, and according to the preaching of Jeſus Chriſt, agreeably to what he himſelf taught, and I ſpeak in his name, pointing him out as the great ſum and ſubſtance of the goſpel, the hope and help of his people; according to the revelation of the myſtery which was kept ſecret ſince the world began, wholly hid from the Gentiles, and but obſcurely intimated to the Jews in types and dark prophecies; but now is made manifeſt by the miniſtry of the divinely illuminated ſervants of Jeſus, and by the ſcriptures of the prophets, which, having received their accompliſhment, are unveiled, and clearly underſtood; according to the commandment of the everlaſting God, who hath given his miniſters an expreſs commiſſion to declare the unchangeable purpoſes of his grace, that they might be made known to all nations, Gentiles as well as Jews, for this glorious end, that they might be brought to the obedience of faith, receiving the teſtimony of his word, and from the divine principle of faith, which worketh by love, engaged to walk before him in righteouſneſs and true holineſs.

2. He concludes with a doxology. To God only wiſe, eſſentially wiſe in himſelf, and ſeen eſpecially to be ſo in the amazing contrivance of the goſpel method of ſalvation, be glory and honour aſcribed, through Jeſus Chriſt the only Mediator, for ever. Amen. May his ſaints on earth perpetuate with their lateſt breath his praiſes! and in heaven he ſhall for ever be to all his hoſts the glorious object of their unceaſing adorations. Amen and Amen!

THE

THE

EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;

OR, A

PRACTICAL COMMENT

Upon the FIRST EPISTLE of

St. Paul to the CORINTHIANS.

CORINTH was a famed city of that part of Greece called Achaia, ſituated on the neck of land which joined the Peloponneſus, now called Morea, to Greece. Its very ſituation made it a moſt convenient mart, and, in conſequence of the vaſt trade carried on there, it became exceeding rich and populous; ſo that the place was noted for pride and luxury, and lewd to a proverb. Here was the goſpel ſtandard erected by the bleſſed Paul, and abundant fruit of his labours appeared during his two years ſtay: but, on his abſence, factions aroſe; falſe teachers ſought to raiſe a party againſt the apoſtle; diſputes followed; diſorders in diſcipline, doctrine, and morals, were introduced; and theſe grievous abuſes, which had come to the apoſtle's ears, are ſeverely reprehended. After a ſhort introduction at the beginning of the epiſtle, he firſt blames them for their diſcord and factions; enters into the original and ſource of them, ſhews them how much pride and vanity, and the affectation of ſcience, learning, and eloquence, flattered by falſe teachers, had contributed to the ſcandalous ſchiſm; and preſcribes humility and ſubmiſſion to divine inſtruction, to the teaching of God by his Spirit, both by external revelation and internal illumination, as a remedy for the evils that abounded amongſt them. He ſhews them the vanity of their pretended ſcience and eloquence on many accounts. This he doth through the firſt four chapters. In the fifth he treats of the caſe of the inceſtuous perſon, and orders him to be put out from amongſt them. Nor is what the ancients ſay improbable, that this inceſtuous perſon was a man in great eſteem, and head of one party at leaſt amongſt them. The apoſtle ſeems to tax them with being puffed up on his account, chap. v. 2. In the ſixth chapter he blames them for their law-ſuits carried on before heathen judges, when their diſputes about property ſhould have been amicably determined amongſt themſelves; and in the cloſe of the chapter warns them againſt the ſin of fornication, and urges his caution with variety of arguments. In the ſeventh chapter he gives advice upon a caſe of conſcience, which ſome of that church had propoſed to him in an epiſtle, about marriage; and ſhews it to be appointed of God as a remedy againſt fornication; that the ties of it were not diſſolved though an huſband or wife continued an heathen when the other became a Chriſtian, and, in ſhort, that Chriſtianity made no change in men's civil ſtates and relations. He gives alſo ſome directions here about virgins, in anſwer, as is probable, to the Corinthians enquiries. In the eighth he directs them about meats offered to idols, and cautions them againſt abuſing their Chriſtian liberty. From whence he alſo takes occaſion in the ninth chapter to expatiate a little on his own conduct upon this head of liberty. For though he might have inſiſted on a maintenance from the churches where he miniſtred, he waved this demand, that he might make the goſpel of Chriſt without charge: and did in other things comply with and ſuit himſelf to the tempers and circumſtances of thoſe among whom he laboured, for their good. In the tenth chapter he diſſuades them, from the example of the Jews, againſt having communion with idolaters, by eating of their ſacrifices, inaſmuch as they could not be at once partakers of the Lord's table and the table of devils; though they were not bound to enquire concerning meat ſold in the ſhambles, or ſet before them at a feaſt made by unbelievers, whether it were a part of the idol ſacrifices or no, but were at liberty to eat without aſking queſtions. In the eleventh chapter he gives direction about their habit in publick worſhip, blames them for their groſs irregularities and ſcandalous diſorders in receiving the Lord's ſupper, and ſolemnly warns them againſt the abuſe of ſo ſacred an inſtitution. In the twelfth chapter he enters on the conſideration of ſpiritual gifts, which were poured forth in great abundance on this church, upon which they were not a little elated. He tells them in this chapter, that all came from the ſame original, and were all directed to the ſame end. They iſſued from one Spirit, and were intended for the good of the church; and muſt be abuſed when they were not made to miniſter to this purpoſe. Towards the cloſe he informs them, that they were indeed valuable gifts, but he could recommend to them ſomewhat far more excellent. Upon which he breaks out, in the thirteenth chapter, into the commendation and characters of charity. And then in the fourteenth directs them how to keep up decency and order in the churches in the uſe of their ſpiritual gifts, in which they ſeem to have been exceeding irregular, through pride of their gifts, and a vanity of ſhewing them. The fifteenth chapter is taken up in confirming and explaining the great doctrine of the reſurrection. The laſt chapter conſiſts of ſome particular advices and ſalutations; and thus the epiſtle cloſes.

CHAP. I.

In this chapter we have, 1. The preface or introduction to the whole epiſtle, ver. 1—10. 2. One principal occaſion of writing it hinted, viz. their diviſions, and the original of them, ver. 10—13. 3. An account of Paul's miniſtry among them, which was principally preaching the goſpel, ver. 13—17. 4. The manner wherein he preached the goſpel, and the different ſucceſs of it, with an account how admiraby it was fitted to bring glory to God, and beat down the pride and vanity of man, ver. 17. ad finem.

1. PAUL called to be an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, [a] through the will of God, and [b] Soſthenes our brother, 2. Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them [c] that are ſanctified in Chriſt Jeſus, [d] called to be ſaints, with all that in every place [e] call upon the name of Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, [f] both theirs and ours. 3. [g] Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 4. [h] I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jeſus Chriſt; 5. That in every thing [i] ye are enriched by him, [k] in all utterance, and in all knowledge: 6. Even as [l] the teſtimony of Chriſt was confirmed in you. 7. So that ye come behind in no gift; [m] waiting for the † coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: 8. [n] Who ſhall alſo confirm you unto the end, [o] that ye may be blameleſs in the day of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 9. [p] God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto [q] the fellowſhip of his Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

a Col. i. 1.
b Acts xviii. 17.
c John xvii. 19. Acts xv. 9.
d Rom. i. 7. 1 Theſ. iv. 7.
e Acts ix. 14, 21. 2 Tim. ii. 22.
f Rom. iii. 22, 29. Chap. viii. 6.
g Rom. i. 7. Eph. i. 2. 1 Pet. i. 2.
h Rom. i. 8.
i Chap. iv. 8.
k Chap. xii. 8. 2 Cor. viii. 7.
l 2 Theſ. i. 10. Rev. i. 2.
m Phil. iii. 20. Tit. ii. 13. 2 Pet. iii. 12.
† Gr. Revelation.
n 1 Theſ. iii. 13.
o Col. i. 22. 1 Theſ. v. 23.
p Chap. x. 13. 1 Theſ. v. 24. 2 Theſ. iii. 3. Heb. x. 23.
q John xvii. 21. Eph. iii. 9. 1 John i. 3.

v. 1—9. The apoſtle opens his epiſtle,

1. With an aſſertion of his apoſtolic character, which ſome among them affected to traduce and vilify, as if he had aſſumed an honour to which he was in no wiſe entitled. He affirms therefore the divine authority upon which he acted; not ſelf-conſtituted, but called of Jeſus Chriſt to the high honour and important charge of apoſtleſhip. And Soſthenes, a fellow-miniſter, joins him in affectionate ſalutations. Note, There are times when to vindicate our real character, and magnify our office, is not pride, but a debt we owe to the church of God.

2. He addreſſes himſelf to the church of God at Corinth, as to them that are ſanctified in Chriſt Jeſus, ſet apart by God's eternal deſignation in Chriſt their head, ſeparated by his grace from the world which lieth in wickedneſs, incorporated in his name, and making open profeſſion of their faith in him by baptiſm; called to be ſaints, juſtly ſo denominated, and proving by their conduct the propriety of the name they bore; with all that in every place call upon the name of Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, both theirs and ours, in whom we have a joint intereſt, and are all one in him. Note, (1.) All who profeſs the name of Jeſus are called to prove their relation to him by the holineſs of their walk. (2.) Since Chriſt is propoſed to us as the object of our worſhip, he muſt needs be very God. (3.) The life of a Chriſtian is an habitual courſe of calling upon God. To live without prayer is the ſureſt mark of a Chriſtleſs ſoul.

3. He gives them his apoſtolical benediction. Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Grace, the ſource of every bleſſing, and peace with a reconciled God through Jeſus Chriſt. Note, (1.) Every mercy a ſinner enjoys in time, or hopes for in eternity, flows purely from the ſovereign, free, and boundleſs grace of God in Jeſus Chriſt. (2.) All ſolid peace of conſcience can only ariſe from a ſenſe of God's favour, and reconciliation through the Redeemer.

4. He thanks God, on their account, for the graces and gifts which were beſtowed upon them. I thank my God (and bleſſed and happy are they who can call him ſo) always on your behalf, (ſo conſtantly did he feel a tender concern for them upon his heart) for the grace of God which is given you by Jeſus Chriſt, as the great Head of his people, to whom they are united, and from whom, as the fountain of vital influence, they draw continual ſupplies of ſtrength and conſolation. And as he charitably hoped the generality of them were partakers of the grace of God in truth, he had alſo another cauſe for thankfulneſs, becauſe in every thing ye are enriched by him,' in all utterance and in all knowledge, endued with clear views of that rich ſalvation which is in a crucified Jeſus, and capable of expreſſing themſelves on the ſubject with ſingular fluency of ſpeech and energy of diction; even as the teſtimony of Chriſt was confirmed in you, the Holy Ghoſt giving the fulleſt demonſtration to their conſciences of the truth of that goſpel which was preached unto them; ſo that ye come behind in no gift, in nothing inferior to any church which had been planted, in theſe diſtinguiſhed gifts of the Spirit; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, according to the declarations of his word, which they had heard and embraced, preparing to meet him, and, with patient but joyful expectation, looking for the day of his appearing. Note, They who are Chriſtians indeed cannot but rejoice in the proſpect, that, when Chriſt who is our hope ſhall appear, then ſhall we alſo appear with him in glory.

5. The apoſtle profeſſes his confidence in them, that they will never be moved from the hope of the goſpel. Who ſhall alſo confirm you unto the end, in faith and holineſs, enabling you to perſevere unſhaken amidſt all your trials, that ye may be blameleſs in the day of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, being found complete in him, and then transformed wholly into his image. And this his expectation Paul builds on the ſureſt foundation, even becauſe God is faithful to all his promiſes, and never can or will fail his people; by whom ye were called unto the fellowſhip of his Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord; and the ſame almighty grace which brought you into this bleſſed eſtate is engaged to cement the union, till it ſhall be perfected in glory. Note, (1.) They who are Chriſt's are ſure finally to overcome: none can pluck them out of his hand. (2.) The faithfulneſs of God ſhould be matter of our frequent meditation; ſince nothing enlivens the heart with hope, and quickens it to walk in holineſs, as the aſſured confidence that nothing ſhall ever be able to ſeparate us from the love of God which is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.

10. Now I beſeech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that ye all ſpeak the ſame thing, and that there be no † diviſions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together [r] in the ſame mind, and in the ſame judgment. 11. For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them, which are of the houſe of Chloe, that [s] there are contentions among you. 12. Now this I ſay, [t] that every one of you ſaith, I am of Paul, and I of [u] Apollos, and I of [x] Cephas, and I of Chriſt. 13. [y] Is Chriſt divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul? 14. I thank God that I baptized none of you, but [z] Criſpus and [a] Gaius: 15. Leſt any ſhould ſay, that I had baptized in mine own name. 16. And I baptized alſo the houſhold of [b] Stephanas: beſides, I know not whether I baptized any other.

† Or ſchiſms. Chap. xi. 18.
r Rom. xii. 16. & xv. 5. 2 Cor. xiii. 11. Phil. ii. 2.
s Prov. xiii. 10.
t Chap. iii. 4.
u Acts xviii. 24.
x John i. 42.
y Gal. i. 7. Eph. iv. 5.
z Acts xviii. 8.
a Rom. xv. 23.
b Chap. xvi. 15, 17.

v. 10—16. One chief end of writing this epiſtle appears to be the healing thoſe diviſions of which Paul had been informed. He therefore,

1. Exhorts them to union among themſelves; in ſentiment and affection to have their hearts knit together, avoiding, as the moſt dangerous rock, thoſe diſputes and diviſions, which muſt be the bane of Chriſtian charity, and could not but end in the ruin of the church. And he urges this by the moſt powerful motive, even by the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; not only as one authoriſed to enjoin this upon them, but ſuggeſting that the very mention of the endearing name of Jeſus ſhould ſilence every jar, and fill their ſouls with love to him and one another. Note, Internal diviſions among the members of Chriſt have more wounded his cauſe than all the external attacks of earth or hell.

2. He informs them whence he received his information of thoſe evils which he ſo juſtly condemns; and ſolemnly remonſtrates againſt their making ſo ill a uſe of his name, as well as of his brethren, to range themſelves in different parties; whilſt ſome ſaid, I am of Paul, and I of Apollos, and I am of Cephas, or Peter, depreciating the one and exalting the other; as if it mattered ought by whoſe inſtrumentality they were converted to the faith: whilſt others, as if above all means and inſtruments, boaſted, I am of Chriſt, and ſo immediately under the teachings of his Spirit as to need no other inſtructor. But how abſurd were theſe pretenſions, and how dangerous theſe diſcords! Is Chriſt divided? ſo as to act ſeparately from the means of his own appointment? or can there be the leaſt ſort of diviſion between him and thoſe who act by his authority? and with whom he hath promiſed to be to the end of the world? or can his church, which is his body, and one with him, be disjointed, and his members ſubſiſt ſeparately from each other? ſurely no.

And as for thoſe miniſters, under whoſe names you range yourſelves, let me aſk, applying it to myſelf, Was Paul crucified for you? Did I, or my brethren, ever pretend that we were your ſaviours? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul, by my authority, as my diſciples, profeſſing your faith in me, or obedience to my ſervice? God forbid. Neither I, nor my fellow labourers, ever taught you to hope for any other atonement but in a crucified Jeſus, nor baptized you in any other name but his. I thank God, ſince this matter hath been ſo abuſed by many of you, that I baptiſed none of you but Criſpus and Gaius, leaſt any ſhould ſay, that I had baptiſed in my own name, and ſought to ſet myſelf at the head of a party. I baptiſed alſo the houſhold of Stephanas: beſides, I know not whether I baptiſed any other. Note, A faithful miniſter of Chriſt rejects with abhorrence all attempts to ſet him at the head of a party, ſollicitous only that his maſter ſhould be glorified, and jealous above all things never to rob him of his peculiar honours.

17. For Chriſt ſent me not to baptize, but to preach the goſpel: [c] not with wiſdom of words, leſt the croſs of Chriſt ſhould be made of none effect. 18. For [d] the preaching of the croſs is to them that periſh, [d] fooliſhneſs: but unto us which are ſaved, [e] it is the power of God. 19. For it is written, [f] I will deſtroy the wiſdom of the wiſe, and will bring to nothing the underſtanding of the prudent. 20. [g] Where is the wiſe? where is the ſcribe? where is the diſputer of this world? [h] hath not God made fooliſh the wiſdom of this world? 21. [i] For after that, in the wiſdom of God, the world by wiſdom knew not God, it pleaſed God by the fooliſhneſs of preaching to ſave them that believe. 22. For [k] the Jews require a ſign, and the Greeks ſeek after wiſdom: 23. But we preach Chriſt crucified, [l] unto the Jews a ſtumbling-block, and [m] unto the Greeks fooliſhneſs; 24. But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Chriſt [n] the power of God, and [o] the wiſdom of God. 25. Becauſe the fooliſhneſs of God is wiſer than men; and the weakneſs of God is ſtronger than men. 26. For ye ſee your calling, brethren, how that [p] not many wiſe men after the fleſh, [q] not many mighty, not many noble, are called. 27. But God hath choſen [r] the fooliſh things of the world, [s] to confound the wiſe; and God hath choſen the weak things of the world, to confound the things which are mighty; 28. And [t] baſe things of the world, and things which are deſpiſed, hath God choſen, yea, [u] and things which are not, to bring to nought the things that are: 29. [x] That no fleſh ſhould glory in his preſence. 30. But of him are ye in Chriſt Jeſus, who of God is made unto us [y] wiſdom, and [z] righteouſneſs, and [a] ſanctification, [b] and redemption: 31. That according as it is written, [c] He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

[c] Chap. ii. 1, 4, 13. 2 Pet. i. 16.
[d] Acts xvii. 18. 2 Cor. ii. 15.
[e] Rom. i. 16.
[f] Job v. 13. Iſai. xxix. 14.
[g] Iſai. xxxiii. 18.
[h] Job xii. 17, 20, 24. Iſai. xliv. 25.
[i] Rom. i. 21, 22, 28. See Mat. xi. 25.
[k] Mat. xii. 38. & xvi. 1. John iv. 48.
[l] Iſai. viii. 14. Luke ii. 34. John vi. 60, 66.
[m] Acts xvii. 18. Chap. ii. 14.
[n] Rom. i. 16.
[o] Col. ii. 3.
[p] Mat. xi. 25.
[q] Mat. xix. 23. John vii. 48. Rev. vi. 15.
[r] Pſ. viii. 2.
[s] 2 Cor. x. 5.
[t] Jam. ii. 5.
[u] Rom. iv. 17.
[x] Rom. iii. 27. Eph. ii. 9.
[y] Col. ii. 3.
[z] Jer. xxiii. 6. Rom. ix. 30. 2 Cor. v. 21. Phil. iii. 9.
[a] John xvii. 19.
[b] 1 Theſſ. iv. 14.
[c] Jer. ix. 23, 24. 2 Cor. x. 17.

v. 17—31. Having vindicated himſelf from every inſinuation that he deſigned to form a party by baptiſing diſciples, he diſclaims here every attempt to aggrandize himſelf in the manner in which he preached the goſpel unto them. For, ſaith he, Chriſt, from whom immediately I received my commiſſion, ſent me not to baptiſe as my principal buſineſs, but to preach the goſpel, according to the revelation made known unto me; and he informs them,

1. Of the manner in which he preached, not with wiſdom of words, with affected flouriſhes of oratory, or to gratify philoſophic pride, leaſt the croſs of Chriſt ſhould be made of none effect, the ſimple truth of a crucified Jeſus ſhould be obſcured, its efficacy defeated, its honour tarniſhed, and the ſucceſs be aſcribed not to the divine ſimplicity and native force of the truth, but to the art and eloquence of thoſe who preached the goſpel. Note, Though eloquence, without oſtentation, is both lawful and laudable, yet, as Luther ſays, he is the beſt preacher that can ſpeak the moſt familiarly, and ſuits his diſcourſe beſt to the capacity and underſtanding of the hearer, more ſollicitous to be underſtood than to be admired.

2. Of the effects of his preaching. For the preaching of the croſs, and the great ſalvation obtained by the blood-ſhedding of the Redeemer on the ignominious tree, is to them that periſh, fooliſhneſs. They who are puffed up in pride on their own ſufficiency, or ignorant of their guilt and ſinfulneſs, and their need of the redemption which is in Chriſt, reject the goſpel as nonſenſe and abſurdity, and periſh in their impenitence and unbelief. (1.) The doctrine of the croſs was to the Jews a ſtumbling-block, v. 23. They could not bear to receive him for their Meſſiah, who made ſo mean an appearance in his life, and died as a malefactor on a tree. Rejecting all the amazing miracles which he wrought, they required a ſign from heaven, Mat. xii. 33. expecting he ſhould appear in all worldly pomp and grandeur, as their temporal, inſtead of a ſpiritual, Redeemer. (2.) To the Greeks this doctrine was fooliſhneſs. They ſought after wiſdom, v. 22. they received nothing but what was demonſtrable on what they termed the principles of reaſon; and ſince their philoſophic minds could perceive no connection between a man who was crucified, and the redemption of ſinners; nor eſteemed it poſſible, on their principles, that he who could not, as they conceived, ſave himſelf from the croſs, ſhould be able to ſave others from death and hell; they ſtamped the declaration with folly, and rejected it as abſurd. But, (3.) Unto us who are called, and ſaved by grace, however proud Greeks or ſelf-righteous Jews may think of it, Chriſt, and the doctrine of ſalvation through his croſs, appears to be the power of God, and the wiſdom of God. The power of God is ſeen to be moſt glorioufly diſplayed in the Mediator's undertaking and ſufferings; in his miracles, reſurrection, aſcenſion; and eſpecially in the mighty efficacy with which his goſpel is attended, through the influences of his Spirit, effectually quickening the dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, turning them from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan unto God. The wiſdom of God is aſtoniſhingly diſplayed in the ſtupendous ſcheme of man's redemption, wherein the ſinner, conſiſtent with the glory of every divine perfection, can be received into the boſom of mercy; and pardon, righteouſneſs, and glory, be beſtowed on him, without diſhonour to God's government or law, and this through the ſubſiſtution of the ſecond Adam, the Lord from heaven, in our ſtead.

3. He ſhews the triumph of this doctrine of a crucified Jeſus over all the inventions of the wiſeſt ſages; their ſchemes and ſyſtems could never relieve a guilty conſcience, or lay a ſolid foundation for the ſinner's hope. The Lord therefore, according to his word, Iſai. xxix. 14. ſtamps all human wiſdom as folly. Where is the wiſe philoſopher? Where is the learned ſcribe, deep read in traditions? Where is the diſputer of this world, whether Jew or Gentile? Can the one or the other give the leaſt ſatisfactory account, how a guilty ſinner can be reconciled to an offended God? Hath not God made fooliſh the wiſdom of this world? and left philoſophers and Rabbins to grope for the wall as blind? For after that, or ſince, in the wiſdom of God, it was ſo ordered, that the world by wiſdom knew not God, but their moſt learned ſages were permitted to become vain in their imaginations, ſee Rom. i. 21, 22. ignorant of God, his worſhip, and ways; it pleaſed God, in his infinite grace and love, to make a more tranſcendent diſplay of his own glory, by the fooliſhneſs of preaching, (for ſo would a wiſe world call the doctrine of the croſs) to ſave them that believe, making it effectual to their eternal peace and joy. This contrivance of divine wiſdom, to ſave loſt ſouls by the incarnation of Jeſus, is deemed the greateſt folly; but the fooliſhneſs of God is wiſer than men, infinitely excelling all their boaſted reſearches, and ingenious ſyſtems; and the weakneſs of God is ſtronger than men, however inadequate the goſpel method in their eyes may appear; and however weak the inſtruments are, which are chiefly employed in the work, yet it was clear to demonſtration, that what all the precepts of philoſophy, and the power of oratory, never produced, the doctrine of the croſs effected, deſtroying the kingdom of ſin and Satan in the hearts of men, and cauſing ſuch an evident change in their tempers and conduct, as ſpoke the finger of God. Note, Wherever the goſpel is truly preached, however weak the inſtrument may be, God will bear teſtimony to his own word, that the excellency of the power may appear to be of God and not of us.

4. He appeals to them for the truth of what he had advanced, as verified by experience. For ye ſee your calling, brethren, and cannot but obſerve who are the partakers of the goſpel ſalvation; how that not many wiſe men after the fleſh, not many mighty, not many noble are called; ſome few ſingular inſtances of theſe may be obſerved, whom the ſovereign grace of God hath effectually wrought upon: but, in general, the proud philoſopher, the ſelf-righteous ſcribes, and the men of high birth and affluence, refuſe to ſubmit to the humbling and ſelf-denying doctrines of the croſs: and, leaving them to their folly and ruin, God hath choſen the fooliſh things of the world to confound the wiſe, that an illiterate Chriſtian ſhould ſhame the proud philoſopher, and ſhew the ſurpaſſing influence of the doctrine of Jeſus, above all his learned precepts. And God hath choſen the weak things of this world, men in the meaneſt outward circumſtances, to confound the things which are mighty, to ſtamp vanity on human grandeur, and to ſhew that his kingdom ſtands without any earthly ſupports, nay, in defiance of all worldly power and influence; and baſe things of the world, and things which are deſpiſed, even the poor Gentiles, whom the ſelf-righteous Jews would ſcarce deign to put among the dogs of their flock, theſe hath God choſen, yea, and things which are not, who never had a name or place in the church of God before, to bring to nothing (καταργηση) to aboliſh, the things that are, putting a period to the covenant of peculiarity, under which the Jewiſh people formerly ſtood, and thought themſelves, excluſive of all others, the only favourites of heaven. But now all difference ceaſes, that no fleſh ſhould glory in his preſence, on account of any imagined ſuperiority in wiſdom, wealth, nobility, or any external privileges; but that, as it is written, he that glorieth ſhould glory in the Lord, aſcribing the whole of their ſalvation to his ſovereign, rich, and boundleſs grace, as revealed in the goſpel of Jeſus to the miſerable and the deſperate.

5. He reminds them of the ineſtimable bleſſings, to which, in virtue of their intereſt in Chriſt, they were intitled. They had in themſelves nothing to glory in, nothing but weakneſs and wickedneſs; but of him are ye in Chriſt Jeſus, choſen from eternity, called in the fulneſs of time into the fellowſhip of the goſpel, and incorporated into the myſtical body of Chriſt, who of God is made unto us, according to the conſtitution of the covenant of grace, wiſdom and righteouſneſs, and ſanctification and redemption. (1.) Wiſdom; we are naturally fooliſh, deceived, and ignorant; but all the treaſures of wiſdom reſide in our exalted head: and, as the prophet of his church, it is his office to lead us into all truth, for which end he hath given us his word, and promiſes his Spirit, that we may be taught of God, and thereby be made wiſe unto ſalvation. (2.) Righteouſneſs; by his obedience unto death he hath brought in an everlaſting righteouſneſs for our uſe, in which we can appear complete before God; and, ſinful and corrupt as we are in ourſelves, we are ever accepted in this beloved, and God juſtifies us, though ungodly, becauſe found in him, who is the Lord our righteouſneſs. (3.) Sanctification; he is the head of vital influence, and, as a quickning ſpirit, works effectually in the hearts of his people, mortifying their corrupt and vile affections, and daily renewing them in the inner man, that their ſpirits and temper may be brought to a nearer conformity with his own. (4.) Redemption; his work is perfect; he hath obtained eternal redemption for his people; they can therefore never periſh. The trials of time cannot ſeparate us from his love; we ſhall now be ſaved from the dominion of ſin; at death, the very being of it ſhall be deſtroyed in us; and though our bodies return to the duſt from whence they came, at the great reſurrection-day we ſhall awake in the perfection of beauty, no more to ſee corruption, our bodies glorious and immortal as his own. Thus Chriſt is to us all in all, and to him alone muſt all the glory be aſcribed.

CHAP. II.

The apoſtle proceeds with his argument in this chapter, and, (1.) Reminds the Corinthians of the plain manner wherein he delivered the goſpel to them, ver. 1—5. But yet, (2.) Shews them that he had communicated to them a treaſure of the trueſt and higheſt wiſdom; ſuch as exceeded all the attainments of learned men; ſuch as could never have entered into the heart of man, if it had not been revealed; nor can be received and improved to ſalvation, but by the light and influence of that Spirit who revealed it, ver. 6. ad finem.

1. AND I, brethren, when I came to you, [a] came not with excellency of ſpeech, or of wiſdom, declaring unto you the teſtimony of God. 2. For I determined not to know any thing among you, [b] ſave Jeſus Chriſt, and him crucified. 3. And [c] I was with you [d] in weakneſs, and [e] in fear, and in much trembling. 4. And my ſpeech, and my preaching [f] was not with enticing words of man's wiſdom, but in demonſtration of the Spirit, and [g] of power: 5. [h] That your faith ſhould not ſtand in the wiſdom of men, but in the power of God.

[a] Chap. i. 17. Ver. iv. 13. 2 Cor. x. 10. 2 Pet. i. 16.
[b] Chap. i. 23. Gal. vi. 14. Phil. iii. 8.
[c] Acts xviii 1.
[d] Chap. iv. 10. 2 Cor. iv. 7. & xi. 30 & xii. 5, 9. Gal. iv. 13.
[e] 2 Cor. vii. 5.
[f] Chap. i. 17. 2 Pet i. 16.
[g] Chap. iv. 20. 1 Theſſ. i. 5.
[h] Chap. i. 17. 2 Cor. iv. 7. & vi. 7.

v. 1—5. The apoſtle had before declared with what unadorned ſimplicity he had preached to them the doctrines of the goſpel; they needed no varniſh, and he truſted to their native weight and evidence to recommend them. And I brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of ſpeech, or of wiſdom, declaring to you the teſtimony of God; he uſed no rhetorical arts, nor affected curious ſpeculations, but plainly declared the meſſage which he had received of the Lord, the truth of which was atteſted by prophecies and miracles, and ſealed to their hearts by the demonſtration of the ſpirit. For I determined not to know any thing among you, ſave Jeſus Chriſt, and him crucified, avoiding all ſhew of Jewiſh or Grecian literature, and ſimply confining myſelf to that one diſtinguiſhed point, in which all the lines of our ſalvation meet as in one centre, from which all the privileges of the goſpel flow as from their ſource, and under the influence of which we can alone be engaged and inclined to all the ſervice to which the Saviour calls us, conſtrained by his dying love. And I was with you in weakneſs, and in fear, and in much trembling, deeply ſenſible of his own inſufficiency for the arduous work; in his outward circumſtances and appearance, poor and deſpicable; expoſed to innumerable difficulties from the enmity of the world without, and the envy of ſome within, who wanted to make a party againſt him, and above all, deeply exerciſed in his own ſoul, leaſt his meſſage ſhould be deſpiſed and rejected by them to their eternal ruin. And my ſpeech, and my preaching, was not with enticing words of man's wiſdom; theſe he ſtudiouſly avoided, but he taught with much more effectual evidence, in demonſtration of the ſpirit and of power, not only by the miracles which he wrought in confirmation of his miſſion, but by the energy with which the Holy Ghoſt accompanied his preaching to their conſciences: that your faith ſhould not ſtand in the wiſdom of men, as ſupported by human evidence, or wrought by moral perſuaſion or argument, but in the power of God, ariſing from a divine conviction of the truth, reſting on divine teſtimony, and produced by the operation of God. Note, (1.) Nothing is more contrary to the ſpirit of the goſpel than the affectation of being admired as orators, inſtead of being uſeful preachers. (2.) Chriſt, in his perſon and offices, ſhould be the great ſubject of all our diſcourſes; nothing ſo effectually reaches the conſcience as the doctrine of the croſs. (3.) Faithful miniſters have peculiar trials, both from without and within, trembling ſometimes for themſelves, conſcious of their own infirmities; trembling for the people, leaſt that which ſhould be to them a ſavour of life unto life, ſhould, by their unbelief and prejudices, become a ſavour of death unto death. (4.) The faith of God's elect is not the effect of human perſuaſion, but of divine operation.

6. Howbeit we ſpeak wiſdom among them [i] that are perfect: yet not the wiſdom of this world, [k] nor of the princes of this world, that come to nought. 7. But we ſpeak the wiſdom of God in a myſtery, even the hidden wiſdom [l] which God ordained before the world unto our glory. 8. [m] Which none of the princes of this world knew: [n] for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. 9. But as it is written, [o] Eye hath not ſeen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. 10. But [p] God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit ſearcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God. 11. For what man knoweth the things of a man, [q] ſave the ſpirit of man which is in him? even ſo [r] the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God. 12. Now we have received, not the ſpirit of the world, but [s] the Spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. 13. Which things alſo we ſpeak, [t] not in the words which man's wiſdom teacheth, but which the holy Ghoſt teacheth; comparing ſpiritual things with ſpiritual. 14. But [u] the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are fooliſhneſs unto him; [x] neither can he know them, becauſe they are ſpiritually diſcerned. 15. But [x] he that is ſpiritual, judgeth all things, yet he himſelf is judged of no man. 16. For [y] who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may inſtruct him? But we have the mind of Chriſt.

[i] Phil. iii. 15. Heb. v. 14.
[k] Pſ. ii. 2, 4.
[l] Rom. xvi. 25. Eph. iii. 9. Col. i. 26. 2 Tim. i. 9.
[m] Mat. xi. 25. John vii. 48. Acts iv. 27. & xiii. 27.
[n] John xvi. 3.
[o] Iſai. lxiv. 4. Ver. 14.
[p] Mat. xvi. 17. John xvi. 13. 1 John ii. 27.
[q] Prov. xx. 27. Jer. xvii. 9.
[r] Rom. xi. 33.
[s] Rom. viii. 16.
[t] Chap. i. 17. 2 Pet. i. 16.
[u] Rom. viii. 7. Gal. i. 12.
[x] Prov. xxviii. 5. 1 Theſſ. v. 21. 1 John iv. 1.
[y] Job xv. 8. Iſai. xli. 13. Jer. xxiii. 18. Wiſd. ix. 13. Rom. ii. 34.

v. 6—16. The apoſtle had diſclaimed all affectation of human wiſdom. Howbeit, ſays he, we ſpeak wiſdom among them that are perfect, (τελειοις) and grown up to greater maturity in knowledge, underſtanding, and grace; demonſtrating the infinite wiſdom, and ſuitableneſs of the divine contrivance, in the grand ſcheme of man's ſalvation, through faith in a crucified Jeſus. Yet not the wiſdom of this world, ſuch ſyſtems as philoſophers have invented or will approve; nor of the princes of this world, ſuch as the proud Rabbi's and great men of the earth comprehend, or can conceive, who, with all their boaſts of ſcience, come to nought, and periſh in their pride. But we ſpeak the wiſdom of God in a myſtery, even the hidden wiſdom which God ordained before the world unto our glory. The divine contrivance for the ſalvation of loſt ſinners had been unknown to the Gentile world, and but dimly revealed to the Jews in myſterious types and figures; but now the fulneſs of time was come, fore-ordained in the eternal councils, when the myſtery of grace ſhould be unfolded, and the elect of God effectually brought to his kingdom and glory. And this deſign of the divine wiſdom none of the princes of this world knew, neither the Roman governor, nor the high prieſt and elders of the Jews; for had they known it, they would not have crucified him, who in eſſential deity is one with the Father, and juſtly claims the title of the Lord of Glory. But as it is written, Eye hath not ſeen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. Low as their apprehenſions were of the crucified Redeemer, yet hath he brought in a ſalvation for loſt ſouls, unutterably glorious, by a contrivance far above human conception, and hath prepared for thoſe who, ſenſible of his amazing grace, feel the conſtrainings of divine love in their hearts, ſuch ineſtimable bleſſings as paſs man's underſtanding. But theſe glorious things, which are hidden from others, God hath revealed unto us by his Spirit, by a divine illumination in the preaching of the goſpel; for the Spirit, who is the great agent in the converſion of the ſinner's ſoul, illuminating his darkneſs, and quickening him from his ſtate of death, ſearcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God, and who alone being perfectly acquainted with his counſels, is fully able to reveal them to us. For what man knoweth the things of a man, ſave the ſpirit of man which is in him? None but our own ſpirit can diſcover what paſſes in our ſecret thoughts, even ſo the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God. The wiſeſt and weakeſt are equally at a loſs reſpecting God's eternal councils and deſigns; and none but that eternal Spirit, who is eſſentially God, and one with the Father and the Son, (as a man's ſoul is one with him, and conſcious of all that paſſes in his breaſt) can know or reveal theſe unto us. Now we have received, not the ſpirit of the world, that we ſhould be guided by its wiſdom, or follow its maxims, but the Spirit which is of God, whoſe office it is, in the œconomy of man's ſalvation, to enlighten the darkened mind, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God, even all thoſe ineſtimable bleſſings and privileges, of which, by grace through faith, we are made partakers. Which things alſo we ſpeak, declaring, from happy experience, the truths which the Spirit hath revealed to us, not in the words which man's wiſdom teacheth, affecting to ſet them off with figures of oratory, but which the Holy Ghoſt teacheth, to add to which would be but to gild the brilliant, which ſhines infinitely brighter in its native luſtre; comparing ſpiritual things with ſpiritual, the types with the antitype, the prophecies with their fulfilment, the Old Teſtament with the New, which ſerve to caſt mutual light and glory on each other, and ſupply us with expreſſions, which moſt forcibly and clearly convey the Spirit's meaning to the heart. But the natural man, who continues under the darkneſs of his fallen mind, whatever attainments in human wiſdom and literature he may have made, receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are fooliſhneſs to him, becauſe he cannot reconcile them to his corrupted reaſon and defiled mind; neither can he know them; he is as much under a moral incapacity of ever attaining to the true underſtanding of ſpiritual things, as the blind man is under a natural incapacity of diſcovering the brighteſt objects, till the faculty of viſion is given him, becauſe they are ſpiritually diſcerned, and therefore cannot be comprehended without divine illumination. But he that is ſpiritual, and effectually taught of God, judgeth all things, diſcovering the excellence, all-ſufficiency, and ſuitableneſs of God's method of ſalvation, and diſtinguiſhing truth from error. Yet he himſelf is judged of no man; no natural man, however wiſe or learned, diſcerns the principles upon which he acts; or can comprehend the truths which the ſpiritual man experimentally knows; or can confute him by any reaſonings, when he ſees that he hath the word of God for his guide, and the Spirit of God promiſed to lead him into all truth. For who hath known the mind of the Lord? what philoſopher ever ſoared ſo high as to penetrate into the ſecrets of God's eternal mind, that he may inſtruct him who is ſpiritual, in theſe ſupernatural truths? Darkneſs and folly are evident in all the ſchemes and notions of the wiſeſt ſages; but we have the mind of Chriſt, are divinely led into the knowledge of his deſigns of grace, and therefore can never be moved away from the hope of the goſpel, by any pretenders to ſcience, or by the diſputations of philoſophers, with whatever ſounding names or titles they may be dignified. Learn hence, (1.) That the wiſeſt ſage and the moſt illiterate peaſant are on a level, reſpecting the knowledge which maketh wiſe unto ſalvation. (2.) If all the wiſdom which ever exiſted in the whole fallen race was centered in one perſon, he would be as incapable of communicating one tittle of divine truth to us, as the glow-worm of enlightening the univerſe. (3.) It is the diſtinguiſhed character of the redeemed, that they are all taught of God, not only by external revelation, but by the Spirit's internal illumination. (4.) The love of God, now ſhed abroad in our hearts, is the earneſt of that inheritance which he hath prepared for us. (5.) We are not to wonder that thoſe, who are moſt advanced in human literature, are uſually moſt averſe to the truths of God. The reaſon is evident, ver. 14. (6.) A ſpiritual underſtanding of the Scriptures is a better qualification for the miniſtry than all Roman or Grecian literature.

CHAP. III.

In this chapter the apoſtle (1.) Blames the Corinthians for their carnality and diviſions, ver. 1—4. (2.) He inſtructs them how what was amiſs among them might be rectified, by remembring, (1.) That their miniſters were no more than miniſters, ver. 5. (2.) That they were unanimous, and carried on the ſame deſign, ver, 5—10. (3.) That they built on one and the ſame foundation, ver. 11—16. (3.) He exhorts them to give due honour to their bodies, by keeping them pure, ver. 16, 17. And to humility and ſelf-diffidence, ver. 18—21. (4.) And deborts them from glorying in particular miniſters, becauſe of the equal intereſt they had in all, ver. 22, ad finem.

1. AND I, brethren, could not ſpeak unto you as unto ſpiritual, but as unto carnal, even [a] as unto babes in Chriſt. 2. I have fed you [b] with milk, and not with meat: for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able. 3. For ye are yet carnal: for whereas [c] there is among you envying and ſtrife, and diviſions, [d] are ye not carnal, and walk as men? 4. For while one ſaith, [e] I am of Paul, and another, I am of Apollos, are ye not carnal? 5. Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, [f] but miniſters by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? 6. I [g] have planted, [h] Apollos watered: but [i] God gave the increaſe. 7. So then, [k] neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth: but God that giveth the increaſe.

[a] Chap. xiv. 20. Eph. iv. 14.
[b] John xvi. 12. Heb. v. 12, 13. 1 Pet. ii. 2.
[c] Chap. i. 11. & xi. 18.
[d] Gal. v. 19, 20. Jam. iii. 16.
[e] Chap. i. 12.
[f] Chap. iv. 1. 2 Cor. i. 24. & xii. 6.
[g] Acts xviii. 4, 11.
[h] Acts xviii. 27.
[i] Pſ. cxv. 1. Iſai. lv. 11. & lxi. 11.
[k] 2 Cor. iii. 5. & xii. 11.

v. 1—7. The apoſtle proceeds here,

1. To rebuke the carnality, and contentions which reigned among the members of the Corinthian church. I brethren, (for as ſuch I regard you, notwithſtanding the many imperfections I perceive among you) could not ſpeak unto you as unto ſpiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Chriſt; for greatly, as many were enriched in gifts, (ſee chap. i. 5.) yet in grace your attainments were very low, and your affections groveling ſtill on earth: and therefore as babes I have fed you with milk, with the ſimpleſt and plaineſt truths of the goſpel, and not with meat, the more ſublime points of revelation and the deep things of God; for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet are ye able; you would not have been edified by them, but have abuſed them, and made them miniſter to your pride and diſputatious humour. For ye are yet carnal, and ſhew too much of an unrenewed ſpirit; for whereas, or ſince there is among you envying and ſtrife, and diviſions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men? Whilſt under the power of ſuch evil tempers, wherein do you differ from the world that lieth in wickedneſs? For while one ſaith, I am of Paul, and another, I am of Apollos, are ye not carnal? Doth not ſuch a ſpirit of party prove the deep, unmortified remainders of carnality in your hearts? Aſſuredly. Note, (1.) Miniſters muſt be faithful to the ſouls of the people, and never flatter. (2.) There may be great attainments in knowledge, and yet little grace in the heart; and this wiſdom puffeth up. (3.) Among real Chriſtians, there are great differences to be obſerved; ſome are weak as babes; others, ſtrong as men grown to maturity. Our wiſdom, as miniſters, is therefore to give to every man his portion in due ſeaſon. (4.) Nothing is more contrary to the ſpirit of Chriſtianity than angry diſputes, and ſchiſmatical diviſions.

2. The apoſtle aſcribes to the rich grace of God all the ſucceſs which the goſpel had met with among them. It became effectual, not through human inſtruments, but by divine energy. Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but miniſters by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? The men were mere inſtruments; it was the Lord alone who made their miniſtry effectual. I have planted, by firſt preaching the goſpel to you; Apollos watered, ſucceeding me in labouring among you: but God gave the increaſe, without whoſe ſpecial operation and mighty influence, however great the natural abilities of either may have been, I muſt have planted and Apollos watered in vain. So then, neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth, but God that giveth the increaſe, to whom the whole glory muſt be aſcribed, excluſive of all the inſtruments he may have been pleaſed to employ. And therefore they are not to be ſet up either as the authors of the goſpel, or the cauſe of its efficacy. Note, (1.) If any man believes the goſpel word, this muſt be the gift of God; for we can neither give ourſelves faith, nor can the moſt powerful preachers communicate it to us. (2.) Miniſters ſhould ever be careful to aſcribe to God the glory of all the ſucceſs they meet with; we are nothing; he is all in all.

8. Now he that planteth, and he that watereth are one: and [l] every man ſhall receive his own reward, according to his own labour. 9. For [m] we are † labourers together with God: [n] ye are God's huſbandry, [o] ye are God's building. 10. [p] According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wiſe maſter-builder, [q] I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But [r] let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon. 11. For other foundation can no man lay, than that is laid, [s] which is Jeſus Chriſt. 12. Now if any man [t] build upon this foundation, gold, ſilver, precious ſtones, [u] wood, hay, ſtubble: 13. Every man's work ſhall be made manifeſt. For the day ſhall declare it, becauſe it ſhall be revealed by fire; and [x] the fire ſhall try every man's work, of what ſort it is. 14. [y] If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, he ſhall receive a reward. 15. If any man's work ſhall be burnt, he ſhall ſuffer loſs: but he himſelf ſhall be ſaved; [z] yet ſo, as by fire.

[l] Jer. xvii. 10. & xxxii. 19. Mat. xvi. 27. Rev. xxii. 12.
[m] 2 Cor. vi. 1.
† Gr. the fellow labourers of God.
[n] Iſai. v. 1. John xv. 1.
[o] Eph. ii. 20, 22. Heb. iii. 3, 4. 1 Pet. ii. 5.
[p] Rom. xii. 3. Chap. xv. 10.
[q] Rom. xv. 20. Chap. iv. 15.
[r] 1 Pet. iv. 11.
[s] Iſai. xxviii. 16. Mat. xvi. 18.
[t] Eph. ii. 20.
[u] 2 Cor. ii. 17. & iv. 2. & xi. 13.
[x] Iſai. xlviii. 10. Jer. xxiii. 29. 1 Pet. i. 7. & iv. 12.
[y] Chap xi. 5.
[z] Amos iv. 11. Jude 23.

v. 8—15. All faithful miniſters are engaged in the ſame bleſſed cauſe, and have but one end in view, to glorify Chriſt and ſave immortal ſouls; and they ſhall not loſe their reward. Now he that planteth, by firſt preaching the goſpel word, and he that watereth the ſeed ſown by coming after him, are one in affection and intention: and therefore thoſe who are converted under their preaching ſhould be united alſo, nor think of ſetting up one againſt another: and every one ſhall receive his own reward, according to his own labour; when the great Maſter comes, he will give to every man according as his work is; to ſecure his approbation muſt therefore be our great deſign, and not the empty honour which cometh from man only, which ſome of you affect. For we are labourers together with God, united in the ſame ſervice, and honoured abundantly by the very work committed to us: whilſt ye are God's huſbandry, your hearts the field wherein he ſows the ſeed of eternal life; ye are God's building, the ſpiritual temple which he erects, and where he is well pleaſed to take up his abode; for ye are the habitation of God through the Spirit. Of this building we may obſerve,

1. The foundation is Jeſus Chriſt. According to the grace of God which is given unto me, who hath appointed me to the office, and qualified me for the ſervice, as a wiſe maſter-builder I have laid the foundation of your faith and hope in a crucified Jeſus; and another buildeth thereon, ſucceeding miniſters have carried on the bleſſed work begun in your hearts: but, it is a needful and important caution, let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon. For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jeſus Chriſt, the rock of ages, the only hope of the miſerable and deſperate, and out of whom there is no ſalvation.

2. The ſuperſtructure muſt correſpond with the foundation. Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, ſilver, precious ſtones, inculcating the holy doctrines of the goſpel, and exhorting men to a heavenly converſation which may adorn them, ſuch labourer's work will bear the ſevereſt ſcrutiny, and ſhine gloriouſly before the eyes of men; but if they build wood, hay, ſtubble, urging their own conceits and fancies, and zealous about things inſignificant and uneſſential, whilſt the weightier matters are neglected, every man's work ſhall be made manifeſt; for the day of judgment ſhall ſhortly declare it, becauſe it ſhall be revealed by fire; and, as the refiner tries the metal in the furnace, the fire ſhall try every man's work, of what ſort it is; the exact ſcrutiny of that day ſhall prove whether every man's opinion and practices correſponded with the ſcripture ſtandard or not; and the conſequence of the trial will be awful. (1.) If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, and it appears before the great Judge that he hath followed his plan, and correſponded with his deſigns, in building up men's ſouls in the doctrines of grace and holineſs, he ſhall receive a reward, eminent and diſtinguiſhed, according to his labours and fidelity. (2.) If any man's work ſhall be burnt, and his opinions and practices be found unſcriptural and erroneous, however highly he may have valued himſelf upon his abilities, he ſhall ſuffer loſs, and ſee his fine-ſpun conceits all deſtroyed: but, if he hath himſelf been founded upon Chriſt, and, though weak or miſtaken, yet was not allowedly wicked or licentious, he himſelf ſhall be ſaved from the wrath to come, yet ſo as by fire, with ſuch difficulty as a man eſcapes naked from his houſe when in flames. Note, (1.) Before the great trying-day comes, we ſhould be often examining ourſelves by that word of God whereby we muſt at laſt be juſtified or condemned. (2.) We may not be liberal of raſh cenſures concerning the eternal ſtates of men; but, whilſt we condemn their opinions, muſt leave their hearts to the great Judge.

16. [a] Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? 17. If any man defile the temple of God, him ſhall God deſtroy: for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are. 18. [b] Let no man deceive himſelf: if any man among you ſeemeth to be wiſe in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wiſe. 19. For the wiſdom of this world is fooliſhneſs with God: for it is written, [c] He taketh the wiſe in their own craftineſs. 20. And again, [d] The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wiſe, that they are vain. 21. [e] Therefore let no man glory in men: for all things are yours: 22. Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things preſent, or things to come; [f] all are yours. 23. And [g] ye are Chriſt's; and Chriſt is God's.

[a] Chap. vi. 19. 2 Cor. vi. 16. Eph. ii. 21, 22. Heb. iii. 6. 1 Pet ii. 5.
[b] Prov. iii. 7. Iſa. v. 21. Chap. iv. 10.
[c] Job v. 13. Chap. i. 20.
[d] Pſ. xciv. 11.
[e] Ver. 7.
[f] Rom. viii. 28. 2 Cor. iv. 5, 15.
[g] Chap. xi. 3. 2 Cor. x. 7. Eph. i. 20.

v. 16—23. The apoſtle here,

1. Preſſes the argument of holineſs upon them from the conſideration ſuggeſted, v. 9. Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, deſigned in a more peculiar manner for his abode than that houſe which Solomon built; and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you, in his gracious preſence and mighty operations? If any man defile the temple of God, and ſeek, by broaching his corrupt opinions, to ſubvert the foundation, or by evil practices to ſeduce and draw men away from the truth of the goſpel, him ſhall God deſtroy with more fearful judgment than was threatened againſt the defilers of the material temple: for the temple of God is holy, ſet apart for himſelf; which temple ye are, and therefore are bound to be holy in all manner of converſation.

2. He warns them againſt the danger of vain conceit on their gifts and attainments. Let no man deceive himſelf with high imaginations of his own ſuperior excellence, and in conſequence propagate as truth his own erroneous opinions. If any man among you ſeemeth to be wiſe in this world, and values himſelf upon his attainments in philoſophy and human literature; let him become a fool, that he may be wiſe, renouncing it all ſo far as it would beget perverſe reaſonings againſt the humbling truths of revelation, and content ſimply to embrace the doctrine of the croſs, which the wiſe world counts fooliſhneſs; for thus only can any man become wiſe unto ſalvation: for the wiſdom of this world is fooliſhneſs with God, all their ſyſtems of theology, and their learned diſquiſitions on religion, are mere folly, compared with his glorious ſcheme of ſalvation through a dying Redeemer: for it is written, He taketh the wiſe in their own craftineſs, their fine-ſpun reaſonings are the nets wherein they entangle and ruin themſelves: and again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wiſe, that they are but vain; all their projects and deſigns, however deep concealed, are open to his eye; and, compared with his thoughts, weakneſs, folly, and vanity, are ſtamped upon them. Note, (1.) No man can become truly wiſe till, ſenſible of his ſpiritual ignorance, like a little child he comes to God's word to learn the firſt elements of truth. (2.) How amazingly fooliſh will all the wiſdom of this world ſhortly appear, when thoſe who truſted on the powers of their fallen reaſon to lead them to happineſs, will find it to have been, like the deceitful meteor, a light only to delude them into eternal darkneſs.

3. He warns them againſt exalting men, even the beſt and wiſeſt, or following any miniſter implicitly, when their faith ought to ſtand not in the wiſdom of men, but in the power of God. Therefore let no man glory in men, as being this or that man's diſciples, deſpiſing others and undervaluing their miniſtry: for all things are yours, appointed and ordained for your bleſſing and advantage; whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas; their gifts are beſtowed on them for the edification of the body of Chriſt; or the world; the adminiſtration of it is in the hands of Jeſus, and he will give his people ſuch a portion of it as ſhall be moſt for their good; or life; he will preſerve you ſo long, and in ſuch circumſtances, as ſhall be moſt for his glory and your eternal happineſs; or death; he will diſarm it of its ſting, and, in whatever manner it may come upon you, will cauſe it to prove your greateſt gain; or things preſent; you ſhall be cared for through all your pilgrimage by his gracious providence; or things to come, an eternity of glory is before you; all are yours, ſecured to you in the everlaſting covenant, and working together for your preſent and eternal benefit; and ye are Chriſt's, the objects of his love, the purchaſe of his blood, the members of his body; and Chriſt is God's, the appointed Mediator, the great Covenant-Head, who hath all things in his hands, and ever lives to perfect the ſalvation of his people, and to bring them to reign with him in heaven, to the eternal praiſe of the glory of God's grace.

CHAP. IV.

In this chapter the apoſtle, 1. Directs them how to account of him and his fellow-miniſters, and therein, tacitly at leaſt, reproves them for their unworthy carriage towards him, ver. 1—6. 2. He cautions them againſt pride and ſelf-elation, and hints at the many temptations they had to conceive too highly of themſelves, and deſpiſe him, and other apoſtles, becauſe of the great diverſity in their circumſtances and condition, ver. 7—14. 3. He challenges their regard to him as their father in Chriſt, ver. 15—17. 4. He tells them of his having ſent Timothy to them, and of his own purpoſe to come to them ſhortly, however ſome among them had pleaſed themſelves, and grown vain upon the quite contrary expectation, ver. 18, ad finem.

1. LET a man ſo account of us, [a] as of the miniſters of Chriſt, and [b] ſtewards of the myſteries of God. 2. Moreover [c] it is required in ſtewards that a man be found faithful. 3. But with me it is a very ſmall thing that I ſhould be judged of you, or of man's † judgment: yea, I judge not mine own ſelf. 4. For I know nothing by myſelf, [d] yet am I not hereby juſtified: but he that judgeth me is the Lord. 5. [e] Therefore judge nothing before the time, [f] until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkneſs, and will make manifeſt the counſels of the hearts: and then ſhall every man have praiſe of God. 6. And theſe things, brethren, [g] I have in a figure transferred to myſelf, and to Apollos for your ſakes: that ye might learn in us [h] not to think of men, above that which is written, that no one of you be puffed up for one againſt another.

[a] Mat. xxiv. 45. Chap. iii. 5. 2 Cor. vi. 4. Col. i. 25.
[b] Luke xii. 42. Tit. i. 7. 1 Pet. iv. 10.
[c] Mat. xxv. 21. 2 Cor. ii. 17.
† Gr. Day.
[d] Job ix. 2. Pſ. cxxx. 7. & cxliii. 2. Rom. iii. 20.
[e] Mat. vii. 1. Rom. ii. 1, 16. & xiv. 4, 10.
[f] 2 Cor. v. 10. Rev. xx. 12.
[g] Chap. i. 12. & iii. 4, 22.
[h] Prov. iii. 7. Rom. xii. 3. Chap. v. 2, 6.

v. 1—6. The apoſtle here,

1. States the true character of goſpel miniſters, and the eſteem in which they ſhould be held. Let a man ſo account of us as of the miniſters of Chriſt (ὑπηρέται) ſervants, under-rowers of the veſſel where Chriſt is the pilot, and labouring with all their might to bring it to the haven of eternal reſt; and ſtewards of the myſteries of God, diſpenſing to the houſhold of faith the rich proviſion made in the goſpel-word for their nouriſhment and growth in grace. Moreover it is required in ſtewards that a man be found faithful, true to the truſt committed to them, and zealous for their Maſter's intereſt and honour.

2. Whatever they might think of him, he could appeal to God for his own ſimplicity and godly ſincerity. But, though ſome among you in the ſpirit of party are crying up one miniſter and cenſuring another, with me it is a very ſmall thing that I ſhould be judged of you, or of man's judgment; though I am deſirous, for the honour of Chriſt and the ſucceſs of my miniſtry, to vindicate my integrity before men, yet their cenſures are comparatively inſignificant: the approbation of the Lord, in the great day, is my important concern. Yea, conſcious of the corruption of my own heart, I judge not mine own ſelf; for though I know nothing by myſelf, nor am at all conſcious of allowed guile or unfaithfulneſs, yet am I not hereby juſtified, I would not on any conſideration reſt my juſtification before God on the footing of my own ſincere obedience; he knows the deceitfulneſs of my heart better than I can, and may condemn me for what I have overlooked: but, living upon his grace, and enabled to appeal to him for my ſimplicity, I wait the great deciſive day, knowing that he that judgeth me is the Lord, to whoſe blood and righteouſneſs I have fled for acceptance, and by whoſe grace I am what I am. Note, (1.) It is a comfort to us that men, even the beſt of men, are not our judges. (2.) Though we maintain a becoming care about our character before men, our great concern muſt be to approve ourſelves to God; and where we are conſcious that this is our deſire and labour, then we may ſit looſe to every malevolent cenſure. (3.) The fidelity of a ſteward, and the diligent labours of a ſervant, characteriſe the real miniſter of the goſpel.

3. He warns them againſt haſty judgment. Therefore judge nothing before the time, ſuſpend every raſh cenſure until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkneſs, and will make manifeſt the counſels of the hearts, when every man's principles, as well as practices, will be laid naked and open: and then ſhall every man, who ſhall be found faithful, have praiſe of God, and be acknowledged and commended by the great Judge of all. Note, (1.) The proſpect of a judgment-day ſhould make us careful how we dare judge others. They ſhall then have judgment without mercy, who ſhewed no mercy. (2.) However ſin be now concealed, and falſe principles put on the moſt ſpecious appearances, the cheat cannot be long undiſcovered: the day is near when the ſecrets of all hearts ſhall be made known. (3.) They who can now approve themſelves to their Lord, however reviled or maligned, ſhall ſhortly be owned by the eternal Judge.

4. To avoid every offence, he tells them, Theſe things, brethren, I have in a figure transferred to myſelf and to Apollos for your ſakes, chuſing to make uſe of his own name, and that of Apollos, rather than to apply the matter to any of thoſe who headed parties among them, which might but exaſperate. And I do this that ye might learn in us, who, though chief in labours among you, diſclaim all authority over your conſciences, not to think of men above that which is written, ſetting them up as the Lords of your faith, and implicitly following their opinions; and that no one of you be puffed up for one againſt another, exalting the character of one miniſter upon the ruins of another; but giving God the glory of the various gifts he hath beſtowed on different men, and thankful for the benefit of their miniſtry.

7. For who maketh thee to differ from another? and [i] what haſt thou that thou didſt not receive? now if thou didſt receive it, why doſt thou glory as if thou hadſt not received it? 8. Now ye are full, [k] now ye are rich, ye have reigned as kings without us: and I would to God ye did reign, that we alſo might reign with you. 9. For I think that God hath ſet forth us the apoſtles laſt, [l] as it were appointed to death. For [m] we are made a ſpectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men. 10. We are [n] fools for Chriſt's ſake, but ye are wiſe in Chriſt; [o] we are weak, but ye are ſtrong: ye are honourable, but we are deſpiſed. 11. Even unto this preſent hour, [p] we both hunger and thirſt, and are naked, and [q] are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling-place; 12. And labour, [r] working with our own hands: [s] being reviled, we bleſs: being perſecuted, we ſuffer it: 13. Being defamed, we intreat: [t] we are made as the filth of the world, and are the off-ſcouring of all things unto this day.

[i] John iii. 27. Jam. i. 17.
[k] Rev. iii. 17.
[l] Pſ. xliv. 22. Chap. xv. 30. 2 Cor. i. 8. & iv. 11.
[m] Heb. x. 33.
[n] 2 Kin. ix. 11. Acts xvii. 18. & xxvi. 24. Chap. iii. 18.
[o] Chap. ii. 3. 2 Cor. xiii. 9.
[p] 2 Cor. xi. 27. Phil. iv. 12.
[q] Acts xxiii. 2. 2 Cor. vi. 4, &c.
[r] Acts xviii. 3. & xx. 34. 1 Theſ. ii. 9.
[s] Luke vi. 28. & xxiii. 34. Acts vii. 60. Rom. xii. 14.
[t] Lam. iii. 45.

v. 7—13. As they were puffed up with a high conceit of themſelves, and their unreaſonable partiality for one miniſter above another aroſe from an opinion of their own ſuperior taſte and judgment, the apoſtle rebukes this unchriſtian ſpirit.

1. He reminds them that all they poſſeſſed was of God's mere grace. For who hath made thee to differ from another, admitting your attainments may be ſingular? and what haſt thou that thou didſt not receive from above as a matter of ſovereign favour? Now if thou didſt receive it, why doſt thou glory as if thou hadſt not received it? and that it was not owing to his grace, but to your own deſert, diligence, or ability? a claim how inſolent, ungrateful, nay impious? Note, There is nothing we can properly call our own but ſin: all good cometh from above, and God muſt have the glory of his own work: it is the worſt of ſacrilege to plume ourſelves on the gifts or graces which he beſtows.

2. He ironically reproves their vain imaginations of their own excellence. Now ye are full, now ye are rich, abounding in worldly wealth, high in ſpiritual gifts, and flattering yourſelves with the apprehenſion of your exalted attainments in grace; ye have reigned as kings without us, priding yourſelves as if you had attained the ſummit of proſperity, without any obligations to us, or any aſſiſtance of ours who firſt preached the goſpel unto you: and I would to God ye did reign; far from envying you, I ſhould be happy in your advancement, and wiſh for nothing more earneſtly than that you really were as great and excellent as the glaſs of ſelf-deceit repreſents you to be; that we alſo might reign with you, rejoicing in your attainments, and partaking of your glory as the inſtruments who contributed ſo greatly to your converſion and edification; whom you would then honour and reſpect, inſtead of adding to our troubles by your unbecoming conduct and ingratitude. For I think that God hath ſet forth us the apoſtles; who were laſt called to the miniſtry of the word, as it were appointed unto death, ordained to ſuffer peculiar afflictions, and every day expoſed to danger and death: for we are, as publick criminals, expoſed to beaſts in the theatres, and devoted to deſtruction, made a ſpectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men, expoſed to every ignominy, reproach, and ſuffering from the world which lieth in wickedneſs, whilſt angels and good men admire our conſtancy and pity our ſufferings, and devils and wicked men inſult, revile, and perſecute us. But whilſt we are counted fools for Chriſt's ſake, thus to expoſe ourſelves for the ſake of our crucified Maſter, and for our preaching the doctrines of the croſs, which the world counts fooliſhneſs; ye are wiſe in Chriſt, and, varniſhing over the offenſive truths of the goſpel, value yourſelves on your wiſdom and prudence in eſcaping that croſs under which we groan: we are weak, oppreſſed with ſorrows and ſufferings till our ſtrength is ready to fail; but ye are ſtrong, and know none of our tribulations to harraſs you: ye are honourable, and maintain a reſpectable character in the world, and with lukewarm profeſſors of Chriſtianity; but we are deſpiſed for our fidelity, which draws upon us the reproaches and perſecutions under which we appear ſo contemptible. Whilſt you enjoy eaſe and affluence, even unto this preſent hour, we both hunger and thirſt; and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling-place, like our Maſter, without a ſettled abode to lay our head; and labour, working with our own hands, for that maintenance which you ſhould ſupply, but which, for the goſpel's ſake, we rather chooſe to earn with the ſweat of our brow than demand: being reviled, we bleſs; being perſecuted, we ſuffer it patiently; being defamed, we intreat, return no opprobrious language, but mildly remonſtrate, and humbly beg a hearing: we are made as the filth of the world, and are the off-ſcouring of all things unto this day, treated as the vileſt miſcreants, and as wretches choſen from the dregs of the people, who, being regarded by the heathen as the authors of all their public calamities, are offered in ſacrifice to appeaſe the wrath of their ſuppoſed offended deities. Note, (1.) Many dangerouſly miſtake, who judge of themſelves by their gifts. It is not great knowledge, but great grace, which conſtitutes the eminent Chriſtian. (2.) They who will be faithful in the miniſtry ſhould count the coſt, and go forth with a readineſs to ſuffer, if need be, the loſs of all things. (3.) Nothing can ſerve to ſhew the character of the bleſſed Paul in a more diſtinguiſhed light than the account he here gives of himſelf. May we learn to copy his diſintereſted zeal, and bear our ſufferings with the like meekneſs and unſhaken fidelity!

14. I write not theſe things to ſhame you, but [u] as my beloved ſons I warn you. 15. For though you have ten thouſand inſtructors in Chriſt, yet have ye not many fathers: for [x] in Chriſt Jeſus I have begotten you thro' the goſpel. 16. Wherefore I beſeech you, [y] be ye followers of me. 17. For this cauſe have I ſent unto you Timotheus, [z] who is my beloved ſon, and faithful in the Lord, who ſhall bring you [a] into remembrance of my ways which be in Chriſt, as I teach every where in every church. 18. Now ſome are puffed up as though I would not come to you. 19. But I will come to you ſhortly, [b] if the Lord will, and will know, not the ſpeech of them which are puffed up, but the power. 20. For [c] the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power. 21. What will ye? [d] ſhall I come unto you with a rod, or in love, and in the ſpirit of meekneſs?

[u] 1 Theſ. ii. 11.
[x] Chap. ix. 2. Gal. iv. 19. Philem. 10. Jam. i. 18.
[y] Chap. xi. 1. Phil. iii. 17. 1 Theſ. i. 6.
[z] 1 Tim. i. 2. 2 Tim. i. 2.
[a] Chap. xi. 2.
[b] Rom. i. 10. & xv. 32. Jam. iv. 15.
[c] Chap. ii. 4. 1 Theſ. i. 5.
[d] 2 Cor. x. 2. & xiii. 10.

v. 14—21. The apoſtle with ſingular addreſs,

1. Inſinuates the kind intentions he had in this diſcourſe. I write not theſe things to ſhame or upbraid you, but as a father, tenderly concerned for my beloved ſons, I warn you to be aware of a conduct that is ſo unbecoming you, which muſt in the iſſue prove ſo much to your diſhonour, and which it is highly incumbent on you to obſerve, lament, and amend. For though you have ten thouſand inſtructors in Chriſt, who help to build you up in the faith, yet have ye not many fathers, to whoſe miniſtry ye were indebted for being called to the knowledge of the truth: for in Chriſt Jeſus I have begotten you through the goſpel; he uſing my inſtrumentality, and ſending me firſt among you to preach his great ſalvation; and the moſt of you, through his effectual grace, by my miniſtry, have been called to the knowledge of the truth, and faith in him; and therefore I have a peculiar title to your eſteem and regard. Wherefore I beſeech you, be ye followers of me as dear children, not led away by thoſe who would pervert you from the ſimplicity of the goſpel, and ſteal your affections from me that you might idolize them. Remember my example, and, as far as I appeared to imitate my divine Maſter, copy after the pattern. Note, (1.) Thoſe rebukes will be moſt effectual, where kindneſs gives weight to the admonition. (2.) The way to reclaim any man from the error of his ways is not by publickly expoſing him to ſhame, but by ſecret and gentle remonſtrances. (3.) They who have been our ſpiritual fathers have a title to our peculiar affection. (4.) Every miniſter by his example ſhould adorn the doctrine he preaches, that he may with ſome humble confidence be able to ſay, "Be ye followers of me."

2. He tells them what were his kind intentions in ſending the bearer of this epiſtle. For this cauſe have I ſent unto you Timotheus, to ſecond this letter by his exhortations and miniſtry, who is my beloved ſon, begotten in the goſpel, and dear to me as a child; and faithful in the Lord, proved to be ſo by long experience; who ſhall bring you into remembrance of my ways which be in Chriſt, as I teach every where in every church, preaching the ſame doctrine, and walking in the ſame ſteps. Note, (1.) The great doctrines of the goſpel can admit of no change: like their Author, they are the ſame yeſterday, to-day, and for ever. (2.) All faithful miniſters of Chriſt bring the ſame meſſage, walk after the ſame rule, and mind the ſame things. Novelty is the proof of error.

3. He aſſures them of his intention to viſit them himſelf, notwithſtanding the inſinuations of ſome of their falſe teachers. Now ſome are puffed up as though I would not come to you, as if I was aſhamed or afraid perſonally to meet them; and perhaps may make the ſending of Timothy an argument to ſupport their ſuggeſtions: but I will come to you ſhortly, it is my firm determination ſo to do, if the Lord will, in whoſe hands are all our ways; and will know not the ſpeech of them which are puffed up, but the power, examining into their credentials, and not to be deluded with the glare of their eloquence or learning; but enquiring what power accompanies their miniſtrations, and what efficacy their diſcourſes have on the hearts of the hearers. For the kingdom of God is not in word; the church of the Redeemer is neither erected nor ſupported by human wiſdom, nor doth mere profeſſion conſtitute the Chriſtian character; but it ſtands in the power of God; not by man's eloquence, but through the preaching of the croſs, made effectual through the Spirit's energy, is this kingdom ſet up and maintained in the hearts of the redeemed.

4. He concludes with an authoritative queſtion. What will ye? how would you chuſe I ſhould viſit you? ſhall I come unto you with a rod, according to my apoſtolic power, ſeverely to chaſtiſe thoſe offenders and diſturbers of your peace? this would be my grief as well as yours; or ſhall I come to you, as I deſire to do, in love, and in the ſpirit of meekneſs? rejoicing to find a thorough reformation of whatever hath been amiſs, forgetting what is paſt, and affectionately embracing you as my dear children. Note, (1.) Obſtinate offenders call for the rod; and though it be painful, parents, maſters, miniſters, muſt not ſpare. (2.) Love and meekneſs are the ornament of the Chriſtian character, and in theſe the preachers of the goſpel ſhould excel.

CHAP. V.

In this chapter the apoſtle, 1. Blames them for their indulgence in the caſe of the inceſtuous perſon, and orders him to be excommunicated and delivered to Satan, ver. 1—7. 2. He exhorts them to Chriſtian purity, by purging out the old leaven, ver. 7, 8. And, 3. Directs them to ſhun even the common converſation of Chriſtians who were guilty of any notorious and flagitious wickedneſs, ver. 9. ad finem.

1. IT is reported commonly that there is fornication among you, and ſuch fornication as is not ſo much as [a] named among the Gentiles, [b] that one ſhould have his father's wife. 2. And ye are puffed up, and have not rather mourned, that he that hath done this deed [c] might be taken away from among you. 3. For I verily [d] as abſent in body, but preſent in ſpirit, have judged already, as though I were preſent, concerning him that hath ſo done this deed; 4. In the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, when ye are gathered together, and my ſpirit, [e] with the power of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, 5. [f] To deliver ſuch an one unto Satan for the deſtruction of the fleſh, that the ſpirit may be ſaved in the day of the Lord Jeſus. 6. [g] Your glorying is not good: Know ye not that [h] a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump? 7. Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even [i] Chriſt our paſſover is ſacrificed for us. 8. Therefore [k] let us keep the feaſt, [l] not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedneſs; but with the unleavened bread of ſincerity and truth.

[a] Eph. v. 3.
[b] Lev. xviii. 8. Deut. xxii. 30. & xxvii. 20.
[c] Lev. xx. 11.
[d] Col. ii. 5.
[e] Mat. xvi. 19. & xviii. 18. John xx. 23. 2 Cor. ii. 10.
[f] Job ii. 6. 1 Tim. i. 20.
[g] Jam. iv. 16.
[h] Chap. xv. 33. Gal. v. 9. 2 Tim. ii. 17.
[i] Exod. xii. 3, &c. Iſa. liii. 7. John i. 29. 1 Pet. i. 19.
[k] Exod. xii. 14, &c.
[l] Deut. xvi.

v. 1—8. The apoſtle, after reproving their party diſputes, paſſes on to other groſs offences which ſubſiſted among them.

1. A moſt groſs and ſcandalous crime had been committed by one of the members of the church; that he ſhould have his father's wife, either after his father's death, or, as ſeems more likely, during his father's life: a ſpecies of fornication abominable even in the eyes of civilized heathens, and bringing the greateſt reproach on their profeſſion as Chriſtians.

2. What had been one man's ſin in the commiſſion had become the ſin of the whole by their connivance. Ye are puffed up. Perhaps this was ſome factious leader, whom his party ſcreened from cenſure, and gloried ſtill in his gifts; or the oppoſite party triumphed maliciouſly in his fall; or their outward proſperity made them negligent of inward purity among the members of the church, and therefore, without mourning over ſuch a ſcandalous offender, and caſting him out of the church, as they ought to have done, he ſtill continued to aſſemble with them, and they countenanced him in his wickedneſs. Note, (1.) In the moſt flouriſhing churches corruptions will creep in. (2.) Party diviſions fill the heart with malice, and cauſe men to aſcribe to the whole the faults of individuals. (3.) A Chriſtian's heart mourns over the offences of his brethren, and cannot but ſenſibly feel the wounds given thereby to the Redeemer's cauſe.

3. The apoſtle pronounces ſentence upon this inceſtuous Corinthian, and enjoins them to put it in force againſt him by an immediate excommunication. I verily, as abſent in body, but preſent in ſpirit, having my heart ever ſollicitous for your welfare, and knowing by revelation the true ſtate of this caſe, have judged already, as though I were preſent, concerning him who hath ſo done this deed, that he be without delay caſt out from among you. In the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, when ye are gathered together to conſult on this affair; and my ſpirit is among you with the power of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath left this authority to his church for the maintenance of holy diſcipline among the profeſſing members of it; I have determined that you are in duty bound to deliver ſuch an one unto Satan for the deſtruction of the fleſh, expelling him from the ſociety of the faithful, and delivering him back into the world that lieth under the dominion of the wicked one. And perhaps ſome ſignal mark of wrath was ſuffered to be inflicted upon his body, that, thus expoſed to ſhame and ſuffering, he might yet perhaps be brought to repentance, and that the ſpirit may be ſaved in the day of the Lord Jeſus. Note, It is as neceſſary for the backſlider as it is for the glory of God, that he ſhould ſmart for his unfaithfulneſs: ſuch chaſtiſement is for his ſalvation, not deſtruction.

4. He exhorts them to purge out the leaven of wickedneſs from among them. Your glorying is not good, it is peculiarly unſeaſonable and ſtrange, when ſuch offences are committed among you with impunity: know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump? and that in like manner corrupt principles and practices, connived at in the leaſt meaſure, may ſoon ſpread, and communicate univerſal infection to the church. Purge out therefore the old leaven, ſearch out and remove all ſcandalous perſons from among you, as carefully as the Jews examine their houſes before the paſſover, that ye may be in reality a new lump, as ye are in profeſſion unleavened, in ſimplicity and truth devoted to the Lord Jeſus as his peculiar people, and departing from all iniquity as the evidence that you belong to him. Note, (1.) The beginnings of evil are to be watched againſt and checked, leſt, like the ſpreading mortification, the whole body become infected. (2.) They who are Chriſt's are new creatures. If we ſay we abide in him, and walk in darkneſs, we lie, and do not the truth.

5. He urges his exhortation by the ſtrongeſt argument. For even Chriſt our paſſover, who was ſignified by the paſchal lamb, is ſacrificed for us, that he might cleanſe us from all iniquity, this being one great end of his death. Therefore let us keep the feaſt which he hath inſtituted inſtead of the paſchal ſupper, not with old leaven, admitting profane and ſcandalous offenders to the table of the Lord; neither with the leaven of malice and wickedneſs, not harbouring allowed ſin, or living under the power of corruption, defiled in body, or ſowered with pride and party-diſputes: but with the unleavened bread of ſincerity and truth, with real attachment of heart to the Saviour, and unfeigned love to the brethren. Note, (1.) The ſacrifice of Chriſt, which we commemorate, ſhould be a rich feaſt to our ſouls; ſince thereby every bleſſing in time and eternity is ſecured to us. (2.) They who approach the Lord's table ſhould examine themſelves, whether their old leaven be purged out, and their hearts in ſimplicity brought to the ſpirit and temper of the goſpel.

9. I wrote unto you in an epiſtle, [m] not to company with fornicators. 10. Yet not altogether with the fornicators [n] of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; [o] for then muſt ye needs go out of the world. 11. But now I have written unto you, not to keep company, [p] if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with ſuch an one, no not to eat. 12. For what have I to do to judge [q] them alſo that are without? do not ye judge [r] them that are within? 13. But them that are without, God judgeth. Therefore [s] put away from among yourſelves that wicked perſon.

[m] Ver. 2, 7. Eph. v. 11. 2 Theſ. iii. 14.
[n] Chap. x. 27.
[o] John xvii. 15.
[p] Mat. xviii. 17. Rom. xvi. 17. 2 Theſ. iii. 6, 14. 2 John 10.
[q] Mark iv. 11. Col. iv. 5. 1 Theſ. iv. 12. 1 Tim. iii. 7.
[r] Chap. vi. 2—4.
[s] Deut. xiii. 5. & xvii. 7. & xxi. 21. & xxii. 24.

v. 9—13. Some conceive that the apoſtle here refers to a former epiſtle which he had written to the Corinthians, others to one he was writing when he heard from them, and began a new letter in anſwer to them; though perhaps what he ſpeaks may have only reſpect to what he had ſaid before in this ſame epiſtle. I wrote unto you in an epiſtle, not to company with fornicators; to be ſeparate from all familiar intercourſe with thoſe who bring ſuch reproach on the Chriſtian name. Yet my intention is not that you ſhould be altogether ſecluded from the world, and refuſe all civil intercourſe with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then muſt ye needs go out of the world, ſo few would be left with whom to have any commerce or ſociety in ſuch an evil world as this is. But now I have written unto you, not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with ſuch an one, no not to eat; not only he ſhould be excluded from eating bread with you at the Lord's table, but even all intercourſe and connection with him ſhould be cut off, and he ſhould be ſhunned and avoided by you more than even the heathen themſelves; that, being put to ſhame, he may yet be brought to repentance, and reſtored to the boſom of the church. For what have I to do to judge them alſo that are without? as they make no profeſſion of Chriſtianity, they lie under no cenſures; and in civil affairs, as duty calls, may lawfully be converſed with: but do not ye judge them that are within? The profeſſing members of the church come under your juriſdiction, and are, when under cenſure, to be treated with this peculiar diſtance. But them that are without, who are open offenders, and live careleſsly after the faſhion of the world, God judgeth; to whoſe judgment they muſt be left. Therefore, ſince your power extends over your own community, put away from yourſelves that wicked perſon.

CHAP. VI.

In this chapter the apoſtle, 1. Reproves them for going to law with one another about ſmall matters, and bringing the cauſe before heathen judges, ver. 1—8. 2. He takes occaſion hence to warn them againſt many groſs ſins to which they had been formerly addicted, ver. 9—12. 3. And having cautioned them againſt the abuſe of their liberty, he vehemently dehorts them from fornication by various arguments, ver. 12. ad finem.

1. DARE any of you, having a matter againſt another, go to law before the unjuſt, and not before the ſaints? 2. Do ye not know that [a] the ſaints ſhall judge the world? and if the world ſhall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the ſmalleſt matters? 3. Know ye not that [b] we ſhall judge angels? how much more things that pertain to this life? 4. If then ye have judgments of things pertaining to this life, ſet them to judge who are leaſt eſteemed in the church. 5. I ſpeak to your ſhame. Is it ſo, that there is not a wiſe man amongſt you? no not one that ſhall be able to judge between his brethren? 6. But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers. 7. Now therefore there is utterly a fault among you, becauſe ye go to law with one another: [c] why do ye not rather take wrong? why do ye not rather ſuffer yourſelves to be defrauded? 8. Nay, you do wrong and defraud, and that your brethren.

[a] Pſ. xlix. 14. Dan. viii. 22. Mat. xix. 28. Luke xxii. 30. Rev. ii. 26.
[b] Jude 6.
[c] Prov. xx. 22. Mat. v. 39. Rom. xii. 17, 19. 1 Theſ. iv. 6. & v. 15.

v. 1—8. The apoſtle proceeds to cenſure another grievous abuſe among them. A litigious ſpirit prevailed, and, to the ſhame of their holy profeſſion, brother went to law againſt brother, and that before the unbelievers, the heathen magiſtrates.

1. He rebukes them for thus going to law among themſelves, and that too, as appears, v. 2, 7. on matters of ſmall importance, which, without great detriment to themſelves or families, they might have quietly paſſed by, and born the loſs rather than ſeek a litigious redreſs: and, worſt of all, they choſe rather to carry their cauſes before the heathen tribunals, than refer them to the deciſion of their own members, the ſaints of God; fooliſhly expoſing themſelves thereby to the partiality which might be expected from unjuſt judges, and giving the enemy occaſion to triumph in their quarrels.

2. He ſuggeſts, as an aggravation of their fault, the honour and dignity to which the ſaints of God muſt ſhortly be exalted as aſſeſſors with the eternal Judge on his throne, whilſt fallen angels and a guilty world ſtand at his bar, and receive from his lips their eternal doom. And if ſo, how ſtrange muſt it be that they ſhould not now be able to judge of the ſmalleſt matters, and determine concerning the trivial affairs of this life, which even thoſe who are leaſt eſteemed in the church would be much fitter to decide than the heathen magiſtrates before whom they carried their diſputes.

3. With a warm expoſtulation on their folly and perverſeneſs, he points out to them a remedy for the evil. I ſpeak to your ſhame. In what an unbecoming and unchriſtian manner do you act. Is it ſo, that there is not a wiſe man amongſt you? no not one that ſhall be able to judge between his brethren? Where they boaſted of ſuch high attainments in wiſdom, it would be very ſtrange if they could not find a better umpire of their diſputes among the whole body of their church, than to have recourſe to Gentile tribunals. There was therefore, no doubt, a fault in this matter; and far better was it for them to ſuffer ſome wrong and loſs, than to ſeek redreſs in ſuch a way. But, inſtead of this meekneſs, patience, and forgiveneſs, you do wrong and defraud, and that your brethren, to the great diſhonour of your Chriſtian profeſſion. Note, All differences among Chriſtians ſhould be amicably determined by their brethren: at leaſt, in leſſer matters, it were better to quit our right than have recourſe to the wrangling bar.

9. Know ye not that the unrighteous ſhall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: [d] neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abuſers of themſelves with mankind, 10. Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, ſhall inherit the kingdom of God. 11. And [e] ſuch were ſome of you: [f] but ye are waſhed, but ye are ſanctified, but ye are juſtified in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of our God.

[d] Gal. v. 19—21. Eph. v. 5. Col. iii. 5, 6. Rev. xxi. 8. & xxii. 15.
[e] Chap. xii. 2. Eph. ii. 1, 2. Col. ii. 7. Tit. iii. 3.
[f] Chap. i. 30. Heb. x. 22.

v. 9—11. The apoſtle, having warned them againſt ſome particular offences, paſſes on to enumerate a black catalogue, of which they had formerly been guilty, and under the power of which whoſoever continued to walk, he never could inherit the kingdom of God.

1. The ſins mentioned are fornication, idolatry, adultery, effeminacy and laſciviouſneſs, ſodomy, theft, avarice, drunkenneſs, reviling, extortion, crimes which, if indulged, muſt neceſſarily exclude the ſoul from any part in the kingdom of grace, and for ever baniſh it from the preſence of God in glory.

2. He warns them againſt all ſelf-deluſion in this matter. There was a lie in their right-hand, if they flattered themſelves with any vain imaginations that they had yet hope towards God, whilſt walking in ſuch abominations; which then, now, and for ever, if not forgiven and forſaken, muſt inevitably deſtroy both body and ſoul in hell.

3. He reminds them of the bleſſed change which had paſſed upon them, that they might not again return unto folly. Such were ſome of you. But, glory be to God's ſovereign, rich, and boundleſs grace, ye are waſhed, but ye are ſanctified, but ye are juſtified in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of our God: ye are waſhed in the fountain opened for ſin and uncleanneſs; by the atoning blood and righteouſneſs of the adored Redeemer your iniquities are pardoned, great and aggravated as they were, and your perſons preſented ſpotleſs before the throne of God; and you are not only accounted righteous, but made pure in heart by the mighty operation of the Divine Spirit, and in body, ſoul, and ſpirit, renewed, that you might be made meet for the inheritance among the ſaints in light. Note, (1.) The greateſt crimes exclude none from ſalvation who fly to the atoning blood of Jeſus. In him there is grace abounding for the chief of ſinners. (2.) All who are juſtified by grace are ſanctified by the Spirit. We deceive ourſelves, if we think we have an intereſt in the one, if we do not experience the effectual operation of the other. (3.) Nothing is ſo ſtrong an argument to a redeemed ſoul to fly from ſin, as the remembrance of the mercy he hath taſted, and of the ranſom which hath been paid.

12. [g] All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not † expedient: all things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any. 13. [h] Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats: but God ſhall deſtroy both it and them. Now the body is not for forni-

[g] Chap. x. 23.
† Or profitable.
[h] Mat. xv. 17. Rom. xiv. 17. Col. ii. 22, 23.

fornication, [i] but for the Lord; and the Lord for the body. 14. And [k] God hath both raiſed up the Lord, and [l] will alſo raiſe up us by his own power. 15. Know ye not, that [m] your bodies are the members of Chriſt? ſhall I then take the members of Chriſt, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid. 16. What, know ye not that he which is joined to an harlot, is one body? for [n] two (ſaith he) ſhall be one fleſh. 17. But he that is joined unto the Lord, [o] is one ſpirit. 18. Flee fornication. Every ſin that a man doth, is without the body: but he that committeth fornication [p] ſinneth againſt his own body. 19. What, know ye not that [q] your body is the temple of the holy Ghoſt which is in you, which ye have of God, and [r] ye are not your own? 20. For [s] ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your ſpirit, which are God's.

[i] Ver. 19, 20. 2 Cor. xi. 2.
[k] Acts ii. 24.
[l] Rom. vi. 5, 8. & viii. 11. 2 Cor. iv. 14.
[m] Rom. xii. 5. Chap. xii. 27. Eph. v. 30.
[n] Gen. ii. 24. Mat. xix. 5. Eph. v. 31.
[o] John xvii. 21, 23. Eph. iv. 4. & v. 30, 32.
[p] Rom. i. 24. 1 Theſ. iv. 4.
[q] Chap. iii. 16. 2 Cor. vi. 16. Eph. ii. 21.
[r] Rom. xiv. 7.
[s] Acts xx. 28. Chap. vii. 23. Heb. ix. 12. 1 Pet. i. 18.

v. 12—20. As ſome of them at Corinth appeared to have too light thoughts of the ſin of fornication, which the apoſtle ranked under the damning ſins, and ſeem to have ſet it on a footing only with the meats forbidden to the Gentile converts, (Acts xv. 29.) the apoſtle ſtrongly ſets himſelf to ſhew their dangerous error. With regard to meats forbidden by the Levitical law, or offered to idols, All things are lawful unto me, which Chriſt hath not forbidden, and are not in their own nature ſinful; but all things are not expedient; even in indifferent matters, for the ſake of others, it is right to forego our Chriſtian liberty. All things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any, ſo as to have my affections enſlaved by them, or to have my conſcience ſubjected to any human arbitrary authority. Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats; all wholeſome food is deſigned for our uſe; but theſe are things of trivial conſequence, ſince God ſhall ſhortly deſtroy both it and them. In the eternal world the ranſomed will not need theſe bodily refreſhments, for they ſhall hunger no more, nor thirſt any more: but reſpecting fornication, the matter is very different; though the belly is not at all defiled by meats, the body is by fornication.

He urges this matter by various arguments.

1. Now the body is not for fornication; it was not made to be proſtituted to impurity; but for the Lord, to be employed for his glory, and the Lord for the body, who, as the bridegroom of his church and people, requires their bodies as well as ſouls to be under his holy government. And,

2. God hath both raiſed up the Lord Jeſus from the dead, that his quickened body might be the pledge and earneſt of our reſurrection; and will alſo raiſe up us by his own power: our bodies therefore that ſhall be faſhioned like to his glorious body, ought not now to be polluted by fornication and uncleanneſs.

3. Know ye not, that your bodies are the members of Chriſt? through faith we are united to Chriſt as our living head, and compoſe a part of his body myſtical: ſhall I then take the members of Chriſt, and make them the members of an harlot? how horrid the very ſuggeſtion! and every Chriſtian heart, with deteſtation of the thought, cannot but cry, God forbid! What, know ye not that he which is joined to an harlot, is one body? ſuch an unhallowed connection is moſt contrary to the union of the heart with Jeſus: for two, ſaith he, ſhall be one fleſh. A fornicator becomes united to an harlot, and not to Chriſt; but he that is joined to the Lord, in real vital union of heart and perſon, is one ſpirit, actuated and influenced by the ſame divine Spirit, which in all its fulneſs dwells in our exalted head. Therefore flee fornication, as the higheſt indignity we can offer to the Lord, of whoſe body we are members. Note, In temptations to lewdneſs flight is often the only preſervative.

4. Every other ſin that a man doth, is without the body, and terminates upon an object without himſelf, not immediately defiling the body, though it brings guilt upon his ſoul; but he that committeth fornication ſinneth againſt his own body; not only offending againſt God and his neighbour, but immediately contaminating his own fleſh by ſuch an abomination.

5. What ſhall I farther urge? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghoſt which is in you, which ye have of God? and, ſince he hath been pleaſed to take up his abode in your hearts, ye are not your own, but bound to yield yourſelves to his will and guidance, and to do nothing which ſhould provoke the divine inhabitant to quit his temple with abhorrence.

6. For, to finiſh with one argument more, ye are bought with a price, even the amazing price of a Redeemer's blood, from the curſe of the law, and the bondage of corruption, that you might be reſtored to the ſervice and enjoyment of the bleſſed God. Therefore, ſince this was one great end of your redemption, glorify God in your body, and in your ſpirit, which are God's, nor dare to alienate your affections from him, or to diſhonour your bodies by fornication, which ſhould be employed in his bleſſed work, and wholly and unreſervedly devoted to his glory.

CHAP. VII.

In this chapter the apoſtle anſwers ſome caſes propoſed to him by the Corinthians about marriage. He, 1. Shews them that marriage was appointed as a remedy againſt fornication, and therefore perſons had better marry than burn, ver. 1—10. 2. He gives direction to thoſe who were married to continue together, though they might have an unbelieving relative, unleſs the unbeliever would part, in which caſe a Chriſtian would not be in bondage, ver. 10—17. 3. He ſhews them, that becoming Chriſtians does not change their external ſtate, and therefore adviſes every one to continue, in the general, in that ſtate in which he was called, ver. 17—25. 4. He adviſes them, by reaſon of the preſent diſtreſs, to keep themſelves unmarried: hints the ſhortneſs of time, and how they ſhould improve it, ſo as to grow dead and indifferent to the comforts of the world; and ſhews them how worldly cares hinder their devotions, and diſtract them in the ſervice of God, ver. 25—36. 5. He directs them in the diſpoſal of their virgins, ver. 36—39. 6. And cloſes the chapter with advice to widows, how to diſpoſe of themſelves in that ſtate, ver. 39, 40.

1. NOW concerning the things whereof ye wrote unto me: [a] It is good for a man not to touch a woman. 2. Nevertheleſs, to avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own huſband. 3. [b] Let the huſband render unto the wife due benevolence: and likewiſe alſo the wife unto the huſband. 4. The wife hath not power of her own body, but the huſband: and likewiſe alſo the huſband hath not power of his own body, but the wife. 5. [c] Defraud you not one the other, except it be with conſent for a time, that ye may give yourſelves to faſting and prayer; and come together again, [d] that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency. 6. But I ſpeak this by permiſſion, and [e] not of commandment. 7. For I would that all men were even as I myſelf: but [f] every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that. 8. I ſay therefore to the unmarried and widows, [g] It is good for them if they abide even as I. 9. But [h] if they cannot contain, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn.

[a] Ver. viii. 26.
[b] Ex. xxi. 10. 1 Pet. iii. 7.
[c] Ex. xix. 15. 1 Sam. xxi. 4. Joel ii. 16.
[d] 1 Theſ. iii. 5.
[e] Ver. 12. 2 Cor. viii. 8. & xi. 17.
[f] Mat. xix. 11.
[g] Ver. 1, 26.
[h] 1 Tim. v. 14.

v. 1—9. In anſwer to ſome caſes of conſcience, which the Corinthians had ſent to the apoſtle for his ſolution, he here replies:

1. In the perſecuted ſtate of the church, and conſidering the incumbrances which a married ſtate neceſſarily produced, he ſuggeſts, that it would be well for thoſe who had the gift of continence to keep themſelves ſingle; and in order to avoid exciting any deſire after women, that they ſhould obſerve a cautious diſtance, and never touch them.

2. Yet he was far from enjoining celibacy as a duty. To avoid fornication, where the gift of continence was not poſſeſſed, and circumſtances made it more eligible, it was adviſeable that every man and woman ſhould enter into the honourable eſtate of marriage, with all conjugal fidelity and love cleaving alone to thoſe with whom they are thus united.

3. For thoſe who are married, he lays down this rule: That neither of them afterwards have a right to withhold their bodies from each other, but mutually owe the duty of the marriage-bed. And though on ſome extraordinary occaſions they may forego thoſe lawful delights which they take in each other, it muſt be by conſent, when peculiar ſeaſons of humiliation call for prayer and faſting; and only for a time, not defrauding each other of that which is now a mutual duty, but coming together as before, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency, and, whilſt you wrongly abſtain from what is lawful, he ſhould lead you to what is criminal, and enſnare your affections with other objects.

4. The apoſtle declares, I ſpeak this by permiſſion, as my advice, and not of commandment, as what is abſolutely neceſſary for every individual; not as if it was every man's duty to marry, who was thereto inclined; there were caſes and circumſtances when perſons could beſt judge for themſelves. For I would that all men were even as I myſelf, and could as contentedly continue in a ſtate of celibacy; but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that, according to their different diſpoſitions and conſtitutions. I ſay therefore to the unmarried and widows, It is good for them if, in theſe perilous times, they abide even as I, and can with ſafety and ſatiſfaction continue ſingle. But if they cannot contain, and they find their animal appetites too ſtrong to be kept under, let them marry: this then becomes a duty, and it would be ſinful to neglect the ordinance of God; for it is better to marry than to burn, and be harraſſed with tormenting deſire.

10. And unto the married I command, [i] yet not I, but the Lord, [k] Let not the wife depart from her huſband: 11. But and if ſhe depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her huſband: and let not the huſband put away his wife. 12. But to the reſt ſpeak I, [l] not the Lord, If any brother hath a wife that believeth not, and ſhe be pleaſed to dwell with him, let him not put her away. 13. And the woman which hath a huſband that believeth not, and if he be pleaſed to dwell with her, [m] let her not leave him. 14. For the unbelieving huſband is ſanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is ſanctified by the huſband; elſe [n] were your children unclean; but now are they holy. 15. But if the unbelieving depart, let him depart. A brother or a ſiſter is not under bondage in ſuch caſes: but [o] God hath called us † to peace. 16. For what knoweſt thou, O wife, [p] whether thou ſhalt ſave thy huſband? or how knoweſt thou, O man, whether thou ſhalt ſave thy wife? 17. But as God hath diſtributed to every man, as the Lord hath called every one, ſo let him walk: and ſo ordain I in all churches.

i Ver. 12, 25, 40.
k Mal. v. 14. Mat. v. 32. & xix. 6, 9.
l Ver. 6.
m Ezra x. 2, 3.
n Ezra ix. 2. Mal. ii. 15.
o Rom. xii. 18. & xiv. 19.
† Gr. in peace.
p 1 Pet. iii. 1.

v. 10—17. As many who had been called in a conjugal ſtate had partners of their bed, who ſtill continued in heatheniſm, and divorces were common among the Jews, the apoſtle, by immediate authority from his Lord, declares what was their duty in ſuch circumſtances.

1. The wife may on no conſiderations (adultery excepted) depart from her huſband. But if ſhe depart voluntarily, or be diſmiſſed through any quarrel, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her huſband, whoſe regard it is her duty by all lawful means to endeavour to regain. And let not the huſband put away his wife, on any conſideration but the defilement of the marriage-bed. Note, Thoſe who are married ſhould deſire and delight to make that ſtate a comfort to each other: every breach involves both in miſery.

2. With regard to thoſe who have partners that continue in unbelief, whilſt they themſelves are called to the knowledge of the truth, the following directions I give by the Spirit, the Lord having left no expreſs command concerning the matter.

(1.) If any unbelieving wife or huſband chuſe to cohabit with their partner, who is converted to the faith of Chriſt, the believing wife or huſband muſt not ſeparate themſelves from the unbeliever on account of religion. And he ſuggeſts his reaſons for what he enjoined: [1.] The ſtate is ſanctified by the faith of either of the parties. The unbelieving huſband is ſanctified by, or in, the wife, and the unbelieving wife is ſanctified by, or in, the huſband, they being one by virtue of the marriage union, and all their lawful marriage enjoyments ſanctified to the faithful perſon; elſe were your children unclean, and not entitled to the bleſſings and privileges that belong to the viſible church; but now are they holy, capable of being received into the congregation of the faithful, and admitted to the ſeal of the covenant, as much as if they deſcended from parents who were both believers in profeſſion. [2.] God hath called us to peace; and therefore, ſo far as we can maintain it with our unbelieving relatives, we are bound to do it, and not make our different ſentiments in religious matters the ground of contention and angry diſpute: and tho' we wiſh they were even as we, yet ſhould we not quarrel with them becauſe they refuſe to be of the ſame mind with us, but bear with the perverſeneſs and diſpleaſure which they may teſtify againſt us on account of our profeſſion. [3.] Whilſt thus walking in love, peace, and chaſtity, what knoweſt thou, O wife, whether thou ſhalt ſave thy huſband? or how knoweſt thou, O man, whether thou ſhalt ſave thy wife? and be made the inſtrument of her converſion. But, whether this be the caſe or not, as God hath diſtributed to every man, as the Lord hath called every one, in whatever ſtate or relation, ſo let him walk, as may moſt adorn his holy profeſſion; and ſo ordain I in all churches, laying this down as a general rule, to be accommodated to particular caſes.

But, (2.) The caſe however is quite different, if the unbelieving depart, and, offended at their partner for embracing the goſpel, for that cauſe refuſe any longer to cohabit with them; and, all kind means being uſed, inſiſt on a ſeparation; a brother or a ſiſter is not under bondage in ſuch caſes, nor obliged to detain them when they deſire to depart. Nay, ſome ſuppoſe, that ſuch a malicious and obſtinate deſertion, where all propoſals of reconciliation and return are rejected, amounts to the diſſolution of the marriage-covenant, with regard to the injured party, like death itſelf: but I ſhould think otherwiſe, unleſs the deſertion is accompanied with adultery in the unbeliever; and even then, though in God's ſight the marriage bond is broken, the civil contract can be diſſolved only by proper authority.

18. Is any man called being circumciſed? [q] let him not become uncircumciſed: is any called in uncircumciſion? let him not become circumciſed. 19. [r] Circumciſion is nothing, and uncircumciſion is nothing but [s] the keeping of the commandments of God. 20. Let every man abide in the ſame calling wherein he was called. 21. Art thou called being a ſervant? care not for it; but if thou mayeſt be made free, uſe it rather. 22. For he that is called in the Lord, being a ſervant, [t] is the Lord's freeman: likewiſe alſo he that is called being free, [u] is Chriſt's ſervant. 23. [x] Ye are bought with a price, be not ye the ſervants of men. 24. Brethren, let every man wherein he is called, therein abide with God.

q Acts xv. 1, 19. Gal. v. 2.
r Gal. v. 6. & vi. 15. Col. iii. 11.
s John xv. 14.
t John viii. 36. Rom. vi. 18, 22.
u Chap. ix. 21. Gal. v. 13. Eph. vi. 6. 1 Pet. ii. 16.
x Lev. xxv. 42. Chap. vi. 20. 1 Pet i. 18.

v. 18—24. The apoſtle paſſes on to other caſes.

1. Reſpecting circumciſion. Is any man called being circumciſed, Jew or proſelyte, let him not become uncircumciſed, or regret that he ſubmitted to this rite. Is any one called in uncircumciſion? let him not become circumciſed, all theſe marks of peculiarity being aboliſhed under the goſpel. Jew and Gentile have now but one way to glory: Circumciſion is nothing, and uncircumciſion is nothing, of no avail at all to ſalvation; but the grand point is, the keeping the commandments of God, from the divine principle of faith which worketh by love.

2. With regard to men's ſtations in life, Let every man abide in the ſame calling wherein he was called, deſiring no alteration in his circumſtances, but ſatisfied with the diſpenſations of God's providence. Art thou called being a ſervant? care not for it; as if becauſe a ſervant or ſlave, therefore the leſs acceptable to God. With him there is no reſpect of perſons. But if thou mayeſt be made free, uſe it rather; if the Lord open a door for your liberty, thankfully accept it, mean time reſigned to wait his will. For he that is called in the Lord, being a ſervant, is the Lord's freeman, brought from the bondage of corruption to the moſt deſirable freedom, even into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God. Likewiſe alſo he that is called being free, is Chriſt's ſervant: whatever our civil privileges may be, when we have taken the Lord for our Maſter, we are, as much as the meaneſt ſlave, bound to yield ourſelves to him, obedient in all things. Ye are bought with a price, both one and the other with the ſame price, even the blood of Jeſus: be not ye therefore the ſervants of men; but whenever their commands interfere with the will of your great Maſter, heſitate not a moment whom you ſhall obey. Upon the whole, brethren, this is my injunction; Let every man wherein he is called, whatever his ſtation in life may be, therein abide with God, reſigned to his will, aiming at his glory, maintaining communion with him, and looking up for grace to ſerve him acceptably. Note, (1.) As our worldly circumſtances are ordered by divine appointment, to repine is to rebel againſt God. (2.) No attainments in religion give us a right to any ſuperiority in worldly things. Dominion is not founded in grace.

25. Now concerning virgins, [y] I have no commandment of the Lord: yet I give my judgment as one [z] that hath obtained mercy of the Lord [a] to be faithful. 26. I ſuppoſe therefore that [b] this is good for the preſent diſtreſs, I ſay, that it is good for a man ſo to be. 27. Art thou bound unto a wife? ſeek not to be looſed. Art thou looſed from a wife? ſeek not a wife. 28. But and if thou marry, thou haſt not ſinned; and if a virgin marry, ſhe hath not ſinned: nevertheleſs, ſuch ſhall have trouble in the fleſh; but I ſpare you. 29. But this I ſay, brethren [c] the time is ſhort. It remaineth that both they that have wives be as though they had none; 30. And they that weep, as though they wept not; and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not; and [d] they that buy, as though they poſſeſſed not; 31. And they that uſe this world, as not abuſing it: for [e] the faſhion of this world paſſeth away. 32. But I would have you without carefulneſs. [f] He that is unmarried, careth for the things that belong to the Lord, how he may pleaſe the Lord: 33. But he that is married, careth for the things that are of the world, how he may pleaſe his wife. 34. There is difference alſo between a wife and a virgin: The unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that ſhe may be holy, both in body and in ſpirit: but ſhe that is married, careth for the things of the world, how ſhe may pleaſe her huſband. 35. And this I ſpeak for your own profit, not that I may caſt a ſnare upon you, but for that which is comely, and [g] that you may attend upon the Lord without diſtraction.

y Ver. 6, 10, 40. 2 Cor. viii. 8, 10.
z 1 Tim. i. 16.
a Chap. iv. 2. 2 Cor. ii. 17. 1 Tim. i. 12.
b Jer. xvi. 2—4. Mat. xxiv. 19. Ver. 28.
c Rom. xiii. 11. Chap. x. 11. 1 Pet. iv. 7. 2 Pet. iv. 8, 9.
d Ezek. vii. 12.
e Iſa. xxiv. 4. 1 John ii. 17.
f 1 Tim. v. 5.
g Luke x. 41.

v. 25—35. In anſwer to their queſtion with regard to unmarried perſons, though our Lord had given no particular directions, yet the apoſtle, under divine inſpiration, delivers his judgment.

1. Conſidering the troubleſome times, and the preſent diſtreſs they were under, he adviſes thoſe who with chaſtity could, to continue ſingle. If they were already married, they muſt be content in that ſtate, nor ſeek to looſe that indiſſoluble bond ; but if unmarried, they would do well not haſtily to change their condition.

2. If any perſon found it more adviſeable or neceſſary for them to marry, they would commit no ſin in ſo doing, marriage being honourable in all ; only they would encumber themſelves more in the world, and in thoſe days of perſecution expoſe themſelves to more dangerous trials. But he urges not the point, leſt he ſhould bring them into a ſnare, when he only meant to ſuggeſt the cautions which prudence dictated.

3. Whatever was their ſtate, married or unmarried, he had one important charge to give them. This I ſay, brethren, the time is ſhort, eternity is advancing ſwiftly, and the days which here are allotted us draw to their end. Since therefore our great concern in this world is to prepare for a better, it remaineth that both they that have wives be as though they had none ; not ſetting their affections on a dying world, or retarded from the purſuit of heavenly things by any engagements or attachments here below : and they that weep, as though they wept not ; reſtraining all inordinate grief for the loſs of deareſt relatives, or for any other afflictions, ſince all preſent ſufferings muſt ſo quickly have an end : and they that rejoice, as tho' they rejoiced not ; conſidering the tranſitory nature of all their worldly comforts, and therefore ſitting looſe to them : and they that buy, as though they poſſeſſed not ; not truſting in uncertain riches, nor placing their happineſs in theſe poſſeſſions, but looking for a more enduring ſubſtance ; and they that uſe this world, as not abuſing it, to flatter their pride, or gratify their luxury : for the faſhion of this world paſſeth away ; all things below are fleeting as the ſhadow, and will ſhortly vaniſh as the dream when one awaketh. Note, (1.) A deep ſenſe of the vanity of time, and the importance of eternity, is needful to regulate both our joys and ſorrows, and to keep our affections diſengaged from the objects of ſenſe which would otherwiſe enſlave us. (2.) We are dying worms in a dying world : the longeſt life is but a ſhort time ; every moment we are in jeopardy ; and what is all the world to a dying man ?

4. He ſuggeſts the general reaſon on which he grounded the foregoing advice. I would have you without carefulneſs, not to lay a ſnare upon you by enforcing celibacy, but that thoſe who have the gift, may attend on the Lord without diſtraction. The advantage of the unmarried ſtate is this, that being leſs incumbred with worldly cares, the ſingle brother or ſiſter are more at leiſure for the ſervice of the Redeemer, and can more entirely devote their time and talents, and employ both body and ſpirit in his bleſſed work ; whilſt the married perſon muſt neceſſarily be more engaged in the care of a family, and the needful proviſion for them, and have the partner of their boſom to pleaſe in all lawful things, ſollicitous to promote their temporal and eternal happineſs. Note, (1.) That is always beſt for a Chriſtian, which is beſt for his ſoul. (2.) Our firſt deſire ſhould be to pleaſe the Lord, and, whether married or ſingle, to be holy both in body and ſpirit.

36. But if any man think that he behaveth himſelf uncomely toward his virgin, if ſhe paſs the flower of her age, and need ſo require, let him do what he will, he ſinneth not : let them marry. 37. Nevertheleſs, he that ſtandeth ſtedfaſt in his heart, having no neceſſity, but hath power over his own will, and hath ſo decreed in his heart that he will keep his virgin, doth well : 38. So then, he that giveth her in marriage [h] doth well : but he that giveth her not in marriage doth better. 39. [i] The wife is bound by the law as long as her huſband liveth : but if her huſband be dead, ſhe is at liberty to be married to whom ſhe will ; [k] only in the Lord. 40. But ſhe is happier if ſhe ſo abide, [l] after my judgment : and [m] I think alſo that I have the Spirit of God.

[h] Heb. xiii. 4.
[i] Rom. vii. 2.
[k] 2 Cor. vi. 14.
[l] Ver. 25.
[m] 1 Theſ. iv. 8.

v. 36—40. The apoſtle proceeds with farther directions concerning marriage.

1. Concerning virgins. If any man think that he behaveth himſelf uncomely towards his virgin, by reſtraining his daughter or ward, who is diſpoſed thereto, from marrying ; if ſhe paſs the flower of her age, and is come to years of maturity, and need ſo require, on deliberating the matter, it ſeems moſt eligible ſhe ſhould change her condition, let him do what he will, he ſinneth not in diſpoſing of her ; let him marry her to a proper partner. Nevertheleſs, he that ſtandeth ſtedfaſt in his heart, reſolved to keep his ward or daughter ſingle, having no neceſſity, but hath power over his own will, and hath ſo decreed in his heart, with her conſent, that he will keep his virgin as ſhe is, doth well, and ſhews in ſuch trying times a prudent care of her. So then, he that giveth her in marriage, when it becomes needful, doth well ; acts a lawful and commendable part : but he that giveth her not in marriage, doth better ; provides more for her comfort, and keeps her more at her liberty to ſerve the Lord.

Some ſuppoſe (την εαυτȣ παρθενον) ſignifies not his virgin, but the ſtate of virginity, and give the ſenſe, that if any man continued ſingle beyond the uſual time when it was thought reputable to marry, and afterwards ſhould think that he had put an undue reſtraint upon himſelf, and ſee cauſe to change his condition, it would be lawful for him, even if advanced in years, to take a wife : for though it might be moſt commendable if he could keep his firſt purpoſe, yet, if he finds the ſtate of wedlock needful, he is at liberty and may marry.

2. Concerning widows. The wife is bound by the law to her huſband for life, unleſs by obſtinate deſertion and adultery the marriage-bond is cancelled. But if her huſband be dead, ſhe is at liberty to be married to whom ſhe will ; only in the Lord ; careful not to be unequally yoked with an unbeliever, and giving her hand to no man, who hath not, as far as ſhe can judge, given his heart to Chriſt. But, in moſt caſes, ſhe is happier if ſhe ſo abide, in my judgment, and live unmarried ; and, in what I here adviſe, I think alſo, whatever falſe teachers may ſuggeſt, that I have the Spirit of God, and now ſpeak under his immediate inſpiration.

CHAP. VIII.

The apoſtle in this chapter anſwers another caſe propoſed to him by ſome of the Corinthians, about eating thoſe things that had been ſacrificed to idols. 1. He hints at the occaſion of this caſe, and gives a caution againſt too high eſteem of their knowledge, ver. 1—4. 2. He aſſerts the vanity of idols, and the unity of the Godhead, and the ſole mediation of Chriſt between God and man, ver. 4—7. 3. He tells them, that upon ſuppoſition that it were lawful in itſelf to eat of things offered to idols, for that they themſelves are nothing ; yet regard muſt be had to the weakneſs of Chriſtian brethren, and nothing done that would lay a ſtumbling-block before them, and occaſion their ſin and deſtruction, ver. 7, ad finem.

1. NOW [a] as touching things offered unto idols, We know that [b] we all have knowledge. [c] Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth. 2. And if any man think that he knoweth any thing, [d] he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know. 3. But if any man love God, [e] the ſame is known of him. 4. As concerning therefore the eating of thoſe things that are offered in ſacrifice unto idols, we know that [f] an idol is nothing in the world, and that [g] there is none other God but one. 5. For though there be [h] that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many, and lords many) 6. But [i] to us there is but one God, the Father, [k] of whom are all thing, and we in him ; and [l] one Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [m] by whom are all things, and we by him.

[a] Acts xv. 29.
[b] Rom. xiv. 14, 22.
[c] Rom. xiv. 3, 10.
[d] Chap. xiii. 12. Gal. vi. 3.
[e] Ex. xxxiii. 12. Nah. i. 7. Gal. iv. 9. 2 Tim. ii. 19.
[f] Iſa. xli. 24. & xliv. 8, 9. Jer. ii. 11.
[g] Deut. iv. 39. Mark xii. 29. Eph. iv. 6.
[h] Pſ. lxxxii. 6.
[i] Mal. ii. 10.
[k] Acts xvii. 28. Rom. xi. 36.
[l] John xiii. 13. Phil. ii. 11.
[m] John i. 3. Col. i. 16. Heb. i. 2.

v. 1—6. The apoſtle proceeds to conſider the caſe of eating the fleſh of animals which had been offered in ſacrifice to idols. Sometimes the idolaters feaſted their friends thereon in the idol-temples, ſometimes in their own houſes ; and what they did not make uſe of, was ſold in the ſhambles.

1. He warns them againſt leaning upon their own underſtanding, and proudly abuſing their Chriſtian liberty. Now as touching things offered unto idols, we know that we all in general have knowledge, and are perſuaded of the vanity of idols, as well as you. Nevertheleſs, knowledge, without grace, puffeth up, but charity edifieth, and will engage us not merely to conſider what is lawful, but what is expedient, making us condeſcending to thoſe whoſe attainments are leſs, and who do not ſee things as clearly as we may. And if any man think that he knoweth any thing, ſelf-opinionated, and above attending to the ſentiments or weakneſs of his brethren, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know. But if any man love God, and from that bleſſed principle is engaged to make a practical improvement of his knowledge for God's glory, and his neighbour's edification, the ſame is known of him, and will receive his approbation. Note, (1.) That is the truly valuable knowledge which enables us to be moſt uſeful. (2.) Self-conceit is a ſure proof of ignorance. (3.) There may be much knowledge in the head, where there is little charity in the heart.

2. He admits, that an idol is nothing, a mere imaginary being ; and that, abſtractedly conſidered, the eating meat offered in ſacrifice to them is no evil, ſince there is no other God but one, whoſe creatures are all good in themſelves. For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many, and lords many), multitudes of celeſtial and terreſtrial deities being worſhipped by the deluded heathen : but to us there is but one God, in oppoſition to the pagan polytheiſm, one in eſſence and operation, who is repreſented in the goſpel revelation as the Father, of whom are all things, the Creator, Governor, and Preſerver of all, and we in him, living, moving, and having our being ; and one Lord Jeſus Chriſt, not another God, and, like the heathen deities, of an inferior nature, but a partaker of the ſame undivided Godhead and glory, by whom are all things, and we by him ; one in operation with the Father, as Creator of all, and as Me-

Mediator, in his perſonal character appointed to govern the peculiar kingdom delegated to him, to be our advocate for all bleſſings, and the diſpenſer of them to his redeemed people.

7. Howbeit there is not in every man that knowledge: for ſome [n] with conſcience of the idol unto this hour, eat it as a thing offered unto an idol; and their conſcience [o] being weak, is defiled. 8. But [p] meat commendeth us not to God: for neither if we eat, are we the better; neither if we eat not, are we the worſe. 9. But [q] take heed leſt by any means this liberty of yours become [r] a ſtumbling-block to them that are weak. 10. For if any man ſee thee which haſt knowledge ſit at meat [s] in the idol's temple, [t] ſhall not the conſcience of him which is weak be emboldened to eat thoſe things which are offered to idols: 11. And [u] through thy knowledge ſhall the weak brother periſh, for whom Chriſt died? 12. But when ye ſin ſo againſt the brethren, and wound their weak conſcience, ye ſin againſt Chriſt. 13. Wherefore [x] if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no fleſh while the world ſtandeth, leſt I make my brother to offend.

[n] Chap. x. 28.
[o] Rom. xiv. 14, 23.
[p] Ib. 17.
[q] Gal. v. 13.
[r] Rom. xiv. 13, 20.
[s] Amos ii. 8.
[t] Chap. x. 29.
[u] Rom. xiv. 15, 20.
[x] Rom. xiv. 21. 2 Cor. xi. 29.

v. 7—13. Admitting the vanity of idols, the apoſtle ſhews, that for the ſake of a weak brother they ought, notwithſtanding, to abridge themſelves of that liberty they might otherwiſe take, and not offend them by eating what was offered in ſacrifice to thoſe abominable deities. For,

1. Some of the new converts, not having entirely loſt their veneration for thoſe idols which they uſed to worſhip, nor as yet wholly perſuaded of their vanity, ſtill when they eat their ſacrifices, pay them ſome ſort of honour and regard; and their conſcience being thus weak, through their remaining ignorance, is defiled with the guilt of idolatry.

2. We ſhould be cautious therefore for others' ſake, though we ourſelves have knowledge, leſt we ſhould become a ſtumbling-block to them that are weak, conſidering that meat of one kind or another, uſed or abſtained from, is no recommendation to God's favour: for neither if we eat the food, without any reſpect to the idol, are we the better; neither if we eat not, prudently abſtaining for others' ſake, are we the worſe. But though the eating of the idol ſacrifices be never ſo innocent in itſelf, yet it may prove a great hurt to the conſciences of the weak, who ſeeing you eating in an idol-temple, may be emboldened by your example, though not ſatisfied of the lawfulneſs of the action, to do the like; and thus what you, who know the vanity of idols, might otherwiſe do innocently, may be the means of leading a weaker brother to wound his conſcience with guilt, for whom Chriſt died; and who, having made profeſſion of his faith, is, in the judgment of charity, to be reckoned among his redeemed people. But when ye ſin ſo againſt the brethren, and wound their weak conſcience, ye ſin againſt Chriſt, whoſe compaſſions towards the lambs of his flock are great, and he will reſent every ſlight put upon them, and every offence given to them. Wherefore if meat offered to idols make my brother to offend, I will eat no fleſh while the world ſtandeth, of any ſuch ſacrifice, however innocent the thing may be in itſelf, leſt I make my brother to offend. Note, It is not enough that we avoid what is ſinful ourſelves; Chriſtian charity will teach us even to abridge ourſelves of liberty in lawful things for others' good.

CHAP. IX.

In this chapter the apoſtle ſeems to anſwer ſome cavils againſt himſelf. 1. He aſſerts his apoſtolical miſſion and authority, and gives in his ſucceſs amongſt them, as a teſtimony to it, ver. 1—3. 2. He claims a right to ſubſiſt by his miniſtry, and defends it by ſeveral arguments from natural reaſon and the Moſaical law, and aſſerts it alſo to be a conſtitution of Chriſt, ver. 3—15. 3. He ſhews that he had willingly waved this privilege and power for their benefit, ver. 15—20. 4. He inſtances in ſeveral other things, in which he had denied himſelf for the ſake of other men's ſpiritual intereſt and ſalvation, ver. 20—24. And, 5. Concludes this argument by ſhewing what animated him to this courſe, even the proſpect of an incorruptible crown, ver. 24, ad finem.

1. [a] AM I not an apoſtle? am I not free? [b] have I not ſeen Jeſus Chriſt our Lord? [c] are not you my work in the Lord? 2. If I be not an apoſtle unto others, yet doubtleſs I am to you: for [d] the ſeal of mine apoſtleſhip are ye in the Lord. 3. Mine anſwer to them that do examine me, is this, 4. [e] Have we not power to eat and to drink? 5. [f] Have we not power to lead about a ſiſter a wife as well as other apoſtles, and as the brethren of the Lord, [g] and Cephas? 6. Or I only and Barnabas, [h] have not we power to forbear working? 7. Who goeth [i] a warfare any time at his own charges? [k] Who [l] planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who [m] feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? 8. Say I theſe things as a man? or ſaith not the law the ſame alſo? 9. For it is written in the law of Moſes, [n] Thou ſhalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen? 10. Or ſaith he it altogether for our ſakes? for our ſakes, no doubt, this was written: [o] that he that ploweth ſhould plow in hope; and that he that threſheth in hope ſhould be partaker of his hope. 11. [p] If we have ſown unto you ſpiritual things, is it a great thing if we ſhall reap your carnal things? 12. If others be partakers of this power over you, are not we rather? [q] Nevertheleſs, we have not uſed this power; but ſuffer all things, [r] leſt we ſhould hinder the goſpel of Chriſt. 13. [s] Do ye not know that they which miniſter about holy things, live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? 14. [t] Even ſo hath the Lord ordained, that [u] they which preach the goſpel, ſhould live of the goſpel.

[a] 2 Cor. xi. 5. & xii. 11. 1 Tim. ii. 7.
[b] Acts ix. 5. & xxii. 18. & xxiii. 11. Chap. xv. 8.
[c] Chap. iv. 15.
[d] 2 Cor. iii. 2. & xii. 12.
[e] Luke x. 7. Chap. vi. 12. Ver. 14. 2 Theſ. iii. 8, 9.
[f] 1 Tim. iv. 3.
[g] Mat. viii. 14.
[h] Acts xx. 34. 2 Theſ. iii. 9.
[i] 2 Cor. x. 4.
[k] Prov. xxvii. 18.
[l] Chap. vi.
[m] John xxi. 15. 1 Pet. v. 2.
[n] Deut. xxv. 4. 1 Tim. v. 18.
[o] 2 Tim. ii. 6.
[p] Rom. xv. 27. Gal. vi. 6.
[q] Acts xx. 34. 2 Cor. xi. 9.
[r] 2 Cor. xi. 12.
[s] Lev. vi. 16, 26. & vii. 6. Num. v. 9. Deut. xviii. 1.
[t] Mat. x. 10.
[u] Gal. vi. 6. 1 Tim. v. 17.

v. 1—14. It ſeems probable that the falſe teachers had raiſed ſome objection againſt Paul's authority as an apoſtle, becauſe he had not aſſerted that right to a maintainance which was due to his office, and waving his privilege had refuſed to be burdenſome to them.

1. He vindicates his authority: if he had not inſiſted on a maintainance, it was for their ſakes he had waved this right. Am not I an apoſtle, becauſe I have acted thus diſintereſted? am not I free to claim a ſubſiſtance, if I chooſe it? have I not ſeen Jeſus Chriſt our Lord? and received my commiſſion immediately from him? Are not you my work in the Lord? the converts of my miniſtry, and the fruit of my labours in the goſpel. If I be not an apoſtle to others, yet doubtleſs I am to you, who owe to me chiefly, as the inſtrument, all you know and are: for the ſeal of my apoſtleſhip are ye in the Lord; the Lord atteſting the truth of my miſſion, by the ſucceſs with which he bleſſed my miniſtry to your ſouls. Note, (1.) The beſt of men and miniſters may expect to meet with malignant revilers. (2.) They who have been bleſt under our miniſtry have in themſelves the ſtrongeſt proof that we are ſent of God.

2. He aſſerts his right to all the privileges of an apoſtle. In anſwer to thoſe who preſumed to ſit in judgment on his character, he replies, Have we not power to eat and to drink? have not Barnabas and I a claim upon you for a maintainance, tho' we have not exerted it? Have we not power to lead about a ſiſter a wife, and to expect a proviſion for our families as we are travelling from place to place, as well as other apoſtles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas? Or I only and Barnabas, who were particularly ſent to the Gentiles, have not we power to forbear working? and muſt earn with our hands that maintainance which the other apoſtles are entitled to for their work's ſake? How abſurd and unreaſonable is ſuch a ſuppoſition! Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? the ſoldier hath his ſtipend and proviſions. Who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? the vine-dreſſer is fed with the produce of his toil: or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? If theſe are juſtly entitled to eat the labour of their hands, much more have the miniſters of the goſpel, who ſuſtain all theſe characters, a right to a competent proviſion. Say I theſe things as a man? merely on the footing of equity; or ſaith not the law the ſame alſo? let even my Judaizing oppoſers and maligners judge. For it is written in the law of Moſes, Thou ſhalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn, but whilſt he works, he ſhall be permitted to eat. Doth God take care for oxen? was this precept given merely with a reference to them; or ſaith he it altogether for our ſakes, who labour in the goſpel? for our ſakes, no doubt, this is written, that he that ploweth, breaking up the fallow ground of the ſinner's heart, ſhould plow in hope of a reaſonable return; and that he that threſheth in hope, ſeparating the chaff of corruption from the good ſeed of grace in the heart, ſhould be partaker of his hope. And as the plowman and threſher eat the fruit of their toils, ſo much more ſhould the laborious miniſter in God's ſpiritual huſbandry have a juſt recompenſe of reward. If we have ſown unto you ſpiritual things, is it a great thing, or unreaſonable for us to expect, or for you to give, that we ſhould reap your carnal things, and have a maintainance, when the value between the ſpiritual bleſſings we communicate, and the pittance we ſhould receive, is ſo diſproportionate? If others be partakers of this power over you, and are ſupported at your expence, to whom ye never were or can be ſo indebted as unto us; are not we rather entitled to a proviſion, if we choſe to claim it? Nevertheleſs, we have not uſed this power, nor inſiſted on what we had a right to demand; but ſuffer all things, chuſing to undergo any want and hardſhips, leſt we ſhould hinder the goſpel of Chriſt, and raiſe a prejudice in your minds, that our views were mercenary. But do ye not know, that they which miniſter about holy things, live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar, and receive their maintainance from their ſhare in the ſacrifices and oblations? Even ſo hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the goſpel, ſhould live of the goſpel. So that it appears, (1.) In the very reaſon of the thing; (2.) From the law of Moſes; (3.) From Chriſt's expreſs inſtitution, (Luke x. 7.) that the miniſters of Chriſt have a right to be ſupported becomingly by thoſe among whom they labour.

[x] Ver. 12. 1 Theſ. ii. 9. 2 Theſ. iii. 8. [y] 2 Cor. xi. 10, &c. [z] Amos iii. 8. Rom. i. 14. [a] Chap. iii. 8. [b] Chap. iv. 1. Col. i. 25.

15. [x] But I have uſed none of theſe things. Neither have I written theſe things that it ſhould be ſo done unto me: for [y] it were better for me to die than that any man ſhould make my glorying void. 16. For though I preach the goſpel, I have nothing to glory of: for [z] neceſſity is laid upon me; yea, wo is unto me, if I preach not the goſpel. 17. For if I do this thing willingly, [a] I have a reward: but if againſt my will, [b] a diſpenſation of the goſpel is committed unto me. 18. What is my reward then? verily, that when I preach the goſpel, I may make the goſpel of Chriſt without charge, that I abuſe not my power in the goſpel.

v. 15—18. The apoſtle mentions his own diſintereſted conduct; for nothing is more oppoſite to the character of a Chriſtian miniſter, than the very ſhadow of mercenary views. I have uſed none of theſe things, nor ever claimed my right among you; neither have I written theſe things that it ſhould be ſo done unto me, on any future occaſion: for it were better for me to die, than that any man ſhould make my glorying void: I had rather wear out my body with labour to miniſter to my own wants, than not preach the goſpel to you freely, and thereby cut off occaſion from thoſe, who, if I received any recompenſe, would thence take a handle to prejudice you againſt me. For though I preach the goſpel, I have nothing to glory of: for neceſſity is laid upon me, and I cannot but obey the Maſter's orders: yea, wo is unto me if I preach not the goſpel; I muſt be expoſed to the bittereſt accuſations of unfaithfulneſs, and juſtly ſink under the heavieſt vengeance. For if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward; the conſciouſneſs of diſintereſted zeal is a ſatisfaction to my own ſoul, and the Lord will remember and reward my labours of love: but if againſt my will I labour, a diſpenſation of the goſpel is committed unto me, and I am bound to be faithful. What is my reward then? verily that when I preach the goſpel, I may make the goſpel of Chriſt without charge; ſhewing the diſintereſted fidelity with which I act, and approving myſelf to God, and to my own conſcience, that I abuſe not my power in the goſpel, nor exact even what I have authority to demand, demonſtrating to the people, that I ſeek not theirs, but them. Note, For the ſake of Chriſt it is prudent often to forego our rights and privileges, and to wave the claims to that reward, to which our office and labours may entitle us.

[c] Chap. x. 33. Gal. v. 13. [d] 1 Pet. iii. 1. [e] Acts xvi. 3, & xviii. 18. & xxi. 26. [f] Gal. ii. 3. [g] Chap. vii. 22. [h] Rom. xv. 1. 2 Cor. xi. 29. [i] Chap. x. 33. [k] Rom. xi. 14. Chap. vii. 16.

19. For though I be free from all men, [c] yet have I made myſelf ſervant unto all, that [d] I might gain the more. 20. And [e] unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; to them that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law; 21. [f] To them that are without law, as without law, ([g] being not without law to God, but under the law to Chriſt) that I might gain them that are without law. 22. [h] To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: [i] I am made all things to all men, [k] that I might by all means ſave ſome. 23. And this I do for the goſpel's ſake, that I might be partaker thereof with you.

v. 19—23. In other inſtances of Chriſtian liberty, as well as the foregoing, the apoſtle ſets us a noble example of ſelf-denial. For though I be free from all men, and under no obligations to be ſubſervient to their will or humour; yet have I made myſelf ſervant unto all, willing in all indifferent matters to conform to them, and deny myſelf, that thus engaging their affections and attention, I might gain the more, and win them over to embrace the doctrines and ways of the goſpel. And for this purpoſe, unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; not refuſing to obſerve thoſe ceremonials in their worſhip, to which, though indifferent in themſelves, they were ſtill attached. To them that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law; ſubmitting to many of its ordinances, to engage the affection of my Jewiſh brethren, who ſtill maintain their veneration for the divinely-inſtituted ſervice of the ſanctuary. To them that are without law, as without law; not urging on them circumciſion, or any of the ceremonial inſtitutions, as at all neceſſary to ſalvation; but inſiſting on the neceſſity of faith in Chriſt alone, (being not without law to God, as if the moral law was abrogated, as well as the ceremonial; but under the law to Chriſt, walking in faith and holineſs, according to the obligations which the goſpel lays upon me,) that I might gain them that are without law, and lay no needleſs obſtacles in the way of the Gentiles, but preaching the ſimple goſpel, might engage their hearts to Jeſus and his bleſſed ſervice. To the weak became I as weak, condeſcending to their infirmities, and abſtaining even from things innocent and lawful, where their conſcience was ſcrupulous, that I might gain the weak, and lead them on to farther attainments of knowledge and grace. In ſhort, I am made all things to all men, ſtudying to pleaſe every man for his good to edification, that I might by all means ſave ſome, and, through the bleſſing of the Redeemer, be made the inſtrument of their converſion. And this I do for the goſpel's ſake, if poſſible to remove all prejudice and objections, that I might be partaker thereof with you, and come to ſhare with you in all its ſaving bleſſings and benefits. Note, It is highly our duty to avoid every unneceſſary occaſion of offence, and in all indifferent things to forego our own will and pleaſure for the profit of our neighbour.

[l] Gal. v. 7. Phil. iii. 14. 2 Tim. iv. 7. Heb. xii. 1. [m] Eph. vi. 12. 1 Tim. vi. 12. 2 Tim. ii. 5. & iv. 7. [n] 2 Tim. iv. 8. Jam. i. 12. 1 Pet. v. 4. Rev. ii. 10. & iii. 11. [o] Rom. viii. 13. Col. iii. 5. [p] Rom. vi. 19.

24. Know ye not that they which run in a race, run all, but one receiveth the prize? [l] ſo run that ye may obtain. 25. And every man that [m] ſtriveth for the maſtery, is temperate in all things: Now, they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we [n] an incorruptible. 26. I therefore ſo run, not as uncertainly, ſo fight I, not as one that beateth the air. 27. But [o] I keep under my body, and [p] bring it into ſubjection: leſt that by any means when I have preached to others, I myſelf ſhould be a caſt-away.

v. 24—27. To quicken them to imitate his own example, and give all diligence to make their calling and election ſure, he propoſes to them the caſe of thoſe who in the Iſthmian games contended for victory. Know ye not that they which run in a race, run all, but one receiveth the prize? the prize itſelf was in value trivial, though ſuch pains were uſed to obtain it; and only one could there poſſeſs the honour. Here the prize is no leſs than eternal life, and all who run are ſure to win: ſo run then with faith, patience, and perſeverance, that ye may obtain the ineſtimable reward. And again, every man that ſtriveth for the maſtery, and would overcome, as wreſtlers or boxers in the games, is temperate in all things, that by obſerving the moſt exact regimen, and bringing their bodies into the beſt order, they may be the better prepared for the conflict. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, of withering leaves or flowers; but we have an incorruptible crown of glory in view, compared with which theirs is poor and trivial; and therefore how much more are we bound to deny our appetites; with how much greater earneſtneſs ought we to contend for victory, where we are ſure, if we fight manfully, to conquer, and the reward will be ſo unutterably and eternally glorious. I therefore, in this view, ſo run with unwearied diligence my Chriſtian courſe, not as uncertainly, obſerving the path of duty preſcribed, not dubious concerning the iſſue, but ſure through Chriſt to win the prize. So fight I againſt the world, the fleſh, and the devil, not as one that beateth the air, not merely exerciſing my arms as the boxers, that they might be ready for the combat; but I keep under my body, (υποπιαζω) mortify its corrupt appetites, as the boxers, who beat their antagoniſts black and blue; and bring it into ſubjection, (δȣλαγωγω) as the wreſtlers, when their adverſary was thrown under them; leſt that by any means when I have preached to others the neceſſity of ſuch mortification, diligence, and ſelf-denial, I myſelf, through negligence or unfaithfulneſs, ſhould be overcome by my corrupted nature and ſpiritual foes, and be a caſt-away at laſt (αδοκιμος), rejected by the great Judge, and counted unfit for the promiſed reward. And this holy jealouſy which I feel for myſelf, I inculcate upon you, that in the uſe of all appointed means you may ſecure the glorious prize, and be approved of the Lord in the great day of his appearing. Note, (1.) In our Chriſtian race and warfare, what diligence, conſtancy, and courage do we not need? bleſſed be God there is help laid on one mighty to ſave, and looking to him we are ſure to gain the prize. (2.) Our bodies are our great ſnare, and the mortification of ſenſual appetite is abſolutely neceſſary in order to the ſalvation of the immortal ſoul. (3.) Holy jealouſy over ourſelves is the great preſervative againſt apoſtacy. (4.) Tho' God's elect can never be finally caſt away, and the apoſtle ſtrove not as uncertainly; yet we muſt remember God hath ordained the means as well as the end, and that we but deceive ourſelves, if we promiſe ourſelves ſafety, when we grow negligent, and work not out our ſalvation with fear and trembling. (5.) Many have appeared with zeal in the cauſe of Chriſt, and have been the means of ſaving others, who have periſhed themſelves. Let him that thinketh he ſtandeth, take heed leſt he fall.

CHAP. X.

In this chapter the apoſtle proſecutes the argument at the cloſe of the laſt, and (1.) Warns the Corinthians againſt ſecurity by the example of the Jews, whoſe hiſtory is left upon record for the admonition of Chriſtians, ver. 1—15. (2.) He reſumes his former argument, chap. viii. about eating things offered to idols; and ſhews that it is utterly inconſiſtent with true Chriſtianity, ver. 15—23. (3.) He lets them yet know, that though they muſt not eat of things ſacrificed to idols as ſuch, and out of any regard to the idol, yet they might buy ſuch fleſh in the markets, and eat it at the table of heathen acquaintance, without aſking any queſtions: for that the heathen's abuſe of them did not render the creatures of God unfit to be the food of his ſervants. Yet liberty of this kind muſt be uſed with a due regard to weak conſciences, and no offence given by it to Jew or Gentile, or the church of God, ver. 23, ad finem.

1. MOreover, brethren, I would not that ye ſhould be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under [a] the cloud, and all paſſed [b] through the ſea; 2. And were all baptized unto Moſes in the cloud, and in the ſea; 3. And did all eat the ſame [c] ſpiritual meat; 4. And did all drink the ſame [d] ſpiritual drink: (For they drank of that ſpiritual Rock that [e] followed them: and that Rock was Chriſt.) 5. But with many of them God was not well pleaſed: for [f] they were overthrown in the wilderneſs. 6. Now theſe things were our examples, to the intent we ſhould not luſt after evil things, as [g] they alſo luſted. 7. [h] Neither be ye idolaters, as were ſome of them; as it is written, [i] The people ſat down to eat and drink, and roſe up to play. 8. [k] Neither let us commit fornication, as ſome of them committed, and [l] fell in one day three and twenty thouſand. 9. Neither let us tempt Chriſt, as [m] ſome of them alſo tempted, and [n] were deſtroyed of ſerpents. 10. Neither murmur ye, as [o] ſome of them alſo murmured, and [p] were deſtroyed of the deſtroyer. 11. Now all theſe things happened unto them for enſamples: and [q] they are written for our admonition, [r] upon whom the ends of the world are come. 12. Wherefore [s] let him that thinketh he ſtandeth, take heed leſt he fall. 13. There hath no temptation taken you, but ſuch as is common to man: but [t] God is faithful, [u] who will not ſuffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation alſo [x] make a way to eſcape, that ye may be able to bear it.

[a] Ex. xiii. 21. Num. ix. 18, &c. Neh. ix. 19, &c. Pſ. lxxviii. 15, &c.
[b] Ex. xiv. 22. Heb. xi. 29.
[c] Ex. xvi. 14, &c. John vi. 49, 50.
[d] Ex. xvii. 6. Num. xx. 11. John iv. 14.
[e] Deut. ix. 21.
[f] Num. xxvi. 65. Heb. iii. 17.
[g] Num. xi. 4, 33. Pſ. cvi. 14.
[h] 1 John v. 21.
[i] Ex. xxxii. 6.
[k] Chap. vi. 18.
[l] Num. xxv. 1, 9.
[m] Ex. xvii. 2, 7. Num. xxi. 5. Pſ. lxxviii. 18. & xcv. 9.
[n] Num. xxi. 6.
[o] Ex. xvi. 2. & xvii. 2. Num. xiv. 2. & xvi. 41.
[p] Num. xiv. 37.
[q] Rom. xv. 4. Chap. ix. 10.
[r] Chap. vii. 29. Phil. iv. 5. Heb. x. 37. 1 John ii. 18.
[s] Rom. xi. 20. 1 Theſ. v. 4. 2 Theſ. iii. 3.
[u] Pſ. cxxv. 3. 2 Pet. ii. 9.
[x] Jer. xxix. 11.

v. 1—13. The apoſtle returns to the ſubject of eating the ſacrifices offered to idols.

1. He reminds the Corinthians of the diſtinguiſhed privileges, and fatal overthrow of the Iſraelites in the wilderneſs. Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye ſhould be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all paſſed through the ſea, led by divine protection, covered from the heat by day, and cheered by the light of fire by night; preſerved amidſt the watery walls, and ſafely traverſing the ocean's bed; and were all baptiſed unto Moſes in the cloud, and in the ſea, ſprinkled with ſome drops from the cloud, or the ſpray of the daſhing waves; and were all brought under the Moſaical law, as we by baptiſm are viſibly admitted into the church of Chriſt, and devoted to his ſervice. And did all eat of the ſame ſpiritual meat, the manna which fell around their tents, the figure of Chriſt, the true bread which came down from heaven, on whom his redeemed ſacramentally feed to the end of time; and did all drink of the ſame ſpiritual drink; for they drank of that ſpiritual rock which followed them, and that rock was Chriſt. Through all the deſart the living ſtreams guſhed forth to ſlake their thirſt; and that divine Redeemer, whom the rock prefigured, the fountain of living waters, and ſtreams from Lebanon, he, by his gracious preſence, was in the midſt of them: as he is ſtill in the hearts of all his people a well of water ſpringing up into everlaſting life. But, though all enjoyed theſe diſtinguiſhing privileges, with many of them God was not well pleaſed, for they were overthrown in the wilderneſs; and, for their diſobedience and rebellions, were not ſuffered to enter into the land of promiſe, the type of the heavenly Canaan; but their carcaſes fell in the deſart. Note, It is not outward privileges enjoyed, but inward grace poſſeſſed, which alone can bring us to the eternal inheritance, and the reſt which remaineth for the people of God.

2. From their examples, the apoſtle warns the Corinthians not to be ſecure, notwithſtanding their diſtinguiſhed privileges, leſt, imitating their ſins, they ſhould be expoſed to like puniſhment. (1.) He cautions them againſt the indulgence of their appetite. Diſſatisfied with the manna, the Iſraelites luſted after fleſh to eat. Againſt ſuch luxury they muſt beware, and particularly avoid the idol-feaſts or ſacrifices, which could not but have the moſt fatal conſequences. Note, To pleaſe the palate, how many have plunged both body and ſoul into hell! (2.) He warns them againſt idolatry, ſuch as the Iſraelites committed, when, having offered their ſacrifices to the calf, they ſat down to feaſt upon them, and according to the heathen cuſtom, roſe up to dance around him to do him honour; but they ſeverely ſmarted for their folly, Exod. xxxii. 10, 28. (3.) He admoniſhes them againſt fornication, ſuch as the Jews committed with the daughters of Moab, and to which they were led at their idol feaſts; the dire conſequence of which was, that in one day three and twenty thouſand were cut off by the immediate judgment of God. With ſuch an inſtance of divine vengeance before them, they had need tremble for themſelves in a city ſo abandoned to lewdneſs as Corinth was, knowing that none of their privileges could protect them, if they ſinned, but that whoremongers, and adulterers, God will judge. (4.) He warns them againſt all diſhonourable diſtruſt of the power and grace of Chriſt to carry them through their difficulties, remembering the vengeance inflicted upon thoſe of old, who tempted and provoked God by their unbelief, Numb. xxi. 14. and were deſtroyed by the fiery ſerpents. Note, When unbelief prevails, then the old ſerpent, the devil, reſumes his dominion over the ſoul. (5.) He cautions them againſt all diſcontent under their ſufferings or trials, and to beware of thoſe who would inſtigate them to murmur againſt him, and the other miniſters of Chriſt, for what they delivered from him. Thus murmured the Iſraelites againſt Moſes and Aaron, and at the difficulties they apprehended, and were deſtroyed by the angel's hand. Theſe things were all recorded for the admonition of the church; and what befel God's profeſſing people of old, ſhould be a warning to us at preſent, who live under the laſt diſpenſation which God will ever grant, that, having their fearful puniſhment, we might avoid the like provocations. Wherefore, let him that thinketh he ſtandeth, ſecure and immoveable, take heed, leſt, puffed up with high imaginations of his own ſufficiency, he fall, as the Iſraelites did of old. Note, (1.) Others falls ſhould be our warnings. (2.) Diſtruſt of ourſelves, and dependance upon the power and grace of the Redeemer, are our great ſtability.

3. He encourages the faithful among them, under all their trials, to truſt and not be afraid. There hath no temptation taken you, but ſuch as is common to man, ſuch as you might expect from the world around; or ſuch as is incident to the human nature; or, at leaſt, none ſo grievous but you may well bear up under it. But however ſevere your temptations may be, God is faithful to his promiſes, who will not ſuffer you to be tempted above what ye are able, but will with the temptation alſo make a way to eſcape, that ye may be able to bear it, ſupporting you whilſt it laſts, and in his good time giving you deliverance from it; ſo that you ſhall neither be drawn into ſin, nor faint under your ſufferings. Note (1.) We muſt not think our trials, however ſevere, ſingular, and murmur; others have felt the ſame before us. (2.) God's faithfulneſs ſhould be the anchor of our hope. (3.) Our Redeemer is mighty, we may ſafely truſt him. (4.) God knows beſt what afflictions we need, and how long we ſhould be exerciſed with them. To him let us always refer ourſelves, caſting our care upon him.

14. Wherefore, my dearly beloved, [y] flee from idolatry. 15. I ſpeak as to wiſe men: [z] judge ye what I ſay. 16. The cup of bleſſing which we bleſs, [a] is it not the communion of the blood of Chriſt? The bread which we break, [b] is it not the communion of the body of Chriſt? 17. For [c] we being many are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that [d] one bread. 18. [e] Behold Iſrael after the fleſh: are not they which eat of the ſacrifices partakers of the altar? 19. What ſay I then? [f] that the idol is any thing, or that which is offered in ſacrifice to idols is any thing? 20. But I ſay, that the things which the Gentiles ſacrifice, [g] they ſacrifice to devils, and not to God: and I would not that ye ſhould have fellowſhip with devils. 21. [h] Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of devils: ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and of the table of devils. 22. [i] Do we provoke the Lord to jealouſy? [k] are we ſtronger than he?

[y] 1 John v. 21.
[z] 1 Theſ. v. 21.
[a] Mat. xxvi. 28.
[b] Chap. xi. 24.
[c] Rom. xii. 5. Chap. xii. 27.
[d] John vi. 33.
[e] Lev. iii. 3. & vii. 15.
[f] Chap. viii. 4.
[g] Lev. xvii. 7. Deut. xxxii. 17. Pſ. cvi. 37. Rev. ix. 20.
[h] 2 Cor. vi. 15.
[i] Deut. xxxii. 21.
[k] Job ix. 19. Ezek. xxii. 14.

v. 14—22. From the foregoing premiſes the apoſtle returns to urge the neceſſity of ſhunning idolatry, in its moſt diſtant approaches, knowing the dreadful conſequences of it on the one hand, and the divine aſſiſtance promiſed on the other. He therefore, as dearly beloved, with warm affection, warns them to flee from idolatry, and as to wiſe men, whether really poſſeſſed of ſpiritual wiſdom, or vainly puffed up with their fancied high attainments, he appeals to them for the reaſonableneſs of what he advanced.

1. He inſtances in the caſe of the Lord's ſupper. The cup of bleſſing which we bleſs, is it not the communion of the blood of Chriſt? Do we not therein profeſs to hold communion with Chriſt in all his ſaving bleſſings? Do we not therein acknowledge our obligations to him, as bought with a price, to glorify him in our bodies and our ſpirits, which are his? The bread, or loaf, which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Chriſt? Doth it not repreſent to us his broken body? Doth not our feeding upon it ſignify our communion with him, who is the living bread? And do we not hereby profeſs our ſolemn devotedneſs to him, and union with each other? For we being many are one bread, as the different corns of wheat are moulded into one loaf, and intimately united in one body, of which Chriſt is the living head; for we are all partakers of that one bread, feaſting together upon the ſacrifice of Chriſt, herein ſhadowed forth; partakers of all the benefits obtained by his one oblation once offered; and thereby united to him in love, and to one another.

2. The caſe is the ſame with regard to the Jewiſh ſacrifices. Behold Iſrael after the fleſh, in their obſervance of the ritual ſervices; are not they which eat of the ſacrifices partakers of the altar? When they feaſt upon the remainder of the peace offerings, they profeſs communion with, and ſubjection to that God, on whoſe altar they offered their ſacrifice.

3. He applies what he had ſaid to the point in hand. What ſay I then, that the idol is any thing, or that which is ſacrificed to idols is any thing? No, I have declared the contrary, chap. viii. The idol is nothing, and the meat in its nature not altered. But I ſay, that the things which the Gentiles ſacrifice, they ſacrifice to devils, and not to God. The dæmons whom they worſhip are wicked and fallen ſpirits, with whom, in theſe ſacrifices, they maintain communion, and to whom they pay divine honours. And I would not that ye ſhould have fellowſhip with devils, as by parity of reaſon, conſidering the foregoing caſes, you muſt, if you feaſt with the idolaters on their ſacrifices. Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, the ſymbol of his blood, and the cup of devils, the libations conſecrated to theſe dæmons; ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and of the table of devils; there is an utter inconſiſtency in ſuch a conduct; Chriſt and Belial can have no communion. To feaſt, therefore, in idol temples, is to renounce Chriſtianity, its ſacraments, and privileges. Do we provoke the Lord Jeſus to jealouſy, by ſuch idolatry, in direct oppoſition to his holy law? Exod. xx. 3—5. Are we ſtronger than he? and do we defy the wrath of the Almighty? Surely deſtruction muſt be the conſequence. Note, When we have to do with a jealous God, how careful ſhould we be that no idol in our hearts, as well as no outward object of idolatry, rob him of his peculiar honour!

23. [l] All things are lawful for me, but all things are not † expedient: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not. 24. [m] Let no man ſeek his own: but every man another's wealth. 25. [n] Whatſoever is ſold in the ſhambles, that eat, aſking no queſtion for conſcience ſake. 26. For [o] the earth is the Lord's, and the fulneſs thereof. 27. If any of them that believe not bid you to a feaſt, and ye be diſpoſed to go; [p] whatſoever is ſet before you eat, aſking no queſtion for conſcience ſake. 28. But if any man ſay unto you, This is offered in ſacrifice unto idols, eat not, [q] for his ſake that ſhewed it, and for conſcience ſake. [r] For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulneſs thereof. 29. Conſcience, I ſay, not thine own, but of the others: for [s] why is my liberty judged of another man's conſcience? 30. For, if I by grace be a partaker, [t] why am I evil ſpoken of for that which I give thanks? 31. [u] Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatſoever ye do, do all to the glory of God. 32. [x] Give none offence, neither to the Jews nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God: 33. Even as [y] I pleaſe all men in all things, not ſeeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be ſaved.

l Chap. vi. 12.
† Or profitable.
m Rom. xv. 1, 2. Chap. xiii. 5. Phil. ii. 4.
n 1 Tim. iv. 4. Tit. i. 15.
o Deut. x. 14. Pſ. xxiv. 1. & l 10, 12. Ver. 28.
p Luke x. 7.
q Chap. viii. 10, 11.
r Ver. 26.
s Rom. xi. 16.
t 1 Tim. iv. 3, 4.
u Col. iii. 17. 1 Pet. iv. 11.
x Rom. xiv. 13. Chap. viii. 13. 2 Cor. vi. 3.
y Rom. xv. 2. Chap. ix. 19, 22. 2 Cor. xii. 19.

v. 23—33. The apoſtle here,

1. In general warns them againſt every abuſe of their Chriſtian liberty. All things are lawful for me, and theſe meats offered to idols are not thereby defiled, but all things are not expedient. There are circumſtances in which it would be duty to abſtain from what is, in its own nature, innocent and indifferent: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not; and therefore, if eating theſe ſacrifices gave offence to a weak brother, it would be then duty to abſtain, however clear I might be in the lawfulneſs of the thing. And this is a rule applicable to many other caſes; therefore, generally, let it be your practice that no man ſeek his own will, humour, or benefit, but every man another's wealth, ready to deny himſelf, in order to promote their advantage and edification.

2. He ſhews in what particular inſtances the meat offered to idols, might be ſafely eaten. (1.) If it was expoſed in the public market to be ſold, then they need not make any enquiries for conſcience ſake whence it came, but buy and uſe it for common food. For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulneſs thereof; and all the creatures are good, when uſed to his glory. (2.) If any heathen acquaintance bid you to a feaſt, and you have any inducement or obligation to go, whatever the table affords may be eaten without ſcruple; but if any perſon at the table ſuggeſts, this is offered in ſacrifice unto idols, eat not, for his ſake that ſhewed it, and for conſcience ſake, bearing your teſtimony thereby againſt all ſuch impious honours offered to dæmons, and keeping your conſcience void of offence. For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulneſs thereof, and he hath provided ſufficiency of other food, without diſhonouring him by the leaſt thing which might ſeem to countenance idolatrous worſhip. Abſtain for conſcience ſake, I ſay, not thine own, but of the others, who informed you, and might be grieved or ſtumbled by your example, though your own might receive no damage.

3. He anſwers an objection which might be raiſed. For why is my liberty judged of another man's conſcience? His conſcience is not to be the rule of my conduct. For if I by grace be a partaker, why am I evil ſpoken of for that, for which I give thanks?— In anſwer, he replies, that the following rules muſt be applied to all particular circumſtances. Some underſtand the apoſtle, not as ſpeaking in the perſon of an objector, but as declaring what he did in ſuch a caſe; and intimating how imprudent it would be to give others occaſion to paſs a wrong judgment upon him; for however lawful it might be for him to eat the meat which had been offered to idols, yet he was, for the ſake of his influence and uſefulneſs, to take care, that his good might not be evil ſpoken of, Rom. xiv. 16. and therefore he would abſtain. Two general rules he preſcribes,

1. Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatſoever ye do, do all to the glory of God, making that the ultimate end of all your actions.

2. Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God. Do nothing which ſhould grieve or ſtumble them; particularly, avoid the meat offered to idols, which the Jews abominated, and might prove a ſnare to the weaker Gentile converts. And what he recommended to them, he practiſed himſelf. Even as I pleaſe all men in all things, that I lawfully can, not ſeeking my own profit, humour, or inclination, but the profit of many, that they may be ſaved; ſollicitous, by every means, to win ſouls to the adored Redeemer, and to lead them in the ways of everlaſting life.

CHAP. XI.

In this chapter the apoſtle blames, and endeavours to rectify, ſome great indecencies and manifeſt diſorders in the church of Corinth. As (1.) The miſconduct of their women in the public aſſembly, ver. 1—17. (2.) He blames them for their diſcord, riot, and neglect and contempt of the poor at the Lord's-ſupper, ver. 17—23. (3.) To rectify theſe ſcandalous diſorders, he ſets before them the nature and intentions of this holy inſtitution, directs them how they ſhould attend on it, and warns them of the danger of a conduct ſo indecent as theirs, and of all unworthy receiving, ver. 23, to the end.

1. [a] BE ye followers of me, even as I alſo am of Chriſt. 2. Now I praiſe you, brethren, that [b] you remember me in all things, and [c] keep the ordinances, as I delivered them to you. 3. But I would have you know, that [d] the head of every man is Chriſt; and [e] the head of the woman, is the man; and [f] the head of Chriſt, is God. 4. Every man praying or propheſying, having his head covered, diſhonoureth his head. 5. But every woman that prayeth, or [g] propheſieth with her head uncovered, diſhonoureth her head: for that is even all one as if ſhe were ſhaven. 6. For if the woman be not covered, let her alſo be ſhorn: but if it be [h] a ſhame for a woman to be ſhorn or ſhaven, let her be covered. 7. For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, foraſmuch as [i] he is the image and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of the man. 8. For the man is not of the woman: but [k] the woman of the man. 9. Neither was the man created for the woman: [l] but the woman for the man. 10. For this cauſe ought the woman [m] to have power on her head, [n] becauſe of the angels. 11. Nevertheleſs, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man in the Lord. 12. For as the woman is of the man, even ſo is the man alſo by the woman: but [o] all things of God. 13. Judge in yourſelves: is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered? 14. Doth not even nature itſelf teach you, that if a man have long hair, it is a ſhame unto him? 15. But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her: for her hair is given her for a covering. 16. But [p] if any man ſeem to be contentious, we have no ſuch cuſtom, [q] neither the churches of God.

a Chap. iv. 16. Eph. v. 1. Phil. iii. 17. 1 Theſ. i. 6. 2 Theſ. iii. 9.
b Chap. iv. 17.
c 2 Theſ. ii. 15. & iii. 6.
d Rom. xiv. 9. Eph. v. 23. Phil. ii. 10, 11.
e Gen. iii. 16. 1 Pet. iii. 1, 6.
f John xiv. 28. Chap. iii. 23. & xv. 28.
g Acts ii. 17. & xxi. 9.
h Num. v. 18. Deut. xxii. 5.
i Gen. i. 27. Jam. iii. 9.
k Gen. ii. 22.
l Gen. ii. 18.
m Gen. xxiv. 65.
n Eccleſ. v. 6.
o Rom. xi. 36.
p 1 Tim. vi. 3, 4.
q Chap. xiv. 33.

v. 1—16. The apoſtle had propoſed to them, in the concluſion of the former chapter, his own example; and he here exhorts them, Be ye followers of me, as I alſo am of Chriſt. He copied after his divine maſter, and therefore could ſpeak freely, when his own practice was ſo eminently a comment on his diſcourſes.

1. To introduce, with greater efficacy, the reproofs which he was conſtrained to give, he commends them for what was praiſe-worthy among them. Now I praiſe you, brethren, that you remember me in all things, and keep the ordinances, as I delivered them unto you; at leaſt, the main body of the church loved, honoured, and reſpected him, and were obſervant of his inſtructions.

2. He lays a foundation for the rebuke which he was obliged to give, in reminding them of the ſuperiority of the man over the woman. I would have you know, that the head of every man is Chriſt; he is the Creator and Governor of all, and, in a peculiar manner, the head of his church: and the head of the woman is the man, who hath by creation and nature the ſuperiority, and therefore the woman ſhould be in ſubjection: And the head of Chriſt is God, conſidered as Mediator; and, in his human nature, he is inferior to the Father; though, in his Godhead, co-equal and co-eternal.

3. The thing he blames is, that their men prayed and propheſied covered, the women, uncovered. Veiling the head, in the Eaſtern countries, was regarded as a token of modeſty and ſubjection in the woman; and having the head uncovered, betokened the ſuperiority of the man: when therefore any man prayed or propheſied, leading the devotions of the congregation, with a covering on his head, he diſhonoured Chriſt his head, who had given him the ſuperiority; on the contrary, if any woman, under an extraordinary inſpiration, prays or propheſies in public, with her head uncovered, ſhe diſhonours the man who is her head, by ſuch an affectation of appearing like him; and, inſtead of modeſt ſubjection, pretends to an equality with him; and ſhe might, with equal decency, cut her hair ſhort, and wear it in the form peculiar to men, and thus appear unveiled. But if ſuch a ſight would appear ſhocking and highly immodeſt, in a religious aſſembly, then let her be covered. The man ought not to cover his head; it would be to debaſe his dignity, foraſmuch as he is the image and glory of God, inveſted with the ſupreme dominion; but the woman is the glory of the man, who hath the honour of being placed in the rank of creation above her, and hath a becoming dominion over her. For the man is not of the woman, created from her ſubſtance, but the woman is of the man, from his rib. Neither was the man created for the woman, ſeeing he was in being before her, but the woman for the man, to be his help-mate, and therein was implied a reaſonable ſubjection to him. For this cauſe ought the woman to have power over her head, and to be veiled, in token of her ſubjection, becauſe of the angels, or meſſengers of Chriſt, who ſhould preſide in the church, and it would be highly arrogant to affect equality with them. Nevertheleſs, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man in the Lord, both ſexes partaking alike of that common ſalvation which is in Jeſus Chriſt; ſo that though ſubjection be due, the woman is not to be tyrannized over as a ſlave, but to be cheriſhed with warmeſt affection and becoming reſpect. For as the the woman is of the man, taken from his ſide, even ſo is the man alſo by the woman, ſpringing from her; but all things of God, who hath placed each in their reſpective ſtations; which, therefore, for conſcience ſake, they ſhould diſcharge. Judge in yourſelves; is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered, affecting to be like the men, and inverting the eſtabliſhed order of God? Doth not nature itſelf teach you, that a diſtinction ſhould be obſerved in the dreſs of the different ſexes? And as ſuch is the cuſtom of the country where you live, to cut the hair ſhort, it is regarded as a token of great effeminacy to appear otherwiſe. So that if a man have long hair, it is a ſhame unto him. But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her, comely, and becoming her ſex; for her hair is given her for a covering, and ſhould be managed ſo as to avoid all confuſion of dreſs between the ſexes. But if any man ſeem to be contentious, and diſpoſed to vindicate ſuch a prepoſterous practice, we have no ſuch cuſtom, neither the churches of God, where every appearance of a contentious ſpirit is condemned, and all ſuch indecent affectation diſcountenanced.

17. Now in this that I declare unto you I praiſe you not, that you come together, not for the better, but for the worſe. 18. For firſt of all, when ye come together in the church, I hear that [r] there be † diviſions among you; and I partly believe it. 19. For [s] there muſt be alſo hereſies among you, [t] that they which are approved may be made manifeſt among you. 20. When ye come together therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's ſupper. 21. For in eating every one taketh before other, his own ſupper: and one is hungry, and [u] another is drunken. 22. What, have ye not houſes to eat and to drink in? or [x] deſpiſe ye the church of God, and [y] ſhame them that have not? What ſhall I ſay to you? ſhall I praiſe you in this? I praiſe you not.

[r] Chap. i. 10, 12. & iii. 3.
† Or ſchiſms.
[s] Deut. xiii. 3. Mat. xviii. 7. 1 Tim. iv. 1. 2 Pet. ii. 1.
[t] Luke ii. 35. 1 John ii. 19.
[u] 2 Pet. ii. 13. Jude xii.
[x] Lev. xix. 30.
[y] Jam. ii. 6

v. 17—22. Shocking abuſes early crept into the Corinthian church, ſome of which the apoſtle mentions, and ſharply rebukes the offenders. Though he would praiſe them (ver. 2.) in general, there were ſome among them who were a diſhonour to their holy profeſſion; who met with them, not for the better; to receive edification, but for the worſe, growing more corrupt, even in the very uſe of holy ordinances.

1. When ye come together in the church, I hear that there be diviſions among you, one being for Paul, and another for Apollos, and the church thus torn with factions; and I partly believe it. For there muſt be alſo hereſies among you; ſuch is the corruption of man's nature, and the craft of the wicked one, that tares will be ſown amongſt the wheat, and for wiſe purpoſes God permits it ſhould be ſo, that they which are approved may be made manifeſt among you, their faith tried, and their ſincerity evidenced. Note, (1.) Nothing is more fatal to the church of Chriſt, than uncharitable diviſions and diſcords between the members. (2.) God can over-rule, even the wickedneſs of apoſtates, to the furtherance of his people in faith and holineſs.

2. Some of them committed the moſt ſcandalous irregularities at the Lord's table. When ye come therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's ſupper, the method in which you proceed being utterly ſubverſive of the very intention of that holy ordinance; for in eating, every one taketh, before other, his own ſupper, as if it was a mere common meal; and what is ſtill worſe, one is hungry, the poor man goes away without any refreſhment, the bread and wine being devoured by thoſe who come firſt; and another is drunken, the rich indulging themſelves to the full, if not to exceſs. What a ſcandalous abuſe! Have ye not houſes to eat and to drink in? when you want to nouriſh your bodies? or deſpiſe ye the church of God, and put contempt on the poor members of it, and ſhame them that have not, have no houſes of their own, nor abilities to provide the elements for themſelves? What ſhall I ſay to you? ſhall I praiſe you in this, thus to form parties even in the church, and devour the proviſion of which the poor ſhould partake? No; aſſuredly, I praiſe you not; I blame you exceedingly.

23. For [z] I have received of the Lord, that which alſo I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jeſus, [a] the ſame night in which he was betrayed, took bread: 24. And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and ſaid, Take, eat; this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me. 25. After the ſame manner alſo he took the cup, when he had ſupped, ſaying, This cup is the New Teſtament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. 26. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do ſhew the Lord's death [b] till he come. 27. Wherefore whoſoever ſhall eat this bread and drink this cup of the Lord [c] unworthily, ſhall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. 28. But [d] let a man examine himſelf, and ſo [e] let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. 29. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh † damnation to himſelf, not diſcerning the Lord's body. 30. For this cauſe many are weak and ſickly among you, and many ſleep. 31. For [f] if we would judge ourſelves, we ſhould not be judged. 32. But when we are judged, [g] we are chaſtened of the Lord, that we ſhould not be condemned with the world. 33. Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another. 34. And if any man hunger, [h] let him eat at home; that ye come not together unto condemnation. And the reſt [i] will I ſet in order [k] when I come.

[z] Gal. i. 12.
[a] Mat. xxvi. 26.
[b] John xiv. 3. Acts i. 11. 1 Theſ. iv. 16. Jude xiv. 15.
[c] John vi. 63. & xiii. 27. Chap. x. 21.
[d] 2 Cor xiii. 5. Gal. vi. 4.
[e] Num. ix. 13.
† Or judgment. Rom. xiii. 2. Ver. 34.
[f] Pſ. xxxii. 5. Jer. vi. 8.
[g] Pſ. xciv. 13. Heb. xii. 5, 10.
[h] Ver. 22.
[i] Chap. vii. 17. Tit. i. 5.
[k] Chap. iv. 19.

v. 23—34. To rectify the groſs abuſes which he reprehended, the apoſtle ſets before them,

1. The true nature of the ſacred inſtitution, as he received it from the Lord, and had faithfully delivered it unto them. The Lord Jeſus, the king of his church, the ſame night in which he was betrayed, took bread; and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and ſaid, Take, eat; this bread is the ſymbol and repreſentation of my body, which is broken for you, and offered upon the croſs in your ſtead; this do in remembrance of me; continue, in this ordinance, a conſtant memorial of my dying love, and of the benefits you receive thereby. After the ſame manner alſo he took the cup, when he had ſupped, ſaying, This cup is the New Teſtament, or covenant in my blood, which is now ratified by the blood-ſhedding of the Mediator, and all the ineſtimable privileges contained in it ſecured to every believing ſoul. This do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me, frequently meeting to celebrate this ſacred feaſt, remembering therein my matchleſs grace, manifeſt in thoſe precious and plenteous drops of blood ſhed for your redemption; for as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do ſhew the Lord's death till he come, declaring your dependance thereon, as the ground of all your hope towards God, and openly profeſſing your faith in a crucified Redeemer, as all his people are called upon to do, until the day comes when they ſhall appear with him in glory.

2. He warns them of the danger of an irreverent uſe of this holy ordinance, Wherefore, whoſoever eateth and drinketh this cup of the Lord unworthily, in ſuch a ſcandalous, factious, and ſenſual manner, ſhall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord, incurring the heavy guilt of treating with contempt the blood of the covenant. But let a man examine himſelf, with regard to the truth of his faith, love, and converſion to God; and his knowledge of the deſign of this ſacred inſtitution, and ſo let him eat of that bread and drink of that cup, to his ſoul's edification and comfort. For he who eateth and drinketh unworthily, in the ſhocking manner before deſcribed, eateth and drinketh damnation to himſelf, provoking ſome temporal judgment of God upon him; not diſcerning the Lord's body, nor making a difference between the ſacred ſymbol thereof, and common food. For this cauſe many are weak and ſickly among you, and many ſleep, God viſiting in ſickneſs, diſeaſe, and death, your provocations. For if we would judge ourſelves, and ſeriouſly examine into our conduct, that with real penitence we might return unto God, we ſhould not be judged with ſuch heavy providential afflictions. But when we are thus judged, we are chaſtened of the Lord in mercy, that we ſhould not be condemned with the world, left to go on ſecurely, and periſh in our ſins. Note, (1.) None ſhould be diſcouraged from the Lord's table, who, on examining themſelves, can ſay, that in ſimplicity they deſire to approve themſelves to him. (2.) God never caſts away his people, though often for their good he viſits their offences with a rod, and their ſin with ſcourges.

3. He directs them how to celebrate this ſacred ordinance. Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another till all are aſſembled, and you can eat together; ſitting down, as children of one family, at the table of the Lord. And if any man hunger, let him eat at home, this being not deſigned as an ordinary meal; that ye come not together to condemnation, provoking God by your irreverence, diſſenſions, or exceſs. And the reſt, if there be any thing further amiſs, reſpecting the proper diſcipline to be obſerved, will I ſet in order when I come.

CHAP. XII.

In this chapter the apoſtle, (1.) Conſiders the caſe of ſpiritual gifts, which were very plentifully poured out on the Corinthian church. He conſiders their original, that they are from God; their variety and uſe, that they were all intended for one and the ſame general end, the advancement of Chriſtianity, and the church's edification, ver. 1—12. (2.) He illuſtrates this by an alluſion to an human body, in which all the members have a mutual relation and ſubſerviency, and each its proper place and uſe, ver. 12—27. (3.) He tells us, that the church is the body of Chriſt, and the members are variouſly gifted, for the benefit of the whole body and each particular member, ver. 27—30. And then, (4.) Cloſes with an exhortation to ſeek ſomewhat more beneficial than theſe gifts, ver. 31.

1. NOW [a] concerning ſpiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant. 2. Ye know that [b] ye were Gentiles, carried away unto theſe dumb idols, even as ye were led. 3. Wherefore I give you to underſtand, that [c] no man ſpeaking by the Spirit of God, calleth Jeſus accurſed: and that [d] no man can ſay that Jeſus is the Lord, but by the holy Ghoſt. 4. Now [e] there are diverſities of gifts, [f] but the ſame Spirit. 5. And there are differences of adminiſtrations, but the ſame Lord. 6. And there are diverſities of operations, but it is the ſame God [g] which worketh all in all. 7. But the manifeſtation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. 8. For to one is given by the Spirit [h] the word of wiſdom; to another [i] the word of knowledge by the ſame Spirit; 9. To another [k] faith by the ſame Spirit; to another [l] the gifts of healing by the ſame Spirit; 10. To another [m] the working of miracles; to another [n] prophecy; to another [o] diſcerning of ſpirits; to another [p] divers kinds of tongues; to another [q] the interpretation of tongues. 11. But all theſe worketh that one and the ſelf-ſame Spirit, [r] dividing to every man ſeverally [s] as he will.

[a] Chap. xiv. 1.
[b] Chap. vi. 11. Eph. ii. 11, 12. Tit. iii. 3. 1 Pet. iv. 3.
[c] Mark ix. 39.
[d] Mat. xvi. 17. 2 Cor. iii. 5. 1 John iv. 2, 3.
[e] Rom. xii. 6, 8. Eph. iv. 11. 1 Pet. iv. 10.
[f] Eph. iv. 4.
[g] Eph. i. 19.
[h] Chap. ii. 6.
[i] Chap. xiii. 2.
[k] Mat. xvii. 20. Chap. xiii. 2. Heb. xi. 33.
[l] Mark xvi. 11. Jam. v. 14.
[m] Acts xiv. 10. & xx. 12.
[n] Acts xi. 27.
[o] Acts v. 3. or Chap. xiv. 29.
[p] Acts ii. 4.
[q] Chap. xiv. 28.
[r] Chap. vii. 7. Eph. iv. 7.
[s] John iii. 8. Heb. ii. 4.

v. 1—11. The church of Corinth was greatly enriched in ſpiritual gifts, and theſe had been ſadly abuſed, and made an occaſion of much pride and contention. The apoſtle therefore here leads them to conſider the author, nature, deſign, and uſe of the extraordinary powers which were given them.

1. He reminds them, for their humiliation, of their former ſtate, Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carried away unto theſe dumb idols, even as ye were led, hurried on blindfold to worſhip theſe ſenſeleſs ſtocks and ſtones. Wherefore I give you to underſtand, now that God hath brought you out of darkneſs into his marvellous light, that no man ſpeaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jeſus accurſed, it being a ſure proof that both the Jewiſh exorciſts, and the heathen diviners who pretend to ſuch inſpiration, yet blaſpheme him from whom the Spirit proceeds, are lyars, and of their father the devil; and, on the other hand, no man can ſay that Jeſus is the Chriſt, but by the Spirit of God; to diſcover his all-ſufficiency for the work of redemption, and his ſuitableneſs to every neceſſity of our ſouls, we need a divine illumination: and though we may confeſs him to be the Chriſt with our lips, yet we can never experimentally know him to be our anointed Saviour, till it pleaſe God to reveal his Son in us. And all the miracles which are wrought in confirmation of this truth, are by the power of the holy Ghoſt, who intends thereby to glorify Chriſt. Let a man pretend to what he will, if he doth not know and love the Lord Jeſus, he muſt be deſtitute of the Spirit; but if he doth, then, however low his gifts may be, he hath an aſſured intereſt in the Saviour.

2. He directs them in the proper uſe of the ſpiritual gifts which they enjoyed. Now there are diverſities of gifts, but the ſame Spirit, who beſtows them in all their variety on private Chriſtians, or miniſters; and there are differences of adminiſtrations, of offices and ſervices, ſome ſuperior to the others, but the ſame Lord appoints to each his employment, and they act under his authority. And there are diverſities of operations, and miraculous powers, but it is the ſame Lord which worketh all in all, by whoſe mighty energy alone they are performed. But the manifeſtation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal; whatever gifts or powers he is endowed with, that manifeſt the preſence and energy of the holy Ghoſt, they are deſigned to promote the edification of the body of Chriſt, and to advance his glory. For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wiſdom, a clear underſtanding of the great doctrines of the goſpel, and ability to expreſs them with judgment and eloquence; to another the word of knowledge by the ſame Spirit, an inſight into the types and prophecies of the Old Teſtament, and a readineſs to explain and apply them. To another faith by the ſame Spirit, ſo that in the midſt of the moſt threatning dangers, he is enabled, confidently and quietly, to repoſe on God. To another the gifts of healing by the ſame Spirit, all manner of bodily diſeaſes, by a word or a touch inſtantaneouſly. To another the working of miracles, in mercy, or judgment, Acts viii. 40. Acts v. 5, 10. To another prophecy, or the power of foretelling future events; to another the diſcerning of ſpirits, under what influence, divine or diabolical, men act, what is their real deſign and qualifications, and who are fit to be publickly employed in the church; to another divers kinds of tongues, ſo as to underſtand and ſpeak fluently languages he had never learnt; to another the interpretation of tongues, the ability of rendering with exactneſs and propriety a foreign tongue, which the congregation may not underſtand, into their own native language. But all theſe worketh that one and the ſelf-ſame ſpirit, dividing to every man ſeverally, and ſovereignly, as he will. Note, (1.) The Holy Ghoſt is a divine perſon; he acts with ſovereignty in the diſtribution of his own gifts, and in energy and operation is one with the Father and the Son. (2.) All our gifts are beſtowed for ſervice, not to advance our own honour and intereſt, but the glory of God, and the ſalvation of men's ſouls.

12. For [t] as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: [u] ſo alſo is Chriſt. 13. For [x] by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, [y] whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and [z] have been all made to drink into one Spirit. 14. For the body is not one member, but many. 15. If the foot ſhall ſay, Becauſe I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body? 16. And if the ear ſhall ſay, Becauſe I am not the eye, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body? 17. If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? if the whole were hearing, where were the ſmelling? 18. But now hath [a] God ſet the members, every one of them in the body, [b] as it hath pleaſed him. 19. And if they were all one member, where were the body? 20. But now are they many members, yet but one body. 21. And the eye cannot ſay unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again, the head to the feet, I have no need of you. 22. Nay, much more thoſe members of the body which ſeem to be more feeble, are neceſſary. 23. And thoſe members of the body, which we think to be leſs honourable, upon theſe we beſtow more abundant honour, and our uncomely parts have more abundant comelineſs. 24. For our comely parts have no need: but God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honour to that part which lacked: 25. That there ſhould be no † ſchiſm in the body;

[t] Rom. xii. 4. Eph. iv. 4, 16.
[u] Ver. 27.
[x] Rom. vi. 5.
[y] Gal. iii. 28. Eph. ii. 14, 16. Col. iii. 11.
[z] John vii. 37, 39.
[a] Ver. 28.
[b] Rom. xii. 3.
† Or diviſion.

body; but that the members ſhould have the ſame care one for another. 26. And whether one member ſuffer, all the members ſuffer with it: or one member be honoured, all the members rejoice with it.

v. 12—26. The apoſtle repreſents the union ſubſiſting between the faithful who partake of the ſeveral gifts of the Spirit, under the ſimilitude of a human body conſiſting of many members: it is but one, though compoſed of various parts, which have each their particular function for the good of the whole. So alſo is the myſtical body of Chriſt; tho' conſiſting of different perſons, with different gifts, and appointed to different ſtations, yet all who are vitally united to him compoſe but one ſpiritual body, into which all, whether Jews or Gentiles, who have been baptiſed with water and the Holy Ghoſt, are by faith incorporated, and are nouriſhed by that one Divine Spirit that reſides in all his fulneſs in Chriſt, and is from him diffuſed through the ſeveral members, who thereby maintain communion with their exalted Head. Now in the natural body, (1.) Each member conſtitutes a part of the whole, and the meaneſt are needful: the foot and the ear, though leſs uſeful perhaps than the hand and eye, are yet equally parts of the body. The meaneſt Chriſtian is dear to the Saviour, and regarded by him as truly a member of his body as the nobleſt. (2.) There is a beauty in the variety of the different members: if the body were all eye or all ear, it would be defective and monſtrous. Thus the diverſity of offices and gifts in the church diſplay a beautiful ſymmetry. (3.) As in the body natural God gives, as he pleaſes, to every member its proper office; ſo, in the body myſtical, the Lord appoints to each his ſtation, and furniſhes him with gifts, which he is bound to receive with thankfulneſs, to uſe with diligence, and neither to murmur againſt the giver, nor envy the ſuperiority of others. (4.) Every member of the body contributes to the good of the whole. The eye wants the hand, the head the feet, nay the feebleſt members are neceſſary. Thus do thoſe who are in the moſt exalted ſtations in the church need the inferior members, and muſt not deſpiſe them as inſignificant or uſeleſs. (5.) In the body we ſhew peculiar regard to our uncomely parts, covering them with proper cloathing, which our comely parts do not need; and thus hath God ordered it, that we ſhould give more abundant honour to the part which lacketh. In like manner ought the more eminent in gifts and abilities in the church to hide the infirmities of their weaker brethren; not to reproach or deſpiſe them, but treat them with kindeſs and regard, and deſire to make them appear in the moſt reſpectable manner. (6.) In the body the ſuffering of one member gives pain to the whole, and all the members ſhare in the honour conferred on any particular part: ſuch a mutual ſympathy prevents all ſchiſm in the body, and obliges the members to have the ſame care one for another. The like fellow-feeling ſhould every Chriſtian have for his brother: we ſhould tenderly ſympathize with the afflicted in body or ſoul; and their temporal or ſpiritual proſperity, far from being the occaſion of our envy, ſhould be matter of our ſincereſt joy. All coldneſs and diſtance is as unnatural as a ſchiſm between the members, and ſhould be ſhunned as the moſt dangerous evil.

27. Now are [c] ye the body of Chriſt, and members in particular. 28. And [d] God hath ſet ſome in the church, [e] firſt apoſtles, ſecondarily prophets, [f] thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healing, [g] helps, [h] governments, diverſities of tongues. 29. [i] Are all apoſtles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles? 30. Have all the gifts of healing? do all ſpeak with tongues? do all interpret? 31. But [k] covet earneſtly the beſt gifts: [l] And yet ſhew I unto you a more excellent way.

[c] Rom. xii. 5. Eph. i. 23. & iv. 12. & v. 23, 30. Col. i. 24.
[d] Eph. iv. 11.
[e] Eph. ii. 20. & iii. 5.
[f] 1 Tim. v. 17.
[g] Numb. xi. 17. Acts vi. 3.
[h] Rom. xii. 8. Heb. xiii. 17, 24.
[i] Chap. xiv. 33.
[k] Chap. xiv. 1, 39.
[l] Chap. xiii. 1, &c.

v. 27—31. The apoſtle particularly apples the caſe in hand. Now are ye the myſtical body of Chriſt, and members in particular, each being a part of the whole. And God, in infinite wiſdom and with admirable propriety, hath ſet ſome in the church, appointing one to a higher, another to a lower ſtation. In the firſt rank ſtand the apoſtles, who received their commiſſion immediately from Chriſt himſelf: ſecondarily prophets, who are endued with the gift of foretelling future events: thirdly teachers, who labour in the word and doctrine, and are the ordinary miniſters of the goſpel: after that miracles, which ſome are endued with the power of working: then gifts of healing the ſick: helps, ſuch as are aſſiſtant to the ſuperior miniſters: governments, thoſe who preſide over the affairs of the church: others are endued with diverſities of tongues, the ability to ſpeak or interpret them. Are all apoſtles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles? have all the gifts of healing? do all ſpeak with tongues? do all interpret? No. Each has his appointed ſtation and peculiar gifts; wherein the higheſt are not to be envied, nor the loweſt to be deſpiſed. But covet earneſtly the beſt gifts. It may be regarded as his advice; or it may be read as an aſſertion, Ye do covet the beſt gifts, and blameably deſire to excel in theſe extraordinary endowments; or as an interrogation, Do ye covet earneſtly the beſt gifts? and envy each other's ſuperior attainments? Yet ſhew I unto you a more excellent way: a ſpirit of love, which prompts to every good word and work for the glory of God and the profit of men's ſouls, is far better and more deſireable than the moſt ſhining gifts. Note, (1.) Gifts, when valued becauſe of the eſteem which they procure us, more than for their uſe to the ſouls of men, prove the moſt fatal ſnare to the ſoul. (2.) One ſpark of godlike charity is infinitely preferable to all the glare of the moſt eminent titles or abilities.

CHAP. XIII.

In this chapter the apoſtle, 1. Recommends it by ſhewing the neceſſity and importance of it, ver. 1—4. 2. By giving a deſcription of the properties and fruits, ver. 4—8. 3. By ſhewing how much it excels the beſt of gifts and other graces, by its continuance when they ſhall be no longer in being or of any uſe, ver. 8. to the end.

1. THOUGH I ſpeak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as ſounding braſs, or a tinkling cymbal. 2. And though I have the gift of [a] prophecy, and underſtand all myſteries, and [b] all knowledge; and though I have [c] all faith, ſo that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing. 3. And [d] though I beſtow all my goods to feed the poor, and [e] though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

[a] Mat. vii. 22. Chap. xii. 28.
[b] Chap. viii. 1.
[c] Mat. xvii. 20. & xxi. 21.
[d] Mat. vi. 1, 2.
[e] John xv. 13.

v. 1—3. The more excellent way, which the apoſtle had been recommending, he here deſcribes; and that is charity or love, which is the greateſt of graces, ſhall endure for ever, when gifts are vaniſhed away, and without it they are nothing worth.

1. Though I ſpeak with the tongues of men, in all the various languages of the globe, or even of angels, and have not charity, or love, I am become as ſounding braſs, or a tinkling cymbal, ſo inharmonious, and a mere empty noiſe. Little reaſon therefore had the Corinthians to value themſelves upon the gifts of tongues, which only afforded occaſion for pride and contention. And,

2. Though I have the gift of prophecy, can foretel future events, and underſtand all myſteries, through divine illumination diſcovering the meaning of the moſt abſtruſe prophecies and figures; and have all knowledge, ſuch as never mortal man attained before; and have not charity, or love, it ſignifies nothing to my ſalvation. Such light would only be ſufficient to lead me into eternal darkneſs.

3. And though I had all faith, to work the moſt ſtupendous mirracles, ſo that I could remove mountains, and have no love, I am nothing in God's account, and utterly deſtitute of the ſpirit of vital Chriſtianity.

4. And though I beſtow all my goods to feed the poor, it would be utterly unprofitable to myſelf, if divine love was not the principle from which my almſgiving proceeded. Note, Many give largely to the poor, who never did a truly charitable act in their lives.

5. And though I give my body to be burned, for my profeſſion of the goſpel, and have not charity, or love to the Redeemer, and to men for his ſake, it profiteth me nothing. The affectation of leaving a great name, or the conceit of the meritoriouſneſs of ſuch a ſacrifice, may even lead a man to a ſtake. He may burn for Chriſt, and yet be diſowned by him, if this genuine mark of diſcipleſhip be lacking.

4. [f] Charity ſuffereth long, and is kind; charity [g] envieth not; charity † vaunteth not itſelf, [h] is not puffed up, 5. Doth not behave itſelf unſeemly, [i] ſeeketh not her own, [k] is not eaſily provoked, thinketh no evil, 6. [l] Rejoiceth not in iniquity, [m] but rejoiceth in the truth: 7. [n] Beareth all things, [o] believeth all things, hopeth all things, [p] endureth all things.

[f] Prov. x. 12.
[g] Jam iv. 5.
† Or is not raſh.
[h] Chap. iv. 18. & v. 2.
[i] Chap. x. 24. Phil. ii. 4.
[k] Rom. xii. 19.
[l] Rom. i. 32.
[m] Phil. i. 18. 2 John 4.
[n] Rom. xv. 1. Gal. vi. 2.
[o] 1 Pet. iv. 8.
[p] Chap. ix. 12.

v. 4—7. We have here the true properties of that moſt excellent of graces, charity, or love.

1. It ſuffereth long, patiently enduring provocation, unruffled with affronts, paſſing by offences, and ſuppreſſing every motion of reſentment that would riſe within the ſoul.

2. It is kind, courteous, affable, benevolent, and opens the lips, the hand, and heart, to every good word and work.

3. Charity envieth not the ſuperior gifts, graces, attainments, honours, or affluence, which others enjoy; but takes pleaſure in them, as if they were her own.

4. Charity vaunteth not itſelf, is not oſtentatious of any excellences or ſuperior advantages, doth not treat inferiors with contempt and inſolence, nor raſhly or perverſely utter any thing to a brother's diſadvantage.

5. It is not puffed up, doth not fill the head with vain conceits of a man's importance, nor ſuffer him to think more highly of himſelf than he ought to think.

6. It doth not behave itſelf unſeemly, admits of no conduct unſuitable to the age, ſtation, or circumſtances, of the perſon; ſuffers nothing mean, indecent, or diſhonourable, to enter the mind, or be carried into act.

7. It ſeeketh not her own, is influenced by no mercenary motives, nor purſues any private ends, inordinately craving honour, gain, or applauſe; but is generous, noble, and diſintereſted, ſacrificing her own advantage for the good of others.

8. It is not eaſily provoked; but, under the moſt exaſperating inſults, can preſerve a holy ſerenity, and even be angry, and ſin not; diſpleaſed at the ſin, yet pitying the ſinner; always reſtraining juſt reſentment within bounds, and ready to be reconciled.

9. It thinketh no evil, never ſeeking to pry into others conduct to diſcover faults, but ever ready to put the beſt conſtruction on their words and actions; entertains no undue ſuſpicions; and is willing to forget as well as forgive every injury.

10. It recjoiceth not in iniquity, nor looks, but with grief and ſorrow, on the ſins, perverſeneſs, and infirmities of others. But,

11. Rejoiceth in the truth; glad of the ſucceſs of the goſpel; pleaſed with beholding its influence, where-ever it appears; and ever delighting to bear teſtimony to the truth, and ſpeaking from the heart.

12. It beareth all things; covers men's faults with the mantle of love; pities their weakneſs, and ſuffers without the thought of retaliating their perverſeneſs.

13. It believeth all things; willing to entertain the moſt favourable opinion of all, averſe to every ungrounded ſuſpicion, and candidly diſpoſed to receive the excuſe and explanation where aught may have been miſtaken.

14. It hopeth all things; where matters appear dark, and cannot but raiſe doubts, ſtill charity will not deſpair but that they can yet be cleared up ſatisfactorily, or, where the evil is evident, that the fault will be repented of and amended.

15. It endureth all things, with unſhaken fortitude bearing up under every affliction, temptation, and perſecution, and for the ſake of Chriſt and his people ready to undergo any ſufferings.

Such is this tranſcendent grace of charity. In the glaſs of which we ſhould often look, compare our features with this perfect pattern, and daily ſeek that we may grow more like him whoſe nature and name is Love.

8. Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they ſhall fail; whether there be tongues, they ſhall ceaſe; whether there be knowledge, it ſhall vaniſh away. 9. For we know in part, and we propheſy in part. 10. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part ſhall be done away. 11. When I was a child, I ſpake as a child, I underſtood as a child, I † thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childiſh things. 12. For [q] now we ſee through a glaſs ‡ darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but [r] then ſhall I know even as alſo I am known. 13. And now abideth faith, hope, charity, theſe three; but the greateſt of theſe is charity.

† Or reaſoned.
[q] 2 Cor. iii. 18. & v. 7.
‡ Gr. In a riddle.
[r] Mat. xviii. 10. 1 John iii. 2.

v. 8—13. The apoſtle proceeds in his commendation of charity, not only as ſuperior to all gifts, but as the chief of all graces.

1. Charity never faileth; but will continue in the heart where it hath been once planted, enduring as the days of eternity. All gifts muſt quickly have an end; whether they be prophecies, the gift of foretelling future events, or interpreting the Scriptures, they ſhall fail, and be of no farther uſe in the eternal world; whether there be tongues, they ſhall ceaſe, when they have anſwered their preſent uſe of ſpreading the goſpel through the world, and in heaven we ſhall have but one language; whether there be knowledge, the extraordinary inſight into divine truth, it ſhall vaniſh away; in glory this knowledge will be no longer needed.

2. All gifts are ſuited only to a ſtate of imperfection; when we arrive to maturity in glory we ſhall be above them. For we know in part, and propheſy in part, our greateſt attainments are at preſent defective; but when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part ſhall be done away, and our nature being exalted to the higheſt pitch of which it is capable, all imperfection will be ſwallowed up in perfection of knowledge and holineſs, abſolute and everlaſting. Our preſent and future ſtate differ as much as manhood does from infancy. When I was a child, I ſpake as a child, I underſtood as a child, I thought as a child; and ſuch he inſinuates were all their higheſt preſent attainments; no better than the poor conceptions and liſpings of babes: but when I became a man, I put away childiſh things; and in the heavenly ſtate ſo low thoughts ſhall we entertain of all our preſent moſt eſteemed acquiſitions, deſpiſe what in the days of childiſh folly we valued, and ſee, with a diſtinctneſs of ſpiritual viſion, as much above our preſent ſtate, as the thoughts of manhood are ſuperior to the fancies of infancy: for now we ſee through a glaſs darkly, the mirrour reflecting the object indiſtinctly, and, like a riddle, the truth is inveloped with obſcurity; but then face to face, clearly and fully, by intuition, without any darkening medium. Now know I in part, and with all my ſingular gifts know but in part; but then ſhall I know even as alſo I am known, comprehending heavenly objects with the moſt diſtinct knowledge, and in the ſame way that God, who is a ſpirit, and his angels, know me.

3. Charity is the moſt excellent of graces, as well as above all gifts. And now abideth faith, hope, charity, theſe three cardinal graces, inſeparable from the Chriſtian character, and which till death muſt be in conſtant exerciſe; but the greateſt of theſe is charity, the others being as means to this as the end. And when faith is ſwallowed up in ſight, and hope in the fruition of the eternal bleſſedneſs, love, the bright image of the Deity, ſhall glow towards the eternal Three, and the celeſtial hoſts, in every boſom of the redeemed, and continue to burn, with unextinguiſhed ardor, throughout the countleſs ages of eternity.

CHAP. XIV.

In this chapter the apoſtle, 1. Begins with adviſing them of all ſpiritual gifts to prefer propheſying, ver 1—6. 2. He goes on to ſhew them how unprofitable the ſpeaking foreign languages was, and uſeleſs to the church; whereas gifts ſhould be uſed for the good of the church, ver. 6—15. 3. He adviſes that worſhip ſhould be celebrated ſo as the moſt ignorant might underſtand and join in prayer and praiſe, and preſſes the advice by his own example, ver. 15—21. 4. He informs them, that tongues were a ſign for unbelievers rather than thoſe that believe; and repreſents the advantage of prophecy above ſpeaking with tongues, from the different ſuggeſtions they would give to the mind of an unbeliever coming into their aſſemblies, ver. 21—26. 5. Blames them for the diſorder and confuſion they had brought into the aſſembly by their vanity and oſtentation of their gifts, and directs them in uſing their gifts both of tongues and prophecy, ver. 26—34. 6. Forbids women ſpeaking in the church, and cloſes the ſubject by requiring them to perform every thing in the public worſhip with order and decency, ver. 34. to the end.

1. FOLLOW after charity, and [a] deſire ſpiritual gifts, but [b] rather that ye may propheſy. 2. For [c] he that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue, ſpeaketh not unto men, but unto God: for no man underſtandeth him; howbeit in the ſpirit he ſpeaketh myſteries. 3. But [d] he that propheſieth, ſpeaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort. 4. He that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue, edifieth himſelf: but he that propheſieth, edifieth the church. 5. [e] I would that ye all ſpake with tongues, but rather that ye propheſied: for greater is he that propheſieth than he that ſpeaketh with tongues, except he interpret, that the church may receive edifying.

[a] Chap. xii. 28, 31.
[b] Numb. xi. 25.
[c] Acts ii. 4. & x. 46.
[d] Acts x. 44. & xvi. 14.
[e] Numb. xi. 29.

v. 1—5. Having recommended charity in the firſt place, he proceeds to ſhew what ſpiritual gifts were moſt deſireable.

1. Follow after charity (διώκετε), purſue it with the greateſt eagerneſs, and deſire ſpiritual gifts for the glory of God and the good of the church; but rather, or chiefly, that ye may propheſy, ſo as by divine illumination to be enabled moſt profitably to open and apply the Scriptures to the conſciences of men for their comfort and edification.

2. He aſſigns this reaſon for his exhortation, He that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue ſpeaketh not to men, who cannot underſtand him, but unto God; for no man underſtandeth him, howbeit in the ſpirit he ſpeaketh myſteries, and advances the moſt glorious and important truths: but he that propheſieth, explaining and opening the Scriptures to the underſtanding and capacity of the hearers, ſpeaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort, and his miniſtry and gifts are made uſeful to their ſouls. He that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue, edifieth himſelf; but he that propheſieth, edifieth the church, and communicates an extenſive benefit to others as well as to his own heart. I would that ye all ſpake with tongues, and were furniſhed with this great gift; but rather that ye propheſied: for greater is he that propheſieth than he that ſpeaketh with tongues, he is a more uſeful and therefore a more excellent man, and to be more highly eſteemed by the hearers; except he interpret, that the church may receive edifying. Note, Our diſcourſes ſhould be adapted to the capacity of our hearers: high flights of eloquence, or affectation of learning, are abſurd where the audience is illiterate. Our ambition muſt be to ſtoop; and we ſhould ever be more ſollicitous to be underſtood than to be admired.

6. Now brethren, if I come unto you ſpeaking with tongues, what ſhall I profit you, except I ſhall ſpeak to you [f] either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by propheſying, or by doctrine? 7. And even things without life giving ſound, whether pipe or harp, except they give a diſtinction in the † ſounds, how ſhall it be known what

[f] Ver. 26.
† Or tunes.

what is piped or harped? 8. For if the trumpet give an uncertain ſound, who ſhall prepare himſelf to the battle?
9. So likewiſe you, except ye utter by the tongue ‡ words ‡ Or ſignificant words.
eaſy to be underſtood, how ſhall it be known what is ſpoken? for ye ſhall ſpeak into the air. 10. There are, it may be, ſo many kinds of voices in the world, and none of them is without ſignification. 11. Therefore if I know not the meaning of the voice, I ſhall be unto him that ſpeaketh, a barbarian; and he that ſpeaketh ſhall be a barbarian unto me. 12. Even ſo ye, foraſmuch as [g] ye are zealous of ſpiritual gifts, ſeek that ye may ex- [g] Chap. xii. 31. ver. 1.
cel to the edifying of the church. 13. Wherefore let him that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue, pray that he may interpret. 14. For if I pray in an unknown tongue, my ſpirit prayeth, but my underſtanding is unfruitful.

v. 6—14. The apoſtle goes on to ſhew the abſurdity of making an oſtentatious ſhew of gifts, and ſpeaks in his own perſon to inſinuate the reproof which they deſerved for their vanity in this reſpect. Now brethren, if I come unto you ſpeaking with tongues, what ſhall I profit you, except I ſhall ſpeak to you, interpreting what is made known unto me in an intelligible manner, either by revelation, if it be a new truth; or by knowledge, or by propheſying, or by doctrine? opening the Scriptures, and enforcing them on the conſcience. He illuſtrates this,

1. By a pipe or harp. Unleſs theſe inſtruments give a diſtinction of ſounds to direct the dancer's motion, or to excite the different paſſions which muſic raiſes, they will be uſeleſs and inharmonious: and juſt ſo muſt ſpeaking in an unknown tongue be abſurd to one who is a ſtranger to the language.

2. By a trumpet, which if it give an uncertain ſound, who ſhall prepare himſelf to the battle? And as the ſoldier in ſuch a caſe muſt be utterly at a loſs, ſo muſt the congregation be where the diſcourſe is in an unknown tongue, or above their capacities; and ſuch preaching is to them no better than the whiſtling of the wind.

3. A perſon ſpeaking in ſuch an unknown tongue appears as a barbarian to the hearers. Various as the languages are in the world, each ſerves to convey the ideas of the mind to thoſe who are acquainted with it, but to no others: therefore, if I know not the meaning of the language, it will appear mere gibberiſh; the ſpeaker will appear a barbarian to me, and I to him.

Now this being evidently the caſe, the apoſtle exhorts them, ſince they ſo eagerly coveted ſpiritual gifts, to deſire thoſe that were of the moſt uſeful tendency; and if they ſpoke with tongues, to pray that they might be able to interpret them for the edifying of the church. For if I pray in an unknown tongue, my ſpirit prayeth, and my own ſoul may be engaged in devotion; but my underſtanding is unfruitful, and my prayers of no uſe to the hearer.

15. What is it then? I will pray with the ſpirit, and I will pray with the underſtanding alſo: [h] I will ſing with [h] Eph. v. 19. Col. iii. 16.
the ſpirit, and I will ſing [i] with the underſtanding alſo. [i] Pſ. xlvii. 7.
16. Elſe when thou ſhalt bleſs with the ſpirit, how ſhall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned, ſay Amen at thy giving of thanks, ſeeing he underſtandeth not what thou ſayeſt? 17. For thou verily giveſt thanks well, but the other is not edified. 18. I thank my God, [k] I ſpeak with tongues more than you all: 19. Yet in [k] Rom. xv. 19.
the church I had rather ſpeak five words with my underſtanding, that by my voice I might teach others alſo, than ten thouſand words in an unknown tongue. 20. Brethren, [l] be not children in underſtanding: howbeit, [m] in [l] Pſ. cxix. 99. Rom. xvi. 19. Eph. iv. 14. Heb. v. 12.
malice be ye children, but in underſtanding be † men. [m] Pſ. cxxxi. 2. Mat. xviii. 3. † Gr. Perfect, or full-grown. Chap. ii. 6.

v. 15—20. The apoſtle ſums up what he had been ſaying.

What is it then that is proper to be done? I will pray with the ſpirit, under a divine afflatus, and with any of the tongues which he hath given on proper occaſions; and I will, in the congregation, pray with my underſtanding alſo, in ſuch manner as that others may be edified: I will ſing with the ſpirit, when under a divine inſpiration, in whatever language he is pleaſed to enable me to utter his praiſes; and I will, in public, ſing with my underſtanding alſo, that the church may join in my aſcriptions of praiſe to God. Elſe, when thou ſhalt bleſs with the ſpirit, though under his immediate inſpiration, if it be in an unknown tongue, how ſhall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned ſay Amen at thy giving of thanks, ſeeing he underſtandeth not what thou ſayeſt, and therefore cannot join in the ſervice? For thou verily giveſt thanks well; but the other, who knoweth not the meaning of the words, is not edified. I thank my God (and happy is it when we can call him mine), I ſpeak with tongues more than you all; he did not depreciate this gift therefore becauſe he poſſeſſed it not, but becauſe they made ſo evil a uſe of it: yet in the church I had rather ſpeak five words with my underſtanding, that by my voice I might teach others alſo, than ten thouſand words in an unknown tongue, from which none of the hearers could receive the leaſt benefit. Therefore brethren, be not children in underſtanding, and fooliſhly boaſt yourſelves on the ſhowy gift of tongues: howbeit in malice be ye children, free from the malignant paſſions of envy, malice, and pride; but in underſtanding be men, and prove yourſelves to be Chriſtians grown to riper years, by knowing how to value things according to their intrinſic worth, and to prefer godlike charity to the moſt aſtoniſhing gifts. Note, (1.) That church muſt be erroneous, where ignorance is regarded as the mother of devotion, and the prayers are offered in an unknown tongue. (2.) The leaſt good done to the meaneſt ſoul is an unſpeakably greater acquiſition than the higheſt applauſe gained to ourſelves. (3.) A malicious, envious ſpirit is directly contrary to true Chriſtianity. Among the firſt leſſons of that ſchool, we muſt learn to become as little children.

21. In the law it is written, [n] With men of other [n] Iſa. xxviii. 11, 12.
tongues and other lips, will I ſpeak unto this people:
and yet for all that will they not hear me, ſaith the Lord.
22. Wherefore tongues are for a ſign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not: but propheſying ſerveth not for them that believe not, but for them which believe. 23. If therefore the whole church be come together into one place, and all ſpeak with tongues, and there come in thoſe that are unlearned, or unbelievers, [o] will they not ſay that ye are mad? 24. But if all pro- [o] Acts ii. 13.
pheſy, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all:
25. And thus are the ſecrets of his heart made manifeſt; and ſo falling down on his face he will worſhip God, and report that [p] God is in you of a truth. [p] Iſa. xlv. 14. Zech. viii. 23.

v. 21—25. The apoſtle further enforces what he had advanced by obſerving,

1. That it had been threatened to the Jews, as the puniſhment of their infidelity, that with men of other tongues, and other lips, will I ſpeak unto this people; and yet for all that will they not hear me, ſaith the Lord: which was primarily fulfilled when they were ſent into captivity to Babylon, where they heard the ſtrange language of their conquerors; and ſecondarily when, on the day of Pentecoſt, they heard the apoſtles ſpeak with tongues, yet rejected the evidence which the Holy Ghoſt bore thereby to the doctrine which they preached; deaf to the warnings of Providence and the calls of grace. The Corinthians ſhould not therefore be ſo inordinately fond of what God had before uſed in a way of judgment upon Iſrael. Wherefore,

2. Tongues are for a ſign, not to them that believe, but for them that believe not, to carry the goſpel into the lands of infidelity, and bear a teſtimony to the truth of it, which thoſe who believe do not ſo much need; but propheſying ſerveth not for them that believe not merely, but is alſo for them that believe, that they may be built up on the true foundation. So that to ſpeak with tongues in a Chriſtian aſſembly was uſeleſs and abſurd, becauſe none could be profited thereby.

3. The credit of their profeſſion ſhould reſtrain them from an oſtentation of their gift of tongues. If therefore the whole church be come together into one place, and all ſpeak with tongues, it will appear a ſecond Babel: and if there come in thoſe that are unlearned, either private Chriſtians or other common people, and unbelievers, will they not ſay that ye are mad, and, inſtead of being converted, ridicule you as a parcel of frantic enthuſiaſts? But if all propheſy, in their turn preaching, praying, or praiſing, in an intelligible manner, and there come in one that believeth not, out of curioſity or by accident; or one unlearned, or ignorant; he is convinced of all, he is judged of all; his conſcience is pricked under the word, his ſin is brought to his remembrance, and the juſt wrath of God due thereunto is ſet before him: and thus are the ſecrets of his heart made manifeſt, as if the preacher had known his very ſoul, and deſcribed his caſe particularly; and ſo, falling down on his face, he will worſhip God, convinced, by what he hears, that this is his work; and report that God is in you of a truth, ſince none could ſo diſcover the inmoſt ſoul, and ſpeak with ſuch power and energy, unleſs God's Spirit inſtructed them and accompanied their miniſtrations. Note, The word of truth, when rightly diſpenſed, is a diſcerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart: and many, who have heard it, have felt by experience, that God's miniſters often deſcribe their caſe as particularly as if they knew the ſecrets of their ſouls, and they wonder who hath told them.

26. How is it then, brethren? when ye come together, every one of you hath a pſalm, [q] hath a doctrine, [q] Ver. 6. Chap. xii. 8, &c.
hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation.
[r] Let all things be done to edifying. 27. If any man [r] 2 Cor. xii. 19. Eph. iv. 12.
ſpeak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the moſt by three, and that by courſe; and let one interpret.
28. But if there be no interpreter, let him keep ſilence in the church, and let him ſpeak to himſelf and to God.

[s] Chap. ii. 15. & xii. 10.
† Gr. Tumult.
[t] Chap xi. 6. & xii. 25.

29. Let the prophets ſpeak two or three, and [s] let the other judge. 30. If any thing be revealed to another, that ſitteth by, let the firſt hold his peace. 31. For ye may all propheſy one by one, that all may learn, and all may be comforted. 32. And the ſpirits of the prophets are ſubject to the prophets. 33. For God is not the author of † confuſion, [t] but of peace, as in all churches of the ſaints.

v. 26—33. The apoſtle reproves their ill behaviour, and gives them rules for their conduct.

1. He blames their irregularities in the church. How is it then, brethren, that you behave ſo unſeemly in the houſe of God? for, when ye come together, every one of you hath a pſalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation; and, whilſt every one is forward to exerciſe his own gift, the whole is a ſcene of diſorder and confuſion. Let all things be done to edifying, and no ſuch unſeaſonable and unprofitable exerciſe of theſe divinely communicated gifts be permitted.

2. He orders how they ſhould proceed in the congregation. (1.) If any man ſpeak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the moſt by three, no more than theſe ſhould at one meeting ſpeak, and that by courſe, in their proper turn; and let one interpret, that the audience may receive inſtruction: but, if there be no interpreter, let him that ſpeaks in an unknown tongue keep ſilence in the church, and not interrupt what is to the uſe of edifying; and let him ſpeak to himſelf and to God in private prayer. (2.) Let the prophets ſpeak two or three, at one aſſembly, and after each other, and let the other judge whether thoſe who profeſs to be prophets really are ſo, and examine what they ſay by the word of truth. (3.) If any thing of peculiar importance be revealed to another prophet who ſitteth by, let the firſt who was ſpeaking haſten to conclude his diſcourſe, and hold his peace: for ye may all propheſy one by one, at proper opportunities, that all may learn, and all may be comforted; this being the great end for which the gift of prophecy is beſtowed. And the ſpirits of the prophets are ſubject to the prophets; theſe who are truly inſpired are not like thoſe under diabolical poſſeſſion, but have the due government of themſelves, and will not be hurried into any indecency or impropriety, as to the matter, time, or manner, of their ſpeaking.

3. He enforces his diſcourſe with this argument, For God is not the author of confuſion, but of peace; ſuch diſorderly proceedings as theſe here remarked cannot ariſe from him; but as in all the other churches of the ſaints, ſo among you, it is his pleaſure, and for his glory, that due order ſhould be obſerved.

[u] 1 Tim. ii. 11, 12.
[x] Chap. xi. 3. Eph. v. 22. Col. iii. 18. 1 Pet. iii. 1.
[y] Gen. iii. 16.

34. [u] Let your women keep ſilence in the churches:
for it is not permitted unto them to ſpeak; but [x] they are commanded to be under obedience, [y] as alſo ſaith the law. 35. And if they will learn any thing, let them aſk their huſbands at home: for it is a ſhame for women to ſpeak in the church.

v. 34—35. We have here ſilence impoſed on women in the church. For it is not permitted unto them to ſpeak as public teachers; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as alſo ſaith the law, and to ſhew it by ſuch a modeſt ſilence. And if they will learn any thing, and deſire that what they have heard may be farther explained, let them aſk their huſbands at home: for it is a ſhame for women to ſpeak in the church, and renounce that due ſubordination which God hath enjoined. Note, (1.) If it be the woman's duty to learn in ſubjection, it is the huſband's duty equally to maintain his ſuperiority by ſhewing himſelf able to inform her. (2.) Modeſty is a woman's greateſt ornament; and in them all boldneſs is peculiarly ſhocking.

[z] 2 Cor. x. 7. 1 John iv. 6.
[a] Chap. xii. 31. Ver. 1.
[b] Chap. xi. 34.

36. What? came the word of God out from you?
or came it unto you only? 37. [z] If any man think himſelf to be a prophet, or ſpiritual, let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord. 38. But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant. 39. Wherefore, brethren, [a] covet to propheſy, and forbid not to ſpeak with tongues. 40. [b] Let all things be done decently, and in order.

v. 36—40. The apoſtle cloſes his diſcourſe with warmth on this head. What mean you by your irregular behaviour? Came the word of God out from you? or came it unto you only? Are you the mother church? ought you to ſet up yourſelves as oracles? and are you to pay no reſpect to the uſages of other churches, as if your own was infallible? how intolerably aſſuming is ſuch behaviour? If any man think himſelf a prophet, and ſpiritual, let him prove the truth of the inſpiration which he challenges by ſubſcribing to theſe truths, and acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord, ſince no man, truly under the influence of the Spirit, can poſſibly contradict what that Spirit, ſpeaking in his apoſtles, dictates: but if any man be ignorant, and obſtinately refuſes to ſubmit to theſe commands, let him be ignorant, treated with deſerved contempt, and left to follow the wilful blindneſs and perverſeneſs of his own heart. Wherefore brethren, on the whole, covet to prophecy, as the moſt excellent gift; and forbid not to ſpeak with tongues, which are uſeful when managed according to the manner above preſcribed. And for a general rule in all things pertaining to the publick worſhip, let all things be done decently, and in order, and let every indecency and irregularity be baniſhed from the houſe of God. Note, (1.) They who continue wilfully ignorant of, or obſtinately reject the commandments of the Lord, evidently ſhew by whoſe ſpirit they are led. (2.) When a man hates the light, he is juſtly abandoned to the darkneſs he hath choſen. (3.) In the public worſhip of God all the ſervice ſhould be rational, compoſed, orderly, edifying.

CHAP. XV.

In this chapter the apoſtle treats of the reſurrection of the dead. 1. He eſtabliſhes the certainty of our Saviour's reſurrection, ver. 1—11 2. He from this truth ſets himſelf to refute thoſe who ſaid there is no reſurrection of the dead, ver. 12—20. 3. From our Saviour's reſurrection he eſtabliſhes the reſurrection of the dead, and confirms the Corinthians in the belief of it by ſome other conſiderations, ver. 21—35. 4. He anſwers an objection againſt this truth, and takes an occaſion thence to ſhew what a vaſt change will be made in the bodies of believers at the reſurrection, ver. 36—51. 5. He informs us what a change will be made in them that ſhall be living at the ſound of the laſt trumpet, and the complete conqueſt the juſt ſhall then obtain over death and the grave, ver. 52—57. And, 6. Sums up the argument with a very ſerious exhortation to Chriſtians to be reſolved and diligent in their Lord's ſervice, becauſe they know they ſhall be ſo glorioully rewarded by him, ver. 58.

[a] Acts xviii. 4.
[b] Rom. v. 2. 2 Cor. i. 24.
[c] Rom. i. 16. Chap. i. 21.
† Or hold faſt. Heb. x. 23.
[d] Gal. iii. 4.
[e] Chap. xi. 23.
[f] Iſa. liii. 5, &c. Dan. ix. 26. 1 Pet. ii. 24.
[g] Pſ. xvi. 10. Iſa. liii. 10. Hoſ. vi. 2. Mat. xii. 40. Acts xiii. 33. & xxvi. 22, 23. 1 Pet. i. 11.
[h] Luke xxiv. 34.
[i] John xx. 24.
[k] Mat. xxvi. 32.
[l] Acts ix. 4.
[m] Eph. iii. 8.
[n] Acts viii. 3. & ix. 1. 1 Tim. i. 13.
[o] Eph. ii. 8.
[p] Phil. ii. 16.
[q] Acts xx. 19, 20. Rom. xv. 19. 2 Cor. xi. 23.
[r] Mat. x. 20. 2 Cor. iii. 5. Phil. ii. 13. 1 Tim. i. 12.

1. MOREOVER, brethren, I declare unto you the goſpel [a] which I preached unto you, which alſo you have received, and [b] wherein ye ſtand; 2. [c] By which alſo ye are ſaved, if ye † keep in memory what I preached unto you, [d] unleſs ye have believed in vain.
3. For I delivered unto you firſt of all, [e] that which I alſo received, how that Chriſt died for our ſins [f] according to the ſcriptures: 4. And that he was buried, and [g] that he roſe again the third day according to the ſcriptures: 5. And that [h] he was ſeen of Cephas, then [i] of the twelve. 6. After that, [k] he was ſeen of above five hundred brethren at once: of whom the greater part remain unto this preſent, but ſome are fallen aſleep. 7.
After that, he was ſeen of James; then of all the apoſtles. 8. And [l] laſt of all he was ſeen of me alſo, as of one born out of due time. 9. For [m] I am the leaſt of the apoſtles, that am not meet to be called an apoſtle, becauſe [n] I perſecuted the church of God. 10. But [o] by the grace of God I am what I am: and [p] his grace which was beſtowed upon me was not in vain; but [q] I laboured more abundantly than they all: [r] yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me. 11. Therefore whether it were I or they, ſo we preach, and ſo ye believed.

v. 1—11. The reſurrection of the dead being a chief article of the Chriſtian faith, the apoſtle here aſſerts and eſtabliſhes the doctrine, in oppoſition to ſome falſe teachers who had attempted to undermine and overturn this glorious truth, 2 Tim. ii. 17, 18.

1. He reminds them of that goſpel which he had formerly preached unto them, which they had received from his lips, and in the faith of which they had hitherto perſevered. By which alſo, he adds, ye are ſaved with an everlaſting ſalvation, if ye keep in memory, or hold faſt, what I preached unto you, as ye certainly will, unleſs ye have believed in vain, taking up with mere notions, and reſting in outward profeſſion, without having ever really the root of the matter in you. For I delivered unto you firſt of all, or among the moſt capital points of the Chriſtian faith, and as the foundation on which all our hopes in time and eternity are built, that which I alſo received by immediate revelation, how that Chriſt died for our ſins according to the ſcriptures, which had foretold his ſubſtitution and ſufferings in the ſinner's ſtead; and that he was buried; having truly taſted of death, he was laid in the grave; and that he roſe again the third day according to the ſcriptures; being delivered for our offences, he was raiſed again for our juſtification; and in his reſurrection we have an earneſt of our own, ſin, which was the cauſe of death, being by him done away. And of the fact of his being riſen we have the moſt authentic evidence, as I have told you, that he was ſeen of Cephas, then of the twelve, which name they bore, though their original number, by the apoſtacy of Judas and the abſence of Thomas, was not complete. After that he was ſeen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this preſent, but ſome are fallen aſleep in Jeſus. After that he was ſeen of James, the brother or near kinſman of the Lord; then of all the apoſtles; all of whom were ready to ſeal their teſtimony with their blood; men, who could not be deceived themſelves, nor could be under the leaſt temptation of deceiving others, when they expected nothing but ſuffering and death in every tremendous ſhape for their fidelity. And laſt of all he was ſeen of me alſo, that I might be an eye-witneſs of his reſurrection, when called in ſo miraculous a way to the office and honour of an apoſtle. Hereupon,

2. He makes a beautiful digreſſion, with the deepeſt humility acknowledging his own unworthineſs, and Chriſt's rich grace in calling and qualifying him for the work of apoſtleſhip. He was ſeen of me, as of one born out of due time; deſpicable as an abortive fœtus, and brought forth with violent pangs: for I am the leaſt of the apoſtles, utterly unworthy of the high honour, and laſt called to it; that am not meet to be called an apoſtle, but deſerved to have an eternal brand of infamy ſtamped upon me, becauſe I perſecuted the church of God. But by the grace of God, his amazingly rich and boundleſs grace, a happy alteration is wrought in me, and I am what I am, have obtained mercy, and been called not only to the faith of the goſpel, but to the dignity of an apoſtle; and his grace which was beſtowed upon me was not in vain, but wrought moſt effectually, ſo that under the influence of it I laboured more abundantly than they all, undergoing greater hardſhips, expoſed to greater dangers, and with the moſt unwearied diligence ſpreading the goſpel through the world. Yet not I, tho' conſtrained to vindicate my character, I impute nothing to myſelf, but to the grace of God which was with me, enabling me for his work, and crowning it with ſucceſs. Therefore, whether it were I or they, ſo we preach, and ſo ye believed: all of us bore the ſame teſtimony to a crucified and riſen Redeemer, and you profeſſed to make him your whole dependance for pardon, grace, life, and ſalvation. Note, (1.) A gracious ſoul remembers with deep humility thoſe ſad days when he lived in rebellion againſt God. (2.) Whatever we are or do, to the grace of God alone we are indebted for it, and he muſt have the glory. (3.) All true miniſters of Jeſus bring one meſſage, determined to know nothing but Chriſt, and him crucified, glorified, for he is all, and in all.

12. Now if Chriſt be preached that he roſe from the dead, [s] how ſay ſome among you that there is no reſurrection of the dead? 13. But if there be no reſurrection of the dead, [t] then is Chriſt not riſen. 14. And if Chriſt be not riſen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is alſo vain. 15. Yea, and we are found falſe witneſſes of God; becauſe [u] we have teſtified of God, that he raiſed up Chriſt: whom he raiſed not up, if ſo be that the dead riſe not. 16. For if the dead riſe not, then is not Chriſt raiſed: 17. And if Chriſt be not raiſed, your faith is vain; [x] ye are yet in your ſins. 18. Then they alſo which are fallen aſleep in Chriſt are periſhed. 19. If in this life only we have hope in Chriſt, [y] we are of all men moſt miſerable.

[s] Acts xvii. 18. 2 Tim. ii. 18.
[t] John xiv. 19. 2 Cor. 14. iv. 1 Theſ. iv. 14.
[u] Acts ii. 24, 32, & xiii. 30.
[x] Acts v. 31. Rom. iv. 25.
[y] 2 Tim. iii. 12.

v. 12—19. Having proved the certainty of Chriſt's reſurrection, he proceeds to ſhew the certainty of ours; refuting the opinion of thoſe heretical teachers, who ſuggeſted that it was impoſſible, or that Chriſt did not riſe in a public capacity, as the head and firſt fruits of his redeemed people. Now if Chriſt be preached that he roſe from the dead, how ſay ſome among you that there is no reſurrection of the dead? which, if it were true, then the following abſurdities muſt be admitted.

1. If there be no reſurrection of the dead, then is Chriſt not riſen, notwithſtanding all the prophecies, and the undoubted teſtimony of ſo many unexceptionable witneſſes.

2. If Chriſt be not riſen, then is our preaching vain, uſeleſs, and unprofitable, the reſurrection of Jeſus being the grand truth on which the whole goſpel depends; and your faith is alſo vain; the doctrine on which it is built would have no ſolid foundation, and the hopes you derive from thence muſt diſappoint and deceive you. Yea, and, on this ſuppoſition, we are found falſe witneſſes of God, and muſt have made uſe of his ſacred name to ſupport a moſt impious falſhood; becauſe we have teſtified of God, profeſſing to act by his authority, and under his commiſſion, that he raiſed up Chriſt to a glorious and immortal life, in token of his acceptance of his undertaking, as the reward of his ſufferings, and as the head of his redeemed people, who ſhould follow him into his kingdom: whom he raiſed not up, if ſo be that the dead riſe not: for it is evident, if the dead riſe not, then is not Chriſt, who was once numbered among the dead, raiſed: and if Chriſt be not raiſed, your faith is vain, and all the hopes ariſing from him are deluſive: ye are yet in your ſins, under the guilt and condemnation of them: for as there is no atonement for ſin, but that which he offered, and on his reſurrection the acceptance of his ſacrifice depended, if he had continued in the grave, and ſeen corruption, we muſt have ſunk into deſpair, and concluded his oblation unſatisfactory; nor could we have expected, that he who remained himſelf the priſoner of death, ſhould ever be able to deliver us from the power of it.

3. Then they alſo which are fallen aſleep in Chriſt are periſhed, this being the neceſſary conſequence of the above horrid ſuppoſition; for if Chriſt be not riſen, their hope in him is vain; and then, though they died martyrs for his cauſe, they have departed with a lie in their right hand, and are loſt for ever, than which thought nothing can be more ſhocking or diſcouraging to ſurviving Chriſtians.

4. If this were the caſe, that in this life only we have hope in Chriſt, and after death have nothing to look for, we, who are Chriſtians by profeſſion, and eſpecially the miniſters of Chriſt, who ſtand moſt expoſed to perſecution and all kinds of ſuffering for his ſake, are of all men moſt miſerable; foregoing all the comforts and advantages of this life, and wading through a ſea of difficulties and trials: and how abſurd would this be, if after death we had no reſpect to the recompenſe of reward, and expected not a joyful reſurrection! and who would ever ſeek to be crucified unto the world, and the world unto him, if he looked no farther than the grave, and hoped for nothing in eternity?

20. But [z] now is Chriſt riſen from the dead, and [a] become the firſt-fruits of them that ſlept. 21. For ſince [b] by man came death, [c] by man came alſo the reſurrection of the dead. 22. For as in Adam all die, even ſo in Chriſt ſhall all be made alive. 23. But [d] every man in his own order: Chriſt the firſt-fruits, afterward they that are Chriſt's, at his coming. 24. Then cometh the end, when he ſhall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when [e] he ſhall have put down all rule and all authority and power. 25. For he muſt reign [f] till he hath put all enemies under his feet. 26. [g] The laſt enemy that ſhall be deſtroyed is death. 27. For [h] he hath put all things under his feet. But when he ſaith all things are put under him, it is manifeſt that he is excepted which did put all things under him. 28. And when [i] all things ſhall be ſubdued unto him, then [k] ſhall the Son alſo himſelf be ſubject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all. 29. Elſe what ſhall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead riſe not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead? 30. And [l] why ſtand we in jeopardy every hour? 31. I proteſt by [m] your rejoicing which I have in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, [n] I die daily. 32. If after the manner of men [o] I have fought with beaſts at Epheſus, what advantageth it me, if the dead riſe not? [p] let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die. 33. Be not deceived: [q] Evil communications corrupt good manners. 34. [r] Awake to righteouſneſs, and ſin not; for ſome have not the knowledge of God: [s] I ſpeak this to your ſhame.

[z] Ver. 4.
[a] Acts xxvi. 23. Col. i. 18. Rev. i. 5.
[b] Gen ii. 17. & iii. 6. Rom. v. 12—18.
[c] John xi. 25.
[d] Rom. xiv. 9. 1 Theſ. iv. 16.
[e] Dan. vii. 14 1 Tim. vi. 15.
[f] Pſ. cx. 1. Eph. i. 22. Heb. x. 13.
[g] 2 Tim. i. 10. Heb. ii. 15. Rev. xx. 14.
[h] Pſ. viii. 6. Mat. xxviii. 18. Heb. ii. 8.
[i] Phil. iii. 21.
[k] Chap. iii. 23. & xi. 3.
[l] Gal. v. 11.
[m] 1 Theſ. ii. 19.
[n] Rom. viii. 36 Chap. iv. 9. 2 Cor. i. 8. & iv. 10.
[o] Acts xix. 28.
[p] Iſa. xxii. 13. & lvi. 12. Wiſd. ii. 6.
[q] Pſ. xviii. 26. Prov. xiii. 20. Gal. v. 9.
[r] Rom. xiii. 11. Eph. v. 14.
[s] Chap. vi. 5.

v. 20—34. The certainty of Chriſt's reſurrection being proved, and the glaring abſurdities demonſtrated which muſt follow from a contrary ſuppoſition, the apoſtle paſſes on to the bleſſed effects of Chriſt's reſurrection, as enſuring ours, which he proves,

1. Becauſe Chriſt is riſen from the dead, and become the firſt-fruits of them that ſlept, and ſhall ſleep in him. He is the firſt-begotten from the dead, and the firſt-born of many brethren, whom he ſhall bring unto glory; and his reſurrection is the pledge and earneſt that all his redeemed ſhall live with him for ever. God in raiſing him up hath given them aſſurance, that they ſhall be bleſſed and gathered in with him in their ſeaſon: For ſince, or becauſe, by one man came death, which followed on the firſt ſin, by man came alſo the reſurrection of the dead, by the ſecond man, the Lord from heaven. For as in Adam, our common parent, and covenant-head, all die, involved in his guilt, and expoſed to death, ſpiritual, temporal, and eternal; ſo in Chriſt, the other covenant-head of his redeemed, ſhall all thoſe, whoſe ſins he bore in his own body on the tree, be made alive; by virtue of their union with him, raiſed to a life of grace here, and to a life of glory hereafter. But every man in his own order, (εκαςος), Chriſt and his members ſhall each in their time, rank, and order, riſe in glory. Chriſt the firſt-fruits, who conſecrates the harveſt, and is the pledge of our reſurrection; afterwards they that are Chriſt's, at his coming, his peculiar people, whoſe eternal redemption he hath compleated.

2. The apoſtle proves we muſt riſe, becauſe death is among thoſe enemies which the exalted Mediator ſhall deſtroy. Then cometh the end of the world, and of all the ſorrows of the faithful, when, having gathered in all his redeemed, and not one of them being wanting, he ſhall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father, that mediatorial kingdom, the peculiar adminiſtration of which hath been entruſted to him as the Son of man: when he ſhall have put down all rule, and all authority and power; aboliſhing every form of civil and eccleſiaſtical government, and ſubduing every enemy, human or diabolical, that tyrannized over his people; for he muſt reign, as Mediator, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The laſt enemy that ſhall be deſtroyed, is death, death, when the dead bodies of his people ſhall be raiſed to immortal life, no more to ſee corruption. For he, even God the Father, hath put all things under his feet, and appointed him to be head over all things to his church. But when he ſaith all things are put under him, it is manifeſt that this refers only to all created beings, and that he is excepted which did put all things under him; for God himſelf can be ſubject to none. And when all things ſhall be ſubdued unto him, and the ends of his mediatorial kingdom anſwered in the compleat ſalvation of his people, both in body and ſoul, then ſhall the Son alſo himſelf be ſubject unto him that put all things under him; he will then reſign the peculiar adminiſtation committed to him, ſurrendering himſelf as the head of his church, and the members of his body myſtical, into his Father's hands, to receive thoſe eternal rewards which are due to him in virtue of his finiſhed work; that God may be all in all: and henceforth the delegated power and authority of Jeſus, as Mediator, ſhall ceaſe, and the one glorious God, the Father, Son, and the Holy Ghoſt, ſhall be the immediate fountain of dominion and bleſſedneſs to the church triumphant for ever.

3. He argues the certainty of the reſurrection from the very baptiſm of Chriſtians. Elſe what ſhall they do which are baptized? if there be no reſurrection, how abſurd and ſtrange would it be to take up the Chriſtian profeſſion, when, if they had nothing in proſpect after death, and here ſtood expoſed to every miſery, and the danger of daily martyrdom, they would ſeem merely baptized for the dead, and to be of all men moſt miſerable, if the dead riſe not at all. Why are they then baptized for the dead? who with ſuch a proſpect would ever be prevailed on to embrace Chriſtianity? And why ſtand we in jeopardy every hour, and ready to ſeal our teſtimony with our blood, if we had not the glorious hope of a better reſurrection? I proteſt by your rejoicing which I have in Chriſt Jeſus, by all the comforts of Chriſtianity, and as ſurely as that Spirit lives who is the author of them, I die daily, living continually in the neareſt views and expectations of martyrdom. If after the manner of men I have fought with beaſts at Epheſus, encountering men brutiſh and ſavage in their tempers, and have expoſed myſelf to conflicts as dangerous as thoſe which the condemned criminals ſuſtain, when obliged to encounter wild beaſts in the public theatres; what advantageth it me, what benefit could I reap from ſuch perilous adventures, or what could ever induce me thus to hazard my life, if the dead riſe not? Surely if this was the caſe, that nothing was to be hoped for after the grave, it would be our wiſdom rather to adopt the principles of Epicurus, than of Chriſtianity, and to ſay, Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die, and rather enjoy preſent pleaſure, than ſuffer needleſs pain, if there were no hereafter, and death put an end to us for ever. Note, (1.) Nothing but the proſpects of eternity can poſſibly engage any to the practice of Chriſtianity. 'Till we have realizing views by faith of the things not ſeen, it is impoſſible we ſhould truly take up the croſs. (2.) One great ſupport in ſuffering, is a reſpect to the recompenſe of the reward.

4. The apoſtle cloſes with a ſolemn caution. Be not deceived by thoſe falſe teachers who endeavour to ſap the foundation of your hopes: Evil communications corrupt good manners; the bad principles of theſe ſeducers could not but produce immoral practice; and to be connected and intimate with ſuch men was dangerouſly infectious. Note, Bad company ſhould be ſhunned as the plague. Awake then to righteouſneſs; be on your guard, and ſee that ye walk as becomes your holy profeſſion: for I perceive by theſe dangerous doctrines which are broached among you, that ſome of you have not the knowledge of God, and of his mind and will, as revealed in his goſpel. I ſpeak this to your ſhame, that men of ſuch bad principles and corrupt converſation ſhould be among you, permitted as teachers, or ſuffered to communicate with the church as members. Note, We are blameable not only for the evils we commit ourſelves, but for thoſe which we connive at in others.

[t] Ezek. xxxvii. 3.
[u] John xii. 24.

35. But ſome man will ſay, [t] How are the dead raiſed up? and with what body do they come? 36. Thou fool, [u] that which thou ſoweſt is not quickened except it die. 37. And that which thou ſoweſt, thou ſoweſt not that body that ſhall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of ſome other grain. 38. But God giveth it a body as it hath pleaſed him, and to every ſeed his own body. 39. All fleſh is not the ſame fleſh:
but there is one kind of fleſh of men, another fleſh of beaſts, another of fiſhes, and another of birds. 40. There are alſo celeſtial bodies, and bodies terreſtrial: but the glory of the celeſtial is one, and the glory of the terreſtrial is another. 41. There is one glory of the ſun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the ſtars;
for one ſtar differeth from another ſtar in glory. 42. [x] So alſo is the reſurrection of the dead. [y] It is ſown in corruption, it is raiſed in incorruption: 43. It is ſown in diſhonour, it is raiſed in glory: it is ſown in weakneſs, it is raiſed in power: 44. It is ſown a natural body, it is raiſed a ſpiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a ſpiritual body. 45. And ſo it is written, [z] The firſt man Adam was made a living ſoul, the laſt Adam was made [a] a quickening ſpirit. 46. Howbeit, that was not firſt which is ſpiritual, but that which is natural;
and afterward that which is ſpiritual. 47. The firſt man is [b] of the earth, [c] earthy: the ſecond man is the Lord [d] from heaven. 48. [e] As is the earthy, ſuch are they alſo that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, ſuch are they alſo that are heavenly. 49. And as [f] we have born the image of the earthy, [g] we ſhall alſo bear the image of the heavenly.

[x] Dan. xii. 3. Mat. xiii, 43.
[y] Phil. iii. 51.
[z] Gen. ii. 7.
[a] John v. 21. & xi. 25. Phil. iii. 21.
[b] Gen. iii. 19.
[c] John iii. 31.
[d] Ib. iii. 13, 31.
[e] Ib. iii. 6.
[f] Gen. v. 3.
[g] 2 Cor. iii. 18. Phil. iii. 21. 1 John iii. 2.

v. 35—49. Two plauſible objections againſt the reſurrection are here ſuggeſted. (1.) How are the dead raiſed up? what power is ſufficient for ſuch a work, to recover the ſcattered atoms? and, (2.) With what body do they come? with the ſame identical particles, or in ſome other ſhape and form. In anſwer to the objector, the apoſtle replies, Thou fool. Probably the perſons who oppoſed the doctrine of the reſurrection pretended to high attainments in ſcience, and to reaſon as philoſophers; but they proved their ignorance, rather than their wiſdom, and erred, not knowing the ſcriptures, nor the power of God.

1. That which thou ſoweſt is not quickened except it die. The ſame power therefore that every year raiſes from under the clod, where the ſeed was ſown and corrupted, a plenteous harveſt, can raiſe from the grave the body which hath returned to its duſt again; and it would be as abſurd to object againſt the poſſibility of the one as the other.

2. As to the manner of the reſurrection, and with what body we ſhall come from the grave, to continue the ſimilitude, I anſwer, That which thou ſoweſt, thou ſoweſt not that body that ſhall be, but bare grain, without any of that rich cloathing which afterward it produces, the blade, the ear, and then the full corn in the ear; it may chance of wheat, or of ſome other grain, that dies and revives again: but God giveth it a body as it hath pleaſed him, and to every ſeed his own body; ſo ordering it in infinite wiſdom, that every ſeed produces its own ſpecies. In quality indeed the reſurrection-body will differ from the preſent, though in identity of perſon the ſame. Nor is this ſtrange, when we ſee out of the ſame materials, that bodies of very different qualities are formed. All fleſh is not the ſame fleſh: but there is one kind of fleſh of men, another fleſh of beaſts, another of fiſhes, and another of birds; the ſubſtance is originally the ſame, though by divine power wonderfully diverſified in quality. There are alſo celeſtial bodies, and bodies terreſtrial; but though all formed of the firſt created matter, they greatly differ in excellence; the glory of the celeſtial is one, and the glory of the terreſtrial is another: ſuch difference will there be between the preſent and the reſurrection-body, as between a clod and a ſtar. There is one glory of the ſun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the ſtars; for one ſtar differeth from another ſtar in glory, is of greater magnitude, and ſhines with greater ſplendor; ſo alſo is the reſurrection of the dead: we are raiſed by the ſame divine power as the corn vegetates; and that almighty hand which modifies the ſame matter in the different bodies around us, can make the like glorious difference between our preſent and our reſurrection-body, though the manner how may be to us inconceivable. It is ſown in corruption, from the day of its generation till it is putrefied in the duſt; it is raiſed in incorruption, incapable of putrefaction or diſſolution. It is ſown in diſhonour, in life full of defilement, covered with ſhame, in death loathſome and moſt contemptible; it is raiſed in glory, like unto Chriſt's glorious body, ſhining as the ſtars for ever and ever. It is ſown in weakneſs, is at preſent liable to a thouſand infirmities, pain, wearineſs, ſickneſs, accidents, and death, and in the grave muſt be a prey for worms: it is raiſed in power, vigorous and active, fit to join the immortal ſoul, and without wearineſs to ſerve God in his temple day and night without ceaſing for ever. It is ſown a natural body, that needs the conſtant ſupport of meat, and drink, and ſleep, like the beaſts that periſh: it is raiſed a ſpiritual body, requiring none of theſe animal refreſhments, and will be like the angels. There is a natural body, ſuch as we now poſſeſs; and there is a ſpiritual body, ſuited to the celeſtial world which is the inheritance of the ſaints. And ſo it is written, The firſt man Adam, from whom we derive our preſent body, was made a living ſoul, was endued with animal life, and required all thoſe ſupports which we do: the laſt Adam, the Lord Jeſus, our ſecond covenant-head and repreſentative, was made a quickening ſpirit, poſſeſſing life in himſelf, and the fountain of it to his people; having ſince his reſurrection a ſpiritual body, and by virtue of his power, and our union with him, he ſhall faſhion our bodies like his own. Howbeit, that was not firſt which is ſpiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is ſpiritual: Adam's animal body was firſt, Chriſt's ſpiritual body afterwards; and ſuch is the order alſo eſtabliſhed for us, firſt to bear the natural, then to receive the ſpiritual body. The firſt man was of the earth, formed from the clay, and by his ſin he became earthy, returning to the duſt from whence he came. The ſecond man, our better repreſentative, tive, is the Lord from heaven, coming from thence to take our nature upon him, is now returned thither with this nature glorified, and we expect him to come from thence to make us like himſelf. As is the earthy, ſuch are they alſo that are earthy; as Adam's body was, ſo muſt ours be, who ſprung from him, mortal and corruptible; and as is the heavenly, ſuch are they alſo that are heavenly, as many as are born from above, and made partakers of a divine nature, ſhall be conformed in their bodies to their Lord, and ſhall ſhortly be glorified together. And as we have born the image of the earthy, by nature the children of corruption, ſprung from a fallen parent, and like him muſt return to duſt, we ſhall alſo bear the image of the heavenly, as many as are by faith united to Jeſus, and renewed in the ſpirit of their minds, ſhall bear ſhortly his bright image in their bodies as well as ſouls for ever.

50. Now this I ſay, brethren, that [h] fleſh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. 51. Behold, I ſhew you a myſtery; [i] We ſhall not all ſleep, but we ſhall all be changed, 52. In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the laſt trump (for [k] the trumpet ſhall ſound) and the dead ſhall be raiſed incorruptible, and we ſhall be changed. 53. For this corruptible muſt put on incorruption, and this mortal muſt put on immortality. 54. So when this corruptible ſhall have put on incorruption, and [l] this mortal ſhall have put on immortality, then ſhall be brought to paſs the ſaying that is written, [m] Death is ſwallowed up in victory. 55. [n] O death, where is thy ſting? O † grave, where is thy victory? 56. The ſting of death is ſin; and [o] the ſtrength of ſin is the law. 57. But thanks be to God, [p] which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 58. [q] Therefore, my beloved brethren, [r] be ye ſtedfaſt, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord; foraſmuch [s] as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

[h] John iii. 3, 5. Chap. vi. 13. 2 Cor. v. 1.
[i] 1 Theſ. iv. 14—17.
[k] Mat. xxiv. 31. John v. 25. 1 Theſ. iv. 16.
[l] 2 Cor. v. 4.
[m] Iſa. xxv. 8. Rev. xx. 14.
[n] Hoſ. xiii. 14.
† Gr. Hades.
[o] Rom. iv. 15. & vii. 5, 13.
[p] Rom. vii. 25. 1 John v. 5.
[q] 2 Pet. iii. 14.
[r] Col. i. 23.
[s] Heb. vi. 10.

v. 50—58. The apoſtle here,

1. Gives the reaſon of the change which he had deſcribed. Now this I ſay, brethren, that fleſh and blood, ſuch as our bodies are at preſent, cannot inherit the kingdom of God; they are unable to bear the eternal weight of glory, and incapable of taſting the delights, or being employed in the ſervices of that bleſt world to which we go. Neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. The body muſt be refined from its corruptible droſs, before it can enter upon or enjoy the incorruptible inheritance.

2. He informs them of a ſecret unknown to them. Behold, I ſhew you a myſtery, we ſhall not all ſleep in the duſt, but we ſhall all be changed; on as many of his people as ſhall be found alive at Chriſt's laſt appearing, a change will paſs equivalent to death and reſurrection, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the laſt trump, when the voice of Jeſus ſhall awake the dead. For the trumpet ſhall ſound, and the dead ſhall be raiſed incorruptible, and we ſhall be changed, our bodies undergoing a happy alteration in their qualities, though preſerving their identity; for this corruptible body, which we carry about, muſt put on incorruption, and this mortal muſt put on immortality, that we may be capable of enjoying that celeſtial happineſs for which we are deſigned.

3. When this awful ſeaſon comes, then ſhall death be for ever aboliſhed. So when this corruptible ſhall have put on incorruption, and this mortal ſhall have put on immortality, then ſhall be brought to paſs the ſaying that is written, Iſa. xxv. 8. Death is ſwallowed up in victory. And that king of terrors ſhall be ſo utterly deſtroyed, that he ſhall never more be able to lift his arm againſt one of the redeemed; and, in the proſpect of this glorious day, the faithful ſoul can even now antedate his eternal triumphs, and exulting, cry, O death, where is thy ſting? I defy it. O grave, where is thy victory? I riſe immortal, and tread thee beneath my feet for ever.

4. The ground of the believer's triumph is here declared. The ſting of death is ſin; this arms the monſter with all his terrors; and the ſtrength of ſin is the law, binding over the tranſgreſſor to a future judgment, and not merely denouncing bodily death as the wages of ſin, but paſſing ſentence of eternal death, and conſigning body and ſoul to hell. But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. In his adored name we lift up our banners; in his righteouſneſs we make our boaſt; ſince he hath died in our ſtead, he hath led our captivity captive; though we ſee corruption in the grave, death cannot hold dominion over us; we ſhall riſe glorious and immortal: and, through our dear Redeemer's power and grace, come and reign with him in glory everlaſting. Note, (1.) Death is no longer dreadful, when the ſting of ſin, through the atoning blood, is taken out of the conſcience. We ſhall find in the grave the golden gates of life and immortality, which open into the paradiſe of God. (2.) That which will be the ſubject of our everlaſting praiſes, ſhould now be the matter of our ſongs; and ſince the victory is actually obtained, we ſhould antedate the triumphs of eternity, and to our Redeemer's honour adore him in the full aſſurance of the conqueſt which he hath completed.

5. He cloſes the whole with a warm exhortation ariſing from the foregoing diſcourſe. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye ſtedfaſt, firm and unwavering in the faith and hope of the goſpel, eſpecially in the great doctrines of the atoning death, and reſurrection of Jeſus, with the bleſſed effects thence flowing of our immortal life and glory; unmoveable by any of the artifices of Satan, the craft of ſeducers, or the corruptions of your own hearts, founded on the rock which ſtorms aſſail in vain; always abounding in the work of the Lord, zealouſly and abidingly engaged in his ſervice, chearful and willing to undergo any ſufferings, in ſpite of every oppoſition, increaſing with the increaſe of God; knowing, as the moſt aſſured truth, that your labour ſhall not be in vain in the Lord, but that he, to whom you are by faith united as your living head of vital influence, will ſtrengthen, uphold, and own you in life, in death; and after death, raiſe up your bodies to immortal life, and beſtow the never-fading crown of righteouſneſs and glory upon you, the reward, not indeed of debt, but of grace. Note, (1.) Our practice will bear pace always with the ſtrength of our faith; the more ſure and realizing our views of eternal things are, the more vigorouſly ſhall we preſs towards the mark for the prize of the high calling in Chriſt Jeſus. (2.) It is the ſtrongeſt encouragement to labour for the Lord, becauſe we are ſure to ſucceed in his ſervice. (3.) Whatever we do or ſuffer for Chriſt, we ſhall never regret it in a reſurrection day, and ſhall only then be aſhamed that we have loved him no more, and ſerved him no better.

CHAP. XVI.

In this chapter the apoſtle, (1.) Gives direction about ſome charitable collection to be made, ver. 1—5. (2.) He talks of making them a viſit, ver. 6—10. (3.) He recommends Timothy to them, and tells them Apollos intended to come to them, ver. 11—13. (4.) He preſſes them to watchfulneſs, conſtancy, charity, and to pay a due regard to all who helped him, and his fellow-labourers in their work, ver. 14—19. (5.) After ſalutations from others, and his own, he cloſes the epiſtle with a ſolemn admonition to them, and his good wiſhes for them, ver. 20, to the end.

1. NOW concerning the [a] the collection for the ſaints, [b] as I have given orders to the churches of Galatia, even ſo do ye. 2. Upon † the firſt day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in ſtore, as God hath proſpered him, that there be no gatherings when I come. 3. And when I come, whomſoever you ſhall approve by your letters, [c] them will I ſend to bring your ‡ liberality unto Jeruſalem. 4. And if it be meet that I go alſo, they ſhall go with me.

[a] Acts xi. 29. Rom. xii. 13. & xv. 26.
[b] Gal. ii. 10.
† Gr. one of the ſabbaths. Luke xxiv. 1. Acts xx. 7. Rev. i. 10.
[c] 2 Cor. viii. 16.
‡ Gr. free gift.

v. 1—4. The church at Jeruſalem having undergone peculiar oppreſſion and ſufferings, and many of the ſaints being reduced to great poverty, the Gentile brethren, at the apoſtle's inſtigation, generouſly contributed for their relief.

Now as concerning the collection for the ſaints in Judea, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even ſo do ye. Since in wealth the Corinthians exceeded the Galatians, and in ſpiritual gifts were ſo eminent, it would be a ſhame if they came behind in benevolence and charity. Upon the firſt day of the week, the day held ſacred among Chriſtians, and hallowed by their ſolemn aſſemblies, let every one of you lay by him in ſtore, contributing to the collection for the poor, as God hath proſpered him, each according to their ability; the rich more abundantly, and they who have little, chearfully giving a portion out of that little, that there be no gatherings when I come. And, being thus in readineſs, when I come, whomſoever you ſhall approve by your letters, and recommend as faithful men, them will I ſend to bring your liberality unto Jeruſalem, concurring in your recommendation. And if it be meet, and judged neceſſary for this benevolent deſign, that I go alſo, they ſhall go with me. Note, (1.) Every Chriſtian is bound, according to his abilities, to miniſter to the neceſſities of his brethren. (2.) All our ſucceſs comes from God's gracious providence, and is gratefully to be acknowledged. (3.) The more we receive from God, the more are we called, as good ſtewards, to improve it for his glory, and the advantage of our brethren.

5. Now I will come unto you, [d] when I ſhall paſs through Macedonia: (for I do paſs through Macedonia). 6. And it may be that I will abide, yea and winter with you, that [e] ye may bring me on my journey whitherſoever I go. 7. For I will not ſee you now by the way, but I truſt to tarry a while with you, [f] if the Lord permit. 8. But I will tarry at Epheſus until Pentecoſt. 9. For a [g] great door and effectual is opened unto me, and [h] there are many adverſaries.

[d] Acts xix. 21. 2 Cor. i. 16.
[e] Acts xv. 3. & xx. 38. & xxi. 5.
[f] Acts xviii. 21. Jam. iv. 15.
[g] Acts xiv. 27. 2 Cor. ii. 12. Col. iv. 3. Rev. iii. 8.
[h] Acts xix. 9, 23.

v. 5—9. The apoſtle, in his own mind, had planned a viſit to Corinth, of which he informs them, though Providence prevented, at this time, the execution of his deſign.

Now I will come unto you, ſuch is my preſent intention, if the Lord pleaſe, when I ſhall paſs through Macedonia, for I do purpoſe ſoon to paſs through Macedonia. And it may be that I will abide a conſiderable time among you, yea and winter with you, that ye may bring me on my journey whitherſoever I go, returning to your former affection, and teſtifying your wonted reſpect for me, notwithſtanding thoſe prejudices which the falſe teachers have laboured to inſtil. For I will not ſee you now in the way (ἐν παρόδῳ) to make a tranſient viſit, which would not anſwer the end I propoſe of ſettling your affairs, eſtabliſhing you in the truth, and enjoying your company; but I truſt to tarry a while with you, if the Lord permit, at whoſe diſpoſal I am, and by whoſe providence I deſire ever to be directed. But I will tarry at Epheſus (from whence he ſeems to have written this epiſtle) until Pentecoſt, either till that feaſt was paſt, or till its approach, when he intended to be at Jeruſalem, a great concourſe of Jews from all parts aſſembling there at that ſeaſon. And the reaſon for his long ſtay at Epheſus he gives; for a great door and effectual is opened unto me, a ſignal bleſſing hath attended my labours, and great multitudes are by the Spirit converted to the faith of Chriſt, and, as might be expected, there are many adverſaries, both Jews and Gentiles, who, inſtigated by Satan, oppoſe with all their might and craft the progreſs of the goſpel, againſt whom he choſe perſonally to ſtand up, and boldly to vindicate the glorious cauſe. Note, (1.) Wherever Chriſt is preached ſucceſsfully, there the malice and cunning of earth and hell will be exerted, to ſtop the riſing intereſt of truth and godlineſs. (2.) Succeſs in our labours is a great argument and encouragement boldly to perſevere. (3.) Faithful miniſters, inſtead of being daunted by outward oppoſition, have their zeal but the more kindled. What weakens their hands and diſcourages their hearts, is the unfaithfulneſs of profeſſors, and the inſenſibility of their hearers.

[i] Chap. iv. 17. Phil. ii. 22. 1 Theſ. iii. 2.
[k] 1 Tim. iv. 12.
[l] Acts xviii. 24. & xix. 1.

10. Now if Timotheus come, ſee that he may be with you without fear: for [i] he worketh the work of the Lord, as I alſo do. 11. Let [k] no man therefore deſpiſe him: but conduct him forth in peace, that he may come unto me: for I look for him with the brethren. 12. As touching our brother [l] Apollos, I greatly deſired him to come unto you with the brethren: but his will was not at all to come at this time; but he will come when he ſhall have convenient time.

v. 10—12. The apoſtle here,

1. Recommends Timothy to them, who was now on his journey to Corinth. If Timotheus come, ſee that he may be with you without fear of any inſult from any of the factious leaders; regard him with affection, treat him with reſpect, and hear him with attention: for he worketh the work of the Lord, as I alſo do, zealous for the cauſe of the ſame divine maſter, and tried and found faithful. Let no man therefore deſpiſe him becauſe of his youth, ſlight his reproofs, or think lightly of his miniſtry, but conduct him forth in peace; give him a proof of your affection and eſteem, by providing him with neceſſaries for his journey, and bringing him on his way, that he may come unto me: for I look for him with the brethren, either I and the brethren here expect him, or I deſire his return with the brethren who may accompany him hither. Note, Young miniſters ſhould be encouraged, not deſpiſed; and their miniſtrations, though without the ſanction of grey hairs, yet, ſeconded with the weight of zeal and piety, deſerve the moſt ſerious attention.

2. He informs them that Apollos declined a viſit to them at preſent, though he had earneſtly preſſed him thereto. As touching our brother Apollos, I greatly deſired him to come unto you with the brethren, but his will was not at all to come at this time; but he will come when he ſhall have convenient time. Though a party at Corinth had affected to ſet up Apollos in preference to Paul, the apoſtle entertained no jealouſy of his brother-labourer, aſſured that he never would encourage but diſcountenance ſuch a ſpirit of diviſion. The faithful miniſters of Chriſt will not harbour mean diſtruſts of each other; no, not though thoſe who love to ſow diſcord among brethren, endeavour to inſtil baſe ſuſpicions. On the other hand, Apollos, probably out of reſpect to his honoured brother Paul, declined at that time the viſit, leaſt, in the preſent ill diſpoſition of the Corinthians, it might be abuſed by thoſe who wanted to make him the head of a party. Though when the preſent feuds were ſubſided, he meant to go thither, and labour among them. Such a ſpirit of love ſhould miniſters cultivate, jealous for each other's reputation as their own, and frowning on every flatterer that would attempt to raiſe their credit at the expence of their brother.

[m] Mat. xxiv. 42. 1 Pet. v. 8.
[n] 2 Cor. i. 24. Phil. i. 27. & iv. 1. Col. iv. 12. 1 Theſ. iii. 8. or Jude ii.
[o] Eph. vi. 10.
[p] Chap. xiii. 4, 7.
[q] Rom. xvi. 5.
[r] 2 Cor. ix. 1.
[s] Phil. ii. 29. 1 Tim. v. 17. Heb. xiii. 17.
[t] 2 Cor. xi. 9. Phil. ii. 30.
[u] 1 Theſ. v. 12.

13. [m] Watch ye, [n] ſtand faſt in the faith, quit you like men, [o] be ſtrong. 14. [p] Let all your things be done with charity. 15. I beſeech you, brethren, (ye know the houſe of Stephanas, that [q] it is the firſt-fruits of Achaia, and that they have addicted themſelves to [r] the miniſtry of the ſaints) 16. That [s] ye ſubmit yourſelves unto ſuch, and to every one that helpeth with us and laboureth. 17. I am glad of the coming of Stephanas and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for [t] that which was lacking on your part they have ſupplied. 18. For they have refreſhed my ſpirit and yours: therefore [u] acknowledge ye them that are ſuch.

v. 13—18. The apoſtle proceeds,

1. To ſome general exhortations. Watch ye againſt every enemy of your ſouls, eſpecially thoſe who would ſeduce you from the doctrines of truth; ſtand faſt in the faith, grounded and ſettled in the hope of the goſpel, ſo as never to be moved from your holy profeſſion; quit you like men, with wiſdom, zeal, and fidelity, in the midſt of the oppoſition of enemies, and the ſnares of deceivers; be ſtrong in the grace which is in Jeſus Chriſt, exerciſing yourſelves unto godlineſs, and fighting manfully under the Lord's banners, againſt every enemy within and without. And whilſt you thus ſhew yourſelves courageous for the truth, let all your things be done in charity, and let a ſpirit of meekneſs temper all your zeal. Note, (1.) A Chriſtian is compaſſed with enemies; he need be ever on his guard. (2.) When we are firmly eſtabliſhed in the principles of the goſpel, no danger or ſufferings will deter us from the path of duty, (3.) Charity is the great ornament of our profeſſion; to bear with the perverſeneſs of miſtaken friends, and meekly to ſuſtain the attacks of avowed enemies, is to be like our maſter.

2. He commends to their particular regard the houſe of Stephanas. I beſeech you, brethren, (ye know the houſe of Stephanas, that it is the firſt fruits of Achaia, converted by my miniſtry, and whom I baptiſed myſelf, and that they have addicted themſelves to the miniſtry of the ſaints, laying themſelves out in the Lord's immediate ſervice, and zealouſly employed in aſſiſting his people to their utmoſt, both in their temporal and ſpiritual concerns) I beſeech you, brethren, that ye ſubmit yourſelves to ſuch, directed by them, imitating their examples, and not led away by upſtart teachers; and that ye in like manner reverence, regard, and attend to, every one that helpeth with us and laboureth to promote the intereſts of the ſame divine maſter, and the edification of your ſouls.

3. He teſtifies his ſatisfaction in the good account he had lately heard concerning them. I am glad of the coming of Stephanas and Fortunatus, and Achaicus; for that which was lacking on your part, they have ſupplied; giving the apoſtle a more clear ſtate of the matter than was conveyed in the letter they brought, and explaining things much to his ſatisfaction, which reports had greatly exaggerated. Note, It is a great joy to every miniſter and Chriſtian's heart to hear unfavourable reports of their brethren contradicted by thoſe who are beſt acquainted with their circumſtances.

4. He enjoins them to reſpect thoſe faithful men at their return. For they have refreſhed my ſpirit by their converſation, and the accounts they have given; and this cannot but afford a like ſatisfaction to yours: therefore acknowledge ye them that are ſuch, and ſhew them that reſpect and regard, which their kind, candid, and charitable construction of your conduct merits at your hands. Note, Good offices done us demand a grateful return.

[x] Rom. xv. 5. Col. iv. 15. Philem. ii.
[y] Rom. xvi. 16.
[z] Col. iv. 18. 2 Theſ. iii. 17.
[a] Gal. vi. 14. John iv. 8.
[b] Rom. xvi. 24.

19. The churches of Aſia ſalute you. Aquila and Priſcilla ſalute you much in the Lord, with [x] the church that is in their houſe. 20. All the brethren greet you. [y] Greet ye one another with an holy kiſs. 21. [z] The ſalutation of me Paul with mine own hand. 22. [a] If any man love not the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, let him be anathema, maran-atha. 23. [b] The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you. 24. My love be with you all in Chriſt Jeſus. Amen.

v. 19—24. St. Paul cloſes his epiſtle,

1. With affectionate ſalutations. All the churches of Aſia ſalute you, cordially wiſhing you every bleſſing of the everlaſting goſpel. Aquila and Priſcilla ſalute you much in the Lord, with the church that is in their houſe, even all the members of that amicable family which compoſe a little church among themſelves; and ſuch a family is happy indeed. All the brethren ſalute you with warm affection. Greet ye one another with an holy kiſs. The ſalutation of me Paul with mine own hand. And thus he ſigns what his emanuenſis wrote from his lips, as genuine and authentic.

2. He ſubjoins a ſolemn warning. If any man love not the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, be his eminence of ſtation never ſo great, his gifts never ſo extraordinary, his profeſſion never ſo glaring, if his heart be unſound, his principles erroneous, and his practice diſhonourable to the goſpel, fomenting diviſions, puffed up with pride, and at bottom an apoſtate, let him be anathema, maran-atha, excommunicated from the body of the faithful, and conſigned over to that fearful judgment, which the righteous Lord, in the day of his appearing and glory, will inflict on ſuch impenitent offenders. Note, (1.) It is not enough to be Chriſtians in word and tongue; do we love the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in ſincerity? that is the queſtion. (2.) None ſink under heavier vengeance than thoſe who have been falſe and faithleſs to their holy profeſſion.

3. He concludes with his uſual benediction and prayer. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you, and therein is comprehended every bleſſing in time and in eternity. My love be with you all in Chriſt Jeſus. Sharply as I have been conſtrained to rebuke you, in him I love you affectionately, and every thing I have ſaid flows from the moſt unfeigned deſire to promote your preſent and eternal happineſs. Amen! May this be the happy iſſue. Believe my kind intentions and regard; join with me in my prayers, and then the iſſue ſhall be peace.

THE
EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
Upon the SECOND EPISTLE of
St. Paul to the CORINTHIANS.

IN his former epiſtle the apoſtle had ſignified his intention of coming to Corinth as he paſſed through Macedonia, chap. xvi. 6. but being providentially hindered for ſome time, he writeth this ſecond epiſtle to them about a year after the former; and there ſeem to be theſe two great urgent occaſions: 1. The caſe of the inceſtuous perſon that lay under cenſure, required that with all ſpeed he ſhould be reſtored and received again into communion. This therefore he giveth directions about, chap. ii. and afterwards, chap. vii. he declareth the ſatisfaction he had upon the intelligence he received of their good behaviour in that affair. 2. There was a contribution now making for the poor ſaints at Jeruſalem, which he exhorteth the Corinthians to join in, chap. viii. and ix.

There are divers other things very obſervable in this epiſtle, e. g. (1) The account the apoſtle giveth of his labours and ſucceſs in preaching the goſpel in ſeveral places, chap. ii. (2.) The compariſon he maketh between the Old and New Teſtament diſpenſation, chap. iii. (3.) The manifold ſufferings that he and his fellow-labourers met with, and the motives and encouragements for their diligence and patience, chap. iv, v. (4.) The caution he gives the Corinthians againſt mingling themſelves with unbelievers, chap. vi. (5.) The way and manner in which he juſtifieth himſelf and his apoſtleſhip from the opprobrious inſinuations and accuſations of falſe teachers that endeavoured to ruin his reputation at Corinth, chap. x, xi, xii. and throughout the whole epiſtle.

CHAP. I.

After the introduction, ver. 1, 2. the apoſtle begins with the narrative of his troubles and God's goodneſs which he had met with in Aſia, by way of thankſgiving to God, ver. 3—6. and for the edification of the Corinthians, ver. 7—11. Then he atteſts his and his fellow-labourers integrity, ver. 12, 13, 14. and afterwards vindicateth himſelf from the imputation of levity and inconſtancy, ver. 15—24.

[a] Eph. i. 1. Col. i. 1.
[b] Rom. i. 7. 1 Cor. i. 3. Gal. i. 3. Phil. i. 2.
[c] Eph. i. 3. 1 Pet. i. 3.
[d] Ex. xxxiv. 6. Rom. xv. 5. 2 Theſ. ii. 6.
[e] Acts xvi. 25. Chap. vii. 4, 6. 1 Theſ. iii. 7.
[f] Acts ix. 4. Chap. iv. 10. Col. i. 24.
[g] Pſ. xciv. 19.
[h] Chap. iv. 15.

1. [a] PAUL an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the ſaints which are in all Achaia: 2. [b] Grace be to you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 3. [c] Bleſſed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [d] the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort; 4. [e] Who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourſelves are comforted of God. 5. For as [f] the ſufferings of Chriſt abound in us, [g] ſo our conſolation alſo aboundeth by Chriſt. 6. And whether we be afflicted, [h] it is for your conſolation and ſalvation, which is effectual in the enduring of the ſame ſufferings which we alſo ſuffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your conſolation and ſalvation.

v. 1—6. The apoſtle opens the epiſtle,

1. With his uſual addreſs and ſalutation. Paul an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, by the will of God eminently called to this high office, and Timothy our brother, who joins me in heartieſt affection towards you; unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the ſaints which are in all Achaia, who in profeſſion and practice appear to be ſeparated from the world as the Lord's people. Grace be to you and peace, with all their happy fruits, from God the Father, the author of all our bleſſings, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the meritorious cauſe of them.

2. He bleſſeth God for the ſignal mercies he had experienced. Bleſſed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and who in and through him, as the divine Mediator, is now become to us the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort, multiplying his pardons, ſhowering down his benefits, and giving us ſpiritual, temporal, and eternal conſolation through this Son of his love, who comforteth us in all our tribulations, by his word and Spirit bringing home the great and precious promiſes with power to our ſouls, and ſhedding abroad his love in our hearts, that, from experience of the riches of his goodneſs, we may be able to comfort them that are in trouble, whether of ſoul or body, by the comfort wherewith we ourſelves are comforted of God, tenderly ſympathizing with them, and ſuggeſting thoſe encouraging words of ſcripture, which, in diſtreſs, we have found reviving to our own ſouls. For as the ſufferings of Chriſt abound in us, to whom we are thus conformed, and who is ſtill afflicted in all the affliction of his members, ſo our conſolation alſo aboundeth by Chriſt, who fails not to miniſter ſupports and comforts proportionable to our ſufferings And whether we be afflicted, it is for your conſolation and ſalvation, it is deſigned for your advantage, that by our examples of patience, fortitude, and perſeverance, you may be encouraged to bear up under every trial, and boldly ſtand faſt, till your ſalvation is completed; which is effectual, and greatly promoted by ſuch exerciſes of faith and patience, in the enduring of the ſame ſufferings which we alſo ſuffer: or whether we be comforted, by divine ſupports under our afflictions, or by ſeaſonable deliverances from them, it is alſo ordered for your conſolation and ſalvation. Note, (1.) All our mercies from God call for perpetual grateful acknowledgments. (2.) They who have been exerciſed with trials in their own ſouls and bodies, will be the moſt able comforters to others under the like troubles. We ſpeak beſt, when we ſpeak from experience. (3.) Though our afflictions may be at preſent grievous, the time will come when we ſhall ſee peculiar reaſon to bleſs God for them, and know that they have been eſpecially conducive to our eternal ſalvation. (4.) All our comforts flow from God in Chriſt, as reconciled to us in a covenant of everlaſting love.

7. And our hope of you is ſtedfaſt, knowing that [l] as you are partakers of the ſuffering, ſo ſhall ye be alſo of the conſolation. 8. For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble [k] which came to us in Aſia, that we were preſſed out of meaſure, above ſtrength, inſomuch that we deſpaired even of life: 9. But we had the ſentence of death in ourſelves, [l] that we ſhould not truſt in ourſelves, but in God which raiſeth the dead. 10. Who delivered us from ſo great a death, and doth deliver: in whom we truſt that he will yet deliver us: 11. You alſo [m] helping together by prayer for us, that [n] for the gift beſtowed upon us by the means of many perſons, thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

[l] Rom. v. 3, 4. & viii. 17.
[k] Acts xix. 23. 1 Cor. xv. 32.
[l] Jer. xvii. 5, 7.
[m] Rom. xv. 30. Phil. i. 19. Philem. 22.
[n] Chap. iv. 15.

v. 7—11. St. Paul,

1. Expreſſes his confidence in them, And our hope of you is ſtedfaſt, that ye will never be diſcouraged by any tribulations which you ſee us endure, or are called to bear yourſelves; knowing, that as you are partakers of the ſufferings with us, ſo ſhall ye be alſo of the conſolation, rejoicing with us here in the experience of God's love, and ſhortly to arrive where ſorrow ſhall be for ever baniſhed, and our joys will be perfected.

2. He informs them what a fight of afflictions they had undergone. For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Aſia, (ſee Acts xiv. xvi. xix.) that we were preſſed out of meaſure, above ſtrength, loaded with burdens more than our natural ſtrength could ſuſtain; ſo that we deſpaired even of life, not knowing which way to eſcape, and our caſe to all appearance deſperate. But we had the ſentence of death in ourſelves, and concluded we muſt be deſtroyed; the Lord in his providence ſuffering us to be brought to theſe extremities, that we ſhould not truſt in ourſelves, feeling by experience our own utter inſufficiency to help ourſelves, but in God which raiſeth the dead, whoſe wiſdom, power, and grace alone could extricate us from our troubles, and ſave us from the jaws of death. Note, The Lord ſuffers his people often to be reduced as it were to the laſt gaſp, that he may convince them more deeply of their own helpleſſneſs, and magnify his grace and power more ſignally in their deliverance.

3. He gratefully acknowledges the divine interpoſition. Who delivered us from ſo great a death, when to human view it appeared inevitable; and doth deliver, in jeopardy as we ſtand every hour: in whom we truſt that he will yet deliver us, content to caſt our care upon him, in the fulleſt confidence of his protection and ſupport. You alſo helping together by prayer for us, and joining in affectionate ſupplications on our behalf, that we may be ſtill preſerved in the midſt of danger; that for the gift of ſo ſignal a deliverance as we have experienced, beſtowed upon us by the means of many perſons, in anſwer to the prayers of thoſe faithful ſouls who, ceaſeleſs at a throne of grace, beſought the Lord for us, thanks may be given by many on our behalf, and God glorified and praiſed for the mercy he hath extended towards us. Note, (1.) Paſt experience of God's interpoſition ſhould engage us ſtill to hope in his mercy. (2.) None ever truſted God and were confounded. (3.) We owe much to the prayers of thoſe who intereſt themſelves for us in their approaches to God. (4.) The bleſſings received in anſwer to prayer call loud for a due return of praiſe.

12. For our rejoicing is this, the teſtimony of our conſcience, that [o] in ſimplicity and godly ſincerity, [p] not with fleſhly wiſdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our converſation in the world, and more abundantly to you-wards. 13. For we write none other things unto you, than what you read or acknowledge, and I truſt you ſhall acknowledge even to the end. 14. As alſo you have acknowledged us in part, that [q] we are your rejoicing, even as [r] ye alſo are ours in the day of the Lord Jeſus.

[o] Chap. ii. xvii. & iv. 2.
[p] 1 Cor. ii. 4, 13.
[q] Chap. v. 12.
[r] Phil. iv. 1. 1 Theſ. ii. 19, 20.

v. 12—14. The apoſtle here,

1. Vindicates himſelf in general from the inſinuations of his traducers. For our rejoicing is this, the teſtimony of our conſcience, that in ſimplicity and godly ſincerity, maintaining a ſingle eye to God's glory; not with fleſhly wiſdom, purpoſing any mean ends, or ſelfiſh deſigns of our own; but by the grace of God, having this for our governing principle, taught by his word, and guided by his Spirit, we have had our converſation in the world, and more abundantly to you-wards, who cannot but be conſcious how holily and unblameably we behaved ourſelves among you; and if I have now diſappointed you of my intended viſit, it was no double-mindedneſs, but the providence of God, which prevented me. Note, A good conſcence affords always matter of real joy.

2. He appeals to themſelves for the truth of what he ſaid. For we write none other things unto you than what you read or acknowledge, and I truſt you ſhall acknowledge even to the end; our future converſation ſhall, we truſt, be as exemplary as the paſt. As alſo you have acknowledged us in part, that we are your rejoicing, even as ye alſo are ours in the day of the Lord Jeſus, when we hope to appear with you before him as the ſeals of our miniſtry, our joy and crown.

15. And in this confidence I was minded to come unto you before, that you might have [s] a ſecond benefit: 16. And to paſs by you into Macedonia, and to come again out of Macedonia unto you, and of you to be brought on my way toward Judea. 17. When I therefore was thus minded did I uſe lightneſs? or the things that I purpoſe, do I purpoſe according to the fleſh, that with me there ſhould be yea, yea, and nay, nay? 18. But as God is true, our † word toward you was not yea and nay. 19. For the Son of God, Jeſus Chriſt, who was preached among you by us, even by me, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, was not yea and nay, but in him was yea. 20. For all the promiſes of God in him are yea, and in him amen, unto the glory of God by us. 21. Now he which ſtabliſheth us with you in Chriſt, and [t] hath anointed us, is God: 22. [u] Who hath alſo ſealed us, and [x] given the earneſt of the Spirit in our hearts. 23. Moreover, [y] I call God for a record upon my ſoul, that [z] to ſpare you I came not as yet unto Corinth. 24. [a] Not for that we have dominion over your faith, but are helpers of your joy: for [b] by faith ye ſtand.

[s] Rom. i. 11.
† Or preaching.
[t] 1 John ii. 20, 27.
[u] Eph. i. 13. & iv. 30. 2 Tim. ii. 19. Rev. ii. 17.
[x] Chap. v. 5, Eph. i. 14.
[y] Rom. i. 9. Gal. i. 20.
[z] 1 Cor. iv. 21. Chap. xii. 20. & xiii. 2, 10.
[a] 1 Cor. iii. 5. Chap. iv. 5. 1 Pet. v. 3.
[b] Rom. xi. 20.

v. 15—24. In anſwer to the inſinuations of his enemies, who accuſed him of levity and inconſtancy,

1. He avers the ſincerity of his intentions at the time he gave them his promiſe. In the confidence of their affection and eſteem, he was fully purpoſed to viſit them, in hopes of affording them farther ſpiritual aſſiſtance; and not merely to call on them in his way to Macedonia, but to return from thence, and make ſome conſiderable ſtay among them, and then to have been helped forward on his journey by them to Jeruſalem. When I therefore was thus minded, did I uſe lightneſs, promiſing raſhly, and altering my mind without ſufficient reaſon? or the things that I purpoſe, do I purpoſe according to the fleſh? was I influenced by any ſecular views? or did I want to flatter you, and tell you what I never intended to perform? that with me there ſhould be yea, yea, and nay, nay, talking backwards and forwards to ſerve a turn? No. Paul, as every faithful man doth, ſpoke the truth from his heart.

2. He vindicates his doctrine, which the ſeducers wanted to repreſent as equally erroneous as his promiſe was deceitful; and this he doth with a ſolemn appeal to God. But, as God is true, our word toward you was not yea and nay, our doctrine was not various and changeable, but uniformly the ſame; for the Son of God, Jeſus Chriſt, who was preached among you by us, even by me and Silvanus and Timotheus, was not yea and nay, but in him was yea; the ſame crucified Jeſus was the ſubject of our miniſtry, and we taught with perfect harmony all the glorious truths of goſpel grace: for all the promiſes of God in him are yea, and in him amen, infallibly certain, and invariably the ſame; not conditional, and depending upon any thing in our miſerable ſelves, but everlaſtingly ſure, flowing from the ſovereign favour and love of God, purchaſed by the obedience to death, and ratified by the blood-ſhedding, of the Redeemer, unto the glory of God by us, who by our miniſtrations is thus exalted in the higheſt.

3. He mentions ſome of the ineſtimable bleſſings which God in Chriſt Jeſus had beſtowed. (1.) Now he which ſtabliſheth us with you in Chriſt is God, we are built up in him, and, being together united to him as our living Head, nothing ſhall ever be able to ſeparate us from him. (2.) He hath anointed us with the gifts and graces of his Spirit. (3.) He hath alſo ſealed us unto the day of redemption, ſecuring us for his own in a covenant of grace, and ſtamping his bleſſed image on our ſouls. (4.) He hath given us the earneſt of the Spirit in our hearts, ſhedding abroad his love, as the pledge of that eternal felicity whereunto we are appointed.

4. He gives a weighty reaſon for not coming at preſent to Corinth, and ſolemnly calls God to witneſs thereto, that it was out of mere tenderneſs towards them, to ſpare them, that he might not be obliged to inflict on the offenders condign puniſhment. But, to prevent miſtakes, he adds, Not for that we have dominion over your faith, we aſſume no tyrannical power, nor pretend to be Lords over your conſcience; but are helpers of your joy, deſiring to promote your ſpiritual and eternal conſolation: for by faith ye ſtand, grounded not on fallible human teſtimony, but on the word of God, and therefore ſhall never be moved away from the hope of the goſpel. Note, They who have true faith ſhall never finally or fatally fall.

CHAP. II.

In this chapter the apoſtle proceedeth in the account of the reaſons why he did not come to Corinth, ver. 1—4. Then he writeth concerning the inceſtuous perſon that lay under cenſure; and giveth direction for the reſtoring him, together with the reaſons for their ſo doing, ver. 5—11. And afterwards informeth them of his labours and ſucceſs in preaching the goſpel in ſeveral places, ver. 12—17.

1. BUT I determined this with myſelf, that I would not come again to you in heavineſs. 2. For if I make you ſorry, who is he then that maketh me glad, but the ſame which is made ſorry by me? 3. And I wrote this ſame unto you, leſt when I came [a] I ſhould have ſorrow from them of whom I ought to rejoice, [b] having confidence in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all. 4. For out of much affliction and anguiſh of heart, I wrote unto you with many tears; not that you ſhould be grieved, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you.

[a] Chap. xii. 21.
[b] Chap. viii. 22. Gal. v. 10.

v. 1—4. The apoſtle ſuggeſts another reaſon why he would not come now to Corinth, leſt he ſhould be compelled to exerciſe ſuch ſeverity on offenders as would be bitter to them and painful to himſelf; and in ſuch circumſtances it muſt be a melancholy meeting, when he muſt make thoſe ſorrowful who ſhould have made him glad; and, whilſt this was the caſe, his tender ſympathy with them muſt occaſion heavineſs to his own ſpirit. He wiſhed therefore rather that all offences might be firſt removed, for which end he had written the former letter, and that he might not be obliged to ſorrow over thoſe as impenitent, in whom he hoped to rejoice as faithful: and he would fain hope, from his confidence in their affection and regard, that his joy was theirs, and that they would be ready to remove every cauſe of uneaſineſs, and delight to make him happy. With much anguiſh of heart, and many tears, he had dictated this epiſtle, not to grieve them, but to profit them, and that his own love towards them, and jealouſy over them, might be more abundantly manifeſted. Note, (1.) Faithful rebuke is the ſureſt mark of love. (2.) Correction is an unpleaſing though neceſſary taſk. (3.) The deſign of every reproof ſhould not be to grieve but to recover.

5. But [c] if any have cauſed grief, [d] he hath not grieved me, but in part: that I may not overcharge you all. 6. Sufficient to ſuch a man is this † puniſhment, [e] which was inflicted of many. 7. So that contrariwiſe, [f] ye ought rather to forgive him, and comfort him, leſt perhaps ſuch a one ſhould be ſwallowed up with overmuch ſorrow. 8. Wherefore I beſeech you that ye would confirm your love towards him. 9. For to this end alſo did I write, that I might know the proof of you, [g] whether ye be obedient in all things. 10. To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive alſo: for if I forgave any thing to whom I forgave it, for your ſakes forgave I it, in the perſon of Chriſt; 11. [h] Leſt Satan ſhould get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of [i] his devices.

[c] 1 Cor. v. 1.
[d] Gal. iv. 12.
† Or cenſure.
[e] 1 Cor. v. 4, 5.
[f] Gal. v. 1. Col. iii. 13.
[g] Chap. vii. 15. & x. 6.
[h] Luke xxii. 31. 1 Cor. vii. 5. Chap. xi. 3. 1 Pet. v. 7.
[i] Eph. vi. 11, 16. 2 Tim. ii. 25. Rev. ii. 24.

v. 5—11. The apoſtle here directs them how to behave towards the inceſtuous perſon, who had been, according to his orders, excommunicated.

1. He had been grieved in part that he was compelled to puniſh; but, ſince this man had teſtified his repentance, the cauſe of his ſorrow was removed: and though he had found fault with many who were puffed up, and had not mourned on this occaſion, he would not overcharge them with farther reproof, ſince they had, as a body, cleared themſelves by their obedience to his letter.

2. The puniſhment which had been inflicted on the offender was ſufficient; and, ſince he was humbled and reſtored, the ſentence of excommunication ſhould be removed. He exhorts them therefore, (1.) to forgive him; (2.) to comfort him under the deep wounds of ſhame and remorſe which he muſt have felt, leſt Satan ſhould take advantage of his diſtreſs to overwhelm him with deſpair. (3.) To confirm their love towards him, and receive him into their church, and into their boſom, with all the cordiality of warm affection. Note, We ought to be peculiarly tender of broken ſpirits, not aggravating their offences, but ſympathizing with their anguiſh.

3. This was the end the apoſtle propoſed, both in his former and preſent epiſtle, that he might have a proof of their obedience. And, to engage them to a ready compliance with his preſent exhortation, he mentions his own willingneſs to concur with them in forgiving this penitent; and, according to the divine authority delegated to him, in the name of Jeſus Chriſt he pronounced his abſolution: and this he did for their ſakes, as a freſh mark of his love to them, and to promote their welfare, leſt Satan ſhould take advantage, from any ſeverity ſhewn to this offender, to diſcourage the hearts of backſliders from returning, through deſpair of pardon, or raiſe prejudices againſt the members of the church as of an unforgiving and inexorable ſpirit. For we are not, ſays he, ignorant of his devices, how by every method he ſtrives to obſtruct the ſucceſs of the goſpel, and diſturb the peace of the church.

12. Furthermore, [k] when I came to Troas to preach Chriſt's goſpel, and [l] a door was opened unto me of the Lord, 13. I had no reſt in my ſpirit, becauſe I found not [m] Titus my brother: but taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia. 14. Now thanks be unto God, [n] which always cauſeth us to triumph in Chriſt, and maketh manifeſt [o] the ſavour of his knowledge by us in every place. 15. For [p] we are unto God a ſweet ſavour of Chriſt in them that are ſaved, and in them that periſh. 16. [q] To the one we are the ſavour of death unto death; and to the other the ſavour of life unto life: and [r] who is ſufficient for theſe things? 17. For we are not as many, which † corrupt the word of God: but as of ſincerity, but as of God, in the ſight of God ſpeak we in Chriſt.

[k] Acts xvi. 8. & xx. 6.
[l] 1 Cor. xvi. 9.
[m] Chap. vii. 6.
[n] Rom. viii. 37.
[o] Cant. i. 3.
[p] 1 Cor. i. 18.
[q] Luke ii. 34. John ix. 39. Acts xiii. 46. 1 Pet. ii. 7, 8.
[r] Chap. iii. 5, 6.
† Gr. adulterate. Iſa. i. 22. Chap. iv. 2. 2 Pet. ii. 3.

v. 12—17. The apoſtle,

1. Acquaints them with another thing which retarded his journey to Corinth. Furthermore, when I came to Troas, to preach Chriſt's goſpel, that conſtant delightful theme on which I dwell; and a door was opened unto me of the Lord, he, who hath the hearts of all men in his hand, having given me a pleaſing proſpect of ſucceſs: yet ſo anxious was I to hear of you, that I had no reſt in my ſpirit, becauſe I found not Titus my brother, whom I expected to arrive there from you: but, taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia, where I met him, and heard with delight the account which he brought from you.

2. Having hinted his ſucceſsful labours at Troas, he breaks forth into thankſgiving to God. Now thanks be unto God which always cauſeth us to triumph, in the midſt of all our tribulations raiſing us ſuperior to our foes, and filling us with exultation and joy in Chriſt the rock of our confidence; and maketh manifeſt the ſavour of his knowledge by us in every place, diffuſing his goſpel as fragrance, and cauſing our labours to be acceptable to himſelf, and profitable to thoſe among whom he ſends us to miniſter. For we are unto God a ſweet ſavour of Chriſt, his precious name in our lips, and his grace in our hearts, render us pleaſing to God, in them that are ſaved, in whom God's rich mercy is magnified, being called by him to the faith and privileges of the goſpel; and alſo in them that periſh, in whom his juſtice is diſplayed in puniſhing their obſtinate infidelity; and, though they are not gathered, yet are we alike glorious in the eyes of the Lord, who regards not our ſucceſs, but our fidelity. To the one we are the ſavour of death unto death, a deſpiſed and abuſed goſpel aggravating their guilt, and increaſing their condemnation; and to the other the ſavour of life unto life; like a ſweet perfume, that recovers the fainting ſpirit, ſo doth the goſpel, through the power of the Holy Ghoſt, quicken the ſouls of many from the death of ſin unto a life of righteouſneſs, and continues to refreſh and revive them amidſt all their trials and ſufferings here till they come to eternal life and glory hereafter. And, in the view of theſe etrnally important events, and the awful and difficult charge lying upon us, who needs not to tremble for himſelf, and to cry out, Who is ſufficient for theſe things? The greateſt, the beſt of men, will be moſt conſcious of their own weakneſs, and be looking up for more than human power to enable them for the diſcharge of this arduous employment. Note, (1.) They who are truly found in Chriſt will always have cauſe to triumph in him over all their foes. (2.) The goſpel word never returns void. Where it is not a ſavour of life, it will be a ſavour of death. (3.) The more we are ſenſible of our own inſufficiency, the more ſhall we look up to him who giveth ſtrength to the weak.

3. He vindicates himſelf, and glances at their falſe teachers. For we are not as many, which corrupt and adulterate the word of God, to make advantage thereby: but as of ſincerity, without guile or deceit; but as of God, ſpeaking under his influence, guidance, and authority, in the ſight of God ſpeak we in Chriſt, approving ourſelves to the great Searcher of hearts, with a ſingle eye to the Redeemer's glory, and making him the grand ſubject of all our miniſtrations.

CHAP. III.

The apoſtle makes an apology for his ſeeming to commend himſelf, and is careful not to aſſume too much to himſelf, but to aſcribe all praiſe unto God, ver. 1—5. He then runs a compariſon between the Old Teſtament and the New, and ſheweth the excellency of the latter above the former, ver. 6—11. From whence he infers what is the duty of goſpel-miniſters, and the advantage of thoſe who live under the goſpel, above thoſe that lived under the law, ver. 12. to the end.

1. [a] DO we begin again to commend ourſelves? or need we, as ſome others, epiſtles of commendation to you, or letters of commendation from you? 2. [b] Ye are our epiſtle written in our hearts, known and read of all men: 3. For as much as ye are manifeſtly declared to be the epiſtle of Chriſt, miniſtred by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; [c] not in tables of ſtone, but [d] in fleſhly tables of the heart. 4. And ſuch truſt have we through Chriſt to God-ward: 5. [e] Not that we are ſufficient of ourſelves to think any thing as of ourſelves: [f] but our ſufficiency is of God.

[a] 1 Cor. iv. 15. & ix. 1. Chap. ii. 17. & v. 12. & xii. 11.
[b] 1 Cor. ix. 2.
[c] Ex. xxiv. 12. & xxxiv. 1.
[d] Pſ. xl. 8. Jer. xxxi. 33. Ezek. xi. 19. & xxxvi. 26. Heb. viii. 10.
[e] John xv. 5. Chap. ii. 16.
[f] 1 Cor. xv. 10. Phil. ii. 13.

v. 1—5. To ſilence his traducers the apoſtle was compelled to proteſt his ſincerity; and here,

1. He apologizes for ſeeming thus to commend himſelf. Do we begin again to commend ourſelves? or need we, as ſome others, the falſe apoſtles, epiſtles of commendation to you from other churches, or letters of commendation from you, in order to gain credit and influence? no: we need them not: our conduct ſpeaks for us. And ye yourſelves are our epiſtle, our beſt letters teſtimonial, written in our hearts, in the deep affection we bear you; ſome read your hearts, where their converſion bore an honourable teſtimony to the inſtrument of it; known and read of all men, who obſerve the work of God's grace evident in you through our labours; foraſmuch as ye are manifeſtly declared to be the epiſtle of Chriſt, miniſtred by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God, the author of all the gifts and graces which you poſſeſs; not on tables of ſtone, as the law of Moſes, but in the fleſhly tables of the heart, ſoftened and renewed by grace, where the impreſſion of the goſpel-word is deep and laſting. And ſuch truſt have we through Chriſt to God-ward, that our miniſtry hath been made thus effectual to you, to God's glory, your benefit, and our own commendation.

2. He prevents any ſuggeſtion as if he herein arrogated ought to himſelf. Not that we are ſufficient of ourſelves to think any thing as of ourſelves, who cannot from ourſelves naturally produce one good thought, and much leſs by the mere power of our reaſoning effect your converſion: no: but our ſufficiency is of God, who alone furniſhes us with ability, and crowns our labours with ſucceſs. To him therefore ſhould the praiſe of all be for ever aſcribed. Note, The beſt of men have always the lowlieſt thoughts of themſelves.

6. [g] Who alſo hath made us able miniſters of [h] the New Teſtament, [i] not of the letter, but of the Spirit: for [k] the letter killeth, but [l] the Spirit giveth life. 7. But if [m] the miniſtration of death [n] written and ingraven in ſtones was glorious, [o] ſo that the children of Iſrael could not ſtedfaſtly behold the face of Moſes, for the glory of his countenance, which glory was to be done away; 8. How ſhall not [p] the miniſtration of the Spirit be rather glorious? 9. For if the miniſtration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the miniſtration of [q] righteouſneſs exceed in glory. 10. For even that which was made glorious, had no glory in this reſpect, by reaſon of the glory that excelleth. 11. For if that which is done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious.

[g] Chap. v. 18.
[h] Jer. xxxi. 31. Mat. xxvi. 28.
[i] Rom. ii. 29. & vii. 6.
[k] Rom. iii. 20. & iv. 15. & vii. 9, &c. Gal. iii. 10.
[l] John vi. 63.
[m] Rom. vii. 10.
[n] Deut. x. 1, &c.
[o] Ex. xxxiv. 29, 30.
[p] Gal. iii. 5.
[q] Rom. iii. 21.

v. 6—11. The apoſtle runs a parallel between the Moſaical and goſpel diſpenſation, ſhewing the ſuperior excellency of the latter, and the honour of thoſe who were the miniſters of it.

Who alſo hath made us able miniſters of the New Teſtament, furniſhing us with abilities and giving us ſucceſs; not of the letter, not miniſters of the law, which the Judaizing teachers ſo affect; but of the ſpirit, of the goſpel, which the Holy Ghoſt accompanies with his divine energy: for the letter, the law, killeth, commanding a perfection men cannot perform, and denouncing a curſe on the leaſt tranſgreſſion; but the ſpirit, the goſpel, attended with the quickening power of the Holy Ghoſt, giveth life, bringeth ſinners into a ſtate of favour with God, raiſing them to ſpiritual life here, as the pledge and beginning of eternal life hereafter.

But if the law, which was the miniſtration of death, written and ingraven in ſtones, was glorious, when the two tables were delivered with ſuch ſolemn pomp on Sinai, ſo that the children of Iſrael could not ſtedfaſtly behold the face of Moſes, for the glory of his countenance, ſo bright it ſhone, which glory was to be done away in a while; how ſhall not the miniſtration of the Spirit, in the goſpel, be rather glorious, which is attended with ſuch mighty energy and quickening influence? and how much do its miniſters alſo exceed in glory? for if the miniſtration of condemnation, which could only denounce wrath on the diſobedient, be glory; how much more doth the miniſtration of righteouſneſs, even of the righteouſneſs of God by faith, exceed in glory. And they who miniſter this glorious goſpel muſt as much excel the miniſters of the law, as righteouſneſs and eternal life are preferable to condemnation and wrath: for even that which was made glorious had no glory in this reſpect, by reaſon of the glory that excelleth, as ſtars diſappear before the riſing ſun. For if that which is done away, as is now the caſe with the Moſaical diſpenſation, was glorious, and introduced with ſuch majeſty and ſplendor; much more that which remaineth, the goſpel diſpenſation, is glorious: its privileges and bleſſings are infinitely greater, and will endure to eternity.

12. Seeing then that we have ſuch hope, [r] we uſe great † plainneſs of ſpeech. 13. And not as Moſes, [s] which put a veil over his face, that the children of Iſrael could not ſtedfaſtly look to [t] the end of that which is aboliſhed. 14. But [u] their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the ſame veil untaken away, in the reading of the Old Teſtament; which veil is done away in Chriſt. 15. But even unto this day, when Moſes is read, the veil is upon their heart. 16. Nevertheleſs, [x] when it ſhall turn to the Lord, [y] the veil ſhall be taken away. 17. Now the Lord is that Spirit: and [z] where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. 18. But we all with open face beholding [a] as in a glaſs [b] the glory of the Lord, [c] are changed into the ſame image, from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord.

[r] Eph. vi. 19.
† Or boldneſs.
[s] Ex. xxxiv. 33, &c.
[t] Rom. x. 4. Gal. iii. 23.
[u] Iſa. vi. 10.
[x] Rom. xi. 23, 26.
[y] Iſa. xxv. 7.
[z] John vi. 63.
[a] 1 Cor. xiii. 12.
[b] Chap. iv. 4, 6. 1 Tim. i. 11.
[c] Rom. viii. 29. 1 Cor. xv. 49. Col. iii. 10.

v. 12—18. Theſe words are the inference from the foregoing compariſon.

Seeing then that we have ſuch hope in the ſuperior excellence of the goſpel above the law, and truſt on the divine power to make it effectual, we uſe great plainneſs of ſpeech, freely delivering our meſſage, and affecting no embelliſhments. Not as Moſes, which put a veil over his face, to hide the ſplendor of his countenance, intimating thereby, that the children of Iſrael could not ſtedfaſtly look to the end of that which is aboliſhed; they ſtuck at the letter and the ſhadows, and perceived not that all was intended to lead them to Chriſt, that they might be juſtified by faith: but their minds were blinded, ſtupified (ἐπωρώθη) for not only then, but until this day remaineth the ſame veil untaken away in the reading of the Old Teſtament; beſides the natural veil of darkneſs on their minds, there was an obſcurity in the revelation itſelf as wrapped up in types and figures; and though they read the Scriptures, they underſtood not their true meaning and deſign; which vail is done away in Chriſt, in whom all the types and prophecies received their accompliſhment, and who is the end of the law for righteouſneſs to every one that believeth, as they know into whoſe heart he ſhines with the light of his goſpel: but even unto this day, when Moſes is read, the carnal Jews are ſo hardned through pride, prejudice, and ſenſuality, that the veil is ſtill upon their heart, and they continue ignorant of him to whom the law and the prophets bear witneſs. Nevertheleſs, when it ſhall turn to the Lord, either the heart of any individual among them, or the people in general in the laſt days, the veil ſhall be taken away, and they ſhall ſee, know, and receive the true Meſſiah. Now the Lord Jeſus Chriſt is that quickening Spirit, who alone can effect this mighty work: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, and the goſpel is truly embraced, there is liberty, freedom from darkneſs, guilt, and bondage, and acceſs with boldneſs to a reconciled God. But we all with open face, who, through the illumination of the Spirit, have received the goſpel in the light and love of it, beholding there, as in a glaſs, or mirrour, which diſtinctly reflects the perſon, the glory of the Lord, are changed into the ſame image of the adored Jeſus, from glory to glory, from the bright traces which his grace begins in time till his likeneſs in us is perfected in eternity: and all this is effected even as by the Spirit of the Lord, or by the Lord the Spirit, the great and glorious Agent in this new creation, who is very God, and in the miniſtration of his goſpel effectually brings the redeemed to the meaſure of the ſtature of the fulneſs of Chriſt. Lord, thou Spirit of all grace, thus transform my ſoul into the Saviour's perfect image!

CHAP. IV.

In this chapter we have an account, 1. Of the conſtancy of the apoſtle and his fellow-labourers in their work. Their conſtancy is declared, ver. 1. Their ſincerity is vouched, ver. 2. An objection is obviated, ver. 3, 4. And their integrity proved, ver. 5, 6, 7. 2. Of their courage and patience under their ſufferings. Where ſee what their ſufferings were, together with their allays, ver. 8—12. And what it was that kept them from ſinking and fainting under them, ver. 13. to the end.

1. THerefore ſeeing we have this miniſtry, [a] as we have received mercy we faint not; 2. But have renounced the hidden things of diſhoneſty, not walking in craftineſs, [b] nor handling the word of God deceitfully, but by manifeſtation of the truth [c] commending ourſelves to every man's conſcience in the ſight of God. 3. But if our goſpel be hid, [d] it is hid to them that are loſt: 4. In which [e] the god of this world [f] hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, leſt the light of [g] the glorious goſpel of Chriſt, [h] who is the image of God, ſhould ſhine unto them. 5. For we preach not ourſelves, [i] but Chriſt Jeſus the Lord; and [k] ourſelves your ſervants for Jeſus ſake. 6. For God [l] who commanded the light to ſhine out of darkneſs, [m] hath ſhined in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jeſus Chriſt. 7. But [n] we have this treaſure in earthen veſſels, that [o] the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.

[a] 1 Tim. i. 12, 13.
[b] Chap. ii. 17. 1 Theſ. ii. 3, 5.
[c] Chap. v. 11. & vi. 4. & xi. 6.
[d] 1 Cor. i. 18. Chap. ii. 15. 2 Theſ. ii. 10.
[e] John xii. 31. & xiv. 30. Eph. vi. 12.
[f] Iſa. vi. 10.
[g] Chap. iii. 8, 11.
[h] John xiv. 9. Phil. ii. 6. Heb. i. 3.
[i] 1 Cor. i. 23. & ii. 2.
[k] 1 Cor. x. 33. Chap. i. 24.
[l] Gen. i. 3.
[m] Eph. v. 8. 1 Pet. ii. 9. 2 Pet. i. 19.
[n] Judg. vii. 16.
[o] 1 Cor. ii. 5. Chap. iii. 5. & xii. 9.

v. 1—7. The apoſtle, having ſhewn the excellence of the goſpel above the law, paſſes on to give an account of the diligence and ſincerity with which he and his companions diſcharged their miniſtry.

1. They laboured with perſeverance and fidelity. Therefore ſeeing we have this miniſtry from the Lord, as we have received mercy, and ſupport under all our infirmities, we faint not, amidſt our greateſt trials chearfully holding on unwearied in our glorious courſe; but have renounced the hidden things of diſhoneſty, abhorring every thing ſcandalous or reproachful; uſing no cover or concealment, not walking in craftineſs, to beguile unſtable ſouls by any mean arts; nor handling the word of God deceitfully, corrupting the pure truth by any baſe alloy of our own, or attempting to accommodate it to the taſte of our hearers; but by manifeſtation of the truth, commending ourſelves to every man's conſcience in the ſight of God, in all plainneſs of ſpeech applying the goſpel to men's hearts, under a deep ſenſe of the ſolemn account we muſt ſhortly give of our miniſtry. Note, (1.) The buſineſs of miniſters is not to adapt their words to men's humours, but to ſtrike at their hearts. (2). They who lay their hands to the goſpel plough muſt never faint, or look back, whatever trials they may meet in the diſcharge of their office.

2. He obviates an objection, How, if he ſpoke ſo plainly, the truth was yet received by ſo few. But if our goſpel, after all the pains we take, be hid, it is hid to them that are loſt, who wilfully perſiſt in their impenitence and unbelief, and reject the counſel of God againſt their own ſouls; in whom the god of this world, the devil, hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, increaſing and confirming, by his malignant influence, the native hardneſs and darkneſs of their hearts, by his allurements or diſcouragements keeping them ſafe under his dominion, leſt the light of the glorious goſpel of Chriſt, who is the image of God, the brightneſs of his glory and the expreſs image of his perſon, ſhould ſhine unto them, enlighten their darkneſs, and convince and convert their ſouls. Note, (1.) They muſt be loſt from whom the goſpel is hid, ſince it is the only means of ſalvation. (2.) The devil hath the general ſway in this world; and is, though men perceive it not, the real object of their worſhip. (3.) The way in which Satan's kingdom is maintained in the world is by ignorance, and the prejudices he raiſes againſt the glorious goſpel of Chriſt.

3. He declares their integrity. For we preach not ourſelves, not our own inventions, nor ſeek to promote our own honour or intereſts, but Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, making him the grand ſubject of all our diſcourſes, his perſon, offices, grace, righteouſneſs; and owning ourſelves to be no more than your ſervants for Jeſus ſake, whoſe glory we ſeek to advance in the ſalvation of your ſouls. For God, who commanded the light to ſhine out of darkneſs, by his almighty word at the beginning, hath, by the like divine energy, ſhined into our hearts, diſpelling the thick clouds of ſpiritual darkneſs, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jeſus Chriſt, as it appears in that glorious goſpel of which he is the ſum and ſubſtance, and wherein all the divine perfections are exalted to the higheſt. But we have this treaſure of the goſpel in earthen veſſels, committed to frail, poor, and periſhing worms, ſuch as we are, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us. When ſuch weak inſtruments are enabled to bear up under all perſecutions, and are made ſo amazingly ſucceſsful in their labours, it muſt with the ſtrongeſt demonſtration be evident, that the work is more than human, even of divine operation. Note, (1.) None can illumine the darkneſs of a fallen ſoul but he that at firſt ſaid, Let there be light, and there was light. (2.) The weaker the inſtruments are, the more is the power and grace of God magnified, who worketh by them, and makes their miniſtry effectual to the ſalvation of loſt ſinners.

8. [p] We are troubled on every ſide, yet not diſtreſſed; we are perplexed, but not in deſpair; 9. Perſecuted, [q] but not forſaken; [r] caſt down, [s] but not deſtroyed; 10. Always bearing about in the body [t] the dying of the Lord Jeſus, [u] that the life alſo of Jeſus might be made manifeſt in our body. 11. For we which live, [x] are alway delivered unto death for Jeſus ſake, that the life alſo of Jeſus might be made manifeſt in our mortal fleſh. 12. So then death worketh in us, but life in you. 13. We having the ſame ſpirit of faith, according as it is written, [y] I believed, and therefore have I ſpoken: we alſo believe, and therefore ſpeak; 14. Knowing that [z] he which raiſed up the Lord Jeſus, ſhall raiſe up us alſo by Jeſus, and ſhall preſent us with you. 15. For [a] all things are for your ſakes, that [b] the abundant grace might, through the thankſgiving of many, redound to the glory of God. 16. For which cauſe we faint not, but though our outward man periſh, yet [c] the inward man is renewed day by day. 17. For [d] our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; 18. While we look not at the things which are ſeen, [e] but at the things which are not ſeen: for the things which are ſeen, are temporal; but the things which are not ſeen, are eternal.

[p] Chap. vii. 5.
[q] Heb. xiii. 5.
[r] Pſ. xxxvii. 24.
[s] Chap. i. 10.
[t] Chap. i. 5, 9. Gal. vi. 17. Phil. iii. 10.
[u] Rom. viii. 17. 2 Tim. ii. 11, 12. 1 Pet. iv. 13.
[x] Pſ. xliv. 22. Mat. v. 11. Rom. viii. 36. 1 Cor. iv. 9. & xv. 31.
[y] Pſ. cxvi. 10.
[z] Rom. viii. 11. 1 Cor. vi. 14.
[a] 1 Cor. iii. 21. Col. i. 24. 2 Tim. ii. 10.
[b] Chap. i. 11.
[c] Rom. vii. 22. Eph. iii. 16. Col. iii. 10. 1 Pet. iii. 4.
[d] Mat. v. 12. Rom. viii. 18. 1 Pet. i. 6. & v. 10.
[e] Heb. xi. 1.

v. 8—18. Many were the dangers to which, for the goſpel's ſake, the miniſters of Chriſt were expoſed; yet none of theſe things moved them.

1. Their trials were great. We are troubled on every ſide, with manifold afflictions in every place, yet not diſtreſſed with anxiety, or diſcompoſed as if we had no way to eſcape; we are perplexed, and in doubt what ſtep to take, but not in deſpair of the Lord's help and interpoſition; perſecuted by wicked men with unrelenting malice, but not forſaken of God, ſo as to be given up for a prey to their teeth; caſt down through the infirmity of our fleſh, and the prevalence of fear and unbelief, but not deſtroyed as the wicked, but riſing again by grace, and finally triumphant over all the power of evil: always bearing about in the body the dying of the Lord Jeſus, carrying the marks of our ſufferings, that ſhew we belong to our crucified Maſter, who ſympathizes with us and counts our griefs his own, that the life alſo of Jeſus might be made manifeſt in our body, He, as the living principle within, ſuſtaining us under all our conflicts. For we which live ſpiritually by his grace, and, amidſt our continual perſecutions, are ſtill preſerved, are always delivered unto death for Jeſus ſake; each day in jeopardy, and ready to be cut off for the teſtimony which we bear, that the life alſo of Jeſus might be made manifeſt in our mortal fleſh, it being evidently ſeen, by the protection he vouchſafes to us, that he is riſen and at the right hand of God, and that his Spirit hath quickened us to newneſs of life, whilſt with unſhaken courage, patience, and perſeverance, in the midſt of our ſufferings, we deſire to finiſh our courſe after his example. So then death worketh in us, and we, who are Chriſt's miniſtring ſervants, are expoſed to the moſt fatal dangers; but life in you, who enjoy its comforts in peace: and even our ſufferings, as they are a confirmation of the goſpel which we preach, are the means of advancing your ſpiritual and eternal life.

2. If their trials were great, their ſupports were greater. (1.) They ſtood by faith. We having the ſame ſpirit of faith with the ſaints of old, which animated the divine Redeemer, and is wrought by the Holy Ghoſt in us and you; according as it is written, I believed, and therefore have I ſpoken: we alſo believe, and therefore ſpeak, fully perſuaded of the heavenly doctrines which we preach, and confident that the Lord will ſupport us in our teſtimony to his goſpel, and fulfil all his promiſes unto us both in time and eternity. Note, They who have true faith will never fail. (2.) They were upheld by the hope of a joyful reſurrection. Knowing with fulleſt aſſurance, that he which raiſed up the Lord Jeſus, ſhall raiſe up us alſo by Jeſus, in virtue of our union with him, and ſhall preſent us with you faultleſs before the throne of his glory; and the expectation of this raiſes us above the fears of death. (3.) The conſciouſneſs that God would be glorified, and men's ſouls profited, ſupported and quickened them. For all things are for your ſakes, all our labours and ſufferings ultimately tend to promote your preſent and eternal happineſs; that the abundant grace, held forth in our miniſtrations, might, through the thankſgiving of many, redound to the glory of God, who, embracing the goſpel, and made partakers of its ineſtimable bleſſings cannot but with ceaſeleſs praiſes adore and magnify that gracious God, who hath called them to his kingdom and glory. For which cauſe we faint not, but for your ſakes, and God's glory, patiently and chearfully perſevere. (4.) Their own ſouls were profited by their afflictions, which was another reaſon why they ſhould bear up under them. But though our outward man periſh through our hardſhips, labours, and ſufferings, yet the inward man is renewed day by day, with freſh ſupplies of grace, ſtrength, and conſolation, growing more meet for the eternal world to which we are going; and we may well be content with every outward croſs that tends to bring us thus nearer to our crown. (5.) The near and aſſured proſpect of glory was their grand ſupport and comfort. For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, ſo faith teaches us to judge; our afflictions are light, compared with the weight of glory which we expect; and momentary, however long continued through life, if viewed againſt the eternity which ſucceeds; and what is more, it worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. The words are amazingly emphatical, (Καθ' υπερϐολην εις υπερϐολην, αιωνιον ϐαρος δοξης) and ſuch as no tranſlation can fully render. Steadily therefore we perſevere, while we look not at the things which are ſeen, but at the things which are not ſeen, the glorious objects above, which faith realizes to the ſoul; for the things which are ſeen are temporal, tranſitory, and momentary; but the things which are not ſeen are eternal, glorious beyond conception, and to be enjoyed without meaſure and without end.

CHAP. V.

The apoſtle proceedeth in ſhewing the reaſons why they did not faint under their afflictions, viz. their expectation, deſire, and aſſurance of happineſs after death, ver. 1—5. and maketh an inference for the comfort of believers in their preſent ſtate, ver. 6, 7, 8. and another to quicken them in their duty, ver. 9, 10, 11. Then he maketh an apology for ſeeming to commend himſelf, and giveth a good reaſon for his zeal and diligence, ver. 12—15. And mentions two things that are neceſſary in order to our living to Chriſt, viz. regeneration and reconciliation ver. 16, ad finem.

1. FOR we know, that if [a] our earthly houſe of this tabernacle were diſſolved, we have a building of God, an houſe not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. 2. For in this [b] we groan earneſtly, deſiring to be clothed upon with our houſe which is from heaven: 3. If ſo be that [c] being clothed we ſhall not be found naked. 4. For we that are in this tabernable do groan, being burdened: not for that we would be unclothed, but [d] clothed upon, that mortality might be ſwallowed up of life. 5. Now [e] he that hath wrought us for the ſelf-ſame thing, is God, [f] who alſo hath given unto us the earneſt of the Spirit. 6. Therefore we are always confident, knowing that [g] whilſt we are at home in the body, we are abſent from the Lord: 7. (For [h] we walk by faith, not by ſight) 8. We are confident, I ſay, and [i] willing rather to be abſent from the body, and to be preſent with the Lord. 9. Wherefore [k] we labour, that whether preſent or abſent we may be accepted of him. 10. For [l] we muſt all appear before the judgment-ſeat of Chriſt, [m] that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad. 11. Knowing therefore [n] the terror of the Lord, [o] we perſuade men; but we are made manifeſt unto God, and I truſt alſo [p] are made manifeſt in your conſciences.

[a] Job iv. 19. 2 Pet. i. 13, 14.
[b] Rom. viii. 23.
[c] Rev. iii. 18. & xvi. 15.
[d] 1 Cor. xv. 53, 54.
[e] Iſa. xxix. 23. Eph. ii. 10.
[f] Rom. viii. 16, 23. Chap. i. 22. Eph. i. 14. & iv. 30.
[g] 1 Chron. xxix. 15. Heb. xi. 13.
[h] Rom. viii. 24. 1 Cor. xiii. 12. Chap. iv. 18. Heb. xi. 1, 13.
[i] Phil. i. 23.
[k] 2 Pet. iii. 14.
[l] Mat. xxv. 32. Rom. xiv. 10, 12.
[m] Job xxxiv. 11. Eccleſ. xii. 14. Rom. ii. 6, &c. Gal. vi. 7.
[n] Heb. x. 31.
[o] Chap. xii. 15. 2 Tim. iv. 2, 5.
[p] Chap. iv. 2.

v. 1—11. No marvel, with ſuch a ſcene full in his view, the apoſtle fainted not. He enlarges here on the delightful theme, which cannot but miniſter ſomething of the like courage and conſolation to every gracious ſoul. We have,

1. The apoſtle's expectation and deſire, which every faithful ſervant of Jeſus can, in a meaſure, adopt as his own. For we know, by the evidence of God's word, the teſtimony of our conſcience, and the witneſs of the Spirit, that if our houſe of this tabernacle, the frail body in which we as pilgrims at preſent ſojourn for a day, be diſſolved, and returned to the duſt from whence it came, we have a building of God, infinitely more magnificent, a houſe not made with hands eternal in the heavens, a celeſtial palace prepared for our everlaſting reſidence, and ſuited to the excellence of the glorified ſoul. For in this tabernacle of clay we groan earneſtly, loaded with many afflictions, and burdened with many corruptions, deſiring to be clothed with our houſe, which is from heaven, and to arrive at the celeſtial city, where ſin nor ſorrow ſhall ever enter more. If ſo be that, or ſince, being thus clothed with robes of light and purity, we ſhall not be found naked, expoſed any longer to the ſtorms of this wretched world, but be in eternal joy and felicity. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened, longing for our perfect ſtate of holineſs and happineſs, when we ſhall be for ever releaſed from the burdens of outward afflictions, and indwelling ſin: not for that we would be unclothed, and wiſh to part with our bodies, but clothed upon, that mortality might be ſwallowed up of life; tranſlated as Enoch, or changed in a moment, as their bodies ſhall be, who are alive at the coming of the Lord. Note, (1.) Our preſent abode is a wretched tabernacle that muſt quickly be taken down; have we an eternal manſion ready to receive the immortal ſoul? (2.) To a ſoul that hath ever taſted of the bitterneſs of ſin, and groaned under the trials and temptations of this mortal ſtate, the exchange of worlds is a conſummation devoutly to be wiſhed for.

2. The apoſtle mentions the ground of his expectation and hope. Now he that hath wrought us for this ſelf-ſame thing is God, whoſe mighty energy hath ſpiritualized our ſouls, and led them up to ſeek thoſe high and heavenly things; who alſo hath given unto us the earneſt of the Spirit, in his graces, conſolations, and abiding reſidence in our hearts, which ſeal to us the purchaſed poſſeſſion. Therefore we are always confident in the aſſurance of the fulfilment of the divine promiſes, and of ſupport under all our trials till they ſhall happily end; knowing that whilſt we are at home in the body, we are abſent from the Lord, and, like pilgrims, diſtant from our true home and reſt. For we walk by faith, not by ſight, looking above all preſent objects to the eternal world; and having our hearts influenced, and our conduct regulated accordingly; we are confident, I ſay, in the experience of God's preſent love, and the aſſurance of his eternal favour, and willing rather to be abſent from the body and to be preſent with the Lord, well pleaſed, if God ſo ordained, to bid an eternal adieu to all our infirmities and afflictions, and enter immediately into the beatific viſion of our Lord. Wherefore we labour, that whether preſent or abſent, we may be accepted of him. This is our holy ambition, ſo to be found in him, ſprinkled with his blood, clothed with his righteouſneſs, and walking under the influence of his grace, that now, and in the day of his appearing and glory, both our perſons and ſervices may meet with his approbation. Note, (1.) None enter the heavenly world, but thoſe who have the earneſt of the Spirit in their hearts, and are made meet for the inheritance among the ſaints in light. (2.) Faith in God's promiſes inſpires confidence of their fulfilment; we know we have not followed cunningly-deviſed fables. (3.) They who have ſeen the glories of a better world, and are aſſured of their portion there, cannot but with pleaſure look forward to the happy change. (4.) The more ſure our hope of heaven is, the more enlivened will be our diligence in the way that leads thither.

3. He reminds them of the awful day which approached, as a ſpur to himſelf, and a warning to them. For we muſt all appear before the judgment-ſeat of Chriſt, where without diſguiſe every man's real character will appear, that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad; admitted graciouſly to the reward of eternal bleſſedneſs, or ſinking under righteous vengeance into the abyſs of endleſs miſery. Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, and the fearful end of the hypocrite and ungodly, we perſuade men, by every alarming and alluring motive, to fly from the wrath to come, and embrace the goſpel which we proclaim. But, whether they will hear or forbear, we are made manifeſt to God, who knows our ſimplicity in all our miniſtrations, and I truſt alſo are made manifeſt in your conſciences; for our labours and ſufferings bear witneſs to the unfeigned concern we have ſhewn for your ſouls. Note, (1.) The ſenſe of an approaching judgment ſhould awaken a holy ſolicitude to be ready for it. (2.) The terrors of the Lord his miniſters muſt uſe to rouſe the lethargic ſinner, and urge him to fly from his impending ruin.

12. For [q] we commend not ourſelves again unto you, but give you occaſion [r] to glory on our behalf, that you may have ſomewhat to anſwer them which glory in appearance, and not in heart. 13. For [s] whether we be beſides ourſelves, it is to God: or whether we be ſober, it is for your cauſe. 14. For [t] the love of Chriſt conſtraineth us, becauſe we thus judge, that [u] if one died for all, then were all dead; 15. And that he died for all, [x] that they which live, ſhould not henceforth live unto themſelves, but unto him which died for them, and roſe again.

[q] Chap. iii. 1.
[r] Chap. i. 14.
[s] Chap. xi. 1, 16, 17. & xii. 6, 11.
[t] Pſ. cx. 3. Cant. i. 4. & v. 4, &c.
[u] Rom. v. 15.
[x] Rom. vi. 11, 12. Gal. ii. 20. 1 Theſ. v. 10. 1 Pet. iv. 2.

v. 12—15. The apoſtle,

1. Prevents an inſinuation which might have been ſuggeſted by his enemies as if he meant to commend himſelf. For we commend not ourſelves again unto you, nor ſpeak this with a view to ingratiate ourſelves into your good opinion, but to give you occaſion to glory on our behalf, that you may have ſomewhat to anſwer them which glory in appearance, and not in heart, furniſhing you with arguments to ſilence the vain boaſtings of thoſe judaizing teachers, who would malign and traduce us. For whether we be beſide ourſelves, and in our zeal for the goſpel talk as men diſtracted, as they would inſinuate, it is to God, and for his glory, that we thus ſpeak; or if we be ſober, and, as the wiſer part among you juſtly think, ſay nothing but the words of truth and ſoberneſs, it is for your cauſe, whoſe ſalvation we ſeek to promote.

2. He declares the noble principle which influenced his preaching and practice. For the love of Chriſt conſtraineth us, becauſe we thus judge, and have determined, on matureſt deliberation, that if one died for all, for ſinners of all degrees, whether Jews or Gentiles, without diſtinction, then were all dead, alike in need of his redemption, by nature the children of wrath, and under the curſe of a broken law; or all thoſe for whom he died became myſtically dead in him, delivered from the curſe and condemnation of the law, by his ſuffering the penalty in their ſtead; and that he died for all, that they which live, redeemed by his blood, and quickened by his Spirit, ſhould not henceforth live unto themſelves, for their own eaſe, intereſts, or honour, but unto him which died for them, and roſe again, devoting themſelves to his bleſſed ſervice, who purchaſed them at ſo dear a rate. Note, (1.) A ſenſe of Chriſt's love upon the heart is the only genuine principle of true obedience. (2.) We then truly live, when the Redeemer's glory is made the grand aim of all our converſation.

16. Wherefore [y] henceforth know we no man after the fleſh: yea, though [z] we have known Chriſt after the fleſh, yet now henceforth know we him no more. 17. Therefore if any man [a] be in Chriſt, [b] he is a new creature: [c] old things are paſt away, behold, all things are become new. 18. And all things are of God, [d] who hath reconciled us to himſelf by Jeſus Chriſt, and hath given to us the miniſtry of reconciliation; 19. To wit, that [e] God was in Chriſt, reconciling the world unto himſelf, not imputing their treſpaſſes unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation. 20. Now then [f] we are ambaſſadors for Chriſt, as though God did beſeech you by us: we pray you in Chriſt's ſtead, Be ye reconciled to God. 21. For [g] he hath made him to be ſin for us, [h] who knew no ſin; that we might be made [i] the righteouſneſs of God in him.

y Mat. xii. 50. Col. iii. 11.
z John xvi. 6, 7. & xx. 17.
a Rom. viii. 9, 10.
b Gal. vi. 15.
c Rom. vi. 11. Eph. ii. 2, &c. & iv. 22, &c. Rev. xxi. 5.
d Rom. v. 10. Eph. ii. 16. Col. i. 20. 1 John iv. 10.
e Rom. iii. 25.
f Mal. ii. 7. Eph. vi. 20.
g Iſa. liii. 6, 9, 12. Gal. iii. 13. 1 Pet. ii. 24.
h John viii. 46. 1 Pet. ii. 22.
i Rom. i. 17, & x. 4. Phil. iii. 9.

v. 16—21. From the foregoing premiſes,

1. The apoſtle determines, without reſpect of perſons, to preach the goſpel alike to Jews and Gentiles, who are both redeemed by the ſame Lord. Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the fleſh, paying no regard to any external privileges of deſcent from Abraham or circumciſion: yea, though we have known Chriſt after the fleſh, and formerly thought, during his abode on earth, that he was come to erect a temporal kingdom, and exalt the Jewiſh nation to the pinnacle of human glory, yet now henceforth know we him no more; theſe fooliſh prejudices are removed; we have got an acquaintance with the ſpiritual nature of his ſalvation, and know that the great deſign for which he became incarnate was to advance the divine glory in the recovery of loſt ſouls, whether Jews or Gentiles, without diſtinction, even of as many as ſhould believe in his name.

2. He urges, as the main point of Chriſtianity, a real change of heart. Therefore if any man be in Chriſt, vitally united to him, he is a new creature, though the ſame perſon, yet morally ſo renewed in the ſpirit of his mind, and in underſtanding, will, and affections ſo ſpiritualized, that he is quite different from his former ſelf: old things are paſt away; his naturally corrupt principles and practices are laid aſide, and behold, with wonder, the amazing alteration! all things are become new; he hath new light in his mind; a new bias given to his will and affections; his whole courſe of life is altered; his principles, proſpects, ways, thoughts, purſuits, company, are as directly oppoſite to what they were before, as if he were really another man. Reader, haſt thou experienced this change?

3. This new creation is God's work, and wrought by means of his goſpel. And all things are of God, who planned and executed the wondrous ſcheme of our ſalvation, and hath reconciled us to himſelf by Jeſus Chriſt, through his atoning blood and juſtifying righteouſneſs, and hath given to us the miniſtry of reconciliation; to wit, that God was in Chriſt, according to his eternal councils, reconciling the world, Gentiles as well as Jews, unto himſelf, by that amazing expedient of the ſubſtitution of his own Son in the ſinner's ſtead, not imputing their treſpaſſes unto them, but laying upon him the iniquities of us all; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation, that we ſhould publiſh this goſpel of peace to every creature. Now then we are ambaſſadors for Chriſt, ſent, in his name, to heal the dangerous breach between the holy God and the ſinful ſoul, as though God did beſeech you by us, under whoſe commiſſion we act with authority and ſpeak in his name: we pray you, by every endearing argument, as you value your immortal ſouls, and urge you in Chriſt's ſtead, whoſe perſon we repreſent, and whoſe goſpel we miniſter, be ye reconciled to God; ſubmit to his righteouſneſs, accept his proffered pardon and grace: bow humbly at his feet; without reſerve yield up yourſelves to him, that the reconciliation may be mutual, and the friendſhip perpetual. For he hath made him to be ſin, a ſin-offering, for us, who knew no ſin of his own, but willingly took our iniquities upon himſelf, and ſuffered for them, making a full atonement and ſatisfaction to the juſtice of God, that we might be made the righteouſneſs of God in him, by virtue of our union with him, intereſted in his everlaſting righteouſneſs, accepted and regarded of God for ever as complete and perfect, and entitled thereby to eternal life and glory. My ſoul, with wonder and delight hear and embrace theſe glad tidings; be thy ſins all laid at Jeſus's feet, and in his righteouſneſs arrayed thou mayeſt boldly appear in the preſence of God!

CHAP. VI.

In this chapter the apoſtle, (1.) giveth an account of his general errand to all that he preached unto; with the ſeveral arguments and methods he uſed, ver. 1—10. (2.) He addreſſes himſelf particularly to the Corinthians, giving them good cautions with much affection and ſtrong arguments, ver. 11—18.

1. WE then, † as [a] workers together with him, [b] beſeech you alſo, that ye [c] receive not the grace of God in vain. 2. (For he ſaith, [d] I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of ſalvation have I ſuccoured thee: behold, [e] now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of ſalvation) 3. [f] Giving no offence in any thing, that the miniſtry be not blamed: 4. But in all things [g] approving ourſelves as the miniſters of God, [h] in much patience, in afflictions, in neceſſities, in diſtreſſes, 5. [i] In ſtripes, in impriſonments, in tumults, in labours, in watchings, in faſtings, 6. By pureneſs, by knowledge, by long-ſuffering, by kindneſs, by the holy Ghoſt, by love unfeigned. 7. By the word of truth, [k] by the power of God, [l] by the armour of righteouſneſs on the right hand and on the left, 8. By honour and diſhonour, [m] by evil report and good report, as deceivers, and yet true; 9. As unknown, and yet well known; [n] as dying, and behold, we live; [o] as chaſtened, and not killed; 10. As [p] ſorrowful, yet alway rejoicing; [q] as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, [r] and yet poſſeſſing all things.

† Gr. as fellow labourers.
a 1 Cor. iii. 9.
b Chap. v. 20.
c Heb. xii. 15.
d Iſa. xlix. 8.
e Iſa. lxi. 2. Rom. xiii. 11. Heb. iii. 7, 13.
f Rom. xiv. 13. 1 Cor. viii. 13. & x. 32.
g Chap. iv. 2. & v. 11.
h 2 Tim. iii. 10, &c.
i Chap. xi. 23, &c.
k 1 Cor. ii. 4.
l Chap. x. 4. Eph. vi. 11, 13. 2 Tim. iv. 7.
m Mat. xxvii. 63. John vii. 12.
n Chap. iv. 10, 11.
o Pſ. cxviii. 18.
p Mat. v. 12. Acts v. 41. & xvi. 25. Heb. x. 34.
q Prov. xiii. 7.
r Phil. iv. 18.

v. 1—10. We have here an account,

1. Of the general exhortation which, as ambaſſadors for Chriſt, Paul and his fellow-labourers addreſſed to all their hearers. We then as workers together with him, as the inſtruments he employs in calling loſt ſinners to a ſtate of reconciliation with God, beſeech you alſo, among others to whom we are ſent, that ye receive not the grace of God in vain, nor ſlight his goſpel, remaining empty profeſſors, inſtead of actual poſſeſſing the power and life of godlineſs. For he ſaith, addreſſing his Son, the Meſſiah, Iſa. xlix. 4—6. I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of ſalvation have I ſuccoured thee: anſwering his prayers, as moſt acceptable before him, and ſupplying him with the needful ſtrength to finiſh his arduous undertaking for the complete redemption of his people: behold, now is the accepted time, when the ſinners of every nation are invited to partake of the bleſſings he hath purchaſed, and are ſure of acceptance with God through his dear Son; behold, now is the day of ſalvation; ſeize therefore the preſent moment, and fly for refuge to Jeſus the hope ſet before you, and then you will be ſaved with an everlaſting ſalvation. Note, (1.) To-day God invites, to-day we ſhould hear and obey; no moment is to be trifled with; every breath we draw is precarious; to-morrow may not belong to time, but to eternity. What an awakening conſideration! how are we called to improve the preſent NOW! (2.) Miniſters muſt with importunity and eagerneſs urge upon dying men the neceſſity of attending inſtantly to the things of their everlaſting peace, before they be hid from their eyes.

2. Of their carefulneſs to avoid every occaſion of offence. Giving no offence in any thing, that the miniſtry be not blamed: behaving ſo diſcreetly, both among Jews and Gentiles, as to give neither any ground of prejudice againſt that goſpel which we preach, but in all things approving ourſelves as the miniſters of God, becoming the character we bear; in much patience, meekly reſigned, and ſteadily perſevering; in afflictions, of various kinds, which we ſuffer for our work's ſake; in neceſſities, wanting even food and raiment; in diſtreſſes, from which we ſee no way to extricate ourſelves; in ſtripes, beaten both in the ſynagogues and before the heathen tribunals; in impriſonments, caſt into dungeons; in tumults, from outrageous mobs; in labours, unceaſing; in watchings, in faſtings, having our reſt broken, and our proviſion ſcanty, and ſometimes voluntarily denying ourſelves food and ſleep on a religious account. And in theſe ſufferings we are ſupported by pureneſs, acting with the greateſt ſimplicity of intention, and integrity of conduct; by knowledge, fully acquainted with the truths which we deliver; by long-ſuffering, bearing with the perverſeneſs and provocations of oppoſers; by kindneſs, in temper and manners gentle and courteous; by the Holy Ghoſt, of whoſe gifts, graces, and conſolations we abundantly partake; by love unfeigned to God and man; by the word of truth, which unadulterated we deliver; by the power of God, whoſe everlaſting arms are under us, and who, in the miracles he enables us to work, bears teſtimony to our doctrine; by the armour of righteouſneſs on the right hand and on the left, furniſhed out of the armoury of God with every thing neceſſary for our ſpiritual warfare; by honour and diſhonour, not elated with the high eſteem of ſome, nor diſcouraged by the inſolent contempt of others; by evil report and good report, mentioned with great commendation by our friends, and branded with the moſt infamous ſlanders by our enemies; as deceivers, ſo treated by many, and yet true, proved and found faithful to Chriſt, and the ſouls of men; as unknown, repreſented as men of no figure and deſpicable, yet well known; thoſe who are beſt acquainted with us, are ſenſible of our real characters, of our importance and uſefulneſs; as dying, and every hour in jeopardy, and behold we live, amidſt all our dangers; as chaſtened from the Lord, and by the hands of men, and not killed, immortal till God's time comes; as ſorrowful, under manifold temptations, yet always rejoicing in a ſenſe of the divine love and favour; as poor in this world, yet making very rich, in ſpiritual and eternal treaſures; as having nothing, that here we can call our own, dependent on Providence for daily bread, and yet poſſeſſing all things, having a preſent fulneſs in the contentment we enjoy, bleſſed with all the internal riches of grace, and holding firm a ſure title to the eternal riches of glory.

11. O ye Corinthians, our mouth is open unto you,
[s] our heart is enlarged. 12. Ye are not ſtraitned in us, [s] Chap. vii. 3.
but [t] ye are ſtraitned in your own bowels. 13. Now [t] Chap. xii. 15.
for a recompence in the ſame, ([u] I ſpeak as unto my [u] 1 Cor. iv. 14.
children) be ye alſo enlarged. 14. [x] Be ye not unequally [x] Deut. vii. 5. 1 Cor.
yoked together with unbelievers: for [y] what fellowſhip v. 9. [y] 1 Kings hath righteouſneſs with unrighteouſneſs? and what com- xviii. 21. Prov. xxix.
munion hath light with darkneſs? 15. And [z] what con- 27. 1 Cor. x. 21.
cord hath Chriſt with Belial? or [a] what part hath he that Eph. v. 11. [z] 1 Sam. v.
believeth, with an infidel? 16. And what agreement 2, 3. [a] Acts viii.
hath the temple of God with idols? for [b] ye are the tem- 21. [b] 1 Cor. iii.
ple of the living God; as God hath ſaid, I [c] will dwell 16. & vi. 19. Eph. ii. 21.
in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and [c] Lev. xxvi.
they ſhall be my people. 17. Wherefore [d] come out 12. Ezek.
from among them, and be ye ſeparate, ſaith the Lord, xxxvi. 28.
and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, [d] Iſa. lii. 11.
18. [e] And I will be a Father unto you, and ye ſhall be Jer. li. 6. Rev. xviii. 4.
my ſons and daughters, ſaith the Lord Almighty. [e] Jer. xxxi. 9, 33. Rev. xxi. 7.

v. 11—18. The apoſtle's heart glowed with warm affection, and he cannot but unboſom himſelf. O ye Corinthians, our mouth is opened unto you, our heart is enlarged; we ſpeak with the greateſt freedom, and long for your ſalvation. Ye are not ſtraitned in us; we love you ardently; we would keep back nothing from you that could promote your ſpiritual and eternal intereſts; but ye are ſtraitned in your own bowels, and fail to make the ſuitable returns of gratitude, nor are open to receive the bleſſings we communicate. Now for a recompence in the ſame, (I ſpeak as unto my children, from whom I may juſtly expect the ſtrongeſt filial regard) be ye alſo enlarged, in mutual love towards us your faithful miniſters, and in your cordial reception of that bleſſed goſpel, with all its precious doctrines and ineſtimable privileges which we declare unto you. As a father then I admoniſh you, for the credit of your profeſſion, and for the good of your own ſouls, Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers, intermarrying with the unconverted heathen; or otherwiſe entering into near and cloſe connections with them, particularly not joining in any of their religious ſervices: for what fellowſhip hath righteouſneſs with unrighteouſneſs? What holy friendſhip can ſubſiſt between a renewed and an unſanctified ſoul? And what communion, in ſociety and converſe, hath the enlightened Chriſtian with the unawakened ſinner, any more than light with darkneſs? And what concord hath Chriſt with Belial? What harmony can ſubſiſt between the members of Chriſt and the children of the wicked one? Or what part or lot hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? How can the worſhippers of the true Jehovah, and who are themſelves his living temple, join with heathens in their idolatrous worſhip? How abſurd is it, and incongruous? for ye are the temple of the living God, where his divine Spirit is pleaſed to take up his abode; as God hath ſaid, I will dwell in them, and walk in them, in a nobler ſenſe than he ever was in his temple of old, bleſſing them with his preſence and abiding communion; and I will be their God in an everlaſting covenant, in which all my perfections are engaged to make them happy, and they ſhall be my people, effectually engaged to yield themſelves up to my ſervice, and, by my power and grace, made ſuch as I would have them be. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye ſeparate from all unneceſſary intercourſe and familiarity with the ſurrounding heathen, ſaith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; keep at the greateſt poſſible diſtance from idolatry, and every abomination, and I will receive you as my peculiar people, and will be a Father unto you, ſhewing you the moſt endeared affection, and ye ſhall be my ſons and daughters, ſaith the Lord Almighty, admitted to that high dignity and moſt ineſtimable privilege. Note, (1.) A child of God muſt ſeparate himſelf from the ways and manners of a world that lieth in wickedneſs. (2.) God cannot bear a rival in our hearts; no idols muſt be harboured there. (3.) The covenant of grace ſaith, I will, and you ſhall; for it is entirely God's work, that we are conformed to his will.

CHAP. VII.

This chapter begins with an exhortation to progreſſive holineſs, and a due regard to the miniſters of the goſpel, ver. 1—4. Then the apoſtle returns from a long digreſſion, to ſpeak further of the affair concerning the inceſtuous perſon, and tells them what comfort he received in his diſtreſs about that matter upon his meeting with Titus, ver. 5, 6, 7. and how he rejoiced in their repentance, with the evidences thereof, ver. 8—11. And laſtly, he concludeth with endeavouring to comfort the Corinthians, upon whom his admonitions had had ſo good an effect, ver. 12—16.

1. [a] HAVING therefore theſe promiſes, dearly be- [a] Chap. vi.
loved, let us cleanſe ourſelves from all filthi- 16. 1 John neſs of the fleſh and ſpirit, [b] perfecting holineſs in the fear iii. 3.
of God. 2. Receive us: we have wronged no man, [b] 1 Cor. vi. 20.
we have corrupted no man, [c] we have defrauded no man. [c] Acts xx. 33.
3. I ſpeak not this to condemn you: for [d] I have ſaid Chap. iv. 2. 1 Theſ. ii. 5.
before, that you are in our hearts to die and live with [d] Chap. vi. 11, 12.
you. 4. [e] Great is my boldneſs of ſpeech toward you, [e] Chap. iii. 12.
[f] great is my glorying of you: [g] I am filled with comfort, [f] Chap. ix. 2.
[h] I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation. 5. For [g] Phil. ii. 17. Col. i. 24.
[i] when we were come into Macedonia, our fleſh had no [h] Mat. v. 12.
reſt, but we were troubled on every ſide; without were Acts v. 41. Rom. v. 3. fightings, within were fears. 6. Nevertheleſs God, [k] that [i] Acts xvi. 19, 23.
comforteth thoſe that are caſt down, [l] comforted us by [k] Chap. i. 4.
the coming of Titus: 7. And not by his coming only, [l] Chap. ii. 13.
but by the conſolation wherewith he was comforted in you, when he told us your earneſt deſire, your mourning, [m] your fervent mind toward me; ſo that I rejoiced the [m] Prov.
more. 8. For though I made you ſorry with a letter; I xxviii. 23.
do not repent, [n] though I did repent: for I perceive that [n] Chap. ii. 4.
the ſame epiſtle made you ſorry, though it were but for a ſeaſon. 9. Now I rejoice, not that ye were made ſorry, but that ye ſorrowed to repentance: for ye were made ſorry † after a godly manner, that ye might receive da- † Gr. acmage by us in nothing. 10. For [o] godly ſorrow work- cording to God.
eth repentance to ſalvation not to be repented of: but [p] the [o] 2 Sam. xii.
ſorrow of the world worketh death. 11. For behold, 13. Mat. xxvi. 75.
this ſelf-ſame thing that ye ſorrowed after a godly ſort, Luke xviii. 13.
what carefulneſs it wrought in you, yea, what clearing of [p] Mat. xxvii. 4, 5.
yourſelves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, Heb. xii. 17.
what vehement deſire, yea, what zeal, yea, what revenge! In all things ye have approved yourſelves to be clear in this matter.

v. 1—11. Having mentioned the amazingly rich and gracious promiſes of God, he makes here,

1. An inference from them. Having therefore theſe promiſes, dearly beloved, let us cleanſe ourſelves from all filthineſs of the fleſh and ſpirit, avoiding every kind of intemperance or uncleanneſs, which would pollute our bodies, and mortifying the inward abominations of pride, malice, falſhood, &c. which defile the ſoul, perfecting holineſs in the fear of God, growing in grace, and going on till ultimately our courſe ſhall be compleated in ſinleſs perfection.

2. He returns from the digreſſion he had made, to vindicate himſelf and his fellow-labourers from the ſlanders of the falſe teachers. Receive us with cordial regard: we have wronged no man, we have corrupted no man, we have defrauded no man; our principles have been according to God's word, and our practice upright and unblameable. I ſpeak not this to condemn you, reflecting on you as a body, as having traduced us: for I have ſaid before, that you are in our hearts to die and live with you; ſuch confidence have we in you, and ſuch warm affection towards you. Great is my boldneſs of ſpeech towards you, in cenſuring the diſorders among you; great is my glorying of you, as, in general, obedient children, and ornaments to your profeſſion. I am filled with comfort in you; I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation, to hear the late gracious accounts from you. For when we were come into Macedonia, in ſearch of Titus, our fleſh had no reſt, but we were troubled on every ſide, not only with the oppoſition of our enemies, but with the anxiety of our minds on your account; without were fightings from our foes, within were fears for you, leſt you ſhould be removed from the ſimplicity which is in Chriſt.

Nevertheleſs, God that comforteth thoſe that are caſt down, comforted us by the coming of Titus, whoſe arrival revived our drooping hearts: and not by his coming only, but by the conſolation wherewith he was comforted in you, by the affectionate and reſpectful reception he met with at Corinth, when he told us your earneſt deſire to obey our injunctions, your mourning for the offences which had been committed, your fervent mind towards me, vindicating with zeal my character againſt the falſe teachers, and longing for my coming, ſo that I rejoiced the more, and his report exceedingly heightened the pleaſure of his arrival. For though I made you ſorry with a letter, wherein I was conſtrained to uſe ſharp rebukes, I do not repent, though I did repent, and grieved exceedingly, even at the time, that I ſhould be neceſſitated to uſe ſuch ſeverity: for I perceive the ſame epiſtle made you ſorry, though it were but for a ſeaſon, and engaged you immediately to correct what was amiſs. Now I rejoice, not that ye were made ſorry; in that I could have no ſatisfaction, and ſympathized tenderly with you; but that ye ſorrowed to repentance: for ye were made ſorry after a godly manner, mourning over your unfaithfulneſs, and returning in deep humility to God, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing, but contrariwiſe be abundantly profited. For godly ſorrow worketh repentance unto ſalvation, not to be repented of; and what hath ſuch a gracious effect cannot but in the iſſue prove matter of the moſt ſolid ſatisfaction: but the ſorrow of the world, which men of earthly minds feel, on account of the loſſes and croſſes here below, worketh death, driving them to deſpair, impairing their health, and ſometimes even cauſing them to lay violent hands on themſelves. For behold, this ſelf-ſame thing that ye ſorrowed after a godly ſort, what a bleſſed influence it had upon you! what carefulneſs it wrought in you to remove the cauſe of offence, yea, what clearing of yourſelves from any connivance of iniquity, yea, what indignation againſt what was evil in yourſelves, or in the notorious delinquent; yea, what fear of God, and jealouſy for yourſelves; yea, what vehement deſire to make a thorough reformation of all diſorders; yea, what zeal for God's glory, and the honour of your holy profeſſion; yea, what revenge, puniſhing with due ſeverity the criminal. In all things you have approved yourſelves to be clear in this matter, by your ready amendment. Note, (1.) Godly ſorrow is the moſt profitable phyſic for the ſoul. (2.) Whatever bitterneſs we may have taſted, we ſhall never at laſt repent of that which worketh repentance unto ſalvation.

12. Wherefore, though I wrote unto you, I did it not for his cauſe [q] that had done the wrong, nor for his cauſe that ſuffered wrong, [r] but that our care for you in the ſight of God might appear unto you. 13. Therefore we were comforted in your comfort: yea, and exceedingly the more joyed we for the joy of Titus, becauſe his ſpirit was refreſhed by you all. 14. For if I have boaſted any thing to him of you, I am not aſhamed; [s] but as we ſpake all things to you in truth, even ſo our boaſting which I made before Titus is found a truth. 15. And his † inward affection is more abundant toward you, whilſt he remembreth the obedience of you all, how with fear and trembling you received him. 16. I rejoice therefore that [t] I have confidence in you in all things.

[q] 1 Cor. v. 1.
[r] Chap. ii. 9.
[s] Chap. ii. 17. & iv. 2. & vi. 7.
† Gr. bowels
[t] Phil. ii. 12. 2 Theſ. iii. 4. Philem. 21.

v. 12—16. Since his admonition had ſo good an effect, the apoſtle cannot but rejoice. Wherefore, though I wrote unto you, with ſome ſharpneſs, I did it not for his cauſe that had done the wrong, not merely that the inceſtuous perſon ſhould be puniſhed, nor for his ſake that ſuffered wrong, out of any partial favour to his injured father, but that our care for you in the ſight of God might appear unto you, and the church be preſerved from ſcandal. Therefore we were comforted in your comfort, the peace and purity of your ſociety being reſtored: yea, and exceedingly the more joyed we for the joy of Titus, becauſe his ſpirit was refreſhed by you all, by the kind, obedient, reſpectful, and affectionate behaviour which you ſhewed towards him. For if I have boaſted any thing to him of you, I am not aſhamed of the character I gave you; but as we ſpeak all things to you in truth, in ſimplicity and godly ſincerity, even ſo our boaſting which I made before Titus is found a truth, and the commendation I gave you hath been proved to be but juſt. And his inward affection is more abundant toward you, whilſt he remembreth the obedience of you all to my apoſtolic injunctions, how with fear and trembling you received him, with deepeſt reverence and holy jealouſy, leaſt you ſhould not duly profit by his advice. I rejoice therefore that I have confidence in you in all things, that you will continue to obey my admonitions, and to refreſh my ſpirit by your dutiful and becoming conduct on every occaſion. Note, It is a ſingular comfort to a miniſter, that he hath confidence in the fidelity of his people.

C H A P. VIII.

In this chapter he acquainteth the Corinthians with, and commendeth, the good example of the Macedonians in their work of charity, and that Titus was ſent to Corinth to collect their bounty, ver. 1—6. He then proceedeth to urge this duty with ſeveral cogent arguments, ver. 7—15. and commendeth the perſons that were employed in this affair, ver. 16—24.

1. MOREOVER, brethren, we † do you to wit of the grace of God beſtowed on the churches of Macedonia: 2. How that [a] in a great trial of affliction, the abundance of their joy, and [b] their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their ‡ liberality. 3. For to their power (I bear record) yea, and beyond their power, they were willing of themſelves, 4. Praying us with much intreaty, that we would receive the gift, and take upon us [c] the fellowſhip of the miniſtring to the ſaints. 5. And this they did, not as we hoped, but firſt gave their own ſelves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God. 6. Inſomuch that [d] we deſired Titus, that as he had begun, ſo he would alſo finiſh in you the ſame grace alſo.

† Or make known to you.
[a] 1 Theſ. i. 6.
[b] Mark xii. 44.
‡ Gr. ſimplicity.
[c] Acts xi. 29. Rom. xv. 26. 1 Cor. xvi. 14. Chap. ix. 1.
[d] Chap. xii. 18.

v. 1—6. As the brethren in Judea had undergone peculiar ſufferings, and were reduced to great poverty, the Gentile churches, at the inſtigation of the apoſtles, had made a collection for their relief. The churches of Macedonia had begun it, and the churches of Achaia ought not to be backward in ſo good a work.

1. The apoſtle acquaints them with the generous conduct of the Macedonian brethren. Moreover, brethren, we do you to wit of the grace of God beſtowed on the churches of Macedonia, inclining them to exerciſe their generous benevolence. How that in a great trial of affliction, amidſt ſore perſecutions, the abundance of their joy in the Holy Ghoſt, and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality, and ſet off, with greater luſtre, their diſtinguiſhed charity. For to their power (I bear record) yea, and beyond their power, they were willing of themſelves, needing no inſtigation, but praying us, with much intreaty, that we would receive the gift of their kind alms, and take upon us the fellowſhip of the miniſtring to the ſaints, diſtributing their bounty to the Chriſtians in Judea. And this they did, not as we hoped merely, but with a noble generoſity, far exceeding our moſt ſanguine expectations; they firſt gave their own ſelves to the Lord, ſolemnly ſurrendring themſelves, and all their poſſeſſions, to his glory, and unto us by the will of God, reſolving to be directed by us as his miniſtring ſervants, according to his revealed word. Note, (1.) The grace of God opens the heart with love, and the hand with liberality. A lively Chriſtian will rather go beyond his power, than be backward in acts of piety and charity. (2.) They who have truly given themſelves to the Lord, will hold back nothing from him, which may ſerve to promote his glory and the intereſts of his kingdom.

2. He recommended it to Titus, who had been ſo acceptable to them before, to go and finiſh what he had begun, exciting them to the exerciſe of the ſame grace of liberality, which had ſo eminently appeared in the Macedonian churches. Note, The ſucceſs of our deſigns, in a great meaſure, depends upon the choice of proper inſtruments.

7. Therefore as [e] ye abound in every thing, in faith, in utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us; ſee that ye abound in this grace alſo. 8. [f] I ſpeak not by commandment, but by occaſion of the forwardneſs of others, and to prove the ſincerity of your love. 9. For ye know the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that [g] though he was rich, yet for your ſakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich. 10. And herein [h] I give my advice: for [i] this is expedient for you, who have begun before, not only to do, but alſo to be [k] † forward a year ago. 11. Now therefore perform the doing of it; that as there was a readineſs to will, ſo there may be a performance alſo out of that which you have. 12. For [l] if there be firſt a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not. 13. For [m] I mean not that other men be eaſed, and you burdened: 14. But by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may be a ſupply for their want, that their abundance alſo may be a ſupply for your want, that there may be equality; 15. As it is written, [n] He that had gathered much had nothing over; and he that had gathered little, had no lack.

[e] 1 Cor. i. 5.
[f] 1 Cor. vii. 6.
[g] Luke ix. 58. Phil. ii. 7.
[h] 1 Cor. vii. 25.
[i] Prov. xix. 17. Mat. x. 42. Heb. xiii. 16.
† Gr. willing.
[k] Chap. ix. 2.
[l] Mark xii. 43.
[m] Acts iv. 34.
[n] Ex. xvi. 18.

v. 7—15. The apoſtle proceeds to excite the Corinthians to give liberally to the neceſſities of their brethren, by the moſt perſuaſive arguments.

1. Their eminence in other gifts and graces ſhould make them ambitious to excel in this. Therefore as, or but as, you abound in every thing, great and gracious, in faith, in utterance, and eloquence, in clear knowledge of the myſteries of the goſpel, and in all all diligence, to advance the Redeemer's cauſe and intereſt; and in your love to us, ſee that ye abound in this grace alſo, of Chriſtian liberality. And this I ſpeak not by commandment, as particularly ordered of God, or by my apoſtolic authority; but rather recommend it to you, by occaſion of the forwardneſs of others, that you may not come behind them in any ſpiritual attainments; and to prove the ſincerity of your love to Jeſus and to his poor members for his ſake. Note, (1.) We ſhould be aſhamed to be outdone in liberality by thoſe who have leſs ability than ourſelves. (2.) Where our love to Jeſus is ſincere, it will appear by a readineſs to every good word and work.

2. He urges the example of the great Redeemer. For ye know the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the greatneſs of his love to poor and periſhing ſouls; that though he was rich in uncreated glory, the Maker and Governor of all things; yet for your ſakes he became poor; ſo poor, as to want a houſe of his own to cover him when alive, and, when dead, was indebted to the charity of a friend for a grave. And to this he ſubmitted, that you through his poverty might be rich; filled with all the treaſures of his grace here, and his glory hereafter: therefore ſtanding ſo indebted to him, how could they with-hold a pittance of their periſhing goods from his neceſſitous ſaints and their brethren?

3. Their promiſing beginnings called for a ſuitable concluſion. And herein I give my advice: for this is expedient for you, and becoming the high rank in which you ſtand, who have begun before, not only to do ſomething by way of ſuch a collection, but alſo to be forward a year ago, teſtifying the greateſt readineſs to concur in this generous ſervice. Now therefore perform the doing of it; that as there was a readineſs to will, ſo there may be a performance alſo out of that which ye have, that your practice may correſpond with your profeſſions, and your contributions be according to your abilities: for if there be firſt a willing mind, and real charity in the heart, the gift is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not; for it is not the ſum contributed, ſo much as the ſpirit from whence it proceeds, that God regards.

4. Since the divine providence had favoured them with abundance of worldly goods, they were peculiarly obliged to liberal diſtribution to the poor. For I mean not that other men be eaſed, and you burdened; either that you ſhould impoveriſh yourſelves, to enrich the poor in Judea; or that other churches ſhould be excuſed, and you alone be called upon to bear the whole charge of their neceſſary relief: no; but by an equality, proportioning your gifts to your abilities, that now at this time your abundance may be a ſupply for their want; that, if by the ſtrange viciſſitudes of divine providence you ſhould be hereafter reduced, and they proſperous, their abundance may be a ſupply for your want, that there may be equality, in the mutual beneficence exerciſed towards each other. As it is written, concerning the manna, He that had gathered much had nothing over, and he that had gathered little had no lack; each had their omer; what remained to thoſe who had gathered more being given to ſupply the wants of the aged and infirm, who had gathered leſs. In like manner ſhould we who abound, reckon our ſuperfluities as the debt we owe to the indigent.

16. But thanks be to God, which put the ſame earneſt care into the heart of Titus for you. 17. For indeed he accepted the exhortation, but being more forward, of his own accord he went unto you. 18. And we have ſent with him [o] the brother, whoſe praiſe is in the goſpel throughout all the churches; 19. (And not that only, but who was alſo choſen of the churches to travel with us with this † grace which is adminiſtred by us to the glory of the ſame Lord, and declaration of your ready mind) 20. Avoiding this, that no man ſhould blame us in this abundance, which is adminiſtred by us; 21. [p] Providing for honeſt things, not only in the ſight of the Lord, but alſo in the ſight of men. 22. And we have ſent with them our brother, whom we have oftentimes proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, upon the great confidence which ‡ I have in you. 23. Whether any do inquire of Titus, he is my partner, and fellow-helper concerning you: or our brethren be inquired of, they are [q] the meſſengers of the churches, and the glory of Chriſt. 24. Wherefore ſhew ye to them, and before the churches, the proof of your love, and [r] of our boaſting on your behalf.

[o] Chap. xii. 18.

† Or gift.

[p] Rom. xii. 17. Phil. iv. 8. 1 Pet. ii. 12.

‡ Or, He hath.

[q] Phil. ii. 25.

[r] Chap. vii. 14. & ix. 2.

v. 16—24. The apoſtle here,

1. Thanks God, who put the ſame earneſt care into the heart of Titus, to engage them in this bleſſed work, ſo that he needed no entreaty to undertake the journey; but full of zeal, as the apoſtle himſelf, for the honour of the Corinthian brethren, and for the relief of the poor, he was a volunteer in the ſervice, and under a divine direction readily undertook to go. Note, Readineſs to a good work ſhews the temper right.

2. He commends to them a brother, who accompanied Titus. We have ſent with him the brother, whoſe praiſe is in the goſpel throughout all the churches, for his fidelity and zeal in the miniſtry; and not that only, but who was alſo choſen of the churches to travel with us with this grace, or free gift, which is adminiſtred by us, and to be diſtributed to the neceſſitous in Judea, to the glory of the ſame Lord, who is hereby honoured as our common Maſter, and to the declaration of your ready and liberal mind, which is hereby manifeſted.

3. He intimates the care he took to remove all ſuſpicion of diſhoneſty or partiality, by thus having others joined with him in this charge. Avoiding this, that no man ſhould blame us in this abundance, which is adminiſtred by us, as if we miſapplied or embezzled the leaſt mite: providing things honeſt, not only in the ſight of the Lord, but alſo in the ſight of men, whom we would convince of our unblemiſhed integrity. Note, In this cenſorious world we cannot be too careful to avoid every occaſion of ſcandal; and miniſters for the goſpel's ſake ſhould be peculiarly cautious, and eſpecially in money matters.

4. He commends to them another brother, who alſo accompanied Titus, but who it was is uncertain. He ſpeaks of him with diſtinguiſhed reſpect, as one whom we have oftentimes proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, upon the great confidence which I have in you, that ye will receive him with reſpect, and attend to his exhortations.

5. In anſwer to any cavils of the falſe teachers he adds, Whether any do inquire of Titus, he is my partner, and fellow-helper concerning you in the work of the miniſtry: or our brethren be enquired of, they are the meſſengers of the churches, deputed by them to this ſervice, and the glory of Chriſt, ornaments to the goſpel which they preached. Wherefore ſhew ye to them, and before the churches, the proof of your love to Chriſt, to me, and your afflicted brethren; and of our boaſting on your behalf, that you may be found to anſwer the high opinion we have entertained of you, and the encomiums we have beſtowed upon you.

CHAP. IX.

In this chapter the apoſtle ſeemeth to excuſe his earneſtneſs in preſſing the Corinthians to the duty of charity, ver. 1—5. And proceedeth to give directions about the acceptable way and manner of performing it, viz. bountifully, deliberately, and freely; and giveth good encouragement for ſo doing, ver. 6, to the end.

1. FOR as touching [a] the miniſtring to the ſaints, it is ſuperfluous for me to write to you. 2. For I know the forwardneſs of your mind, [b] for which I boaſt of you to them of Macedonia, that [c] Achaia was ready a year ago; and your zeal hath provoked very many. 3. Yet have I ſent the brethren, leſt our boaſting of you ſhould be in vain in this behalf; that, as I ſaid, ye may be ready: 4. Leſt haply if they of Macedonia come with me, and find you unprepared, we (that we ſay not, you) ſhould be aſhamed in this ſame confident boaſting. 5. Therefore I thought it neceſſary to exhort the brethren, that they would go before unto you, and make up beforehand your † bounty, ‡ whereof ye had notice before, that the ſame might be ready as a matter of bounty, and not as of covetouſneſs.

[a] Acts xi. 29. Rom. xv. 26. 1 Cor. xvi. 2.

[b] Chap. viii. 24.

[c] Chap. viii. 10.

† Gr. Bleſſing.

‡ Or, which hath been ſpoken of before-hand. Ver. 2.

v. 1—5. The apoſtle, with admirable addreſs, whilſt he ſeems to wave many arguments he might have urged, yet by his confidence expreſſed in their readineſs to comply with his requeſt, lays the ſtrongeſt obligations on them to ſhew their generoſity. He knew their forwardneſs; he boaſted of their zeal; and it had excited a holy ambition in the Macedonians to follow them. For their own ſakes therefore, as well as his, he wiſhed them to be ready, and had ſent Titus and the brethren for this purpoſe, that if any of the Macedonians came with them, he, not to ſay they themſelves, would be put to ſhame in the confident boaſting he had made of them, ſhould they be found unprepared, and their collections not compleated. He ſent therefore, that having timely notice, all might be ready in the way moſt honourable for them, and moſt agreeable to the commendations he had given them; not as an extorted alms, but as a noble, generous, willing contribution, the grateful acknowledgment due to God for all the ſingular mercies they had received. Note, Alms given with reluctance, or ſqueezed out by mere importunity, only prove the covetouſneſs, not the charity of the giver.

6. But this I ſay, [d] He which ſoweth ſparingly ſhall reap alſo ſparingly: and he which ſoweth bountifully ſhall reap alſo bountifully. 7. Every man according as he purpoſeth in his heart, ſo let him give; [e] not grudgingly, or of neceſſity: for [f] God loveth a chearful giver. 8. And [g] God is able to make all grace abound towards you; that [h] ye always having all ſufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work: 9. (As it is written, He [d] Prov. xi. 24. & xxii. 9. Gal. vi. 7.

[e] Deut. xv. 7.

[f] Ex. xxv. 2. & xxxv. 5. Prov. xi. 25. Rom. xii. 8. Chap. viii. 12.

[g] Phil. iv. 19.

[h] Prov. xxviii. 27.

[i] He hath diſperſed abroad; he hath given to the poor: his righteouſneſs remaineth for ever. 10. Now he that [k] miniſtreth ſeed to the ſower, both miniſter bread for your food, and multiply your ſeed ſown, and increaſe the fruits of your righteouſneſs) 11. Being enriched in every thing to all † bountifulneſs, [l] which cauſeth through us thankſgiving to God. 12. For the adminiſtration of this ſervice not only ſupplieth the want of the ſaints, but is abundant alſo by many thankſgivings unto God; 13. (Whiles by the experiment of this miniſtration, [m] they glorify God for your profeſſed ſubjection unto the goſpel of Chriſt, and [n] for your liberal diſtribution unto them, and unto all men) 14. And by their prayer for you, which long after you, [o] for the exceeding grace of God in you. 15. Thanks be unto God for his unſpeakable gift.

i Pſ. cxii. 9.
k Iſa. lv. 10.
† Gr. Simplicity. Chap. viii. 2.
l Chap. i. 11. & iv. 15.
m Mat. v. 16. Chap. ii. 9.
n Heb. xiii. 16.
o 1 Cor. i. 4.

v. 6—15. The apoſtle proceeds to direct them,

1. Concerning the right manner of giving. It muſt be done, (1.) Bountifully, according to our abilities. (2.) With deliberation, not inconſiderately, but after weighing well what we can afford, conſiſtent with the proviſion we owe to our own houſe. (3.) Not grudgingly, or of neceſſity, as if it was extorted by importunity; or that we were aſhamed not to do as others; or as if our heart grieved to part with what our hand beſtowed: ſuch a ſpirit would mar the deed.

2. He ſuggeſts the ſtrongeſt reaſons to excite their liberality. (1.) It would be highly for their own advantage. He which ſoweth ſparingly ſhall reap alſo ſparingly: and he which ſoweth bountifully ſhall reap alſo bountifully. (2.) God loveth a chearful giver, and his love is the greateſt of bleſſings. (3.) He is able abundantly to recompenſe you, both in ſpiritual graces, and worldly goods; ſo that you ſhall ſtill have an abundant ſufficiency thro' his good providence, and be enabled to abound in every good work, finding yourſelves never the poorer for what is ſpent in his bleſſed ſervice. (4.) They would hereby ſecure laſting honour, ſince the ſcripture teſtifies of him who liberally diſpenſes to the poor, that his righteouſneſs, or alms, remaineth for ever, and ſhall bring forth the moſt bleſſed fruits in everlaſting life, when the great Judge in the day of his appearing ſhall remember and reward him. (5.) Much glory will hereby accrue to God, as well as much good be done to the poor ſaints, who experiencing the riches of your bounty, will be excited to offer their thankſgivings to God for this proof of your fraternal love, and of your real ſubjection to the goſpel of Chriſt, manifeſted in ſuch liberality ſhewn to them, and unto all men as occaſion requireth. Note, Where true Chriſtianity is enthroned in the heart, it will ever appear in godlike charity. (5.) This will alſo engage the prayers of thoſe who partake of your bounty; and an intereſt in the ſupplications of the ſaints at a throne of grace, will abundantly repay us for every kindneſs done to them. Note, When we can make no other acknowledgment, we muſt pray for our kind benefactors, that God, the poor man's friend, may reward them.

3. The apoſtle offers up his own earneſt prayers for them. Now he that miniſtreth ſeed to the ſower, ſo that there is corn enough for the year's proviſion, and a ſufficiency again to ſow the ground, both miniſter bread for your food, and give you always a ſupply; and multiply your ſeed ſown, reſtoring it a hundred fold into your boſoms; and increaſe the fruits of your righteouſneſs, enabling you to abound in liberality more and more, as I have confidence he will; being enriched in every thing, with all the bleſſings of grace and providence, which can enable and diſpoſe you to exerciſe all bountifulneſs, which cauſeth through us thankſgiving to God, who bleſs his name both for the abundance he hath beſtowed upon you, and for the heart he hath given you to employ it to his glory.

4. He concludes therefore with this doxology; Thanks be unto God for his unſpeakable gift; for all he hath done for you, in you, and by you; above all, for Jeſus Chriſt, that moſt tranſcendently invaluable gift, which comprehends all others, and for which all language is inſufficient to expreſs our gratitude.

CHAP. X.

In this chapter the apoſtle, in a mild and humble manner, aſſerteth his authority, ver. 1—6. He then proceeds to reaſon the caſe with the Corinthians, and refuſeth to juſtify himſelf, or to act by ſuch rules as the falſe teachers did, but according to the better rules he had fixed for himſelf, ver. 7, to the end.

1. NOW [a] I Paul myſelf beſeech you, by the meekneſs and gentleneſs of Chriſt, [b] who in preſence am baſe among you, but being abſent am bold toward you. 2. But I beſeech you, [c] that I may not be bold when I am preſent, with that confidence wherewith I think to be bold againſt ſome which think of us as if we walked according to the fleſh. 3. For though we walk in the fleſh, we do not war after the fleſh: 4. (For [d] the weapons of [e] our warfare are not carnal, but † mighty through God [f] to the pulling down of ſtrong holds) 5. [g] Caſting down ‡ imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itſelf againſt the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Chriſt: 6. And [h] having in a readineſs to revenge all diſobedience, when [i] your obedience is fulfilled.

a Rom. xii. 1.
b 1 Cor. iv. 10.
c 1 Cor. iv. 21. Chap. xiii. 10.
d Eph. vi. 13. 1 Theſ. v. 8.
e 1 Tim. i. 18.
† Gr. Mighty to God, or divinely powerful.
f Jer. i. 10.
g 1 Cor. i. 19.
‡ Or, reaſonings.
h Acts v. 5. & xiii. 10, 11. 1 Tim. i. 20.
i Chap. ii. 9. & ix. 13.

v. 1—6. No where had the apoſtle met with more malignant inſinuations, than from the falſe teachers at Corinth; he is obliged therefore, in juſtice to himſelf, to refute their ſlanders.

1. Though he had it in his power to puniſh, he rather choſe mildly to intreat, imitating the meekneſs and gentleneſs of his bleſſed Maſter. The falſe teachers reviled him as a poor deſpicable animal, and mean in his abilities, as diminutive in his ſtature, who fawned and cringed when preſent, but when abſent wrote in ſuch a magiſterial ſtile; terrifying them into compliance with his will, by vain boaſts of his apoſtolic rod. But he wiſhed not to be compelled to exerciſe the power wherewith he was inveſted, and to their faces boldly to rebuke, and ſeverely chaſtiſe, thoſe who dared inſinuate as if he walked after the fleſh, with views of ſecular advantage, and influenced by carnal policy. Note, (1.) However great provocations we may meet with, the example of the meek and gentle Lamb of God ſhould ever be in our eye. (2.) If men will not be reformed, they muſt be ruined. (3.) The beſt of men and miniſters may expect malignant traducers.

2. He aſſerts the integrity of his preaching and conduct. For though we war in the fleſh, ſurrounded with the common infirmities of humanity, we do not war after the fleſh, under the maxims of fleſhly wiſdom, or for any ſelfiſh ends. For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal; we war not againſt the powers of evil with an arm of fleſh, or pretend to convince by mere human perſuaſion; but that goſpel we preach becomes effectual through divine operation, and is mighty through God, the Spirit's energy, to the pulling down of the ſtrong holds of ſin and Satan in the world, and in the hearts of men; caſting down imaginations, confuting the corrupt reaſonings of ſelf-righteous rabbis and proud philoſophers; and every high thing that exalteth itſelf againſt the knowledge of God, confounding the pride and ſelf-ſufficiency of the unhumbled heart; and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Chriſt; engaging the ſinner to bow to his gentle yoke; ſubmitting his reaſon to revelation, his will to the commands of Jeſus, and in every ſentiment of his ſoul yielding a willing ſubjection to the authority of the great Redeemer. Note, (1.) Men are not to be perſuaded by the ſword, but by the goſpel. (2.) Satan's power is ſtrong in the human heart; nothing but the power of Jeſus can dethrone him. (3.) Nothing is more oppoſite to the knowledge of God, than a high conceit of our own wiſdom and righteouſneſs.

3. He threatens the offenders, having in a readineſs to revenge all diſobedience, and inflict condign puniſhment on theſe falſe teachers, and maligners of the true apoſtles; when your obedience is fulfilled, and milder methods have recovered the penitent members from thoſe who continue refractory.

7. [k] Do ye look on things after the outward appearance? [l] If any man truſt to himſelf, that he is Chriſt's, let him of himſelf think this again, that as he is Chriſt's, even [m] ſo are we Chriſt's. 8. For though I ſhould boaſt ſomewhat more of our authority, ([n] which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your deſtruction) [o] I ſhould not be aſhamed: 9. That I may not ſeem [p] as if I would terrify you by letters. 10. For his letters, (ſay they) are weighty and powerful, but his bodily preſence is weak, and [q] his ſpeech contemptible. 11. Let ſuch an one think this, [r] that ſuch as we are in word by letters, when we are abſent, ſuch will we be alſo in deed when we are preſent. 12. For [s] we dare not make ourſelves of the number, or compare ourſelves with ſome that commend themſelves: but they meaſuring themſelves by themſelves, and comparing themſelves amongſt themſelves, are not wiſe. 13. But we will not boaſt of things without our meaſure, but according to the meaſure of the rule which God hath diſtributed to us, a meaſure to reach even unto you. 14. For we ſtretch not ourſelves beyond our meaſure, as though we reached not unto you; for [t] we are come as far as to you alſo in preaching the goſpel of Chriſt: 15. Not boaſting of things without our meaſure, that is, [u] of other men's labours; but having hope when your faith is increaſed, that we ſhall be † enlarged by you according to our rule abundantly, 16. To preach the goſpel in the regions beyond k John vii. 24.

l 1 Cor. xiv. 37. 1 John iv. 6.
m Chap. xi. 23.
n 1 Cor. v. 5. Chap. xiii. 10.
o Chap. vii. 14. Chap. xii. 6.
p 1 Cor. v. 11.
q 1 Cor. ii. 3, 4. Chap. xi. 6.
r Chap. xiii. 2, 10.
s Chap. iii. 1. & v. 12.
t 1 Cor. ix. 1.
u Rom. xv. 20.
† Gr. Magnified in you.

beyond you, and not to boaſt in another man's line of things made ready to our hand. 17. But [x] he that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. 18. For [y] not he that commendeth himſelf is approved, [z] but whom the Lord commendeth.

x Iſa. lxv. 16. Jer. ix. 24. 1 Cor. i. 31.
y Prov. xxvii. 2.
z Rom. ii. 29. 1 Cor. iv. 5.

v. 7—18. The apoſtle reaſons the caſe with the Corinthians. Do ye look on things after the outward appearance? and form your judgment merely on external ſhow? If any man truſt to himſelf, that he is Chriſt's, that he belongs to him as a member of his body myſtical, or is commiſſioned by him as a miniſter; let him of himſelf think this again, that as he is Chriſt's, even ſo are we Chriſt's; whatever evidence he may produce of the one or the other, I can at leaſt equal him. For though I ſhould boaſt ſomewhat more of our authority, than I have done, or than the vaineſt of my traducers dare to do concerning the powers with which they are inveſted, (which authority the Lord hath given us for edification of his church, and not for your deſtruction, to drive offenders to deſpair by ſeverity), I ſhould not be aſhamed, but dare ſpeak with truth and confidence. But I forbear, that I may not ſeem, as theſe men ſuggeſt, as if I would terrify you by letters. For his letters, ſay they, are weighty and powerful; wrote in an authoritative ſtrain, and big with menaces: but his bodily preſence is weak, and his ſpeech contemptible; he appears with no dignity of preſence and aſpect, and his parts and elocution are as deſpicable as his ſtature. In anſwer to ſuch a contemptuous inſult, I reply,

1. Let ſuch an one think this, and be aſſured, that ſuch as we are in word by letters, when we are abſent, ſuch will we be alſo in deed when we are preſent, and execute every threatning we denounce againſt the obſtinately impenitent.

2. We never act with falſhood and oſtentation, like theſe ſeducers; For we dare not make ourſelves of the number, or compare ourſelves with ſome that commend themſelves, puffed up with vain conceit, and blinded with ſelf-admiration: but whilſt they fondly value themſelves on their imaginary greatneſs, meaſuring themſelves by themſelves, and ſuppoſing themſelves the ſtandard of excellence, and comparing themſelves amongſt themſelves, by the poor and inſignificant endowments of others equally vain, they are not wiſe, fooliſhly fancying they are ſomething, when in fact they are nothing. Note, All ſelf-applauſe is hateful. We ſhould look to others ſuperior excellencies to be humble, and not proudly vaunt ourſelves over thoſe beneath us.

3. The apoſtle lays down the proper rule of conduct. But we will not boaſt of things without our meaſure, but according to the meaſure of the rule which God hath diſtributed to us, a meaſure to reach even unto you: like thoſe who run in the Iſthmian games, we have kept the line marked out for our race, and in a regular courſe have preached the goſpel as far as Corinth. For we ſtretch not ourſelves beyond our meaſure, as theſe falſe apoſtles do, as though we reached not unto you, and had in coming to Corinth entered into another man's province; for we are come as far as to you alſo in preaching the goſpel of Chriſt, through countries where his name had not been heard before: not boaſting of things without our meaſure, that is, of other men's labours, and taking to myſelf the credit of their ſucceſs; but having hope when your faith is increaſed, your church affairs regulated, and your diviſions healed, that we ſhall be enlarged by you according to our rule abundantly, to preach the goſpel in the regions beyond you, where darkneſs ſtill reigns uncontrouled; and not to boaſt in another man's line of things made ready to our hand, aſſuming to myſelf the honour of their labours. But he that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord, aſcribing to the grace of God alone the whole of whatever gifts he enjoys, or ſucceſs he may be bleſſed with, and taking no praiſe to himſelf: for not he that commendeth himſelf is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth, and his approbation is the only true and ſubſtantial honour.

CHAP. XI.

In this chapter the apoſtle apologizeth for his going about to commend himſelf, and giveth the reaſon for what he did, ver. 1—4. Afterwards he mentioneth, in his own neceſſary vindication, his equality with the other apoſtles, and with the falſe apoſtles in this particular, of preaching the goſpel to the Corinthians freely without wages, ver. 5—15. Then he maketh another preface to what he was about further to ſay in his own juſtification, ver. 16—21. And afterwards giveth a large account of his qualifications, labours, and ſufferings, in which he exceeded the falſe apoſtles, ver. 22, to the end.

a Chap. v. 13. Ver. 16.
b Gal. iv. 17, 18.
c Hoſ. ii. 19. 1 Cor. iv. 15.
d Col. i. 28.
e Lev. xxi. 13.
f Gen. iii. 4. John viii. 44.
g Gal. iii. 1. Col. ii. 4, 8, 18. 2 Pet. iii. 17.

1. WOULD to God you could bear with me a little in [a] my folly; and indeed bear with me. 2. For [b] I am jealous over you with godly jealouſy: for [c] I have eſpouſed you to one huſband, that [d] I may preſent you as [e] a chaſte virgin to Chriſt. 3. But I fear leſt by any means, as [f] the ſerpent beguiled Eve through his ſubtilty, ſo [g] your minds ſhould be corrupted from the ſimplicity that is in Chriſt. 4. For if he that cometh preacheth another Jeſus whom we have not preached, or if ye receive another Spirit, which ye have not received, or [h] another goſpel, which ye have not accepted, ye might well bear with him.

h Gal. i. 7, 8.

v. 1—4. The apoſtle begins,

1. With an apology for what he was about to ſay. Would to God you could bear with me a little in my folly; and indeed bear with me, compelled reluctantly to ſpeak in my own commendation.

2. He gives the reaſons for what he was about to ſay. It was,

(1.) Out of jealouſy for them. For I am jealous over you with godly jealouſy: for I have eſpouſed you to one huſband, that I may preſent you as a chaſte virgin to Chriſt, true to your ſolemn engagements, and faithful in all your conduct to this heavenly bridegroom of ſouls. But I fear, knowing the wiles of the falſe teachers, leſt by any means, as the ſerpent beguiled Eve through his ſubtilty, ſo your minds ſhould be corrupted from the ſimplicity that is in Chriſt; perverted from the principles, or ſeduced from the practice of the goſpel.

(2.) Out of juſtice to himſelf. For if he that cometh preacheth another Jeſus whom we have not preached, or if ye receive another Spirit, which ye have not received, or another goſpel, which ye have not accepted, ye might well bear with him: but ſince there is but one Jeſus, one Spirit, one goſpel, it was ſhrewdly to be ſuſpected, that the perſon who pretended to preach another Jeſus, boaſted of a better Spirit, and a more excellent goſpel than that by which they had at firſt been converted to the faith, was a deceiver, and, inſtead of being connived at or careſſed, ſhould be rejected with abhorrence.

5. For I ſuppoſe [i] I was not a whit behind the very chiefeſt apoſtles. 6. But though [k] I be rude in ſpeech, yet [l] not in knowledge; but [m] we have been thoroughly made manifeſt among you in all things. 7. Have I committed an offence [n] in abaſing myſelf that you might be exalted, becauſe I have preached to you the goſpel of God freely? 8. I robbed other churches, taking wages of them to do you ſervice. 9. And when I was preſent with you and wanted, [o] I was chargeable to no man: for that which was lacking to me the brethren which came from Macedonia ſupplied: and in all things I have kept myſelf from being burdenſome unto you, and ſo will I keep myſelf. 10. [p] As the truth of Chriſt is in me, [q] no man ſhall ſtop me of this boaſting in the regions of Achaia. 11. Wherefore? [r] becauſe I love you not? God knoweth. 12. But what I do, that I will do, [s] that I may cut off occaſion from them which deſire occaſion, that wherein they glory, they may be found even as we. 13. For [t] ſuch are falſe apoſtles, [u] deceitful workers, transforming themſelves [x] into the apoſtles of Chriſt. 14. And no marvel; for Satan himſelf is tranſformed into an angel of light. 15. Therefore it is no great thing if his miniſters alſo be transformed as the miniſters of righteouſneſs; [y] whoſe end ſhall be according to their works.

i 1 Cor. xv. 10. Chap. xii. 11.
k 1 Cor. i. 17. & ii. 1, 13.
l Eph. iii. 4.
m Chap. iv. 2. v. 11. & xii. 12.
n 1 Cor. ix. 6, 12. Chap. x. 1.
o Chap. xii. 13. 1 Theſ. ii. 9. 2 Theſ. iii. 8.
p Rom. ix. 1.
q 1 Cor. ix. 15.
r Chap. xii. 15.
s 1 Cor. ix. 12.
t Gal. ii. 4. 2 Pet. ii. 1. 1 John iv. 1.
u Gal. i. 7.
x Rev. ii. 2.
y Phil. iii. 19.

v. 5—15. Conſtrained by the inſinuations which had been caſt out againſt him, the bleſſed Paul,

1. Aſſerts his equality with the very chief of the apoſtles. Though rude in ſpeech, my ſtile ſimple, my elocution not ſo graceful as ſome others, yet my knowledge of the goſpel-myſteries is inferior to none. But we have been thoroughly made manifeſt among you in all things; your conſciences have born witneſs to the efficacy of our preaching; and our converſation among you, as you know, hath been moſt unblameable.

2. He aſſerts his diſintereſted conduct, and vindicates himſelf from the cavils of his adverſaries, who ſuggeſted, as though he acted below the apoſtolic character, in not receiving his maintainance from the church at Corinth. Have I committed an offence in abaſing myſelf, to work for my ſubſiſtence, that you might be exalted to the participation of the goſpel privileges, becauſe I preached the goſpel to you freely, that no prejudices might obſtruct your receiving our word, which ſuch diſintereſted zeal could not but recommend? I robbed other churches, taking wages of them to do you ſervice; nor really plundering them, but living upon their voluntary contributions, when the Corinthians, ſo much richer, ſhould have rather afforded him a maintainance. However, he neither had been, nor would be, a burden to them; his former wants the Macedonians ſupplied, and he was firmly reſolved, that none in all Achaia, in any future time, ſhould have reaſon to reproach him on this behalf, or ſtop his glorying of having preached to them the goſpel freely.

Wherefore do I this? out of pride or diſguſt, as the falſe teachers would inſinuate, and becauſe I love you not? No; God knoweth theſe were not my motives. But I have and will thus act, that I may cut off occaſion from them which deſire occaſion, and would be ready to catch at any handle to fleece you, if I received any thing from you. Therefore I would wiſh, that wherein they glory, they may be found even as we, and as free from every mercenary view: for in truth ſuch are falſe apoſtles, aſſuming a character to which they have not the leaſt title; deceitful workers, corrupting the word of God; transforming themſelves into the apoſtles of Chriſt, appearing under the moſt ſpecious profeſſions. And no marvel; for Satan himſelf is transformed into an angel of light, as he appeared when he came to ſeduce Eve from her integrity: therefore it is no great thing if his miniſters alſo be transformed as the miniſters of righteouſneſs, whoſe end ſhall be according to their works, and the iſſue be their everlaſting deſtruction.

16. I ſay again, [z] Let no man think me a fool; if otherwiſe, yet as a fool receive me, that I may boaſt myſelf a little. 17. That which I ſpeak, [a] I ſpeak it not after the Lord, but as it were fooliſhly [b] in this confidence of boaſting. 18. [c] Seeing that many glory after the fleſh, I will glory alſo. 19. For ye ſuffer fools gladly, ſeeing ye yourſelves are wiſe. 20. For ye ſuffer [d] if a man bring you into bondage, [e] if a man devour you, if a man take of you, [f] if a man exalt himſelf, if a man ſmite you on the face. 21. I ſpeak as concerning reproach, [g] as though we had been weak: howbeit, [h] whereinſoever any is bold (I ſpeak fooliſhly) I am bold alſo. 22. Are they Hebrews? [i] ſo am I: are they Iſraelites? ſo am I: are they the ſeed of Abraham? ſo am I: 23. Are they miniſters of Chriſt? (I ſpeak as a fool) [k] I am more: [l] in labours more abundant, [m] in ſtripes above meaſure, [n] in priſons more frequent, [o] in deaths oft. 24. Of the Jews five times received I [p] forty ſtripes ſave one. 25. Thrice was I beaten with rods, [q] once was I ſtoned, thrice [r] I ſuffered ſhipwreck; a night and a day I have been in the deep: 26. In journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderneſs, in perils in the ſea, in perils among falſe brethren; 27. In wearineſs and painfulneſs, [s] in watchings often, [t] in hunger and thirſt, in faſtings often, in cold and nakedneſs. 28. Beſides thoſe things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, [u] the care of all the churches. 29. [x] Who is weak, and I am not weak? who is offended, and I burn not? 30. If I muſt needs glory, [y] I will glory of the things which concern mine infirmities. 31. [z] The God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [a] which is bleſſed for evermore, knoweth that I lye not. 32. [b] In Damaſcus the governor under Aretas the king kept the city of the Damaſcenes with a garriſon, deſirous to apprehend me: 33. And through a window in a baſket was I let down by the wall, and eſcaped his hands.

[z] Chap. xii. 6.
[a] 1 Cor. vii. 6, 12.
[b] Chap. ix. 4.
[c] Phil. iii. 4, 5.
[d] Gal. ii. 4. & v. 1.
[e] Tit. i. 11. 2 Pet. ii. 3, 14.
[f] Chap. i. 24. 1 Pet. v. 3.
[g] Chap. x. 10.
[h] Phil. iii. 4.
[i] Acts xxii. 3. Rom. xi. 2. Phil. iii. 5.
[k] 1 Cor. xv. 10.
[l] 1 Cor. iv. 12.
[m] Acts xvi. 23.
[n] Acts xvi. 24. 2 Tim. ii. 9.
[o] Acts ix. 23. 1 Cor. xv. 31. Chap. i. 8. & iv. 11.
[p] Deut. xxv. 3.
[q] Acts xiv. 19.
[r] Acts xxvii. 41.
[s] Chap. vi. 5.
[t] 1 Cor. iv. 11.
[u] Acts xx. 18, &c.
[x] 1 Cor. viii. 13. & ix. 22.
[y] Chap. xii. 5.
[z] Rom. i. 9. Gal. i. 20.
[a] Rom. ix. 5.
[b] Acts ix. 24.

v. 16—33. The apoſtle with reluctance enters upon the ſubject of his own vindication. I ſay again, Let no man think me a fool; if otherwiſe, yet as a fool receive me, that I may boaſt myſelf a little, ſuch boaſts in general being indeed the indications of a vain mind. That which I ſpeak, I ſpeak it not after the Lord, but as it were fooliſhly in this confidence of boaſting; but ſince I am compelled by the unhappy circumſtances in which I ſtand, and ſeeing that many glory after the fleſh, in their external privileges, I will glory alſo. For ye ſuffer fools gladly, and careſs the vain boaſters among you, ſeeing ye yourſelves are wiſe. Probably the words are ſpoken ironically: Wiſe men indeed ye are, to be dupes to ſuch oſtentatious deceivers. For ye ſuffer if a man bring you into bondage, tyrannizing over your conſciences; if a man devour you under the ſpecious pretences of religion; if a man take of you preſents and ſalaries for preaching; if a man exalt himſelf, and treat you with lordly contempt; if a man ſmite you on the face, ſubmiſſive to every inſult. I ſpeak as concerning reproach, with which theſe deceivers have treated you, as though we had been weak, and had no right to exert ſuch authority as they pretend to claim: howbeit, whereinſoever any is bold (I ſpeak fooliſhly) I am bold alſo, and can produce as long a catalogue of privileges as the chief of theſe arrogant men.

1. As to external Jewiſh privileges of deſcent, Are they Hebrews? ſo am I, by both my parents, (Phil. iii. 5.) are they Iſraelites? the ſons of Jacob, ſo am I: are they the ſeed of Abraham? ſo am I, a true deſcendant of this eminent patriarch.

2. As to goſpel privileges, Are they miniſters of Chriſt? commiſſioned by him, (I ſpeak as a fool), admitting their plea, tho' falſe, to be true, I am more, having a more extraordinary commiſſion, more eminent endowments, and ſuffering for the cauſe more than any of them. In labours more abundant, in ſtripes above meaſure, unmercifully beaten; in priſons more frequent, in deaths oft, expoſed to the moſt imminent dangers, a ſhort enumeration of which will prove what I aſſert. Of the Jews five times received I forty ſtripes ſave one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, by the Roman lictors; once was I ſtoned, and left for dead; thrice I ſuffered ſhipwreck; a night and a day I have been in the deep, toſſed on the foaming waves, and every moment ready to be ſwallowed up by them. In journeyings often, in perils of waters, in fording rivers, or by land-floods; in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, who lay in wait for me; in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, from dangerous inſurrections; in perils in the wilderneſs, during my travels; in perils in the ſea, in perils among falſe brethren, the moſt dangerous of all enemies. In wearineſs and painfulneſs, under the moſt fatiguing labours; in watchings oft, my reſt being broken; in hunger and thirſt, for want of needful refreſhments; in faſtings often, voluntary, or neceſſitated by mere want; in cold and nakedneſs, expoſed to the inclemency of the weather, and without ſufficient cloathing to keep me warm. Beſides thoſe things which affect my body, a heavier load of cares lies upon my mind, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches, to advance their purity and peace, rectify their diſorders, and guard them againſt ſeducers. Who is weak, and I am not weak? ſympathizing with him in his infirmity of body or mind? who is offended, and I burn not with jealouſy for the offence, and zeal to reſtore him? If I muſt needs glory, I will glory of the things which concern mine infirmities, and rather mention my ſufferings and hardſhips, than my privileges. The God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which is bleſſed for evermore, knoweth that I lye not. In Damaſcus the governor under Aretas the king kept the city of the Damaſcenes with a garriſon, deſirous to apprehend me: And through a window in a baſket was I let down by the wall, and eſcaped his hands, ſnatched as it were from inevitable death. Such a glorious courſe marked indeed the great apoſtle: ſuch ſufferings for righteouſneſs ſake are the higheſt honour.

C H A P. XII.

In this chapter the apoſtle, firſt, maketh mention of the favour God had ſhewn him, and the honour done him, and the methods God took to keep him humble; and the uſe he made of this diſpenſation, ver. 1—10. Then he addreſſeth himſelf to the Corinthians, blaming them for what was faulty among them, and giving a large account of his behaviour, and kind intentions towards them, ver. 11, to the end.

1. IT is not expedient for me doubtleſs to glory: I will come to viſions and revelations of the Lord. 2. I knew a man in Chriſt above fourteen years ago (whether in the body, I cannot tell; or whether out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth) [a] ſuch an one caught up to the third heaven. 3. And I knew ſuch a man (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth) 4. How that he was caught up into paradiſe, and heard unſpeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter. 5. Of ſuch an one will I glory: [b] yet of myſelf I will not glory, but in mine infirmities. 6. For [c] though I would deſire to glory, I ſhall not be a fool; for I will ſay the truth: but now I forbear, leſt any man ſhould think of me above that which he ſeeth me to be, or that he heareth of me. 7. And leſt I ſhould be exalted above meaſure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me [d] a thorn in the fleſh, the meſſenger of [e] Satan to buffet me, leſt I ſhould be exalted above meaſure. 8. [f] For this thing I beſought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me. 9. And he ſaid unto me, [g] My grace is ſufficient for thee: [h] for my ſtrength is made perfect in weakneſs. Moſt gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Chriſt may reſt upon me. 10. Therefore [i] I take pleaſure in infirmities, in reproaches, in neceſſities, in perſecutions, in diſtreſſes for Chriſt's ſake: for [k] when I am weak, then am I ſtrong.

[a] Acts ix. 3. or xxii. 17.
[b] Chap. xi. 30.
[c] Chap. x. 8. & xi. 16.
[d] Ezek. xxviii. 24. Gal. iv. 14.
[e] Job ii. 6.
[f] Deut. iii. 23, &c. Mat. xxvi. 44.
[g] 1 Cor. x. 13.
[h] Ver. 10.
[i] Rom. v. 3. Chap. vii. 4.
[k] 1 Sam. xv. 17. Mat. v. 3. & xv. 27, 28.

v. 1—10. Once more he will ſpeak. Though (ordinarily he confeſſes) it is not expedient for me doubtleſs to glory, ſince others boaſt of extraordinary manifeſtations, I will come to viſions and revelations of the Lord; one remarkable inſtance of which I will only mention.

I knew, or I know, a man in Chriſt, a faithful ſoul, above fourteen years ago, (whether in the body I cannot tell; or whether out of the body, whether in his ſpirit only, or in his whole man, I cannot tell: God knoweth) ſuch an one caught up to the third heaven, where angels dwell, and the moſt illuſtrious diſplay of the divine glory is made. And I knew ſuch a man, (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth) how that he was caught up into paradiſe, the region of the bleſſed, and heard unſpeakable words, which contained ſuch ſublimity of ideas, and were delivered in ſuch language, as it is not lawful, or poſſible, for a man to utter, in his preſent mortal ſtate of weakneſs. Of ſuch an one will I glory: yet of myſelf I will not glory, but in mine infirmities, and in ſuch things as carry evident marks of my own weakneſs.

For though I would deſire to glory, I ſhall not be a fool; for I will ſay the truth, and appeal to the heart-ſearching God for what I ſay: but now I forbear, leſt any man ſhould think of me above that which he ſeeth me to be, or that he heareth of me, ſuppoſing me to be more than human, who am a mere worm. And leſt I ſhould be exalted above meaſure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the fleſh, the meſſenger of Satan, to buffet me, leſt I ſhould be exalted above meaſure: what this was, whether ſome bodily affliction, or outward reproach, or more probably the workings of old corruptions; whatever it was, it was very grievous, yet ſent for the moſt bleſſed purpoſe, and ſerved to keep him humble. For this thing I beſought the Lord thrice importunately, that it might depart from me. And he ſaid unto me, by an audible voice, or ſome divine impreſſion on my ſpirit, My grace is ſufficient for thee: for my ſtrength is made perfect in weakneſs, and ſhall carry thee victorious through all oppoſing foes without, and corruptions within. Moſt gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Chriſt may reſt upon me, and be the more tranſcendently exalted in reſcuing me out of all my trials, and carrying me ſafe through every temptation. Therefore I take pleaſure in infirmities, in reproaches, in neceſſities, in perſecutions, in diſtreſſes for Chriſt's ſake; not only reſigned, but happy, rejoicing in the ſufferings I endure: for when I am weak, then am I ſtrong, and riſe victorious over every foe, through the power of omnipotent grace. Note, (1.) To be humble in the midſt of high attainments is doubly excellent. (2.) No thorn more grievous to a gracious ſoul, than the warrings and buffetings of in-dwelling ſin. (3.) Prayer is the great relief under every diſtreſs. (4.) Though God doth not always anſwer us according to our petitions, yet if he gives us ſtrength to ſtand in our difficulties, we are bound to acknowledge that our prayers are anſwered. (5.) There is a ſufficiency of grace in the Redeemer to carry us ſafe through every trial, and to make us at laſt more than conquerors. (6.) The more we ſee and feel our own weakneſs, the more firm we ſtand in the power of God.

11. [l] I am become a fool in glorying, ye have compelled me: for I ought to have been commended of you: for [m] in nothing am I behind the very chiefeſt apoſtles, [n] though I be nothing. 12. [o] Truly the ſigns of an apoſtle were wrought among you in all patience, in ſigns and wonders and mighty deeds. 13. For [p] what is it wherein ye were inferior to other churches, except it be that [q] I myſelf was not burdenſome to you? forgive me this wrong. 14. [r] Behold, the third time I am ready to come to you; and I will not be burdenſome to you; for [s] I ſeek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children. 15. And [t] I will very gladly ſpend and be ſpent [u] for † you, though [x] the more abundantly I love you, the leſs I be loved. 16. But be it ſo, [y] I did not burden you: nevertheleſs being crafty, I caught you with guile. 17. [z] Did I make a gain of you by any of them whom I ſent unto you? 18. [a] I deſired Titus, and [b] with him I ſent a brother: did Titus make a gain of you? walked we not in the ſame ſpirit? walked we not in the ſame ſteps? 19. [c] Again, think you that we excuſe ourſelves unto you? [d] we ſpeak before God in Chriſt: but [e] we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying. 20. For I fear, leſt when I come I ſhall not find you ſuch as I would, and [f] that I ſhall be found unto you ſuch as ye would not: leſt there be debates, envyings, wraths, ſtrifes, backbitings, whiſperings, ſwellings, tumults: 21. And leſt when I come again, my God will humble me among you, and that I ſhall bewail many which have ſinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanneſs, and fornication, and laſciviouſneſs, which they have committed.

[l] Chap. vi. 1.
[m] Chap. xi. 5.
[n] 1 Cor. iv. 9 & xv. 8, 9. Eph. iii. 8.
[o] Rom. xv. 19. 1 Cor. ix. 2. Chap. iv. 2. & vi. 4. & xi. 6.
[p] 1 Cor. i. 5.
[q] Chap. xi. 9.
[r] Chap. xiii. 1.
[s] Acts xx. 33. 1 Cor. x. 33.
[t] 1 Theſ. ii. 8.
[u] Chap. i. 6. Col. i. 24. 2 Tim. ii. 10.
† Gr. your ſouls.
[x] Chap. vi. 12, 13.
[y] Chap. xi. 9. Ver. 13.
[z] Chap. vii. 2.
[a] Chap. viii. 6.
[b] Chap. viii. 18.
[c] Chap. v. 12.
[d] Rom. ix. 1.
[e] 1 Cor. ix. 23.
[f] 1 Cor. iv. 21. Chap. x. 2. & xiii. 2, 10.

v. 11—21. The apoſtle returns again,

1. To apologize for what might ſavour of vanity. I am become a fool in glorying, ye have compelled me: for I ought to have been commended of you, who have received ſuch peculiar benefit by my labours; for in nothing am I behind the very chiefeſt apoſtles, in my ſufferings and labours, though I be nothing, conſidered in myſelf; our ſufficiency and ſucceſs is of God. Truly the ſigns of an apoſtle were wrought among you in all patience, amidſt innumerable provocations and ſufferings, in ſigns, miracles, and wonders of various kinds, and mighty deeds, which ſpeak the arm of omnipotence. For what is it wherein ye were inferior to other churches, in gifts and privileges, except it be that I myſelf was not burdenſome to you? forgive me this wrong, than which never was a more beautiful turn, and a more poignant, though polite, rebuke, if it be conſidered as ſpoken ironically: or ſeriouſly it pleads in a moſt elegant manner his excuſe for refuſing that reward from them, which might be conſtrued as a mark of diſdain. Note, (1.) Where we have received ſpiritual benefit, it is a debt we owe to our miniſters to vindicate their injured characters. (2.) The greateſt of men and miniſters, when viewing themſelves in their true colours, cannot but own, I am nothing.

2. He declares his purpoſe to ſhew the ſame diſintereſted conduct. Behold, the third time I am ready to come to you, having the ſecond time been diſappointed; and I will not be burdenſome to you, but will preach the goſpel to you freely: for I ſeek not yours, but you, your ſpiritual benefit, not your worldly ſubſtance. For I conſider myſelf as your father in Chriſt, and ſhall treat you with paternal care, not deſiring nor accepting ought at your hands; for, in general, the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children. And all I have ſhall be willingly laid out for you; for I will very gladly ſpend and be ſpent for you, to promote the good of your ſouls; ready, if need be, to lay down my own life; though I ſhould meet with the moſt ungrateful returns, and the more abundantly I love you, the leſs I be loved, and even thoſe who ſeduce you be preferred before me. Note, (1.) A true miniſter of Chriſt never ſerves for hire, but for love; delighting to feed, not to fleece the flock. (2.) True zeal for Chriſt and his cauſe will make his ſervants nobly prodigal of life, unto their power, and ſometimes above their power exerting themſelves in his ſervice. (3.) The moſt ungrateful returns muſt not ſtay us from doing good even to the evil and unthankful.

3. He obviates an inſinuation which the ſeducers ſuggeſted, that though he took no wages himſelf, thoſe whom he ſent were well paid. Be it ſo, they will argue, I did not burden you: nevertheleſs being crafty, I caught you with guile; ſo invidiouſly would they miſrepreſent my conduct. But in anſwer, I appeal to yourſelves, Did I make gain of you by any of them whom I ſent unto you? I deſired Titus, and with him I ſent a brother: did Titus make a gain of you? walked we not in the ſame ſpirit? walked we not in the ſame ſteps? ſhewing the ſame diſintereſted generoſity, and following my example in preaching the goſpel freely, without any expence to you? Again,

4. Think you that we excuſe ourſelves unto you? and want by ſpecious pretences, for ſiniſter ends, to inſinuate into your regard, or to get off from viſiting you as I promiſed? We ſpeak before God in Chriſt, appealing to him for our ſincerity; but we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying, having this great end ever in view.

5. He declares his jealous fears for them. For I fear, leſt when I come I ſhall not find you ſuch as I would, obedient and orderly; and that I ſhall be found unto you ſuch as ye would not; obliged, though with reluctance, to exert my apoſtolic authority; leſt there be debates, envyings, wraths, ſtrifes, backbitings, whiſperings, ſwellings, tumults, and all other evil fruits of a proud, contentious, uncharitable ſpirit. And leſt when I come again, my God will humble me among you, and that I ſhall bewail many which have ſinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanneſs, and fornication, and laſciviouſneſs which they have committed. Note, (1.) The falls of profeſſors are a real grief to their faithful miniſters; and every gracious ſoul cannot but mourn over them. (2.) They who perſiſt in their iniquities muſt be faithfully rebuked; and, if they do not amend, their obſtinate impenitence will inevitably iſſue in final perdition.

CHAP. XIII.

In this chapter the apoſtle threateneth to be ſevere againſt obſtinate ſinners, and aſſigneth the reaſon thereof, ver. 1—6. Then he maketh a ſuitable prayer to God on the behalf of the Corinthians, with the reaſons inducing him thereto, ver. 7—10. And concludeth his epiſtle with a valediction and a benediction, ver. 11—14.

1. [a] THIS is the third time I am coming to you: [b] in the mouth of two or three witneſſes ſhall every word be eſtabliſhed. 2. [c] I told you before, and foretel you as if I were preſent the ſecond time, and being abſent, now I write to them [d] which heretofore have ſinned, and to all other, that if I come again I will not ſpare: 3. Since ye ſeek a proof of Chriſt [e] ſpeaking in me, which to you-ward is not weak, but [f] is mighty in you. 4. For [g] though he was crucified through weakneſs, yet [h] he liveth by the power of God; for we alſo are weak in him, but [i] we ſhall live with him by the power of God toward you. 5. [k] Examine yourſelves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own ſelves: know ye not your own ſelves, how that Jeſus Chriſt is in you, except ye be reprobates? 6. But I truſt that ye ſhall know that we are not reprobates.

[a] Chap. xii. 14.
[b] Deut. xix. 15. Mat. xviii. 16.
[c] Chap. x. 2.
[d] Chap. xii. 21.
[e] Mat. x. 20.
[f] 1 Cor. ii. 4.
[g] Phil. ii. 7, 8. 1 Pet. iii. 18.
[h] Rom. vi. 4.
[i] Chap. x. 3, 4.
[k] 1 Cor. xi. 28.

v. 1—6. Having once and again warned them by his epiſtles to amend their diſorders, with Soſthenes and Timothy, who joined joined in his admonitions, he is now the third time ready to appear in perſon. Therefore,

1. He aſſures them, that if any continued yet refractory and diſorderly, notwithſtanding theſe repeated rebukes, he would not ſpare, but inflict condign puniſhment on ſuch obſtinate offenders. Note, No patience, human or divine, will always bear: there is an approaching end, when wrath to the uttermoſt will overtake the ungodly.

2. Since they demanded a proof of his apoſtleſhip, they ſhould receive it. Since ye ſeek a proof of Chriſt ſpeaking in me, as if I threatened what I had no power or authority to execute; when you have had ſuch demonſtration before of that goſpel which I preach, and of that authority with which I am inveſted, which to you-ward is not weak, but is mighty in you, who have experienced the efficacy of my preaching, and begun to ſmart under the chaſtening rod, (1 Cor. xi. 30.) For though he was crucified through weakneſs, yet he liveth by the power of God, and hath all power now committed into his hands: for we alſo are weak in him, and, becauſe of our preſent ſufferings, treated by many of you as deſpicable, and poſſeſſed of no authority from him: but we ſhall live with him by the power of God towards you; and as ſurely as he lives, ſhall we prove ourſelves cloathed with his power to puniſh offenders: And this would ſoon be experienced by them, if they did not inſtantly amend their ways.

3. He urges them to judge themſelves, that they might not be judged of the Lord, or his miniſters. Examine yourſelves, whether ye be in the faith; bring your hearts to the touchſtone of God's revealed will: prove your own ſelves, by this divine rule: know ye not your own ſelves, how that Jeſus Chriſt is in you, formed in your hearts by his Spirit, except ye be reprobates, and when brought to the teſt, like falſe metal, rejected as refuſe, and found hypocrites. But I truſt that ye ſhall know that we are not reprobates, but approved and allowed of our divine Maſter, and acknowledged by him as faithful in all things.

7. Now I pray to God that ye do no evil; not that we ſhould appear approved, but that ye ſhould do that — [l] Chap. vi. 9.
which is honeſt [l] though we be as reprobates. 8. For [m] we can do nothing againſt the truth, but for the truth. — [m] 1 Tim. i. 9.
9. For we are glad when [n] we are weak, and ye are — [n] Chap. xi. 30. & xii. 5, 9, 10.
ſtrong: and this alſo we wiſh, [o] even your perfection. — [o] 1 Theſ. iii. 10.
10. Therefore [p] I write theſe things being abſent, leſt — [p] 1 Cor. iv. 21. Chap. ii. 3. & x. 2. & xiii. 20.
being preſent I ſhould uſe ſharpneſs, [q] according to the — [q] Chap. x. 8.
power which the Lord hath given me to edification, and not to deſtruction.

v. 7—10. The apoſtle adds his fervent prayer for them. Now I pray to God that ye do no evil, nor incur cenſure from us, or wrath from God: not that we ſhould appear approved, and by the puniſhment we inflict, give a demonſtration of our apoſtolic power; but that ye ſhould do that which is honeſt, and praiſeworthy; though we be as reprobates, and having no need to exert our power, ſhould be thought of as inſignificant perſons, who really had it not. For we can do nothing againſt the truth, nor dare lift up the rod againſt ſuch as walk according to the goſpel; but our power is to be exerciſed for the truth, to defend it againſt heretical teachers, and to recover backſliders by needful correction. For we are glad when we are weak, and ye are ſtrong; and when your exemplary practice renders cenſure unneceſſary, and we appear as if we had no authority to inflict it. And this alſo we wiſh, even your perfection, or reſtoration; that every offence were removed, the church knit together in perfect harmony and union, and every member of it growing up to the meaſure of the ſtature of the fulneſs of Chriſt. Therefore I write theſe things being abſent, leſt being preſent I ſhould uſe ſharpneſs, according to the power which the Lord hath given me to edification, and not to deſtruction; deſirous rather that all evils among you ſhould be amended, and our reproofs effectual for your reformation, than that we ſhould be conſtrained to give a proof of our power in executing deſerved puniſhment on the impenitent.

11. Finally, brethren, farewel: Be perfect, be of good comfort, [r] be of one mind, live in peace; and [s] the God — [r] Rom. xii. 16. Phil. ii. 2. 1 Pet. iii. 8.
of love and peace ſhall be with you. 12. [t] Greet one — [s] Rom. xv. 33.
another with an holy kiſs. 13. All the ſaints ſalute — [t] Rom. xvi. 16.
you. 14. [u] The grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the — [u] Rom. xvi. 24.
love of God, and the communion of the holy Ghoſt, be — [x] Phil. ii. 1.
with you all. Amen.

v. 11—14. The apoſtle here,

1. Takes his leave of them with affectionate exhortations. Finally, my brethren, farewel: Be perfect; united to each other, walking in the purity of the goſpel, and reforming every diſorder: be of good comfort; be of one mind; let every diſpute be ſilenced, and the ſpirit of party ſubſide. Live in peace and love, and the God of love and peace ſhall be with you, and dwell in the midſt of you with his eſpecial preſence and bleſſing. Greet one another with an holy kiſs. All the ſaints ſalute you, wiſhing you all proſperity in your ſouls and bodies, in time and in eternity. Note, (1.) Union in affection and ſentiment is the ſure mark of the proſperity of the church. (2.) The God of love and peace commands us to be like himſelf, and that is to be happy.

2. He concludes with his apoſtolical benediction. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghoſt be with you all; may the grace of a dying Redeemer, which includes all ſpiritual and eternal bleſſings, be your portion! may a ſenſe of the Father's love, the ſpring and ſource of your redemption, be warm upon your hearts! and may the richeſt communications from the Holy Ghoſt revive, quicken, ſtrengthen, comfort, ſtabliſh you ever more and more, till by the mighty operation of this triune God your ſalvation ſhall be compleated in glory everlaſting, and your happy ſervice be his never-ending praiſe. Such is my prayer for you: ceaſe not to join my ſupplications for theſe ineſtimable benefits; and let every ſoul among you with faith and fervency ſay, Amen!

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;

OR, A

PRACTICAL COMMENT

Upon the EPISTLE of

St. PAUL to the GALATIANS.

THIS epiſtle of Paul, written, as is ſuppoſed, about the year 59, is directed not to the church or churches of a ſingle city, as ſome others are; but of a country or province; for ſo Galatia was. It is very probable, that theſe Galatians were firſt converted to the Chriſtian faith by his miniſtry; but if he was not the inſtrument of planting, yet at leaſt he had been employed in watering theſe churches, as is evident from this epiſtle itſelf, and alſo from Acts xviii. 23. where we find him going over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia in order, ſtrengthening all the diſciples.

While he was with them, they had expreſſed the greateſt eſteem and affection both for his perſon and miniſtry, but he had not been long abſent from them before ſome judaizing teachers got in among them, by whoſe arts and inſinuations they were ſoon drawn into a meaner opinion both of the one and of the other.

That which theſe falſe teachers chiefly aimed at, was to draw them off from the truth as it is in Jeſus, particularly in the great doctrine of juſtification, which they groſly perverted, by aſſerting the neceſſity of joining the obſervation of the law of Moſes with faith in Chriſt in order to it; and the better to accompliſh this their deſign, they did all they could to leſſen the character and reputation of the apoſtle, and to raiſe up their own on the ruins of his; repreſenting him as one who, if he was to be owned as an apoſtle, yet was much inferior to others, and particularly who deſerved not ſuch a regard as Peter, James, and John, whoſe followers, it is likely, they pretended to be: and in both theſe attempts they had but too great ſucceſs.

This was the occaſion of his writing this epiſtle; wherein he expreſſes his great concern, that they had ſuffered themſelves to be ſo ſoon turned aſide from the faith of the goſpel; vindicates his own character and authority as an apoſtle againſt the aſperſions of his enemies; ſhewing that his miſſion and doctrine were both divine, and that he was not, upon any account, behind the very chiefeſt of the apoſtles, 2 Cor. xi. 5. He then ſets himſelf to aſſert and maintain the great goſpel-doctrine of juſtification by faith without the works of the law, and to obviate ſome difficulties that might be apt to ariſe in their minds concerning it: and having eſtabliſhed this important doctrine, he exhorts them to ſtand faſt in the liberty wherewith Chriſt had made them free, cautions them againſt the abuſe of this liberty, gives them ſeveral very needful counſels and directions; and then concludes the epiſtle with giving them the true character of thoſe falſe teachers by whom they had been enſnared; and, on the contrary, remind them of his own temper and behaviour. In all which, his great ſcope and deſign was, to recover thoſe that had been perverted, to ſettle thoſe that might be wavering, and to confirm ſuch among them as had kept their integrity.

CHAP. I.

In this chapter, after the preface or introduction, ver. 1—6. the apoſtle ſeverely reproves theſe churches for their defection from the faith, ver. 6—10. And then proves his own apoſtleſhip, which his enemies had brought them to queſtion: 1. From his end and deſign in preaching the goſpel, ver. 10. 2. From his having received it by immediate revelation, ver. 11, 12. For the proof of which he acquaints them, (1.) What his former converſation was, ver. 13, 14. (2.) How he was converted, and called to the apoſtleſhip, ver. 15, 16. (3.) How he behaved himſelf afterwards, ver. 16, to the end.

1. PAUL, an apoſtle ([a] not of men, neither by man, [b] but by Jeſus Chriſt, and God the Father, [c] who raiſed him from the dead) 2. And all the brethren which are with me, unto the churches of Galatia: 3. [d] Grace be to you, and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, 4. [e] Who gave himſelf for our ſins, that he might deliver us from [f] this preſent evil world, according to the will of God and our Father: 5. To whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

v. 1—5.

[a] Ver. 11, 12.
[b] Tit. i. 3.
[c] Acts ii. 24. & iv. 10.
[d] Rom. i. 7. 1 Cor. i. 3. 2 Cor. i. 2. 1 Theſ. i. 1. 2 Theſ. i. 2.
[e] Chap. ii. 20. Eph. v. 2. Tit. ii. 14.
[f] 1 John v. 19.

v. 1—5. Among the heavieſt burdens which lay on the great apoſtle Paul was the care of all the churches; where many errors ſoon crept in, and judaizing teachers ſought to corrupt the ſimplicity of the goſpel, and therewith to decry him who was the zealous defender of its glorious privileges. No where had theſe ſeducers practiſed with more ſucceſs than among the Galatians; for whoſe recovery to the purity of the faith, the apoſtle writes this epiſtle.

1. He begins with his apoſtolical addreſs. Paul an apoſtle, not of men, neither by man, not aſſuming a character to which he had no title, nor acting under any ordination merely human, but immediately called to this high office, and commiſſioned by Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, who perſonally appeared to him; and God the Father, who raiſed him from the dead, declaring thereby his perfect ſatisfaction in the atonement and righteouſneſs of his Son: and therefore Paul's commiſſion bore this eminent diſtinction, that, whilſt the chief apoſtles were only ordained by Jeſus in the days of his humiliation, the great apoſtle of the Gentiles received his call and office from the glorified Redeemer, exalted on his mediatorial throne.

2. All the brethren which were with him joined the apoſtle in his addreſs to the churches of Galatia, concurring with him in ſentiment, and declaring thereby their approbation of the doctrines which he maintained, and of the juſt reproofs he was about to give. No titles of reſpect or regard are added: their general defection probably withheld him from making any honourable mention of them, as was uſual in his other epiſtles. Only,

3. He wiſhes that the beſt of bleſſings may attend them. Grace be with you, in all its happy effects of pardon, comfort, ſtrength, purity, perſeverance; and peace, the conſequence thereof: both proceeding as a free and ſovereign act of favour from God the Father, and from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the meritorious cauſe of all our mercies, who gave himſelf for our ſins, in infinite compaſſion to our wretched ſtate, humbling himſelf to take our nature upon him, and as our ſubſtitute and repreſentative to bear our ſins in his own body on the tree, that he might obtain eternal redemption for us, and deliver us from this preſent evil world, from the guilt and condemnation under which it lies, and from the power of iniquity by which it is enſlaved; and this hath our adored Redeemer done for us according to the will of God and, or even, our Father, who is reconciled to us by the blood of his croſs, and regards us as dear children. To whom be glory for ever and ever, Amen! Both to the Father and his coequal Son, for ſuch a contrivance of infinite love and grace, in order to the redemption of loſt ſouls, be all praiſe and honour aſcribed by men and angels, in time and to eternity. Note, (1.) The oblation of Jeſus once for all, is the only ſubſtantial foundation of the ſinner's hope towards God. (2.) This world in which we dwell is full of evil: we muſt in ſpirit and temper be delivered from it, or we ſhall be condemned with it.

6. I marvel that ye are ſo ſoon removed from him that called you into the grace of Chriſt unto another goſpel: 7. [g] Which is not another; but [h] there be ſome that trouble you, and [i] would pervert the goſpel of Chriſt. 8. But [k] though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other goſpel unto you, than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accurſed. 9. As we ſaid before, ſo ſay I now again, if any man preach any other goſpel unto you, [l] than that ye have received, let him be accurſed.

[g] 2 Cor. xi. 4.
[h] Acts xv. 1, 24. Chap. v. 10, 12.
[i] 2 Cor. ii. 17.
[k] 1 Cor. xvi. 22.
[l] Deut. iv. 2. & xii. 32. Prov. xxx. 6. Rev. xxii. 18.

v. 6—9. Abrupt the apoſtle haſtens to his point, and expreſſes,

1. His aſtoniſhment at their defection from the faith. I marvel that ye are ſo ſoon removed from him that called you into the grace of Chriſt, from the bleſſed God himſelf, and from us his miniſters, unto another goſpel, different from that which we preached to you, wherein the glorious grace of a Redeemer was exalted; which new doctrine is not indeed another goſpel, bringing no glad tidings to the ſinful ſoul of free pardon and ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt, but is clogged with conditions which it is impracticable for a fallen creature to perform: but, the truth is, there be ſome that trouble you, and would pervert the goſpel of Chriſt, deſtroying the riches of the grace, and adulterating the truth with the baſe alloy of error. Note, (1.) They who in whole or in part would introduce works as the goſpel condition of juſtification before God, are the moſt dangerous perverters of the ſouls of men. (2.) There is but one way to regain the loſt favour of God, and that is through grace by faith; and they who propoſe any other muſt periſh with a lie in their right hand.

2. He expreſſes his deteſtation of any other pretended goſpel, beſides that which he had preached to them. But though we, or an angel from heaven, if we could ſuppoſe it poſſible, preach any other goſpel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accurſed, and lie down under the moſt dreadful anathemas of divine vengeance. As we ſaid before, with the deepeſt ſolemnity I repeat it, If any man preach any other goſpel unto you than that ye have received from us, let him be accurſed.

10. For [m] do I now [n] perſuade men, or God? or [o] do I ſeek to pleaſe men? for if I yet pleaſed men, I ſhould not be the ſervant of Chriſt. 11. [p] But I certify you, brethren, that the goſpel which was preached of me is not after man. 12. For [q] I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but [r] by the revelation of Jeſus Chriſt. 13. For ye have heard of my converſation in time paſt, in the Jews religion, how that [s] beyond meaſure I perſecuted the church of God, and [t] waſted it: 14. And profited in the Jews religion, above many my equals in mine own nation, [u] being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions [x] of my fathers. 15. But when it pleaſed God, [y] who ſeparated me from my mother's womb, and [z] called me by his grace, 16. [a] To reveal his Son in me, [b] that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with fleſh and blood: 17. Neither went I up to Jeruſalem, to them which were apoſtles before me; but I went into Arabia, and returned again unto Damaſcus. 18. Then after three years [c] I went up to Jeruſalem to ſee Peter, and abode with him fifteen days. 19. But [d] other of the apoſtles ſaw I none, ſave [e] James the Lord's brother. 20. Now the things which I write unto you, [f] behold, before God, I lye not. 21. [g] Afterwards I came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia; 22. And was unknown by face unto [h] the churches of Judea, which [i] were in Chriſt: 23. But they had heard only, That he which perſecuted us in times paſt, now preacheth the faith which once he deſtroyed. 24. And they glorified God in me.

[m] 1 Theſ. ii. 4.
[n] 1 Sam. xxiv. 7. Mat. xxviii. 14.
[o] Jam. iv. 4.
[p] 1 Cor. xv. 1.
[q] 1 Cor. xv. 3. Ver. 1.
[r] Eph. iii. 3.
[s] Acts ix. 1. & xxii. 4.
[t] Acts viii. 3.
[u] Acts xxii. 3.
[x] Jer. ix. 14.
[y] Iſa. xlix. 1. Jer. i. 5.
[z] Acts xiii. 2. Rom. i. 1.
[a] Mat. xvi. 17. 2 Cor. iv. 6.
[b] Acts ix. 15. & xxii. 21. Rom. xi. 13. Eph. iii. 8.
[c] Acts ix. 26.
[d] 1 Cor. ix. 5.
[e] Mark vi. 3.
[f] Rom. ix. 1.
[g] Acts ix. 30.
[h] 1 Theſ. ii. 14.
[i] Rom. xvi. 7.

v. 10—24. To vindicate himſelf from the aſperſions of the judaizing teachers, who affected to ſet up Peter and the other apoſtles as far his ſuperiors, he enters into a detail of his divine miſſion and miniſtry.

1. He declares the ſcope of his preaching. Do I now perſuade men, or God, endeavouring to engage them to obey human inventions, or to ſubmit to the goſpel of the bleſſed God? or do I ſeek to pleaſe men, and ingratiate myſelf with you, as the Jewiſh zealots? No. For I am well perſuaded, that if I yet pleaſed men, and made that my ſtudy to accommodate the goſpel to their prejudices, I ſhould not be the ſervant of Chriſt, and with fidelity and ſimplicity diſcharge the truſt committed to me. Note, (1.) To pleaſe God, not men, muſt be our great deſign. (2.) It is impoſſible that our fidelity in preaching the goſpel ſhould not offend thoſe who, in pride and ſelf-ſufficiency, cannot bear the humbling truth of the neceſſity of ſubmiſſion to the righteouſneſs of God therein revealed.

2. He demonſtrates to them the divinity of his miſſion. The goſpel he preached was not after man, a human invention, or received at ſecond hand from men's information, but immediately by revelation from the exalted Jeſus, now entered into his glory. They knew his paſt converſation: what a bigot he had been for Judaiſm; how greatly he had excelled many of his fellow-ſtudents in rabbinical knowledge, exactly ſkilled in all their laws and traditions: to propagate theſe he had exerted all his zeal, and, with rage approaching madneſs, had perſecuted the profeſſors of the Chriſtian name with the ſavage fury of the moſt barbarous foe. No prejudices of education therefore could have led him to embrace Chriſtianity; but, on the contrary, ſuch a rivetted enmity againſt it, could be only overcome by ſome very extraordinary method of conviction. But when it pleaſed God, who hath in his hands the hearts of all men, who of his rich and ſovereign grace ſeparated me from my mother's womb, having predeſtinated me for his own, to ſerve him in the goſpel, and called me by his grace, in ſuch a diſtinguiſhing manner, when I was going with the moſt implacable enmity to perſecute the diſciples at Damaſcus; when, I ſay, God graciouſly was pleaſed then to reveal his Son in me, making my inmoſt ſoul, by divine irradiation, acquainted with the fulneſs of the redemption which is in him, that I might preach him among the heathen, as peculiarly ordained to be their apoſtle, immediately I conferred not with fleſh and blood, conſulting no longer my own worldly eaſe, intereſt, or honour, or aſking advice about what God had ſo clearly determined: neither went I up to Jeruſalem, to them which were apoſtles before me, as if I needed inſtruction, or a confirmation in my office; but, divinely taught and ordained, I immediately entered on my work, and went into Arabia, where the goſpel had not been preached before, and returned again unto Damaſcus. Then, after three years, I went up to Jeruſalem to ſee Peter, not to learn of him, but to communicate the ſucceſs of my labours, and enjoy the comforts of Chriſtian fellowſhip with him and the reſt of the brethren there; and abode with him only fifteen days. But other of the apoſtles ſaw I none, ſave James the Lord's brother, or near kinſman; ſo that I received not my knowledge or commiſſion from them. [f] Now the things which I write unto you, behold, before God I lie not, but with the deepeſt ſolemnity appeal to him for the truths I advance. Afterwards I came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia, preaching the goſpel; and was, during many years, unknown by face unto the churches which were in Chriſt, and profeſſed faith in his name; ſo that from them I could not have received any knowledge of the truth. But they had heard only, That he which perſecuted us in times paſt, now preacheth the faith which he once deſtroyed. And they glorified God in me, aſcribing to him praiſe for my wondrous converſion. Note, (1.) Chriſt muſt be revealed by his Spirit in us, as well as by his word to us, if we would know him to the ſaving of our ſouls. (2.) When occaſion requires it, we honour God by a ſolemn appeal to him.

CHAP. II.

The apoſtle in this chapter continues the relation of his paſt life and conduct, and with the ſame view, 1. Informs them of another journey which he took to Jeruſalem many years after the former, and how he behaved himſelf at that time, ver. 1—11. And, 2. Gives them an account of another interview he had with the apoſtle Peter at Antioch, and how he was obliged to behave himſelf towards him there. And from the ſubject-matter of that converſation he proceeds to diſcourſe on the great doctrine of juſtification by faith in Chriſt without the works of the law; which it was the main deſign of this epiſtle to eſtabliſh, and which he enlarges more upon in the two following chapters.

1. THEN fourteen years after [a] I went up again to Jeruſalem with Barnabas, and took Titus with me alſo. 2. And I went up by revelation, and [b] communicated unto them that goſpel which I preach among the Gentiles, but † privately to them which were of reputation, leſt by any means [c] I ſhould run, or had run in vain. 3. But neither Titus, who was with me, being a Greek, was compelled to be circumciſed: 4. And that becauſe of [d] falſe brethren unawares brought in, who came in privily to ſpy out [e] our liberty which we have in Chriſt Jeſus, [f] that they might bring us into bondage: 5. To whom we gave place by ſubjection, no not for an hour; that [g] the truth of the goſpel might continue with you. 6. But of thoſe, [h] who ſeemed to be ſomewhat, (whatſoever they were, it maketh no matter to me: [i] God accepteth no man's perſon) for they who ſeemed to be ſomewhat, in conference [k] added nothing to me. 7. But contrariwiſe, when they ſaw that [l] the goſpel of the uncircumciſion was committed unto me, as the goſpel of the circumciſion was unto Peter; 8. (For he that wrought effectually in Peter to the apoſtleſhip of the circumciſion, [m] the ſame was [n] mighty in me towards the Gentiles) 9. And when James, Cephas, and John, who ſeemed to be [o] pillars, perceived [p] the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowſhip; that we ſhould go unto the heathen, and they unto the circumciſion. 10. Only they would that we ſhould remember the poor; [q] the ſame which I alſo was forward to do.

a Acts xv. 2.
b Acts xv. 12.
† Or ſeverally.
c Phil. ii. 16. 1 Theſ. iii. 5.
d 2 Cor. xi. 26.
e Chap. iii. 25.
f Chap. iv. 9. & v. 1, 13.
g Ver. 14.
h Chap. vi. 3.
i Deut. x. 17. Acts x. 34. Rom. ii. 11. 1 Pet. i. 17.
k 2 Cor. xii. 11.
l Acts xiii. 46. Rom. xi. 13. 1 Tim. ii. 7. 2 Tim. i. 11.
m Acts ix. 15. & xiii. 2. & xxii. 21. Chap. i. 16.
n Chap. iii. 5.
o Mat. xvi. 18. Eph. ii. 20. Rev. xxi. 14.
p Rom. i. 5. & xii. 3. & xv. 15. Eph. iii. 8.
q Acts xxiv. 17. Rom. xv. 25. 1 Cor. xvi. 1. 2 Cor. viii. & ix.

v. 1—10. The apoſtle, in vindication of his divine miſſion and miniſtry, as in nothing inferior to the other apoſtles, relates what paſſed at Jeruſalem, when, fourteen years after his converſion, he went up thither, with Barnabas and Titus, by a ſpecial revelation from God, on occaſion of the diſſenſions which the Jewiſh teachers had raiſed in the church of Antioch about the neceſſity of circumciſing the Gentiles, and engaging them to keep the law of Moſes.

1. He communicated, and explained in converſation, to thoſe who were of greateſt note and reputation, the goſpel which he preached among the Gentiles, in all its freedom and latitude, but privately, becauſe of the known prejudices which many of the Jewiſh Chriſtians entertained concerning the neceſſity of ſtill obſerving the law. And this method he took, leſt by any means he ſhould run or had run in vain, and, through the clamours of the hot zealots for Judaiſm, his paſt labours ſhould have been in ſome meaſure rendered abortive, or his future uſefulneſs be obſtructed.

2. Though he acted with all prudence, he made no ſinful compliance to their prejudices, maintaining the purity of the goſpel, and firm to his principles that the Gentiles were in no manner obliged to the obſervation of the Moſaical law: therefore, though Titus was a Greek, he was not compelled to be circumciſed; nor did the apoſtles inſiſt upon it. And Paul took Titus, a Gentile Chriſtian and miniſter of the goſpel, on purpoſe that in him he might bear a public teſtimony againſt thoſe falſe brethren who had craftily inſinuated themſelves into the church at Antioch, and with prying eyes obſerved the apoſtle's conduct at Jeruſalem, whether he would there maintain the liberty of the Chriſtian gentiles from the Moſaical inſtitutions. For they would have been happy if they could have had ſuch a plea as the circumciſion of Titus, to urge the ſame upon the Gentile converts. But not for an hour would the apoſtle and his colleague Barnabas give way to ſuch a dangerous impoſition, that the truth and freedom of the goſpel might be maintained inviolable, and the Gentiles enjoy that entire liberty from every yoke of bondage, which in Chriſt Jeſus was preached unto them. Note, Falſe brethren are our moſt dangerous foes. Againſt them we need peculiar watchfulneſs.

3. Though he conferred with the apoſtles of chief eminence, and who were ſo preferred to him by the judaizing teachers, whatever had been the caſe formerly (ποτὲ), and whatever privileges they had enjoyed above him, that affected not the matter at preſent. God, who accepteth no man's perſon, can, when he pleaſes, reveal his goſpel to the bittereſt enemy of the truth, and raiſe the vileſt perſecutor to the honour of apoſtleſhip. However great the names of Peter, James, and John were, they added nothing to him, nor contributed the leaſt to his improvement in knowledge; ſo thoroughly had he been taught of God the myſteries of goſpel truth.

4. The iſſue of the conference was the perfect ſatisfaction expreſſed by the apoſtles at Jeruſalem in what they heard; it appearing moſt undeniably, that the ſame Lord, who had wrought by Peter's miniſtry among the Jews, who was more particularly ſent to them, had wrought as effectually by Paul among the Gentiles; to whom they therefore concluded the apoſtleſhip of the Gentiles was committed. Therefore theſe pillars of the church, James, Cephas, and John, convinced of the grace and apoſtleſhip conferred upon him, with cordial affection gave to him and Barnabas the right hands of fellowſhip; and concurred in their ſentiments, that it fully appeared the will of God, that Paul and his fellow-labourer ſhould go to the Gentiles more immediately; whilſt their own miniſtry was more generally confined to the Jews: only they recommended it to them that they ſhould remember the poor ſaints in Judea, and obtain ſome relief for them from the Gentile churches. A ſervice in which Paul warmly engaged. So that it was evident, from the reſult of this converſation, that there was a perfect harmony in doctrine between Paul and the apoſtles at Jeruſalem, and that they fully recognized his divine authority and miſſion.

11. But [r] when Peter was come to Antioch, I withſtood him to the face, becauſe he was to be blamed. 12. For before that certain came from James, [s] he did eat with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew, and ſeparated himſelf, fearing them which were of the circumciſion. 13. And the other Jews diſſembled likewiſe with him; inſomuch that Barnabas alſo was carried away with their diſſimulation. 14. But when I ſaw that they walked not uprightly according to [t] the truth of the goſpel, I ſaid unto Peter [u] before them all, [x] If thou, being a Jew, liveſt after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compelleſt thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews? 15. We who are [y] Jews by nature, and not [z] ſinners of the Gentiles, 16. [a] Knowing that a man is not juſtified by the works of the law, but [b] by the faith of Jeſus Chriſt, even we have believed in Jeſus Chriſt; that we might be juſtified by the faith of Chriſt, and not by the works of the law: for [c] by the works of the law ſhall no fleſh be juſtified. 17. But if, while we ſeek to be juſtified by Chriſt, we ourſelves alſo are found [d] ſinners, is therefore Chriſt the miniſter of ſin? God forbid. 18. For if I build again the things which I deſtroyed, I make myſelf a tranſgreſſor. 19. For I [e] through the law [f] am dead to the law, that I might [g] live unto God. 20. I am [h] crucified with Chriſt: nevertheleſs I live; yet not I, but Chriſt liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the fleſh, [i] I live by the faith of the Son of God, [k] who loved me, and gave himſelf for me. 21. I do not fruſtrate the grace of God: for [l] if righteouſneſs come by the law, then Chriſt is dead in vain.

r Acts xv. 35.
s Acts x. 2[illegible] & xi. 3.
t Ver. 5.
u 1 Tim. v. 20.
x Acts x. 28.
y Acts xv. 10, 11.
z Mat. ix. 11. Eph. ii. 3, 12.
a Acts xiii. 38.
b Rom. i. 17. & iii. 22, 28. & viii. 3. Heb. vii. 18, 19.
c Pſ. cxliii. 2. Rom. iii. 20. Chap. iii. 11.
d 1 John iii. 8, 9.
e Rom. viii. 2. Chap. iii. 24.
f Rom. vi. 14. vii. 46.
g Rom. vi. 11. 2 Cor. v. 15. 1 Theſ. v. 10. Heb. ix. 14.
h Rom. vi. 6. Chap. v. 24.
i 2 Cor. v. 15. 1 Pet. iv. 2.
k Chap. i. 4. Eph. v. 2. Tit. ii. 14.
l Heb. vii. 11. Rom. xi. 6. Chap. v. 4.

v. 11—21. Nothing could ſerve more effectually to eſtabliſh the character of the great apoſtle of the Gentiles than the occurrence here recorded, wherein, ſo far from being Peter's inferior, as the judaizing teachers ſuggeſted, he appears his faithful and zealous reprover.

1. Peter's fault was, that, at his coming to Antioch, he freely communed with the Gentile Chriſtians, and eat and drank with them, though uncircumciſed; but, on the arrival of ſome Jewiſh brethren ſent from James, he temporized, and, for fear of offending the prejudiced Judaizers, to the great diſcouragement of the Gentile brethren, he ſuſpended his former familiar intercourſe with them; and, influenced by him, the Jewiſh Chriſtians at Antioch diſſembled likewiſe, and withdrew from free converſe, as before, with their Gentile brethren; and, overcome by ſuch bad examples, even Barnabas himſelf was carried away with their diſſimulation, and, contrary to all his former conduct and teaching, joined in this ſeparation: for which Peter moſt juſtly was to be blamed. Note, (1.) The fear of men, and undue deſire of their eſteem, hath ſometimes warped the moſt ſteady Chriſtians from the ſimplicity of the goſpel. (2.) Bad examples are ever dangerous, eſpecially the examples of thoſe who are high in men's eſteem, and whoſe influence is moſt extenſive.

2. The rebuke Paul gave him was ſuch as his diſſimulation deſerved. And as the offence given was public, publickly and to his face he with noble fidelity withſtood him; and, ſeeing him ſo ſadly decline from the path of truth, and the liberty of the goſpel, he addreſſed himſelf to Peter, and ſaid unto him before them all, If thou, being a Jew, liveſt after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, ſatisfied that the ceremonial law is no longer binding, why compelleſt thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews, and by the example thou haſt lately ſhewn wouldſt enſlave their conſciences to the Moſaical inſtitutions, as if neceſſary to their acceptance with God? What a glaring contradiction appears between ſuch a conduct and your late avowed principles and practice!

3. He ſuggeſts the ſtrongeſt arguments for the unreaſonableneſs of ſuch a conduct, ſince all diſtinction of Jew and Gentile now was ceaſed, both needing the ſame Redeemer, and expecting to be juſtified by the ſame rich grace of the goſpel. We who are Jews by nature, God's choſen people, and trained up in the law; and not ſinners of the Gentiles, who in general are looked upon by the Jews as perſons abandoned and reprobate; knowing that a man is not, cannot be, juſtified by the works of the law, which none can perfectly fulfil; but by the faith of Jeſus Chriſt, even we have believed in Jeſus Chriſt for pardon and acceptance with God, that we might be juſtified by the faith of Chriſt, through that divine righteouſneſs which he wrought out for us; and not by the works of the law: and if this was the caſe with us, much more muſt the Gentiles have recourſe to the ſame free grace; for by the works of the law, moral or ceremonial, ſhall no fleſh be juſtified, none being able to produce a righteouſneſs adequate to its demands. But if, while we ſeek to be juſtified by Chriſt, we ourſelves are found ſinners, as muſt be the caſe of thoſe who are under the law, Rom. iii. 9. is therefore Chriſt the miniſter of ſin, who, notwithſtanding all he hath done for us and in us, would in ſuch a caſe leave us under the condemning guilt and prevailing power of ſin? God forbid; with abhorrence is the thought to be rejected. Yet would this be the conſequence of ſeeking to the law for acceptance with God; for if I build again the things which I deſtroyed, and, after preaching the grace of the goſpel, have recourſe to the law for juſtification before God, I make myſelf a tranſgreſſor, contradict my own doctrine, and acknowledge myſelf ſtill under guilt and condemnation, which my faith in Chriſt hath not removed. So inconſiſtent was this behaviour therefore in Peter and his aſſociates.

4. Though ſome might object to the doctrine of free juſtification without the deeds of the law, the apoſtle declares his own and every believer's judgment and practice. For I through the law am dead to the law, unable to obey it as a covenant of life, and renouncing all my expectations from it, that I might live unto God, abiding in a conſtant ſtate of favour with him through the Redeemer's righteouſneſs, and quickned by his grace to newneſs of life. I am crucified with Chriſt, as my law-fulfiller; in him the law is ſatisfied, and hath no more demands upon me than it hath upon the dead: nevertheleſs I live in a ſtate of reconciliation with God, bringing forth the fruits of righteouſneſs; yet not I, by any inherent power or principle in myſelf, but Chriſt liveth in me; by virtue of union with him I poſſeſs that righteouſneſs which gives me a title to life, and receive from him, as my head of vital influence, his quickening Spirit: and the life which I now live in the fleſh, I live not after the fleſh, but by the faith of the Son of God, placing my whole dependance upon him, and drawing continual ſupplies of grace and ſtrength out of his fulneſs, who loved me, and gave himſelf for me, to make a complete atonement, and to bring in an everlaſting righteouſneſs, for me and all who embrace his great ſalvation. I do not fruſtrate the grace of God, and ſlight, as of no value, the tranſcendent favour of God's dear Son, and the righteouſneſs unto life which is in him, as they do who go to the works of the law for acceptance with God: for if righteouſneſs come by the law, and were to be obtained by our perſonal obedience, then Chriſt is dead in vain; for in that caſe righteouſneſs and ſalvation might have been obtained without him. Note, (1.) We muſt die to the law, and renounce all hope of being juſtified thereby, before we can fly to Jeſus, and live unto God. (2.) By faith alone is the life of our ſouls maintained, whilſt from the fulneſs of our Redeemer we derive the conſtant ſupplies of grace and ſtrength. (3.) All who either in whole or part place their dependance on their own doings and duties for acceptance with God, they make Chriſt to have died in vain.

CHAP. III.

The apoſtle, in this chapter, 1. Reproves the Galatians for their folly in ſuffering themſelves to be drawn away from the faith of the goſpel. 2. He proves the doctrine which he had reproved them for departing from, viz. That of juſtification by faith without the works of the law. (1.) From the example of Abraham's juſtification. (2.) From the nature and tenor of the law. (3.) From the expreſs teſtimony of the Old Teſtament. And (4.) From the ſtability of the covenant of God with Abraham. And leſt any ſhould hereupon ſay, Wherefore then ſerveth the law? He anſwers, [1.] It was added becauſe of tranſgreſſions. [2.] It was given to convince the world of the neceſſity of a Saviour. [3.] It was deſigned as a ſchoolmaſter to bring us to Chriſt. And then he concludes the chapter, by acquainting us with the privilege of Chriſtians under the goſpel-ſtate.

1. O Fooliſh Galatians, [a] who hath bewitched you, that you ſhould not obey the truth, before whoſe eyes Jeſus Chriſt hath been evidently ſet forth, crucified among you? 2. This only would I learn of you, Received ye [b] the Spirit by the works of the law, or [c] by the hearing of faith? 3. Are ye ſo fooliſh? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the fleſh? 4. [d] Have ye ſuffered ſo † many things in vain? if it be yet in vain. 5. He therefore [e] that miniſtreth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doth he it by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith?

v. 1—5. With warm expoſtulation, and ſharp rebuke, the apoſtle upbraids the ſtupidity and folly of theſe Galatians, who had departed ſo grievouſly from the ſimplicity of the goſpel. O fooliſh Galatians, who hath bewitched you, what emiſſary of Satan by his craft hath perverted your ſouls, that you ſhould not obey the truth, but depart from the grand principles of the goſpel, renouncing the doctrine of free juſtification through the Redeemer's blood and righteouſneſs? Several things ſerved to aggravate their folly.

1. The clear diſplay of the truth which had been made to them. Before whoſe eyes Jeſus Chriſt hath been evidently ſet forth, and his death and ſufferings, with all the effects and deſign of them, repreſented in ſuch a lively manner, as if he had been crucified among you.

2. What they had received under the miniſtration of the goſpel. This only would I learn of you, Received ye the Spirit, his gifts and grace, by the works of the law, by the miniſtration of it or obedience to it, or by the hearing of faith, the preaching of juſtification through the free grace of a Redeemer? They muſt own it was through the latter: and therefore moſt inexcuſeable was their folly to quit that goſpel, the bleſſed and moſt happy effects of which they had experienced.

3. Having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the fleſh? and, forſaking your dependence on the grace of the goſpel, do you expect to reach perfection by your obedience to the law? Are ye ſo fooliſh to have recourſe to the miniſtration of death, in order to obtain righteouſneſs unto life?

4. Have ye ſuffered ſo many things in vain, for the cauſe of Chriſt and the profeſſion of the goſpel? How abſurd were it to expoſe yourſelves thus, if it be yet in vain, and after all you ſhould apoſtatize, and loſe the bleſſings of your profeſſion and ſufferings? You muſt then of all men be moſt fooliſh and moſt miſerable.

5. He therefore that miniſtreth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doth he it by the works of the law, as the way of juſtification, or by the hearing of faith, in the miniſtry of the goſpel? If theſe miracles, as was evident, were wrought in confirmation of the doctrines of grace, how prepoſterouſly abſurd were they to quit the truth confirmed by ſuch divine and inconteſtible evidence!

6. Even as [f] Abraham believed God, and it was accounted to him for righteouſneſs. 7. Know ye therefore, that [g] they which are of faith, the ſame are the children of Abraham. 8. And [h] the ſcripture, foreſeeing that God would juſtify the heathen through faith, preached before the goſpel unto Abraham, ſaying, [i] In thee ſhall all nations be bleſſed. 9. So then they which be of faith, are bleſſed with faithful Abraham. 10. For as many as are of the works of the law, are under the curſe: for it is written, [k] Curſed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them. 11. But that [l] no man is juſtified by the law in the ſight of God, it is evident: for, [m] The juſt ſhall live by faith. 12. And [n] the law is not of faith: but, [o] The man that doth them, ſhall live in them. 13. [p] Chriſt hath redeemed us from the curſe of the law, being made a curſe for us: for it is written, [q] Curſed is every one that hangeth on a tree: 14. [r] That the bleſſing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jeſus Chriſt; that we might receive [s] the promiſe of the Spirit through faith. 15. Brethren, I

[a] Chap. v. 7.

[b] Acts ii. 38. & viii. 15. & xv. 8. Eph. i. 13. Heb. vi. 4.

[c] Rom. x. 17.

[d] 2 John 8.

† Or great.

[e] 2 Cor. iii. 8.

[f] Gen. xv. 6. Rom. iv. 3. Jam. ii. 23.

[g] Rom. iv. 11, 12, 16.

[h] Rom. ix. 17. Ver. 22.

[i] Gen. xii. 3. & xviii. 18. & xxii. 18. Acts iii. 25.

[k] Deut. xxvii. 26. Jer. xi. 3.

[l] Chap. ii. 16.

[m] Hab. ii. 4. Rom. i. 17. Heb. x. 38.

[n] Rom. iv. 4, 5. & x. 5, 6. & xi. 6.

[o] Lev. xviii. 5. Neh. ix. 29. Ezek. xx. 11.

[p] Rom. viii. 3. 2 Cor. v. 21. Chap. iv. 5.

[q] Deut. xxi. 23.

[r] Acts iii. 25.

[s] Iſa. xxxii. 15. & xliv. 3. Jer. xxxi. 33. & xxxii. 40. Ezek. xi. 19. & xxxvi. 26. Joel. ii. 28. Zech. xii. 10.

ſpeak after the manner of men; [t] though it be but a man's covenant, yet if it be confirmed, no man diſannulleth nor addeth thereto. 16. Now [u] to Abraham and his ſeed were the promiſes made. He ſaith not, And to ſeeds, as of many; but as of one, and to thy ſeed, which is Chriſt. 17. And this I ſay, that the covenant that was confirmed before of God in Chriſt, the law [x] which was four hundred and thirty years after cannot diſannul, that it ſhould make the promiſe of none effect. 18. For [y] if the inheritance be of the law, [z] it is no more of promiſe: but God gave it to Abraham by promiſe.

[t] Heb. ix. 17.
[u] Gen. xvii. 7. Ver. 8.
[x] Exod. xii. 40, 41.
[y] Rom. viii. 17.
[z] Rom. iv. 14.

v. 6—18. The apoſtle, having ſharply rebuked the folly of the Galatians in departing from the truth, proceeds to confirm the great doctrine of juſtification by faith alone, from which they had been ſeduced. And he proves it,

1. By the example of Abraham. He believed God, and it was accounted to him for righteouſneſs: the Lord Meſſiah, on whom his faith reſted, became his juſtifying righteouſneſs before God. Know ye therefore, that they which are of faith, and place their whole dependance for acceptance with God on the ſame object, they are the ſpiritual children of Abraham. And the ſcripture, foreſeeing that God would juſtify the heathen through faith, preached before the goſpel unto Abraham, when neither circumciſion was yet inſtituted, nor the law given, ſaying, In thee, that is, in thy ſeed, the Meſſiah, ſhall all nations be bleſſed, accepted of God in him, and admitted to the participation of all the privileges of God's peculiar people. So then it is evident from hence, that they which be of faith are bleſſed with faithful Abraham, without the leaſt reſpect to the works of the law.

2. It is impoſſible for any man to be juſtified before God any other way than by faith. For as many as are of the works of the law, and ſeek juſtification and ſalvation on the footing of perſonal righteouſneſs, are, and muſt be, under the curſe denounced on every tranſgreſſor: for it is written, Curſed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them; the leaſt failure in thought, word, or deed, but once, even in the longeſt life, effectually cuts off the ſinner from all hope by the law, and leaves him under the wrath of an offended God. Therefore Chriſt, viewing our deſperate guilt and hopeleſs miſery, hath redeemed us from the curſe of the law, by the price of his own blood, being made a curſe for us, by divine conſtitution appointed to be our ſurety, treated by inexorable juſtice as a tranſgreſſor, and bearing, in his own body on the croſs, the puniſhment due to our iniquities: for it is written, Curſed is every one that hangeth on a tree. And to this moſt painful, ſhameful, and accurſed death he ſubmitted, that the bleſſing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jeſus Chriſt, and righteouſneſs be imputed to them alſo for juſtification; that we, whether Jews or Gentiles, being taken into a ſtate of acceptance with God, might receive the promiſe of the Spirit, in all his plenitude of gifts, graces, and conſolations, through faith in the Redeemer, and not on account of any works of our own, or legal ſervices. Note, (1.) Every man, being unable to keep the law in perfection, is conſequently a tranſgreſſor, and ſealed up under wrath. (2.) Deſpair is written on every effort of the fallen ſinner to eſcape from the condemnation under which he lies. (3.) The goſpel brings relief to the deſperate, by revealing to us a divine Subſtitute, all-ſufficient to bear our ſins, and to reſtore us to the enjoyment of God's forfeited favour. (4.) By faith alone we embrace, and actually poſſeſs, all the bleſſings obtained for us in and by the great Redeemer.

3. The ſcriptures of the Old Teſtament are expreſs to the point. But that no man is juſtified by the works of the law in the ſight of God, it is evident: for the juſt ſhall live by faith, or the juſt by faith ſhall live; he only who by faith is counted righteous before God, can live here in a ſtate of favour with him, and hereafter be admitted to the enjoyment of him. And the law is not of faith: but the way it preſcribes for juſtification is directly oppoſite, even by perfect perſonal obedience; The man that doth them, and keeps in ſpirit and practice, univerſally and abidingly, all the commands enjoined, ſhall live in them; but every defect, flaw, or failure, brings down death as the wages of ſin. So that the ſaints of old were juſtified in the ſame way as we are, and the goſpel was preached to them even as unto us.

4. The ſtability of the covenant made with Abraham could not be vacated by the law. Brethren, I ſpeak after the manner of men, and uſe a familiar inſtance to elucidate the point in hand: though it be but a man's covenant, yet, if it be confirmed, and duly ſigned and ſealed, no man diſannulleth or addeth thereunto, except the parties intereſted by mutual conſent. Now to Abraham and his ſeed were the promiſes made, of juſtification, adoption, grace, and glory. He ſaith not to ſeeds, as of many, as if the promiſes referred to all his natural as well as ſpiritual children; but as of one, in the ſingular number, and to thy ſeed, which is Chriſt, who was perſonally meant, and in whom all the ſpiritual ſeed are myſtically included. And this I ſay, as evident, that the covenant which was confirmed before, to Abraham, of God in Chriſt, or with reſpect to Chriſt, who was the Mediator, Surety, and ſubſtance of the covenant in his own perſon, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot diſannul, that it ſhould make the promiſe of none effect, and introduce another way of juſtification before God, different from, yea contrary to, that which God had before eſtabliſhed with Abraham. For if the inheritance be of the law, and the title to eternal life be obtained by perſonal obedience, it is no more of promiſe: but God gave it, graciouſly and abſolutely, to Abraham by promiſe, which no ſubſequent diſpenſation could ſet aſide; for God is not a man that he ſhould lie, nor the ſon of man that he ſhould repent; and therefore the promiſe of juſtification, adoption, and the eternal inheritance, is in Chriſt ſecured to all the ſpiritual ſeed of faithful Abraham.

19. Wherefore then ſerveth the law? [a] it was added becauſe of tranſgreſſions, till the ſeed ſhould come, [b] to whom the promiſe was made; and it was ordained [c] by angels in the hand [d] of a mediator. 20. Now a mediator is not a mediator of one; but God is one. 21. Is the law then againſt the promiſes of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteouſneſs ſhould have been by the law. 22. But [e] the ſcripture hath concluded [f] all under ſin, that the promiſe by faith of Jeſus Chriſt might be given to them that believe. 23. But before faith came, we were kept under the law, ſhut up unto the faith which ſhould afterwards be revealed. 24. Wherefore [g] the law was our ſchoolmaſter to bring us unto Chriſt, [h] that we might be juſtified by faith. 25. But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a ſchoolmaſter. 26. For [i] ye are all the children of God by faith in Chriſt Jeſus. 27. For [k] as many of you as have been baptized into Chriſt, [l] have put on Chriſt. 28. [m] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all [n] one in Chriſt Jeſus. 29. And [o] if ye be Chriſt's, then are ye Abraham's ſeed, and [p] heirs according to the promiſe.

[a] John xv. 22. Rom. iv. 15. & v. 20. & vii. 8. 1 Tim. i. 9.
[b] Ver. 16.
[c] Acts vii. 53.
[d] Deut. v. 5. John i. 17. Acts vii. 38. 1 Tim. ii. 5.
[e] Ver. 8.
[f] Pſ. xiv. 3. Rom. iii. 9, 19, 23. & xi. 32.
[g] Rom. x. 4.
[h] Acts xiii. 39.
[i] John i. 12. Rom. viii. 15. Chap. iv. 5.
[k] Rom. vi. 3.
[l] Rom. xiii. 14.
[m] Rom. x. 12. 1 Cor. xii. 13. Col. iii. 11.
[n] Eph. ii. 14, 15.
[o] Gen. xxi. 12. Rom. ix. 7. Heb. xi. 18.
[p] Eph. iii. 6.

v. 19—29. In anſwer to the objections which he knew the Jewiſh zealots would raiſe, as if he derogated from the honour of the law, and rendered it uſeleſs, he ſtates and anſwers them.

1. They might ſay, Wherefore then ſerveth the law, if no creature can be juſtified or ſaved by it? I reply, It was added becauſe of tranſgreſſions, in ſubſervience to the deſign of the covenant of grace, in order to reſtrain by its penalty, and to convince, diſcover, and condemn the tranſgreſſors, ſhewing them the neceſſity of a better righteouſneſs than their own, till the ſeed ſhould come, to whom the promiſe was made, and who ſhould be the end of the law for righteouſneſs to every believer; and it was ordained by angels, delivered by their miniſtry, in the hand of a mediator, even Moſes, who was typical of the great Mediator, Jeſus Chriſt. Now a mediator is not a mediator of one, but ſtands between the two parties; but God is one, unchangeable in his purpoſes and promiſes; and as the Gentiles were not repreſented at all at mount Sinai, nor regarded as one of the parties in that covenant, which was a tranſaction merely between God and Abraham's natural ſeed, this cannot exclude them from the benefit of the antecedent promiſe which God made to Abraham and his ſpiritual ſeed.

2. Some may argue from hence, Is the law then againſt the promiſes of God, made to Abraham and his ſeed? are they at variance with each other? God forbid: there is the moſt perfect harmony between them. For if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteouſneſs ſhould have been by the law; and could man have kept in his own perſon the righteouſneſs of the law, his title to life would have been clear, and the promiſed Subſtitute had been unneceſſary: but the ſcripture hath concluded all under ſin, hath ſhut up every man, as in a dungeon, under the guilt and condemnation of ſin, all having come ſhort of the glory of God; that the promiſe by faith of Jeſus Chriſt might be given to them that believe, and that pardon and ſalvation might come to us as the free gift of God in him. But before faith came, before Chriſt, the great object of faith, appeared incarnate, and his goſpel was more clearly manifeſted, we, who were under the Moſaic diſpenſation, were kept under the law, as in a caſtle, ſeparate from other nations, and, as captives under a yoke of bondage, ſhut up in cloſe cuſtody unto the faith which ſhould afterwards be revealed, and till Chriſt, opening to us a door of hope, ſhould bring us from this ſtate of ſervitude into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God. Wherefore the law was our ſchoolmaſter, and ſerved moſt directly to bring us unto Chriſt, that we might be juſtified by faith: the moral precepts and ſanction convinced us of our deſperate caſe, as unable to anſwer the demands of the law, and obnoxious to the curſe; the ceremonial inſtitutions led us to look for the divine Subſtitute, in all the ſacrifices which were enjoined for the expiation of ſin; and both taught the neceſſity of juſtification by faith through a better righteouſneſs than our own. But after that faith is come, and Chriſt, the ſinner's ſubſtitute, hath appeared, and is held forth to us in the goſpel, we are no longer under a ſchoolmaſter, being delivered from our former ſtate of minority and legal bondage. For now ye who believe are all the children of God by faith in Jeſus Chriſt, arrived to maturity of age, and entitled to all the bleſſings of adoption, which Jeſus hath obtained for the many ſons whom he ſhall bring unto glory. For as many of you, whether Jews or Gentiles, as have been baptiſed into Chriſt, by faith really united to him, and by baptiſm making open profeſſion of him, have put on Chriſt, and, cloathed in his divine righteouſneſs, have a title to all ſpiritual and eternal bleſſings. There is now neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female, all diſtinction of nation, ſex, condition, is ceaſed: for ye, who believe, are all one in Chriſt Jeſus, united to him in one body, and alike freely partakers of all the privileges contained in the eternal covenant of redemption. And if ye be Chriſt's, living members of his body myſtical, then are ye Abraham's ſeed: in a ſpiritual ſenſe, and heirs according to the promiſe, entitled to claim, under Chriſt, your great covenant-head, all the bleſſings which he hath purchaſed for his redeemed. So that circumciſion, and the Moſaical inſtitutions, are in no wiſe neceſſary, either for preſent pardon or eternal ſalvation.

CHAP. IV.

The apoſtle in this chapter, in correſpondence with his great deſign, ſhews us, (1.) The great excellence of the goſpel-ſtate above the legal, ver. 1—8. (2.) The happy change that was made in them at their converſion, ver. 8—12. (3.) The affection they had had for him and his miniſtry, ver. 12—17. (4.) The character of the falſe teachers by whom they had been perverted, ver. 17, 18. (5.) The very tender affection he had for them, ver. 19, 20. (6.) The hiſtory of Iſaac and Iſhmael, by a compariſon taken from which he illuſtrates the difference between ſuch as reſted in Chriſt and ſuch as truſted in the law.

1. NOW I ſay, that the heir as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a ſervant, though he be Lord of all; 2. But is under tutors and governors, until the time appointed of the father. 3. Even ſo we, when we were children, [a] were in bondage under the elements of the world: 4. But [b] when the fulneſs of the time was come, God ſent forth his Son [c] made [d] of a woman, [e] made under the law, 5. [f] To redeem them that were under the law, [g] that we might receive the adoption of ſons. 6. And becauſe ye are ſons, [h] God hath ſent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. 7. Wherefore thou art no more a ſervant, but a ſon; [i] and if a ſon, then an heir of God through Chriſt.

[a] Chap. iii. 23. Col. ii. 20.
[b] Dan. ix. 24. Mark i. 15. Eph. i. 10.
[c] John i. 14. Rom. i. 3. Phil. ii. 7.
[d] Gen. iii. 15. Iſa. vii. 14. Mic. v. 3.
[e] Mat. v. 17.
[f] Mat. xx. 28. Heb. ix. 12.
[g] John i. 12. Chap. iii. 26. Eph. i. 5. 1 John iii. 1.
[h] Rom. viii. 15.
[i] Rom. viii. 16, 17.

v. 1—7. The apoſtle had hinted before, that the ſtate of thoſe who were under the law, was a kind of minority. He here enlarges on that ſubject, ſhewing the vaſt ſuperiority of the goſpel above the legal diſpenſation.

1. Before Chriſt came, they were in a ſtate of non-age. Now I ſay that the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a ſervant, though he be Lord of all, and entitled to the inheritance, but is under tutors and governors, until the time appointed of the father, when he ſhould be declared of age, and enter upon the management of his own affairs. Even ſo we, and all the people of God under the Old Teſtament, when we were children, in the infantile ſtate of the church, were in bondage under the elements of the world, ſubject to the law, with all the carnal ordinances, which were, as the firſt letters of the alphabet, deſigned to lead us on to higher attainments, and kept us, during this time of non-age, in a ſtate of fear, as children who dread correction, if they perform not their appointed taſks. But,

2. Under the goſpel diſpenſation our condition is much happier. When the fulneſs of the time was come, appointed in the eternal decree, God ſent forth his Son, his only begotten, one in the ſame divine nature and eſſence, born of a woman, that he might be manifeſted in the fleſh, made under the law, appointed both to endure the penalty due to our tranſgreſſions, and by his obedience to the precept in our ſtead, to bring in an everlaſting righteouſneſs for us, that he might redeem them that were under the law, under its bondage and curſe, that we, who believe in him, might receive the adoption of ſons, admitted to that high privilege, with all its happy conſequences. And becauſe ye are ſons, God hath ſent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, through the glorified Redeemer, who hath all fulneſs of the Spirit to beſtow on his people, and forms their hearts, by his divine operations, to the temper becoming the high dignity and relation with which they are honoured; ſo that, through the effectual working of the Holy Ghoſt, we are enabled, with fiducial dependance, filial love, and ſacred joy, to approach a throne of grace, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore, wherever this Spirit is given, thou art no more a ſervant, but a ſon, admitted to that honourable place in God's family; and if a ſon, then an heir of God through Chriſt, and entitled to everlaſting bleſſedneſs: ſo that to return to the law for acceptance with God, is abſurd and needleſs. Note, (1.) God manifeſt in the fleſh is the foundation of every hope to the ſinner. (2.) If any man have not the Spirit of Chriſt, he is none of his; the grace of adoption always accompanies the privilege of adoption. (3.) 'Tis happy for the ſoul, that is enabled with humble boldneſs to approach an holy God, crying, Abba, Father; and claiming this kindred with him, which he will not diſown. (4.) Our preſent adoption is the earneſt of our eternal redemption.

8. Howbeit, [k] then when ye knew not God, [l] ye did ſervice unto them which by nature are no gods. 9. But now after that ye have known God, or rather [m] are known of God, [n] how turn ye again to [o] the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye deſire again to be in bondage? 10. [p] Ye obſerve days, and months, and times, and years. 11. I am afraid of you, [q] leſt I have beſtowed upon you labour in vain.

[k] Eph. ii. 12.
[l] Rom. i. 25. 1 Cor. xii. 2. 1 Theſ. i. 9.
[m] 1 Cor. viii. 3. & xiii. 12. 2 Tim. ii. 19.
[n] Col. ii. 20.
[o] Heb. vii. 18.
[p] Rom. xiv. 5. Col. ii. 16.
[q] Chap. ii. 2. 1 Theſ. iii. 5.

v. 8—11. To ſhew them the glaring folly of their having recourſe to the law for juſtification, he reminds them,

1. Of their former ſtate of Gentiliſm. Howbeit, then when ye knew not God, groſly ignorant of his being, perfections, and attributes, and, in fact, without God in the world, ye did ſervice unto them which by nature are no gods, worſhipping ſenſeleſs idols, and aſcribing divinity to ſtocks and ſtones. In this ſtate of horrid ignorance and guilt did the goſpel find them, and called them out of darkneſs into marvellous light.

2. How abſurd then was their defection from the truth which they had received! But now after that ye have known God, thro' the goſpel of his dear Son, or rather are known of God, approved and accepted of him in the Redeemer, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye deſire again to be in bondage? What infatuation hath ſeized you, to leave the goſpel diſpenſation of light, love, and liberty, for the bondage, darkneſs, and fear of the Moſaical inſtitutions, weak and inſufficient to cleanſe the ſoul from guilt, or to obtain acceptance with God; and beggarly, when compared to the ſuperior riches of goſpel grace. Ye obſerve days, and months, and times, and years, placing dependance on the ceremonial ordinances of the Jewiſh ritual, as eſſential to your juſtification before God. And where this is the caſe, I am afraid of you, leſt I have beſtowed upon you labour in vain, and departing thus from the fundamentals of the goſpel, notwithſtanding all our preaching, you ſhould finally periſh. Note, (1.) Many who make, for a while, fair profeſſions, prove, in the end, foul apoſtates. (2.) Nothing more effectually deſtroys the ſoul, than a departure from that fundamental point of the goſpel, juſtification by faith alone. (3.) It is a deep concern to the true miniſters of Chriſt, when they, in whom they hoped to ſee the fruit of their labours, diſappoint their expectations.

12. Brethren, I beſeech you, be as I am; for I am as ye are: [r] ye have not injured me at all. 13. Ye know how [s] through infirmity of the fleſh, I preached the goſpel unto you at the firſt. 14. And my temptation which was in the fleſh ye deſpiſed not, nor rejected; but received me [t] as an angel of God, [u] even as Chriſt Jeſus. 15. † Where is then the bleſſedneſs you ſpake of? for I bear you record, that if it had been poſſible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them to me. 16. Am I therefore become your enemy, becauſe [x] I tell you the truth?

[r] 2 Cor. ii. 5.
[s] 1 Cor. ii. 3. 2 Cor. xi. 30.
[t] Mal. ii. 7.
[u] Mat. x. 40. John xiii. 20. 1 Theſ. ii. 13.
† Or, what was then.
[x] Chap. iii. 1.

v. 12—16. The apoſtle here,

1. With affectionate addreſs deſires to win upon them. Brethren, I beſeech you, be as I am, united with me in affection as I am to you, and imitate my example, leaving theſe Jewiſh rites as matters of indifference, and cleaving to Chriſt and his righteouſneſs only for juſtification before God; for I am as ye are, one with you in fervent charity, and we are equally entitled to the privileges of the goſpel: ye have not injured me at all; the injury you do is to Chriſt, and your own ſouls; and what I ſay proceeds not from any private reſentment, but purely from a zeal for his glory and your good; and if any diſreſpect may have been caſt on me, I entirely overlook it. Note, The rebuke, that is tempered with love, will always be moſt effectual.

2. He reminds them of the former affection and eſteem which they had ſhewed him. Ye know, how through infirmity of the fleſh, I preached the goſpel unto you at the firſt. And my temptation in the fleſh, (whether his ſufferings, weakneſs of body, or ungraceful appearance, they knew what he meant, though we do not for certain; but whatever it was, he could ſay) ye deſpiſed not, nor rejected; did not therefore ſlight my miniſtry, nor treat my perſon with contempt, but received me as an angel of God, with all veneration and regard, as a meſſenger ſent from heaven, yea, even as Chriſt Jeſus; had he himſelf appeared in the fleſh among you, religious adoration excepted, ye could not have paid him greater reſpect. Where is then the bleſſedneſs you ſpake of? thoſe ardent wiſhes for my happineſs, and the delight you expreſſed in the goſpel which I preached unto you? for I bear you record, that if it had been poſſible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them unto me, counting nothing too great to teſtify the ſenſe of your gratitude towards me. Note, Many, in their firſt love, are all on fire for Chriſt, and never think they can enough teſtify their regard to the miniſters of their converſion, who by and by grow cold or perverted from the truth, and treat with contempt thoſe whom they once reſpected as almoſt angelical.

3. He expoſtulates with them on the ſtrange alteration which now appeared. Am I therefore become your enemy, becauſe I tell you the truth, and kindly warn you of the deadly conſequences of your defection from the purity of the goſpel? Note, (1.) Truth, honeſtly ſpoken, often creates us enemies. (2.) Miniſters may expect that their fidelity will offend. (3.) Whether men will hear or forbear, we muſt ſpeak, nor fear any conſequences.

17. They [y] zealouſly affect you, but not well; yea, they would exclude † you, that you might affect them. 18. But it is good to be zealouſly affected always in a good thing, and not only when I am preſent with you.

[y] Rom. x. 2.
† Or, us.

v. 17—18. St. Paul knew the ſpirit and temper with which the judaizing teachers acted, and he,

1. Warns the Galatians of it. They zealouſly affect you, and pretend great zeal for you, but not well; their profeſſions are diſſembled, and their deſigns crafty; yea, they would exclude you from me and your true friends, who preach the pure goſpel to you, that you might affect them, and yield your conſciences up to their direction. Note, All is not gold which glitters; we ſhould try, before we truſt; hypocriſy, for ſelfiſh ends, can put on the faireſt guiſe of truth.

2. He points out to them the rule they ſhould follow. But it is good, and the proof of an excellent ſpirit, to be zealouſly affected always in a good thing, or to a good man, and not only when I am preſent with you, whilſt an unſteady, wavering conduct, ſhews that the heart is not well grounded in the truth, and diſcovers a diſhonourable levity and inconſtancy.

19. [z] My little children, of whom I travail in birth again, until Chriſt be formed in you, 20. I deſire to be preſent with you now, and to change my voice, for I † ſtand in doubt of you. 21. Tell me, ye that deſire to be under the law, do ye not hear the law? 22. For it is written, that Abraham had two ſons; [a] the one by a bond-maid, [b] the other by a free-woman. 23. But he who was of the bond-woman, [c] was born after the fleſh: but he of the free-woman was by promiſe. 24. Which things are an allegory; for theſe are the two † covenants; the one from the mount Sinai, [d] which gendreth to bondage, which is Agar. 25. For this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia, and anſwereth to Jeruſalem which now is, and is in bondage with her children. 26. But [e] Jeruſalem which is above is free, which is the mother of us all. 27. For it is written, [f] Rejoice, thou barren, that beareſt not: break forth and cry, thou that travaileſt not: for the deſolate hath many more children than ſhe which hath an huſband. 28. Now we, brethren, as Iſaac was, [g] are the children of promiſe. 29. But as then [h] he that was born after the fleſh perſecuted him that was born after the Spirit, [i] even ſo it is now. 30. Nevertheleſs, what ſaith the ſcripture? [k] Caſt out the bond-woman and her ſon: for [l] the ſon of the bond-woman ſhall not be heir with the ſon of the free-woman. 31. So then, brethren, we are not children of the bond-woman, [m] but of the free.

[z] 1 Cor iv. 15. Philem. 10. Jam. i. 18.
† Or, am perplexed in, or for you.
[a] Gen. xvi. 15.
[b] Gen. xxi. 2. Heb. ii. 11.
[c] Rom. ix. 7, 8.
† Or, teſtaments.
[d] Chap. v. 1.
[e] Iſa. ii. 2. Heb. xii. 22. Rev. iii. 12. & xxi. 2, 10.
[f] Iſa. liv. 1.
[g] Rom. ix. 8. Chap. iii. 29.
[h] Gen. xxi. 9.
[i] Chap. v. 11. & vi. 12.
[k] Gen. xxi. 10, 12.
[l] John viii. 35.
[m] John viii. 36. Chap. iii. 29. & v. 1, 13.

v. 19—31. To engage their hearts, and prevail on them to return from their ſad defection from the truth,

1. He expreſſes his tender affection towards them. My little children, dear to me as ſuch, amidſt all the weakneſs you diſcover, of whom I travail in birth again, with ſuch agonies of ſpirit, longing for your preſent recovery, as when I firſt deſired to turn you from your foul idolatry, until Chriſt be formed in you, your ſouls effectually brought under the influence of his goſpel, and his image ſtamped upon your hearts; I deſire to be preſent with you, that I might more fully enter upon the ſubject, confound the gainſayers, and defend the fundamental articles of Chriſtianity from which you have ſwerved; and, if it ſo pleaſed the Lord to make my preaching effectual to your converſion, to change my voice from rebuke to conſolation; for I own at preſent, I ſtand in doubt of you, whether you have ever truly believed to the ſaving of your ſouls, and may not yet be caſt away. Note, (1.) Miniſters travail in birth for immortal ſouls, and feel an affection for thoſe whom they have begotten in the goſpel, like the tender mother's ſenſibility towards her infant offspring. (2.) Chriſt can never be formed in the heart, where ſelf-righteouſneſs and ſelf-dependance ſtill prevail. (3.) 'Tis no charity to think well, when we ſee evidently what is evil, though we wiſh to change our voice, and to behold a happy reformation.

2. He expoſtulates with the Judaizers, who ſought juſtification by the deeds of the law. Tell me, ye that deſire to be under the law, do ye not hear the law? If you attentively conſidered the hiſtory of Abraham, you would ſee the folly of your attempt. For it is written, that Abraham had two ſons, the one by a bond-maid, Hagar an Egyptian, the other by a free-woman, Sarah. And he who was of the bond-maid, Iſhmael, was born after the fleſh, in the ordinary courſe of nature: but he of the free-woman, Iſaac, was by promiſe, given of God, when both his parents were naturally incapable of iſſue. Which things are an allegory, or allegorized, and have a ſpiritual meaning, beyond the mere letter of the words; for theſe, Hagar and Sarah, are the figures of the two covenants; the one from the mount Sinai, which gendreth to bondage, begetting a ſlaviſh ſpirit, and leaving the ſoul under condemnation, which is Agar, and repreſented by her. For this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia; and her being caſt out with her ſon, is a lively figure of the rejection of thoſe who are under the law, which was delivered on that mountain, and this bond-woman anſwereth to Jeruſalem which now is, and is in bondage with her children, abandoned for their infidelity, and excluded from all the bleſſings of the covenant. But Jeruſalem which is above, the church of the redeemed, who by faith in Chriſt look for glory and immortality, is free from all the condemnation of ſin and the law, of which Sarah is the type, and may be conſidered as the mother of us all, whether Jews or Gentiles, who, like her ſon Iſaac, are entitled to all the promiſed bleſſings. For it is written, with particular reference to Sarah and Hagar, Rejoice, thou barren, that beareſt not; break forth and cry, thou that travaileſt not; thou Gentile land, which, like Sarah, haſt long been without ever bringing forth one child for God, now exult in thy vaſt progeny, for the deſolate hath many more children than ſhe which hath an huſband, more converts ſpringing from among the heathen, where all hope of ſuch a ſeed was deſpaired of, than are to be found among thoſe who, under the Sinai covenant, were, during ſo many hundreds of years, eſpouſed to the Lord as their huſband. Now we, brethren, who through grace are joined to Chriſt by faith, as Iſaac was, are the children of the promiſe, and heirs of the eternal inheritance. But as then he that was born after the fleſh (Iſhmael) perſecuted, with mockery and reproaches, him that was born after the Spirit, to wit, Iſaac, the child of the promiſe, even ſo it is now, the carnal Jews, who contend for juſtification by the works of the law, deride and perſecute us, who maintain that juſtification is by faith alone. Nevertheleſs, what ſaith the Scripture? Caſt out the bond-woman and her ſon: for the ſon of the bond-woman ſhall not be heir with the ſon of the free-woman; and ſo ſurely will they be excluded from the heavenly inheritance, who ſeek it by the deeds of the law. So then we, brethren, who expect juſtification by faith only, are not children of the bond-woman, but of the free, and ſhall inherit that eternal life, from which they who are of the law, and depend upon their own doings for their acceptance with God, muſt be for ever excluded. Note, (1.) To underſtand the Scriptures, we muſt look further than the letter. (2.) Reproach and ridicule are, in God's account, perſecution; and this, at leaſt all who live godly in Chriſt Jeſus, muſt endure.

CHAP. V.

In this chapter the apoſtle (1.) applies his foregoing diſcourſe: exhorting them to ſtand faſt in the liberty of the goſpel, ver. 1—12. (2.) He cautions them againſt abuſing their liberty, ver. 13—15. (3.) Exhorts them to walk after the Spirit, and not after the fleſh, ennumerating the works of each, ver. 16—25.

1. STAND faſt therefore in [a] the liberty wherewith Chriſt hath made us free, and be not entangled again [b] with the yoke of bondage. 2. Behold, I Paul ſay unto you, that [c] if ye be circumciſed, Chriſt ſhall profit you nothing. 3. For I teſtify again to every man that is circumciſed, that he is a debtor to do the whole law. 4. [d] Chriſt is become of no effect unto you, whoſoever of you are juſtified by the law; [e] ye are fallen from grace. 5. For we through the Spirit wait for [f] the hope of righteouſneſs by faith. 6. For [g] in Jeſus Chriſt neither circumciſion availeth any thing, nor uncircumciſion, but [h] faith which worketh by love. 7. Ye did [i] run well, [k] who did hinder you, that ye ſhould not obey the truth? 8. This perſuaſion cometh not of him [l] that calleth you. 9. [m] A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump. 10. [n] I have confidence in you through the Lord, that you will be none otherwiſe minded: but [o] he that troubleth you [p] ſhall bear his judgment, whoſoever he be. 11. [q] And I, brethren, if I yet preach circumciſion, [r] why do I yet ſuffer perſecution? then [s] is the offence of the croſs ceaſed. 12. [t] I would they were even cut off [u] which trouble you.

[a] John viii. 32. Rom. vi. 18. 1 Pet. ii. 16.
[b] Acts xv. 10. Chap. ii. 4.
[c] Acts xv. 1.
[d] Rom. ix. 31, 32. Chap. ii. 21.
[e] Heb. xii. 15.
[f] 2 Tim. iv. 8.
[g] 1 Cor. vii. 19. Chap. vi. 15. Col. iii. 11.
[h] 1 Theſ. i. 3.
[i] 1 Cor ix. 24. Heb. xii. 1.
[k] Chap. iii. 1.
[l] Chap. i. 6.
[m] 1 Cor. v. 6. 2 Tim. ii. 17.
[n] 2 Cor. ii. 3. & viii. 22.
[o] Chap. i. 7.
[p] 2 Cor. x. 6.
[q] Chap. vi. 12.
[r] 1 Cor. xv. 30.
[s] 1 Cor. i. 23.
[t] Joſh. vii. 25. 1 Cor. v. 13. Chap. i. 8, 9.
[u] Acts xvii. 6.

v. 1—12. Having eſtabliſhed the doctrine which he undertook to prove, of free juſtification by faith alone, without the works of the law, he paſſes on to exhort them ſteadily to hold faſt the truth. Stand faſt therefore in the liberty wherewith Chriſt hath made us free from the curſe of the law, and its obligation as a covenant of works, ſeeing for us he hath endured the one and fulfilled the other; and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage, and by ſubmitting to circumciſion, return to the Moſaical law as obligatory, and neceſſary to ſalvation. Note, (1.) Every believer is Chriſt's freed-man, and hath nothing to fear from the law as denouncing a curſe, and owes it no obedience as a covenant. (2.) The liberty of the goſpel is not a liberty to ſin, but to ſerve God, with freedom of ſpirit and willing obedience. The apoſtle enforces his exhortation with ſeveral arguments:

1. Behold, I Paul ſay unto you, that if ye be circumciſed, Chriſt ſhall profit you nothing. If you depend on this as eſſential to your juſtification before God, all Chriſt hath done and ſuffered will be of no avail to you, v. 4. ye are fallen from grace, and excluded from all the bleſſings of that goſpel, whoſe doctrines you once profeſſed to hold. Note, The moment we pretend to join any thing of our own, any doings, duties, deſires, or deſerts, to Chriſt's finiſhed work of atonement and righteouſneſs, this is ſo high a contempt upon him, as muſt neceſſarily cut us off from all the bleſſings of that compleat ſalvation which he hath wrought out, and of which he expects to have the entire glory.

2. Every man, who was circumciſed, was obliged to perfect obedience to the law, under the penalty of the curſe it denounces. For I teſtify again (ſo earneſt am I that this important matter be clearly underſtood) to every man that is circumciſed, that he is a debtor to keep the whole law; and having laid himſelf under ſuch an obligation, muſt periſh under the leaſt failure, whilſt he expects eternal life on the footing of his own obedience.

3. For even we, who are Jews, whoſe conſciences have been enlightened to ſee the ſpiritual demands of the law, deſpairing of acceptance with God that way, do, through the Spirit, under his divine illumination and influence, wait for the hope of righteouſneſs by faith, expecting earneſtly and patiently that eternal life which God hath promiſed, not by the works of the law, but through faith in the righteouſneſs of our great Redeemer, as our only ſufficient title, and availing plea; and if the Jews were thus neceſſitated to renounce all dependance on their circumciſion, and the legal inſtitutions under which they had been brought up, what folly would it be for Gentiles, who had never been ſubject to the law, to have recourſe thereto? Note, Our hope towards God is founded on a better righteouſneſs than our own, even on that of our divine Subſtitute and Surety.

4. The goſpel hath cancelled all diſtinction of Jew and Gentile. For in Chriſt Jeſus, and under that gracious diſpenſation which he hath introduced, neither circumciſion availeth any thing, nor uncircumciſion, as a recommendation to God's favour, but it is faith which worketh by love, that alone is available to ſalvation; faith, which lays our whole dependance on Chriſt alone, and, from a confidence in his love, engages our ſouls in love to him, and in univerſal benevolence to mankind. Note, (1.) Chriſt is to the believer all and in all. (2.) Faith juſtifies, not as a grace in us, but as it receives and embraces the divine righteouſneſs provided in the goſpel, and leads us to renounce every other hope. (3.) Wherever faith is unfeigned, the genuine fruits of love will ſpring from it, and hereby it ſhall be proved and evidenced.

5. It was the more grievous for them to depart from the faith, whoſe beginnings had been ſo exceedingly promiſing. Ye did run well, who did hinder you from proceeding in the happy ways of the goſpel, and hath diverted you from your courſe, that you ſhould not obey the truth, which once you embraced? This perſuaſion cometh not of him that calleth you; theſe judaizing ſentiments I never taught you; and God, by his Spirit in the goſpel, laid down a quite different method for your acceptance before him. Note, (1.) Many run well for a ſeaſon, who afterwards faulter in their heavenly courſe. (2.) It ſhould be matter of ſerious enquiry to us, what hath turned us aſide or retarded us in our Chriſtian race? (3.) They who receive the truth in the light of it, muſt ſhew their love of it alſo by the unfeigned obedience of their hearts thereunto.

6. The inſinuation of ſuch dangerous tenets was likely to produce the moſt fatal effects. A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump. Where once a departure from the principles of truth begins, like the plague it ſpreads through the whole body; and one corrupt member in the church may communicate the moſt fatal and pernicious hereſies to the whole.

7. The apoſtle, notwithſtanding the fears he could not but entertain, yet charitably expreſſes his confidence in many of them, that they would reſiſt theſe innovations. I have confidence in you through the Lord, that you will be none otherwiſe minded, and cleave unſhaken to the principles of the goſpel: but he that troubleth you, (Ο ταρασσων) the arch-heretic, and author of theſe pernicious opinions, ſhall bear his burden, and be laid under the juſt cenſures of the church, whoſoever he be, however great and diſtinguiſhed; at leaſt the righteous judgment of God ſhall ſurely overtake him at the laſt.

8. He exculpates himſelf from every inſinuation, which theſe ſeducers ſuggeſted, as if he himſelf was of their ſentiments. And I brethren, if I yet preach circumciſion as neceſſary to ſalvation, which they would make you believe, why do I yet ſuffer perſecution from the Jewiſh zealots, my moſt envenomed foes? then is the offence of the croſs ceaſed; if this were the caſe, there would be no reaſon for them to be any longer exaſperated with me. His ſufferings therefore proved the zeal wherewith he oppoſed a notion ſo ſubverſive of the fundamentals of Chriſtianity.

9. He, with juſt indignation, expreſſes his earneſt wiſh, that theſe troublers of the church's peace had their deſerts. I would they were even cut off that trouble you, excommunicated from the ſociety of the faithful, or ſilenced by the righteous vengeance of God. Note, The troublers of the church's peace, who broach their deſtructive opinions, ſow diſſenſions, and promote ſchiſms in the undivided body of Chriſt, ſhall be ſeverely dealt with in the day of recompence.

13. For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only [x] uſe not liberty for an occaſion to the fleſh, but by [y] love ſerve one another. 14. For [z] all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this; [a] Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thyſelf. 15. But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not conſumed one of another.

[x] 1 Cor. viii. 9. 1 Pet. ii. 16. 2 Pet. ii. 19.
[y] 1 Cor. ix. 19. Chap. vi. 2.
[z] Mat. vii. 12. Jam. ii. 8.
[a] Lev. xix. 18. Mat. xxii. 39. Rom. xiii. 8, 9.

v. 13—15. As the apoſtle had before exhorted them to hold faſt their liberty, he here teaches them wherein that liberty conſiſted. For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only uſe not liberty for an occaſion to the fleſh, as if you were diſcharged from every moral obligation, and might gratify the corrupt deſires of the fleſh and of the mind; but the goſpel of grace teaches us a different leſſon, and engages us, by the moſt powerful principle, even by love to ſerve one another, in every inſtance of brotherly affection ſeeking to promote each other's ſpiritual, temporal, and eternal intereſts. For all the law is fulfilled in one word, all the precepts of the ſecond table are ſummed up in one, even in this; Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thyſelf. But if ye bite and devour one another, diſputing, reviling, and with fierce contentions, like ſavage beaſts exaſperated againſt each other, take heed that ye be not conſumed one of another, and, forſaken of God, be given up to the evil of your own hearts, which muſt end in your ruin. Note, Nothing tends to the deſtruction of Chriſtianity ſo immediately as diſſenſions among thoſe who bear the Chriſtian name.

16. This I ſay then, [b] Walk in the Spirit, and ye ſhall not fulfil the luſt of the fleſh. 17. [c] For the fleſh luſteth againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit againſt the fleſh: and theſe are contrary the one to the other; ſo that ye cannot do the things that ye would. 18. [d] But if ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the law. 19. Now [e] the works of the fleſh are manifeſt, which are theſe, Adultery, fornication, uncleanneſs, laſciviouſneſs, 20. Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, ſtrife, ſeditions, hereſies, 21. Envyings, murders, drunkenneſs, revellings, and ſuch like: of the which I tell you before, as I have alſo told you in time paſt, that [f] they which do ſuch things ſhall not inherit the kingdom of God. 22. But [g] the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-ſuffering, [h] gentleneſs, [i] goodneſs, faith, 23. Meekneſs, temperance: [k] againſt ſuch there is no law. 24. And they that are Chriſt's [l] have crucified the fleſh with the affections and luſts. 25. [m] If we live in the Spirit, let us alſo walk in the Spirit. 26. [n] Let us not be deſirous of vainglory, provoking one another, envying one another.

[b] Rom. vi. 12. & viii. 1, 4. & xiii. 14. 1 Pet. ii. 11.
[c] Rom. vii. 1, 5, &c.
[d] Rom. vi. 14. & viii. 2.
[e] 1 Cor. iii. 3. Eph. v. 3. Col. iii. 5. Jam. iii. 14.
[f] 1 Cor. vi. 9. Eph. v. 5. Col. iii. 6. Rev. xxii. 15.
[g] John xv. 2. Eph. v. 9.
[h] Col. iii. 12.
[i] Rom. xv. 14.
[k] 1 Tim. i. 9.
[l] Rom. vi. 6. Chap. ii. 20.
[m] Rom. viii. 5.
[n] Phil. ii. 3.

v. 16—26. The advice which St. Paul upon the whole gives is this,

1. In general, This I ſay then, Walk in the Spirit, under his bleſſed influence, dictates, and guidance, according to the goſpel word, and ye ſhall not fulfil the luſt of the fleſh, be given up to the native corruptions of your heart, and ſo finiſh and perfect ſin, (τελεσητε) as to become abſolute ſlaves to it, and to periſh under its reigning dominion. In this imperfect ſtate indeed you will not be free from the warrings of in-dwelling evil; for there are two contending principles in every believer's heart, corruption and grace; the fleſh luſteth againſt the Spirit, craving indulgence and gratification, and the Spirit againſt the fleſh, oppoſing and mortifying its corrupt deſires, and theſe are contrary the one to the other, in their nature, actings, and tendencies; ſo that ye cannot do, or ye do not, the things that ye would; the workings of the old man are checked and reſtrained by the power of divine grace, and though the propenſity to evil remains in the regenerate, he is enabled by the nobler and divine nature, which he hath received, to oppoſe his carnal will and affections, though the conflict is often ſharp, and ſometimes corruption may prevail. But if ye be led by the Spirit, habitually under his influence, ye are not under the law, its condemnation is no longer to be apprehended, nor are ye ſubject to it as a covenant of works, but brought into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God.

2. He particularly enumerates thoſe works of the fleſh which muſt be avoided, and thoſe gracious fruits of the ſpirit which ſhould be produced by them. Now,

1. The works of the fleſh, of the corrupt nature which is in fallen man, are manifeſt, which are theſe, adultery, fornication, uncleanneſs, laſciviouſneſs, with every act of bodily pollution, or mental impurity. Alſo, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, ſtrife, ſeditions, hereſies, envyings, which more immediately are the iniquities of the carnal mind. Add to theſe the deadly crimes of murder, drunkenneſs, revellings, and ſuch like debaucheries and abominations, of the which I tell you before the day of vengeance comes, as I have alſo told you in time paſt, that they which do ſuch things, unleſs they repent, ſhall not inherit the kingdom of God. Reader, mark theſe awful words, ſo expreſs, ſo full, ſo diſtinct. Examine thyſelf; are either of theſe things found allowed, indulged in thy heart or conduct? Then aſſuredly the wrath of God abideth on thee. But,

2. The fruit of the Spirit, which he produces in the ſouls of the redeemed, is love to God and men, joy in the Lord through Jeſus Chriſt, in his people who live to his glory, in his ordinances, now become our delight; peace of conſcience, and with all mankind; long-ſuffering, under all afflictive providences, or the provocations of the perverſe; gentleneſs of temper and manners towards every creature; goodneſs, that makes us ready to every word and work for the benefit of others; faith and truth in all our promiſes, engagements, and dealings; meekneſs, that is not eaſily provoked, and is inſtantly pacified; temperance in all our deſires, and in the uſe of every earthly enjoyment: againſt ſuch diſpoſitions, and thoſe who are poſſeſſed of them, there is no law, nor any condemnation to be apprehended.

3. They that are Chriſt's, in reality living members of his body myſtical, will give demonſtrative proof of the truth of their profeſſion by their ſpiritual practice, for they have crucified the fleſh with their affections and luſts. Their old man is nailed to their Redeemer's croſs, and though not utterly dead, yet is dying daily, till, with the death of the body, the body of ſin ſhall be utterly aboliſhed, and buried with the corpſe never to riſe up again. And whilſt we are here in a ſtate of warfare, if we live in the Spirit, actuated and influenced by his mighty energy, let us alſo walk in the Spirit, and act according to our profeſſion as believers, and the obligations we are under to die daily unto ſin, and to live unto righteouſneſs. Let us not be deſirous of vain-glory, puffed up with a high conceit of our attainments or performances, and affecting human approbation; provoking one another by a proud ſuperciliouſneſs, or envying one another for their ſuperior gifts; tempers the moſt oppoſite and contradictory to the profeſſion of Chriſtianity. Note, (1.) All, who are truly Chriſt's, evidence it by their conduct; the ſame mind in a meaſure is in them, and they follow his ſteps; if we ſay we have fellowſhip with him, and walk in darkneſs, we lie. (2.) Only from pride cometh contention, envy, and every evil work; this muſt therefore be mortified, or we cannot be ſaved.

CHAP. VI.

This chapter chiefly conſiſts of two parts: In the former the apoſtle gives us ſeveral plain and practical directions, which more eſpecially tend to inſtruct Chriſtians in their duty to one another, and to promote the communion of ſaints in love, from ver. 1. to ver. 10. In the latter he revives the main deſign of the epiſtle, which was to fortify the Galatians againſt the arts of their judaizing teachers, and confirm them in the truth and liberty of the goſpel: To which purpoſe he, 1. Gives them the true character of theſe teachers, and ſhews them from what motives, and with what views they acted, from ver. 10. to ver. 14. And, 2. On the other hand he acquaints them with his own temper and behaviour; from both which they might eaſily ſee how little reaſon they had to ſlight him, and to fall in with them. And then he concludes the epiſtle with a ſolemn benediction.

1. BRETHREN, [a] if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye [b] which are ſpiritual, [c] reſtore ſuch an one [d] in the the ſpirit of meekneſs; conſidering thyſelf, leſt thou alſo be tempted. 2. [e] Bear ye one another's burdens, and ſo fulfil [f] the law of Chriſt. 3. For [g] if a man think himſelf to be ſomething, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himſelf. 4. But [h] let every man prove his own work, and then ſhall he have rejoicing in himſelf alone, and [i] not in another. 5. For [k] every man ſhall bear his own burden. 6. [l] Let him that is taught in the word, communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things. 7. Be [m] not deceived; God is not mocked: for [n] whatſoever a man ſoweth, that ſhall he alſo reap. 8. For [o] he that ſoweth to the fleſh ſhall of the fleſh reap corruption: but [p] he that ſoweth to the Spirit ſhall of the Spirit reap life everlaſting. 9. And [q] let us not be weary in well doing: for in due ſeaſon [r] we ſhall reap, if we faint not. 10. [s] As we have therefore opportunity, [t] let us do good unto all men, [u] eſpecially unto them who are [x] of the houſhold of faith.

[a] Rom. xiv. 1. & xv. 1. Heb. xii. 15.
[b] 1 Cor. ii. 15. & iii. 1.
[c] 2 Theſ. iii. 15. Jam. 5. 19.
[d] 2 Tim. ii. 25.
[e] Rom. xv. 1. Chap. v. 13, 14. 1 Theſ. v. 14.
[f] John xiii. 34. & xv. 12. Jam. ii. 8. 1 John iv. 21.
[g] 1 Cor viii. 2. Chap. ii. 6.
[h] 1 Cor. xi. 28. 2 Cor. xiii. 5.
[i] Luke xviii. 11.
[k] Rom. ii. 6. & xiv. 12. 1 Cor. iii. 8.
[l] Rom. xv. 27. 1 Cor. ix. 11, 14.
[m] 1 Cor. vi. 9.
[n] Luke xvi. 25. Rom. ii. 6. 2 Cor. ix. 6.
[o] Job iv. 8. Prov. xxii. 8. Hoſ. viii. 7. Rom. viii. 13.
[p] Hoſ. x. 12. Jam. iii. 18.
[q] 1 Cor. xv. 58. 2 Theſ. iii. 13.
[r] Mat. xxiv. 13. Heb. iii. 14. Rev. ii. 10.
[s] John xii. 35.
[t] 1 Theſ. v. 15. 1 Tim. vi. 18.
[u] 1 Tim. v. 8.
[x] Eph. ii. 19.

v. 1—10. As he had ſo warmly recommended to them that love, which would engage them to ſerve one another, he paſſes on to the exerciſe of it in ſeveral inſtances.

1. Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, through ſurprize, temptation, and human frailty, ye which are ſpiritual, and ſtrong in the grace which is in Jeſus Chriſt, reſtore ſuch an one in the ſpirit of meekneſs, with all the tenderneſs that an able ſurgeon handles a diſlocated joint, in order to reduce it; uſing, not rough reproaches, but tender expoſtulations; conſidering thyſelf, as no man is ſecure, leſt thou alſo be tempted, and ſuffered to fall, to puniſh the undue ſeverity you may have uſed towards others, and juſtly to ſmart under the ſame ſcourge. Note, (1.) A ſenſe of our own weakneſs will make us compaſſionate towards an offending brother. (2.) Peculiar tenderneſs is needful, when the ſoul is already vexed and grieved by ſin, leaſt we drive thoſe to deſpair, whom we ſhould lead to repentance. (3.) Angry reproofs, however great the provocation may be, never can do good.

2. Bear ye one another's burdens, ſympathizing with the afflicted; patient with the infirmities of the weak; and deſirous to alleviate every grief, under which your brethren groan, by your prayers, your counſel, or your ſubſtance; and ſo fulfil the law of Chriſt, that law of love, which he hath taught both by precept and example.

3. In humility, every man ſhould watch over, and examine himſelf. For if a man think himſelf to be ſomething extraordinary, and ſelf-ſufficient to withſtand every temptation, when in fact he is nothing, and hath no ſtrength of his own, he deceiveth his own ſelf, as he will find, by dire experience, when he comes to be tried. But let every man prove his own work, examining into his principles and practice according to the goſpel rule, and then, if he finds a happy correſpondence between them, ſhall he have rejoicing in himſelf, and not in another; he will exult in the bleſſed teſtimony of the ſpirit and his own conſcience, aſcribing to the grace of God what hath been wrought in him; and will ſeek no glory from human applauſe, nor deſire to rake up other's faults as a foil to ſet off his own excellencies; ſatisfied if God in Chriſt Jeſus accepts and approves his ſervices. For every man ſhall bear his own burden, and ſtand or fall, not according to the opinion he hath entertained of himſelf, or that others form of him, but according to the deciſion of the eternal judge. Note, (1.) A high opinion of ourſelves ever argues great ignorance of our own hearts. (2.) The teſtimony of a good conſcience is matter of ſolid ſatisfaction. (3.) Though we know nothing declaredly evil in ourſelves, we muſt remember he that judgeth us is the Lord, who ſees many evils, which we through blindneſs overlook; and therefore it becomes us ever to be humble before him.

4. Let him that is taught in the word, communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things, contributing liberally and chearfully to the ſupport of a goſpel miniſtry, for the labourer is worthy of his hire. Be not deceived by your deluding teachers, who would engroſs your regard, nor by the covetouſneſs of your own hearts, that would divert you from this or any other inſtance of liberality; God is not to be mocked by vain pretences; for whatſoever a man ſoweth, that ſhall he alſo reap, according to his work will be his wages. For he that ſoweth to the fleſh, making proviſion for it to fulfil the luſts thereof, or inordinately anxious to hoard up worldly wealth, to the defrauding of God's altar or the poor, ſuch a man ſhall of the fleſh reap corruption; his periſhing acquiſitions will ſoon be fled, and endleſs miſery ſucceed: but he that ſoweth to the Spirit, in every inſtance of bounty and benevolence, under the Spirit's guidance, laying out himſelf, his time, his talents, for the glory of Chriſt, and the good of his people, ſhall of the Spirit reap everlaſting life, and in eternity receive the bleſſed recompence of his deeds. And let us not be weary of well-doing, though we may not ſee all the happy effects we expected, for in due ſeaſon we ſhall reap, if we faint not. Nothing can be loſt which is employed in God's ſervice; though like the ſeed under the clod it may ſeem to be buried for a while, it will ſurely ſpring up and afford a plenteous increaſe, often in this world, and always in a better.

5. This is the day for labour, therefore we ſhould diligently improve it. And as we have opportunity, let us, according to our abilities, do good unto all men, with liberal hearts, and open hands, not reſtraining our charity to any party or nation, though eſpecially exerciſing it unto them who are of the houſhold of faith, for whom we are bound particularly to intereſt ourſelves, by peculiar ties of love and duty, as children of the ſame family, and heirs of the ſame inheritance.

11. Ye ſee how large a letter I have written unto you with mine own hand. 12. As many as deſire to make a fair ſhew in the fleſh, [y] they conſtrain you to be circumciſed; [z] only leſt they [a] ſhould ſuffer perſecution for the croſs

[y] Chap. ii. 3.
[z] Phil. iii. 18.
[a] Chap. v. 11.

croſs of Chriſt. 13. For neither they themſelves who are circumciſed keep the law; but deſire to have you circumciſed, that they may glory in your fleſh. 14. But [b] God forbid that I ſhould glory, ſave in the croſs of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by whom the world [c] is crucified unto me, and I unto the world. 15. For [d] in Chriſt Jeſus neither circumciſion availeth any thing, nor uncircumciſion, but [e] a new creature. 16. And [f] as many as walk [g] according to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy, and upon [h] the Iſrael of God. 17. From henceforth let no man trouble me; for [i] I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jeſus. 18. Brethren, [k] the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with your ſpirit. Amen.

[b] Phil. iii. 7, 8. [c] Rom. vi. 6. Chap. ii. 20. [d] 1 Cor. vii. 19. Chap. v. 6. Col. iii. 11. [e] 2 Cor. v. 17. [f] Pſ. cxxv. 5. [g] Phil. iii. 16. [h] Rom. ii. 29. & iv. 12. Chap. iii. 9, 29. Phil. iii. 3. [i] 2 Cor. iv. 10. Col. i. 24. [k] 2 Tim. iv. 22. Philem. 25.

v. 11—18. Though in his other epiſtles he uſually employed an amanuenſis, out of his great affection to them he wrote this long letter on ſo important a ſubject with his own hand. And now, being about to conclude, he,

1. Marks out to them the true character of their ſeducing teachers, that they may beware of them. As many as deſire to make a fair ſhew in the fleſh, and by their pompous profeſſions, and zeal for the ceremonials of religion, would inſinuate into your confidence, they conſtrain you to be circumciſed, and urge this upon you as neceſſary to ſalvation; when, in fact, their deſign is not your good, but their own eaſe and honour; for they do it only leſt they ſhould ſuffer perſecution for the croſs of Chriſt from the furious zealots for Judaiſm, who cannot bear the doctrine of free juſtification through faith in Chriſt alone, without circumciſion, or the works of the law: for, eager as they are for your ſubmitting to this rite, neither they themſelves, who are circumciſed, keep the law in its moral purity and perfection, rigidly as they are attached to the ceremonials of it; but they deſire to have you circumciſed, that they may glory in your fleſh, and make a merit of it with their countrymen that you are their proſelytes to circumciſion. Note, (1.) They who are aſhamed of the croſs, are aſſuredly the enemies of Chriſt. (2.) Many make their boaſt of the form of religion, who are the greateſt ſtrangers to the power of it.

2. He declares to them his own temper and conduct. What the falſe teachers were aſhamed of, he gloried in: God forbid that I ſhould glory in external privileges, attainments, gifts, duties, or any thing elſe, ſave in the croſs of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and in that atoning ſacrifice which he there offered, as my whole dependance for pardon and acceptance with God; by whom alſo the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world; through faith in him I am mortified to all its allurements, honours, and intereſts, and content to be treated with that contempt and virulent enmity which for the truth's ſake I ſuffer from a world that lieth in wickedneſs. Note, (1.) The croſs is the glorious object ever in the Chriſtian's eye; for to the ſacrifice there offered he is indebted for all his hopes in time and eternity. (2.) Faith in a crucified Jeſus is the victory that overcometh the world, and nothing elſe can enable us to do it.

3. He lays down the eſſential point of true Chriſtianity. For in Chriſt Jeſus, with regard to the ſalvation which is in him, neither circumciſion availeth any thing, nor uncircumciſion; the one is no advantage, the other no obſtruction; but that which muſt prove our intereſt in Chriſt, and that we are partakers of the grace of God in truth, is our becoming a new creature, having our principles, tempers, and conduct, caſt into the mold of the goſpel, through the mighty energy of faith which worketh by love.

4. He offers up his prayers for thoſe who held faſt the truth. As many as walk according to this rule, laid down in this epiſtle, with regard to juſtification by faith, and the new creature, without reſpect to circumciſion or uncircumciſion, peace be upon them, and mercy, and upon the Iſrael of God; may they enjoy peace with God and in their own conſciences, and every divine mercy which is purchaſed by the crucified Jeſus for his redeemed people, who, whether Jews or Gentiles, are God's ſpiritual Iſrael.

5. He with authority enjoins them to give him no farther trouble on this point, but to ſubmit to his apoſtolic warnings and reproofs. From henceforth let no man trouble me with farther diſputes and contentions, or with injurious reproaches, as tho' I had ever countenanced the doctrine of theſe judaizing teachers; the contrary of which is moſt evident: I have ever oppoſed them, and ſeverely ſuffered for it; for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jeſus, the ſcars of the wounds and ſtripes endured for his ſake, the ſigns of my conformity to him, and of my adherence to the offenſive doctrines of his croſs, and particularly of juſtification by faith alone. Note, It is a proof we believe the doctrines we preach, when we dare boldly ſuffer for them, and can produce the glorious ſcars received in the ſervice of the Captain of our ſalvation.

6. He concludes with his uſual benediction. Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with your ſpirit, Amen! The treatment he had received from them did not quench his love towards them. Earneſt to promote their ſalvation, he prays that they may experience the ineſtimably precious love of a dying Redeemer, and partake of all the invaluable privileges which he freely beſtows on his choſen, even pardon, peace, comfort, holineſs, and eternal life.

THE
EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
Upon the EPISTLE of
St. PAUL to the EPHESIANS.

THIS Epiſtle bears date out of a priſon: and ſome have obſerved that what this apoſtle wrote when he was a priſoner had the greateſt reliſh and ſavour in it of the things of God. When his tribulations did abound, his conſolations and experiences did much more abound. From whence we may obſerve, that the afflictive exerciſes of God's people, and particularly of his miniſters, do oftentimes tend to the advantage of others as well as to their own.

The apoſtle's deſign is to ſettle and eſtabliſh the Epheſians in the truth; and further to acquaint them with the myſtery of the goſpel in order to it. In the former part he repreſents the great privilege of the Epheſians, who, being in time paſt idolatrous heathens, were now converted to Chriſtianity, and received into covenant with God, which he illuſtrates from a view of their deplorable ſtate before their converſion, chap. i. ii. iii. In the latter part (which we have in the fourth, fifth, and ſixth chapters) he inſtructs them in the principal duties of religion, both perſonal and relative; and exhorts and quickens them to the faithful diſcharge of them. Zanchius obſerves, that we have here an epitome of the whole Chriſtian doctrine, and of almoſt all the chief heads of divinity.

Epheſus was the chief city of the proconſular Aſia, and particularly famous for the magnificent temple of Diana. Idolatry there reigned triumphant, till the ſtandard of Chriſt was erected, the pillars of Satan's kingdom ſhaken, and multitudes brought by the preaching of Paul to the obedience of the faith.

CHAP. I.

In this chapter we have 1. The introduction to the whole epiſtle, which is much the ſame as in others, ver. 1, 2. 2. The apoſtle's thankſgivings and praiſes to God for his ineſtimable bleſſings beſtowed on the believing Epheſians, ver. 3—14. 3. His earneſt prayers to God in their behalf, ver. 15—23.

1. PAUL an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, [a] by the will of God, [b] to the ſaints which are at Epheſus, and [c] to the faithful in Chriſt Jeſus: 2. [d] Grace be to you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

a 2 Cor. i. 1.
b Rom. i. 7. 2 Cor. i. 1.
c 1 Cor. iv. 17. Col. i. 2.
d Rom. i. 7. Gal. i. 3.

v. 1, 2. The epiſtle opens with the apoſtle's uſual addreſs.

Paul an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, appointed to this high office and honour by the will of God immediately revealed from heaven, to the ſaints which are at Epheſus, by profeſſion and practice ſeparated from this preſent evil world, and ſanctified by the Holy Ghoſt; and to the faithful in Chriſt Jeſus, who by faith are united to him, and approve their fidelity before him: Grace be to you and peace, in all their comprehenſive import, from God our Father, the fountain of bleſſedneſs; and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the purchaſer and beſtower of every good and perfect gift. Note, (1.) All true Chriſtians are ſaints upon earth. (2.) They who have obtained grace to be faithful have need ſtill to look to the ſame fountain from whence they derive continual ſupplies, that their ſtability may be ſecured, and their peace be enlarged.

3. [e] Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath bleſſed us with [f] all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly † places in Chriſt: 4. According as [g] he hath choſen us in him before the foundation of the world, [h] that we ſhould be holy, and without blame before him in love: 5. [i] Having predeſtinated us [k] unto the adoption of children by Jeſus Chriſt to himſelf, [l] according to the good pleaſure of his will, 6. To the praiſe of the glory of his grace, [m] wherein he hath made us accepted in [n] the Beloved: 7. [o] In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveneſs of ſins, according to [p] the riches of his grace; 8. Wherein he hath abounded towards us [q] in all wiſdom and prudence, 9. [r] Having made known unto us the myſtery of his will according to his good pleaſure, [s] which he hath purpoſed in himſelf: 10. That in the diſpenſation of [t] the fulneſs of times [u] he might gather together in one [x] all things in Chriſt, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth, even in him: 11. In whom alſo we [y] have obtained an inheritance, being predeſtinated according to the purpoſe of him who worketh all things after e 2 Cor. i. 3. 1 Pet. i. 3.

f Rom. viii. 32.
† Or things.
g 2 Theſ. ii. 13. 2 Tim. i. 9.
h Luke i. 75. Chap. v. 27. Col. i. 22. 1 Theſſ. iv. 7. 1 Pet. i. 2.
i Rom. viii. 29, 30.
k Rom. viii, 15. Gal. iv. 5. 1 John iii. 1.
l Mat. xi. 26.
m Rom. iii. 24.
n Mat. iii. 17.
o Acts xx. 28. Col. i. 14. Heb. ix. 12. 1 Pet. i. 19.
p Rom. ix. 23. Chap. ii. 7. & iii. 8, 16. Phil. iv. 19.
q 1 Cor. i. 5.
r Rom. xvi. 25. Col. i. 26.
s Chap. iii. 11. 2 Tim. i. 9.
t Gal. iv. 4.
u 1 Cor. xi. 3.
x Chap. iii. 15. Col. i. 20.
y Acts xx. 32. & xxvi. 18. Col. i. 12. 1 Pet. i. 4.

after the counſel of his own will: 12. [a] That we ſhould be to the praiſe of his glory, [a] who firſt truſted in Chriſt. 13. In whom ye alſo truſted after that ye heard the word of truth, the goſpel of your ſalvation: in whom alſo after that ye believed, [b] ye were ſealed with that holy Spirit of promiſe, 14. [c] Which is the earneſt of our inheritance, [d] until the redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion, unto the praiſe of his glory.

[a] Phil. i. 11.
[a] Jam. i. 18.
[b] Rom. viii. 16. 2 Cor. i. 22. Chap. iv. 30.
[c] 2 Cor. v. 5.
[d] Luke xxi. 28. Rom. viii. 23. Chap. iv. 30.

v. 3—14. Deeply impreſſed with a ſenſe of the ineſtimable bleſſings of which in Chriſt Jeſus they had been made partakers, the grateful apoſtle breaks forth in praiſes and thankſgivings to the God of all grace.

1. In general. Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the adored Redeemer, in whom he is now become our reconciled and covenant God, who hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly things or places in Chriſt, bleſſings deſcending from above, and leading up our ſouls to high and heavenly things, till we reach the manſions of eternal bleſſedneſs. And for all theſe rich gifts which we now enjoy, and all the greater glory which we hope for, be everlaſting praiſe, honour, and thankſgiving aſcribed to the ever-bleſſed fountain of mercies. Note, (1.) We cannot bleſs God as he bleſſeth us: his bleſſings are real gifts conferred; ours are only the grateful acknowledgements we owe for them. (2.) In Chriſt Jeſus all ſpiritual bleſſings are freely given to us; and though we are not in poſſeſſion of them all, our title to them is ſure.

2. In particular,

(1.) He praiſes God for the ſpiritual bleſſing of election. According as he hath choſen us in him before the foundation of the world, in his own eternal mind having ſovereignly fixed upon us as the objects of his love, not for any thing foreſeen in us, but as regarded in Chriſt, our covenant-head and repreſentative, who is moſt eminently his elect, and in and with whom he hath predeſtinated us to life and ſalvation; and, as the way thereto, hath ordained, that we ſhould be holy, and without blame before him in love, ſanctified by his Spirit, in ſincerity and truth enabled to approve ourſelves before him, as acting under the influence of that divine principle of love which he hath ſhed abroad in our heart: having predeſtinated us unto the adoption of children by Jeſus Chriſt unto himſelf; from everlaſting, in his eternal purpoſe, ſingling us out from the reſt of mankind, and, through union with his own Son, admitting us to the high dignity of children, beſtowing on us the Spirit of adoption, and deſigning us for the eternal inheritance, that we might be thus a people for his praiſe; according to the good pleaſure of his will, not for any worthineſs foreſeen in us, or any previous obligation lying upon him ſo to do, but merely out of his own divine ſovereignty, that we might be to the praiſe of the glory of his grace, which is thus magnified in the higheſt, and all the glory of a complete and finiſhed ſalvation, from the beginning to the end, to be aſcribed to him alone by every redeemed ſoul.

(2.) He bleſſes God for the reconciliation and acceptance obtained through Chriſt Jeſus. Wherein he hath made us accepted in the Beloved, in his boundleſs grace he hath taken us for his own, and, regarding us as we ſtand united with his dear Son, embraces us with the arms of his everlaſting love, accepting both our perſons and ſervices for his ſake, in whom, being found, we are eſteemed complete and perfect, lacking nothing.

(3.) He praiſes God for the great and ineſtimable bleſſings of redemption and remiſſion of ſins through the adored Saviour. In whom we have redemption, an entire deliverance from all evil, and a reſtoration to all bleſſedneſs, in virtue of the ineſtimable price which he hath paid, through his moſt precious blood, ſhed on purpoſe to ſatisfy divine juſtice, and obtain our deliverance from the curſe of a broken law, in virtue whereof we have the forgiveneſs of ſins, and are ſaved from all their deadly conſequences in time and eternity, according to the riches of his grace; though it was due to our Subſtitute, the pardon is abſolutely free to us; and that ſuch a Redeemer ſhould be ever provided was itſelf a matter of the moſt tranſcendent grace and favour; wherein he hath abounded towards us in all wiſdom and prudence, manifeſting the moſt aſtoniſhing depths of wiſdom in the contrivance, and prudence in the execution of this wondrous ſcheme of ſalvation.

(4.) He bleſſes God for the knowledge he had communicated to them of his will. Having made known unto us the myſtery of his will, which was hid from former ages, or but darkly made known, but now is revealed to us, both by an external revelation of it clearly in his word, and by the internal illumination of his Spirit, according to his good pleaſure, which he hath purpoſed in himſelf, flowing from his own ſovereign determination, without the leaſt inducement whatever thereunto moving him in thoſe who were the objects of his choice; that in the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of times under the goſpel, the laſt diſpenſation of grace which will be vouchſafed to the ſinful ſons of men, he might gather together in one all things in Chriſt, reducing things again to order from the confuſion which ſin had introduced, recovering his elect, whether Jews or Gentiles, from the miſeries of their fallen ſtate, and, under Chriſt as their living head, uniting them in one body; both which are in heaven and which are on earth, angels as well as ſaints being formed into one glorious company; even in him, who is their centre of union, whom they acknowledge as their common Lord, and alike owe to him their ſtability and eternal bleſſedneſs.

(5.) He bleſſes God for the glorious inheritance obtained for them in Chriſt. In whom alſo we have obtained an inheritance, holding a title to eternal life on his complete obedience to death, and virtually poſſeſſed of it through him who, as our forerunner, is for us entered into heaven itſelf; being predeſtinated to this glorious portion, according to the purpoſe of him who worketh all things with irreſiſtible efficacy (ενεργȣντος) after the counſel of his own will, that we, to whom the word was firſt preached, ſhould be to the praiſe of his glory, who firſt truſted in Chriſt, and embraced his goſpel. In whom ye Gentiles alſo truſted, and obtained a like inheritance with us, after that ye heard the word of truth, the goſpel of your ſalvation, and became thereby obedient to the faith, and partakers in common of all our bleſſings.

(6.) He bleſſed God for the ſeal and aſſurance which they had received of their intereſt in the everlaſting promiſes. In whom alſo, after that ye believed, ye were ſealed with that holy Spirit of promiſe, which, ſhining on his own work, conveyed the fulleſt evidence to your conſciences of your particular intereſt in the ſalvation of the goſpel, which is the earneſt of our inheritance, a pledge and foretaſte of the glory which ſhall be revealed, until the redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion, when we, whom he purchaſed with his own blood, ſhall be brought to the perfection of holineſs and happineſs above, and the work be completed in the reſurrection of a glorified body at the laſt day, unto the praiſe of his glory, when to eternity his great name ſhall be exalted by all the redeemed that ſhall ſurround his throne with never-ending praiſes.

15. Wherefore I alſo, [e] after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jeſus, and love unto all the ſaints, 16. [f] Ceaſe not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers; 17. That [g] the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of glory, [h] may give unto you the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation, in the knowledge of him: 18. [i] The eyes of your underſtanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the ſaints, 19. And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe, [k] according to the working of his mighty power; 20. Which he wrought in Chriſt when [l] he raiſed him from the dead, and [m] ſet him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, 21. [n] Far above all [o] principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but alſo in that which is to come: 22. And [p] hath put all things under his feet, and gave him [q] to be the head over all things to the church, 23. [r] Which is his body, the fulneſs of him [s] that filleth all in all.

[e] Col. i. 4. Philem. 5.
[f] Rom. i. 9. Phil. i. 3, 4. 1 Theſ. i. 2. 2 Theſ. i. 3.
[g] John xx. 17.
[h] Col. i. 9.
[i] Acts xxvi. 18.
[k] Chap. iii. 7. Col. ii. 12.
[l] Acts ii. 24.
[m] Pſ. cx. 1. Heb. i. 3. & x. 12. 1 Pet. iii. 22.
[n] Phil. ii. 9. Col. ii. 10.
[o] Rom. viii. 38. Col. i. 16.
[p] Pſ. viii. 6. 1 Cor. xv. 27. Heb. ii. 8.
[q] Chap. iv. 15, 16.
[r] Rom. xii. 5. 1 Cor. xii. 27. Chap. v. 23, 30. Col. i. 18.
[s] 1 Cor. xii. 6. Chap. iv. 10. Col. iii. 11.

v. 15—23. The apoſtle accompanies his grateful thankſgivings with his affectionate prayers. Wherefore I alſo, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jeſus, and love unto all the ſaints, ſhewn by the moſt genuine proofs, ceaſe not to give thanks for you at every approach to the throne of grace, making mention of you in my prayers, that the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and our covenant God in him, the Father of glory, may give unto you the ſpirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of him, making a more clear and experimental diſcovery to you of the glorious truths of his word, and manifeſting with greater energy his love to your ſouls, that you may know, chuſe, and delight in him as your God, the eyes of your underſtanding, which by nature were darkened, being now enlightened, that ye may know, (1.) What is the hope of his calling, aſſured with the utmoſt certainty of the ſolid foundation on which it is built, and ſeeing the unutterably glorious privileges which it comprehends. And, (2.) What the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the ſaints, at preſent in all the ineſtimably precious gifts and graces which he beſtows, and hereafter in the complete and everlaſting bleſſedneſs which he hath provided for them. (3.) And what the exceeding greatneſs of his mighty power to us-ward who believe, how ſurpaſſing marvellous, that we, who were dead in ſins, ſhould ever be quickened to the life of faith and grace, preſerved amidſt all the enemies, ſpiritual and temporal, without and within, which fight againſt us, and our bodies at laſt raiſed from the duſt in glory, according to the working of his mighty power, an act of omnipotence no leſs than that which he wrought in Chriſt, when he raiſed him from the dead, leading captivity captive, and ſet him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, triumphant over all his foes, and exalted to the throne of Majeſty on high, far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but alſo in that which is to come, whether angels of light, or demons of darkneſs, or earthly potentates and princes, by whatever name or title diſtinguiſhed, all are made ſubject unto him; and hath put all things under his feet, as the exalted Mediator, and gave him to be head over all things to the church; to govern, protect, and preſerve it from all foes, and ſo to order every event, as that in its iſſue it ſhall conduce to the ſpiritual and eternal benefit of the whole and every individual believer; whilſt he, as their living head of vital influence, actuates, quickens, and ſtrengthens every member of his church, which is his body myſtical, and in that ſenſe they are the fulneſs of him; for if the leaſt member were wanting, the body would be incomplete; though in himſelf Chriſt is infinitely perfect, and needeth us not, whilſt we receive our all out of him that filleth all in all, ſupplying every want of his people, and beſtowing on them the abundance of his grace, that they may grow up into him in all things, and be conformed to him their head. Note, (1.) Prayer is the conſtant duty we owe to each other. (2.) The proſpect of the glorious inheritance before us ſhould quicken our deſires after it. (3.) Every believer is as much an inſtance of omnipotent power, as if a dead body were raiſed from the duſt. (4.) Chriſt hath all power committed to him for the good of his people, and they may be confident of his care and ſupport in every time of need, nor ſhall any be able to pluck the meaneſt of his people out of his hands.

CHAP. II.

This chapter contains an account, 1. Of the miſerable condition of theſe Epheſians by nature, ver. 1—3. and again, ver. 11, 12. 2. Of the glorious change that was wrought in them by converting grace, ver. 4—10. and again, ver. 13. 3. Of the great and glorious privileges that converted Jews and Gentiles both receive from Chriſt, ver. 14—22.

1. AND [a] you hath he quickned who were dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, 2. [b] Wherein in time paſt ye walked according to the courſe of this world, according to [c] the prince of the power of the air, the ſpirit that now worketh in [d] the children of diſobedience. 3. [e] Among whom alſo we all had our converſation in times paſt, in the luſts of our fleſh, fulfilling the deſires of the fleſh and of the mind; and [f] were by nature the children of wrath, even as others.

[a] Col. ii. 13.
[b] 1 Cor. vi. 11. Chap. iv. 22. Col. iii. 7.
[c] John xvi. 11. Chap. vi. 12.
[d] Chap. v. 6. Col. iii. 6.
[e] Tit. iii. 3. 1 Pet. iv. 3.
[f] Pſ. li. 5. Rom. v. 12, 14.

v. 1—3. Behold the miſerable ſtate of every man by nature.

1. We are dead in treſpaſſes and ſins: ſpiriritually dead, as criminals under the curſe and condemnation of a broken law, and the life of God extinguiſhed in our ſouls; and in this ſtate of deſperate miſery we muſt for ever continue, till redeemed by the blood, and quickened by the Spirit of the Lord Jeſus.

2. Though dead to God, we have been but too much alive to the practice of ſin; in which in time paſt we walked according to the courſe of this world; our ſpirit apoſtate, our ways perverſe, conformed to the maxims, and copying the manners of a world that lieth in wickedneſs, the conſequence of which could not but be our condemnation with the world.

3. We were at that time the bond-ſlaves of the god of this world; acting according to the inſtigation of the prince of the power of the air, the devil, who with his legions is permitted to exerciſe ſometimes his power and agency in the aerial regions, and is the ſpirit that now worketh in the children of diſobedience, by himſelf, and thoſe foul fiends his fellows, tempting, ſeducing, governing, hardening the unbelieving and diſobedient. Among whom alſo we all, Jews as well as Gentiles, even apoſtles as well as others, had our converſation in time paſt, enſlaved by ſin, and led captive by the devil at his will; a ſtate how fearful!

4. We then lived in the luſt of our fleſh, indulging every corrupt appetite, and fulfilling the deſires of the fleſh and of the mind, as the beaſts which periſh; devoted to the gratification of brutal paſſions, and in our ſouls filled with pride, envy, malice, hatred, revenge, and the whole train of ſpiritual wickedneſſes; diſpoſed to every abomination, and only wanting temptation and opportunity to commit every iniquity in which body or ſoul can be engaged.

5. As the ſource of all our evil, we are by nature children of wrath, obnoxious to the diſpleaſure of that God who is of purer eyes than to behold iniquity; born with every evil propenſity; and herein there is no difference even between the elect of God and others, all lying in the ſame corrupted maſs, till ſeparated by ſovereign grace. The more we are acquainted with this our natural ſtate of deſperate corruption, remedileſs guilt, and hopeleſs miſery, the more we ſhall value the unſearchable riches of Chriſt, and be filled with admiration, love, and praiſe, in the view of an incarnate Redeemer.

4. But God, [g] who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, 5. [h] Even when we were dead in ſins, [i] hath quickned us together with Chriſt, ([k] by grace ye are ſaved) 6. And hath raiſed us up together, and [l] made us ſit together in heavenly places in Chriſt Jeſus. 7. That in the ages to come he might ſhew [m] the exceeding riches of his grace, in his kindneſs towards us through Chriſt Jeſus. 8. For [n] by grace are ye ſaved, [o] through faith; and that not of yourſelves: [p] it is the gift of God: 9. [q] Not of works, leſt any man ſhould boaſt: 10. For [r] we are his workmanſhip, created in Chriſt Jeſus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we ſhould walk in them. 11. Wherefore [s] remember that ye being in time paſſed Gentiles in the fleſh, who are called Uncircumciſion by that which is called the Circumciſion in the fleſh [t] made by hands; 12. [u] That at that time ye were without Chriſt, [x] being aliens from the commonwealth of Iſrael, and ſtrangers from [y] the covenants of promiſe, having no hope, and [z] without God in the world: 13. But now in Chriſt Jeſus, ye [a] who ſometimes were far off, are made nigh by the blood of Chriſt.

[g] Rom. x. 12. Chap. i. 7.
[h] Rom. v. 6, 8, 10.
[i] Rom. vi. 4, 5. Col. ii. 12, 13. & iii. 1, 3.
[k] Acts xv. 11. Rom. iii. 24. 2 Tim. i. 9. Tit. iii. 5.
[l] Col. iii. 1.
[m] Chap. iii. 8.
[n] Ver. 5.
[o] Rom. iv. 16.
[p] Mat. xvi. 17. Rom. x. 14, 15, 17. Chap. i. 19.
[q] Rom. iii. 20, 27. & iv. 2. & ix. 11. & xi. 6. 1 Cor. i. 30, 31. 2 Tim. i. 9. Tit. iii. 5.
[r] Pſ. c. 3. John iii. 3, 5. 2 Cor. v. 5, 17.
[s] 1 Cor. xii. 2. Chap. v. 8. Col. i. 21.
[t] Col. ii. 11.
[u] Chap. iv. 18. Col. i. 21.
[x] Ezek. xiii. 9.
[y] Rom. ix. 4.
[z] Gal. iv. 8.
[a] Acts ii. 39.

v. 4—13. With exultation and wonder ſhould we contemplate the aſtoniſhing myſtery of redeeming love. Here in its brighteſt glories we ſee it diſplayed, and God in that delightful attribute of mercy appears exalted in the higheſt.

1. The fontal cauſe of our redemption is God's eternal love and grace, who is rich in mercy, the ſource inexhauſtible of all our bleſſings; not for any thing done by us, or foreſeen in us, but purely to magnify his own great love wherewith he loved us, before the worlds were, having fixed upon us ſovereignly as the objects of his choice, and predeſtinated us to grace in time, and glory in eternity.

2. What ſerves as a foil to ſet off in the moſt diſtinguiſhed luſtre this mercy of our God, is the ſtate in which we lay, even when we were dead in treſpaſſes and ſins; and, inſtead of any thing to engage his love, had in us every thing to excite his loathing: even then, when we were foul, odious, and in a condition deſperate as that of fallen angels, did the God of all grace regard us, and plucked us as brands from the burning. Praiſe the Lord, O my ſoul, and forget not all his benefits.

3. The ineſtimable bleſſings conferred upon ſuch wretched ſinners are, [1.] Life in Chriſt our living head. He hath quickned us together with Chriſt: foraſmuch as in his reſurrection we ſee the ſentence of death paſſed on our nature repealed, and the life which he poſſeſſes is for the uſe of his body myſtical, who, as conſidered in him, are alive before God, and by virtue of union with him will in due time be raiſed to ſpiritual life, and conformed to the image of their living Lord. By grace ye are ſaved, and thus, through the tranſcendently rich and ſovereign love of God, reſtored to his favour here, and receive a ſure title to his glory hereafter. [2.] He hath alſo raiſed us up together, and made us ſit together in heavenly places in Chriſt Jeſus: for ſince he, as our forerunner and repreſentative, is for us entred into the heavenly glory; we, as virtually included in him, may be ſaid to be there alſo, and are thereby aſſured we ſhall in due time actually poſſeſs the ſame inheritance, and reign with him for ever. May our affections then be ever placed above with our exalted head!

4. The end God propoſes in this great ſalvation. That in the ages to come he might ſhew the exceeding riches of his grace, in his kindneſs towards us, through Jeſus Chriſt; encouraging to the lateſt days of time poor and periſhing ſinners to come and truſt in this boundleſs mercy revealed in the goſpel; and that in the better world, when all the glory of his grace in brighteſt colours ſhall appear, he might be the object of ceaſeleſs praiſe and adoration to men and angels through all the countleſs ages of eternity.

5. The means appointed to convey all theſe bleſſings to us is faith. For by grace ye are ſaved, freely, fully, everlaſtingly, thro' faith, which is the way wherein we receive all the great and precious promiſes; and that not of yourſelves, faith being not the produce of our own free-will, nor the effect of others reaſoning; but it is the gift of God, and, like all other bleſſings, flows from his boundleſs love, and is the work of his Spirit in our hearts; and both the ſalvation itſelf, and the faith which embraces it, are beſtowed without the leaſt reſpect to any works of ours, that the glory of the divine grace might not ſuffer the leaſt diminution. Not of works, leſt any man ſhould boaſt; for could one fallen creature produce the leaſt thought or action, which would give him a ſuperiority over others, and recommend him to the divine favour, as a more worthy object than they, the ſalvation would be no more of grace, and the ſinner might juſtly glory.

6. Though our ſalvation be purely of grace, God hath taken care to engage our hearts to himſelf by the ſtrongeſt ties, whilſt all the work and all the glory appear to be his own. For we are his workmanſhip, created in Chriſt Jeſus; all that is excellent in us comes from his mere gift; our ſouls, by divine operation renewed, now produce the genuine fruits of righteouſneſs; he works all that is good in us, and, though he excludes our glorying, ſecures our obedience unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we ſhould walk in them; ſuch being his eternal purpoſe, and he hath prepared (προητοιμασεν) diſpoſed us to, and enabled us for the practice of them. Note, The doctrines of grace, far from looſening, as ſome vainly imagine, the obligations to morality, can only effectually engage and enable the ſoul for the practice of righteouſneſs and true holineſs.

7. He reminds the Epheſians of what they ſhould ever keep warm upon their memories, to awaken their gratitude, and bind their hearts to God. Wherefore remember that ye being in time paſt Gentiles in the fleſh, who are called uncircumciſion by that which is called the circumciſion in the fleſh made with hands; treated by the native Jews with contempt and diſdain, and indeed excluded from all the peculiar privileges which they enjoyed: that at that time ye were without Chriſt, having neither knowledge of him, nor union with him; being aliens from the commonwealth of Iſrael, out of the pale of God's church, and ſtrangers from the covenants of promiſe, which were peculiarly confirmed to Abraham's natural ſeed; having no hope, at leaſt no well-grounded one, of God's favour and life eternal; and without God in the world, atheiſts, both ſpeculative and practical; even whilſt you worſhipped gods many, being without the leaſt knowledge of the one true Jehovah. But now in Chriſt Jeſus, ſince by faith ye have been united to him, and heard and embraced his goſpel, ye who ſometimes were far off from all good, and all hope, are made nigh by the blood of Chriſt, received into a ſtate of favour and reconciliation with God, and entitled to the eternal bleſſedneſs which he hath purchaſed. Note, Sinners in their natural ſtate are far removed from God, and muſt, but for the redemption which is in Jeſus Chriſt, remain ſo for ever.

14. For [b] he is our peace, [c] who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us; 15. [d] Having aboliſhed [e] in his fleſh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances, for to make in himſelf of twain one [f] new man, ſo making peace; 16. And that he might reconcile both unto God [g] in one body by the croſs, [h] having ſlain the enmity thereby: 17. And came and [i] preached peace to you [k] which were afar off, and to them [l] that were nigh. 18. For [m] through him we both have an acceſs by one Spirit unto the Father. 19. Now therefore ye are no more ſtrangers and foreigners, but [n] fellow-citizen with the ſaints, and of [o] the houſhold of God; 20. And [p] are built [q] upon the foundation of the apoſtles and prophets, Jeſus Chriſt himſelf being [r] the chief corner-ſtone; 21. [s] In whom all the building fitly framed together, groweth unto [t] an holy temple in the Lord: 22. [u] In whom you alſo are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.

[b] Mic. v. 5. John xvi. 33. Acts x. 36. Col. i. 20.
[c] John x. 16. Gal. iii. 28.
[d] Col. ii. 14.
[e] Col. i. 22.
[f] 2 Cor. v. 17. Gal. vi. 15.
[g] Col. i. 22.
[h] Rom. vi. 6. & viii. 3. Col. ii. 14.
[i] Iſa. lvii. 19. Zech. ix. 10. Acts x. 36.
[k] Acts ii. 39.
[l] Pſ. cxlviii. 14.
[m] Rom. v. 2. Chap. i. 13. Heb. iv. 16. & x. 19, 20.
[n] Phil. iii. 20. Heb. xii. 22, 23.
[o] Gal. vi. 10.
[p] 1 Cor. iii. 9, 12. 1 Pet. ii. 4, 5.
[q] Mat. xvi. 18. Rev. xxi. 14.
[r] Pſ. cxviii. 22. Iſa. xxviii. 16.
[s] Chap. iv. 16.
[t] 1 Cor. iii. 17. & vi. 19. 2 Cor. vi. 16.
[u] 1 Pet. ii. 5.

v. 14—22. All the bleſſings in time and eternity, which ſinners can ever hope for, flow down to them through the channel of a crucified Jeſus. For he is our peace, having reconciled us to God by his own blood, who hath made both one, uniting Jews and Gentiles together in one body under himſelf our common head, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us, which till now excluded the nations from the bleſſings peculiar to Iſrael; having aboliſhed in his fleſh the enmity, that which had been the cauſe of much enmity between Jews and Gentiles, even the ceremonial law, called the law of commandments contained in ordinances, which, as they pointed all to Chriſt, were now fulfilled by him, and abrogated, he deſigning for to make of twain, of Jews and Gentiles, one new man, cementing them together in one church, and forming his own bleſſed image alike in their hearts; ſo making peace between them, as members of one body, united by faith and love in him; and that he might reconcile both unto God, who by nature and practice were alike eſtranged from him, and muſt have periſhed together, but for the ſame atoning blood which he ſhed, in one body by the croſs, having ſlain the enmity thereby, ſin, the cauſe of enmity between God and the ſinner, being removed, and the ceremonial law, the great cauſe of variance between Jews and Gentiles, being aboliſhed; and came and preached peace, by his divinely-conſtituted miniſters, to you, Gentiles, which were afar off, inviting you, who were at the greateſt diſtance from his church, to come and find pardon and peace with God; and the like meſſage he ſent to them that were nigh, to the Jewiſh people, who needed the ſame gracious ſalvation, and could only through a Redeemer be ſaved from the curſes of a broken law: for through him we both have an acceſs by one Spirit unto the Father; the ſame ſpirit of adoption being ſhed abroad in both our hearts; the ſame advocate ſtanding to plead for us; the ſame gracious God appearing as the Father of mercies, and ready alike to hear and anſwer our petitions. Now therefore ye Gentiles are no more ſtrangers and foreigners, as before, but fellow-citizens with the ſaints, partaking of the ſame privileges, and of the houſhold of God, entitled to the ſame inheritance; and are built upon the foundation of the apoſtles and prophets, who both concurred in the ſame teſtimony, leading the ſouls of ſinners to Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, as being the chief corner-ſtone, on whom alone they could ſafely build for eternity; in whom all the building fitly framed together, of Jews and Gentiles, groweth into an holy temple in the Lord, daily acceſſions of converts being made to it; a temple infinitely more glorious than that of Solomon's; a living temple, where the Lord peculiarly dwells, as in his own houſe; in whom you alſo are builded together, and compoſe part of the glorious fabric, that ye might be for an habitation of God through the Spirit, who takes up his bleſt abode among you, and in your hearts, until ye ſhall come to the perfect enjoyment of him for ever in heaven. Note, (1.) There is but one ſafe foundation on which a ſinful ſoul can build, and that is Jeſus Chriſt. (2.) They who are truly grounded on him, ſhall never fail, but be growing, by the mighty agency of his in-dwelling Spirit, more holy and happy, till they arrive at the perfection of bleſſedneſs in glory everlaſting.

CHAP. III.

This chapter conſiſts of two parts. 1. Of the account which St. Paul gives the Epheſians concerning himſelf, as he was appointed by God to be the apoſtle of the Gentiles, ver. 1—13. 2. Of his devout and affectionate prayer to God for the Epheſians, ver. 14—21. We may obſerve it to have been very much the practice of this apoſtle to intermix, with his inſtructions and counſels, interceſſions and prayers to God for thoſe to whom he wrote, as knowing that all his inſtructions and teachings would be uſeleſs and vain, except God did render them effectual. This is an example that all the miniſters of Chriſt ſhould copy after; praying earneſtly that the efficacious operations of the divine Spirit may attend their miniſtrations, and crown them with ſucceſs.

1. FOR this cauſe I Paul [a] the priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt [b] for you Gentiles; 2. If ye have heard of [c] the diſpenſation of the grace of God, [d] which is given me to you-ward: 3. [e] How that [f] by revelation [g] he made known unto me the myſtery, ([h] as I wrote afore in few words, 4. Whereby when ye read ye may underſtand my knowledge [i] in the myſtery of Chriſt) 5. [k] Which in other ages was not made known unto the ſons of men, [l] as it is now revealed unto his holy apoſtles and prophets by the Spirit; 6. That the Gentiles [m] ſhould be fellow-heirs, and [n] of the ſame body, and [o] partakers of his promiſe in Chriſt by the goſpel: 7. Whereof I was made a miniſter [p] according to the gift of the grace of God given unto me by [q] the effectual working of his power. 8. Unto me, [r] who am leſs than the leaſt of all ſaints, is this grace given, [s] that I ſhould preach among the Gentiles [t] the unſearchable riches of Chriſt; 9. And to make all men ſee what is the fellowſhip of [u] the myſtery, [x] which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, [y] who created all things by Jeſus Chriſt: 10. [z] To the intent that now unto [a] the principalities and powers in heavenly places, might be known by the church [b] the manifold wiſdom of God, 11. [c] According to the eternal purpoſe which he purpoſed in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. 12. In whom we have boldneſs and [d] acceſs [e] with confidence by the faith of him. 13. Wherefore I deſire that [f] ye faint not at my tribulations [g] for you, which is your glory.

[a] Chap. iv. 1. Col. iv. 3.
[b] Col. i. 24. 2 Tim. ii. 10.
[c] 1 Cor. iv. 1. Chap. iv. 7.
[d] Acts ix. 15. & xiii. 2. Gal. i. 16.
[e] Acts xxii. 17, 21.
[f] Gal. i. 12.
[g] Rom. xvi. 25. Col. i. 26.
[h] Chap. i. 9, 10.
[i] 1 Cor. iv. 1. Chap. vi. 19.
[k] Acts x. 28.
[l] Chap. ii. 20.
[m] Gal. iii. 28, 29. Chap. ii. 14.
[n] Chap. ii. 15, 16.
[o] Gal. iii. 14.
[p] Rom. i. 5.
[q] Chap. i. 19.
[r] 1 Cor. xv. 9. 1 Tim. i. 15.
[s] Gal. i. 16. & ii. 8. 1 Tim. ii. 7. 2 Tim. i. 11.
[t] Chap. i. 7. & ii. 7.
[u] Chap. i. 9. Ver. 3.
[x] Rom. xvi. 25. Col. i. 26.
[y] Pſ. xxxiii. 6. John i. 3. Col. i. 16. Heb. i. 2.
[z] 1 Pet. i. 12.
[a] Rom. viii. 38. Chap. i. 21. 1 Pet. iii. 22.
[b] 1 Tim. iii. 16.
[c] Chap. i. 11. 2 Tim. i. 9.
[d] John xiv. 6. Rom. v. 2. Chap. ii. 18.
[e] Heb. iv. 16. & x. 19.
[f] Phil. i. 14. 1 Theſ. iii. 3.
[g] Ver. 1.

v. 1—13. The apoſtle gives his beloved Epheſians an account of his ſufferings for the truths which here he had aſſerted. For this cauſe, becauſe I declare the privileges to which the Gentiles, in common with the Jews, are admitted through the goſpel, I Paul am the priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt for you Gentiles; and thoſe are honourable bonds which in his ſervice are laid upon us; if, or ſince, ye have heard of the diſpenſation of the grace of God, which is given me to you-ward, as eſpecially commiſſioned and ſent to preach the goſpel to the Gentiles: and how that by revelation he made known unto me the myſtery of his goſpel, as a common ſalvation for men of all nations, (as I wrote afore, in this epiſtle, in a few words, whereby when ye read ye may underſtand my knowledge in the myſtery of Chriſt, and how fully and clearly he hath acquainted me with his gracious deſigns), which in other ages was not made known unto the ſons of men, the Gentile world being left in utter ignorance, and thoſe to whom the light of truth was revealed in types and prophecies, ſeeing but through a glaſs darkly, compared with the preſent clear diſpenſation of the goſpel, as it is now revealed unto his holy apoſtles and prophets by the Spirit, ſince the aſcenſion of Jeſus into the heavens, that the Gentiles ſhould be fellow-heirs with his Iſrael, and of the ſame body, incorporated in one church, and partakers of his promiſe in Chriſt by the goſpel, ſharing in all the preſent and eternal bleſſedneſs of his redeemed people, equally with the Jews. Whereof I was made a miniſter, by a divine call and ordination, not of men, nor by man, but immediately from Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, according to the gift of the grace of God given unto me, appointing me to this office, and qualifying me for the diſcharge of it, by the effectual working of his power, enabling me for my work, and crowning it with ſucceſs. Unto me, who am leſs than the leaſt of all ſaints, ſo exceeding lowly doth the great apoſtle ſpeak of himſelf, and wants words ſufficiently abaſing to expreſs the ſenſe he entertained of his own unworthineſs of ſo high an honour; even to me, vile as I am, is this grace given, that I ſhould preach among the Gentiles the unſearchable riches of Chriſt; thoſe treaſures of grace and glory which reſide in him for his people's uſe, that can never be fathomed, never be exhauſted; a ſtore that mocks computation, and in which we know neither where to begin or where to end the wonderful account. And to make all men ſee, as far as my miniſtry ſhould reach, what is the fellowſhip of the myſtery, and how bleſſed is that communion of ſaints into which by the goſpel they are admitted, even Gentiles as well as Jews, which from the beginning of the world had been hid in God, a ſecret lodged in his own eternal mind, who created all things by Jeſus Chriſt, without whoſe co-efficient agency was not any thing made that was made. And the revelation of this myſtery, which was ſo long concealed, is made known, to the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places, might be known by the church the manifold wiſdom of God, that freſh matter might thus be afforded to the angelic hoſt for their contemplation, wonder, and praiſe. And all this great ſalvation is compleated, according to the eternal purpoſe which he purpoſed in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, who was ordained to be the great agent in redemption, as he had been in creation: In whom we have boldneſs and acceſs with confidence by the faith of him; faith, of which he is both the great author and object, whereby we can now approach the throne of grace with humble confidence, regarding God as our Father and friend, and admitted into the moſt endeared fellowſhip with him. Wherefore, conſidering theſe ineſtimable bleſſings and privileges, I deſire that ye faint not at my tribulations for you, or be diſheartened or deſponding at theſe ſufferings, which are your glory, and ſhould miniſter to you continual matter of rejoicing in the honour thus conferred on me, and in the confirmation given thereby to the goſpel which you have received. Note, (1.) None can make goſpel miniſters but God only: they who run unſent, muſt return unbleſt. (2.) The grace of God ſhould be the grand ſubject of our miniſtrations, for to preach this are we ſent. (3.) If we know the power of the goſpel, we ſhall not be aſhamed of that croſs, which for the ſake of it we ſhall be called to bear. (4.) The greateſt Chriſtians have the moſt lowly thoughts of themſelves: their eyes being moſt enlightened, they diſcover more of their own imperfections and corruptions than others do. (5.) None can truly preach the unſearchable riches of Chriſt to others, who have not firſt experienced ſomething of them in their own ſouls. (6.) They who by faith in a Redeemer behold a reconciled God, will delight to approach him, and to maintain conſtant communion with him.

14. For this cauſe I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, 15. [h] Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, 16. That he would grant you [i] according to the riches of his glory, [k] to be ſtrengthened with might by his Spirit in [l] the inner man; 17. That Chriſt may dwell in your hearts by faith, that ye [m] being rooted and grounded in love, 18. [n] May be able to comprehend with all ſaints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; 19. And to know the love of Chriſt, [o] which paſſeth knowledge, that ye might be filled [p] with all the fulneſs of God. 20. Now [q] unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we aſk or think, according to the power that worketh in us, 21. [r] Unto him be glory in the church by Chriſt Jeſus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

h Chap. i. 10.
i Rom. ix. 23. Chap. i. 7. Phil. iv. 19. Col. i. 27.
k Chap. vi. 10.
l Rom. vii. 22. 2 Cor. iv. 16.
m Col. ii. 7.
n Chap. i. 23.
o Phil. iv. 7.
p John i. 16. Chap. i. 23.
q Rom. xvi. 25. Jude 24.
r Rom. xi. 36. & xvi. 27. Heb. xiii. 21.

v. 14—21. The apoſtle informed us what was the ſubject of his preaching, and he failed not to water the ſeed ſown with his fervent and importunate prayers. For this cauſe, that you may not faint, and that the goſpel may be made effectual to you, I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and our Father in him, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, both angels and men, ſaints on earth, and ſaints in heaven, who through their adored Saviour have obtained a more excellent title, as children of God, than that in which the carnal Jews boaſted, as children of Abraham. Now the apoſtle prays for them,

1. That he would grant you according to the riches of his glory, out of the abundance of his grace, and for his great name's ſake, to be ſtrengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man, to oppoſe all your ſpiritual foes, to reſiſt every temptation, to bear up under all perſecution, to diſcharge every duty and ſervice for God's glory and the good of immortal ſouls; and ſteadily and perſeveringly to hold on your heavenly courſe, till your warfare ſhall end, and your victory be complete. Note, (1.) Spiritual bleſſings are the beſt of bleſſings, and moſt earneſtly to be ſought. (2.) All our ſtrength cometh from above, and we may be confident, that the bleſſed Spirit who hath begun the good work, will perfect it even unto the end.

2. That Chriſt may dwell in your hearts by faith, making your ſouls the place of his abode; bleſſing you with a ſenſe of his nearneſs and ſpecial preſence; and enabling you by faith to draw out of his fulneſs; that ye being rooted and grounded in love, fully perſuaded of God's love in Chriſt towards you, experiencing the richeſt manifeſtations of it in your hearts, and cleaving to him with fixed attachment, as the tree that hath ſtruck its roots deep into the earth, may be able to comprehend with all ſaints, to whom in bonds of fervent charity ye are united, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the love of Chriſt which paſſeth knowledge. Its fulneſs none, not even angels, can comprehend; but larger and more extenſive views of this love than we have yet attained to, we cannot but deſire, to behold its vaſt extent, as reaching to all nations and ſinners of every degree; its duration from everlaſting to everlaſting; the depths of wretchedneſs in which we lay, and of ſufferings to which for our ſakes the Son of God incarnate ſubmitted; and the tranſcendent heights of glory to which he himſelf is now exalted, and to which he hath engaged to bring us, that we may reign with him for ever and ever.

3. That ye may be filled with all the fulneſs of God; completely made partakers of a divine nature, and to the utmoſt capacity of your ſouls may be enriched with all that light, grace, peace, joy, and holineſs, which God, as your covenant God, hath promiſed to his deareſt children in this world; and may you come to the eternal enjoyment of him in a better, to dwell in God, and God in you.

4. He concludes with a doxology. Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we aſk or think, according to the power that worketh in us, who counts nothing too great or too good to beſtow on the children of his grace, and hath already given us the moſt encouraging experience of his power and grace; unto him be glory in the church by Chriſt Jeſus throughout all ages, world without end; eternal bleſſings, praiſe, and adoration be rendered unto him for this aſtoniſhing redemption; and let every member of the church, in heaven or in earth, with holy rapture and joy cry, Amen!

CHAP. IV.

Having laid down the glorious goſpel privileges, the apoſtle proceeds to enforce the obligations thence reſulting; for the doctrines of grace are the only powerful principles of true obedience. In this chapter we have divers exhortations to important duties. 1. One that is more general, ver. 1. 2. An exhortation to mutual love, unity, and concord, with the proper means and motives to promote them, ver. 2—16. 3. An exhortation to Chriſtian purity and holineſs of life; and that both more general, ver. 17—24. and in ſeveral particular inſtances, ver. 25, to the end.

1. I Therefore [a] the priſoner † of the Lord, beſeech you that ye [b] walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called. 2. [c] With all lowlineſs and meekneſs, with long-ſuffering, forbearing one another in love; 3. Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in [d] the bond of peace. 4. [e] There is one body, and [f] one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; 5. [g] One Lord, [h] one faith, [i] one baptiſm, 6. [k] One God and Father of all, who is above all, and [l] through all, and in you all. 7. But [m] unto every one of us is given grace according to the meaſure of the gift of Chriſt. 8. Wherefore he ſaith, [n] When he aſcended up on high, [o] he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. 9. (Now that he aſcended, what is it but that [p] he alſo deſcended firſt into the lower parts of the earth? 10. He that deſcended, is the ſame alſo [q] that aſcended up far above all heavens, that [r] he might † fill all things) 11. And [s] he gave ſome, apoſtles, and ſome, prophets: and ſome, [t] evangeliſts, and ſome, [u] paſtors and [x] teachers; 12. For the perfecting of the ſaints, for the work of the miniſtry, for the edifying of [y] the body of Chriſt: 13. Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and [z] of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, [a] unto the meaſure of the ſtature of the fulneſs of Chriſt: 14. That we henceforth be no more [b] children, [c] toſſed to and fro, and carried about with every [d] wind of doctrine, by the ſlight of men, and cunning craftineſs, whereby they lie in wait to deceive: 15. But [e] ‡ ſpeaking the truth in love, [f] may grow up into him in all things, [g] which is the head, even Chriſt: 16. [h] From whom the whole body fitly joined together, and compacted by that which every joint ſupplieth, according to the effectual working in the meaſure of every part, maketh increaſe of the body, unto the edifying of itſelf in love.

a Chap. iii. 1.
† Gr. in.
b Phil, i. 27. Col. i. 10. 1 Theſ. ii. 12.
c Col. iii. 12, 13.
d Col. iii. 14.
e Rom. xii. 5. 1 Cor. xii. 12, 13. Chap. ii. 16.
f 1 Cor. xii. 4.
g 1 Cor. viii. 6. & xii. 5.
h Gal. i. 7.
i Gal. iii. 27, 28.
k Mal. ii. 10. 1 Cor. xii. 6.
l Rom. xi. 36.
m Rom. xii. 6. 1 Cor. xii. 11.
n Pſ. lxviii. 18.
o Col. ii. 15.
p John iii. 13.
q Acts i. 11. Heb. iv. 14. & vii. 26. & ix. 24.
r Acts ii. 33.
† Or fulfil.
s 1 Cor. xii. 28.
t Acts xxi. 8. 2 Tim. iv. 5.
u Acts xx. 28.
x Rom. xii. 7.
y 1 Cor. xii. 27. Chap. i. 23. Col. i. 24.
z Col. ii. 3.
a Col. i. 28.
b Iſa. xxviii. 9. 1 Cor. xiv. 20.
c Heb. xiii. 9.
d Mat. xi. 7.
e Zech. viii. 16. 2 Cor. iv. 2.
‡ Or, being ſincere in love, 1 John iii. 18.
f Chap. ii. 21.
g Chap. i. 22. & v. 23. Col. i. 18.
h Col. ii. 19.

v. 1—16. The apoſtle addreſſes to them,

1. A general exhortation to walk worthy of their high vocation. I therefore, the priſoner of the Lord, ſuffering now for my fidelity to his goſpel, beſeech you, by every endearing argument, that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, adorning by your converſation the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things.

2. He particularly exhorts them, (1.) To behave with all lowlineſs and meekneſs, in humble thoughts of themſelves, and the mildeſt deportment towards others, with long-ſuffering paſſing by offences, and overlooking the infirmities of their brethren, forbearing one another in love, influenced by this divine principle, and patient towards all men. Note, True love, humility unfeigned, and approved meekneſs, are the moſt ſtriking lineaments of the Chriſtian's character. (2.) In this manner endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, ſweetly cemented together in holy fellowſhip, and the whole church being in perfect peace, no jarring diſcord ſhould diſturb the happy union.

3. He ſuggeſts the ſtrongeſt motives to the practice which he recommends. There is one body, of which we are all members; and one Spirit, which actuates the whole; and therefore we cannot, if this be the caſe, but have the tendereſt concern for and cloſeſt union with each other; even as ye are called in one hope of your calling, looking for the ſame inheritance in glory, and expecting to ſpend a bleſſed eternity in your Father's houſe above. There is one Lord, the Saviour of his people, and to whom they all owe duty and allegiance; one faith, the ſame goſpel, and to be apprehended in the ſame way; one baptiſm, the ſacramental rite of admiſſion into the kingdom of grace, wherein we are ſolemnly dedicated to Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt; one God and Father of all, who ſtands in this endeared relation to all that are the children of grace by faith in Jeſus Chriſt; who is above all, exalted above all bleſſing and praiſe; and through all, diſpenſing his mighty influences through the whole myſtical body; and in you all, making your hearts his temple: and therefore, being connected by ties ſo many and ſo engaging, we ſhould be moſt cloſely united together in love, and appear as actuated by one ſoul.

4. The different gifts and graces beſtowed on the members of the ſame body, far from producing any variance, ſhould cement them the nearer, as they are given for the benefit of the whole. But unto every one of us is given grace, according to the meaſure of the gift of Chriſt, each member hath his ſeveral office and endowment, and, according as the Lord ſees fit, he diſpenſes ſovereignly to every man the grace ſuited to his place and ſtation. Wherefore he ſaith, When he aſcended up on high, he led captivity captive, triumphant over all his foes, having ſpoiled principalities and powers, and led Satan, ſin, death, and hell, as vanquiſhed enemies, bound to his chariot-wheels; and gave gifts unto men, the richeſt and moſt amazing gifts of his Spirit. Now that he aſcended in this glorious manner, what is it that is herein intimated to us, but that he alſo deſcended firſt from heaven into the lower parts of the earth, humbling himſelf to take the human nature into perſonal union with himſelf, and then to lie down in the grave, making atonement for our ſins. He that deſcended is the ſame divine Perſon, the Son of God, who aſcended above all heavens to the ſtate of moſt tranſcendent dignity, enthroned in majeſty on high, that he might fill all things, and abundantly diſpenſe to every member of his church the gifts and graces needful for them. And he gave ſome apoſtles, to fill the higheſt ſtations in his church; and ſome prophets, by inſpiration to foretel future events, and to expound the prophetic word; and ſome evangeliſts, who were generally employed in preaching the word; and ſome paſtors and teachers, to take care of particular churches, and miniſter unto them in holy things: all which appointments to theſe ſeveral offices are deſigned for the perfecting of the ſaints (καταρτισμον) to join them in firm union together, and carry on the work of grace begun in them to its perfection in glory; till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, by means of the ſame bleſſed goſpel, and by happy experience of the power and grace of the ſame adored Jeſus, unto a perfect man, growing up to higher ſpiritual attainments, unto the meaſure of the ſtature of the fulneſs of Chriſt, when we ſhall bear his image complete, and when all his elect members ſhall be collected into his eternal kingdom, and form that glorious body of which he is the Head. That we henceforth be no more children, weak in faith and knowledge, and every grace, and conſequently liable to be toſſed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the ſlight of men, and cunning craftineſs whereby they lie in wait to deceive, and by fair pretences ſeduce the ſimple and unwary into their pernicious hereſies and deſtructive ways; but, ſpeaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Chriſt; which growth in grace the bleſſed goſpel, through the power of Jeſus, tends effectually to promote; from whom the whole body, fitly joined together as members to the living Head, and compacted by that which every joint ſupplieth, according to the effectual working in the meaſure of every part, by that divine energy that is communicated from the life-giving Spirit of the Lord, maketh increaſe of the body, unto the edifying of itſelf in love, till it comes to perfect bleſſedneſs in the eternal world. Note, Truth from the heart ſhould ever be ſpoken among Chriſtians, and with that love that may gain it a more welcome reception.

17. This I ſay therefore, and teſtify in the Lord, that [i] ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk [k] in the vanity of their mind, 18. [l] Having the underſtanding darkened, [m] being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, becauſe of [n] the blindneſs of their heart: 19. [o] Who being paſt feeling, [p] have given themſelves over unto laſciviouſneſs, to work all uncleanneſs with greedineſs. 20. But ye have not ſo learned Chriſt; 21. If ſo be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jeſus: 22. That ye [q] put off [r] concerning the former converſation, [s] the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful luſts: 23. And [t] be renewed in the ſpirit of your mind; 24. And that ye [u] put on the new man, which after God [x] is created in righteouſneſs and true holineſs. 25. Wherefore putting away lying, [y] ſpeak every man truth with his neighbour: for [z] we are members one of another. 26. [a] Be ye angry, and ſin not: let not the ſun go down upon your wrath: 27. [b] Neither give place to the devil. 28. Let him that ſtole ſteal no more: but rather [c] let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have [d] to give to him that needeth. 29. [e] Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but [f] that which is good to the uſe of edifying, [g] that it may miniſter grace unto the hearers. 30. And [h] grieve not the holy Spirit of God, [i] whereby ye are ſealed unto the day of [k] redemption. 31. [l] Let all bitterneſs, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil-ſpeaking be put away from you, [m] with all malice. 32. And [n] be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, [o] forgiving one another, even as God for Chriſt's ſake hath forgiven you.

[i] 1 Pet. iv. 3.
[k] Rom. i. 21.
[l] Chap. v. 8.
[m] Chap. ii. 12. 1 Theſ. iv. 5.
[n] Rom. i. 21.
[o] 1 Tim. iv. 2.
[p] Rom. i. 24, 26.
[q] Col. ii. 11. & iii. 8. 1 Pet. ii. 1.
[r] Chap. ii. 2, 3. 1 Pet. iv. 3.
[s] Rom. vi. 6.
[t] Rom. xii. 2.
[u] Rom. vi. 4. 2 Cor. v. 17. Chap. vi. 11. Col. iii. 10.
[x] Chap. ii. 10.
[y] Zech. viii. 16.
[z] Rom. xii. 5.
[a] Pſ. iv. 4. & xxxvii. 8.
[b] Jam. iv. 7. 1 Pet. v. 9.
[c] Acts xx. 35. 1 Theſ. iv. 11. 2 Theſ. iii. 8, 12.
[d] Luke iii. 11.
[e] Chap. v. 3, 4. Mat. xii. 36.
[f] Col. iv. 6.
[g] Col. iii. 16.
[h] Iſa. vii. 13. & lxiii. 10. 1 Theſ. v. 19.
[i] 2 Cor. i. 22. Chap. i. 13.
[k] Luke xxi. 28. Rom. viii. 23. Chap. i. 14.
[l] Col. iii. 8.
[m] Tit. iii. 3.
[n] 2 Cor. ii. 10. Col. iii. 12, 13.
[o] Mat. vi. 14. Mark xi. 25.

v. 17—32. Having recommended to them cloſe union, he proceeds to inculcate purity of heart and life.

1. He warns them againſt the practices of the unconverted heathen. This I ſay therefore, and teſtify in the Lord, entreating and ſolemnly in his name enjoining it upon you as members of his undefiled body, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk, in their ſinful, idolatrous, ſenſual courſes, in the vanity of their mind, acting after the dictates of their vain and corrupted hearts; having the underſtanding darkened in all ſpiritual matters; alienated from the life of God, eſtranged from him who is the fountain of life, and averſe to all his holy ways, through the ignorance that is in them, becauſe of the blindneſs of their hearts, rejecting every means of inſtruction, wilfully perverſe and obſtinate againſt the notices of his will, and reſiſting the convictions of their own conſciences, not liking to retain God in all their knowledge, Rom. i. 28. who being paſt feeling, their hearts impenetrably hardened in ſin, have given themſelves over unto laſciviouſneſs, to work all uncleanneſs with greedineſs, abandoning themſelves to every vile affection without reſtraint, and purſuing their guilty pleaſures with inſatiable deſire.

2. Far otherwiſe was the leſſon the goſpel had taught them. But ye have not ſo learned Chriſt; ſince ye have known his grace, you have been directed to a different ſpirit and conduct; if ſo be, or ſince that, ye have heard him ſpeaking in his word to your hearts, and have been taught by him through the illumination and powerful energy of his Spirit, as the truth is in Jeſus, even that pure unadulterated goſpel which Jeſus taught by his own miniſtry, and exemplified in his temper and converſation, whoſe bright example his living members delight to imitate: that ye put off, concerning the former converſation, the old man, reſtraining and mortifying that body of ſin which is born with you, and ever wars within you; which is corrupt according to the deceitful luſts, luſts which promiſe much gratification in the indulgence, but fatally deceive the ſoul into endleſs perdition: and be renewed in the ſpirit of your mind yet more and more in knowledge, grace, and holineſs; and that ye put on the new man, made partakers of a divine nature, and in ſpirit, temper, and conduct, quite changed from your former ſelves as if you had been really different perſons; which after God is created in righteouſneſs and true holineſs, after his own image and by his own power. Wherefore, as thoſe who are influenced by another Spirit, beware of thoſe ſins to which ye were formerly addicted; particularly,

(1.) Putting away lying in every inſtance, ſpeak every man truth with his neighbour, without deceit or prevarication, paying the ſtricteſt regard to your word at all times and in all circumſtances, and preferring the endurance of the greateſt evils to the ſuggeſtion of the leaſt falſehood: for we are members one of another, and therefore bound to uſe all ſimplicity and fidelity in our converſation with each other. Note, An habitual liar is infallibly a child of wrath. All Chriſt's members deſire ever to ſpeak the truth from their heart.

(2.) Be ye angry, and ſin not; for all anger is not in its own nature evil: but as we are ſo prone, even where there is juſt cauſe, to exceed in our reſentments, we muſt check the riſing diſpleaſure, and repreſs its workings: therefore, whatever cauſe is given for it, let not the ſun go down upon your wrath; but haſten to calm any tumult which may have ariſen, that it fix not in hatred, or rankle into malice or revenge: neither give place to the devil, who ever ſeeks to irritate the iraſcible nature which is in us, and to blow our paſſions into a flame. Note, There is ſcarce a more beſetting ſin than anger, nor any againſt which we need be more habitually on our guard.

(3.) Let him that ſtole ſteal no more, utterly abhorring all ſuch iniquitous practices; but rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth, and not only be ſaved from the temptation to diſhoneſty, whereunto idleneſs is the moſt direct road, but alſo be enabled by his honeſt induſtry to afford a pittance from his gains for the relief of the neceſſitous.

(4.) Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, nothing lewd, profane, opprobrious, light, which in its moſt diſtant tendency can lead to evil; but that which is good to the uſe of edifying, that it may miniſter grace unto the hearers, and ſerve to promote their ſpiritual and eternal benefit. Note, Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth ſpeaketh; and a Chriſtian ſpirit will appear in a readineſs to introduce and maintain ſuch converſation as is profitable and edifying.

(5.) And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, by theſe or any ſuch like evils, leſt you provoke him to withdraw his bleſſed influences from you; whereby ye are ſealed unto the day of redemption, that glorious day when you ſhall be delivered from the burdens of the fleſh, or when you ſhall riſe again in glory to appear for ever in the preſence of God. Lord, take not thy holy Spirit from us!

(6.) Let all bitterneſs, all rancour of ſpirit and acrimony in diſcourſe; and wrath, and clamour, and evil-ſpeaking, the fruits of a mind inflamed with paſſion and rage; be put away from you, with all malice: and be ye kind one to another, gentle, courteous, affectionate; tender-hearted, ſympathizing and full of pity towards the afflicted and the tempted; forgiving one another every provocation and injury, however great or aggravated, even as God for Chriſt's ſake hath forgiven you, freely, fully, and for ever. Note, (1.) A ſenſe how much we are ourſelves indebted to the pardoning love of God, will engage us to exerciſe the like forgiveneſs to our brethren. (2.) A tongue that is ſet on fire of hell, and full of bitterneſs, &c. hath never yet been brought under the reſtraints of a Redeemer's grace.

CHAP. V.

We had ſeveral important exhortations in the cloſe of the foregoing chapter, and they are continued in this: particularly, 1. We have here an exhortation to mutual love and charity, ver. 1, 2. 2. Againſt all manner of uncleanneſs, ver. 3—20. 3. The apoſtle directs to the conſcientious diſcharge of relative duties, from ver. 21. throughout this, and in the beginning of the next chapter.

1. [a] BE ye therefore followers of God, as dear children; 2. And [b] walk in love, as [c] Chriſt alſo hath loved us, and hath given himſelf for us [d] an offering and a ſacrifice to God for a ſweet-ſmelling ſavour. 3. But [e] fornication, and all uncleanneſs, or covetouſneſs, [f] let it not be once named amongſt you, as becometh ſaints: 4. [g] Neither filthineſs, nor fooliſh talking, nor jeſting, [h] which are not convenient: [i] but rather giving of thanks. 5. For this ye know, that [k] no whoremonger, nor unclean perſon, nor covetous man [l] who is an idolater, [m] hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Chriſt and of God. 6. [n] Let no man deceive you with vain words: for [o] becauſe of theſe things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of diſobedience. 7. Be not ye therefore partakers with them. 8. For [p] ye were ſometimes [q] darkneſs, but now are ye [r] light in the Lord: walk as [s] children of light, 9. (For [t] the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodneſs and righteouſneſs and truth) 10. [u] Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. 11. And [x] have no fellowſhip with [y] the unfruitful works of darkneſs, [z] but rather reprove them. 12. For [a] it is a ſhame even to ſpeak of thoſe things which are done of them in ſecret. 13. But [b] all things that are reproved, are made manifeſt by the light: for whatſoever doth make manifeſt is light. 14. Wherefore he ſaith, [c] Awake thou that ſleepeſt, and [d] ariſe from the dead, and Chriſt ſhall give thee light. 15. See then that ye [e] walk circumſpectly, not as fools, but as wiſe, 16. [e] Redeeming the time, [f] becauſe the days are evil. 17. Wherefore be ye not unwiſe, [g] but underſtanding what the will of the Lord is. 18. And [h] be not drunk with wine, wherein is exceſs; but be filled with the Spirit: 19. Speaking to yourſelves [i] in pſalms and hymns and ſpiritual ſongs, ſinging and making melody in your heart to the Lord, 20. [k] Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father [l] in the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt;

[a] Mat. v. 4, 5. Chap. iv. 32.
[b] John xiii. 34. & xv. 12. 1 Theſ. iv. 9. 1 John iii. 23. & iv. 21.
[c] Gal. ii. 20. Heb. ix. 14.
[d] Heb. viii. 3. & ix. 26. & x. 10.
[e] Col. iii. 5. 1 Theſ. iv. 3, &c.
[f] 1 Cor. v. 1.
[g] Mat. xii. 35. Chap. iv. 29. Col. iii. 8.
[h] Rom. i. 28.
[i] Col. i. 12.
[k] 1 Cor. vi. 9. Gal. v. 19. Rev. xxi. 8.
[l] Col. iii. 5. 1 Tim. vi. 17.
[m] Gal. v. 21.
[n] Jer. xxix. 8. Mat. xxiv. 4. Gal. vi. 7. Col. ii. 4, 8.
[o] Col. iii. 6.
[p] Chap. ii. 11. Tit. iii. 3.
[q] Mat. iv. 16. Chap. iv. 18.
[r] John viii. 12. & xii. 46. 2 Cor. iii. 18. & iv. 6.
[s] Luke xvi. 8. 1 Theſ. v. 5.
[t] Gal. v. 22.
[u] Rom. xii. 2. Phil. i. 10.
[x] 1 Cor. v. 9. & x. 20.
[y] Rom. vi. 21.
[z] Lev. xix. 17. Luke xvii. 3. 1 Tim. v. 20.
[a] Rom. i. 24, &c.
[b] John iii. 20, 21. Heb. iv. 13.
[c] Iſa. lx. 1. Rom. xiii. 11. 1 Cor. xv. 34. 1 Theſ. v. 6.
[d] Rom. vi. 4, 5. Chap. ii. 5. Col. iii. 1.
[e] Col. iv. 5.
[f] Eccleſ. xi. 2. John xii. 35. Chap. vi. 13.
[g] Rom. xii. 2. 1 Cor. xiv. 20.
[h] Prov. xx. 1. & xxiii. 29. Iſa. v. 11, 22. Luke xxi. 34.
[i] 1 Cor. xiv. 26. Col. iii. 16. Jam. v. 13.
[k] Pſ. xxxiv. 1. Iſa. lxiii. 7. Col. iii. 17. 1 Theſ. v. 18.
[l] Heb. xiii. 15. 1 Pet. ii. 5. & iv. 11.

v. 1—20. Love is the divine principle through which alone the practice of all holineſs can be made eaſy and natural to us. This therefore,

1. The apoſtle inculcates. Be ye followers of God as dear children, acting according to this high relation, and in your ſpirit and temper reſembling your heavenly Father; and walk in love, which is his brighteſt attribute, and renders you moſt like the bleſſed Redeemer; as Chriſt alſo hath loved us, with a love ſo ſurpaſſing great, ſo free, ſo unchangeable; and hath given himſelf for us an offering and a ſacrifice to God for a ſweet-ſmelling ſavour, to make atonement for our ſins, and to reconcile us to God by his own blood, his ſacrifice being infinitely meritorious and acceptable. Note, (1.) Love is the characteriſtic mark of a child of God, and a diſciple of Jeſus, (2.) The ſacrifice of the Lamb of God is fully efficacious: God is well pleaſed in the oblation of his Son; and all who draw near through him are ſure of acceptance.

2. He warns them againſt all manner of uncleanneſs. But fornication, and all uncleanneſs, or covetouſneſs, the lawleſs deſires of fleſhly concupiſcence, let it not be once named amongſt you, as becometh ſaints, but avoided with the utmoſt deteſtation, and never once ſo much as mentioned; neither filthineſs, in geſture, habit, or diſcourſe; nor fooliſh talking, in ſecret innuendos, or vain, light, and unprofitable converſation; nor jeſting, with wantonneſs, about things ſacred, or to the hurt of others; which are not convenient, but utterly unbecoming a Chriſtian's profeſſion, who ſhould rather be employed in giving thanks, and uſe his tongue as an inſtrument to ſet forth God's glory.

3. He enforces his exhortation by the moſt weighty arguments:

(1.) Theſe ſins muſt neceſſarily exclude us from heaven, and lay us under the eternal wrath of God. For this ye know, according to the unchangeable word of God, that no whoremonger, nor unclean perſon, nor covetous man, whoſe heart is the ſtye of lewd deſires, or who is inordinately eager after gain, and conſequently is an idolater, loving and ſerving the creature more than the Creator, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Chriſt and of God, but muſt be for ever excluded from the divine favour. Let no man deceive you with vain words, as if theſe ſins were not ſo dangerous; and with ſome ſoft names of human infirmity, or venial tranſgreſſions, endeavour to ſatisfy your conſciences, and embolden you to hope for impunity: for know aſſuredly, becauſe of theſe things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of diſobedience and unbelief, who, deſpiſing God's warnings, periſh eternally under the deluge of his fiery wrath. Be not ye therefore partakers with them, by communion with them, or connivance at them, leſt you become involved in their puniſhment. Note, It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. We ſhould often conſider it, that we might tremble, and avoid the very diſtant approaches of evil, that hath conſequences ſo dreadfully dangerous.

(2.) What God hath done for us ſhould engage us to be faithful to him. For ye were ſometimes darkneſs, and in this wretched ſtate were blindly led on by vile affections to every abomination, ignorant of God and your own danger, and ruſhing headlong to ruin; but now are ye light in the Lord, ſince he hath ſhined into your hearts, and given you the knowledge of his will, and wrought effectually by his goſpel to turn you to his bleſſed Self in the practice of true holineſs; therefore walk as children of the light, agreeable to the obligations lying upon you, and the meaſure of knowledge and grace which you have received. For the fruit of the Spirit, which the Lord hath given you to illumine your darkneſs, and quicken your ſouls from the death of ſin, is in all goodneſs and righteouſneſs and truth; it appears in every act of tenderneſs and beneficence towards the needy, in all purity of heart towards God, and uprightneſs in our dealings with men, and engages us to a holy ſimplicity and unimpeached fidelity in all our words and works; in which things, as children of light, you will therefore habitually walk; proving what is acceptable unto the Lord, deſiring out of his word to learn his mind and will, and to approve yourſelves to him in all holy converſation and godlineſs. And, for this end, have no fellowſhip with the unfruitful works of darkneſs, neither by countenance or connivance at them in others, any more than by practiſing them yourſelves; they are works of darkneſs, the deeds of a fallen and corrupted heart, and that ſeek uſually the covert of the night; unfruitful of every thing but miſery, wrath, and wretchedneſs. Inſtead therefore of joining in them, rather, wherever they appear in any brother, bear an open teſtimony againſt them; and with zeal, tempered with love, boldly reprove them. Note, (1.) The fallen mind is darkneſs itſelf: they who are under its influence take hold of the paths of death and hell, and know not whither they are going. (2.) Where God hath given us the light of his truth, every wilful ſin is infinitely aggravated. (4.) They who are truly ſenſible of the evil and danger of ſin, will not ſee it upon their brother, without a kind and faithful rebuke.

3. The very ſhocking and ſhameful nature of theſe ſins ſhould deter us from them. For it is a ſhame even to ſpeak of thoſe things, which are done of them in ſecret; the very mention of them muſt offend a modeſt ear, and how much more muſt the practice of them provoke a holy God? But all things that are reproved, as ſuch evils muſt be, are made manifeſt by the light of God's word, which hath ſhined into your hearts, and are thereby diſcovered in their native deformity, and hateful colours; for whatſoever doth make manifeſt is light; as the ſun illumines the world that otherwiſe would be covered in darkneſs, ſo doth Chriſt in his goſpel, ariſing as the ſun of righteouſneſs, ſhine into the hearts of his people, giving them light and diſcernment in ſpiritual things, which were before utterly hid from their eyes; and enabling them to ſee the evil and danger of thoſe tempers and practices, which before they never apprehended. Wherefore he ſaith, when calling the ſouls of ſinners out of darkneſs into his marvellous light, Awake, thou that ſleepeſt in ſecurity, ignorance, and inſenſibility, and ariſe from the dead, from thy ſtate of death in treſpaſſes and ſins, and Chriſt ſhall give thee light, the light of life and truth, to conduct thee in the paths of holineſs to the regions of glory; and wherever this light is ſpoken into the ſoul, then it will be evident by an abhorrence of evil, and ſuch a converſation as will bear the ſtricteſt ſcrutiny.

4. On what he had ſaid, he grounds this farther exhortation: See then that ye walk circumſpectly, narrowly examining every ſtep you take, not as fools, but as wiſe, as thoſe who have been taught the truth as it is in Jeſus, redeeming the time, making the beſt improvement of the preſent moment, and deſirous to retrieve, in a meaſure, the time and opportunity which hath been loſt; becauſe the days are evil, and require greater watchfulneſs when iniquity ſo abounds, when temptations ſo many and great beſet you; and you know not how ſoon you may be cut off. Wherefore, be ye not unwiſe, as in the former days of folly and unregeneracy, but underſtanding what the will of the Lord is, that ye may know how to walk and pleaſe him, and be found faithful to the light which he is pleaſed to give you. Note, (1.) If we conſider how much of our time we have abuſed and ſquandered, it will become us with peculiar diligence to improve the pittance which remains. (2.) Evil days require eſpecial circumſpection. (3.) The worſt and moſt fatal folly is the ignorance of God's word and neglect of our ſouls.

How we muſt redeem our time, and walk according to the divine preſcription, the apoſtle, in ſeveral particulars, proceeds to ſhew,

1. Be not drunk with wine, wherein is exceſs, as the heathen at their Bacchanalian feaſts, and the dreadful conſequences of drunkenneſs are numberleſs; for when the mind is once intoxicated, a wide door is opened to every act of extravagance, folly, riot, debauchery, uncleanneſs, and there remains no reſtraint from the greateſt abominations.

2. But, on the contrary, be filled with the Spirit; ſeek to drink deeper into the ſacred fountain of his divine light, grace, ſtrength, and conſolation, which will inſpire the moſt exquiſite and ſacred pleaſure and delight; not roaring round the board of riot, and joining the mad ſongs of the drunken, but ſpeaking to yourſelves, and each other, in pſalms, and hymns, and ſpiritual ſongs, uniting your voices in the Redeemer's praiſe, ſinging and making melody in your hearts to the Lord, with inward exultation in God as your Saviour, and every outward expreſſion that tends to exalt his great and glorious name, giving thanks always for all things, your hearts in every diſpenſation acknowledging a gracious God, and your tongue employed in thankſgiving unto God and the Father, in the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, through whom all our ſervices are accepted, and by whom all the diſpenſations of providence and grace are made to work together for our good. Note, (1.) Pſalmody is a goſpel ordinance, and they who are happy in God will delight in his praiſes. (2.) Whatever our condition or circumſtances may be, there is always room for thankſgiving. Afflictions, as well as mercies, demand a grateful acknowledgment; they are good for us, and we ſhall, in the iſſue, find the bleſſed effects of them.

21. [m] Submitting yourſelves one to another in the fear of God. 22. [n] Wives, ſubmit yourſelves unto your own huſbands, [o] as unto the Lord. 23. For [p] the huſband is the head of the wife, [q] even as Chriſt is the head of the church: and he is the Saviour of the [r] body. 24. Therefore as the church is ſubject unto Chriſt, ſo let the wives be to their own huſbands in every thing. 25. [s] Huſbands, love your wives, even as [t] Chriſt alſo loved the church, and gave himſelf for it: 26. That he might ſanctify and cleanſe it [u] with the waſhing of water [x] by the word, 27. That he might preſent it to himſelf a glorious church, [y] not having ſpot or wrinkle, or any ſuch thing; but that it ſhould be holy and [z] without blemiſh. 28. So ought men to love their wives, as their own bodies: he that loveth his wife, loveth himſelf. 29. For no man ever yet hated his own fleſh; but nouriſheth and cheriſheth it, even as the Lord the church: 30. For [a] we are members of his body, of his fleſh, and of his bones. 31. [b] For this cauſe ſhall a man leave his father and mother, and ſhall be joined unto his wife, and [c] they two ſhall be one fleſh. 32. This is a great myſtery: but I ſpeak concerning Chriſt and the church. 33. Nevertheleſs let every one of you in particular ſo [d] love his wife even as himſelf; and the wife ſee that ſhe reverence her huſband.

[m] 1 Pet. v. 5.
[n] Gen. iii. 16. 1 Cor. xiv. 34. Col. iii. 18. Tit. ii. 5. 1 Pet. iii. 1.
[o] Chap. vi. 5.
[p] 1 Cor. xi. 3.
[q] Chap. i. 22. & iv. 15. Col. i. 18.
[r] Chap. i. 23.
[s] Col. iii. 19. 1 Pet. iii. 7.
[t] Gal. ii. 20. Ver. 2.
[u] John iii. 5. Tit. iii. 5. Heb. x. 22. 1 John v. 6.
[x] John xv. 3. & xvii. 17.
[y] Cant. iv. 7. Col. i. 22.
[z] Chap. i. 4.
[a] 1 Cor. vi. 15. & xii. 27.
[b] Gen. ii. 24. Mat. xix. 5. Mark x. 7.
[c] 1 Cor. vi. 16.
[d] Col. iii. 19. 1 Pet. iii. 7.

v. 21—33. The apoſtle proceeds to exhort them to the diſcharge of thoſe relative duties, which are the great ornament of Chriſtianity.

In general a ſpirit of gentleneſs and mutual forbearing muſt reign in you, ſubmitting yourſelves one to another, in all natural and civil relations, in public and private, making conſcience of diſcharging the duties of your ſeveral ſtations, and in the fear of God, willingly in ſubjection to thoſe whom he hath placed as your ſuperiors.

1. Your duty as wives is to ſubmit yourſelves unto your own huſbands, in all reverence, honour, and dutiful obedience; conſulting their will, and content to be in ſubjection, as unto the Lord, regarding him as the author of your ſubordination, and ſubmitting, as the church doth to him. For the huſband is the head of the wife, by divine appointment, as Chriſt is the head of the church, and he is the Saviour of the body, having bought her even at the expence of his own blood, and with the moſt endearing tenderneſs and affection providing whatever is needful for her ſupport and comfort. Therefore as the church is bound, by every tie of love and duty, to be ſubject unto Chriſt, ſo let the wives be to their own huſbands in every thing, not contradictory to their duty towards God. Note, The direction is clear and obvious, but the difficulty is for a fallen ſpirit to acquieſce. Let thoſe therefore who enter into the marriage ſtate ſeriouſly conſider their obligations, before they lay themſelves under the ſolemn vow of obedience in all things.

2. The duty of huſbands is this, Love your wives with ſingleneſs of affection, which ſpeaks in every word and look of tenderneſs, with gentleneſs deſiring to rule, not tyrannize, and, by every endearing art of perſuaſion, winning obedience, rather than haughtily and imperiouſly demanding ſubjection, remembering and imitating the love of Chriſt to his church, who gave himſelf for it, even to the death of the croſs, that he might ſanctify and cleanſe it with the waſhing of water by the word, in his atoning blood opening a fountain for ſin and uncleanneſs, to which, by faith, his people might come according to his word, and be effectually delivered from all their guilt, and defilement of body and ſoul; that, being thus cleanſed, he might preſent it to himſelf, as a chaſte virgin, adorned for her heavenly bridegroom, a glorious church, beautiful in his blood, and bright in the robes of his righteouſneſs, not having ſpot or wrinkle, or any ſuch thing, but appearing in perfect comelineſs and purity; that, as the ſacrifices under the law, it ſhould be holy and without blemiſh. So ought men to love their wives according to this love of Chriſt, even as their own bodies, they being now a real part of themſelves: he that loveth his wife loveth himſelf. For no man ever yet hated his own fleſh; but nouriſheth and cheriſheth it; our own fleſh is not nearer to us than our wives, and the ſame affectionate care is due to them, even as the Lord hath ſhewed to the church: for we are members of his body myſtical, of his fleſh, and of his bones, like the woman formed from the firſt man's ſide. For this cauſe, ſeeing the union is ſo cloſe, ſhall a man leave his father and mother, and ſhall be joined unto his wife, in peculiar ſingleneſs of affection, and they two ſhall be one fleſh, as if they literally became one body. This is a great myſtery, theſe words being figurative of a more happy and excellent marriage than that of the firſt man and woman; and I mean, in their application, to lead you, not merely to conſider the original law of marriage, but I ſpeak concerning Chriſt and the church, to whom they emphatically belong. Nevertheleſs let every one of you in particular ſo love his wife even as himſelf, as the members of his own body, and let the wiſe ſee that ſhe reverence her huſband with all conjugal love, and jealous fear of offending.

CHAP. VI.

In this chapter, (1.) The apoſtle proceeds in the exhortation to relative duties, which he began in the former: Particularly he inſiſts on the duties of children and parents; and of ſervants and maſters, ver. 1—9. (2.) He exhorts and directs Chriſtians how to behave themſelves in the ſpiritual warfare with the enemies of their ſouls; and to the exerciſe of ſeveral Chriſtian graces, which he propoſes to them as ſo many pieces of ſpiritual armour, to preſerve and defend them in the conflict, ver. 10—18. (3.) We have here the concluſion of the epiſtle, in which he takes his leave of them, recommending himſelf to the prayers of the believing Epheſians, and praying for them, ver. 19—24.

1. [a] CHILDREN, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right. 2. [b] Honour thy father and mother, (which is the firſt commandment with promiſe) 3. That it may be well with thee, and thou mayeſt live long on the earth. 4. And [c] ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but [d] bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. 5. [e] Servants, be obedient to them that are your maſters according to the fleſh, with fear and trembling, in ſingleneſs of your heart, as unto Chriſt. 6. [f] Not with eye-ſervice, as men-pleaſers, but as the ſervants of Chriſt, doing the will of God from the heart; 7. With good will doing ſervice, [g] as to the Lord, and not to men: 8. [h] Knowing that whatſoever good thing any man doth, the ſame ſhall he receive of the Lord, [i] whether be be bond or free. 9. And [k] ye maſters, do the ſame things unto them, † forbearing threatning: knowing that your maſter alſo is in heaven, [l] neither is there reſpect of perſons with him.

[a] Prov. xxiii. 22. Col. iii. 20.
[b] Ex. xx. 12. Deut. v. 16. & xxvii. 16. Mat. xv. 4.
[c] Col. iii. 21.
[d] Deut. vi. 7. Pſ. lxxviii. 4. Prov. xix. 18. & xxii. 6. & xxix. 17.
[e] Col. iii. 22. 1 Tim. vi. 1. Tit. ii. 9. 1 Pet. ii. 18.
[f] Col. iii. 22.
[g] Ver. 5. Col. iii. 23.
[h] Rom. ii. 6. 2 Cor. v. 10. Col. iii. 24.
[i] Col. iii. 11.
[k] Lev. xxv. 43. Col. iv. 1.
† Or moderating.
[l] Deut. x. 17. Rom. ii. 11. Col. iii. 25.

v. 1—9. The apoſtle proceeds with thoſe relative duties which he had begun to enforce in the former chapter, beginning ſtill with the inferior relation; for dutiful obedience will lay the ſtrongeſt obligations on the ſuperior to ſhew all condeſcenſion and love in return. We have,

1. The duty of children to their parents. Children, obey your parents; hear their counſels, and ſubmit to their commands, this being the debt you owe them, both as the authors under God of your being, and for all the care they have ſhewn you, and this in the Lord, as far as is agreeable to his word, and for his glory. Honour thy father and mother, ſaith the law; reverence them, ſpeak reſpectfully to and of them, and if needful provide for them, (which is the firſt commandment with a particular promiſe annexed to it) that it may be well with thee, and thou mayeſt live long on the earth.

2. The duty of parents. And ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath, by unreaſonable taſks, ſeverities, or reſtraints, but with all lenity, tenderneſs, and affection endeavour by love and kind perſuaſion to win upon them, and bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, inſtructing them in the knowledge of the Scriptures, ſetting before them a gracious example, directing them to the means of grace, and watching over them with holy jealouſy.

3. The duty of ſervants. Servants, be obedient to them that are your maſters according to the fleſh, in all their lawful commands, with becoming fear of their diſpleaſure, and trembling leaſt at any time you ſhould juſtly offend them; in ſingleneſs of your heart, as unto Chriſt, without flattery, deceit, or guile, with a regard to the Redeemer's glory: not with eye-ſervice, as men-pleaſers, diligent only ſo long as they look over you, merely to curry favour with them, but as the ſervants of Chriſt, under his conſtant and all-ſeeing inſpection, and therefore doing the will of God from the heart, and diſcharging the duties of the ſtation in which he hath placed you with all fidelity and truth. With good will doing ſervice, with chearfulneſs and alacrity, from a principle of love to your maſters, and a real zeal for their honour and intereſt, and this as to the Lord, and not to men, deſiring, not ſo much human, as the divine approbation, and acting from a ſenſe of duty to the great Lord of all. Knowing that whatſoever good thing any man doth, however mean his ſtation, and inconſiderable in itſelf the ſervice may be, the ſame ſhall he receive of the Lord, who will ſuitably reward his fidelity, whether he be bond or free.

4. The duty of maſters. And ye maſters, do the ſame things unto them, ſhew the ſame readineſs conſcientiouſly to diſcharge your relation to them, forbearing threatning, not tyrannizing over them, and terrifying them with ſternneſs and menaces, but chuſing to rule by love rather than fear, knowing that your maſter alſo is in heaven, to whom you muſt give an account, neither is there reſpect of perſons with him; all ſtand at his bar on a level, and muſt receive from his lips their eternal ſentence for happineſs or miſery.

10. Finally, my brethren, be [m] ſtrong in the Lord, and [n] in the power of his might. 11. [o] Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to ſtand againſt the wiles of the devil. 12. For we wreſtle not againſt fleſh and blood, but againſt principalities, againſt powers, againſt [p] the rulers of the darkneſs of this world, againſt † ſpiritual wickedneſs in high places. 13. [q] Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withſtand in [r] the evil day, and having done all to ſtand. 14. Stand therefore, [s] having your loins girt about with truth, [t] and having on the breaſt-plate of righteouſneſs; 15. And [u] your feet ſhod with the preparation of the goſpel of peace; 16. Above all, taking [x] the ſhield of faith, wherewith ye ſhall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. 17. And [y] take the helmet of ſalvation, and [z] the ſword of the Spirit, which is the word of God: 18. [a] Praying always with all prayer and ſupplication in the Spirit, and [b] watching thereunto with all perſeverance, and ſupplication for all ſaints; 19. [c] And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth [d] boldly, to make known the myſtery of the goſpel: 20. For which [e] I am an ambaſſador [f] in ‡ bonds: that therein I may ſpeak boldly, as I ought to ſpeak.

[m] Col. i. 11.
[n] Chap. i. 19. & iii. 16.
[o] Rom. xiii. 12. 2 Cor. vi. 7. 1 Theſ. v. 8.
[p] John xii. 31. & xiv. 30. Col. i. 13.
† Or wicked ſpirits.
[q] 2 Cor. x. 4.
[r] Chap. v. 16.
[s] Iſa. xi. 5. Luke xii. 35. 1 Pet. i. 13.
[t] Iſa. lix. 17. 2 Cor. vi. 7. 1 Theſ. v. 8.
[u] Iſa. lii. 7. Rom. x. 15.
[x] 1 John v. 4.
[y] Iſa. lix. 17. 1 Theſ. v. 8.
[z] Heb. iv. 12. Rev. i. 16.
[a] Luke xviii. 1. Rom. xii. 12. Col. iv. 2. 1 Theſ. v. 17.
[b] Mat. xxiv. 42. & xxv. 13.
[c] Acts iv. 29. Col. iv. 3. 2 Theſ. iii. 1.
[d] 2 Cor. iii. 12.
[e] 2 Cor. v. 20.
[f] Acts xxviii. 20. Chap. iii. 1. & iv. 1. Phil. i. 7.
‡ Gr. a chain.

v. 10—20. Every Chriſtian is enliſted, under the banners of Jeſus, to fight the Lord's battles, and to maintain unceaſing war againſt ſin, the world, and the devil. The apoſtle therefore warmly exhorts them to quit themſelves as men under the glorious captain of their ſalvation. Finally, my brethren, be ſtrong in the Lord, and in the power of his might, ſupported by thoſe almighty influences of grace, which he ſupplies, in whom alone ſtandeth our help, and from whom cometh our ſalvation. Put on the whole armour of God, as a ſoldier covered from head to foot, with armour proof againſt every weapon, that ye may be able to ſtand againſt the wiles of the devil, and neither be ſeduced by his enſnaring temptations, nor terrified by his ſuggeſtions from the path of duty.

1. The enemies we have to conflict with are deſcribed. For we wreſtle not againſt fleſh and blood, not only againſt the corruptions implanted in our own nature, or the wicked men of this world, who oppoſe and perſecute, but againſt principalities, againſt powers, againſt the rulers of the darkneſs of this world, againſt ſpiritual wickedneſs in high places, even againſt thoſe legions of malignant ſpirits, who, under their hateful leader, have erected a kingdom of darkneſs, and enſlaved the ſouls of men, and ever hover round us, watching for an opportunity to diſtreſs, harraſs, trouble, and, if they could, to deſtroy thoſe who have eſcaped from their hateful bondage.

2. Having ſuch foes, we need be well armed againſt their aſſaults. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, ſo abſolutely neceſſary for this dangerous conflict, that ye may be able to withſtand in the evil day, when this hour of temptation and danger comes, and having done all, to ſtand faithfully, acquitting yourſelves as good ſoldiers of Jeſus Chriſt, through every trial, however ſharp or prolonged; and more than conquerors at laſt, through him that loved you, when in a reſurrection day you ſhall tread ſin, ſatan, death and hell, for ever under your feet. Stand therefore, the enemy advances, be ready to receive him, looking up to your almighty ſupport, and invulnerable in the divine panoply. The Chriſtian's compleat armour, both offenſive and defenſive, is here in military terms deſcribed; the back alone is left unguarded, for we muſt conquer or die. Flight is ſure to be fatal to the coward ſoul.

1. Truth muſt be our military girdle. Having your loins girt about with truth, firm in the doctrines of the goſpel, and ſincere in the profeſſion of it, in ſimplicity approving yourſelves before the heart-ſearching God.

2. Righteouſneſs is our breaſt-plate. Having on the breaſt-plate of righteouſneſs, imputed and implanted, to guard the vital parts from the ſtroke of the invenomed foe.

3. Our ſandals muſt be the goſpel of peace. Having your feet ſhod with the preparation of the goſpel of peace, that whatever rough ways we may walk in, and whatever difficulties we meet, we may ſtand faſt in the goſpel of Jeſus, prepared for every conflict, ſtabliſhed on the ſure foundation, enjoying peace with God in our own ſouls, and following it with all men.

4. Faith is our ſhield. Above all, as the moſt neceſſary piece of armour, and that which covers the whole body, taking the ſhield of faith, having lively and realizing views of the divine promiſes of pardon, grace, righteouſneſs, and glory, confidently reſting upon them, wherewith ye ſhall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked, when with fury he hurls his invenomed temptations at the ſoul, to deſpair, blaſphemy, lewdneſs, rage, even to ſelf-murder, ſeeking to bring horror, guilt, anguiſh, and diſtreſs upon the conſcience, though he may not be able to deſtroy; but divine faith repels them all, quenches them, and they fall harmleſs at our feet.

5. Salvation is our helmet. And take the helmet of ſalvation, that ſure hope of life eternal, grounded upon the faithfulneſs of the unchangeable God, that guards from dejection, and raiſes us ſuperior to every fear.

6. The mighty ſword is the word of God. And take the ſword of the Spirit, which is the word of God, before which the legions of darkneſs cannot ſtand, when weilded by the faithful ſoldier, ſlaying every temptation, and opening a way through hoſts of difficulties.

7. Prayer muſt be added. Praying always with all prayer and ſupplication in the Spirit, looking upwards conſtantly for divine ſupport, in every emergence caſting your care upon God, in ejaculations, and, at ſtated ſolemn ſeaſons, commending yourſelves into the Lord's hand, and watching thereunto with all perſeverance, never weary or giving over, though the conflict be hard and long, and no immediate anſwer received; and, as for yourſelves, ſo alſo continue ceaſeleſs in ſupplication for all ſaints, engaged in the ſame warfare, contending with the ſame enemies, and needing the ſame divine ſupport. And, among others, for me alſo, under my trials, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly, fearleſs of any conſequences, to make known the myſtery of the goſpel, and publiſh the glad tidings with all zeal, openneſs, and freedom of ſpeech, without concealing any of the glorious truths, however offenſive they may be to men's pride or love of ſin : for which fidelity I am an ambaſſador of Chriſt in bonds, ſuffering chearfully, and ſtill deſiring, even in a priſon, to negociate the great affair of reconciliation between God and ſinners : and I entreat your prayers, that therein, under whatever difficulties I ſtruggle, I may ſpeak boldly, as I ought to ſpeak, undaunted in my ſpirit, and without moleſtation. Note, (1.) Prayer is the Chriſtian's conſtant recourſe, and ſure ſupport in every exigence. (2.) Whilſt we continue perſevering in our ſupplications, we ſhall aſſuredly go on conquering and to conquer. (3.) We ſhould mutually remember each other at a throne of grace ; all ſaints need our prayers, and ſhould have an intereſt in them.

21, But [g] that ye alſo may know my affairs, and how I do, [h] Tychicus, a beloved brother and faithful miniſter in the Lord, ſhall make known to you all things : 22. [i] Whom I have ſent unto you for the ſame purpoſe, that ye might know our affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts. 23. Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 24. Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jeſus Chriſt [k] † in ſincerity. Amen.

[g] Col. iv. 7.
[h] 2 Tim. iv. 12. Tit. iii. 12.
[i] Col. iv. 8.
[k] Tit. ii. 7.
† Or with uncorruptedneſs.

v. 21—24. Having deſired an intereſt in their prayers, he concludes his epiſtle,

1. With recommending Tychicus to them, the bearer of this epiſtle. But that ye alſo may know my affairs, and how I do in my preſent confinement, Tychicus, a beloved brother and faithful miniſter in the Lord, ſhall make known to you all things concerning my ſituation, labours, treatment and ſucceſs, even in bonds : whom I have ſent unto you for the ſame purpoſe, that ye might know our affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts, amidſt all the trials you meet, and encourage you, from my example, patiently and chearfully to perſevere in the good ways of the Lord.

2. He cloſes with his uſual benediction and prayer. Peace be to the brethren ; may you enjoy a ſweet ſenſe of God's favour, be bleſt with all proſperity, temporal and ſpiritual, and live in the moſt uninterrupted harmony among yourſelves ; and may love to God and to each other abound, with faith, in the moſt lively and vigorous exerciſe ; all which ſpiritual bleſſings flow from God the Father, as their ſource in the œconomy of redemption, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as the purchaſer and diſpenſer of them to his choſen people. Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in ſincerity, (ἐν ἀφθαρσια) with unfeigned affection, or in incorruption, without adulterating the doctrines of truth, or admitting any earthly thing to rival him in their hearts ; or with immortality, may his grace and your love be perfected in glory everlaſting. Thus in faith he prays, and adds his joyful Amen ! in confidence that the Lord will hear and anſwer his requeſts.

THE
EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
Upon the EPISTLE of
St. PAUL to the PHILIPPIANS.

PHILIPPI was a chief city of the weſtern part of Macedonia, πρώτη τῆς μερίδος τῆς Μακεδονίας πόλις, Acts xvi. 12. It took its name from Philip, the famous king of Macedon, who repaired and beautified it; and was afterwards made a Roman colony. Near this place were the Campi Philippici, remarkable for the famous battles between Julius Ceſar, and Pompey the Great; and that between Auguſtus and Antony on one ſide, and Ceſar and Brutus on the other. But it is moſt remarkable among Chriſtians for this epiſtle, which was written when Paul was priſoner at Rome, A. D. 62.

St. Paul ſeems to have had a very particular kindneſs for the church at Philippi, which he himſelf had been inſtrumental in planting; and though he had the care of all the churches, he had, upon that account, a parcular fatherly tender care of this. He looked upon them as his children, and having begotten them by the goſpel, he was deſirous by the ſame goſpel to nouriſh and nurſe them up.

From ſmall beginnings they had ariſen to a flouriſhing church; and in their liberality to the apoſtle were diſtinguiſhed, of which he makes grateful and honourable mention; expreſſing his warm affection towards them; informing them of his ſucceſs even in priſon; encouraging them to bear up under all oppoſition; exhorting them to mutual love; warning them againſt deceivers, and ſtirring them up to all holy converſation and godlineſs.

CHAP. I.

He begins with the inſcription and benediction, ver. 1, 2. He gives thanks for the ſaints at Philippi, ver. 3—7. His great affection and concern for their ſpiritual welfare, ver. 7—9. His prayers for them, ver. 9—11. His care to prevent their offence at his ſufferings, ver. 12—20. His readineſs to glorify Chriſt by life or death, ver. 21—27. He concludes with a double exhortation to ſtrictneſs and conſtancy, ver. 27—30.

1. PAUL and Timotheus the ſervants of Jeſus Chriſt, to all the ſaints [a] in Chriſt Jeſus which are at Philippi, with the biſhops and deacons: 2. [b] Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

[a] 1 Cor. i. 2.
[b] Rom. i. 7. 1 Cor. i. 3. 2 Cor. i. 2. 1 Pet. i. 2.

v. 1—2. The apoſtolical inſcription and benediction opens the epiſtle. Paul and Timotheus, who joins him in all cordial ſalutations, the ſervants of Jeſus Chriſt in the goſpel, to all the ſaints in Chriſt Jeſus which are at Philippi, choſen in him, and in the fulneſs of time brought into real union with him in faith and holineſs, with the biſhops, the ſuperior officers in the church, and deacons, their aſſiſtants: Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Note, (1.) There can be no true peace but what flows from divine grace and favour. (2.) Every covenant mercy we receive at God's hands, comes to us as the fruit of our adored Redeemer's undertaking.

3. [c] I thank my God upon every remembrance of you, 4. (Always in every prayer of mine for you all making requeſt with joy) 5. For [d] your fellowſhip in the goſpel from the firſt day until now; 6. Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun [e] a good work in you, will † perform [f] it until the day of Jeſus Chriſt: 7. Even as it is meet for me to think this of you all, becauſe [g] I have you in my heart, in as much as both [h] in my bonds, and in the defence and confirmation of the goſpel, [i] ye all are partakers of my grace. 8. For [k] God is my record, [l] how greatly I long after you all in the bowels of Jeſus Chriſt. 9. And this I pray, that [m] your love may abound yet more and more [n] in knowledge, and in all judgment; 10. That [o] ye may approve things that are excellent; [p] that ye may be ſincere, and [q] without offence [r] till the day of Chriſt; 11. Being filled with the fruits of righteouſneſs, [s] which are by Jeſus Chriſt, [t] unto the glory and praiſe of God.

[c] Rom. i. 8. 1 Cor. i. 4. Eph i. 15, 16. Col. i. 3. 1 Theſ. i. 2.
[d] 2 Cor. viii. 4. or Eph. iii. 6. 1 John i. 3, 7.
[e] John vi. 29. 1 Theſ. i. 3.
† Or, finiſh. Heb. xii. 2.
[f] Ver. 10.
[g] 2 Cor. iii. 2. & vii. 3.
[h] Eph. iii. 1. & iv. 1. Col. iv. 3. 2 Tim. i. 8.
[i] Chap. iv. 14.
[k] Rom. i. 9. Gal. i. 20.
[l] Chap. ii. 26. & iv. 1.
[m] 1 Theſ. iii. 12. Eph. i. 8.
[n] Philem. 6.
[o] Rom. ii. 18. & xii. 2.
[p] 1 Theſ. iii. 13. & v. 23.
[q] Acts xxiv. 16. 1 Cor. x. 32.
[r] Ver. 6.
[s] John xv. 4, 5. Eph. ii. 10.
[t] John xv. 8. Eph. i. 12, 14.

v. 3—11. The apoſtle, after his gracious introduction, begins,

1. With thankſgivings to God on their behalf. I thank my God upon every remembrance of you, and of the rich grace he hath beſtowed upon you, (always, in every prayer of mine for you all, making requeſt with joy, delighting in and over you) for your fellowſhip in the goſpel, thankful for all the ineſtimable privileges to which you have been admitted, for the love and union maintained among you, and for your liberality in contributing to the furtherance of the goſpel, from the firſt day until now, with ſtedfaſtneſs and perſeverance, in the midſt of all oppoſition, continuing to approve your fidelity. Note, (1.) It is a great joy to a miniſter's ſoul, when his people walk ſteadily in the fellowſhip of the goſpel. (2.) Our grateful thankſgivings are ever due, whilſt we are mentioning the divine mercies.

2. He expreſſes his confidence concerning them. Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you, by his ſovereign grace converting your ſouls, according to his unchangeable promiſes and love, will perform and finiſh it until the day of Jeſus Chriſt, when your ſalvation ſhall be perfected for ever. Note, (1.) Whatever good is found in us, it comes from God, who worketh in us to will and to do of his good pleaſure. (2.) He who is the author muſt alſo be the finiſher of the work of grace, that in eternity he may have all the praiſe. (3.) Where God begins, we may be confident he will bring to a happy end. His work is perfect, and his gifts and callings without repentance.

3. He gives the reaſon for that confidence in them which he entertained. Even as it is meet for me to think this of you all, bound in the judgment of charity to eſteem the whole church and every member true to their profeſſion. And I the more readily entertain ſuch a perſuaſion of you, becauſe I have you in my heart, embraced with my warmeſt affections, and ſharing my conſtant remembrances, inaſmuch as both in my bonds, and in the defence and confirmation of the goſpel, ye are all partakers of my grace, enduring the like tribulations as I ſuffer, and by your ſympathy with me, and your readineſs to aſſiſt me, both in my bonds, and amidſt all the oppoſition which I meet in defence of the goſpel, ye maniſeſtly appear to have received out of the ſame Redeemer's fulneſs. Note, We are bound to think well of thoſe, who not only make a creditable profeſſion, but dare to ſuffer for the truth themſelves, or nobly own, even in bonds, thoſe who do.

4. He appeals to God for the warm attachment of his heart unto them. For God is my record, how greatly I long after you all in the bowels of Jeſus Chriſt, with the trueſt ſpiritual affection, like that which Jeſus himſelf feels for precious ſouls.

5. He tells them what were his prayers for them. And this I pray, (1.) That your love may abound yet more and more towards God and one another. (2.) That ye may advance in knowledge and in all judgment, grounded and ſettled in the true principles of the goſpel, and that thus your love may be increaſed day by day. (3.) That ye may approve the things that are excellent, bringing every thing to the teſt of God's word, that their different excellence may be aſcertained; and examining by this unerring rule the doctrines of ſeducers, that the purity of the goſpel may be maintained in oppoſition to their errors. (4.) That ye may be ſincere and without offence, or allowed guile before God and man, true to your principles and upright in your conduct, till the day of Chriſt, perſevering in your fidelity, and walking as thoſe who conſtantly eye a heart-ſearching God and a judgment-day. (5.) Being thus found faithful, you will be filled with the fruits of righteouſneſs, with every divine temper and gracious work which the Spirit of God produces in the redeemed, and which are by Jeſus Chriſt, accepted through him as well as derived from him, unto the praiſe and glory of God. His own glory is the great end which he propoſes in all his works, and which we therefore ſhould ever regard as the great end of our being.

12. But I would ye ſhould underſtand, brethren, that the things which happened unto me have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the goſpel. 13. So that my bonds † in Chriſt are manifeſt [u] in all the palace, and ‡ in all other places; 14. And many of the brethren in the Lord waxing confident by my bonds, are much more bold to ſpeak the word without fear. 15. Some indeed preach Chriſt even of envy [x] and ſtrife; and ſome alſo of good will. 16. The one preach Chriſt of contention, not ſincerely, ſuppoſing to add affliction to my bonds: 17. But the other of love, knowing that I am ſet for the defence of the goſpel. 18. What then? notwithſtanding every way, whether in pretence, or in truth, Chriſt is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice. 19. For I know that this ſhall turn to my ſalvation [y] through your prayer, and the ſupply of [z] the Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt, 20. According to my earneſt expectation, and my hope, that [a] in nothing I ſhall be aſhamed, but that with all boldneſs, as always, ſo now alſo [b] Chriſt ſhall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death.

† Or for.
[u] Chap. iv. 22.
‡ Or to all others.
[x] Chap. ii. 3.
[y] 2 Cor. i. 11.
[z] Rom. viii. 9.
[a] Rom. v. 5.
[b] Acts xx. 24.

v. 12—20. Nothing could tend more glorioully to remove the ignominy of Paul's chain, or to comfort the hearts of his ſpiritual children, who might be much dejected at his reproaches and ſufferings, than the account which he here gives.

1. Even in his bonds the goſpel was not bound, but his ſufferings tended to confirm and propagate the knowledge of the truth. I would ye ſhould underſtand, brethren, that the things which happened unto me, dark and afflictive as the diſpenſation might appear to you, have fallen out rather to the furtherance of the goſpel; for God can eaſily bring the greateſt good out of what appeared the greateſt evil. Thus the blood of the martyrs hath ever been the ſeed of the church. So that my bonds in Chriſt are manifeſt in all the palace, where my ſufferings for the goſpel, and patient fortitude under them, are known to all the great men of Nero's court, and in all other places, and are made the happy occaſion of raiſing enquiries about the goſpel in thoſe who might not otherwiſe have heard it, and of bringing ſome under the joyful ſound even out of Ceſar's houſhold. And many of the brethren in the Lord, waxing confident by my bonds, and fully ſatisfied of the goodneſs of the cauſe, and of the hand of the Lord viſible in the ſupport he gives me, are much more bold than ever to ſpeak the word without fear, and to proclaim the ſalvation which is only to be found in a crucified Jeſus. Some indeed preach Chriſt even of envy and ſtriſe, taking this opportunity of my impriſonment to purſue the baſe end of ſetting up themſelves, even under the covert of zeal for the goſpel, envying my reputation, and hoping to ſupplant me in the affection of the churches; and ſome alſo of good-will, with hearty affection to the cauſe, and true regard for me. The one preach Chriſt of contention, out of mere pride and rivalſhip; not ſincerely, from a right principle of love unfeigned; but from envy, ſuppoſing to add affliction to my bonds, by ingratiating themſelves, to my prejudice, with the members of the churches, or hoping to incenſe the government more againſt me by the noiſe they make, and the diviſions they ſeek to raiſe: but the other preach Chriſt of love, truly attached to the Saviour, and longing to promote the ſalvation of immortal ſouls; knowing that I am ſet for the defence of the goſpel, and ſuffered to bear theſe bonds on purpoſe to have an opportunity, before the higheſt in this world, publickly to vindicate and defend the cauſe of Chriſt. Note, (1.) Strange as it may appear, that any ſhould preach Chriſt out of envy, ſo ſubtle is the tempter, and ſo corrupt the heart of man, that even the goſpel may be turned into the gall of aſps, and made the pedeſtal on which the proud heart would erect its reputation. (2.) Faithful ſouls are whetted by oppoſition, and made more bold by bonds and reproaches.

2. He expreſſes the joy he felt in his own ſoul, amidſt all he ſuffered from open enemies and falſe friends. What then? tho' ſome act on principles ſo baſe, notwithſtanding every way, whether in pretence or in truth, Chriſt is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice: if his name is ſpread abroad, and his goſpel propagated, that is matter of real joy; and the miniſtry may be bleſt, though the preacher periſhes. For I know that this ſhall turn to my ſalvation, however different the deſigns of theſe men may be, and ſerve to procure my liberty the ſooner, as well as to advance my ſoul's preſent and eternal benefit, through your prayers daily offered up for me, and the ſupply of the Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt, which can enable me to improve under every diſpenſation, and cauſe it to work for good. According to my earneſt expectation and hope that I ſhall be ſupported and delivered, and that in nothing I ſhall be aſhamed of that glorious cauſe for which I ſuffer; but that with all boldneſs, and unſhaken fortitude of mind, as always hitherto I have been enabled to act, ſo now alſo Chriſt ſhall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death; by longer patient ſuffering, if ſuch be his will; by a faithful diſcharge of my truſt, ſhould I regain my liberty; or by ſealing the teſtimony with my blood, if his glory ſo requires. Note, (1.) We are much indebted to our brethren's prayers. (2.) The ſupply of the Spirit of Chriſt can make up all other wants, and cauſe every providence to prove a bleſſing. (3.) If we are not a ſhame to the goſpel, we need never be aſhamed of it, though devoted, for the ſake thereof, to the moſt ignominious death.

21. For † to me to live is Chriſt, and to die is gain. 22. But if I live in the fleſh, this is the fruit of my labour: yet what I ſhall chooſe I wot not. 23. For [c] I am in a ſtrait betwixt two, having a deſire to depart, and to be with Chriſt; which is far better: 24. Nevertheleſs, to abide in the fleſh is more needful for you. 25. And [d] having this confidence, I know that I ſhall abide and continue with you all for your furtherance and joy of faith: 26. That [e] your rejoicing may be more abundant in Jeſus Chriſt for me, by my coming to you again.

† Or to me living and dying Chriſt is gain.
[c] 2 Cor. v. 8. 2 Tim. iv. 6.
[d] Chap. ii. 24.
[e] 1 Cor. i. 14. & v. 12.

v. 21—26. The apoſtle was happy to die, yet for their ſakes content to live.

For to me to live is Chriſt, and to die is gain; living or dying, he is to me all and in all; for his glory I only deſire to live, and in whatever way I die in his cauſe and ſervice, I know it ſhall prove my everlaſting gain. But if I live in the fleſh, this is the fruit of my labour, to preach and ſuffer for the truth's ſake, in order to advance my great Maſter's cauſe: yet what I ſhall chooſe I wot not, whether life or death: for I am in a ſtrait be- twixt two; having a deſire to depart and to be with Chriſt, longing for the heavenly bleſſedneſs in ſtore, and to ſee him face to face, where ſin, ſorrow, and ſighing, ſhall be for ever away; which is far better than any poſſible ſituation which I can be in here below: nevertheleſs, to abide in the fleſh is more needful for you; and for your benefit I can gladly forego for a while my own happineſs, and conflict ſtill amidſt the oppoſing powers of earth and hell. And having this confidence, that my abode below will be for your edification, I know by divine intimations, that I ſhall abide and continue with you all, for your furtherance and joy of faith, to confirm and ſtabliſh you yet more and more; that your rejoicing may be more abundant in Chriſt Jeſus for me, by my coming to you again, reſtored to liberty, and enabled to reſume my uſeful labours among you. Note, (1.) If we can ſay with truth, to live is Chriſt, that his glory is our ſingle aim, we may confidently add, to die is gain; how great, heaven can only tell. (2.) But for one thing can earth be truly deſireable to the faithful, and that is the ſervice which can be rendered to immortal ſouls, and the glory accruing thence to the Redeemer: for this therefore he lives.

27. Only [f] let your converſation be as it becometh the goſpel of Chriſt: that whether I come and ſee you, or elſe be abſent, I may hear of your affairs, [g] that ye ſtand faſt in one ſpirit, with one mind, [h] ſtriving together for the faith of the goſpel; 28. And in nothing terrified by your adverſaries; [i] which is to them an evident token of perdition, [k] but to you of ſalvation, and that of God. 29. For unto you [l] it is given in the behalf of Chriſt, not only [m] to believe on him, but alſo to ſuffer for his ſake; 30. [n] Having the ſame conflict [o] which ye ſaw in me, and now hear to be in me.

[f] Eph. iv. 1. Col. i. 10. 1 Theſ. ii. 12. & iv. 1.
[g] Chap. iv. 1.
[h] Jude 3.
[i] 2 Theſ. i. 5.
[k] Rom. viii. 17. 2 Tim. ii. 11.
[l] Acts v. 41.
[m] Eph. ii. 8.
[n] Col. ii. 1.
[o] Acts xvi. 19, &c.

v. 27—30. The apoſtle cloſes with two exhortations.

1. Only let your converſation be as becometh the goſpel of Chriſt, (πολιτευεσθε). Behave as citizens of the heavenly Jeruſalem, walk worthy of your high vocation, adorning the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things, and proving the ſolidity of your hope by the ſpirituality of your conduct; that whether I come and ſee you, or elſe be abſent, I may hear of your affairs with joy, that ye ſtand faſt in one ſpirit, with one mind, ſtriving together for the faith of the goſpel, united in truth and love; reſiſting, with the moſt vigorous efforts, every perſecuting or ſeducing foe, holding faſt the unadulterated principles of grace, and building up each other in your moſt holy faith. Note, (1.) The faith of the goſpel will ever meet with oppoſition. (2.) Unanimity among Chriſtians is the great means of their eſtabliſhment; while diſſention and ſchiſm render them an eaſy prey.

2. In nothing terrified by your adverſaries, however many or mighty, whether from earth or hell; but defy their malice and rage, cleaving unſhaken to the bleſſed goſpel; which is to them an evident token of perdition, but to you of ſalvation, and that of God; ſuch patient and faithful ſuffering for the truth proves your intereſt in it; whilſt the oppoſition of your foes muſt end in their eternal ruin. For unto you it is given, as your diſtinguiſhed honour, in the behalf of Chriſt, not only to believe on him to the ſaving of your ſouls, which is an eminent gift of God, but alſo to ſuffer for his ſake; having the ſame conflict which ye ſaw in me when I was with you, and ſteadily ſuſtained the ſhock; and now hear to be in me. Note, (1.) Faith is the gift of God. (2.) Sufferings and reproaches on the behalf of Chriſt are real honours. (3.) It is an encouragement to us patiently to endure the croſs, when we ſee others chearfully bearing it before us, and glorying in tribulation.

CHAP. II.

The apoſtle proceeas to farther exhortations to ſeveral duties; to be like-minded, and lowly-minded, which he preſſes from the example of Chriſt, ver. 1—11. And to diligence and ſeriouſneſs in the Chriſtian courſe, ver. 12, 13. And to adorn their Chriſtian profeſſion by ſeveral ſuitable graces, ver. 14—18. And concludes with particular notice and commendation of two good miniſters, Timothy and Epaphroditus; whom he deſigned to ſend to them, ver. 19—30.

1. IF there be therefore any conſolation in Chriſt, if any comfort of love, if any [a] fellowſhip of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies; 2. Fulfil ye my joy, [b] that ye be like-minded, having the ſame love, being of one accord, of one mind. 3. Let [c] nothing be done through ſtrife or vain-glory, but in lowlineſs of mind [d] let each eſteem other better than themſelves. 4. [e] Look not every man on his own things, but every man alſo on the things of others. 5. [f] Let this mind be in you which was alſo in Chriſt Jeſus: 6. Who [g] being in the form of God, thought it not robbery [h] to be equal with God: 7. [i] But made himſelf of no reputation, and took upon him the form of [k] a ſervant, and [l] was made in the likeneſs of men: 8. And being found in faſhion as a man, he humbled himſelf, and [m] became obedient unto death, even the death of the croſs. 9. [n] Wherefore God alſo hath highly exalted him, and [o] given him a name which is above every name: 10. That [p] at the name of Jeſus every knee ſhould bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; 11. And [q] that every tongue ſhould confeſs, that Jeſus Chriſt is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

[a] 2 Cor. xiii. 14.
[b] Rom. xii. 16. & xv. 5. 1 Cor. i. 10. 2 Cor. xiii. 11. 1 Pet. iii. 8.
[c] Gal. v. 26. Chap. i. 15. Jam. iv. 16.
[d] Rom. xii. 10. 1 Pet. v. 5.
[e] 1 Cor. x. 24. & xiii. 5.
[f] Mat. xi. 29, John xiii. 15. 1 Pet. ii. 21. 1 John ii. 6.
[g] John i. 1, 2. 2 Cor. iv. 4. Col. i. 15. Heb. i. 3.
[h] John v. 18. & x. 33.
[i] Pſ. xxii. 6. Iſa. liii. 3. Dan. ix. 26. Mark ix. 12.
[k] Iſa. xlii. 1. & xlix. 6. & liii. 11. Ezek. xxxiv. 23. Zech. iii. 8.
[l] John i. 14. Rom. i. 3. Gal. iv. 4. Heb. ii. 14, 17.
[m] Mat. xxvi. 39, 42. John x. 18. Heb. v. 8.
[n] John xvii. 5. Heb. ii. 9.
[o] Eph. i. 21. Heb. i. 4.
[p] Iſa. xlv. 23. Rom. xiv. 11. Rev. v. 13.
[q] John xiii. 13.

v. 1—11. By every endearing argument the apoſtle exhorts his Philippian brethren,

1. To love, unity and humility. If there be any conſolation in Chriſt, (παρακλησις), if my exhortation hath any weight, and you experience any joy in the Redeemer; if there be any comfort of love, from the ſenſe of the love of God ſhed abroad in your hearts; if there be any fellowſhip of the Spirit, in mutual union and complacence in each other, or through the Holy Ghoſt, with God the Father, and with his Son Jeſus Chriſt; if there be any bowels and mercies, in the gracious Saviour towards you; or if you have ever felt the like tender compaſſions one towards another; if it be moſt deſirable to abound in all theſe things, and you have already known their value and excellence, fulfil ye my joy, and continue to give me this higheſt ſatisfaction in you, that ye be like minded, animated as by one ſoul; having the ſame love one towards another, as the members of the ſame body; being of one accord, unanimous in deſire and deſign to promote the Redeemer's glory, and the ſalvation of men's ſouls; and of one mind, holding the ſame principles and ſentiments, according to the purity of the goſpel. Let nothing be done through ſtrife or vain-glory; affect no pre-eminence, diſpute not for applauſe, nor ſpeak or act under a contentious ſpirit; but in lowlineſs of mind, the great ornament of the Chriſtian character, let each eſteem other better than themſelves; entertaining lowly thoughts of their own attainments, conſcious of their manifold infirmities, and entertaining the beſt opinion of their brethren. Look not every man at his own things, to admire himſelf, or purſue his own ſelfiſh ends, his eaſe, honour, or worldly advantage; but every man alſo on the things of others; not as buſy-bodies, to pry into them cenſoriouſly, but deſiring to promote their real good, and from the view of their excellencies to be humble in your own eyes.

2. He enforces his exhortation with the moſt powerful argument, the example of the bleſſed Jeſus. Let this mind be in you, which was alſo in Chriſt Jeſus, even that lowlineſs which in him was ſo eminently exemplified; who being in the form of God, poſſeſſing every eſſential perfection of the divine nature, the brightneſs of the Father's glory, and the expreſs image of his perſon, thought it not robbery to be equal with God, and juſtly to claim a parity with the Father in uncreated glory: But, in infinite condeſcenſion and pity towards us, he made himſelf of no reputation, laying aſide the ſplendor of his divine majeſty, and took upon himſelf the form of a ſervant, aſſuming the human nature in the loweſt condition; and was made in the likeneſs of men, having the ſame reaſonable ſoul, and human fleſh, the corruption of our nature only excepted. And being found in faſhion as a man, in all things made like unto his brethren, he humbled himſelf before God and man, through a life of affliction, and, at laſt, became obedient to death, for us men and for our ſalvation, even the death of the croſs, that moſt painful, ignominious, and accurſed death; ſubmitting thereunto, that he might bear our ſins in his own body on the tree. Wherefore, having finiſhed the work which the Father had given him to do, to his fulleſt ſatisfaction, God alſo hath highly exalted him in his human nature to the mediatorial throne, as the reward of his ſufferings, and given him a name which is above every name, all power, authority, and dominion being given to him over every creature; that at the name of Jeſus every knee ſhould bow, and divine honours be paid to the incarnate Son, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; by angels and men, and every intelligent creature; yea, even devils muſt be compelled to own his glory: and that every tongue ſhould confeſs that Jeſus Chriſt is Lord, the univerſal Sovereign, to the glory of God the Father, who, as man, hath thus exalted him to the throne of majeſty on high, for the purpoſes of his own glory. Note, (1.) The example of our Lord ſhould be ever before us, and that, if any thing can, will ſuppreſs the workings of pride. (2.) The love of a crucified Jeſus ſhould warm our hearts, and knit them in cloſeſt union to each other.

12. Wherefore my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my preſence only, but now much more in my abſence; work out your own ſalvation with fear and trembling. 13. For [s] it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleaſure. 14. Do all things [t] without murmurings, [u] and diſputings: 15. That ye may be blameleſs and harmleſs, [x] the ſons of God, without rebuke, in the midſt of [y] a crooked and

[r] Eph. vi. 5.
[s] 2 Cor. iii. 5. Heb. xiii. 21.
[t] 1 Cor. x. 10.
[u] Rom. xiv. 1.
[x] Mat. v. 45.
[y] Deut. xxxii. 5.

perverſe nation: among whom [a] ye ſhine as lights in the world: 16. Holding forth the word of life; [a] that I may rejoice in the day of Chriſt, that [b] I have not run in vain, neither laboured in vain. 17. Yea, and if [c] I be † offered upon the ſacrifice [d] and ſervice of your faith, [e] I joy, and rejoice with you all. 18. For the ſame cauſe alſo do ye joy, [f] and rejoice with me.

[a] Mat. v. 14.
[a] 2 Cor. i. 14. 1 Theſ. ii. 19.
[b] Gal. ii. 2. 1 Theſ. iii. 5.
[c] 2 Tim. iv. 6.
† Gr. poured forth.
[d] Rom. xv. 16.
[e] 2 Cor. vii. 4. Col. i. 24.
[f] Chap. iii. 1. & iv. 4.

v. 12—18. The apoſtle proceeds in his exhortations:

1. To Chriſtian diligence. Wherefore my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not in my preſence only, but now much more in my abſence, and therefore I entertain the fulleſt confidence of your perſeverance in the ſame good ways of our God, work out your own ſalvation with fear and trembling, giving all diligence to make your calling and election ſure in the uſe of every appointed means, jealous over your deceitful hearts, and watchful againſt every thing that might offend the Father of mercies, whoſe love you have taſted, and by whoſe grace your ſtability can only be ſecured; for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleaſure, and you may firmly depend upon him, that, amidſt all oppoſition, he will perfect in you the work which he hath begun. Note, (1.) God, who ordains the end, appoints the means; theſe are inſeparable: it were the height of folly and preſumption to hope for ſalvation in the neglect of them. (2.) After all our diligence, our dependance muſt not be placed on ourſelves, but on him who worketh in us to will and to do, not according to our deſert, nor merely at our deſire, but of his own good pleaſure. (3.) It is the ſtrongeſt motive to beſtir ourſelves, that we know our labour ſhall not be in vain in the Lord; for if he will work in us, for us, and with us, then ſhall we aſſuredly ſucceed.

2. To an exemplary converſation, ſuch as may confound their enemies, and comfort him their faithful ſervant under all his ſufferings. Do all things without murmurings and diſputings, content under every providential diſpenſation, and ſtudiouſly avoiding every occaſion of contention among yourſelves; that ye may be blameleſs and harmleſs, the ſons of God, without rebuke, and behave ſo irreproachably, that your moſt malignant accuſers may have no evil thing juſtly to ſay of you: for ye dwell in the midſt of a crooked and perverſe nation; the keen eyes of your enemies are open, and they wait for your halting; gladly would they catch at any thing which might countenance them in their iniquities: among whom ye ſhine as lights in the world; your bright examples, like ſuns in your ſeveral ſpheres, darting unwelcome light upon the workers of wickedneſs, and ſhining to the glory of God: holding forth the word of life, even the bleſſed goſpel, both in your lips and in your conduct, holding it faſt in all fidelity, holding it up with all zeal and boldneſs, if under God it may be bleſt to illumine the darkneſs of thoſe around you, and bring them to the Light of life; or at leaſt to leave them inexcuſeable in their impenitence. And this will be a ſingular ſatisfaction to me, when I find that I have not run in vain, nor laboured in vain, but behold in you ſuch bleſſed effects of my miniſtry, and that all my conflicts ſhall at laſt be crowned with ſucceſs. Yea, and if I be offered upon the ſacrifice and ſervice of your faith, and ſhould now be called as a victim to bleed in confirmation of the goſpel which I preach, far from being intimidated with the proſpect, I joy and rejoice with you all, congratulating you, and happy in myſelf that I am counted worthy of the crown of martyrdom, and enabled to leave ſo powerful a teſtimony behind me for the ſtrengthening of your faith. For the ſame cauſe alſo do ye joy and rejoice with me, and, far from being grieved or diſheartened, ſhould exult that I am enabled to be thus faithful unto death. Note, (1.) Every Chriſtian is a city ſet on a hill; he needs peculiar circumſpection; a flaw in his conduct will be exaggerated into a fault of the firſt magnitude. (2.) We muſt hold up to the world, in our profeſſion and examples, the word of life; not oſtentatiouſly proclaiming our own goodneſs, but, for God's glory and the profit of men's ſouls, ſhewing our light before men. (3.) Nothing can more revive a miniſter's heart, and make him ſo chearfully content to ſuffer for the cauſe even to death, as ſeeing his labours ſucceſsful and his miniſtry bleſt.

19. But I truſt in the Lord Jeſus to ſend [g] Timotheus ſhortly unto you, that I alſo may be of good comfort when I know your ſtate. 20. For I have no man [h] like-minded, who will naturally care for your ſtate. 21. For all [i] ſeek their own, not the things which are Jeſus Chriſt's. 22. But ye know the proof of him, that [k] as a ſon with the father, he had ſerved with me in the goſpel. 23. Him therefore I hope to ſend preſently, ſo ſoon as I ſhall ſee how it will go with me. 24. But [l] I truſt in the Lord, that I alſo myſelf ſhall come ſhortly. 25. Yet I ſuppoſed it neceſſary to ſend to you [m] Epaphroditus, my brother and companion in labour, and [n] fellow-ſoldier, but [o] your meſſenger, and [p] he that miniſtred to my wants. 26. For he [q] longed after you all, and was full of heavineſs, becauſe that ye had heard that he had been ſick. 27. For indeed he was ſick nigh unto death: but God had mercy on him; and not on him only, but on me alſo, leſt I ſhould have ſorrow upon ſorrow. 28. I ſent him therefore the more carefully, that when ye ſee him again, ye may rejoice, and that I may be the leſs ſorrowful. 29. Receive him therefore in the Lord with all gladneſs, and hold [r] ſuch in reputation: 30. Becauſe for the work of Chriſt he was nigh unto death, not regarding his life [s] to ſupply [t] your lack of ſervice towards me.

[g] Rom. xvi. 21. 1 Theſ. iii. 2.
[h] Pſ. lv. 13.
[i] 2 Cor. x. 24, 33. 2 Tim. iv. 10, 16.
[k] 1 Cor. iv. 17. 1 Tim. i. 2. 2 Tim. i. 2.
[l] Chap. i. 25. Phil. 22.
[m] Chap. iv. 18.
[n] Phil. 2.
[o] 2 Cor. viii. 23.
[p] Chap. iv. 18.
[q] Chap. i. 8.
[r] 1 Cor. xvi. 18. 1 Theſ. v. 12. 1 Tim. v. 17.
[s] 1 Cor. xvi. 17.
[t] Chap. iv. 10.

v. 19—30. Since he was now unable to viſit them himſelf, he promiſes to ſend them two of his deareſt friends to ſupply his abſence, and ſpeaks of them in the higheſt terms of regard and commendation.

1. He mentions Timothy. Though he had ſpoken of his readineſs to die, he informs them for their comfort, that he apprehended no immediate danger. But I truſt, ſays he, in the Lord Jeſus that I ſhall be delivered, and, needful as his company is now to me, that I ſhall be able to ſend Timothy ſhortly unto you, that I alſo may be of good comfort when I know your ſtate, and hear of your proſperity. For I have no man like-minded, ſo perfectly united in ſentiment with me, and ſo in affection knit to you; who will therefore naturally care for your ſtate, and with genuine regard deſire to advance your ſouls good. For all here, too generally at leaſt, ſeek their own, deſirous of eaſe and earthly advantages; not with a ſingle eye, as Timothy doth, purſuing things which are Jeſus Chriſt's, for his glory, and the edification of his people. But ye know the proof of him, by paſt experience, with what zeal and fidelity he laboured among you; and that as a ſon with the father, he had ſerved with me in the goſpel; willing to run all hazards, to ſhare my fatigues and ſufferings, and in all duty and affection obeying me as a child. Him therefore I hope to ſend preſently, ſo ſoon as I ſhall ſee how it will go with me, after I have appeared, as I ſhortly expect to do, at Ceſar's tribunal: but I truſt in the Lord, that I alſo myſelf ſhall come ſhortly, when I have regained my liberty. Note, (1.) They who enter the miniſtry with ſelfiſh views, ſeeking their own things, not thoſe of Jeſus Chriſt, ſhall bear their burden, when the great ſhepherd and biſhop of ſouls appears. (2.) A faithful paſtor feels the ſame tender concern for the children he hath begotten in the goſpel, as if they were the offspring of his own body.

2. He commends to them Epaphroditus, who brought this epiſtle to them. But I ſuppoſed it neceſſary, being unable to come myſelf, or to ſpare Timothy juſt at this critical juncture, to ſend to you Epaphroditus, my brother and companion in labour, and fellow-ſoldier, who willingly ſerved and ſuffered in the ſame bleſſed cauſe; but your meſſenger, and he that miniſtred to my wants; delivering your kind benefactions, and giving me every aſſiſtance which lay in his power. For he longed after you all, and earneſtly wiſhed to be labouring again among you; and was full of heavineſs becauſe that ye had heard that he had been ſick; knowing how deeply the ſad news would affect you. For indeed he was ſick nigh unto death; his diſeaſe, to human view, mortal and deſperate: but God had mercy on him, and brought him back from the gates of the grave: and not on him only, but on me alſo, leſt I ſhould have ſorrow upon ſorrow, anguiſh for his loſs being added to my other burdens. I ſent him therefore the more carefully, and with greater haſte, that when ye ſee him again ye may rejoice in his recovery and return to you; and that I may be the leſs ſorrowful at his departure, when I know what delight and advantage his company will be to you. Receive him therefore in the Lord with all gladneſs, with cordial regard, and as the ambaſſador of the Redeemer; and hold ſuch in reputation, highly reſpecting them for their fidelity and zeal; becauſe for the work of Chriſt he was nigh unto death, having contracted his illneſs from the fatigues he underwent; not regarding his life, but readily hazarding his health, to ſupply your lack of ſervice towards me, which the diſtance rendered you incapable of affording me. Note, (1.) Though we muſt not careleſly neglect our health, yet, when the cauſe of Chriſt demands it, a faithful miniſter will ſhew a noble contempt of life, and be ready to expoſe himſelf to diſeaſe or death. (2.) They who know the value of a faithful miniſter, will count it a ſingular mercy that he is longer ſpared to labour, and will rejoice in him before God.

CHAP. III.

1. He cautions them againſt judaizing ſeducers, ver. 1—4. 2. Propoſes his own example, and enumerates the privileges of his Jewiſh ſtate which he rejected, ver. 4—8. 3. He deſcribes the matter of his own choice, ver. 9—14. 4. He cloſes with an exhortation to beware of wicked men, and to follow his example, ver. 17—21.

1. FINALLY, my brethren, [a] rejoice in the Lord. To write the ſame things to you, to me indeed is not grievous, but for you it is ſafe. 2. [b] Beware of dogs,

[a] 2 Cor. xiii. 11. Chap iv. 4. 1 Theſ. v. 16.
[b] Iſa. lvi. 10. Gal. v. 15.

dogs, beware of [c] evil-workers, [d] beware of the conciſion. 3. For we are [e] the circumciſion [f] which worſhip God in the ſpirit, and rejoice in Chriſt Jeſus, and have no confidence in the fleſh:

[c] 2 Cor. iv. 13.
[d] Gal. v. 2.
[e] Deut. x. 16. Jer. iv. 4. Rom. ii. 29. & iv. 11, 12, Col. ii. 11.
[f] John iv. 23, 24.

v. 1—3. Into every church almoſt had the judaizing teachers crept, and cauſed much trouble to the great apoſtle. The Philippians had been ſet at by them, and needed a caution againſt their ſeductions.

1. He exhorts them to rejoice in the Lord. Finally, my brethren, after what I have ſaid for your comfort, rejoice in the Lord, as your Redeemer and Saviour, aſſured of your intereſt in all the ineſtimable bleſſings of his goſpel.

2. He warns them againſt the falſe teachers. To write the ſame things to you, which I have often ſpoken, and Epaphroditus has now in charge to deliver, to me indeed is not grievous, but for you it is ſafe to be reminded of your danger, and kept on your guard. Beware of dogs; thoſe cringing zealots, who fawn to ingratiate themſelves with you, but deſign to introduce diviſions among you, to bite and devour you; greedy, impudent, and worthleſs. Beware of evil workers, whoſe practices declare the badneſs of their principles. Beware, again I ſay, of the conciſion, no name being contemptible enough for them, who urging this aboliſhed rite, would rend the peace of the church, would introduce confuſion, and cut off the Gentiles from the privileges of the goſpel.

3. He deſcribes true chriſtianity. For we are the circumciſion, really in covenant with God, and entitled to all the ſpiritual bleſſings and privileges; which worſhip God in ſpirit; not with the outward pomp of ceremonial rites, but with the heart, according to the goſpel inſtitutions; and rejoice, or glory, in Chriſt Jeſus, as our only hope towards God, placing our whole dependance upon him, happy in the perfection of the ſalvation which he hath wrought out for us, and have no confidence in the fleſh, nor expect acceptance with God on account of any privileges of deſcent from Abraham, or any righteouſneſs which we fallen creatures can perform. Note, (1.) All true Chriſtians live in the conſtant worſhip of God, private and public; and that not formally, but in ſpirit and in truth. (2.) We muſt deſpair of ourſelves, and renounce all dependance upon our own doings and duties, before we can exerciſe faith in Jeſus, and know the joys of his ſalvation.

4. Though [g] I might alſo have confidence in the fleſh. If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he might truſt in the fleſh, I more: 5. [h] Circumciſed the eight day, [i] of the ſtock of Iſrael, [k] of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews; as touching the law, a [l] Phariſee; 6. [m] Concerning zeal, [n] perſecuting the church; [o] touching the righteouſneſs which is in the law, blameleſs. 7. But [p] what things were gain to me, thoſe I counted loſs for Chriſt. 8. Yea doubtleſs, and I count all things but loſs, [q] for the excellency of the knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus my Lord: for whom I have ſuffered the loſs of all things, and do count them but dung that I may win Chriſt, 9. And be found in him, not having mine own righteouſneſs, [r] which is of the law, but [s] that which is through the faith of Chriſt, the righteouſneſs which is of God by faith: 10. That I may know him, and the power of his reſurrection, and the [t] fellowſhip of his ſufferings, being made conformable unto his death; 11. If by any means [u] I might attain unto the reſurrection of the dead: 12. Not as though I had already [x] attained, either were already [y] perfect: but I follow after, if that I may apprehend that for which alſo I am apprehended of Chriſt Jeſus. 13. Brethren, I count not myſelf to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, [z] forgetting thoſe things which are behind, and [a] reaching forth unto thoſe things which are before, 14. I preſs toward the mark, for the prize of [b] the high calling of God in Chriſt Jeſus.

[g] 2 Cor. xi. 18.
[h] Gen. xvii. 12.
[i] 2 Cor. xi. 22.
[k] Rom. xi. 1.
[l] Acts xxiii. 6. & xxvi. 5.
[m] Acts xxii. 3. Gal. i. 13, 14.
[n] Acts viii. 3. & ix. 1.
[o] Rom. x. 5.
[p] Mat. xiii. 44.
[q] Iſa. liii. 11. Jer. ix. 24. John xvii. 3. Col. ii. 2.
[r] Rom. x. 5.
[s] Rom. i. 17. & iii. 21, 22. Gal. ii. 16.
[t] Rom. vi. 3, 4, 5. 2 Cor. iv. 10, 11. 2 Tim. ii. 11, 12. 1 Pet. iv. 13.
[u] Luke xx. 35. Acts xxvi. 7.
[x] 1 Tim. vi. 12.
[y] Heb. xii. 23.
[z] Pſ. xlv. 10. Luke ix. 62.
[a] 1 Cor. ix. 24, 26. Heb. vi. 1.
[b] Heb. iii. 1.

v. 4—14. None had more outward privileges than Paul; none more heartily renounced them, and fled to a better hope. His own example he propoſes therefore for their imitation.

1. If any man might have confidence in outward privileges, he had as many, or more, than any of the judaizing teachers: a native Iſraelite; a deſcendant from Benjamin the ſon of the beloved Rachel, the tribe that clave to the houſe of David and the temple, when the reſt revolted; on father and mother's ſide a Hebrew of pure extraction; circumciſed according to the law; brought up after the ſtricteſt ſect a Phariſee, in the obſervance both of the rites of the law, and the traditions of the elders; a zealot for Judaiſm, even ſo far as to be a bitter perſecutor of Chriſtianity; and in his outward conduct and converſation blameleſs and unexceptionable.

2. All this he renounced for Chriſt. But what things I then thought were gain to me, and raiſed me in excellence above other men; thoſe I counted loſs for Chriſt, renouncing them utterly, aſſured if I truſted upon them for acceptance I muſt be undone; and therefore reſting on Chriſt, on his blood and righteouſneſs alone. Yea doubtleſs, and I count all things but loſs, I remain in the ſame ſentiments, diſclaiming all dependance upon my preſent as well as paſt doings and duties; for the excellency of the knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus my Lord; compared with this, all beſides is refuſe; ſince I have known him as my Saviour, I want nothing more; for whom I have ſuffered the loſs of all things, which this world holds dear; and do count them but dung, contemptible offals, fit to be caſt only on the dunghill; that I may win Chriſt, and become partaker of the great ſalvation which he hath wrought out for his redeemed, and be found in him, as my city of refuge, my divine ſubſtitute and ſurety, my availing plea at the bar of God; not having mine own righteouſneſs, which is of the law, nor daring in this to appear before the Judge, conſcious how little it would bear the ſcrutiny; but that which is through the faith of Chriſt, the righteouſneſs which is of God by faith; that divine, compleat, and ſpotleſs righteouſneſs, which my Lord hath wrought out for me, which God imputes to me as my title to juſtification and life eternal, and which faith embraces as all my ſalvation. Note, (1.) Whatever we depend upon for juſtification, except on Chriſt alone, will aſſuredly prove to be our eternal loſs. (2.) There is but one righteouſneſs wherein a ſinner can appear before God; and there never was, nor can be, another, beſides that which Jeſus of Nazareth completed when he died upon the croſs.

3. The apoſtle deſired to know Chriſt, not only as his juſtifying righteouſneſs, but as the Author of all ſpiritual life and eternal bleſſedneſs. That I may know him, and experience the power of his reſurrection, as the glorious head of vital influence to all his redeemed people; and the fellowſhip of his ſufferings, daily experiencing the crucifixion of the old man, and willingly taking up my croſs, however painful; being made conformable unto his death; dying unto ſin, as Chriſt died for it; or ready to lay down my life for the goſpel, whenever I may be called thereto: if by any means I might attain unto the reſurrection of the dead; raiſed to immortal life and glory in body as well as ſoul, and reaching the happy port of eternal reſt, whither I ſteer my courſe. Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect in holineſs, as I deſire to be; but I follow after, eager to be at the goal, if that I may apprehend that, for which alſo I am apprehended of Chriſt Jeſus; holding faſt by that bleſſed Jeſus, who firſt laid hold on me in my way to Damaſcus, and truſting on his power and grace to bring me to the eternal life which he hath promiſed, and whereunto he hath appointed me. Brethren, I count not myſelf to have apprehended, or to be arrived at the ſummit of perfection; but this one thing I do, forgetting thoſe things which are behind, reſting in no preſent attainments, and reaching forth unto thoſe things which are before, after higher meaſures of grace, I preſs toward the mark, for the prize of the high calling of God in Chriſt Jeſus; with heaven in my eye I vigorouſly purſue my courſe, bending forwards eagerly as I run, and ſtretching out my arms to ſeize the crown of righteouſneſs, which Jeſus beſtows, and is to be won only through the grace and ſtrength which he ſupplies. Note, (1.) To know the power of Chriſt's reſurrection, is to experience his quickening efficacy upon our ſouls, and to be raiſed from the death of ſin to the life of righteouſneſs, as his dead body was raiſed from the grave to the life of glory. (2.) The greateſt ſaints are moſt ſenſible how ſhort they come of perfection. They who think they have grace enough, evidently ſhew they have none at all. (3.) Chriſt muſt apprehend us firſt, before we can apprehend him: his power muſt keep us, or we ſhall never reach the ſalvation to which he hath called us. (4.) Heaven is the prize in view; happy the ſoul which reaches that goal.

15. Let us therefore, as many as be [c] perfect, be thus minded: and if in any thing ye be otherwiſe minded, God ſhall reveal even this unto you. 16. Nevertheleſs, whereto we have already attained, [d] let us walk [e] by the ſame rule, [f] let us mind the ſame thing.

[c] Rom. xv. 1. 1 Cor. ii. 6. & xiv. 20. Heb. v. 14.
[d] Rom. xii. 16. & xv. 5.
[e] Gal. vi. 16.
[f] Chap. ii. 2.

v. 15, 16. The apoſtle exhorts them to be united in love, and like-minded with him. Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, and far advanced in the Chriſtian ſtate, be thus minded: and if in any thing ye be otherwiſe minded, and differ from me in ſentiments, God ſhall reveal even this unto you, and clear up to your ſatisfaction whatever may yet be dark or doubtful. Nevertheleſs, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the ſame rule of God's word; let us mind the ſame thing, wherein we are all agreed. Note, Leſſer differences of opinion ſhould make no diſunion of heart: we muſt wait together on God, that he may inſtruct us in all his holy will.

17. Brethren, [g] be followers together of me, and mark them which walk ſo, as [h] ye have us for an enſample. 18. (For [i] many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the ene-

[g] 1 Cor. iv. 16. & xi. 1. Chap. iv. 9. 1 Theſ. i. 6.
[h] 2 Theſ. iii. 9. 1 Pet. v. 3.
[i] Rom. xvi. 17. Gal. vi. 12.

mies of the croſs of Chriſt: 19. [k] Whoſe end is de-ſtruction, [l] whoſe God is their belly: and [m] whoſe glory is in their ſhame, [n] who mind earthly things.) 20. For [o] our converſation is in heaven, from whence alſo [p] we look for the Saviour the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: 21. [q] Who ſhall change our vile body, that it may be faſhioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even [r] to ſubdue all things unto himſelf.

k 2 Cor. xi. 15. l Rom. xvi. 18. m Hoſ. iv. 7. 2 Cor. xi. 12. Gal. vi. 13. n Rom. viii. 5. Tit. i. 11. o Eph. ii. 6, 19. Col. iii. 1, 3. p 1 Cor. i. 7. 1 Theſ. i. 10. Tit. ii. 13. q 1 Cor. xv. 43, 48, 49. Col. iii. 4. 1 John iii. 2. r 1 Cor. xv. 26, 27.

v. 17—21. With warnings and exhortations he cloſes the chapter.

1. He warns them againſt the falſe teachers, whoſe character he deſcribes. For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, concerned deeply for them, and jealous for you, that they are the enemies of the croſs of Chriſt, both in their principles and their practice; their lives being as contrary to the ſpirit of purity, as their dependance on circumciſion and the Moſaic rites is derogatory to the grace of the goſpel; unwilling to profeſs, or ſuffer for, a crucified Jeſus: whoſe end is deſtruction; their errors and immoralities bringing upon them eternal ruin: whoſe God is their belly; ſerving and indulging their ſenſual appetites, as their chief happineſs: and whoſe glory is their ſhame; boaſting themſelves in their evil ways, and proud of their privileges, which only ſerve to cover them with confuſion, whilſt they behave ſo unſuitably thereunto: who mind earthly things, and have their groveling minds ever fixed on the intereſts, pleaſures, and honours of this miſerable world. Note, (1.) They who make their belly their God, glory in their ſins, and live after the faſhion of the world, will infallibly find the end of their ways to be the deſtruction of both body and ſoul. (2.) It is a bitter grief to the faithful, when they behold any that bear the Chriſtian name a diſhonour to their holy profeſſion.

2. He exhorts them to copy the good examples which he and others ſhewed them. Brethren, be ye followers together of me, as I am of Chriſt, and mark them which walk ſo, as ye have us for an enſample, and adorn the goſpel they profeſs. For our converſation is in heaven; our traffic and concerns all lie there, and we regard ourſelves as ſtrangers upon earth, and denizens of the celeſtial city; from whence alſo we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to come at the laſt day, and bring us home to his bleſſed ſelf; who ſhall change our vile body, that now bears the moſt humbling marks of weakneſs and infirmity, and will ſhortly be loathſome in the duſt; that it may be faſhioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to ſubdue all things unto himſelf; when death, the laſt of his enemies, ſhall be ſwallowed up in victory, and we ſhall riſe, and ſhine, and reign with our exalted head in glory everlaſting.

CHAP. IV.

Exhortations to ſeveral Chriſtian duties, as ſtedfaſtneſs, unanimity, joy, &c. ver. 1—9. The apoſtle's grateful acknowledgments of the Philippians kindneſs to him, with expreſſions of his own content, and deſire of their good, ver. 10—20. He concludes the epiſtle with praiſe, ſalutations, and bleſſings, ver. 21—23.

1. THerefore, my brethren, dearly beloved and [a] longed for, [b] my joy and crown, [c] ſo ſtand faſt in the Lord, my dearly beloved. 2. I beſeech Euodias, and beſeech Syntyche, [d] that they be of the ſame mind in the Lord. 3. And I intreat thee alſo, true yoke-fellow, [e] help thoſe women which laboured with me in the goſpel, with Clement alſo, and with other my fellow-labourers, whoſe names are in [f] the book of life. 4. [g] Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again I ſay, Rejoice. 5. Let your moderation be known unto all men. [h] The Lord is at hand. 6. [i] Be careful for nothing: but in every thing by prayer and ſupplication with thankſgiving, let your requeſts be made known unto God. 7. And [k] the peace of God which paſſeth all underſtanding, ſhall keep your hearts and minds through Chriſt Jeſus. 8. Finally, brethren, [l] whatſo-ever things are true, whatſoever things are † honeſt, whatſoever things are juſt, whatſoever things are pure, whatſoever things are lovely, whatſoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praiſe, think on theſe things. 9. [m] Thoſe things which ye have both learned and received, and heard and ſeen in me, do; and [n] the God of peace ſhall be with you.

a Chap. i. 8. b 2 Cor. i. 14. Chap. ii. 16. 1 Theſ. ii. 19, 20. c Chap. i. 17. d Chap. ii. 2. e Rom. xvi. 2. f Ex. xxxii. 32. Pſ. lxix. 28. Dan. xii. 1. Luke x. 20. Rev. iii. 5. & xx. 12. & xxi. 27. g Chap. iii. 1. 1 Theſ. v. 16. h Heb. x. 25. Jam. v. 9. 2 Pet. iii. 8, 9. i Pſ. lv. 22. Prov. xvi. 3. Mat. vi. 25. 1 Cor. vii. 32. 1 Pet. v. 7. k John xiv. 27. Rom. v. 1. Col. iii. 15. l 1 Theſ. v. 23. † Or venerable. m Chap. iii. 17. n Rom. xv. 33. 2 Cor. xiii. 11. Heb. xiii. 20, 21.

v. 1—9. The apoſtle,

1. With the moſt endearing appellations exhorts them to ſtand faſt in the truth. Therefore, my brethren, dearly beloved and longed for, to whom my whole ſoul is drawn out in warmeſt affection, and whoſe ſalvation I ſo earneſtly deſire, longing to ſee you, my joy, in every remembrance of your fidelity, and crown, whom now I eſteem my chief honour, and who will be my moſt diſtinguiſhed glory in the day of Chriſt; ſo ſtand faſt in the Lord, my dearly beloved; cleaving to that divine Redeemer in whom you have believed; unſhaken by danger, unterrified by oppoſition, and looking up for that almighty grace, which can make you more than conquerors. Note, (1.) None can tell the fervent longings of a faithful miniſter's heart after the ſalvation of his people's ſouls, but thoſe that feel them. (2.) They who have already approved themſelves faithful, are eſpecially bound to perſevere in the ſame bleſſed courſe.

2. He intreats, that ſome individuals who were at variance, either with the church, or each other, might be happily reconciled. I beſeech Euodias, and I beſeech Syntyche, that they be of the ſame mind in the Lord, and lay aſide their diſputes, united in love and peace. And I intreat thee alſo, true yoke-fellow, who with me already haſt heartily laboured in the cauſe of Chriſt, help thoſe women, and endeavour to reconcile them to the church, and to each other, which have been ſo uſeful in former days, and laboured with me in the goſpel, helping and aſſiſting me; with Clement alſo, and with other of my fellow-labourers, whoſe names are in the book of life, of the Lamb ſlain from the foundation of the world, regiſtred among the elect of God, and heirs of ſalvation; and happy are they whoſe names ſhall be found written there.

3. He exhorts them to holy joy. Rejoice in the Lord alway; in all circumſtances, and under every trial, maintain a holy delight in God, which will ſweeten every affliction: and again I ſay, Rejoice in him as your Saviour, your refuge, help, and hope, in every time of need.

4. Let your moderation be known unto all men, (το επιεικες) ſhew a ſpirit of meekneſs and patience, that never is wearied out with provocations, and in affection be weaned from every inordinate attachment to this preſent world. The Lord is at hand, and will ſoon confound your Jewiſh adverſaries in the deſtruction of their city and temple, and ſhortly will put an end to all your trials in the great day of his appearing and glory.

5. Be careful for nothing; without perplexity or tormenting ſollicitude about the concerns of this world, and the difficulties in your way: but in every thing, at all times, and in all circumſtances, by prayer and ſupplication with thankſgiving, let your requeſts be made known unto God; caſting all your care upon him, praiſing him for all the paſt mercies you have experienced, and truſting him for whatever may be yet to come. And the peace of God which paſſeth all underſtanding, ſhall keep your hearts and minds through Chriſt Jeſus; in anſwer to your prayers God will give you his bleſſed peace, preſerving you ſedate and calm amidſt every ſtorm, fortifying your minds againſt every foe, and keeping you in a happy ſerenity, neither diſcompoſed, nor fainting under any of your troubles, till he brings you to the eternal reſt which remaineth for his people in glory. Note, (1.) Though prudent forecaſt is not forbidden, all anxious fears, that imply diſtruſt of God, and bring torment to the heart, are exceeding ſinful. (2.) Prayer is the antidote to every ill; and whilſt we have a throne of grace open, where we can pour all our complaints into the boſom of a compaſſionate God, however perplexed, we need never be in deſpair, but ſhould quietly wait to ſee the ſalvation of God.

6. Finally, brethren, whatſoever things are true, agreeable to the word of God, and the dictates of ſincerity and truth; whatſoever things are honeſt, venerable and becoming in dreſs, language, and deportment; whatſoever things are juſt, and equitable in your dealings and tranſactions; whatſoever things are pure, in thought, word, and action; whatſoever things are lovely, and render you amiable in the ſight of God and man; whatſoever things are of good report, among the truly religious; if there be any virtue, any thing truly noble, brave, and generous; if there be any thing that deſerves praiſe and commendation, think on theſe things, and ſeriouſly deſire to be found in the exerciſe of them. Thoſe things which ye have both learned and received, and heard and ſeen in me, do; copy after my precepts and practice; and then the God of peace ſhall be with you, and bleſs you with his preſence, and more abundant meaſures of his grace and love.

10. But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly, that now at the laſt [o] your care of me † hath flouriſhed again, wherein ye were alſo careful, but ye lacked opportunity. 11.
Not that I ſpeak in reſpect of want: for I have learned in whatſoever ſtate I am, [p] therewith to be content. 12.
[q] I know both how to be abaſed, and I know how to abound: every where, and in all things I am inſtructed, both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to ſuffer need. 13. I can do all things [r] through Chriſt which ſtrengthneth me. 14. Notwithſtanding, ye have well done, that [s] ye did communicate with my affliction.
15. Now, ye Philippians, know alſo, that in the beginning of the goſpel, when I departed from Macedonia, [t] no church communicated with me, as concerning giving and receiving, but ye only. 16. For even in Theſſalo-nica ye ſent once and again unto my neceſſity. 17. Not becauſe

o 2 Cor. xi. 9. † Or, is revived. p 1 Tim. vi. 8, 9. q 1 Cor. iv. 11. 2 Cor. xi. 27. r John xv. 5. 2 Cor. xii. 9. s Chap. i. 7. t 2 Cor. xi. 8, 9.

because I deſire a gift: but I deſire [u] fruit that may abound to your account. 18. But I have all, and abound: I am full, having received [x] of Epaphroditus the things which were ſent from you, [y] an odour of a ſweet ſmell, [z] a ſacrifice acceptable, well-pleaſing to God. 19. But my God [a] ſhall ſupply all your need, [b] according to his riches in glory, by Chriſt Jeſus.

[u] Rom. xv. 28. Tit iii. 14.
[x] Chap. ii. 25.
[y] Heb. xiii. 16.
[z] 2 Cor. ix. 12.
[a] Pſ. xxiii. 1. 2 Cor. ix. 8.
[b] Eph. i. 7. & iii. 16.

v. 10—19. The Philippians had generouſly contributed to the apoſtle's ſupport, and he gratefully mentions it to their honour.

1. He expreſſes his joy in the preſent freſh proof they had given of love to him, and regard for the cauſe of Chriſt. But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly, that now at the laſt your care of me hath flouriſhed again, and you have added to your former inſtances of generoſity; wherein ye were alſo careful, and would ere this have ſent to my relief, but ye lacked opportunity.—Though it was a debt they juſtly owed him, he mentions it as a favour for which he eſteemed himſelf much obliged.

2. He obviates an ill uſe which might be made of what he ſaid. Not that I ſpeak in reſpect of want, as though I was diſtruſtful of a proviſion, or uneaſy at my worldly circumſtances; for I have learned in whatſoever ſtate I am, therewith to be content, ſatisfied in all the will of God. I know both how to be abaſed, and how to abound: in the loweſt circumſtances compoſed, in the greateſt affluence not elated. Every where, and in all things I am inſtructed, by my divine Maſter, to accommodate my mind to my ſituation; both to be full, and to be hungry; both to abound, and to ſuffer need; to know the want of bread without repining, and to have abundance without abuſing it to exceſs. I can do all things thro' Chriſt which ſtrengtheneth me, and enables me for all the ſervices and ſufferings to which in his providence he is pleaſed to call me: notwithſtanding, ye have well done, that ye did communicate with my affliction, in the ſeaſonable relief you kindly ſent. Note, (1.) Want is a great temptation to murmur, as abundance is to exceſs; but divine grace will enable us to accommodate our hearts to every circumſtance. (2.) Though our ſtrength is very weakneſs, the omnipotence of Jeſus is engaged for us, and then nothing is impracticable.

3. He makes honourable mention of what they had formerly done. Now ye Philippians, know alſo, that in the beginning of the goſpel, when I departed from Macedonia, or was ready to depart, to other parts, no church communicated with me, as concerning giving and receiving, but ye only; for even in Theſſalonica, a city ſo much more wealthy than your own, where I was conſtrained to work hard for my bread, ye ſent once and again unto my neceſſity, when my circumſtances were very ſtrait, and my wants preſſing. Not that I mention theſe things becauſe I deſire a gift, and want to worm myſelf into your favour: no ſuch mercenary views influence my conduct; but I deſire fruit that may abound to your account in the great day of recompence, when theſe labours of love ſhall be remembered and rewarded.

4. He acknowledges the receipt of what Epaphroditus brought, and how ſufficient it was for his needs; aſſuring them, that God would accept it as the moſt grateful ſacrifice at their hands. But I have all I want, and abound: I am full, having received of Epaphroditus the things which were ſent from you, an odour of a ſweet ſmell, a ſacrifice acceptable, well-pleaſing to God; better than the fumes of incenſe, or the ſmoak of burnt-offerings. But, tho' I cannot repay you in kind, my God, who is all-ſufficient, ſhall ſupply all your need, giving you the earthly good things you want, and eſpecially beſtowing all ſpiritual bleſſings upon you, according to his riches in glory, by Chriſt Jeſus, which ineſtimable treaſures he hath laid up for you, and will, through Chriſt Jeſus, miniſter unto you both in time and eternity. Note, None were ever loſers by what they lent to the Lord, and employed in the ſervice of his bleſſed cauſe.

20. Now unto God our Father be glory for ever and ever. Amen. 21. Salute every ſaint in Chriſt Jeſus. [c] The brethren which are with me greet you. 22. All the ſaints ſalute you, [d] chiefly they that are of Ceſar's houſhold. 23. [e] The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all. Amen.

[c] Gal. i. 2.
[d] Chap. i. 13.
[e] Rom. xvi. 24.

v. 20—23. We have here,

1. An aſcription of praiſe to God. Now unto God our Father be glory for ever and ever. Amen. He is our Father to love us, our God abundantly to provide for us. We have long experienced his love and grace; with confidence let us truſt him, and aſcribe to him the praiſe we owe for all his paſt kindneſs and everlaſting promiſes. Note, If God be our Father, we can want no manner of thing that is good.

2. Salutations to the brethren. Salute every ſaint in Chriſt Jeſus; let every member of the church be aſſured of my moſt cordial regard, and kindeſt wiſhes. The brethren which are with me greet you with beſt remembrances. All the ſaints ſalute you, and join in Chriſtian reſpects towards you; chiefly they that are of Ceſar's houſhold, the domeſtics of his family, now converted to the faith, and one in affection with you. Note, It is a comfort to a real Chriſtian to conſider, that multitudes, whom he never ſaw or knew, bear him upon their hearts, and remember him in their prayers.

3. His cloſing benediction. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, in all its incomprehenſible extent, and inconceivable fulneſs, be with you all; may the whole church, and every member, ſhare it in the richeſt abundance. Amen!

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;

OR, A

PRACTICAL COMMENT

Upon the EPISTLE of

St. PAUL to the COLOSSIANS.

COLOSSE was a conſiderable city of Phrygia, and probably not far from Laodicea and Hierapolis; we find theſe three mentioned together, chap. iv. 13. It is now buried in ruins, and the memory of it chiefly preſerved in this epiſtle. The deſign of the epiſtle is to warn them of their danger from the Jewiſh zealots, who preſſed the neceſſity of obſerving the ceremonial law; and to fortify them againſt the mixture of the Gentile philoſophy with their Chriſtian principles. He profeſſes a great ſatisfaction in their ſtedfaſtneſs and conſtancy, and encourages them to perſeverance. It was written about the ſame time with the epiſtle to the Epheſians and Philippians, Anno Domini 62. and in the ſame place, while he was now priſoner at Rome. He was not idle in his confinement, and the word of God was not bound.

Who planted this church is not ſaid; perhaps Epaphras, (chap. i. 6, 7.) Paul himſelf appears not yet to have ſeen them; but what he had heard of them engaged him, as the apoſtle of the Gentiles, to contribute to their edification.

CHAP. I.

The inſcription as uſual, ver. 1, 2. His thankſgiving to God for what he had heard concerning them; their faith, love, and hope, ver. 3—8. He prays for their knowledge, fruitfulneſs, and ſtrength, ver. 9—11. Gives them an admirable ſummary of the Chriſtian doctrine concerning the operation of the Spirit, the perſon of the Redeemer, the work of redemption, and the preaching of it in the goſpel, ver. 12—28.

[a] Rom. i. 7. Eph. i. 1. [b] 1 Cor. iv. 17. Eph. vi. 21. [c] Gal. i. 3. 1 Pet. i. 2.

1. PAUL an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, by the will of God, and Timotheus our brother, 2. To [a] the ſaints and [b] faithful brethren in Chriſt, which are at Coloſſe: [c] Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

v. 1, 2. With his uſual introduction the apoſtle opens his epiſtle. Paul an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, by the will of God, appointed to that eminent honour and office by an immediate commiſſion from heaven, and Timotheus our brother, who joins with me in this epiſtle, to the ſaints and faithful brethren in Chriſt, which are at Coloſſe, who are the living members of his body myſtical, and in practice correſpond with their holy profeſſion; Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; may every bleſſing of pardon, adoption, comfort, ſtrength, perſeverance, glory, be your happy portion!

[d] Eph. i. 16. Phil. i. 3. & iv. 6. 1 Theſ. i. 2. [e] Eph. i. 15. Phil. 5. [f] 1 Pet. i. 4.

[g] Mat. xxiv. 14. Rom. x. 18. Ver. 23. [h] Mark iv. 8. John xv. 16. [i] Chap. iv. 12. Phil. 23. [k] 2 Cor. xi. 23. 1 Tim. iv. 6. [l] Rom. xv. 30. [m] Eph. i. 15. [n] 1 Cor. i. 5. [o] Rom. xii. 2. Eph. v. 17. [p] Eph. iv. 1. Phil. i. 27. 1 Theſ. ii. 12. [q] 1 Theſ. iv. 1. [r] John xv. 16. Eph. i. 11. [s] Eph. iii. 16. & vi. 10. [t] Rom. v. 3. [u] Acts v. 41. Heb. x. 34.

3. [d] We give thanks to God, and the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, praying always for you: 4. Since [e] we heard of your faith in Chriſt Jeſus, and of the love which ye have to all the ſaints; 5. For the hope [f] which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye heard before in the word of the truth of the goſpel: 6. Which is come unto you, [g] as it is in all the world, and [h] bringeth forth fruit, as it doth alſo in you, ſince the day ye heard of it, and knew the grace of God in truth. 7. As ye alſo learned of [i] Epaphras our dear fellow-ſervant, [k] who is for you a faithful miniſter of Chriſt; 8. Who alſo declared unto us your [l] love in the Spirit. 9. [m] For this cauſe we alſo, ſince the day we heard it, do not ceaſe to pray for you, and to deſire [n] that ye might be filled with [o] the knowledge of his will, in all wiſdom and ſpiritual underſtanding: 10. [p] That ye might walk worthy of the Lord [q] unto all pleaſing, [r] being fruitful in every good work, and increaſing in the knowledge of God; 11. [s] Strengthned with all might, according to his glorious power, [t] unto all patience and long-ſuffering [u] with joyfulneſs;

v. 3—11. Though unknown to them in perſon, yet in heart and affection warmly attached to them, the bleſſed Paul,

1. Thanks God for the pleaſing account which he had heard of them. We give thanks to God, and the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, our reconciled and covenant God in him; praying always for you, that you may abide and abound in every thing that is excellent, and bleſſing God for what he hath already done on your behalf; ſince we heard of your faith in Chriſt Jeſus, and how cordially you embraced his glorious goſpel, and reſted firm on him alone for acceptance and ſalvation: and of the love which ye have to all the ſaints, the genuine fruit of your faith, and the proof of your unfeigned love to him, whoſe image they bear; for the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, even the eternal bleſſedneſs which God hath prepared and promiſed, whereof ye heard before in the word of the truth of the goſpel: which is come unto you; through the Divine Providence it hath been preached among you, as it is in all the world, throughout the Roman empire, and bringeth forth fruit, made effectual by the Divine Power to the converſion of men's ſouls, as it doth alſo in you produce the moſt bleſſed effects, ſince the day ye heard of it, and knew the grace of God in truth, experimentally made acquainted therewith, receiving the goſpel both in the light and in the love of it. As ye alſo learned of Epaphras, our dear fellow-ſervant, who is for you a faithful miniſter of Chriſt, for to his labours you are ſingularly indebted; who alſo declared to us your love in the Spirit, teſtifying his warm affection toward you, in the report he made of your unfeigned love to Chriſt and his people, the evidence of the effectual work of God's Spirit in your ſouls. Note, (1.) The mercies of which others, who are near and dear to us partake, call for our thankfulneſs, as well as thoſe which we receive from God ourſelves. (2.) It is a mercy, through Divine Providence, to hear the word of the truth of the goſpel preached; but the grand matter is to receive it into our hearts, and to know the grace of God in truth. (3.) Wherever Divine Grace operates effectually, it will be ſeen in the bleſſed fruits which are produced thereby. (4.) A faithful miniſter is an invaluable bleſſing to any people, and highly are they bound to love and honour them.

2. To his thankſgivings he adds his hearty prayers. For this cauſe we alſo, ſince the day we heard it, do not ceaſe to pray for you, (1.) That ye may be made wiſe unto ſalvation, and to deſire that ye might be filled with the knowledge of his will, your minds more clearly diſcerning the riches of his grace, your privileges, and the practice of holineſs which thence reſults, advancing in all wiſdom and ſpiritual underſtanding: and (2.) Diſpoſed to follow in ſimplicity the light which God beſtows, that ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleaſing, adorning your holy profeſſion by a ſuitable converſation, and deſiring to approve yourſelves to the great Maſter, being fruitful, as trees of righteouſneſs, in every good work that is for the glory of God, and the benefit of your brethren; and thus increaſing in the knowledge of God. Note, As knowledge is eſſential to all acceptable ſervice, ſo the more faithfully we improve the grace given unto us, the more fully ſhall we be let into the ſecrets of wiſdom. For if any man doth his will, he ſhall know of the doctrine whether it be of God, John vii. 17. (3.) We pray that ye may be ſtrengthened with all might in the inner man, for the diſcharge of every duty, and to reſiſt every enemy of your ſouls, according to his glorious power, which can ſupport you abundantly unto all patience and long-ſuffering with joyfulneſs, bearing up with chearfulneſs under all perſecutions or afflictions which may befal you, neither weary nor deſponding, but with holy triumph exulting in the grace you have experienced, and the promiſes of continual help in every time of need. Note, (1.) All our ſtrength muſt come from above, and is to be obtained in the way of prayer. (2.) Every believer, conflicting with ſin and Satan, is a living monument of God's glorious power, and, like the burning buſh, though compaſſed with temptations, is not confumed. (3.) However multiplied, prolonged, or afflictive our trials may be, we are called to exerciſe all patience, and neither to murmur nor faint under them; and hard as the work is, God can enable us for that which he doth command, yea, not only to be reſigned, but to rejoice in the midſt of tribulations.

12. [x] Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of [y] the inheritance of the ſaints in light: 13. Who hath delivered us [z] from the power of darkneſs, and hath tranſlated us into the kingdom of his dear Son: 14. [a] In whom we have redemption [b] through his blood, even [c] the forgiveneſs of ſins. 15. Who is [d] the image of the inviſible God, [e] the firſt-born of every creature: 16. For [f] by him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth, viſible and inviſible, whether they be thrones, or [g] dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created [h] by him, and for him. 17. And he is before all things, and [i] by him all things conſiſt. 18 And [k] he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, [l] the firſt born from the dead; that in all things he might have the preeminence. 19. For it pleaſed the Father that [m] in him ſhould all fulneſs dwell; 20. And ([n] having made peace through the blood of his croſs) [o] by him to reconcile [p] all things unto himſelf, by him, I ſay, whether they be things in earth, or things in heaven. 21. And you [q] that were ſometimes alienated, and enemies in your mind [r] by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled, 22. [s] In the body of his fleſh through death, to preſent you [t] holy and unblameable, and unreproveable in his ſight: 23. [u] If ye continue in the faith [x] grounded and ſettled, and be not moved away from the hope of the goſpel, which ye have heard; and [y] which was preached [z] to every creature which is under heaven; [a] whereof I Paul am made a miniſter. 24. [b] Who now rejoice in my ſufferings [c] for you, and fill up [d] that which is behind of the afflictions of Chriſt in my fleſh, for [e] his body's ſake, which is the church: 25. Whereof I am made a miniſter according to [f] the diſpenſation of God, which is given to me for you, † to fulfil the word of God; 26. Even [g] the myſtery which hath been hid from ages, and from generations, [h] but now is made manifeſt to his ſaints: 27. [i] To whom God would make known what is [k] the riches of the glory of this myſtery among the Gentiles; which is Chriſt in you, [l] the hope of glory: 28. Whom we preach, [m] warning every man, and [n] teaching every man in all wiſdom; [o] that we may preſent every man perfect in Chriſt Jeſus: 29. Whereunto [p] I alſo labour, [q] ſtriving according to his working, which worketh in me mightily.

[x] Eph. v. 20.
[y] Acts xxvi. 18.
[z] Acts xxvi. 18. 1 Pet. ii. 9. or Eph. vi. 12.
[a] Rom. iii. 24. Eph. i. 7.
[b] Acts xx. 28.
[c] Acts xiii. 38.
[d] 2 Cor. iv. 4. Heb. i. 3.
[e] Rev. iii. 14.
[f] John i. 3. Heb. i. 2.
[g] Rom. viii. 38. Eph. i. 21. Chap. ii. 15. 1 Pet. iii. 22.
[h] Rom. xi. 36. Heb. ii. 10.
[i] Heb. i. 3.
[k] Eph. i. 22. & iv. 15. & v. 23.
[l] Acts xxvi. 23. 1 Cor. xv. 20, 23. Rev. i. 5.
[m] John i. 16. & iii. 34. Chap. ii. 9.
[n] Eph. ii. 14, 15.
[o] Rom. v. 10. 2 Cor. v. 18.
[p] Eph. i. 10.
[q] Eph. ii. 2, 12.
[r] Tit. i. 15.
[s] Eph. ii. 15.
[t] Luke i. 75. Eph. i. 4. & v. 27. Tit. ii. 14.
[u] Heb. iii. 6, 14.
[x] Eph. iii. 17. Chap. ii. 7.
[y] Rom. x. 18.
[z] Ver. 6.

[a] Acts i. 17. Ver. 25.
[b] 2 Cor. vii. 4.
[c] Eph. iii. 1, 13.
[d] 2 Cor. i. 5, 6. 2 Tim. i. 8. & ii. 10.
[e] Eph. i. 23.
[f] Ep. iii. 2. Ver. 23.
† Or, fully to preach. Rom. xv. 19.
[g] Rom. xvi. 25. 1 Cor. ii. 7. Eph. iii. 9.
[h] Mat. xiii. 11. Eph. i. 9. 2 Tim. i. 10.
[i] 2 Cor. ii. 14.
[k] Rom. ix. 23. Eph. i. 7, 18. & iii. 8.
[l] 1 Tim. i. 1.
[m] Acts xx. 31.
[n] Acts xx. 20, 27.
[o] 2 Cor. xi. 2. Eph. v. 27.
[p] 1 Cor. xv. 10.
[q] Chap. ii. 1.

v. 12—29. The apoſtle returns again to thankſgiving,

1. In the view of the ineſtimable bleſſings to which they had been admitted. Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the ſaints in light, by his Spirit renewing our hearts, raiſing up our affections to high and heavenly things, and preparing us for that glory which he hath prepared for us. Note, (1.) Our inheritance is ſecured to us in Chriſt, and comes to us by grace, not by deſert; he adopts us as children, and then we become heirs of conſequence. (2.) All, who have this title, are educated as becomes the ſons of God; and though the inheritance is ſure to them in a covenant of promiſe, they are made meet for the enjoyment of it: and it would be folly and deluſion to expect our lot among the ſaints in light, if we have not our converſation among them here below.

2. He gives thanks to God, who hath delivered us from the power of darkneſs, plucking us as brands from the burning, reſcuing us from the ſlavery of ſin and Satan, and hath tranſlated us into the kingdom of his dear Son, admitting us to the ineſtimable privileges and bleſſings of that kingdom of light and grace which Jeſus came to erect, that we might be brought under his happy government. Note, (1.) We are by nature ſlaves of ſin and Satan, walking in darkneſs, and liable each moment to ruſh into eternal darkneſs. (2.) It is an act of ſovereign and amazing grace, when God is pleaſed to pluck the ſinner from this miſerable ſtate. (3.) They who are brought into the kingdom of the Son of God's love, will ſhare that love with him, and be made eternally happy thereby.

3. He bleſſes God for the ſalvation obtained through Chriſt, in whom we have redemption through his blood, including not only deliverance from wrath, but the purchaſed poſſeſſion in glory; and, as the preſent earneſt thereof, the forgiveneſs of ſins, freely, fully, for ever: ſo that we ſtand without fault before the throne of God.

2. He deſcribes the glorious perſonage to whom we are indebted for pardon, grace, glory, and every bleſſing, who is the image of the inviſible God, one with the Father in eſſence and perfections, and, as incarnate, appears his viſible repreſentative, the firſt-born of every creature, begotten before the worlds were, or the firſt-begotten (πρωτοτοκος) of every creature. For by him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth, viſible and inviſible, from the loweſt rank of beings to the higheſt archangel; whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers, by whatever names or titles diſtinguiſhed, whether in heaven or in earth: all things were created by him, and for him, by his power, and for his glory. And he is before all things, in eternal pre-exiſtence, and by him all things conſiſt, preſerved and upheld by his providence and care, as they were ſpoken into being at his word. And he is the head of the body, in his peculiar character as mediator, not only as having the dominion over all things, but alſo as communicating vital influence to the ſeveral members, of which the church univerſal is compoſed: who is the beginning, the principle of ſpiritual and eternal life to his people, the firſt born from the dead, who roſe by his own power, and is the pledge, cauſe, and firſt-fruits of our reſurrection, that in all things he might have the pre-eminence, exalted far above all creatures, the object of adoration to men and angels, and poſſeſſing the firſt place in their affection and regard. For it pleaſed the Father, in conſequence of the complete redemption which he hath obtained, that in him ſhould all fulneſs dwell for the uſe of his church, all fulneſs of merit, righteouſneſs, graces, gifts, according to their wants, to be freely diſpenſed to every member of his body myſtical. And (having made peace through the blood of his croſs, receiving full ſatisfaction to his juſtice, by the oblation of the body of Jeſus once for all, and now, conſiſtent with his own glory, being able to extend mercy to the guilty ſinner) it pleaſed the Father to reconcile all things unto himſelf, reſtoring them from their ſtate of enmity to his forfeited regard, in a way as honourable to him, as happy and ſafe for them; by him, I ſay, whether they be things on earth, or things in heaven, the members of the church militant here below, or thoſe already entered into reſt above. How glorious is the croſs of Chriſt beheld in this delightful view! How juſtly worthy to be the grand object ever in our view, ſince to it we are indebted for all we poſſeſs here, and all we hope for hereafter!

3. He mentions with delight the particular intereſt which they, to whom he wrote, poſſeſſed in all the bleſſings of this glorious redemption. And you, that were ſometimes utterly alienated from God, and enemies in your mind by wicked works, by nature, by practice, rebels againſt the divine government, yet now hath he reconciled, in the body of his fleſh through death, receiving you into the arms of his mercy, when drawing near to him by faith, through that new and living way which he hath conſecrated through the vail of his crucified body, to preſent you holy and unblameable, and unreproveable in his ſight, becauſe accepted in the beloved; and being found in him, complete in the righteouſneſs which he hath provided, the piercing eye of juſtice can diſcern no ſpot, nor wrinkle in you: and this will infallibly be your happy caſe, both now and for ever, if ye continue in the faith, and really poſſeſs what you profeſs; or, ſince ye continue in the faith, and have given the ſtrongeſt proofs of your union with the Lord, grounded and ſettled on him the true foundation, and be not moved away from the hope of the goſpel, even that ſubſtantial hope, which ſprings from the perfect atonement, complete righteouſneſs, and all-ſufficient grace ſecured to you in the great Redeemer, which bleſſed goſpel ye have, through peculiar mercy, heard; and which was preached to every creature which is under heaven, as a common ſalvation, alike free for Gentiles as for Jews, and extending to ſinners of every rank and condition. Note, The goſpel is grace abounding; none periſh becauſe of the greatneſs of their guilt, but becauſe they reject the only remedy through pride and unbelief, and will not come to Chriſt, that they might have life.

4. Having mentioned the goſpel which was preached unto them, among others who were honoured with the diſpenſation of it, he humbly inſerts his own name; whereof I Paul am made a miniſter, by ſpecial commiſſion on behalf of the Gentiles. Who now rejoice in my ſufferings for the glorious truths which I have preached unto them, and fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Chriſt in my fleſh, for his body's ſake, which is the church; not that the ſufferings of Chriſt were incomplete, and needed any addition to them in order to obtain the redemption of his people, and make ſatisfaction to Divine Juſtice; but as the members of his body are all to go through tribulation to glory, I, who was the inſtrument of their ſufferings formerly, now in turn receive my meaſure of afflictions, and with holy joy triumph under them, when I have cauſe to hope his church and people ſhall be profited thereby: whereof I am made a miniſter, by a call immediately from heaven, according to the diſpenſation of God, in ſettling the œconomy of his peculiar family, which is given to me for you Gentiles, to fulfil the word of God, which was commanded me, or in correſpondence with the prophecies which had foretold your call and converſion; even the myſtery which had been hid from ages, and from generations, that the Gentiles ſhould be fellow heirs, but now is made manifeſt to his ſaints, his prophets and apoſtles, and by them to all the faithful: to whom God would make known what is the riches of the glory of this myſtery among the Gentiles, who ſhould be admitted to the participation of all the invaluable privileges of the goſpel, the author, purchaſer, and diſpenſer of which is Chriſt in you, formed in your hearts by faith, the hope of glory: whom we preach as the only Saviour of the miſerable and deſperate, warning every man of the mortal danger of ſin, and his inevitable ruin out of Chriſt, and teaching every man in all wiſdom concerning the only method of ſafety, even faith in a crucified Saviour, that we may preſent every man perfect in Chriſt Jeſus, complete in him as their head, and grown up to the perfection of knowledge, grace, and holineſs, in the day of his appearing and glory: whereunto I alſo labour, ſtriving with every nerve, in the midſt of oppoſing enemies, according to his working which worketh in me mightily, who enables me for the conflict, and crowns my labours with ſucceſs.

CHAP. II.

The apoſtle's concern for the Coloſſians, ver. 1—4. Repeated again, ver. 5. He cautions them againſt falſe teachers among the Jews, ver. 6—8. And againſt the Gentile philoſophy, ver. 9—13. Repreſents the privileges of Chriſtians, ver. 14—16. And concludes with a caution againſt the judaizing teachers, and thoſe who would introduce the worſhip of angels, ver. 17—22.

1. FOR I would that ye knew what great [a] conflict I have for you, and for them at Laodicea, and for as many as have not ſeen my face in the fleſh: 2. [b] That their hearts might be comforted, [c] being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the full aſſurance of understanding, [d] to the acknowledgment of the myſtery of God, and of the Father, and of Chriſt. 3. [e] In whom are hid all the treaſures of wiſdom and knowledge.

[a] Chap. i. 29. Phil. i. 30. 1 Theſ. ii. 2.
[b] 2 Cor. i. 6.
[c] Chap. iii. 14.
[d] Phil. iii. 8.
[e] 1 Cor. i. 24. Chap. i. 19.

v. 1—3. Though the apoſtle had no perſonal knowledge of the Coloſſians, the report he had heard engaged his warmeſt affections towards them. For I would that ye knew what great conflict I have for you, how ſollicitous I am for your welfare, and wreſtle earneſtly with God in prayer on your behalf, and for them at Laodicea, and for as many as have not ſeen my face in the fleſh: and this eſpecially I aſk of the Lord, that their hearts might be comforted under every trial, with thoſe conſolations which he beſtows on his choſen, being knit together in love to Chriſt, and one another, and unto all riches of the full aſſurance of underſtanding, ſeeking to attain the moſt diſtinct and comprehenſive knowledge of the goſpel, with all its invaluable privileges, to the acknowledgment of the myſtery of God, and of the Father, and of Chriſt, teſtifying the fulleſt approbation of that glorious ſcheme of ſalvation, which, though unknown before, is now revealed to the Gentiles, wherein God appears as their reconciled God and Father in Chriſt, the covenant-head of his redeemed. In whom are hid all the treaſures of wiſdom and knowledge, for the uſe of his people, that he might ſo order all the diſpenſations of his providence and grace, as moſt effectually to conduct them ſafe amidſt all their difficulties to his eternal kingdom. Note, (1.) It is God's will that his people ſhould be comforted, and for this his miniſters ſhould labour. (2.) Nothing tends more to cauſe our conſolations to abound than the union of our hearts to Jeſus, and to our brethren, in love unfeigned. (3.) Whatever remaining ignorance be in us, or darkneſs ſurround our ſteps, he who hath all the treaſures of wiſdom is our guide, and he will lead us by the right way.

4. And this I ſay, [f] leſt any man ſhould beguile you [g] with enticing words. 5. For [h] though I be abſent in the fleſh, yet am I with you in the ſpirit, joying and beholding [i] your order, and the ſtedfaſtneſs of your faith in Chriſt. 6. [k] As ye have therefore received Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, ſo walk ye in him: 7. [l] Rooted and built up in him, and ſtabliſhed in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thankſgiving. 8. [m] Beware leſt any man ſpoil you through philoſophy and vain deceit, after [n] the tradition of men, after [o] the rudiments of the world, and not after Chriſt: 9. For [p] in him dwelleth all the fulneſs of the Godhead bodily. 10. And [q] ye are complete in him, [r] which is the head of all principality and power. 11. In whom alſo ye are [s] circumciſed with the circumciſion made without hands, in [t] putting off the body of the ſins of the fleſh, by the circumciſion of Chriſt: 12. [u] Buried with him in baptiſm, wherein alſo you are riſen with him through [x] the faith † of the operation of God, [y] who hath raiſed him from the dead. 13. And [z] you being dead in your ſins, and the uncircumciſion of your fleſh, hath he quickened together with him, having forgiven you all treſpaſſes.
14. [a] Blotting out the hand-writing of ordinances that was againſt us, which was contrary to us, and [b] took it out of the way, nailing it to his croſs: 15. And [c] having ſpoiled [d] principalities and powers, he made a ſhew of them openly, triumphing over them in it.

[f] Eph. v. 6. Ver. 18.
[g] Rom. xvi. 18.
[h] 1 Cor. v. 3. 1 Theſ. ii. 17.
[i] 1 Cor. xiv. 40.
[k] 1 Theſ. iv. 1. Jude iii.
[l] Eph. ii. 21, 22. & iii. 17.
[m] Jer. xxix. 8. Rom. xvi. 17. Heb. xiii. 9.
[n] Mat. xv. 2. Gal. i. 14. Ver. 22.
[o] Gal. iv. 3, 9. Ver. 20.
[p] Chap. i. 19.
[q] John i. 16.
[r] Eph. i. 21. 1 Pet. iii. 22.
[s] Deut. xxx. 6. Jer. iv. 4. Rom. ii. 29. Phil. iii. 3.
[t] Rom. vi. 6. Eph. iv. 22. Chap. iii. 8, 9.
[u] Rom. vi. 4.
[x] Eph. i. 19. & iii. 7.
† Or in, or upon. as Mark xi. 22.
[y] Acts ii. 24.
[z] Eph. ii. 1, 5, 11.
[a] Eph. ii. 15, 16.
[b] Heb. vii. 18. & x. 9.
[c] Gen. iii. 15. Pſ. lxviii. 18. Iſa. liii. 12. Mat. xii. 29. Luke xi. 22. John xii. 31. & xvi. 11. Eph. iv. 8.
[d] Eph. vi. 12.

v. 4—15. The apoſtle felt the tendereſt concern for them, and he teſtifies it by his jealouſy over them.

1. He warns them againſt the ſeducing, judaizing teachers. And this I ſay, concerning my affection for you, and the all-ſufficient wiſdom of Jeſus to direct you, leſt, as Satan beguiled Eve through his ſubtilty, any man ſhould beguile you with enticing words, perverting you from the ſimplicity of the goſpel, under pretence of leading you to higher attainments. For though I be abſent in the fleſh, yet am I with you in the Spirit; not only united to them in affection, but probably having ſome extraordinary diſcernment of their ſtate from the Lord; joying and beholding your order and ſtrict diſcipline, and the ſteadfaſtneſs of your faith in Chriſt, notwithſtanding all the ſhocks of perſecution, or the wiles of deceivers. As ye have therefore received Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, and made profeſſion of your entire dependance upon him as your Prophet, Prieſt, and King, ſo walk ye in him, depending on the teachings of his word and Spirit, truſting on his atonement and righteouſneſs, and deſirous to obey his holy will in all things: rooted as the tree, which no winds can blow down, and built up in him, and ſtabliſhed in the faith, fixed immoveably on the rock of ages, and by faith growing up into him in all things who is the head, even Chriſt, as ye have been taught in the goſpel preached to you; abounding therein with thankſgiving, enriched with all the fulneſs of divine grace, and ceaſeleſs in praiſe to the great author of all your hopes and happineſs. Beware, therefore, ſince ye have received the truth as it is in Jeſus, leſt any man ſpoil you of the ineſtimable treaſure through philoſophy and vain deceit, according to the corrupt ſyſtems of heatheniſm, miſleading you from the purity of the goſpel, after the tradition of men, whether of judaizing teachers or Gentile ſages, after the rudiments of the world, thoſe firſt elements, (στοιχεια) contained in the Moſaical œconomy, and ſuited only to the infant ſtate of the church, and which are not after Chriſt, but tend to ſeduce the heart from him, to direct the ſoul to reſt on ſomething elſe for ſalvation, beſides his finiſhed work, in whom dwelleth all the fulneſs of the Godhead bodily, all the divine perfections being, in their utmoſt fulneſs, perpetually reſident in the perſon of the incarnate Jeſus. Note, (1.) The diſcourſe ſet off, with the moſt enticing words, muſt be brought to the teſt of God's revealed will, and if it correſpond not therewith, whatever appearances of wiſdom there may be, it is to be rejected with abhorrence. (2.) They who cleave to Chriſt, ſhall be preſerved from deluſion. (3.) He who is God as well as man in one Chriſt, muſt needs be able to ſave to the uttermoſt, and be the worthy object of our entire faith and dependance.

2. He mentions the complete ſalvation, of which, in Chriſt, they had been made partakers. And ye are complete in him, in virtue of your union with him, who is made of God unto you wiſdom and righteouſneſs, and ſanctification and redemption, and who is, in his mediatorial character, the head of all principality and power, all in heaven, earth, and hell, from the higheſt creature to the loweſt, being made ſubject unto him. In whom alſo ye are circumciſed with the circumciſion, not that which is outward in the fleſh, and now of no avail, but that made without hands, even the circumciſion of the heart, evident in the putting off the body of the ſins of the fleſh, and mortifying the old man, which is corrupt, with the affections and luſts, by the circumciſion of Chriſt, which he is the author of, and by his Spirit effects in the hearts of his people. Buried with him by baptiſm, the ordinance which he hath inſtituted, ſuperſeding circumciſion, and ſignifying to us our death unto ſin, and new birth unto righteouſneſs, wherein alſo ye are riſen with him, quickened to newneſs of life, through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raiſed him from the dead. The ſame divine power being needful to produce faith in the heart of the ſinner, as to communicate life to the dead body of Jeſus. And you being dead in your ſins, under the ſentence of God's wrath, and ſeparated from his favour, which is the true life of the ſoul, and in the uncircumciſion of your fleſh, ſerving divers luſts and pleaſures, under the dominion of a corrupted nature, hath he quickened together with him, to a life of grace here, as the earneſt and beginning of a life of glory in eternity, having forgiven you all treſpaſſes, in virtue of the redemption of Jeſus. Blotting out the hand-writing of ordinances that was againſt us, which was contrary to us, by his blood cancelling the debt, and obliterating the bond, diſcharging us from the condemnation of the moral law, and aboliſhing the ceremonial, which ſeparated Jews and Gentiles, and was the cauſe of enmity between them, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his croſs, and rending it in pieces; and having ſpoiled principalities and powers, the apoſtate ſpirits of darkneſs, he made a ſhew of them openly, as their conqueror, on the tree, triumphing over them in it, and redeeming all his people thereby from their hateful dominion.

How invaluable are the Chriſtian's privileges! How precious ſhould he be to us, who is the bleſſed author of them! (1.) We are quickened by him from the death of ſin. (2.) We have the free and full remiſſion of all our iniquities. (3.) The curſe of the law is ſatisfied, and there is no condemnation to thoſe who are in Chriſt Jeſus. (4.) Our ſpiritual enemies are vanquiſhed; we need fear nothing from them; our Jeſus is triumphant, and he will ſhortly make us, with himſelf, more than conquerors.

16. Let no man therefore judge you [e] in meat or in drink, or in reſpect [f] of an holy-day, or of the new-moon, or of the ſabbath-days: 17. [g] Which are a ſhadow of things to come; but the body is of Chriſt. 18. [h] Let no man beguile you of your reward, in a voluntary humility, and worſhipping of angels, intruding into thoſe things [i] which he hath not ſeen, vainly puffed up by his fleſhly mind; 19. And not holding [k] the head, from which all the body by joints and bands having nouriſhment miniſtred, and knit together, increaſeth with the increaſe of God. 20. Wherefore if ye be [l] dead with Chriſt from [m] the rudiments of the world; [n] why, as though living in the world, are ye ſubject to ordinances; 21. ([o] Touch not, taſte not, handle not: 22. [p] Which all are to periſh with the uſing) [q] after the commandments and doctrines of men? 23. Which things have indeed a ſhew of wiſdom in [r] will-worſhip and humility, and neglecting of the body, not in any honour to the ſatisfying of the fleſh.

[e] Rom. xiv. 3, 10, 13.
[f] Gal. iv. 10.
[g] Heb. viii. 5. & ix. 9. & x. 1.
[h] Ver. 4. 2 Theſ. ii. 3.
[i] Ezek. xiii. 3. 1 Tim. i. 7.
[k] Eph. iv. 15, 16.
[l] Rom. vi. 3, 5. vii. 4, 6. Gal. ii. 19.
[m] Ver. 8.
[n] Gal. iv. 3.
[o] Rom. xiv. 17.
[p] 1 Cor. vi. 13.
[q] Iſa. xxix. 13. Mat. xv. 9. Tit. i. 14.
[r] Ver. 18.

v. 16—23. The apoſtle, from the foregoing conſiderations of the complete redemption which in Chriſt Jeſus they had obtained, warns them againſt the judaizing zealots.

Let no man therefore judge or condemn you in meat or in drink, or in reſpect of an holy-day, or of the new-moon, or of the ſabbath-days, inculcating the neceſſity of obſerving theſe Jewiſh ceremonies, in in order to ſalvation: which are a ſhadow of things to come; but the body is of Chriſt; ſince he who is the ſubſtance of them hath appeared, they are now aboliſhed, and no longer obligatory. Let no man beguile you of your reward, or cheat you of the prize of your high calling in Chriſt Jeſus, in a voluntary humility, leading you to a kind of abaſement which the goſpel never preſcribed, and worſhipping of angels, to the great diſhonour of the one Mediator between God and man; intruding into thoſe things which he hath not ſeen, vainly puffed up by his fleſhly mind, falſely pretending to what he is ignorant of, and following the deluſions of a heart eaten up with pride · and not holding the head, Chriſt Jeſus, from whom alone the whole body of his church, by joints and bands having nouriſhment miniſtered, and knit together, ſpiritually, as the members of the natural body are united to their common head, increaſeth with the increaſe of God, in light, and love, and comfort, and holineſs. Wherefore if, or ſeeing, ye be dead with Chriſt, as your baptiſm intimated, from the rudiments of the world, and diſcharged from all obligation to the Moſaic œconomy, why, as though living in the world, and ſtill under the legal diſpenſation, are ye ſubject to ordinances, and obey the dogmatical deciſions of judaizing teachers, who cry, Touch not, taſte not, handle not, as if the Levitical law was ſtill in force, and the diſtinction of meats and drinks to be ſcrupulouſly obſerved by Chriſtians; which meats all periſh with the uſing, paſſing through the body, and cannot defile the ſoul; and are now no longer enjoined of divine authority, but merely after the commandments and doctrines of men, by theſe Jewiſh zealots? Which things have indeed a ſhew of wiſdom, and paſs under the ſpecious pretence of paying to God ſervice, even of ſupererogation, in will-worſhip, and voluntary humility, which his word hath never enjoined, and neglecting of the body, by affected auſterities, not in any honour; theſe things are not of any value in the ſight of God, but are to the ſatisfying of the fleſh, ſerving only to foſter man's pride, and to flatter him in a vain conceit of his own ſuperior goodneſs. Note, They who affect to be wiſe above what is written, will only in the iſſue expoſe their own abſurd pride and egregious folly.

CHAP. III.

The apoſtle exhorts us to ſet our hearts upon heaven, and take them off from this world, ver. 1—4. He exhorts to the mortification of ſin, in the various inſtances of it, ver. 5—12. and earneſtly preſſes to mutual love and compaſſion, ver. 12—17. And concludes with exhortations to relative duties; of wives and huſbands, parents and children, maſters and ſervants, ver. 18—25.

1. IF ye then [a] be riſen with Chriſt, ſeek thoſe things which are above, where [b] Chriſt ſitteth on the right hand of God. 2. Set your affection [c] on things above, not on things on the earth. 3. For [d] ye are dead, and your life is hid with Chriſt in God. 4. When Chriſt who is our life ſhall appear, [e] then ſhall ye alſo appear [f] with him [g] in glory.

[a] Rom. vi. 5. Eph. ii. 6. Chap. ii. 12.
[b] Pſ. cx. 1. Rom. viii. 34. Eph. i. 20.
[c] Phil. iii. 20.
[d] Rom. vi. 2. Gal. ii. 20. Chap. ii. 20
[e] John xi. 25. 1 Cor. xv. 51.
[f] 1 Theſ. iv. 14.
[g] 1 Cor. xv. 43. Phil. iii. 21. 1 John iii. 2.

v. 1—4. The apoſtle having, in the former chapter, laid down the great fundamental doctrines of Chriſtianity, and the invaluable privileges of true believers, proceeds here to exhort the Coloſſians to thoſe tempers and practices which became their holy profeſſion.

1. He exhorts them to heavenly-mindedneſs. If ye then be riſen with Chriſt, in virtue of his reſurrection, and of your union with him, ſeek thoſe things which are above, even the eternal bleſſedneſs provided for you in heaven, where Chriſt ſitteth on the right hand of God, gone before to prepare a place for you, and ever living to make interceſſion for you. Therefore ſet your affections on things above, with faith, hope, and love, aſpire after them, realizing them to your mind by frequent meditation and fervent prayer, ſeeking thoſe influences of grace which may conduct you to the glory which ſhall be revealed; and not on things on the earth, whether Jewiſh ordinances, or earthly advantages and allurements; keep theſe under your feet, be weaned from them, and daily dying to them. Note, A worldly mind, and a heavenly hope, are utterly inconſiſtent; no man can ſerve two maſters.

2. He ſupports his exhortation by the moſt powerful arguments. For ye are dead, by your profeſſion in baptiſm, and your obligations to a crucified Jeſus; and your life is hid with Chriſt, both your ſpiritual life, with all its joys, is hid from the natural man, and by ſecret communications from your exalted head is ſtill maintained till it ſhall be perfected above; and your eternal life is ſecured in him according to the ſecret purpoſes of God from the beginning; therefore, having ſuch glorious expectations, look up, and live continually under the influence of them. And then, when Chriſt, who is our life, the author, ſupport, and finiſher of it, ſhall appear in the great day of his ſecond coming, then ſhall ye alſo appear with him in glory; and how much then does it behove us to have our affections placed there, where we hope to ſpend an eternity with Chriſt in bleſſedneſs inconceivable?

5. [h] Mortify therefore [i] your members which are upon the earth; [k] fornication, uncleanneſs, inordinate affection, [l] evil concupiſcence, and covetouſneſs, [m] which is idolatry: 6. [n] For which things ſake the wrath of God

cometh

[h] Rom. viii. 13. Gal. v. 24.
[i] Rom. vi. 13.
[k] Eph. v. 3.
[l] 1 Theſ. iv. 5.
[m] Eph. v. 5.
[n] Eph. v. 6.

cometh on [o] the children of diſobedience. 7. [p] In the which ye alſo walked ſometime when ye lived in them. 8. But [q] now you alſo put off all theſe; anger, wrath, malice, blaſphemy, [r] filthy communication out of your mouth. 9. [s] Lye not one to another, [t] ſeeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds; 10. And have put on the new man, [u] which is renewed in knowledge, [x] after the image of him [y] that created him. 11. Where [z] there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumciſion nor uncircumciſion, barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Chriſt is all, and in all.

o Eph. ii. 2.
p Rom. vii. 5. 1 Cor. vi. 11. Tit. iii. 3. 1 Pet. iv. 3.
q Eph. iv. 22. Jam. i. 21. 1 Pet. ii. 1.
r Eph. iv. 29. & v. 4.
s Lev. xix. 11. Eph. iv. 25. Rev. xxii. 15.
t Eph. iv. 22, 24.
u Rom. xii. 2.
x Gen. i. 26. Eph. iv. 24.
y Eph. ii. 10.
z Rom. x. 12. 1 Cor. xii. 13. Gal. iii. 28. & v. 6. & vi. 15.

v. 5—11. If we would ſet our affections on things in heaven, our ſenſual and earthly affections muſt be mortified; and hereunto the apoſtle earneſtly exhorts them. Mortify therefore your members which are upon earth, the remaining corruptions that ſtill war againſt you; ſuch as fornication, uncleanneſs, inordinate affection, evil concupiſcence, with every thought, word, or action, that hath the remoteſt tendency to excite impure deſire, and covetouſneſs, with every worldly luſt, which is idolatry, as it engages the heart to the creature, drawing it off from the love and ſervice of the Creator: for which things ſake the wrath of God cometh on the children of diſobedience, and the conſequences of theſe ſins will infallibly be eternal death. In the which ye alſo, as other Gentiles, walked ſometime when ye lived in them. But now, ſince the light and grace of the bleſſed goſpel hath reached you, ye alſo put off all theſe; anger, wrath, malice, blaſphemy, ſpeaking reproachfully of God or things ſacred, or whatever would blaſt the reputation of others; and let no filthy communication, or immodeſt expreſſion, proceed out of your mouth. Lye not one to another, but ever, in all your converſation, ſpeak the truth from your heart, and be faithful to every promiſe and engagement, ſeeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds, the native corruption which came with you into the world, and works to bring forth fruit unto death, till ſubdued by the power of divine grace; and ye have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him, the heart, by the powerful operations of the Spirit, being renewed after the likeneſs of Jeſus the Creator, in light and holineſs, and his image defaced by the fall being now reſtored by efficacious grace. Where, in this new creation, there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumciſion nor uncircumciſion, barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free, all diſtinction of nations, names, conditions, and external privileges is now aboliſhed: but Chriſt is all in all; in him, all who believe, are complete; he is all to them in wiſdom; they need no other teacher; all in righteouſneſs; they want no commendation to God's favour but being found in him; all in ſanctification, their whole ſufficiency being derived from him, as the fountain of grace; all in redemption, as he hath by one oblation perfected for ever his people, and obtained, purely on account of what he hath done for them, all bleſſings in time and eternity. Note, (1.) We muſt mortify ſin, or ſin will eternally deſtroy us. (2.) Nothing is more dangerous than fleſhly luſts, which war againſt the ſoul, unleſs it be the corroding canker of covetouſneſs, which, though it may leſs ſhock the conſcience, is as fatally ruinous to the ſoul. (3.) The longer we have lived in ſin, the more urgently are we called to awake to newneſs of life; the time paſt may ſurely ſuffice to have wrought the will of the fleſh. (4.) Anger, malice, ſlander, and lies, are the ſtrongeſt lineaments of him who was a liar and murderer from the beginning. (5.) If we belong to Chriſt, we muſt prove it by the conformity of our temper and conduct to his; he that abideth in him, ought himſelf to walk as Chriſt alſo walked. (6.) If Chriſt be to us all in all, then are we bound to aſcribe to him the glory of all our ſalvation.

12. [a] Put on therefore ([b] as the elect of God, holy and beloved) [c] bowels of mercies, kindneſs, humbleneſs of mind, meekneſs, long-ſuffering; 13. Forbearing one another, and [d] forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel againſt any: [e] even as Chriſt forgave you, ſo alſo do ye. 14. [f] And above all theſe things [g] put on charity, which is [h] the bond of perfectneſs. 15. [i] And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which alſo ye are called [k] in one body; and be ye thankful. 16. Let the word of Chriſt dwell in you richly in all wiſdom; teaching and admoniſhing one another [l] in pſalms, and hymns, and ſpiritual ſongs, ſinging [m] with grace in your hearts to the Lord. 17. And [n] whatſoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jeſus, [o] giving thanks to God and the Father by him.

a Eph. iv. 24. & vi. 11.
b 1 Theſ. i. 4.
c Eph. iv. 2, 32.
d Mark xi. 25.
e Eph. iv. 32.
f 1 Pet. iv. 8.
g John xiii. 34. Rom. xiii. 8. Eph. v. 2. Chap. ii. 2. 1 John iv. 21.
h Eph. iv. 3.
i Phil. iv. 7.
k Eph. iv. 4.
l 1 Cor. xiv. 26.
m Chap. iv. 6.
n 1 Cor. x. 31.
o Rom. i. 8. Eph. v. 20. 1 Theſ. v. 18. Heb. xiii. 15.

v. 12—17. The apoſtle proceeds to enforce the practice of all godlineſs upon them, as thoſe who were choſen in Chriſt Jeſus, as the elect of God, ordained to be holy, and being beloved by him, ſhould approve themſelves before him.

1. Put on therefore bowels of mercies, ſuch as were in Jeſus Chriſt, towards the miſerable and afflicted, kindneſs in every word and deed, humbleneſs of mind, lowly in your own thoughts of yourſelves, and condeſcending to others, meekneſs, quietly ſubmitting to the diſpenſations of Providence, and enduring patiently every reproach and indignity; long-ſuffering under repeated and aggravated provocations; forbearing one another under your ſeveral infirmities, and forgiving one another every offence or injury, if any man have a quarrel againſt any: even as Chriſt forgave you, ſo alſo do ye, whoſe amazing grace to us ſhould powerfully engage our hearts to paſs by each other's tranſgreſſions, and not only to forgive, but to blot out of our remembrance every paſt offence. And

2. Above all theſe things, as that which is moſt ſingularly neceſſary, or over all theſe things, as what ſets them off in their brighteſt luſtre, put on charity, that divine principle of all that is excellent, which is the bond of perfectneſs, uniting the whole body of the church together, and moſt effectual to preſerve them until they arrive at the perfection of holineſs and happineſs.

3. And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, being at peace with him, carefully cultivate peace with each other, and let a ſenſe of his reconciliation to you ſway your hearts to mutual love and forbearance, to the which alſo ye are called in one body, as together united to Chriſt your common head; and be ye thankful for this invaluable bleſſing.

4. Let the word of Chriſt, his bleſſed goſpel, dwell in you richly, abiding in your hearts, the ſubject of your conſtant meditations, and delightful converſe; eſteem it as your moſt invaluable treaſure, and ſtore up the knowledge of it in your hearts, in all wiſdom, ready for uſe on every proper occaſion.

5. As united in love, be teaching and admoniſhing one another in pſalms, and hymns, and ſpiritual ſongs, ſinging with grace in your hearts to the Lord, building up each other thus in your moſt holy faith, and helping forward your mutual joy in God, and his bleſſed ſervice. Note, It is not the muſic of the voice, but the ſinging with grace in the heart which is the acceptable praiſe.

6. And whatſoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jeſus, under the influence of his grace, with a regard to his will, and a ſingle eye to his glory, expecting the acceptance of every ſervice for his ſake alone, giving thanks to God and the Father by him, in whom our praiſes and prayers come up before the throne as ſacrifices of a ſweet ſmell. Note, A Chriſtian can never want matter of praiſe, whenever he turns his thoughts towards the Lord Jeſus.

18. [p] Wives, ſubmit yourſelves unto your own huſbands, as it is fit in the Lord, 19. [q] Huſbands, love your wives, and be not [r] bitter againſt them. 20. [s] Children, obey your parents in all things: for this is well-pleaſing unto the Lord. 21. [t] Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, leſt they be diſcouraged. 22. [u] Servants, obey in all things your maſters [x] according to the fleſh; not with eye-ſervice, as men-pleaſers, but in ſingleneſs of heart, fearing God: . 23. And [y] whatſoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men; 24. [z] Knowing that of the Lord ye ſhall receive the reward of the inheritance: for [a] ye ſerve the Lord Chriſt. 25. But he that doth wrong, ſhall receive for the wrong which he hath done: and [b] there is no reſpect of perſons.

p Eph. v. 22. Tit. ii. 5. 1 Pet. iii. 1, 5.
q Eph. v. 25, 28. 1 Pet. iii. 7.
r Eph. iv. 31.
s Eph. vi. 1.
t Eph. vi. 4.
u Eph. vi. 5, &c. 1 Tim. vi. 1. Tit. ii. 9. 1 Pet. ii. 18.
x Philem. 16.
y Eph. vi. 6, 7.
z Eph. vi. 8.
a 1 Cor. vii. 22.
b Acts x. 34. Rom. ii. 11. Eph. vi. 9. 1 Pet. i. 17.

v. 18—25. The apoſtle paſſes on to inculcate the due diſcharge of the great relative duties, and he begins, as before, (Eph. v. 22.) with the inferior relation, as ſubjection is peculiarly hard for creatures, who are naturally under the power of a ſpirit of pride and independance. We have,

1. The duty of wives. Submit yourſelves unto your own huſbands; be under their government, as it is fit in the Lord, according to the law of creation, and the divine conſtitution; obedient in all things which are not immediately inconſiſtent with your duty to the Lord Jeſus.

2. The duty of huſbands. Love your wives with all tenderneſs and ſingleneſs of affection, delighting in their company, and ſtudying to make them happy in their relation to you; and be not bitter againſt them, croſs, haſty, arbitrary, ſevere, with frowns or wrath, or ill uſage, making their yoke heavy.

3. The duty of children. Obey your parents in all things that are lawful, neither murmuring nor diſputing againſt their commands, or diſpoſals; for this is well-pleaſing unto the Lord, and a happy proof of your relation to the Father of Mercies.

4. The duty of parents. Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, by needleſs ſeverities, arbitrary reſtraints, harſh commands, and unreaſonable impoſitions, leſt they be diſcouraged, their ſpirits broken with ſuch treatment, and, through deſpair of pleaſing, they ſhould deſiſt even from the attempt.

5. The duty of ſervants. Obey in all things your maſters according to the fleſh, whether Gentile or Chriſtian, diligent to obſerve all their juſt commands, not with eye-ſervice, as men-pleaſers, merely whilſt they are looking on you, but in ſingleneſs of heart, fearing God, and equally faithful in the diſcharge of your duty when no eye ſeeth you but his, to whom it is your ſpecial care to approve yourſelves: and whatſoever ye do, do it heartily, working with willingneſs and aſſiduity, as to the Lord, for his glory, and not unto men, meerly with a view to their applauſe; knowing that of the Lord ye ſhall receive the reward of the inheritance, when the great Maſter ſhall appear to recompenſe the fidelity of his ſervants, in whatever condition or rank they have been placed by him: for ye ſerve the Lord Chriſt, and whatſoever ſervice ye do to them with a view to his honour, he will regard it as immediately rendered to himſelf, and reward it accordingly. But he that doth wrong to his maſter, by fraud, connivance, ſloth, or negligence, ſhall receive for the wrong which he hath done the puniſhment due to his injuſtice: and there is no reſpect of perſons with God; the meaneſt, at his bar, being accountable as well as the the greateſt, and ſhall receive ſentence according to their deeds.

CHAP. IV.

He continues his account of the duty of maſters, from the cloſe of the former chapter, ver. 1, 2. Exhorts to the duty of prayer, ver. 3, 4. And to a prudent and decent carriage towards thoſe with whom we converſe, ver. 5, 6. Cloſes the epiſtle with the mention of ſeveral of his friends, of whom he gives an honourable teſtimony, ver. 7—18.

[a] Eph. vi. 9.

1. [a] MASTERS, give unto your ſervants that which is juſt and equal, knowing that ye alſo have a Maſter in heaven.

v. 1. This verſe ſhould moſt properly have cloſed the foregoing chapter, as it contains the duty of maſters. Give unto your ſervants that which is juſt and equal, not treating them tyrannically, nor laying on them unreaſonable burdens, but uſing them kindly, giving them proper proviſions, paying them their wages punctually, according to agreement, and as much as they really deſerve, knowing that ye alſo have a Maſter in heaven, to whom you are reſponſible, and who regardeth the perſons of the rich no more than the poor.

[b] Luke xviii. 1. Rom. xii. 12. Eph. vi. 18. 1 Theſ. v. 17. [c] Eph. vi. 19. 2 Theſ. iii. 1. [d] 1 Cor. xvi. 9. 2 Cor. ii. 12. [e] Mat. xiii. 11. 1 Cor. iv. 1. Eph. vi. 19. Chap. i. 26. & ii. 2. [f] Eph. iii. 1, 13. Phil. i. 7, 13. [g] Eph. v. 15. 1 Theſ. iv. 12. [h] Eph. v. 16. [i] Eccleſ. x. 12. Chap. iii. 16. [k] Mark ix. 50. [l] 1 Pet. iii. 15.

2. [b] Continue in prayer, and watch in the ſame with thankſgiving; 3. Withal, [c] praying alſo for us, that God would [d] open unto us a door of utterance, to ſpeak [e] the myſtery of Chriſt, for which [f] I am alſo in bonds: 4. That I may make it manifeſt, as I ought to ſpeak. 5. [g] Walk in wiſdom toward them that are without, [h] redeeming the time. 6. Let your ſpeech be alway [i] with grace, [k] ſeaſoned with ſalt, [l] that ye may know how ye ought to anſwer every man.

v. 2—6. The apoſtle, having laid down the particular duties of each ſtation, proceeds to thoſe that more generally belong to all the members of Chriſt's church. He exhorts them,

1. To unceaſing prayer. Continue in prayer daily, at ſtated ſeaſons, and habitually in your mind diſpoſed to look up to God, and watch in the ſame with thankſgiving, engaged in the ſervice with warm affections, and intenſeneſs of mind, bleſſing and praiſing God for his goodneſs continually; withal, praying alſo for us, that God would open unto us a door of utterance, and give us both opportunity and ability to ſpeak the myſtery of Chriſt, his rich, free, and boundleſs grace, revealed to Gentiles as well as Jews, for maintaining which I am alſo now in bonds: that I may make it manifeſt, as I ought to ſpeak, plainly and without reſerve, maintaining the equality of the Gentiles reſpecting all the privileges of the goſpel, and keeping back nothing of all the counſel of God, as becomes a faithful ambaſſador of Chriſt. Note, Miniſters need their peoples prayers, and ſhould be conſtantly remembered by them in the view of their arduous work.

2. To a becoming carriage towards thoſe who are as yet out of the pale of the church. Walk in wiſdom towards them who are without, with all prudence and circumſpection, giving them no juſt occaſion of offence, guarding againſt all fellowſhip with them in what is evil, whilſt ready to every good word and work to do them ſervice; redeeming the time, deſiring to improve every opportunity of converſe with them for their benefit, and careful to avoid whatever might unneceſſarily provoke their malice and perſecution, and be the means to cut you off from life and uſefulneſs.

3. Let your ſpeech be always with grace, ſeaſoned with ſalt, edifying, diſcreet, and ſavoury, the proof of true grace in your own hearts, and the means of communicating it to others, that ye may know how ye ought to anſwer every man, whether the ſerious enquiries of thoſe who deſire inſtruction, the doubts of the ſcrupulous, or the cavils of adverſaries.

[m] Eph. vi. 21, 22. [n] Philem. 10. [o] Acts xix. 29. & xxvii. 2. Philem. 24. [p] Acts xv. 37. 2 Tim. xi. 11. [q] Chap. i. 7. Philem. 23. † Gr. agonizing. Rom. xv. 30. [r] 1 Cor. xiv. 20. Phil. iii. 15. Heb. v. 14. [s] 2 Tim. iv. 11. [t] 2 Tim. iv. 10. [u] Rom. xvi. 5. 1 Cor. xvi. 19. [x] 1 Theſ. v. 27. [y] Philem. 2. [z] 1 Tim. iv. 16. [a] Rom. xv. 19. Chap. i. 25. [b] 1 Cor. xvi. 21. 2 Theſ. iii. 77. [c] Heb. xiii. 3.

7. [m] All my ſtate ſhall Tychicus declare unto you, who is a beloved brother, and a faithful miniſter, and fellow-ſervant in the Lord: 8. Whom I have ſent unto you for the ſame purpoſe, that he might know your eſtate, and comfort your hearts: 9. With [n] Oneſimus a faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you. They ſhall make known unto you all things which are done here. 10. [o] Ariſtarchus my fellow-priſoner ſaluteth you, and [p] Marcus ſiſter's ſon to Barnabas (touching whom ye received commandments; if he come unto you, receive him) 11. And Jeſus, which is called Juſtus, who are of the circumciſion. Theſe only are my fellow-workers unto the kingdom of God, which have been a comfort unto me. 12. [q] Epaphras, who is one of you, a ſervant of Chriſt, ſaluteth you, † always labouring fervently for you in prayers, that ye may ſtand [r] perfect and complete in all the will of God. 13. For I bear him record, that he hath a great zeal for you, and them that are in Laodicea, and them in Hierapolis. 14. [s] Luke the beloved phyſician, and [t] Demas greet you. 15. Salute the brethren which are in Laodicea and Nymphas, and [u] the church which is in his houſe. 16. And when [x] this epiſtle is read amongſt you, cauſe that it be read alſo in the church of the Laodiceans; and that ye likewiſe read the epiſtle from Laodicea. 17. And ſay to [y] Archippus, [z] Take heed to the miniſtry which thou haſt received in the Lord, [a] that thou fulfil it. 18. [b] The ſalutation by the hand of me Paul. [c] Remember my bonds. Grace be with you. Amen.

v. 7—18. The apoſtle cloſes his epiſtle with the commendation, and reſpectful mention of ſeveral of his brethren, who joined in ſalutations with him.

1. Tychicus. All my ſtate ſhall Tychicus declare unto you, the bearer of this epiſtle, who will give you a faithful account of my affairs, ſufferings, ſucceſs, and is a beloved brother in the goſpel, and a faithful miniſter, proved by long experience, and fellow-ſervant with me in the Lord, to promote the intereſts of his cauſe and kingdom: whom I have ſent unto you for the ſame purpoſe, that he might know your eſtate, and bring me word how you fare and proſper, and comfort your hearts, under all your trials and ſufferings for the ſake of Chriſt and his goſpel.

2. Oneſimus. With Oneſimus, Tychicus's companion, a faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you, and now far different from the man who formerly fled his maſter's ſervice (See the epiſtle to Philemon.) They ſhall make known unto you all things which are done here, for your comfort and encouragement, who cannot but rejoice to hear what ſupports I receive, and what a bleſſing is on my bonds.

3. Ariſtarchus my fellow-priſoner ſaluteth you, and Marcus ſiſter's ſon to Barnabas (touching whom ye received commandments; if he come unto you, receive him.) It appears hereby that though Mark was once under the apoſtle's diſpleaſure, he was now reſtored to his good graces; and having acknowledged his fault, had been heartily forgiven, and cordially received again. And Jeſus, which is called Juſtus, who are of the circumciſion, theſe only of the Jewiſh brethren, are my fellow-workers unto the kingdom of God, which have been a comfort unto me under my ſufferings.

4. Epaphras, who is one of you, a ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt in the goſpel, ſaluteth you, always labouring fervently for you in prayers, as in an agony wreſtling with God for a bleſſing upon your ſouls, that ye may ſtand perfect and complete in all the will of God, enlightened with the cleareſt diſcoveries of divine truth, and ſtedfaſt in the practice of all holineſs. For I bear him record, that he hath a great zeal for you, and them that are in Laodicea, and them in Hierapolis. Probably this faithful ſervant of Jeſus had been chiefly inſtrumental in planting theſe churches, and therefore bore them a very particular affection. Note, (1.) Thoſe whom we have begotten in the goſpel, we ſhall not fail earneſtly to commend to God's keeping and care; zeal for them will make our prayers importunate. (2.) Though we come however ſhort of the mark at which we aim, perfection complete and entire is that which the Chriſtian ſeeks as the ſummit of his felicity.

5. Luke the beloved phyſician, by profeſſion a phyſician for the body, but now diſpenſes in the goſpel healing for the ſoul, and Demas greet you, wiſhing you the richeſt mercies of our God.

6. Salute the brethren which are in Laodicea, and Nymphas, and the church which is in his houſe. Probably there the faithful aſſembled for their ſtated worſhip; or his family, remarkable for their regularity, exemplarineſs, and daily worſhip of God, appeared a little church within themſelves. And when this epiſtle is read amongſt you, cauſe that it be read alſo in the churches of the Laodiceans; and that ye likewiſe read the epiſtle from Laodicea, either that which was written from thence by the apoſtle, as ſome ſuggeſt, to Timothy, or rather an epiſtle from the church of the Laodiceans to the Coloſſians, which might contain matter of great edification. Note, Religious letters are often ſingularly uſeful.

7. And ſay to Archippus, their biſhop probably, who had need be peculiarly watchful over the flock, when ſeducers ſo abounded, Take heed to the miniſtry which thou haſt received in the Lord, to fulfil it with all zeal and fidelity, maintaining the doctrines of grace againſt all oppoſers, and adorning them in his converſation, building up the ſouls committed to his care in the true faith of the goſpel, labouring earneſtly for the edification of the ſaints, and for the converſion of ſinners. Note, They who are put in truſt with the miniſtry, have a peculiarly important charge committed to them; and, if they grow cold and careleſs, their people may and ought, with becoming reſpect, to admoniſh them of their negligence.

8. He concludes with his benediction and ſubſcription. The ſalutation by the hand of me Paul, the mark of his genuine epiſtles. Remember my bonds, which I now ſuffer for the ſake of the Gentiles, and ſhould eſpecially engage your prayers for me, and your affection towards me. Grace be with you; may the ſovereign and rich favour of God, with all its bleſſed conſequences, be your preſent and everlaſting portion. Amen!

THE

EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;

OR, A

PRACTICAL COMMENT

Upon the FIRST EPISTLE of

St. Paul to the THESSALONIANS.

Theſſalonica was formerly the metropolis of Macedonia; it is now called Salonichi, and is the beſt peopled, and one of the beſt towns for commerce in the Levant. The apoſtle Paul, being diverted from his deſign of going into the provinces of Aſia, properly ſo called, and directed after an extraordinary manner to preach the goſpel in Macedonia, Acts xvi. 9, 10. in obedience to the call of God went from Tarſus to Samothracia, and from thence to Neapolis, and from thence to Philippi, where he had good ſucceſs in his miniſtry; but met with hard uſage, being caſt into priſon with Silas his companion in travel and labour; from whence being wonderfully delivered, they comforted the brethren there and departed. Paſſing through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Theſſalonica, where the apoſtle planted a church that conſiſted of ſome believing Jews, and many converted Gentiles, Acts xvii. 1—4. But a tumult being raiſed in the city by the unbelieving Jews, and the lewd and baſer ſort of the inhabitants, Paul and Silas, for their ſafety, were ſent away by night unto Berea; and afterwards Paul was conducted to Athens, leaving Silas and Timotheus behind him, but ſent directions that they ſhould come to him with all ſpeed.

When they were come, Timotheus was ſent to Theſſalonica to enquire after their welfare, and to eſtabliſh them in the faith, 1 Theſ. iii. 2, who returned to Paul while he tarried at Athens, and was ſent again, together with Silas, to viſit the churches in Macedonia. So that Paul, being left at Athens alone, 1 Theſ. iii. 2. departed from thence to Corinth, where he continued a year and a half; in which time Silas and Timotheus returned to him from Macedonia, Acts xiii. 5. and then he wrote this epiſtle to the church of Chriſt at Theſſalonica; which, though it is placed after the other epiſtles of this apoſtle, is ſuppoſed to be firſt in time of all Paul's epiſtles, and to be written about A.D. 51.

The main ſcope whereof is to expreſs the thankfulneſs of this apoſtle for the good ſucceſs his preaching had among them, and to eſtabliſh them in the faith, and perſuade them to a holy converſation.

CHAP. I.

After the introduction, ver. 1. the apoſtle begins with a thankſgiving to God for the ſaving benefits beſtowed on them, ver. 2—5. And then mentions the ſure evidences of the good ſucceſs of the goſpel among them, which was notorious and famous in ſeveral other places, ver. 6—10.

1. PAUL, and [a] Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Theſſalonians, which is in God the Father, and in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: [b] Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

[a] 2 Cor. i. 19. 2 Theſ. i. 1. 1 Pet. v. 12.

[b] Eph. i. 2. Phil. i. 1. Col. i. 2.

v. 1. The apoſtle begins with his uſual addreſs, joining two of his brethren with himſelf. Paul, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Theſſalonians, which is in God the Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, called to the worſhip of the true God, choſen in Chriſt Jeſus, and united to him by faith as living members of his body: grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; may all the bleſſings of the everlaſting covenant of redemption be your portion, partaking of the boundleſs grace of God, and enjoying that ſweeteſt peace of conſcience which reſults from a ſenſe of his unchangeable love!

2. [c] We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers, 3. [d] Remembring without ceaſing [e] your work of faith, [f] and labour of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, in the ſight of God, and our Father: 4. Knowing, brethren beloved, [g] your election of God. 5. For our goſpel came not unto you in word only, [h] but alſo in power, and [i] in the holy Ghoſt, and [k] in much aſſurance; as [l] ye know what manner of men we were among you for your ſake.

[c] Rom. i. 8. Eph. i. 16. Col. i. 3. Philem. 4.

[d] Chap. ii. 13.

[e] John vi. 29. Gal. v. 6. Jam. ii. 17.

[f] Rom. xvi. 6.

[g] Col. iii. 12. 2 Theſ. ii. 13.

[h] 1 Cor. ii. 4. & iv. 20.

[i] 2 Cor. vi. 6.

[k] Col. ii. 2.

[l] Chap. ii. 1, 5, 10.

v. 2—5. With thankſgiving and prayer the apoſtle on their behalf approached a throne of grace. We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers.

1. Remembring, without ceaſing, (1.) your work of faith, which is proved to be unfeigned by the bleſſed effects it produceth on your hearts and lives. And, (2.) Your labour of love, love to Jeſus and one another engaging you to every good word and work, and making you willing to ſubmit to any hardſhips, for his glory and the advantage of your brethren. And alſo, (3.) Your patience of hope in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, even that lively hope which faith in him inſpires, and which ſtrengthens you with patient perſeverance to endure under every croſs, in the ſight of God and our Father, to whom we can appeal for our conſtant and thankful remembrance of you, and truſt that in all fidelity you approve yourſelves to him: knowing, brethren beloved, your election of God, the objects of his eternal regard, and of his mere ſovereign pleaſure choſen to grace here and glory hereafter. Note, (1.) All our bleſſings flow from God's election. We have not choſen him, but he hath choſen us. (2.) Thoſe whom God chuſes for his own he ſanctifies, and prepares for the inheritance which he hath prepared for them.

2. He thanks God for the ſucceſs of his preaching among them. For our goſpel came not unto you in word only to your ears, but alſo in power, and in the Holy Ghoſt, who bore his atteſtation to the truth by miracles, accompanied it with divine evidence to the conſcience, and cauſed it to enter into your hearts with much aſſurance of your perſonal intereſt in the promiſed bleſſings; as ye know what manner of men we were among you for your ſake, with what patience and perſeverance, in the midſt of much perſecution, we delivered our meſſage, zealous for your ſouls; and how God was pleaſed graciouſly to own our labours. Note, (1.) Nothing fills a faithful miniſter's heart with deeper gratitude, than the beholding the ſucceſs of his labours. (2.) Wherever the goſpel is made effectual to the heart by the Holy Ghoſt, it comes with ſuch evidence as bears down all objections, and powerfully bends the ſoul to the obedience of the faith.

6. And [m] ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, having received the word in much affliction, [n] with joy in the holy Ghoſt: 7. So that ye were enſamples to all that believe in Macedonia and Achaia. 8. For from you [o] ſounded out the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but alſo [p] in every place your faith to God-ward is ſpread abroad, ſo that we need not to ſpeak any thing. 9. For they themſelves ſhew of us, [q] what manner of entring in we had unto you, and [r] how ye turned to God from idols, to ſerve the living and true God; 10. And [s] to wait for his Son from heaven, [t] whom he raiſed from the dead, even Jeſus, which delivered us [u] from the wrath to come.

[m] 1 Cor. xi. 1. Phil. iii. 17. 2 Theſ. iii. 9.
[n] Acts v. 41. Heb. x. 34.
[o] Rom. x. 18.
[p] Rom. i. 8.
[q] Chap. ii. 1.
[r] 1 Cor. xii. 2.
[s] 1 Cor. i. 7. Phil. iii. 20. Tit. ii. 13. 2 Pet. iii. 12.
[t] Acts ii. 24.
[u] Mat. iii. 7. Rom. v. 9. Chap. v. 9.

v. 6—10. The apoſtle deſcribes the happy effects which the goſpel produced among them:

1. Ye became followers of us in faith, patience, and ſufferings, and of the Lord Jeſus, the perfect pattern which we deſire to imitate; having received the word in much affliction: far from being ſtumbled at the perſecution which was raiſed againſt us, or being diſcouraged, ye were filled with joy in the Holy Ghoſt: and, as your tribulations abounded, your conſolation by Jeſus Chriſt abounded alſo.

2. Ye were eminently diſtinguiſhed by your conduct on that occaſion, ſo that ye were enſamples of courage, conſtancy, and zeal, to all that believe in Macedonia and Achaia; for from you ſounded out the word of the Lord, the fame of your faith and the remarkable ſucceſs of the goſpel among you went forth; not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but alſo in every place your faith God-ward is ſpread abroad, and much ſpoken of, ſo that we need not to ſpeak any thing in your commendation: for they themſelves, among whom this good report of you is ſpread, ſhew of us, what manner of entring in we had unto you, and need not our information, having been already made acquainted with all the circumſtances; and how ye turned to God from idols, to ſerve the living and true God, who alone hath life in himſelf, and is the author thereof to all his creatures, and beſides whom there is no God; and to wait for his Son from heaven, in faith and hope, whom he raiſed from the dead for our juſtification, even Jeſus, the complete Saviour of his people, which delivered us from the wrath to come, and but for him we muſt all have periſhed eternally. Note, (1.) Good examples are mightily influential. (2.) Wherever the true grace of God comes, it will turn the heart from all its ſinful purſuits, and from idols, to cleave to him in faith and love alone. (3.) We owe it to the Son of God that we are reſcued from everlaſting burnings. Had he not interpoſed on our behalf, our eſtate had been deſperate as that of the devils themſelves. (4.) They who are partakers of the goſpel ſalvation, conſtantly keep in mind the ſecond coming of the Lord, waiting with deſire his appearing, and making it their labour and prayer to be ready to meet him in clouds.

CHAP. II.

In this chapter the apoſtle puts the Theſſalonians in mind of the manner of his preaching among them, ver. 1—6. Then of the manner of his converſation among them, ver. 7—12. Afterwards of the ſucceſs of his miniſtry, with the effects both on himſelf and themſelves, ver. 13—16. And then apologizeth for his abſence, ver. 17—20.

1. FOR [a] yourſelves, brethren, know our entrance in unto you, that it was not in vain. 2. But even after that we had ſuffered before, and were ſhamefully entreated, as ye know, at [b] Philippi, [c] we were bold in our God [d] to ſpeak unto you the goſpel of God [e] with much contention. 3. For [f] our exhortation was not of deceit, nor of uncleanneſs, nor in guile: 4. But as [g] we were allowed of God [h] to be put in truſt with the goſpel, even ſo we ſpeak, [i] not as pleaſing men, but God, which trieth our hearts. 5. For [k] neither at any time uſed we flattering words, as ye know, nor a cloak of covetouſneſs; [l] God is witneſs. 6. [m] Nor of men ſought we glory, neither of you, nor yet of others, when [n] we might have † been [o] burdenſome, [p] as the apoſtles of Chriſt. 7. But [q] we were gentle among you, even as a nurſe cheriſheth her children: 8. So being affectionately deſirous of you, we were willing [r] to have imparted unto you, not the goſpel of God only, but alſo [s] our own ſouls, becauſe ye were dear unto us. 9. For ye remember, brethren, our labour and travel: for [t] labouring night and day, [u] becauſe we would not be chargeable unto any of you, we preached unto you the goſpel of God. 10. Ye are witneſſes, and God alſo, [x] how holily, and juſtly, and unblameably we behaved ourſelves among you that believe: 11. As you know, how we exhorted and comforted, and charged every one of you (as a father doth his children). 12. [y] That ye would walk worthy of God, [z] who hath called you unto his kingdom and glory.

[a] Chap. i. 5, 9.
[b] Acts xvi. 22.
[c] Chap. i. 5.
[d] Acts xvii. 2.
[e] Phil. i. 30. Col. ii. 1.
[f] 2 Cor. iv. 2. & vii. 2.
[g] 1 Tim. i. 11, 12.
[h] Gal. ii. 7. Tit. i. 3.
[i] Gal. i. 10.
[k] Acts xx. 33. 2 Cor. ii. 17. & iv. 2. & vii. 2. & xii. 17.
[l] Rom. i. 9.
[m] John v. 41, 44. & xii. 43.
[n] 2 Cor. x. 2, 10, 11. Phil. viii. 9.
† Or uſed authority.
[o] 1 Cor. ix. 1, 5, 6.
[p] 1 Cor. ix. 2. 2 Theſ. iii. 9.
[q] 1 Cor. ii. 3. 2 Cor. xii. 4. 2 Tim. ii. 24.
[r] Rom. i. 11.
[s] 2 Cor. xii. 15.
[t] Acts xx. 34. 1 Cor. iv. 12. 2 Cor. xi. 9. 2 Theſ. iii. 8.
[u] 2 Cor. xii. 13, 14.
[x] 2 Cor. vii. 2. 2 Theſ. iii. 7.
[y] Gen. xvii. 9. Eph. iv. 1. Phil. i. 27. Col. i. 10. Chap. iv. 1.
[z] 1 Cor. i. 9. Gal. i. 6. 2 Theſ. ii. 14. 2 Pet. v. 10.

v. 1—12. The apoſtle reminds the Theſſalonians,

1. Of his manner of preaching among them. For yourſelves, brethren, know our entrance in unto you, that it was not in vain, with great ſwelling words of vanity, or empty ineffectual harangues, but with the power of the goſpel, and the mighty word of truth. But even after we had ſuffered before, and were ſhamefully entreated, as ye know, at Philippi, undiſmayed at the perſecutions that we had endured, we were bold in our God to ſpeak unto you the goſpel of God with much contention, as in an agony, labouring after your converſion amidſt all the oppoſition which we had to encounter. For our exhortation was not of deceit, we broached no falſe doctrine, nor had any intention to deceive; nor of uncleanneſs, but tending to diſcourage all manner of impurity; nor of guile, for we ſpoke the truth from the heart: but as we were allowed of God to be put in truſt with the goſpel, and had this honour conferred upon us to be appointed his ambaſſadors, even ſo we ſpeak, under a ſenſe of the weighty charge committed to us; not as pleaſing men, but God, which trieth our hearts, to whom we ſtudy to approve ourſelves in ſimplicity and godly ſincerity: for neither at any time uſed we flattering words, in order to inſinuate and ingratiate ourſelves into your confidence, or to encourage you with the leaſt imagination of impunity in your ſins; as ye know; nor did we put on a cloke of religion to conceal our deſigns of covetouſneſs, in order to make an advantage of you; God is witneſs to the uprightneſs of our hearts reſpecting you. Nor of men ſought we glory, neither of you, nor yet of others, deſiring human applauſe or eſteem, when we might have been burdenſome, and demanded our maintenance of you, as the apoſtles of Chriſt.

2. Of his conduct and converſation among them. But we were gentle among you, even as a nurſe cheriſheth her children, with the greateſt tenderneſs: ſo being affectionately deſirous of you, of your happineſs and ſalvation, we were willing to have imparted unto you, not the goſpel of God only, but alſo our own ſouls, ready to ſpend and be ſpent in the ſervice of your faith, becauſe ye were dear unto us. For ye remember, brethren, our labour and travel: for labouring night and day, with our own hands, to earn our maintenance, becauſe we would not be chargeable unto any of you, we preached unto you the goſpel of God freely. Ye are witneſſes, and God alſo, how holily, and juſtly, and unblameably, we behaved ourſelves among you that believe, conſcientiouſly diſcharging every duty of religion towards God, and righteouſneſs towards men: as you know how we exhorted and comforted, and charged every one of you, as a father doth his children, with the affection and authority of the kindeſt parent, that ye would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto his kingdom and glory, to the bleſſings of his grace in time, and of his glory in eternity. Note, (1.) They can ſpeak boldly, who can appeal to their own conduct for the example of what they teach. (2.) The more love and tenderneſs accompanies our exhortations, the more effectual are they likely to prove. (3.) They who are called to God's kingdom dom are bound to walk worthy their high vocation, and to adorn the doctrine of Chriſt which they profeſs in all things.

13. For this cauſe alſo thank we God [a] without ceaſing, becauſe when ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it [b] not as the word of men, but (as it is in truth) the word of God, which effectually worketh alſo in you that believe. 14. For [c] ye, brethren, became followers of [d] the churches of God, which in Judea are in Chriſt Jeſus: for [e] ye alſo have ſuffered like things of your own countrymen, [f] even as they have of the Jews: 15. [g] Who both killed the Lord Jeſus, [h] and their own prophets, [i] and have † perſecuted us; and they pleaſe not God, and are contrary to all men: 16. [k] Forbidding us to ſpeak to the Gentiles that they might be ſaved, [l] to fill up their ſins alway: for [m] the wrath is come upon them to the uttermoſt.

[a] Chap. i. 3.
[b] Mat. x. 40. Gal. iv. 14. 2 Pet. iii. 2.
[c] Chap. i. 6.
[d] Gal. i. 22.
[e] Acts xvii. 5, 13.
[f] Heb. x. 34.
[g] Acts vii. 52.
[h] Mat. xxiii. 34, 37. Luke xiii. 33.
[i] Acts viii. 4. & xi. 19.
† Or chaſed.
[k] Acts xiii. 50. & xiv. 5, 19. & xvii. 5, 13. & xviii. 12. & xix. 9.
[l] Gen. xv. 16. Mat. xxiii. 32.
[m] Mat. xxiv. 21.

v. 13—16. The apoſtle proceeds,

1. To thank God for their ready reception of the goſpel word. For this cauſe alſo thank we God without ceaſing, becauſe when ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of man, which may be fallacious, or at beſt of uncertain authority, but, as it is in truth, the word of God, and as ſuch deſerving the deepeſt reverence, attention, and obedience; which effectually worketh alſo in you that believe, producing the moſt bleſſed conſequences, and carrying with it the evidence of its divine original. Note, (1.) Though the treaſure of God's word is committed to earthen veſſels, its excellence is not therefore the leſs: and we muſt remember not who diſpenſes it, but whoſe word it is, that with reverence and godly fear we may hear and obey. (2.) Wherever the goſpel is received into the heart, it works effectually to the ſalvation of the ſoul, caſting the whole man into its bleſſed mold.

2. They were honoured with the croſs, and bore it moſt exemplarily. For ye, brethren, became followers of the churches of God, which in Judea are in Chriſt Jeſus; for ye alſo have ſuffered like things of your own countrymen, even as they have of the Jews, and ſuſtained the ſhock of perſecution with the ſame unſhaken fortitude and unwearied patience.

3. He mentions with horror the dreadful guilt and rooted enmity of the Jewiſh zealots, his and their chief opponents, who both killed the Lord Jeſus, with moſt atrocious wickedneſs imbruing their hands in his ſacred blood, and murdered their own prophets, and have with the utmoſt virulence perſecuted us his apoſtles; and they pleaſe not God, though they flatter themſelves they are his only favourites; they act in direct oppoſition to his will, and are contrary to all men, abhorring both Gentiles and Chriſtians, and filled with implacable malice againſt thoſe who uſe any means for the converſion of the heathen to Chriſt; forbidding us to ſpeak to the Gentiles the goſpel of God's grace, that they might be ſaved, to fill up the meaſure of their ſins alway, and to haſten the full vials of God's vengeance upon their devoted heads: for the wrath is come upon them, and hath begun to ſeize them in their rejection of God, and will be poured out to the uttermoſt, or to the end, in the entire deſtruction of their city, nation, and temple, and in the eternal perdition of the impenitent. Note, When the ſinner's iniquities are at the full, then wrath cometh to the uttermoſt.

17. But we, brethren, being taken from you for a ſhort time, [n] in preſence, not in heart, endeavoured the more abundantly [o] to ſee your face with great deſire. 18. Wherefore we would have come unto you (even I Paul) once and again; [p] but Satan hindred us. 19. For [q] what is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? are not even ye in the preſence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt [r] at his coming? 20. For ye are our glory and joy.

[n] 1 Cor. v. 3.
[o] Chap. iii. 10.
[p] Rom. i. 13. & xv. 22.
[q] 1 Cor. i. 14. Phil. iv. 1.
[r] Rev. xxii. 12.

v. 17—20. The apoſtle,

1. Excuſes his abſence, which was not voluntary, but thro' unavoidable hindrances. But we, brethren, being taken from you for a ſhort time, in preſence, not in heart, and compelled reluctantly to leave you as helpleſs orphans, endeavoured the more abundantly to ſee your face with great deſire, longing to converſe with you, and build up your ſouls on the true foundation. Whereſore we would have come unto you, (even I Paul), once and again, and made efforts for that purpoſe; but Satan hindred us, ſowing ſuch diſſenſions and raiſing ſuch difficulties as made our abode in theſe parts, where we now are, abſolutely neceſſary. Note, We have a buſy enemy, who is ever ſeeking to lay obſtacles in our way. We need therefore to watch againſt his devices and to reſiſt his wiles.

2. He aſſures them of his high affection and regard for them. For what is our hope in our labours, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? what revives, animates, and comforts our ſouls under all our work and ſufferings? are not even ye in the preſence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt at his coming? Yes verily. For ye are our glory and joy, whilſt, looking forward to the great day of Chriſt's appearing, we confidently hope to preſent you before him as the happy fruits of our labour, to your eternal bleſſedneſs and to our own immortal honour.

CHAP. III.

In this chapter the apoſtle giveth further evidence of his love to the Theſſalonians, reminding them of his ſending Timothy to them, with the mention of his deſign therein, and his inducements ſo to do, ver. 1—5. By acquainting them of his great ſatisfaction at the return of Timothy, with good tidings concerning them, ver. 6—10. And concludeth with fervent prayer for them, ver. 11. to the end.

1. WHerefore [a] when we could no longer forbear, [b] we thought it good to be left at Athens alone: 2. And ſent [c] Timotheus our brother and miniſter of God, and [d] our fellow-labourer in the goſpel of Chriſt, to eſtabliſh you, and to comfort you concerning your faith; 3. [e] That no man ſhould be moved by theſe afflictions; for yourſelves know that [f] we are appointed thereunto. 4. For verily when we were with you, we told you before [g] that we ſhould ſuffer tribulation; even as it came to paſs, and ye know. 5. For this cauſe [h] when I could no longer forbear, I ſent to know your faith, [i] leſt by ſome means the tempter have tempted you, and [k] our labour be in vain.

[a] Ver. 5.
[b] Acts xvii. 15.
[c] Rom. xvi. 21.
[d] 1 Cor. xvi. 21. Phil. ii. 22.
[e] Eph. iii. 13.
[f] Acts xiv. 22. 1 Cor. iv. 9. 2 Tim. iii. 12. 1 Pet. ii. 21.
[g] Acts xx. 23.
[h] Ver. 1.
[i] 1 Cor. vii. 5. 2 Cor. xi. 3.
[k] Gal. ii. 2. & iv. 11. Phil. ii. 16.

v. 1—5. The ſolicitude which the apoſtle felt towards them engaged him to ſend Timothy and be left alone at Athens, however uſeful or comfortable ſuch a friend at that time might be to him. Wherefore, when we could no longer forbear, ſo anxious was I to hear of your affairs, we thought it good to be left at Athens alone; and ſent Timotheus our brother and miniſter of God; and our fellow-labourer in the goſpel of Chriſt; and this in order to eſtabliſh you in the truth, to build you up in the glorious doctrines of the goſpel of Jeſus, and to comfort you concerning your faith, exhorting you to abide unſhaken in your profeſſion, and ſuggeſting the moſt encouraging motives thereto; that no man ſhould be moved by theſe afflictions; for yourſelves know that we are appointed thereunto, according to God's eternal counſels, for wiſe and holy purpoſes of his own glory. For verily, when we were with you, we concealed nothing from you, but told you plainly before the perſecutions came, that we ſhould ſuffer tribulation; even as it came to paſs, and ye know. For this cauſe, when I could no longer forbear, reflecting upon your very critical and trying circumſtances, I ſent to know your faith, leſt by ſome means the tempter ſhould have tempted you to turn back from the profeſſion of Chriſt, and our labour be in vain, notwithſtanding all the promiſing appearances which emboldened my confident hope in your fidelity. Note, (1.) We muſt count the coſt, before we enliſt under Chriſt's banner. All that will live godly in him ſhall ſuffer perſecution. (2.) The devil uſually ſeeks to diſcourage new converts by the violent oppoſition which he raiſes againſt them. (3.) Faithful miniſters labour to confirm the faith and comfort the hearts of thoſe who are ſuffering for righteouſneſs ſake. In this way only can we hope to enter into the kingdom of God.

6. [l] But now when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and charity, and that ye have good remembrance of us always, deſiring greatly to ſee us, [m] as we alſo to ſee you, 7. Therefore, brethren, we were comforted over you in all our affliction and diſtreſs by your faith: 8. For now we live, if ye ſtand faſt in the Lord. 9. For what thanks can we render to God again for you, for all the joy wherewith we joy for your ſakes before our God, 10. [n] Night and day [o] praying exceedingly [p] that we might ſee your face, and [q] might perfect that which is lacking in your faith? 11. Now God himſelf and our Father, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt direct our way unto you. 12. And the Lord [r] make you to increaſe and abound in love [s] one towards another, and towards all men, even as we do towards you: 13. To the end he may [t] ſtabliſh your hearts unblameable in holineſs before God even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt [u] with all his ſaints.

[l] Acts xviii. 15.
[m] Phil. i. 8.
[n] Acts xxvi. 7. 2 Tim. i. 3.
[o] Rom. i. 10, 11.
[p] Chap. ii. 17.
[q] Col. i. 28.
[r] Chap. iv. 10.
[s] Chap. v. 15. 2 Pet. i. 7.
[t] 1 Cor. i. 8. Phil. i. 10. Chap. v. 23. 2 Theſ. ii. 17.
[u] Jude 14.

v. 6—13. The apoſtle,

1. Expreſſes the vaſt ſatisfaction which he felt at Timothy's report. But now, when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your unſhaken faith in Chriſt, and fervent charity towards each other; and that ye have good remembrance of us always, deſiring greatly to ſee us, as we alſo to ſee you; therefore, brethren, we were comforted, and all my anxious fears gave place to holy joy in and over you, in all our affliction and diſtreſs, which we were here ſuffering when Timotheus arrived;

but which were now made light and eaſy, by the knowledge of your faith in Jeſus, and fidelity to his cauſe: for now we live, and are happy in the midſt of all our perſecutions and dangers, if, or ſeeing, ye ſtand faſt in the Lord, and are not moved away from the hope of the goſpel. Note, Nothing is ſuch an encouragement to ſuffer for Chriſt and his goſpel, as ſeeing the happy effects of our labours upon thoſe among whom we miniſter.

2. The glad news filled him with thankfulneſs to God, and opened his heart and lips in prayer. For what thanks can we render to God again for you, or how ſufficiently expreſs our gratitude, for all the joy wherewith we joy for your ſakes before our God, night and day praying exceedingly, with unuſual fervor and vehemence, that, if the Lord ſo pleaſed, we might ſee your face again, and might perfect that which is lacking in your faith? helping you to farther and clearer diſcoveries of the goſpel, and leading you to fuller and more aſſured confidence in the Lord. Note, (1.) The ſtrongeſt believers need ſtill to have their faith increaſed. (2.) The miniſtry of the word is the great means which God uſually bleſſes for that happy purpoſe.

3. He tells them what was the conſtant ſubject of his prayers for them. Now God himſelf and our Father, who as God hath all power to ſupply every want of his people, and, as our reconciled God and Father, is in the fulneſs of his love and grace diſpoſed moſt tenderly towards us; and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who is equally with the Father the object of our prayers, and through whoſe mediation we receive an anſwer of peace, direct our way unto you, and in his providence enable us to accompliſh the purpoſes we have formed. And the Lord make you to increaſe and abound in love one towards another, and towards all men, even as we do towards you, advancing to higher attainments in this godlike temper; to the end that he may ſtabliſh your hearts in faith and love, unblameable in holineſs before God even our Father, approving yourſelves to him in all ſimplicity and godly ſincerity, and acknowledged by him as his choſen at the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt to judgment, with all his ſaints, who in that day ſhall ſtand before his throne and ſhare his triumphs. Note, (1.) Though we may purpoſe our goings, the Lord alone directeth our ſteps. (2.) An increaſe in love is the beſt ſymptom of the flouriſhing ſtate of the Chriſtian's ſoul. (3.) All God's people deſire to be found unblameable in holineſs before him, and ſo to walk as to pleaſe him well in all things. (4.) It is God alone by his grace who can make us ſuch as he would have us to be: therefore to him muſt we, without ceaſing, direct our prayer. (5.) The Lord Jeſus ſhall quickly come in glory with all his ſaints. Happy the ſoul that ſhall then have boldneſs in his preſence.

CHAP. IV.

In this chapter the apoſtle gives earneſt exhortations to abound in holineſs, with a caution againſt uncleanneſs, enforced with ſeveral arguments, ver. 1—8. He then mentions the great duties of brotherly love, and quietneſs, with induſtry, in our callings, ver. 9—12. and concludeth with comforting them that mourned for their relations and friends that died in the Lord, ver. 13—18.

1. FUrthermore then we beſeech you, brethren, and exhort you by the Lord Jeſus, [a] that as ye have received of us [b] how you ought to walk, [c] and to pleaſe God, ſo ye would abound more and more. 2. For ye know what commandments we gave you by the Lord Jeſus. 3. For this is [d] the will of God, even your ſanctification, that [e] ye ſhould abſtain from fornication: 4. [f] That every one of you ſhould know how to poſſeſs his veſſel in ſanctification and honour; 5. Not in the luſt of concupiſcence, [g] even as the Gentiles [h] which know not God: 6. [i] That no man go beyond, and † defraud his brother in any matter; becauſe that the Lord is the avenger of all ſuch, as we alſo have forewarned you and teſtified. 7. For God hath not called us unto uncleanneſs, but [k] unto holineſs. 8. [l] He therefore that deſpiſeth, deſpiſeth not man, but God, [m] who hath alſo given unto us his holy Spirit.

[a] Col. ii. 6.
[b] Chap. ii. 12.
[c] Col. i. 10.
[d] Eph. v. 17.
[e] Ex. xx. 14. 1 Cor. vi. 9. 15.
[f] 1 Cor. vi. 18.
[g] Rom. i. 24.
[h] 1 Cor. xv. 34. Eph. iv. 18.
[i] 1 Cor. vi. 7, &c. 2 Theſ. i. 8.
† Or over-reach.
[k] Lev. xi. 44. & xix. 2. 1 Cor. i. 2.
[l] Luke x. 16.
[m] Rom. viii. 9, 14. 1 John iii. 24.

v. 1—8. We have here,

1. An exhortation to all holy obedience. Furthermore then we beſeech you, brethren, and exhort you by the Lord Jeſus, in his name and by his authority, that as ye have received of us how you ought to walk, and to pleaſe God, ſo ye would abound more and more, with greater watchfulneſs, diligence, and zeal, according to God's holy word. For ye know what commandments we gave you by the Lord Jeſus, ſo clearly that none can plead ignorance, and urged upon your conſciences with thoſe moſt powerful arguments which ſhould engage your obedience thereunto. Note, (1.) The more clearly the path of duty is marked out to us, the more ſteadily are we bound to walk in it. (2.) The beſt come very ſhort of perfection, and have need to be exhorted to greater diligence and exemplarineſs in their walk and converſation.

2. A caution againſt all impurity, as moſt oppoſite to the Chriſtian character. For this is the will of God, even your ſanctification, that you ſhould be in heart and conduct obedient to all his commands; particularly, that ye ſhould abſtain from fornication, that common ſin among the Gentiles, and to which in the days of your unregeneracy you may have been addicted; that every one of you ſhould know how to poſſeſs his veſſel, his body, in ſanctification and honour, with ſuch purity and chaſtity as never to be guilty of an action unworthy thoſe who are the temples of the Holy Ghoſt, and that would defile and diſgrace you in the ſight of God and every real Chriſtian; not in the luſt of concupiſcence, indulging the vile affections of the natural heart, even as the Gentiles do, which know not God; that no man go beyond and defraud his brother in any matter, not only abſtaining from every act of injuſtice, but eſpecially by robbing them of that which is dearer to them than any earthly goods, the affections or the perſon of their wife; or drawing them into any horrid and unnatural acts of lewdneſs: becauſe that the Lord is the avenger of all ſuch, as we alſo have forewarned you and teſtified, and will execute condign puniſhment on ſuch workers of iniquity. For God hath not called us unto uncleanneſs, but unto holineſs, in his goſpel enjoining all purity of heart and converſation on his people. He therefore that deſpiſeth our admonitions, deſpiſeth not man, but God, who hath alſo given unto us his holy Spirit, by whoſe inſpiration I now ſpeak, and whoſe office it is to ſanctify our bodies, ſouls, and ſpirits, and prepare us for the glory which is promiſed. Note, Whoremongers and adulterers God will judge; and into his kingdom ſhall nothing enter which defileth or maketh unclean.

9. But as touching brotherly love, [n] ye need not that I write unto you: for [o] ye yourſelves are [p] taught of God to love one another. 10. And indeed ye do it towards all the brethren which are in all Macedonia: but we beſeech you, brethren, [q] that ye increaſe more and more: 11. And that ye ſtudy [r] to be quiet, and [s] to do your own buſineſs, and [t] to work with your own hands (as we commanded you) 12. [u] That ye may walk honeſtly toward them that are without, and that ye may have lack of nothing.

[n] Chap. v. 1.
[o] Jer. xxxi. 34. John vi. 45. & xiv. 26. Heb. viii. 11. 1 John ii. 20, 27.
[p] John xiii. 34. & xv. 12. Eph. v. 2. 1 Pet. iv. 8.
[q] Chap. iii. 12.
[r] 1 Pet. iv. 15.
[s] 2 Theſ. iii. 12.
[t] Eph. iv. 28. 1 Theſ. iii. 8.
[u] Rom. xiii. 13. Col. iv. 5.

v. 9—12. The apoſtle here inculcates,

1. The great duty of brotherly love. But as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I write unto you; for ye yourſelves are taught of God to love one another, and are already exemplary for your fervent and enlarged charity: and indeed ye do it, not only towards the members of your own church, but towards all the brethren which are in all Macedonia. But, as there is ſtill room for much higher advancement, we beſeech you, brethren, that ye increaſe more and more. Note, (1.) We are never ſo high in grace, but we have ſummits of holineſs yet to climb, and ſhall continue to have, till we reach the heavenly Zion, and come to join the ſpirits of the juſt there made perfect. (2.) All good comes from God: unleſs we are taught of him, no human leſſons can lead us into the ſpirit of Chriſtianity.

2. Of quietneſs and induſtry in our callings. And that ye ſtudy to be quiet, make it your holy ambition to live in peace with all men, not officiouſly intruding into other people's affairs; and to do your own buſineſs, minding the concerns of your own family and calling; and to work with your own hands, as many as by your ſtation muſt earn your bread by daily labour, as we commanded you, idleneſs and Chriſtianity being utterly inconſiſtent: that ye may walk honeſtly toward them that are without, paying every man his due; and that ye may have lack of nothing, but be furniſhed with all that yourſelves and families may need, and not be burdenſome to any.

13. But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are aſleep, that ye ſorrow not, [x] even as others which have no hope. 14. For [y] if we believe that Jeſus died, and roſe again, even ſo [z] them alſo which ſleep in Jeſus will God bring with him. 15. For this we ſay unto you [a] by the word of the Lord, [b] that we which are alive, and remain unto the coming of the Lord, ſhall not prevent them which are aſleep. 16. For [c] the Lord himſelf ſhall deſcend from heaven with a ſhout, with the voice of the archangel, and with [d] the trump of God: and [e] the dead in Chriſt ſhall riſe firſt: 17. [f] Then we which are alive and remain, [g] ſhall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and ſo [h] ſhall we ever be with the Lord. 18. [i] Wherefore † comfort one another with theſe words.

[x] Deut. xiv. 1. 2 Sam. xii. 20.
[y] 1 Cor. xv. 13.
[z] 1 Cor. xv. 23. Chap. iii. 13.
[a] 1 Kings xiii. 17. & xx. 32.
[b] 1 Cor. xv. 51.
[c] Mat. xxiv. 34. 2 Theſ. i. 7.
[d] 1 Cor. xv. 52.
[e] 1 Cor. xv. 23.
[f] 1 Cor. xv. 51.
[g] Rev. xi. 12.
[h] John xii. 26. & xiv. 3. & xvii. 24.
[i] Chap. v. 11.
† Or exhort.

v. 13—18. The apoſtle here ſuggeſts the moſt encouraging arguments to ſupport the Theſſalonians under the loſs of their near and dear relatives. But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are aſleep, and departed in the faith of Chriſt, that ye ſorrow not as others which have no hope, as the heathen, who make ſuch howling and lamentation for the dead; ſince we have a hope full of immortality: for if we believe that Jeſus died, and roſe again, even ſo them alſo which ſleep in Jeſus will God bring with him, raiſing their bodies from the duſt at the laſt day, as his was raiſed from the tomb. For this we ſay unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive, and remain unto the coming of the Lord, even thoſe members of his church who ſhall be numbered among the living in the great day of his appearing and glory, ſhall not prevent them which are aſleep, ſo as to anticipate their reſurrection: for the Lord himſelf ſhall deſcend from heaven with a ſhout of triumph and exultation, with the voice of the archangel that ſhall attend his orders, and with the trump of God, like that tremendous ſound which once iſſued from Sinai's top; and the dead in Chriſt, thoſe who departed in his faith and fear, ſhall riſe firſt, in virtue of their union with their exalted Head: then we which are alive and remain, as many as ſhall then be found among the living, ſhall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and ſo ſhall we ever be with the Lord, enjoying that eternal bleſſedneſs in his immediate preſence which is the ſummit of our felicity. Wherefore comfort one another with theſe words, under all your preſent trials and diſcouragements, and in the proſpect of your own approaching diſſolution. Note, (1.) They who die in the faith of Chriſt return to his boſom, and their duſt ſleeps ſweetly under his care, waiting a reſurrection day. (2.) The faithful ſhall ſhortly meet together in bliſs around the Redeemer's throne, and ſpend a happy eternity in his unceaſing praiſes. (3.) This reviving hope is the comfort and ſupport of the Chriſtian, living and dying.

CHAP. V.

The apoſtle having ſpoken in the end of the foregoing chapter concerning the reſurrection, and the ſecond coming of Chriſt, he proceeds to ſpeak concerning the uſeleſſneſs of enquiring after the particular time of Chriſt's coming, which would be ſudden and terrible to the wicked, but comfortable to the ſaints, ver. 1—5. He then exhorts them to the duties of watchfulneſs, ſobriety, and the exerciſe of faith, hope, and love, ver. 6—10. In the next words he exhorts them to ſeveral duties they owed to others, or to one another, ver. 11—15. And afterwards to ſeveral other Chriſtian duties of great importance, ver. 16—22. And then concludes this epiſtle, ver. 23—28.

1. BUT of [a] the times and the ſeaſons, brethren, [b] ye have no need that I write unto you. 2. For yourſelves know perfectly that [c] the day of the Lord ſo cometh as a thief in the night. 3. For when they ſhall ſay, Peace and ſafety; [d] then ſudden deſtruction cometh upon them, [e] as travail upon a woman with child; and they ſhall not eſcape. 4. But ye, brethren, are not in darkneſs, that that day ſhould overtake you as a thief. 5. [f] Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkneſs.

[a] Mat. xxiv. 3, 36. Acts i. 7.
[b] Chap. iv. 9.
[c] Mat. xxiv. 43, 44. 2 Pet. iii. 10. Rev. iii. 3. & xvi. 15.
[d] Luke xvii. 27. & xxi. 35. 2 Theſ. i. 9.
[e] Iſa. xiii. 8.
[f] Eph. v. 8.

v. 1—5. Having mentioned the ſecond advent of the Lord Jeſus, he bids them prepare for it.

1. Reſpecting the preciſe time of his coming, it is left in an awful uncertainty, that we might be always ready. But of the times and the ſeaſons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you: for yourſelves know perfectly, that the day of the Lord ſo cometh as a thief in the night, ſo ſuddenly and unexpectedly. Note, It is a needleſs curioſity to deſire preciſely to know the hour of Chriſt's coming; but a moſt needful piece of wiſdom to be always ready for his appearing.

2. His coming will be the terror and ſurprize of an ungodly world. For when they, who are ſecure in their ſins, ſhall ſay, Peace and ſafety, promiſing themſelves long years of ſinful pleaſures and indulgencies, then ſudden deſtruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they ſhall not eſcape. Note, When the day of the Lord comes, it will ſpread a terrible alarm through a world that lieth in wickedneſs, and then the ungodly and the ſinner will in vain cry to rocks and mountains to cover their guilty heads.

3. This will be a day of light and triumph to the people of God. But ye, brethren, are not in darkneſs, ſleeping in ſinful and ſenſual ſecurity, but brought into the marvellous light of the goſpel; and therefore need not fear that that day ſhould overtake you as a thief, and find you unprepared. Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day, walking under the bright beams of the Sun of righteouſneſs towards the kingdom of eternal glory: we are not of the night, nor of darkneſs, in heathen ignorance, and under the blindneſs of the natural mind; but tread the ſhining path of truth, looking for and haſtening unto the coming of the Son of man. Note, It is an unſpeakable bleſſing to be delivered from the darkneſs of the fallen heart, and, walking in the light of life, to have ever in our view the bright crown of righteouſneſs which fadeth not away. Then we can ſay, Come Lord Jeſus, come quickly.

6. [g] Therefore let us not ſleep as do others; but [h] let us watch and be ſober. 7. For [i] they that ſleep, ſleep in the night; and they that be drunken, [k] are drunken in the night. 8. But let us, who are of the day, be ſober, [l] putting on the breaſt-plate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of ſalvation. 9. For [m] God hath not appointed us to wrath; but [n] to obtain ſalvation by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, 10. [o] Who died for us, that, whether we wake or ſleep, we ſhould live together with him. 11. [p] Wherefore comfort yourſelves together, and edify one another, even as alſo ye do.

[g] Mat. xxv. 5.
[h] Mat. xxiv. 42. & xxv. 13. Rom. xiii. 11. 1 Pet. v. 8.
[i] Luke xxi. 34, 36. Rom. xiii. 13. 1 Cor. xv. 34.
[k] Acts ii. 15.
[l] Iſa. lix. 17. Eph. vi. 14, &c.
[m] Rom. ix. 22. Chap. i. 10. 1 Pet. ii. 8. Jude 4.
[n] 2 Theſ. ii. 14.
[o] Rom. xiv. 8, 9. 2 Cor. v. 15.
[p] Chap. iv. 18.

v. 6—11. On the foregoing conſiderations the apoſtle grounds his exhortations to the practice of ſeveral neceſſary duties.

1. Therefore let us not ſleep as do others, in careleſſneſs about theſe eternal concerns, trifling away the precious moment of opportunity; but let us watch and pray, awake to the great affairs of our immortal ſouls, and ever liſtening when the ſound, Behold he cometh, Go ye out to meet him, ſhall reach our ears. Bleſſed is that ſervant whom his Lord, when he cometh, ſhall find watching. And,

2. Be ſober, temperate in the uſe of all God's creatures, neither overcharged with ſurfeiting or drunkenneſs, nor with the cares or pleaſures of this life. For they that ſleep, ſleep in the night; and they that be drunken, are drunken in the night, and ſeek the darkneſs to hide their guilty heads, ſtupifying their conſciences till the dreadful hour ſhall ſtartle them into ſenſibility. But let us who are of the day, and walk in the light of truth, be ſober (νηφωμεν) and vigilant, not intoxicated with any earthly purſuits or enjoyments, but ſeeking in the firſt place the kingdom of God and his righteouſneſs.

3. We muſt be armed, as well as on our guard; putting on the breaſt-plate of faith and love, and for an helmet the hope of ſalvation; theſe being the cardinal graces, by which the ſoul, like a warrior compleatly clad in armour, is able to reſiſt every attack of the enemy, unhurt amidſt all the fiery darts which ſin and Satan can hurl againſt us. Note, (1.) We have mighty foes to grapple with, and need be well armed againſt them. (2.) Where faith is grounded on Chriſt, love in lively exerciſe, and hope with piercing eye looking up to eternal things, then none of our enemies can hurt us, nor will any of the ſnares of this world be able to prevail to draw our affections off from God and the things which are above.

4. He encourages them, from paſt experience, with confidence ſtill to truſt on the Lord. For God hath not appointed us to wrath; but, as is evident from his grace which we have already received, hath predeſtinated us to obtain ſalvation by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who died for us, and thereby ſecured our eternal redemption; that, whether we wake or ſleep, are numbered among the living or among the dead, at the day of his appearing, we ſhould then live together with him in glory everlaſting. Wherefore comfort yourſelves together, or exhort and edify one another, even as alſo ye do; nothing affording ſuch animating ground of hope, and ſerving to quicken the ſoul in all holy walking before God, as theſe bleſſed proſpects and expectations. Note, (1.) Our ſalvation in Jeſus Chriſt is firmly ſecured; and the more we are enabled to exerciſe confidence in him, the more ſteadily ſhall we bear up under all oppoſition. (2.) Chriſtians ſhould delight in exhorting, comforting, and edifying one another; and nothing can afford them more abundant matter than the expected coming of their Lord.

12. And we beſeech you, brethren, [q] to know them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admoniſh you; 13. And to eſteem them very highly in love for their work's ſake. And be at peace among yourſelves. 14. Now we exhort you, brethren, [r] warn them that are unruly, [s] comfort the feeble-minded, [t] ſupport the weak, be patient toward all men. 15. [u] See that none render evil for evil unto any man: but ever [x] follow that which is good, both among yourſelves, and to all men.

[q] 1 Cor. xvi. 18. Phil. ii. 29. 1 Tim. v. 17. Heb. xiii. 7, 17.
[r] 2 Theſ. iii. 11. 12.
[s] Heb. xii. 12.
[t] Rom. xv. 1. Gal. vi. 1, 2.
[u] Prov. xvii. 13. & xx. 22. & xxiv. 29. Mat. v. 39, 44. Rom. xii. 17. 1 Cor. vi. 7. 1 Pet. iii. 9.
[x] Gal. vi. 10. Chap. iii. 12.

v. 12—15. The apoſtle paſſes on to other needful exhortations.

1. He enjoins them to reſpect and honour their miniſters. And we beſeech you, brethren, to know them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord, preſiding in your worſhipping aſſemblies, and admoniſh and inſtruct you in the good ways of the Lord, and to eſteem them very highly in love for their work's ſake. Note, (1.) The duty of miniſters is to labour with zeal and diligence for the good of their people's ſouls, to be over them, watching for their good as the ſhepherd tends his flock, with a conſtant eye to the great Shepherd who hath committed this truſt to them; and to admoniſh them publickly and privately, without partiality, inſtructing them in all God's holy will. (2.) The duty of people to their miniſters is to love them, to eſteem them highly for their work's ſake, to know and acknowledge them, with thankfulneſs for their labours, and ſerious attention to their advice.

2. He exhorts them to the diſcharge of thoſe duties, which, as Chriſtians, they owed each other.

(1.) Be at peace among yourſelves, cultivating that mutual harmony and love with each other, and your miniſters, which, as a church, will moſt eſpecially tend to your eſtabliſhment.

(2.) Now we exhort you, brethren, warn them that are unruly, reprove them for their diſorderly walk, and threaten them with the church's cenſures if they amend not their ways; comfort the feeble-minded, whoſe hearts are ready to ſink under their trials, and are dejected with temptation or affliction, encourage them to bear up, and ſuggeſt every reviving motive to cheer their drooping ſpirits; ſupport the weak, whoſe attainments are low in grace and knowledge, and are therefore more eaſily offended; we ſhould therefore bear with their infirmities, and endeavour to ſtrengthen their faith; be patient toward all men, put up with every affront or provocation, forbearing and forgiving one another in love, and ſtill waiting and hoping for their amendment.

3. See that none render evil for evil unto any man, in look, in word, or deed, but ever follow that which is good, both among yourſelves, and to all men; do good to their bodies and ſouls, and be ready to every work and labour of love.

16. [y] Rejoice evermore. 17. [z] Pray without ceaſing. 18. [a] In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Chriſt Jeſus concerning you. 19. [b] Quench not the Spirit. 20. [c] Deſpiſe not propheſyings. 21. [d] Prove all things: [e] hold faſt that which is good. 22. [f] Abſtain from all appearance of evil.

[y] Rom. xii. 12. Phil. iv. 4.
[z] Luke xviii. 1. & xxi. 36. Rom. xii. 12. Eph. vi. 18.
[a] Eph. v. 20. Col. iii. 17.
[b] Eph. iv. 30. 2 Tim. i. 6.
[c] 1 Cor. xiv. 1, 39.
[d] 1 Cor. ii. 15. 1 John iv. 1.
[e] 2 Theſ. ii. 15.
[f] Phil. iv. 8.

v. 16—22. We have here divers ſhort and weighty exhortations.

1. Rejoice evermore in God as your Portion, in Chriſt as your Redeemer, in the Spirit as your Comforter; in one another, in all holy ordinances, and under every tribulation.

2. Pray without ceaſing; be daily and often employed in this bleſſed work, in private in your families, or among the faithful. Note, To live without prayer, is the ſure proof of an unregenerate heart.

3. In every thing give thanks, under every diſpenſation of Providence, not only for mercies received, but alſo under every affliction, maintaining ſtill a chearful ſpirit: for this is the will of God in Chriſt Jeſus concerning you, and the conſtant, grateful returns we owe for the rich redemption which we have obtained in his dear Son.

4. Quench not the Spirit, by indulging any evil temper in your heart, or allowed ſin in your conduct; reſiſting his gracious motions, or neglecting thoſe means of grace wherein his divine influences are communicated to you.

5. Deſpiſe not propheſyings, or prophecies, which ſtill contain much uſeful matter, and ſhould be conſtantly read and regarded; and attend upon the miniſtrations of the word.

6. Prove all things, and try, by the goſpel teſt, every doctrine which is advanced, that you may not be a prey to deceivers: hold faſt that which is good, unmoved by ſeducers among yourſelves, or the perſecutions of your enemies from without.

7. Abſtain from all appearance of evil, dreading ſin in its moſt diſtant approaches, and avoiding whatever may have a tendency to lead you into evil, under however innocent a guiſe it may preſent itſelf unto you.

23. And [g] the very God of peace [h] ſanctify you wholly: and I pray God your whole ſpirit and ſoul and body be preſerved blameleſs unto the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 24. [i] Faithful is he that calleth you, who alſo will do it. 25. Brethren, [k] pray for us. 26. [l] Greet all the brethren with an holy kiſs. 27. I † charge you by the Lord, [m] that this epiſtle be read unto all the holy brethren. 28. [n] The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you. Amen.

[g] Rom. xv. 33. Phil. iv. 9.
[h] Chap. iii. 13.
[i] 1 Cor. i. 9. & x. 13. 2 Theſ. iii. 3.
[k] Col. iv. 3. 2 Theſ. iii. 1.
[l] Rom. xvi. 16. 1 Cor. xvi. 20.
† Or adjure.
[m] Col. iv. 16. 2 Theſ. iii. 14.
[n] Rom. xvi. 20, 24. 1 Cor. xxi. 23. 2 Cor. xiii. 14.

v. 23—28. The apoſtle concludes,

1. With his prayers for them. And the very God of peace ſanctify you wholly; may he, who is the author and giver of peace to your conſciences, and who unites you together in this happy bond, may he cleanſe you from all iniquity, and perfect you in holineſs: and I pray God that your whole ſpirit, and ſoul and body, in every member and every faculty, be preſerved blameleſs unto the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Note, (1.) Prayer is the great means of ſanctification. (2.) He who hath called us to his kingdom and glory, muſt preſerve and keep us for himſelf, for of ourſelves we have no ſtrength.

2. He expreſſes his confidence in God's promiſes and protection. Faithful is he that calleth you, who alſo will do it; he never hath, never can fail thoſe that truſt him, and from his faithfulneſs we derive our fidelity.

3. He entreats an intereſt in their prayers. Brethren, pray for us. The greateſt miniſters need the prayers of all their people, and the more they are mindful of them at a throne of grace, the more good will they receive from their miniſtrations.

4. He adds his ſalutation. Greet all the brethren with an holy kiſs. Let every member of the church be aſſured of my moſt cordial and affectionate regards.

5. He adjures them ſolemnly to read this epiſtle to the whole church. I charge you by the Lord, in his name, that this epiſtle be read unto all the holy brethren. Note, (1.) All Chriſtians are bound to read the Scriptures diligently; nor can there be a ſtronger mark of antichriſt, than the keeping theſe ſacred records ſealed up in an unknown tongue. (2.) That public worſhip is very defective, where the Scriptures are not read in the congregation.

6. He cloſes with his uſual benediction. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you. May the ſovereign, boundleſs, and everlaſting favour of the adored Jeſus, be your portion now and for ever. Amen!

THE
EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
Upon the SECOND EPISTLE of
St. PAUL to the THESSALONIANS.

THIS Second Epiſtle was written ſoon after the former, and ſeems to be deſigned to prevent their running into a miſtake, which might ariſe from ſome paſſages in the former Epiſtle, concerning the Second coming of Chriſt; as if it were near at hand. The apoſtle in this Epiſtle is careful to prevent any wrong uſe ſome among them might make of thoſe expreſſions of his, that were agreeable to the dialect of the prophets of the Old Teſtament; and informeth them that there were many intermediate counſels yet to be fulfilled before that day of the Lord ſhall come, though, becauſe it is ſure, he had ſpoken of it as near. There are other things he writeth about for their conſolation under ſufferings, and exhortation and direction in duty.

CHAP. I.

After the introduction, ver. 1, 2. the apoſtle begins this epiſtle with an account of his high eſteem for theſe Theſſalonians, ver. 3, 4. He then comforteth them under their afflictions and perſecutions, ver. 5—10. And tells them what his prayers were to God for them, ver. 11, 12.

1. PAUL, and [a] Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Theſſalonians, in God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: 2. [b] Grace unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 3. [c] We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, becauſe that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the charity of every one of you all towards each other aboundeth: 4. So that [d] we ourſelves glory in you in the churches of God, for your patience and faith [e] in all your perſecutions, and tribulations that ye endure. 5. Which is [f] a manifeſt token of the righteous judgment of God, that ye may be accounted worthy of the kingdom of God, [g] for which ye alſo ſuffer: 6. Seeing it is a righteous thing with God [h] to recompenſe tribulation to them that trouble you; 7. And [i] to you who are troubled, [k] reſt with us, when [l] the Lord Jeſus ſhall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, 8. [m] In flaming fire, taking vengeance on them [n] that know not God, and [o] that obey not the goſpel of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: 9. [p] Who ſhall be puniſhed with everlaſting deſtruction from the preſence of the Lord, and [q] from the glory of his power; 10. [r] When he ſhall come to be glorified in his ſaints, and [s] to be admired in all them that believe (becauſe our teſtimony among you was believed) in that day.

[a] 1 Theſ. i. 1.
[b] 1 Cor. i. 3. 2 Cor. i. 2. Eph. i. 2. Phil. i. 2.
[c] Rom. i. 8. Eph. i. 15, 16. 1 Theſ. i. 2, 3. Chap. ii. 13.
[d] 2 Cor. vii. 14. & ix. 2. 1 Theſ. ii. 19.
[e] 1 Theſ. ii. 14.
[f] Phil. i. 28.
[g] 1 Theſ. ii. 14.
[h] Rev. vi. 10.
[i] 2 Tim. ii. 12.
[k] Rev. xiv. 13.
[l] 1 Theſ. iv. 16.
[m] 2 Pet. iii. 7. Jude 14.
[n] Pſ. lxxix. 6. 1 Theſ. iv. 5.
[o] Rom. ii. 8.
[p] Phil. iii. 19. 2 Pet. iii. 7.
[q] Iſa. ii. 19. Chap. ii. 8.
[r] Pſ. lxxxix. 7.
[s] Pſ. lxviii. 35.

v. 1—10. The apoſtle joins the ſame perſons in the inſcription of this epiſtle with himſelf as in the former. Paul, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Theſſalonians, in God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: grace unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

1. He expreſſes his thankfulneſs to God on their behalf. We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, and gratefully to acknowledge his bleſſings and mercies, eſpecially thoſe ſpiritual bleſſings, which he hath ſo richly beſtowed upon you, becauſe that your faith groweth exceedingly, in fuller diſcoveries of the goſpel, and more unſhaken confidence in the promiſes, as is evident in all the bleſſed fruits of grace and holineſs which flouriſh among you, and the charity of every one of you all towards each other aboundeth, the ſure proof of your faith unfeigned. Note, (1.) Faith, as well as every other grace, is at preſent imperfect; and they, who are moſt advanced, have need to pray, increaſe our faith. (2.) Where true faith is, every other grace muſt follow, for it worketh by love.

2. Their eminence in grace gave him occaſion to boaſt of them to other churches. So that we ourſelves glory in you in the churches of God; as for your other gifts and graces, ſo eſpecially for your patience and faith in all your perſecutions, and tribulations that ye endure, with holy intrepidity, unſhaken perſeverance, and calm ſubmiſſion, bearing up under every trial. Note, The commendation of good men ſhould be a powerful encouragement to us abidingly to approve our fidelity in the cauſe of Chriſt.

3. Their ſufferings would ſoon end in eternal reſt, and the authors of them ſuffer condign vengeance, which is a manifeſt token of the righteous judgment of God, who will ſoon make his impartial juſtice to appear, and even now it is your honour, and wiſely ordered by him, that ſuch tribulation ſhould befal you, that ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, for which ye alſo ſuffer, conformed thus to your head, and made meet to reign with him: ſeeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompenſe tribulation to them that trouble you, who ſhall ſhortly feel the arm of an avenging judge; but to you who are troubled, reſt with us, even the preſent reſt in God, into which they who believe do now enter, and ſoon that eternal reſt will come, which remaineth for the people of God, when the Lord Jeſus ſhall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in all the pomp of tremendous majeſty; in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the goſpel of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; whether idolatrous Gentiles, or unbelieving Jews, or impenitent ſinners of every kind, who ſhall be puniſhed with everlaſting deſtruction, from the preſence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power; driven into eternal baniſhment from his bliſsful abode, and ſuffering in body and ſoul the vengeance of eternal fire: when, in that happy day for his redeemed, he ſhall come to be glorified in his ſaints, whoſe perfect ſalvation ſhall then be accompliſhed; and to be admired of all that believe, being henceforward the ſubject of their everlaſting adoration, love, and praiſe; becauſe our teſtimony among you was believed, and you will reap the bleſſed fruits of your faith in that great day. Note, (1.) There is a day at hand, when the perſecutors and the perſecuted will have impartial juſtice done them at the bar of God, (2.) The proſpect of that tribunal ſhould comfort us under all the unjuſt reproaches, revilings, and tribulations which we now endure. (3.) The appearing of the Lord will be terrible to the ungodly and the ſinner, whoſe neglect of God and his goſpel will then be avenged; when wrath to the uttermoſt ſhall overtake them, and, driven with confuſion from the preſence of an angry Judge, the jaws of hell ſhall yawn to receive them; and, deep ingulphed in everlaſting burnings, they ſhall ſink, and never riſe up again. (4.) Chriſt will be the eternal object of his people's admiration; and whilſt with wonder they trace from firſt to laſt the amazing diſpenſation of his grace, their hearts will glow with rapture, and their tongues be filled with never-ending praiſe.

11. Wherefore alſo [t] we pray always for you, that our God would count you worthy of this calling, and fulfil all the good pleaſure of his goodneſs, and the work of faith with power: 12. [u] That the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt may be glorified in you, and ye in him, according to the grace of our God, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

[t] 1 Theſ. i. 2.

[u] 1 Pet. i. 7. & iv. 14.

v. 11, 12. In the proſpect of this day the apoſtle redoubled his ſupplications for them. Wherefore alſo we pray always for you,

1. That our God, in whoſe favour and love we have the moſt aſſured intereſt, would count you worthy of this calling; enabling you to walk as becomes your vocation, and bring you to the poſſeſſion of the glory he hath promiſed; and fulfil all the good pleaſure of his goodneſs, accompliſhing the purpoſes of his ſovereign grace towards you, carrying on and compleating in you the ſalvation which he hath begun; and the work of faith with power, ſtrengthening this radical grace, that all the reſt may flouriſh with greater vigour. Note, (1.) All our worthineſs comes from God's good pleaſure, who hath choſen, called, and led us hitherto; and to his ſovereign grace we muſt be alike indebted for all that is yet to come, that we are enabled in faith to perſevere, and ſhall reach at laſt the heavenly hill. (2.) If our faith be wrought of God with power, then ſhall we never fail.

2. He prays, That the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt may be glorified in you, by your exemplary conduct and converſation, and ye in him, as now united to him by faith, and ſoon to riſe and reign with him eternally; according to the grace of our God, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which hath beſtowed it on you for this great end, that his own glorious name might be for ever exalted, and all the praiſe of the ſinner's ſalvation be aſcribed to him alone.

CHAP. II.

The apoſtle is very careful to hinder the ſpreading of an error which ſome among them had fallen into, concerning the coming of Chriſt as being very near, ver. 1—3. Then he proceedeth to confute this error he cautioned them againſt, by telling them of two great events that were antecedent to the coming of Chriſt, viz. A general apoſtaſy, and the revelation of Antichriſt, concerning whom the apoſtle tells them many remarkable things about his name, his character, his riſe, his fall, his reign, and the ſin and ruin of his ſubjects, ver. 3—12. He then comforts them againſt the terror of this apoſtaſy, and exhorts them to ſtedfaſtneſs, ver. 13—15. And concludeth with a prayer for them, ver. 16, 17.

1. NOW we beſeech you, brethren, [a] by the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and by our gathering together unto him, 2. [b] That ye be not ſoon ſhaken in mind, or be troubled, [c] neither by ſpirit, nor by word, nor by letter, as from us, as that the day of Chriſt is at hand. 3. [d] Let no man deceive you by any means: 4. For that day ſhall not come, [e] except there come a falling away firſt, and [f] that man of ſin be revealed, [g] the ſon of perdition: 4. Who oppoſeth and [h] exalteth himſelf above [i] all that is called God, or that is worſhipped; ſo that he as God ſitteth in the temple of God, ſhewing himſelf that he is God. 5. Remember ye not, that when I was yet with you, I told you theſe things? 6. And now ye know what withholdeth, that he might be revealed in his time. 7. For [k] the myſtery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth, will let, until he be taken out of the way. 8. And then ſhall that wicked be revealed, [l] whom the Lord ſhall conſume [m] with the ſpirit of his mouth, and ſhall deſtroy [n] with the brightneſs of his coming: 9. Even him whoſe coming is [o] after the working of Satan, with all power, [p] and ſigns, and lying wonders, 10. And with all deceiveableneſs of unrighteouſneſs in [q] them that periſh; becauſe they received not the love of the truth, that they might be ſaved. 11. And [r] for this cauſe God ſhall ſend them ſtrong deluſion, [s] that they ſhould believe a lye: 12. That they all might be damned who believed not the truth, but [t] had pleaſure in unrighteouſneſs.

[a] Mat. xxiv. 31. 1 Theſ. iv. 16, 17.

[b] Mat. xxiv. 4. Eph. v. 6.

[c] 1 John iv. 1.

[d] Jer. xxix. 8. Mat. xxiv. 4, 24.

[e] 1 Tim. iv. 1.

[f] Dan. vii. 25. 1 John ii. 18. Rev. xiii. 11.

[g] John xvii. 12.

[h] Iſa. xiv. 13. Ezek. xxviii. 2, 6, 9. Dan. xi. 36.

[i] 1 Cor. viii. 5.

[k] 1 John ii. 18. & iv. 3.

[l] Dan. vii. 10, 11.

[m] Iſa. xi. 4. Hoſ. vi. 5. Rev. ii. 16. & xix. 15. & xx. 21.

[n] Chap. i. 8, 9. Heb. x. 27.

[o] Eph. ii. 2. Rev. xviii. 23.

[p] Deut. xiii. 1. Mat. xxiv. 24. Rev. xiii. 13.

[q] 2 Cor. ii. 15. & iv. 3.

[r] Rom. i. 24, &c. 2 Chron. xviii. 22. Ezek. xiv. 9.

[s] 1 Tim. iv. 1.

[t] Rom. i. 32.

v. 1—12. An error of a dangerous tendency had, it ſeems, crept into the church of the Theſſalonians, that the coming of Chriſt to judge the world ſhould be in their days. Whether this aroſe from their miſtake of what the apoſtle had mentioned in his former epiſtle, or was broached by ſome who vouched his authority to ſupport what they advanced; he ſets himſelf to confute the aſſertion, and to rectify their judgment in this matter.

1. He ſolemnly warns them not to be troubled with needleſs fears and apprehenſions. Now we beſeech you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and by our gathering together unto him; by all the hopes you entertain of meeting him with joy in that day, I adjure you, that ye be not ſoon ſhaken in mind, from the goſpel which ye have embraced, and toſſed to and fro with every wind of doctrine; nor be troubled by any aſſertions which may be advanced, or miſconſtructions which may ariſe; neither by ſpirit, by thoſe who pretend to ſpeak under divine inſpiration; nor by word, however confidently any may advance this notion; nor by letter, as from us, either counterfeiting our hand, or perverting our meaning; as that the day of Chriſt is at hand. Let no man deceive you by any means: the conſequence of ſuch a perſuaſion would be very dangerous; and when you found yourſelves diſappointed of your vainly raiſed expectations, it might ſhake your faith in the truth of the whole goſpel revelation. Note, (1.) One way in which the arch deceiver ſtrikes at the faith of God's elect, is by endeavouring, through his emiſſaries pretending to revelation, or a knowledge of the prophetic word, to raiſe groundleſs hopes in their minds, and from the diſappointment of them to ſuggeſt, that the whole may be a deluſion. (2.) Tho' we cannot fix the time of Chriſt's coming, yet nothing is more certain, than that he that cometh ſhall come, and ſhall not tarry: may we without fear or diſmay be ready to meet him. (3.) However diſperſed God's people now may be in different regions, and living in different ages, they ſhall one day be gathered together around the throne of Jeſus, and ſo ſhall be ever with the Lord.

2. He confutes the error which was broached, by ſhewing, that many events, which would require much time to fulfil them, muſt precede the ſecond coming of Chriſt.

(1.) There muſt be firſt a general apoſtacy. For that day ſhall not come, except there come a falling away firſt, from the doctrines of the goſpel, and the practice of godlineſs, which ſhall uſher in the reign of Antichriſt.

(2.) The riſe of the antichriſtian power is deſcribed, v. 3—10. To whom what is here ſpoken belongs, hath been matter of much diſpute: I cannot but own, with the beſt proteſtant commentators, my full conviction, that the popiſh hierarchy is the ſubject of this prophecy; wherein we have,

[1.] The names of this perſon, or rather ſtate, here ſpoken of. The man of ſin, the ſon of perdition, that wicked one; which do not point out any individual, but a ſucceſſion of men, carrying on the ſame deſtructive deſigns; whoſe wicked practices and horrid deluſions will be the cauſe of perdition to multitudes, who will periſh with them.

[2.] When that man of ſin is revealed, the ſon of perdition, he may be known by theſe characters. Who oppoſeth and exalteth himſelf above all that is called God, or that is worſhipped; aſſuming all power in heaven and in earth; undertaking to enact laws contrary to God's word and will; and ſetting up himſelf above kings and emperors, yea, and above the angels too, who are called Gods in ſcripture: ſo that he as God, arrogating divine perfections, ſitteth in the temple of God, the church, where he hath erected his unhallowed throne; ſhewing himſelf that he is God; aſſuming the blaſphemous titles of, our God the pope, God upon earth, &c. uſurping divine authority over the bodies and conſciences of men; pretending to pardon ſin by his own power; and ſpeaking great ſwelling words of blaſphemy. Remember ye not, ſays the apoſtle, that when I was yet with you, I told you theſe things.

[3.] His riſe is pointed out. And now ye know, if you reflect upon what I told you formerly, what withholdeth, that the man of ſin doth not immediately appear, even the power of the heathen Roman emperors. During their rule, the biſhops of Rome were prevented from riſing above their fellows; but this empire would in proceſs of time moulder away, that he may be revealed in his time; when God, according to his own decrees, ſhould permit the antichriſtian power to rear its head. For the myſtery of iniquity doth already work, and the ſeeds of pride, diſſention, and worldly ambition, have begun to be ſown: but he that letteth, the Roman emperors, will let, until he be taken out of the way, their power declining, and the ſeat of empire being removed from Rome; and then ſhall that wicked be revealed, and the myſtery of iniquity, and the tyranny of the popiſh power, arrive at their height.

[4.] His ruin is as certain as his riſe. Whom the Lord ſhall conſume with the ſpirit of his mouth, and ſhall deſtroy with the brightneſs of his coming; raiſing up a noble army of preachers, who by the word of truth, accompanied with the Spirit's power, ſhall cut in ſunder the fetters wherewith ſuperſtition hath enſlaved the minds of men; and as the kingdom of Antichriſt ſhall be overturned hereby, ſo ſhall he and all his followers at laſt periſh in the lake of fire.

[5.] The way in which this wicked one ſhall maintain his uſurped dominion is deſcribed. Whoſe coming is after the working of Satan, with all power, and ſigns, and lying wonders; with all ſatanical influence and wiles, pretending to work miracles in ſupport of his cauſe, and by a ſyſtem of frauds deluding the nations of the earth, with all deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs in them that periſh, deceiving the ſouls of men to their eternal ruin; becauſe they received not the love of the truth, that they might be ſaved, but turned aſide to error, and choſe their own deluſions. And for this cauſe, in juſt judgment upon them, God ſhall ſend them ſtrong deluſion; abandoning them to their own hearts, and giving them up to judicial blindneſs; that they ſhould believe a lye; all thoſe abſurd legends, forgeries, and falſhoods, with which the church of Rome abounds: that they all might be damned who believed not the truth, rejecting Chriſt and his goſpel, but had pleaſure in unrighteouſneſs, delighting in their errors, ſuperſtitions, and bloody perſecutions, to fill up the meaſure of their iniquities. Note, It is juſt in God to abandon obſtinate ſinners to their own deluſions, and leave them to the damnation which themſelves have choſen.

13. But [w] we are bound to give thanks alway to God for you, brethren, beloved of the Lord, becauſe God hath [x] from the beginning [y] choſen you to ſalvation, [z] through ſanctification of the Spirit, and belief of the truth: 14. Whereunto he called you by our goſpel, [a] to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 15. Therefore, brethren, [b] ſtand faſt, and hold [c] the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word or our epiſtle. 16. [d] Now our Lord Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, and God even our Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlaſting conſolation, [e] and good hope through grace, 17. Comfort your hearts, [f] and ſtabliſh you in every good word and work.

[w] Chap. i. 3.
[x] Eph. i. 4. 2 Tim. i. 9.
[y] 1 Theſ. i. 4.
[z] Luke i. 75. 1 Pet. i. 2.
[a] John xvii. 22.
[b] 1 Cor. xvi. 13. Phil. iv. 1.
[c] 1 Cor. xi. 2. Chap. iii. 6.
[d] Chap. i. 2.
[e] 1 Pet. i. 3.
[f] 1 Cor. i. 8. 1 Theſ. iii. 13.

v. 13—17. The apoſtle,

1. Expreſſes his thankfulneſs to God for his electing love. But we are bound to give thanks alway to God for you, brethren, beloved of the Lord, becauſe it is evident from your whole conduct and converſation that God hath from the beginning choſen you to ſalvation; having predeſtinated you, before the worlds were, to an eternity of bleſſedneſs, as elect veſſels, ſeparated by his ſovereign grace from the corrupted maſs of mankind; and, as the means of accompliſhing the purpoſes of his eternal counſels, hath, through ſanctification of the Spirit, and belief of the truth, begun to prepare you for the inheritance to which he hath appointed you; whereunto he alſo called you by our goſpel, the happy inſtrument of your converſion, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which he hath procured for his people, and freely beſtows upon them, according to the riches of grace. Note, (1.) God hath a people whom he hath choſen from the beginning unto ſalvation, and men, nor devils, nor ſin, ſhall be able to fruſtrate the deſigns of his grace towards them. (2.) Wherever the Lord chuſes a ſoul for glory, he inſeparably annexes the means to the end; calling them by his goſpel to faith and holineſs, and working both in their hearts. It would be the moſt abſurd preſumption to fancy we are the elect, if we cannot feel and demonſtrate the work of the Spirit of faith and ſanctification in our hearts and lives.

2. He exhorts them to be faithful. Therefore, brethren, in the aſſured proſpect of ſucceſs, ſtand faſt; God's election of you ſhould be the quickening and encouraging motive to make your own calling and election ſure; and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, the doctrines which we your faithful miniſters have delivered to you, as received from Chriſt; whether by word, in our public preaching or private diſcourſe; or by our epiſtle, lately ſent to you. Note, God's word is our only rule of duty; thereunto we muſt cleave.

3. He cloſes with a fervent prayer for them. Now our Lord Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, and God even our Father, who alike are the objects of our worſhip, and are one in the glory of the ſame undivided Godhead; who hath loved us, and hath given us everlaſting conſolation, the foretaſtes of thoſe joys that ſhall hereafter be uninterrupted and eternal; and good hope through grace, built on the ſubſtantial foundation of his unchangeable word; comfort your hearts with a clearer knowledge of your invaluable privileges, and a brighter manifeſtation of his love to your ſouls, amidſt all your trials and ſufferings; and ſtabliſh you in every good word and work, that you may approve yourſelves faithful, and unto death perſevere immoveably in the doctrine and practice of the bleſſed goſpel. Note, (1.) God's everlaſting love is the fountain of all our bleſſedneſs. (2.) Though our conſolations may now be at times interrupted by the manifold temptations to which we are expoſed, in eternity they will flow with an unceaſing ſtream like a river. (3.) Good hope is ſtill a ſure anchor of the ſoul, when great joy may be withdrawn; and all is through grace, not for our deſert, but according to the multitude of God's mercies. (4.) It is the Lord's work to comfort and ſtabliſh our hearts; and whilſt we are waiting upon him, we ſhall aſſuredly renew our ſtrength.

CHAP. III.

In the cloſe of the foregoing chapter the apoſtle had prayed earneſtly for the Theſſalonians, and now he deſireth their prayers, encouraging them to truſt in God, to which he ſubjoins another petition for them, ver. 1—5. He then proceedeth to give them commands and directions for the correcting ſome things he was informed were amiſs among them, ver. 6—15. And concludeth with benedictions and prayers, ver. 16—18.

1. FINALLY, brethren, [a] pray for us, that the word of the Lord may † have free courſe, and be glorified even as it is with you; 2. And [b] that we may be delivered from unreaſonable and wicked men: for [c] all men have not faith. 3. But [d] the Lord is faithful, who ſhall ſtabliſh you, and [e] keep you from evil. 4. And [f] we have confidence in the Lord touching you, that ye both do, and will do the things which we command you. 5. And [g] the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into ‡ the patient waiting for Chriſt.

[a] Eph. vi. 19. Col. iv. 3.
† Gr. run.
[b] Rom. xv. 31.
[c] Rom. x. 16.
[d] 1 Cor. i. 9. 1 Theſ. v. 24.
[e] John xvii. 15.
[f] 2 Cor. vii. 16. Gal. v. 10.
[g] 1 Chron. xxix. 18.
‡ Or, the patience of Chriſt.

v. 1—5. The apoſtle here draws to a concluſion, and,

1. Intreats their prayers. Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free courſe, and ſpread with increaſing ſucceſs, and be glorified even as it is with you, in the mighty effects produced by our miniſtration of it; and that we may be delivered from unreaſonable and wicked men, hardened in pride and prejudice againſt the truth; who uſe every violent effort to oppoſe its progreſs, and ſilence the miniſters of the goſpel: for all men have not faith; but even among profeſſors of Chriſtianity we often meet with the greateſt oppoſers, and are in moſt danger from theſe falſe brethren. Note, (1.) The ſucceſs of his labours lies neareſt the heart of every goſpel miniſter. (2.) All who have taſted of the grace of God in truth, are bound in ceaſeleſs prayer to beg that the ſame word which they have received, may, in defiance of all oppoſition, run and be glorified, to the conviction of ſinners, the confuſion of gainſayers, and the edification of the faithful. (3.) Unreaſonable and wicked men abound in every age; and they who, though profeſſors of Chriſtianity, are themſelves deſtitute of divine faith, cannot but now, as then, teſtify the ſame enmity againſt the zealous preachers of the goſpel.

2. He expreſſes his confidence in them. But the Lord is faithful, who ſhall ſtabliſh you, and keep you from evil; whatever wiles ſeducers may employ, or however ſeverely you may be expoſed to the enmity of perſecutors, the Lord will never fail you, and his grace ſhall make you more than conquerors. And we have confidence in the Lord touching you, that ye both do, and will do the things which we command you, in his name, and by his authority. Note, (1.) Our great encouragement is God's fidelity to his promiſes: he will not fail us, and therefore we cannot fail him. (2.) If the Lord did not keep us, we ſhould not for a moment be able to keep ourſelves; but when we have him at our right hand, neither the evil of ſin ſhall prevail againſt us, nor the evil of ſuffering diſcourage us.

3. He adds a ſhort prayer for them, containing two important requeſts. And the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, turning your affections from every crooked path, and directly leading you to his bleſſed ſelf, and to that happineſs which is to be enjoyed in a ſenſe of his preſent and everlaſting love to your ſouls; and into the patient waiting for Chriſt; enabling you with chearfulneſs and ſubmiſſion to take up the croſs, and to look for the coming of your Lord, when there ſhall be an end put to all your ſufferings for ever.

6. Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [h] that ye withdraw yourſelves [i] from every brother that walketh [k] diſorderly, and not after [l] the tradition which he received of us. 7. For yourſelves know [m] how ye ought to follow us: for [n] we behaved not ourſelves diſorderly among you; 8. Neither did we eat any man's bread for nought; but [o] wrought with labour and travel night and day, that we might not be chargeable to any of you: 9. [p] Not becauſe we have not power, but to make [q] ourſelves an enſample unto you to follow us. 10. For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that [r] if any would not work, neither ſhould he eat. 11. For we hear that there are ſome [s] which walk among you diſorderly, [t] working not at all, but are buſy-bodies. 12. Now them that are ſuch we command and exhort by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [u] that with quietneſs they work, and eat their own bread. 13. But ye, brethren, [x] be not weary in well-doing. 14. And if any man obey not our word † by this epiſtle, note that man, and [y] have no company with him, that he may be aſhamed. 15. [z] Yet count him not as an enemy, [a] but admoniſh him as a brother.

[h] Rom xvi. 17. Ver. 14. 2 John 10.
[i] 1 Cor. v. 11.
[k] 1 Theſ. v. 14. Ver. 11, 14.
[l] Chap. ii. 15.
[m] 1 Cor. iv. 16 & xi. 1. 1 Theſ. i. 6.
[n] 1 Theſ. ii. 10.
[o] Acts xviii. 3. & xx. 34. 2 Cor. xi. 9. 1 Theſ. ii. 9.
[p] 1 Cor. ix. 6. 1 Theſ. ii. 6.
[q] Phil. iii. 17. Ver. 7.
[r] Gen. iii. 19. 1 Theſ. iv 11.
[s] Ver. 6.
[t] 1 Tim. v. 13. 1 Pet. iv. 15.
[u] Eph. iv. 28. 1 Theſ. iv. 11.
[x] Gal. vi. 9.
† Or, take notice of that man in an epiſtle.
[y] Mat. xviii. 17. 1 Cor. v. 9, 11. Ver. 6.
[z] 1 Theſ. v. 14.
[a] Lev. xix. 17. Tit. iii. 10.

v. 6—15. Though the apoſtle had ſo highly commended them, and expreſſed his confidence in them in general, yet there were ſome among them who needed ſharp rebuke; and indeed in this imperfect ſtate of things, no abſolutely perfect and pure ſociety of men is to be expected.

1. He warns them to avoid the company of ſuch as walked diſorderly among them, whoſe ill characters he here deſcribes. Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and by the apoſtolic power committed to us, that ye withdraw yourſelves from every brother that pretends to be a Chriſtian, but walketh diſorderly, and not after the tradition which he received of us, being a diſgrace and a diſhonour to his profeſſion. For yourſelves know how ye ought to follow us, and remember the practice we recommended to you, and the example which we ſet before you; for we behaved not ourſelves diſorderly among you, neither did we eat any man's bread for nought, without paying for it; but wrought with labour and travail night and day, to earn our own maintainance, that we might not be chargeable to any of you, and might preach the goſpel freely, without putting you to the leaſt expence. Not becauſe we have not power to demand our ſubſiſtence, as due to our miniſterial labours; but we rather choſe to wave our right, to make ourſelves an example unto you to follow us, encouraging induſtry, and diſcountenancing idleneſs. For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither ſhould he eat, nor receive any relief from the church, whoſe charity ſhould be applied, not to the maintainance of the ſlothful, but to the ſupport of the ſick, infirm, and thoſe who through age or accident are diſabled from providing for themſelves. For we hear that there are ſome which walk among you diſorderly, working not at all, but depending on others for relief, and are buſy-bodies, tattling from houſe to houſe, prying into the ſecrets of families, blowing up the coals of diſſenſion, and the very peſts of ſociety. Note, (1.) When we can appeal to our people for the exemplarineſs of our own converſation, and for the conformity of our practice to our preaching, we may command and exhort them to their duty with confidence. (2.) Sloth and indolence are moſt oppoſite to the ſpirit of Chriſtianity; and though men may plead they do no harm, yet if they neglect the duty of their calling and ſtations, God will reckon with them as with diſorderly walkers. (3.) Idleneſs opens a door to every evil; and they who chuſe not to do their own work, the devil will find them employ.

2. He addreſſes himſelf with authority to theſe diſorderly walkers. Now them that are ſuch, we command and exhort by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by every endearing argument which his love can ſuggeſt, or the dread of his diſpleaſure urges, that with quietneſs they work, and eat their own bread; peaceably minding their own affairs with diligence, and providing for themſelves and families a becoming maintainance from the produce of their honeſt induſtry.

3. He directs the faithful and induſtrious how they ſhould behave. But ye brethren, be not weary in well-doing, but with diligence diſcharge the labours of your calling; and if you have more than your own neceſſities require, there are many deſerving objects who crave your charity. And if any man among you obey not our word by this epiſtle, and change not his ways, note that man, and have no company with him; permit him not to be your intimate, nor admit him to the table of the Lord; that, by your juſt cenſure of his conduct, he may be aſhamed, and brought to repentance and amendment. Yet count him not as an enemy at once, and deal roughly, but admoniſh him as a brother, that, if it pleaſe the Lord, he may yet be reclaimed, and not be finally ruined. Note, (1.) We muſt not only walk orderly ourſelves, but ſhew our diſapprobation of thoſe who behave diſhonourable to their profeſſion (2.) Before more heavy cenſures are pronounced, every kind admonition muſt be attempted. Love will often ſhame thoſe into ingenuous acknowledgments, that ſeverity would but have exaſperated and hardened.

16. Now [b] the Lord of peace himſelf give you peace always, by all means. The Lord be with you all. 17. [c] The ſalutation of Paul with mine own hand, which is the token in every epiſtle: ſo I write: 18. [d] The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all. Amen.

[b] Rom. xv. 33. Phil. iv. 9. 1 Theſ. v. 23.
[c] 1 Cor. xvi. 21. Col. iv. 18.
[d] Rom. xvi. 24.

v. 16—18. The apoſtle concludes with,

1. His prayer for them. Now the Lord of peace himſelf, who purchaſed it by his blood, and by his Spirit ſeals it to the hearts of his people, give you peace always, by all means; meeting you in the uſe of every inſtituted ordinance; filling you with a comfortable ſenſe of his reconciliation to you; and giving you an happy union and harmony among each other. The Lord be with you all; may his preſence and bleſſing be ever in the midſt of you; and where he manifeſts himſelf, there heaven is already begun in the ſoul.

2. His ſubſcription. The ſalutation of Paul with mine own hand, which is the token in every epiſtle, of its genuineneſs, to prevent the forgeries of ſeducers: ſo I write, in the cloſe of every letter, when my amanuenſis hath finiſhed.

3. The benediction. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all; may you ſhare all the preſent and eternal bleſſedneſs included in his ſovereign grace and love. Amen!

* * *

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;

OR, A

PRACTICAL COMMENT

Upon the FIRST EPISTLE of

St. PAUL to TIMOTHY.

Hitherto Paul's Epiſtles were directed to churches, now follow ſome to particular perſons; two to Timothy, one to Titus, and another to Philemon; all three miniſters: Timothy and Titus were Evangeliſts, an inferior order to the apoſtles, as appears by that, Eph. iv. 11. Some prophets, ſome apoſtles, ſome evangeliſts. Their commiſſion and work was much the ſame with that of the apoſtles, to plant churches, and water the churches that were planted. Timothy was firſt converted by Paul, and therefore he calls him his own ſon in the faith; we read of his converſion, Acts xvi. 23.

The ſcope of theſe two Epiſtles is, to direct Timothy how to diſcharge his office as an evangeliſt at Epheſus, where he now was, and where Paul ordered him for ſome time to reſide, to perfect the good work which he had begun there.

CHAP. I.

After the inſcription in ver. 1, 2. we have, 1. The charge given to Timothy, ver. 3, 4. 2. The true end of the law, ver. 5—12. where he ſhews it is intirely agreeable to the goſpel. 3. He mentions his own call to be an apoſtle; for which he expreſſes his thankfulneſs, ver. 12—16. 5. His doxology, ver. 17. 6. A renewal of the charge to Timothy, ver. 18. And of Hymenæus and Alexander, ver. 19, 20.

1. PAUL an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt [a] by the commandment of [b] God our Saviour, and Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [c] which is our hope; 2. Unto [d] Timothy, [e] my own ſon in the faith; [f] grace, mercy, and peace from God our Father, and Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. 3. As I beſought thee to abide ſtill at Epheſus [g] when I went into Macedonia, that thou mighteſt charge ſome [h] that they teach no other doctrine, 4. [i] Neither give heed to fables, and endleſs genealogies, [k] which miniſter queſtions, rather than godly edifying, which is in faith: ſo do.

[a] Acts ix. 15. & xxii. 21.
[b] Chap. ii. 3. & iv. 10. Tit. i. 3.
[c] Col. iii. 27.
[d] Acts xvi 1. 1 Cor. iv. 17. 1 Theſ. iii. 2.
[e] 2 Tim. i. 2. Tit. i. 4.
[f] Gal. i. 3. 2 Tim. i. 2. 1 Pet. i. 2.
[g] Acts xx. 1, 3. Phil. ii. 24.
[h] Gal. xvi. 7. Chap. vi. 3.
[i] Chap. iv. 7. & vi. 20. 2 Tim. ii. 16, 23. Tit. i. 14. & iii. 9.
[k] Chap. vi. 4.

v. 1—4. We have here,

1. The apoſtolical inſcription. Paul an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, the true Meſſiah, by the expreſs commandment of God appointed to this office, who is our Saviour, having in his eternal mind deſigned the glorious plan of our redemption; and of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, one with the Father in glory and authority; and who is emphatically our hope, all our expectations in time and eternity reſting upon his finiſhed ſalvation; unto Timothy my own ſon in the faith, begotten by me in the goſpel, is this epiſtle ſent.

2. His ſalutation. Grace, mercy, and peace, be with you, from God our Father, in whoſe love we have a common intereſt; and Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, who bought us with his blood, called us to the obedience of the faith, and, as his more immediate ſervants, put us in truſt with his goſpel.

3. He reminds him of the deſign he had in leaving him at Epheſus, and exhorts him to be faithful to his charge. As I beſought thee to abide ſtill at Epheſus when I went into Macedonia, that thou mighteſt charge ſome, that they teach no other doctrine; even thoſe judaizing teachers, who would corrupt the ſimplicity of the goſpel: be faithful to thy truſt, and warn the people to beware of theſe ſeducers; neither to give heed to fables, their abſurd traditions, and endleſs genealogies; affecting to trace up their deſcent from Abraham and the patriarchs, and valuing themſelves highly on ſuch an anceſtor; which miniſter queſtions, and endleſs diſputes, rather than godly edifying, which is in faith. Note, (1.) Unedifying diſputes about uneſſential matters have the moſt pernicious tendency to deſtroy vital religion. (2.) There can be no true godlineſs, but what ſprings from faith as its principle. (3.) Miniſters muſt watch over the flock, and guard them from the inroads of error, as well as impiety. (4.) Broachers of new doctrines, contrary to the fundamental articles of faith, ſhould receive from the biſhops of the church deſerved rebuke.

5. Now [l] the end of the commandment is charity [m] out of a pure heart, and of a good conſcience, and of faith unfeigned: 6. From which ſome having ſwerved, [n] have turned aſide [o] unto vain jangling: 7. Deſiring to be teachers of the law, underſtanding neither what they ſay, nor whereof they affirm. 8. But we know that [p] the law is good, if a man uſe it lawfully; 9. Knowing this, that [q] the law is not made for a righteous man, but for the lawleſs and diſobedient, for the ungodly and for ſinners, for unholy and prophane, for murderers of fathers and murderers of mothers, for manſlayers, 10. For whoremongers, for them that defile themſelves with mankind, [l] Rom. xiii. 8, 10. Gal. v. 14.

[m] 2 Tim. ii. 22.
[n] Chap. v. 15. & vi. 10. 2 Tim. ii. 18.
[o] Chap. vi. 4, 20. 2 Tim. iv. 4.
[p] Rom. vii. 12.
[q] Gal. iii. 19. & v. 23.

mankind, for men-ſtealers, for lyars, for perjured perſons, and if there be any other thing that is contrary [r] to ſound doctrine, 11. According to the glorious goſpel of [s] the bleſſed God, [t] which was committed to my truſt.

r Chap. vi. 3. 2 Tim. iv. 3. Tit. i. 9. & ii. 1.
s Chap. vi. 15.
t Gal. ii. 7. 1 Theſ. ii. 4. Chap. ii. 7. Tit. i. 3.

v. 5—11. Having repeated the charge before given to Timothy, concerning the deluding teachers, he here,

1. Directs him what end he ſhould aim at, the preſervation of the church's peace. Now the end of the commandment, (either of the moral law, or of the charge which the apoſtle had given him) is to promote charity, or love towards God and man, flowing out of a pure heart, ſanctified by the bleſſed Spirit, and of a good conſcience, purged from dead works by the blood of ſprinkling, and of faith unfeigned, the radical grace, from whence love and every other divine temper ſprings : from all which ſome having ſwerved, and wandring wide of the mark, have turned aſide unto vain jangling, trifling queſtions, and idle diſputes ; deſiring to be teachers of the law ; ſetting up for great wiſdom, as interpreters of it, and zealous to urge its obſervation upon the Gentiles as neceſſary to ſalvation ; underſtanding neither what they ſay, nor whereof they affirm ; real ſtrangers to its ſpiritual nature, uſe, and deſign. Note, (1.) Love in the heart is the great preſervative from all diſputes and diſſentions. (2.) It is a ſad conſideration, when ignorant men intrude into the miniſtry, ſtrangers to the oracles of God, and unacquainted with any of the truths themſelves in which they pretend to inſtruct others.

2. The right uſe of the law is here declared. But, however abuſed it may be, we know that the law is good, if a man uſe it lawfully, and apply it to the purpoſes for which God gave it, to convince the conſcience of ſin ; to be a ſchoolmaſter to lead us to Chriſt ; and, though ceaſing to be a covenant of works, yet continuing to be a rule of duty, according to which God will proceed in his judgment at the laſt day. Knowing this, that the law is not made for a righteous man, nor doth the damning ſentence of it lie againſt any faithful ſoul, that is righteous in Chriſt Jeſus ; but for the lawleſs and diſobedient, for the ungodly and for ſinners, for unholy and prophane, who with daring impenitence and wilful obſtinacy tranſgreſs it, for murderers of fathers and murderers of mothers, for manſlayers, for whoremongers, for them that defile themſelves with mankind, for men-ſtealers, for lyars, for perjured perſons, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to ſound doctrine ; all which, and every other crime, the law condemns ; and the judgment denounced by the law is according to the glorious goſpel of the bleſſed God, which was committed to my truſt ; there being the moſt perfect agreement in this reſpect between the law and goſpel, which condemns all ungodlineſs, and teaches us to live righteouſly, ſoberly, and godly in this preſent evil world. Note, The goſpel is an awful glorious truſt ; and whilſt we bleſs God for the honour he puts upon us in committing it to our charge, we need tremble for ourſelves, leſt we ſhould be found unfaithful.

12. And I thank Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, [u] who hath enabled me, for that [x] he counted me faithful, [y] putting me into the miniſtry ; 13. [z] Who was before a blaſphemer, and a perſecutor, and injurious. But I obtained mercy, becauſe [a] I did it ignorantly in unbelief : 14. And [b] the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant, [c] with faith, [d] and love which is in Chriſt Jeſus. 15. This is a faithful ſaying, and worthy of all acceptation, that [e] Chriſt Jeſus came into the world to ſave ſinners ; [f] of whom I am chief. 16. Howbeit, for this cauſe [g] I obtained mercy, that in me firſt Jeſus Chriſt might ſhew forth all long-ſuffering, [h] for a pattern to them which ſhould hereafter believe on him to life everlaſting. 17. Now unto [i] the King eternal, immortal, [k] inviſible, [l] the only wiſe God, [m] be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen.

u 2 Tim. iv. 17.
x 1 Cor. vii. 25.
y 2 Cor. iii. 6.
z Acts viii. 3. & ix. 1. & xxii. 4. 1 Cor. xv. 9. Gal. i. 13.
a John ix. 39, 41. Acts iii. 17. 1 Cor. ii. 8.
b Rom. v. 20. 1 Cor. xv. 10.
c 2 Tim. i. 13.
d Luke vii. 47.
e Mat. ix. 13. Mark ii. 17. Luke v. 32. & xix. 10. Rom. v. 8. 1 John iii. 5.
f 1 Cor. xv. 9.
g 2 Cor. iv. 1.
h Acts xiii. 39.
i Pſ. x. 16. & cxlv. 13. Dan. vii. 9. Chap. vi. 16.
k John i. 18. Heb. xi. 27.
l Rom. xvi. 27. Jude 25.
m 1 Chron. xxix. 11.

v. 12—17. The apoſtle with deep gratitude acknowledges the diſtinguiſhing favour ſhown him of God, not only in calling him to the knowledge of his grace, but in putting him in truſt with the goſpel, and qualifying him for the diſcharge of it. I thank Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, who hath enabled me, for that he counted me faithful, putting me into the miniſtry. Note, (1.) None are Chriſt's miniſters, but thoſe whom he puts into their office. (2.) Whom he calls, he will qualify for the diſcharge of their miniſtry. (3.) Want of miniſterial abilities is a ſure proof that men run unſent.

1. The apoſtle humbly owns the dreadful ſtate out of which by divine grace he was called ; who was before a blaſphemer of Chriſt and his goſpel, and a perſecutor of his people, and injurious, branding the Chriſtian name with every malignant aſperſion. Note, (1.) The depth of our guilt ſerves to magnify but the more the riches of divine grace in our pardon and ſalvation. (2.) True converts are ever ready to take ſhame to themſelves, and to own their former abominations with deep regret.

2. God had mercy on him. But I obtained mercy, becauſe I did it ignorantly in unbelief ; which he mentions not as an extenuation of his guilt, but to ſhew the ſtate of rooted prejudice, and hardened unbelief, in which the Lord found him : and the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant, beyond all conception wonderful, that it ſhould be extended to ſuch a wretch as me ; with faith, and love, which is in Chriſt Jeſus, and which in the richeſt meaſure the Lord was pleaſed to beſtow upon my ſoul. So that from the happieſt experience I can now declare, that this is a faithful ſaying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Chriſt Jeſus came into the world to ſave ſinners, of whom I am chief : none therefore, after the mercy which I have received, need deſpair. Howbeit, notwithſtanding my enormous guilt, for this cauſe I obtained mercy, that in me firſt, or the chief of ſinners, Jeſus Chriſt might ſhew forth all long-ſuffering, for a pattern to them which ſhould hereafter believe on him to life everlaſting ; encouraging the vileſt to hope and return to him, as being ſtill willing and able to ſave to the uttermoſt. Note, (1.) Unbelief is at the bottom of every evil. (2.) The chief of ſinners may be ſaved as freely as the leaſt : thoſe only periſh, who will not come to Chriſt that they may have life. (3.) They who are diſcouraged under a ſenſe of the greatneſs of their ſins, ſhould remember thoſe who have already found mercy, and from the deepeſt crimes have riſen to the greateſt heights of grace ; witneſs David, Manaſſeh, Peter, and this apoſtle. (4.) All who by faith lay hold on Jeſus Chriſt, have everlaſting life, and ſhall never more enter into condemnation.

3. He aſcribes praiſe to God for all the rich grace which he had experienced. Now unto the King eternal, immortal, inviſible, the only wiſe God! to Jeſus, who in the higheſt poſſeſſes every divine attribute and perfection, be honour and glory for ever. Amen. Note, They who are ſenſible of their infinite obligations to Chriſt, will be ceaſeleſs in their grateful acknowledgements to the Author of all their mercies.

18. [n] This charge I commit unto thee, ſon Timothy, [o] according to the prophecies which went before on thee, that thou by them mighteſt [p] war a good warfare, 19. [q] Holding faith, and a good conſcience ; which ſome having put away, concerning faith [r] have made ſhipwreck. 20. Of whom is [s] Hymeneus and [t] Alexander ; whom I have [u] delivered unto Satan, that they may learn not to blaſpheme.

n Chap. vi. 13. 2 Tim. ii. 2.
o Chap. iv. 14.
p Chap. vi. 12. 2 Tim. iv. 7.
q Chap. iii. 9.
r Chap. vi. 9.
s 2 Tim. ii. 17.
t 2 Tim. iv. 14.
u 1 Cor. v. 5.

v. 18—20. The apoſtle repeats his charge to Timothy, mentioned v. 3—5. This charge I commit unto thee, ſon Timothy, according to the prophecies which went before on thee, and marked thee out as appointed of God for ſignal ſervice ; that, remembring theſe things, thou mighteſt be quickened to correſpond therewith, and by them mighteſt war a good warfare ; as a faithful ſoldier of Chriſt, manfully fighting under his banner againſt ſin and error : holding faith, firmly attached to the purity of the goſpel doctrines, and maintaining a good conſcience, void of offence towards God and man ; which ſome having put away, rejected and thruſt from them, concerning faith have made ſhipwreck, and apoſtatized from the fair profeſſion which once they made ; of whom is Hymeneus and Alexander, thoſe notorious heretics, whom I have delivered unto Satan ; by my apoſtolic power aſſigning them over to that tormentor, to inflict upon them ſevere chaſtiſement ; that they may learn not to blaſpheme, and that by their ſufferings they may be brought to a conviction of their ſins ; or, at leaſt, ſo terrified, as not to dare any longer to perſiſt in their horrid blaſphemies. Note, (1.) We are now engaged in a dangerous warfare, and the miniſters of Chriſt eſpecially will meet with the ſtrongeſt oppoſition. We have need therefore to hold faſt by him who is our ſtrength, that we may ſtand in the evil day. (2.) None uſually turn out ſo dreadfully, and become ſuch horrid blaſphemers, as thoſe who apoſtatize from the profeſſion of religion which once they made.

CHAP. II.

In this chapter St. Paul treats, 1. Of prayer, with many reaſons for it, ver. 1—9. 2. Of women's apparel, ver. 9, 10. 3. Of their ſubjection, with the reaſons of it, ver. 11—14. 4. A promiſe given for their encouragement in child-bearing, ver. 15.

1. I Exhort therefore that firſt of all, ſupplications, prayers, interceſſions, and giving of thanks be made for all men : 2. [a] For kings, and for all that are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godlineſs and honeſty. 3. For this is good and acceptable in the ſight of [b] God our Saviour : 4. [c] Who will have all men to be ſaved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth. 5. For [d] there is one God, and [e] one mediator between God and men, the man Chriſt Jeſus : 6. [f] Who gave himſelf a ranſom for all, to be teſtified [g] in due time. 7. [h] Whereunto I am ordained a preacher, a Jer. xxix. 7.

b Chap. i. 1. Tit. i. 3.
c Ezek. xviii. 23. Tit. ii. 11. 2 Pet. iii. 9.
d John xvii. 3. Rom. iii. 29. & x. 12.
e Gal. iii. 20. Heb. ix. 15.
f Mat. xx. 28. Col. i. 14. Tit. ii. 14.
g Gal. iv. 4. Eph. i. 10.
h Acts ix. 15. 2 Tim. i. 11.

preacher, and an apoſtle, ([i] I ſpeak the truth in Chriſt, and lye not) [k] a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and verity. 8. I will therefore that men pray [l] every where, [m] lifting up holy hands, [n] without wrath [o] and doubting :

i Rom. ix. 1.
k Acts xxij. 21. Rom. xi. 13. & xv. 16. Eph. iii. 8.
l Mal. i. 11. John iv. 21.
m Iſa. i. 15.
n Mat. v. 24.
o Jam. i. 6.

v. 1—8. The apoſtle exhorts,

1. That ſupplications, prayers, interceſſions, and giving of thanks be made in the church for all ranks and conditions of men ; particularly for kings, and for all that are in authority, the inferior magiſtrates ; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life, protected from all violence and injuries ; and in all godlineſs and honeſty, approving our unfeigned piety to God, and our unimpeached integrity towards men.

2. He ſuggeſts the ſtrongeſt reaſons to ſupport his exhortations. For this is good and acceptable in the ſight of God our Saviour, who enjoins univerſal charity, and will have all men to be ſaved ; ſome of all nations, ranks, and conditions, Gentiles as well as Jews, high and low, rich and poor ; and, in order thereunto, hath ſent out his goſpel to call them, that they may come to the knowledge of the truth, by the faith of which alone ſalvation can be obtained. For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Chriſt Jeſus ; who, though very God, hath taken our nature into perſonal union with himſelf, and in his glorified body ſtands as the alone mediator before the throne, to make the perſons, prayers, and ſervices of his people accepted. Who gave himſelf a ranſom for all, paying down the price of our redemption in the drops of his own moſt precious blood, and thereby making a full ſatisfaction to divine juſtice for ſinners of every condition and degree, as was foretold by the prophets, and to be teſtified in due time to all nations. Whereunto I am ordained a preacher, and an apoſtle, by a divine commiſſion, (I ſpeak the truth in Chriſt, and lye not, as the heart-ſearching God doth bear me witneſs), a teacher of the Gentiles, to whom eſpecially I am ſent, in faith and verity, to bring them to the true faith of Chriſt, and this office I labour to diſcharge with all ſimplicity and faithfulneſs. Note, (1.) It is God's will that we ſhould pray for others as well as for ourſelves. (2.) Our encouragement to draw near to a throne of grace is this, that we have one Mediator there, who ever liveth to make interceſſion for us. (3.) Since Jeſus hath paid, and God hath accepted the ranſom, all that plead it have a right to the eternal redemption thereby obtained. (4.) None can be ſaved but by coming to the knowledge of the truth : where Chriſt is not preached, there can be no hope, for there is ſalvation in no other. (5.) It is an ineſtimable bleſſing to enjoy the light of the goſpel, and to ſit under their miniſtry who preach it in faith and verity.

3. He directs them how to pray. I will therefore that men, who bear the Chriſtian name, pray every where ; not confined to any particular place, ſince God is alike preſent in all ; in the cloſet, in the family, as well as in the great congregation : only when we draw near to him, if we would obtain acceptance, we muſt be found lifting up holy hands, not polluted with allowed ſin, but waſhed in atoning blood, without wrath and doubting, ſince harboured malice, unbelieving diſtruſt of God, and a contentious ſpirit, muſt neceſſarily deſtroy all the efficacy of prayer.

9. In like manner alſo, that [p] women adorn themſelves in modeſt apparel, with ſhamefacedneſs and ſobriety : not with † broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or coſtly aray ; 10. [q] But (which becometh women profeſſing godlineſs) with good works. 11. Let the woman learn in ſilence [r] with all ſubjection. 12. But [s] I ſuffer not a woman to teach, [t] nor to uſurp authority over the man, but to be in ſilence. 13. For [u] Adam was firſt formed, then Eve. 14. And [x] Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the tranſgreſſion. 15. Notwithſtanding ſhe ſhall be ſaved in child-bearing, if they continue in faith and charity, and holineſs with ſobriety.

p 1 Pet. iii. 3.
† Or plaited.
q 1 Pet. iii. 4.
r Gen. iii. 16.
s 1 Cor. xiv. 34.
t Eph. v. 24.
u Gen. i. 27. & ii. 18. 1 Cor. xi. 8, 9.
x Gen. iii. 6. 2 Cor. xi. 3.

v. 9—15. The apoſtle here directs how women profeſſing godlineſs ſhould behave.

1. With modeſty. In like manner alſo, that women adorn themſelves in modeſt apparel, with ſhamefacedneſs and ſobriety : not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or coſtly aray ; but (which becometh women profeſſing godlineſs) with good works. What a contraſt to this deſcription are our manners ! yet, the truly gracious woman will ſtill think modeſty her brighteſt ornament ; and when faſhion impoſes aught that is fantaſtical, extravagant, or immodeſt, will dare to diſobey.

2. Let the woman learn in ſilence with all ſubjection ; not preſuming to be ſpeakers in the houſe of God, but hearers ; for I ſuffer not a woman to teach in public, nor to uſurp authority over the man, by that or any other inſtance of affected ſuperiority ; but to be in ſilence. For Adam was firſt formed, then Eve, from his ſide, (Gen. ii. 2.) to denote her inferiority. And Adam was not deceived by the ſerpent, but the woman being deceived was in the tranſgreſſion ; and he, ſeduced by her, or out of fond affection determined to die with her, wilfully followed her example. Notwithſtanding ſhe ſhall be ſaved in child-bearing, amidſt all the anguiſh which flows from the ſentence pronounced on her (Gen. iii. 16.) and through that child which is born of woman, the adored Immanuel, ſhe ſhall obtain everlaſting ſalvation ; if they continue in faith and charity, and holineſs with ſobriety, and prove themſelves living members of Chriſt, in whom there is no difference between male or female, but both are alike called to partake of his grace and glory.

CHAP. III.

In this chapter our apoſtle treats of church-officers. And, 1. He gives us the qualifications of a perſon to be admitted to the office of a biſhop, ver. 1—8. 2. Of the qualifications of deacons, ver. 8—10. And of their wives, ver. 11. And again of the deacons, ver. 12, 13. 3. Of the reaſons of his writing to Timothy, whereupon he ſpeaks of the church and the foundation truth profeſſed therein, ver. 14, to the end.

1. THIS is a true ſaying, If a man deſire [a] the office of a biſhop, he deſireth [b] a good work. 2. [c] A biſhop then muſt be blameleſs, the huſband of one wife, vigilant, ſober, of good behaviour, given to hoſpitality, [d] apt to teach ; 3. [e] Not given to wine, [f] no ſtriker, [g] not greedy of filthy lucre, but patient, [h] not a brawler, not covetous ; 4. One that ruleth well his own houſe, [i] having his children in ſubjection with all gravity ; 5. (For if a man know not how to rule his own houſe, how ſhall he take care of the church of God ?) 6. Not a † novice, leſt being lifted up with pride, he fall into [k] the condemnation of the devil. 7. Moreover, [l] he muſt have a good report of them [m] which are without ; leſt he fall into reproach, and the ſnare of the devil.

a Acts xx. 28.
b Eph. iv. 12.
c Tit. i. 6, &c.
d 2 Tim. ii. 24.
e Tit. i. 7.
f 2 Tim. ii. 24.
g 1 Pet. v. 2.
h 2 Tim. ii. 24.
i Tit. i. 6.
† Or, one newly come to the faith.
k Iſa. xiv. 13.
l Acts xxii. 12.
m 1 Cor. v. 12. 1 Theſ. iv. 12.

v. 1—7. Timothy being left to preſide over and regulate the affairs of the Epheſian church, the apoſtle gives him directions concerning thoſe who ſhould be ordained to miniſterial offices among them.

This is a true ſaying, If a man, inwardly moved by the Holy Ghoſt, deſireth the office of a biſhop, or overſeer of the church of Chriſt, he deſireth a good work : the poſt is moſt honourable and important, yet withal moſt laborious, and requires ſingular qualifications for the right diſcharge thereof. A biſhop then muſt, (1.) Be blameleſs ; his morals irreproachable, and his character able to bear the niceſt ſcrutiny. (2.) If he be not ſingle, let him be the huſband of one wife, that hath never given a divorce, in order to marry again, nor lives in poligamy. (3.) He muſt be vigilant over the ſouls committed to his care, and habitually reſident among them. (4.) Sober, moderate in the uſe of every creature-comfort, and temperate in all things. (5.) Of good behaviour ; courteous, engaging, prudent, edifying. (6.) Given to hoſpitality ; ready to relieve ſtrangers, and aſſiſt the neceſſitous. (7.) Apt to teach ; furniſhed with Chriſtian knowledge and experience, and poſſeſſing the faculty of communicating his ſentiments with eaſe and propriety for the improvement of others. (8.) Not given to wine ; not merely no drunkard, but never ſitting long at the cups, or loving the glaſs. (9.) No ſtriker ; not paſſionate or quarrelſome. (10.) Not greedy of filthy lucre, and ſuſpected of attachment to earthly gains and advantage ; but, (11.) Patient ; a pattern of meekneſs and long-ſuffering. (12.) Not a brawler ; clamorous, contentious, and talkative : nor, (13.) Covetous ; ſeeking the fleece more than to feed the flock, and ſerving for hire, rather than for the love of men's ſouls. (14.) One that ruleth well his own houſe, with due diſcipline and authority ; having his children in ſubjection with all gravity : for if a man know not how to rule his own houſe, and ſo to behave there as to preſerve order and decorum, how ſhall he take care of the church of God, where ſo much more difficulty may be expected, and ſo much more prudence is neceſſary ? (15.) Not a novice, and but lately acquainted with, and converted to, the faith of Chriſt ; leſt being lifted up with pride, thruſting himſelf arrogantly into an office for which he is not qualified, and ambitious of human honour, or popular applauſe, he fall into the condemnation of the devil, and ſink the deeper from the height whereunto he affected to ſoar. (16.) Moreover, he muſt have a good report of them which are without ; his conduct unſullied with any thing which would be an obſtruction to his miniſtry ; leſt he fall into reproach, and grow contemptible, and into the ſnare of the devil.

Ere any man appears a candidate for the miniſtry, let him ſolemnly conſider theſe things. It is not eaſe, or honour, or gain, or a genteel employment, that ſhould lead us into the ſervice : theſe are motives diſhonourable, unhallowed, impious. Zeal for God, diſintereſted love of ſouls, muſt warm our boſoms, and unreſerved devotedneſs of ourſelves to Chriſt muſt mark each ſtep. And Who is ſufficient for theſe things, may we well ſay ? The beſt qualified will be moſt conſcious how ſhort they come, and be looking conſtantly up to him who hath promiſed, Lo, I am with you alway, even to the end of the world, Mat. xxviii. 20.

8. Likewiſe muſt [n] the deacons be grave, not double-tongued, [o] not given to much wine, not greedy of filthy lucre, 9. [p] Holding the myſtery of the faith in a pure conſcience. 10. And let theſe alſo firſt be proved; then let them uſe the office of a deacon, being found blameleſs. 11. [q] Even ſo muſt their wives be grave, not ſlanderers, ſober, faithful in all things. 12. Let the deacons be the huſbands of one wife, ruling their children and their own houſes well. 13. For [r] they that have uſed the office of a deacon well, purchaſe to themſelves a good degree, and great boldneſs in the faith which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

n Acts vi. 3.
o Lev. x. 9. Ezek. xliv. 21.
p Chap. i. 19.
q Tit. ii. 3, &c.
r Mat. xxv. 21.

v. 8—13. We have,

1. The character of the deacons, whoſe office it was chiefly to take care of the outward matters of the church, aſſiſt the miniſters, provide for the poor, and manage the public ſtock.

(1.) They muſt be grave, men of venerable deportment. (2.) Not double-tongued; warping the truth to pleaſe in different companies, and ſpeaking with deſign or diſſimulation. (3.) Not given to much wine, but perſons of exemplary temperance. (4.) Not greedy of filthy lucre, leſt they be tempted to embezzle the church's ſtock. (5.) Holding the myſtery of the faith in a pure conſcience; cleaving ſteadily to the ſimplicity of the goſpel doctrines, and adorning them by a becoming converſation. (6.) And let theſe alſo firſt be proved; then let them uſe the office of a deacon, being found blameleſs; having undergone a proper examination, and being approved, let them be inveſted with their office. (6.) Let the deacons be the huſbands of one wife, avoiding all divorce and polygamy; ruling their children and their own houſes well; ſetting them a good example, and maintaining due order and regularity. For they that have uſed the office of a deacon well, with fidelity and diligence, true to the truſt committed unto them, purchaſe to themſelves a good degree of honour and reſpect in the church, and great boldneſs in the faith which is in Chriſt Jeſus; God bleſſing ſuch fidelity with an increaſe of grace, and greater openneſs and freedom in the profeſſion of the goſpel before men.

2. The character of the deacons wives. Even ſo muſt their wives be grave, in manners, dreſs, ſpeech, and deportment: not ſlanderers; ſpeaking evil of perſons behind their backs, and ſowing diſcord in the church: ſober, and free from exceſs: faithful in all things, that they may be a credit to their huſbands, and adorn their ſtation.

14. Theſe things write I unto thee, hoping [s] to come unto thee ſhortly: 15. But if I tarry long, that thou mayeſt know how thou oughteſt to behave thyſelf [t] in the houſe of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth. 16. And without controverſy great is the myſtery of godlineſs: [u] God was manifeſt in the fleſh; [x] juſtified in the Spirit, [y] ſeen of angels, [z] preached unto the Gentiles, [a] believed on in the world, [b] received up into glory.

s Chap. iv. 13.
t 2 Tim. ii. 20.
u John i. 14. 1 John i. 2.
x Rom. i. 4. 1 Pet. iii. 18.
y Mat. xxviii. 2. John xx. 12. Eph. iii. 10. 1 Pet. i. 12.
z Eph. iii. 5, 6. Col. i. 27.
a Col. i. 23.
b Luke xxiv. 51. Acts i. 5.

v. 14—16. Though he hoped to be with him at Epheſus ſhortly, yet, leſt the Lord ſhould call him elſewhere, he had ſent the above directions. Theſe things write I unto thee, hoping to come unto thee ſhortly: but if I tarry long, and arrive not ſo ſoon as I purpoſe, I have ſent this epiſtle, that thou mayeſt know how thou oughteſt to behave thyſelf in the houſe of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth; which laſt words ſome refer to the church, where the truth is held forth as an inſcription written on a pillar, and maintained with all ſtedfaſtneſs: others to Timothy himſelf, who was a firm pillar in that church: but, beſt of all, they may be referred to Chriſt himſelf, the living God abiding in his own temple, and its true foundation and ſupport. And without controverſy great is the myſtery of godlineſs, eſpecially in the following particulars: God was manifeſt in the fleſh, and took our nature upon him. Juſtified in the Spirit, when by his reſurrection he was declared free from every charge, and God's juſtice fully ſatisfied: ſeen of angels, when triumphant he aſcended to the throne of majeſty on high amidſt their acclamations; preached to the Gentiles, as a Saviour to the uttermoſt, and freely inviting them to partake of all the bleſſings of his goſpel: believed on in the world, both by Jews and Gentiles, notwithſtanding the ignominy of his croſs: received up into glory, to poſſeſs the reward of his ſufferings; or glorioùſly received, his goſpel in the moſt aſtoniſhing manner ſpreading through the earth, and bringing vaſt multitudes of converts to the obedience of the faith. Note, (1.) The all-ſufficiency of the atonement of Jeſus depends upon the divine glory of his perſon. He who ſuffered on a croſs was very God as well as very man. (2.) This is among the myſteries of godlineſs, where reaſon muſt bow down, and faith adore.

CHAP. IV.

St. Paul here foretels, 1. A dreadful apoſtaſy, ver. 1—3. 2. He treats of Chriſtian liberty, ver. 4, 5. 3. He gives Timothy divers directions with reſpect to himſelf, his doctrine, and the people under his care, ver. 6, to the end.

1. NOW the Spirit [a] ſpeaketh expreſsly that [b] in the latter times ſome ſhall depart from the faith, giving heed [c] to ſeducing ſpirits, and [d] doctrines of devils; 2. [e] Speaking lyes in hypocriſy, [f] having their conſciences ſeared with a hot iron; 3. Forbidding to marry, and commanding to abſtain from meats, which God hath created [g] to be received [h] with thankſgiving of them which believe and know the truth. 4. For [i] every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refuſed, if it be received with thankſgiving: 5. For it is ſanctified by the word of God and prayer.

a 2 Theſ. ii. 3. 2 Tim. iii. 1. 2 Pet. iii. 3. 1 John ii. 18. Jude 18.
b 1 Pet. i. 20.
c Rev. xvi. 14.
d Dan. xi. 37, 38. Rev. ix. 20.
e Rom. xvi. 18.
f Eph. iv. 19.
g Gen. i. 30. & ix. 3.
h Rom. xiv. 6. 1 Cor. x. 30.
i Gen. i. 31. Rom. xiv. 14, 20. 1 Cor. x. 25. Tit. i. 15.

v. 1—5. We have here the prophecy of that dire apoſtacy from the faith, which was of old foretold, and which we have ſeen ſo ſtrikingly and dreadfully verified in the corruptions of the church of Rome. Now the Spirit ſpeaketh expreſsly, in the prophetic writings, and by us who write under his immediate inſpiration, that in the latter times of the preſent diſpenſation, ſome ſhall depart from the faith; and the marks of this apoſtacy he deſcribes.

1. The departure will ariſe from giving heed to ſeducing ſpirits, and doctrines of devils, or dæmons, reviving the errors of paganiſm in the worſhip of angels, dead ſaints, yea their very relicks, and making theſe a kind of mediators between God and them.

2. Speaking lyes in hypocriſy; pretending to great zeal for the church and religion, yet propagating the moſt damnable hereſies, ſuch as juſtification by works, the freewill of man to good, &c. and by falſe legends, and forged miracles, deceiving the ſouls of the ignorant: having their conſciences ſeared with a hot iron, and ſticking at no abominations which may contribute to advance their wicked ends; even conſecrating regicide, diſpenſing with the moſt ſolemn oaths, and counting every ſpecies of barbarity lawful, yea laudable, to be perpetrated on thoſe who oppoſe their deſtructive ways: witneſs the blood of martyrs, that by popiſh cruelty hath dyed ſo plentifully this land.

3. Forbidding to marry; ſpeaking diſhonourably of the ordinance itſelf, encouraging celibacy, and forbidding marriage to their clergy, monks, and nuns, in direct contradiction to God's word.

4. Commanding to abſtain from meats, under the hypocritical ſhew of ſelf-denial; forbidding fleſh in Lent, and enjoining fiſh inſtead of other animal food, which God hath created to be received, and eaten at all times, without diſtinction of days and ſeaſons, if it be uſed with moderation and thankſgiving of them which believe and know the truth. For every creature of God is good, and nothing, proper for food, to be refuſed, if it be received with thankſgiving; for it is ſanctified for our uſe by the word of God, which declares there is nothing now common or unclean; and by prayer imploring his bleſſing, that we may uſe every creature-comfort to his glory. Note, Our common meals ſhould be ever ſanctified with devotion, and God's bleſſing be implored before we preſume to uſe his gifts.

6. If thou put the brethren in remembrance of theſe things, thou ſhalt be a good miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt, [k] nouriſhed up in the words of faith, and of good doctrine, whereunto thou haſt attained. 7. But [l] refuſe profane and old wives fables, and [m] exerciſe thyſelf rather unto godlineſs. 8. For [n] bodily exerciſe profiteth † little: but [o] godlineſs is profitable unto all things, [p] having promiſe of the life that now is, and of that which is to come. 9. [q] This is a faithful ſaying, and worthy of all acceptation. 10. For therefore we both labour, and ſuffer reproach, becauſe we truſt in the living God, [r] who is the Saviour of all men, eſpecially of thoſe that believe. 11. Theſe things command and teach. 12. [s] Let no man deſpiſe thy youth, but [t] be thou an example of the believers, in word, in converſation, in charity, in ſpirit, in faith, in purity. 13. Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine. 14. [u] Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee [x] by prophecy, [y] with the laying on of the hands of the preſbytery. 15. Meditate upon theſe things, give thyſelf wholly to them, that thy profiting may appear ‡ to all. 16. [z] Take heed unto thyſelf, and unto thy doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou ſhalt both [a] ſave thyſelf and [b] them that hear thee.

k 2 Tim. iii. 14, 15.
l Chap. i. 4. & vi. 20. Tit. i. 14. & iii. 9.
m Heb. v. 14.
n Col. ii. 23.
† Or, a little, or in a few things.
o Deut. xxviii. 12. & xxx. 9. Pſ. lxxxiv. 11. Prov. iii. 16.
p Mat. vi. 33. & xix. 29.
q Chap. i. 15.
r Pſ. xxxvi. 6. & cvii. 13, &c.
s 1 Cor. xvi. 11. Tit. ii. 15.
t Tit. ii. 7. 1 Pet. v. 3.
u 2 Tim. i. 6.
x Chap. i. 18.
y Acts vi. 6. Chap. v. 22. 2 Tim. i. 6.
‡ Or, in all things.
z Acts xx. 28.
a Ezek. xxxiii. 9.
b Rom. xi. 14. 1 Cor. ix. 22. Jam. v. 20.

v. 6—16. We have here,

1. The apoſtle's encouraging exhortation. If thou put the brethren in remembrance of theſe things, thou ſhalt be a good miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt, nouriſhed up in the words of faith and of good doctrine, whereunto thou haſt attained. Such fidelity to his truſt would bring down the bleſſing of the Lord upon his ſoul, and prove his own abundant advantage. Note, Nothing is a greater means of edification to a miniſter's own ſoul, than his labours for the good of his brethren.

2. He quickens him to diligence in his Chriſtian calling. But refuſe profane and old wives fables, the abſurd genealogies and traditions of the judaizing teachers; and exerciſe thyſelf rather unto godlineſs; ſtrain every nerve to ſet forth the doctrines and duties of the goſpel, and in thy own temper and conduct ſhew thyſelf eminently exemplary. For bodily exerciſe, the moſt rigid obſervance of the externals of religion, profiteth little; but godlineſs, vital experimental religion, manifeſted in heart and life, is profitable unto all things, having promiſe of the life that now is, in the ſanctified and happy uſe of worldly comforts, and of that which is to come, where God hath prepared for thoſe that love him ſuch good things as paſs man's underſtanding. This is a faithful ſaying, and worthy of all acceptation, as a truth which will be proved infallibly certain by every real Chriſtian, and none will ever have reaſon to repent a life of godlineſs. For therefore we both labour and ſuffer reproach, undiſmayed and unſhaken, becauſe we truſt in the living God, who is able abundantly to fulfil his promiſes, and is the Saviour of all men, beſtowing innumerable providential bleſſings upon them, and reſcuing them from many miſeries: but eſpecially of thoſe that believe; by his diſtinguiſhing grace and love beſtowing upon them not only multiplied mercies in this world, but having purchaſed and ſecured for them an eternal ſalvation in heaven. Note, (1.) Though this world is not our home, nor our portion, yet, even here below, the truly godly are the moſt happy people. (2.) Chriſt hath a peculiar people, to whom he is in a ſpecial manner a Saviour, reſcuing them from all ſpiritual evils, and bringing them to eternal bleſſedneſs.

3. He directs him particularly how to demean himſelf. Theſe things command and teach with all authority. Let no man deſpiſe thy youth, nor give them any occaſion to do ſo; but behave ſo as to engage and command reverence and reſpect: and be thou an example of the believers, in word, in all grave and edifying diſcourſe, free from youthful levity; in converſation, ſtrictly religious, and ſincerely upright; in charity, fervent towards God, and the ſouls of men; in ſpirit, zealous for the cauſe of Jeſus, and abounding in all the fruits of righteouſneſs; in faith, unwavering, in profeſſion bold; in purity of heart and conduct, without blemiſh or ſuſpicion. Till I come, give attendance to reading the ſcriptures in private, and in the congregation; to exhortation, bringing the word of God home to the conſciences of the hearers, with warm application, for the conviction of ſome, and the conſolation and edification of others; to doctrine, clearly ſtating the great points of the Chriſtian faith, and vindicating them from all oppoſers. Neglect not the gift that is in thee, but make the beſt improvement of the abilities with which God hath furniſhed you, and of the extraordinary gift which was given thee by prophecy, as ſome inſpired men had foretold, with the laying on of the hands of the preſbytery, when you were ordained to the work of the miniſtry. Meditate upon theſe things; give thyſelf wholly to them, with ſuch evident devotedneſs of heart, ſuch delight in the ſervice, and ſuch exemplarineſs of conduct, that thy profiting may appear to all. Take heed to thyſelf, as a miniſter and a Chriſtian, and unto thy doctrine, that it may exactly correſpond with the goſpel word; for in doing this thou ſhalt both ſave thyſelf and them that hear thee. Note, (1.) They who ſhew themſelves examples to the flock, and evidently prove that they believe and practiſe themſelves what they preach to others, tho' young, will neceſſarily command reſpect and reverence; whilſt grey hairs, diſhonoured by an unbecoming conduct, will be juſtly deſpiſed. (2.) They who are to teach others, ſhould be much in prayer and reading the ſcriptures, that they may lay in a fund of uſeful knowledge, and be full of matter for their public miniſtrations. An idle miniſter muſt needs be an unprofitable preacher. (3.) They who have the charge of immortal ſouls ſhould be wholly engroſſed with this great concern, and give themſelves up to their awful employment. (4.) It is our great encouragement to fidelity in the miniſtry, that not only our own ſoul ſhall be ſaved, but that we ſhall be made happily inſtrumental to the eternal ſalvation of others, who will be our joy and crown in the day of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

CHAP. V.

Here the apoſtle directs Timothy, 1. How to reprove, ver. 1, 2. 2. Of widows, both elder and younger, ver. 3—17. 3. Of elders, ver. 17—19. 4. Of public reproof, ver. 20. 5. A ſolemn charge of ordination, ver. 21, 22. 6. Of his health, ver. 23. and of men's ſins very different in their effects, ver. 24, 25.

1. [a] REBUKE not an elder, but intreat him as a father; and the younger men, as brethren; 2. The elder women, as mothers; the younger, as ſiſters, with all purity.

[a] Lev. xix. 32.

v. 1, 2. The apoſtle proceeds to give him farther directions concerning the needful, though leſs pleaſing, work of rebuke. Miniſters are reprovers by office, and muſt be faithful to this truſt.

Rebuke not an elder, in years or office, if ought be found in him which demands cenſure, with a magiſterial air, or unbecoming ſeverity; but, with reſpect to his venerable years, intreat him as a father to remove the cauſe of offence: and the younger men as brethren; with all freedom, yet withal in love and meekneſs: the elder women, as mothers, with due reſpect; the younger, as ſiſters, with all purity; avoiding every thought, word, look, or geſture, that hath the moſt diſtant tendency to evil.

3. Honour widows [b] that are widows indeed. 4. But if any widow have children or nephews, let them learn firſt to ſhew piety at home, and [c] to requite their parents: for that is good and acceptable before God. 5. Now [d] ſhe that is a widow indeed, and deſolate, truſteth in God, and [e] continueth in ſupplications and prayers [f] night and day. 6. But ſhe [g] that liveth † in pleaſure, is dead while ſhe liveth. 7. And theſe things give in charge, that they may be blameleſs. 8. But [h] if any provide not for his own, and eſpecially for thoſe of his own houſe, [i] he hath denied the faith, and is worſe than an infidel. 9. Let not a widow be taken into the number under threeſcore years old, [k] having been the wife of one man, 10. Well reported of for good works; if ſhe have brought up children, if ſhe have [l] lodged ſtrangers, if ſhe have [m] waſhed the ſaints feet, if ſhe have relieved the afflicted, if ſhe have diligently followed every good work. 11. But the younger widows refuſe: for when they have begun to wax wanton againſt Chriſt, they will marry; 12. Having damnation, becauſe they have caſt off their firſt faith. 13. And withal they learn to be idle, [n] wandering about from houſe to houſe; and not only idle, but tatlers alſo and buſy-bodies, ſpeaking things which they ought not. 14. I will therefore [o] that the younger women marry, bear children, guide the houſe, [p] give none occaſion to the adverſary to ſpeak reproachfully. 15. For ſome are already turned aſide after Satan. 16. If any man or woman that believeth have widows, let them relieve them, and let not the church be charged; that it may relieve them [q] that are widows indeed.

[b] Ver. 5, 16.
[c] Gen. xlv. 10, 11. Mat. xv. 1. Eph. vi. 1, 2.
[d] 1 Cor. vii. 34.
[e] Luke ii. 37. & xviii. 1.
[f] Acts xxvi. 7.
[g] Jam. v. 5.
† Or delicately, or wantonly.
[h] Iſa. lviii. 7.
[i] 2 Tim. iii. 5. Tit. i. 16.
[k] Luke ii. 36. Chap. iii. 2.
[l] Heb. xiii. 2. 1 Pet. iv. 9.
[m] Gen. xviii. 4. & xix. 2. Luke vii. 38, 44.
[n] Tit. ii. 5.
[o] 1 Cor. vii. 9.
[p] Tit. ii. 8.
[q] Ver. 3, 5.

v. 3—16. The apoſtle particularly directs Timothy how to behave in the caſe of widows who applied to be aſſiſted out of the church's ſtock, and to be employed in pious offices under the direction of the deacons.

1. Honour widows that are widows indeed, really in diſtreſs, in need of aſſiſtance, and deſerving to be placed on the church's liſt; and theſe he deſcribes, v. 5. Now ſhe that is a widow indeed, and deſolate, without any friends to ſupport her, truſteth in God, who is the friend of the friendleſs; and they who caſt their care upon him ſhall not be deſtitute: and ſuch a one continueth in ſupplications and prayers night and day; depending upon the Lord's providential help, and ſhewing her undiſſembled piety. But ſhe that liveth in pleaſure, gayly, idly, and voluptuouſly, is dead while ſhe liveth; dead to God and godlineſs, and in no wiſe to be received of the church, or ſupported from the common ſtock. And theſe things give in charge, that they may be blameleſs, and that no juſt offences may call for rebuke or cenſure. Note, A life of carnal pleaſures is a ſtate of real death: the ſoul there lies intombed in fleſh, and ſuch a perſon is really a living ſepulchre.

2. If any widows have near relations capable of providing for them, the church ought not to be burdened with their maintainance. If any widow have children or nephews, or grandchildren, let them learn firſt to ſhew piety at home, and to requite their parents, by taking all care of them when labouring under age and infirmities; for that is good and acceptable before God; their bounden duty, and agreeable to his holy will. But if any, who makes profeſſion of the Chriſtian name, refuſe that aſſiſtance, which in ſuch a caſe he is bound to afford, and provide not for his own, and eſpecially for thoſe of his own houſe, his aged parents, next to his wife and children, claiming a title to a maintainance, as parts of that family which depend on him for a proviſion, he hath denied the faith, by ſuch a conduct, and is worſe than an infidel: even the very heathen will riſe up to condemn a conduct ſo baſe and unnatural. Therefore if any man or woman that believeth have widows, mothers or grandmothers, let them relieve them, and let not the church be charged; that it may have ſufficiency to relieve them that are widows indeed.

3. He points out the age and qualifications of thoſe who ſhould be entred on the poor's liſt, or be taken into office and employed by the church under the deacons. Let not a widow be taken into the number under threeſcore years old, having been the wife of one man, and never married to another after any divorce; well reported of for good works in her former better days; if ſhe have brought up children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord; if ſhe have lodged ſtrangers, when brought by providence in her way; if ſhe have waſhed the ſaints feet, condeſcending to the loweſt offices of charity; if ſhe have relieved the afflicted, with her help, her counſel, and her ſubſtance; if ſhe have diligently followed every good work.

4. But the younger widows refuſe: for when they have begun to wax wanton againſt Chriſt, as they may be in danger of doing, they will then marry improperly, perhaps wickedly, into ſome heathen family; having thus damnation, becauſe they have caſt off their firſt faith, and apoſtatized from the profeſſion which they once made: and withal they learn to be idle, wandring about from houſe to houſe in uſeleſs and impertinent viſiting; and not only idle, but tatlers alſo, and buſy bodies, officious and talkative, ſpeaking things which they ought not, to the hurt of their neighbour's reputation, and to the diſturbance of ſociety.

17. [r] Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of [s] double honour, eſpecially they who labour in the word and doctrine. 28. For the ſcripture ſaith, [t] Thou ſhalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn: and, [u] The labourer is worthy of his reward. 19. Againſt an elder receive not an accuſation, but [x] before two or three witneſſes. 20. [y] Them that ſin rebuke before all, [z] that others alſo may fear. 21. [a] I charge thee before God and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the elect angels, that thou obſerve theſe things without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality. 22. [b] Lay hands ſuddenly on no man, [c] neither be partaker of other men's ſins: keep thyſelf pure. 23. Drink no longer water, but uſe a little wine [d] for thy ſtomach's ſake, and thine often infirmities. 24. [e] Some men's ſins are open beforehand, going before to judgment; and ſome men they follow after. 25. Likewiſe alſo the good works of ſome are manifeſt beforehand; and they that are otherwiſe cannot be hid.

r Rom. xv. 27. 1 Cor. ix. 14. Gal. vi. 6. Phil. ii. 29. 1 Theſ. v. 12, 13.
s Acts xxviii. 10.
t Deut. xxv. 4. 1 Cor. ix. 9.
u Lev. xix. 13. Deut. xxiv. 14. Mat. x. 10. Luke x. 7.
x Deut. xix. 15.
y Gal. ii. 11, 14.
z Deut. xiii. 11.
a Chap. vi. 13. 2 Tim. ii. 14. & iv. 1.
b Acts vi. 6. & xiii. 3.
c 2 John 11.
d Pſ. civ. 15.
e Gal. v. 19.

v. 17—25. The apoſtle here directs Timothy,

1. Concerning the proper maintenance of a goſpel miniſtry. Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honour, highly eſteemed and liberally provided for, eſpecially they who labour in the word and doctrine, whoſe eminent zeal and diligence requires a ſuitable acknowledgment: for the ſcripture ſaith, Thou ſhalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn; but as he works he ſhall be freely allowed to eat: and our Lord hath ſaid, The labourer is worthy of his reward. Note, The work of the miniſtry is laborious; and well do they who diſcharge it with zeal and diligence deſerve an honourable proviſion.

2. Concerning the accuſation of an elder. Againſt an elder receive not an accuſation, but before two or three witneſſes of character and credibility; and liſten to no bare ſurmiſes or ſlanderous ſuggeſtions. Them that ſin before all, being open, notorious, and ſcandalous offenders, rebuke before all, publickly and with ſharpneſs, that others alſo may fear, reſpecting no man's rank or greatneſs. I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the eternal Judge; and the elect angels, who are the ſpirits that miniſter to the heirs of ſalvation; that thou obſerve theſe things, without preferring one before another, not prejudging the cauſe through favour or affection; doing nothing by partiality, nor ſuffering any conſideration to prejudice or biaſs your minds for or againſt any man, but deciding according to truth.

3. Concerning the ordination of miniſters. Lay hands ſuddenly on no man to put him into the miniſtry, till he hath been thoroughly tried, and found faithful and able; neither be partakers of other men's ſins, by conniving at the intruſion of unfit perſons into the ſacred office: keep thyſelf pure from the blood of all men, diſcountenancing all unbecoming behaviour, and in thy own converſation a pattern of purity and chaſtity.

4. Concerning his own health. Drink no longer water, but uſe a little wine for thy ſtomach's ſake, and thine often infirmities; indefatigable labour, and ſtrict abſtemiouſneſs, preyed upon a tender conſtitution probably, and required in moderation ſomething more ſupporting than water, to which he had confined himſelf. Note, The creatures of God are deſigned for our uſe and comfort; only let them be uſed with moderation; not to pamper the fleſh, but ſo as to enable us the better to fulfil the duties of our ſtation.

5. With regard to cenſure and ordination, of which he had before ſpoken, he farther obſerves, Some men's ſins are open beforehand, going before to judgment, and being notorious, ſuch are to be rejected from the miniſtry, and laid under the church's cenſure; and ſome men they follow after, and though they ſtudiouſly conceal their ſins, yet, on deeper and cloſer examination, they will after a while come out; and therefore they ſhould not haſtily be admitted into ſacred orders, without due probation. Likewiſe alſo the good works of ſome are manifeſt beforehand, their whole character ſtrikingly exemplary, and their miniſterial gifts eminent; ſo that they may be admitted without heſitation: and they that are otherwiſe cannot be hid, more caution is needful with thoſe whoſe qualifications are dubious, and it requires ſome time to make it clear whether they ſhould be received: for, if they are really corrupt in principle or practice, they will ſoon betray themſelves. Note, (1.) Before any be admitted into ſacred orders, their character and qualifications ſhould be well examined. An ignorant and ſcandalous miniſtry is the greateſt reproach to any church. (2.) However ſecretly men may hide their ſins, yet uſually in time their true character appears, and at leaſt at a judgment-day no vail can hide the workers of iniquity.

CHAP. VI.

1. He treats of the duty of ſervants, ver. 1, 2, 3. 2. Of teachers, ver. 3, 4, 5. 3. Of godlineſs and covetouſneſs, ver. 6—11. 4. What Timothy was to flee, and what to follow, ver. 11—13. 5. A ſolemn charge, ver. 13—17, And, 6. A charge for the rich, ver. 17, 18, 19. And laſtly, A charge to Timothy, ver. 20, 21.

1. [a] LET as many ſervants as are under the yoke, count their own maſters worthy of all honour; [b] that the name of God, and his doctrine be not blaſphemed. 2. And they that have believing maſters, let them not deſpiſe them, becauſe they are brethren: but rather do them ſervice, becauſe they are faithful and beloved, partakers of the benefit. [c] Theſe things teach and exhort. 3. If any man [d] teach otherwiſe, and conſent not [e] to wholſome words, even the words of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and to [f] the doctrine which is according to godlineſs, 4. He is proud, [g] knowing nothing, but † doting about [h] queſtions and ſtrifes of words, [i] whereof cometh envy, ſtrife, railings, evil ſurmiſings, 5. [k] Perverſe diſputings of [l] men of corrupt minds, and deſtitute of the truth, [m] ſuppoſing that gain is godlineſs: from ſuch withdraw thyſelf.

a Eph. vi. 5. Col. iii. 22. 1 Pet. ii. 18.
b Ezek. xxxvi. 23. Tit. ii. 5.
c Chap. iv. 11.
d Chap. i. 3.
e Chap. i. 10. 2 Tim. i. 13. Tit. i. 9.
f Tit. i. 1.
g 1 Cor. viii. 2.
† Gr. ſick.
h Chap. i. 4. & iv. 7.
i 2 Tim. ii. 23. Tit. iii. 9.
k 1 Cor. xi. 16. Chap. i. 6.
l 2 Tim. iii. 8.
m Tit. i. 11. 2 Pet. ii. 3.
n Rom. xvi. 17. 2 Tim. iii. 5.

v. 1—5. The apoſtle lays down,

1. The duty of Chriſtan ſervants. Let as many ſervants as are under the yoke count their own maſters worthy of all honour, reſpect, and dutiful obedience; that the name of God and his doctrine be not blaſphemed, and that unbelievers may never have occaſion to reproach them, as if their religion had made them proud, lazy, or diſobedient. And they that have believing maſters, let them not deſpiſe them, becauſe they are brethren, as if Chriſtianity deſtroyed the diſtinctions of providence, and brought all men on a level; no, but rather do them ſervice, with peculiar ſubmiſſion, delight, diligence, and honeſty, becauſe they are faithful and beloved, partakers of the benefit, ſharing all the bleſſings of the goſpel ſalvation. Note, (1.) The goſpel was never deſigned to deſtroy the diſtinctions God hath been pleaſed to make among men, but to direct every man how to adorn that ſtation in which it hath pleaſed God to call him. (2.) The kindneſs and condeſcenſion of Chriſtian maſters muſt never teach ſervants to preſume, but to treat them with greater reſpect, more affectionate regard, and unimpeached fidelity.

2. He warns Timothy to teach ſteadily theſe truths, and to beware of deceivers. Theſe things teach and exhort. If any man teach otherwiſe, as the judaizing teachers, who ſuggeſt as if it were unlawful for Chriſtian ſlaves to obey their unbelieving maſters; and conſent not to wholſome words, even the words of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and to the doctrine which is according to godlineſs, inculcating all dutiful diſcharge of our relations towards men, as well as piety towards God; he is proud, vainly puffed up with arrogant conceit of his own wiſdom, though in fact knowing nothing as he ought to know; but doting about queſtions and ſtrifes of words, engaged in vain and idle diſputes about matters utterly inſignificant, whereof cometh envy, ſtrife, railings, evil ſurmiſings, perverſe diſputings of men of corrupt minds, and who by ſuch a ſpirit and temper evidently ſhew, that they are deſtitute of the truth, ſuppoſing that gain is godlineſs, ſerving merely their own worldly intereſts, and not the cauſe of Chriſt and immortal ſouls: from ſuch withdraw thyſelf; have no communion with them, nor ſuffer them to aſſemble among the faithful. Note, (1.) The doctrines of the goſpel are doctrines according to godlineſs; and whatever would corrupt vital and practical religion cannot be the words of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. (2.) Proud diſputers muſt needs be far from any true knowledge of that goſpel whoſe firſt injunctions are peace and love. (3.) They who make godlineſs in profeſſion the ladder to earthly gain, will ſhortly find how fearful is their loſs, when death ſhall hurl them into the abyſs of wretchedneſs.

6. But [o] godlineſs with contentment is great gain. 7. For [p] we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. 8. And [q] having food and raiment, let us be therewith content. 9. But [r] they that will be rich, fall into temptation and [s] a ſnare, and into many fooliſh and hurtful luſts, which drown men in deſtruction and perdition. 10. For the love of money is the root of all evil: [t] which while ſome coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themſelves through with many ſorrows. 11. But thou, O [u] man of God, flee theſe things, and follow after righteouſneſs, godlineſs, faith, love, patience, meekneſs. 12. [x] Fight the good fight of faith, [y] lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art alſo called, [z] and haſt profeſſed a good profeſſion before many witneſſes.

[o] Prov. xv. 16. Iſa. xxxiii. 6.
[p] Job i. 21. Pſ. xlix. 17. Eccleſ. v. 15.
[q] Gen. xxviii. 20. Prov. xxx. 8. Phil. iv. 11. Heb. xiii. 5.
[r] Prov. xv. 27. & xx. 21. & xxviii. 20. Mat. xiii. 12. Jam. v. 1.
[s] Chap. iii. 7.
[t] 2 Tim. iv. 10.
[u] 2 Tim. iii. 17.
[x] 1 Cor. ix. 25, 26. Chap. i. 18. 2 Tim. iv. 7.
[y] Phil. iii. 12, 14. Ver. 19.
[z] Heb. xiii. 23.

v. 6—12. From the mention of the abuſes of ſome corrupters of godlineſs, the apoſtle,

1. Cautions Timothy againſt covetouſneſs, and to poſſeſs a contented mind. But godlineſs with contentment is great gain, making the mind happy in every ſtate of life, and under every diſpenſation of providence; and this is the trueſt and moſt ſubſtantial gain even here below, where all our creature comforts are ſo precarious, inſufficient, and periſhing. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out; but muſt return naked to the tomb, as we came from the womb. And therefore having food and raiment, covering for our bodies, and refreſhment ſuch as nature craves, let us be therewith content, nor graſp after more, thankful for the mercies of the day, and truſting the Lord for the proviſion of to-morrow. But they that will be rich, and, inſtead of being ſatisfied with their preſent allotted portion, are determined by every method to add to their ſtore, and have their heart ſet upon wealth as their grand object; they fall into temptation and a ſnare, and become an eaſy prey to the devil, plunging themſelves, in the unhallowed purſuit after riches, into many fooliſh and hurtful luſts, into deceit, fraud, lying, rapine, injuſtice, &c. which drown men in deſtruction and perdition, and both body and ſoul periſh for ever. For the love of money is the root of all evil, and the ſource of every vile and ſcandalous action: which while ſome have coveted after, we have ſeen the dreadful iſſue, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themſelves through with many ſorrows; beſides all their croſſes and vexations, laying up much bitterneſs for themſelves, if they ſhould hereafter be brought to repentance; and if not, treaſuring up wrath againſt the day of wrath. But thou, O man of God, flee theſe things, be warned by others ſad examples, and ſhun with abhorrence all ſuch covetous principles and practices. Note, (1.) There is no true contentment in this world but that which ſprings from real godlineſs. (2). We conſult our trueſt intereſts when our ſouls are our firſt concern. (3.) It is a mortifying reflection to every worldling, how ſhort-lived muſt be his enjoyments, and that he can carry nothing with him to the grave but a ſhroud and a coffin. (4.) Nature is ſatisfied with little, grace with leſs, but covetouſneſs with nothing. (5.) They who will be rich are in the high road to ruin; Satan deſires no fairer mark. (6.) The love of money hath deſtroyed more than any one other vice whatever. (7.) They who, to gain the world, loſe their own ſouls, will prove ſhortly their folly to be great as their ſin.

2. He enjoins him what was his proper purſuit. Follow after righteouſneſs in your tranſactions with men; godlineſs, and holineſs of heart and life; faith, an increaſing meaſure of this divine grace, and approved fidelity in all your converſation; love to God and men; patience under every provocation; and meekneſs, bearing with and gently inſtructing thoſe that oppoſe themſelves: yet, ſhewing withal a becoming zeal for the truth, fight the good fight of faith againſt all oppoſing foes, from earth or hell, or inbred corruption; lay hold on eternal life, earneſtly preſſing towards the goal for the glorious prize, whereunto thou art alſo called by divine grace, as a Chriſtian and an evangeliſt; and haſt profeſſed a good profeſſion before many witneſſes at thy ordination, and in the preſence of thoſe among whom thou haſt preached and ſuffered for the goſpel's ſake. Note, (1.) We are engaged in an arduous warfare, and have need and muſt fight every ſtep to heaven againſt a hoſt of ſpiritual foes which oppoſe our progreſs. (2.) Eternal life, the glorious crown before us, ſhould animate us for every conflict. (3.) The good profeſſion we have once made ſhould engage us with increaſing diligence to approve our fidelity before God and man.

13. [a] I give thee charge in the ſight of God, [b] who quickeneth all things, and before Chriſt Jeſus, [c] who before Pontius Pilate witneſſed a good confeſſion; 14. That thou keep this commandment without ſpot, unrebukeable, [d] until the appearing of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: 15. Which in his times he ſhall ſhew, [e] who is the bleſſed and only Potentate, [f] the King of kings, and Lord of lords; 16. [g] Who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto, [h] whom no man hath ſeen, nor can ſee: [i] to whom be honour and power everlaſting. Amen. 17. Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, [k] nor truſt in uncertain riches, but in [l] the living God, [m] who giveth us richly all things to enjoy: 18. That they do good, that they be [n] rich [o] in good works, [p] ready to diſtribute, [q] willing to communicate; 19. [r] Laying up in ſtore for themſelves a good foundation againſt the time to come, that they may [s] lay hold on eternal life. 20. O Timothy, [t] keep that which is committed to thy truſt, [u] avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppoſitions of ſcience falſly ſo called: 21. Which ſome profeſſing, [x] have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee. Amen.

[a] Chap. v. 21.
[b] Deut. xxxii. 39. 1 Sam. ii. 6. John v. 21.
[c] Mat. xxvii. 11. John xviii. 37.
[d] Phil. i. 6, 10. 1 Theſ. iii. 13. & v. 23.
[e] Chap. i. 11, 17.
[f] Rev. xvii. 14. & xix. 16.
[g] Chap. i. 17.
[h] Ex. xxxiii. 20. John i. 18. 1 John iv. 12.
[i] Jude 25. Rev. i. 6. & vii. 12.
[k] Job xxxi. 24. Pſ. lxii. 10. Mark x. 24.
[l] 1 Theſ. i. 9.
[m] Acts xiv. 17.
[n] Luke xii. 21. Jam. ii. 5.
[o] Tit. iii. 8.
[p] Deut. xv. 7. Rom. xii. 13.
[q] Heb. xiii. 16.
[r] Mat. vi. 20. Luke xii. 33. & xvi. 9.
[s] Ver. 12.
[t] 2 Tim. i. 14. Rev. iii. 3.
[u] Chap. i. 4, 6. & iv. 7. 2 Tim. ii. 16, 23.
[x] Chap. i. 6, 19. 2 Tim. ii. 18.

v. 13—21. The apoſtle concludes,

1. With repeating his ſolemn charge, and enforcing it with the moſt cogent arguments. I charge thee in the ſight of God, who quickeneth all things, the author of life to all his creatures, and the giver of ſpiritual life to his choſen; and before Chriſt Jeſus, whoſe miniſter thou art, and who himſelf before Pontius Pilate witneſſed a good confeſſion, boldly aſſerting his own glorious character and office; that thou keep this commandment without ſpot, unrebukeable, faithful to the ſolemn truſt repoſed in thee, until the appearing of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt at the great day: which in his times, fixed in the eternal counſels, he ſhall ſhew, exactly accompliſhing the promiſe of his coming, which he hath given to his people, according to the glorious names and characters which he bears, who is the bleſſed and only Potentate, to whom all in heaven and earth are ſubject, who hath the ſupreme and univerſal dominion: and, as he is infinitely bleſſed in himſelf, he makes alſo his people happy under his government: the King of kings, and Lord of lords, who all from him derive their power and authority, and to him are accountable; who only hath immortality in and of himſelf, and is the author of it to his creatures, whether angels or men; dwelling in uncreated glory, in the light which no man, in his preſent mortal ſtate, can approach unto; whom no man hath ſeen or can ſee, in the full blaze of his divine perfections and attributes: to whom be honour and power everlaſting aſcribed by all the hoſts of earth and heaven. Amen!

2. He gives him a particular charge to be delivered to the more opulent members of the church. Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, puffed up on their worldly wealth and attainments; nor truſt in uncertain riches as their dependence and rock, ſince theſe are tranſitory poſſeſſions; but in the living God, the only ſubſtantial and abiding good, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy, loading us with his benefits, and allowing us all ſanctified uſe of his creatures: wherefore they who are thus favoured muſt ſee that they do good with their wealth, not abuſing it in luxury and extravagance; but that they be rich in good works, employing their treaſures for the benefit of mankind; ready to give, even unaſked, to the indigent and neceſſitous; willing to communicate of their ſubſtance, without grudging or niggardlineſs; laying up in ſtore for themſelves a good foundation againſt the time to come, diſpoſing of their treaſures in ſuch a way as that they may have treaſure in heaven, and lay hold on eternal life. Note, (1.) Wealth is a talent intruſted with us for the benefit of our brethren: we are ſtewards, and muſt give an account of our profiting to the great Maſter. (2.) Riches are a great temptation to pride; therefore ſuch as have affluence ſhould be often admoniſhed in their high eſtate to keep a humble mind. (3.) They are truly rich who are rich unto God, and improve their abundance to his glory.

3. He warns him, as before, to take heed of deceivers. O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy truſt, the unadulterated goſpel word; avoiding prophane and vain babblings, and oppoſitions of ſcience falſly ſo called, the noiſy talk and proud boaſtings of judaizing teachers, pretending to high attainments in ſcience, when in fact utter ſtrangers to true wiſdom; which ſome profeſſing, have erred concerning the faith, and apoſtatiſed from the truth. Note, That ſcience which draws men from the ſimplicity of the goſpel, however proud men may value themſelves thereon, will be proved at laſt to be the moſt egregious folly.

4. He gives him his parting benediction. Grace be with thee, and that ſhall preſerve thee from all error, and ſtrengthen thee for the faithful diſcharge of the miniſtry. Amen!

THE
EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
Upon the SECOND EPISTLE of
St. PAUL to TIMOTHY.

THIS ſecond epiſtle Paul wrote to Timothy from Rome, when he was a priſoner there, and in danger of his life. By theſe words, I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand, chap. iv. ver. vi. it appears that his removal out of this world, in his own apprehenſion, was not far off, eſpecially conſidering the rage and malice of his perſecutors; and that he had been brought before the emperor Nero, which he calls his firſt anſwer when no man ſtood with him, but all men forſook him. chap. iv. ver. 16. And interpreters agree that this was the laſt epiſtle he wrote.

Where Timothy now was, is not certain: The ſcope of this epiſtle ſomewhat differs from that of the former; not ſo much relating to his office as an evangeliſt, as to his perſonal conduct and behaviour.

CHAP. I.

After this introduction, ver. 1, 2. we have, 1. Paul's ſincere love to Timothy, ver. 3—6. 2. Divers exhortations given to him, ver. 6—15. 3. He ſpeaks of Phygellus and Hermogenes, with others, and cloſes with Oneſiphorus, ver. 15, to the end.

1. PAUL an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt by the will of God, according to the promiſe of life, which is in Chriſt Jeſus; 2. To Timothy [a] my dearly beloved ſon: [b] Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. 3. [c] I thank God, [d] whom I ſerve from my forefathers with a pure conſcience, that [e] without ceaſing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day: 4. Greatly deſiring to ſee thee, being mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy: 5. When I call to remembrance [f] the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt firſt in thy grandmother Lois, and [g] thy mother Eunice; and I am perſuaded that in thee alſo.

[a] 1 Cor. iv. 7. 1 Tim. i. 2, 18.
[b] Gal. i. 3. 1 Theſ. i. 2.
[c] Rom. i. 8. Eph. i. 16.
[d] Acts xxii. 3. & xxiii. 1. & xxiv. 14. Rom. i. 9.
[e] 1 Theſ. i. 2. & iii. 10.
[f] 1 Tim. i. 5.
[g] Acts xvi. 1.

v. 1—5. St. Paul opens this epiſtle,

1. With his apoſtolic ſalutation to Timothy. Paul an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt by the will of God, acting under a divine commiſſion, according to the promiſe of life, which is in Chriſt Jeſus, who hath for his people brought life and immortaliiy to light by his goſpel; To Timothy, my dearly beloved ſon, begotten by me in the goſpel, and ſharing my warmeſt paternal affection: Grace, mercy, and peace, with all the unutterable bleſſings therein contained, be with thee, from God the Father, and Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. Note, (1.) True miniſters of Chriſt feel the tendereſt regard for their ſpiritual children, and ceaſe not inceſſantly to pray that the beſt of bleſſings may deſcend upon them. (2.) All our mercies come to us as the free gift of God in Jeſus Chriſt, whether the preſent pardon, peace, and grace which we receive here, or the promiſe of immortal life and glory which we expect hereafter.

2. He thanks God for him. I thank God, whom I ſerve from my forefathers, as a true child of Abraham, and deſcendant of the patriarchs, with a pure conſcience, purged now from dead works by a Redeemer's blood, that without ceaſing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day, which I ſtatedly offer at a throne of grace morning and evening: greatly deſiring to ſee thee, being mindful of thy tears, and the diſtreſs which appeared at our laſt parting, that I may be filled with joy, if the Lord ſo pleaſes, by our happy meeting again: and it the more engages my heart to thee, when I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, and which hath been proved on ſo many occaſions, which dwelt firſt in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am perſuaded that in thee alſo, who treadeſt in the ſame ſteps. Note (1.) It is a ſingular bleſſing to have religious parents, for though grace comes not by education, yet God often bleſſes effectually their labours, who ſtudy to bring up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. (2.) Where unfeigned faith dwells, there every good fruit and gracious diſpoſition will naturally be produced.

6. Wherefore I put thee in remembrance, [h] that thou ſtir up the gift of God which is in thee, by the putting on of my hands. 7. For [i] God hath not given us the ſpirit of fear; [k] but of power, and of love, and of a ſound mind. 8. [l] Be not thou therefore aſhamed of [m] the teſtimony of our Lord, nor of me [n] his priſoner: but [o] be thou partaker of the afflictions of the goſpel, according to the power of God: 9. [p] Who hath ſaved us, and called us with an holy calling, [q] not according to our works, but [r] according to his own purpoſe [s] and grace which was given us in Chriſt Jeſus [t] before the world began, 10. But [u] is now made manifeſt by the appearing of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, [x] who hath aboliſhed death,

[h] 1 Tim. iv. 14.
[i] Rom. viii. 15.
[k] Acts i. 8. & ix. 29. & xiv. 3.
[l] Rom. i. 16.
[m] 1 Cor. i. 6. & ii. 1.
[n] Eph. iii. 1. & iv. 1.
[o] Col. i. 24.
[p] Tit. iii. 4.
[q] Rom. iii. 20. & ix. 11. Tit. iii. 5.
[r] Rom. viii. 28.
[s] Eph. ii. 8.
[t] Rom. xvi. 25. Eph. i. 4. & iii. 11. Tit. i. 2.
[u] Rom. xvi. 26. Col. i. 26.
[x] 1 Cor. xv. 54, 55. Heb. ii. 14.

death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the goſpel: 11. [y] Whereunto I am appointed a preacher and an apoſtle, and a teacher of the Gentiles. 12. [z] For the which cauſe I alſo ſuffer theſe things; nevertheleſs I am not aſhamed: for [a] I know whom I have believed, and I am perſuaded that he is able [b] to keep that which I have committed unto him [c] againſt that day. 13. [d] Hold faſt [e] the form of ſound words, which thou haſt heard of me, [f] in faith and love which is in Chriſt Jeſus. 14. [g] That good thing which was committed unto thee, keep by the holy Ghoſt [h] which dwelleth in us.

y Acts ix. 15. 1 Tim. ii. 7.
z Eph. iii. 1. Chap. ii. 10.
a 1 Pet. iv. 19.
b 1 Tim. vi. 20.
c Chap. iv. 8.
d Chap. iii. 14. Tit. i. 9. 1 John ii. 24.
e Rom. vi. 17.
f 1 Tim. i. 14.
g 1 Tim. vi. 20.
h Rom. viii. 11.

v. 6—14. The apoſtle here,

1. Stirs up his dear ſon to the vigorous exerciſe of his miniſtry. Wherefore I put thee in remembrance, that thou ſtir up the gift of God which is in thee, blowing the embers of divine love and zeal into a flame, and making the moſt profitable uſe of thoſe diſtinguiſhed ſpiritual gifts which God hath beſtowed upon thee, by the putting on of my hands. For God hath not given us the ſpirit of fear, that we ſhould be diſcouraged by oppoſition, but of power, to bear up againſt every enemy undiſmayed, and of love to Chriſt and men's ſouls, which all the waters of perſecution cannot quench, and of a ſound mind, ſettled in the doctrines of truth, ſteady in attachment to them, and willing chearfully to ſuffer for them. May ſuch a ſpirit be in every miniſter!

2. He exhorts him boldly to take up his croſs. Be not thou therefore aſhamed of the teſtimony of our Lord, nor of me his priſoner, for they are honourable bonds, which are borne for the ſake of Jeſus and his cauſe: but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the goſpel, ſympathizing with thoſe that ſuffer, and willing to endure any perſecutions on account of it, according to the power of God, which is engaged for the ſupport of all thoſe who are faithful. Note, (1.) All Chriſtians, and miniſters eſpecially, muſt prepare for the croſs, and expect it. (2.) They who dare commit their all to God, and look up to him for help, ſhall experience his almighty aſſiſtance in every time of need.

3. He ſuggeſts the ſtrongeſt motives to engage his fidelity to God and his goſpel. Who hath ſaved us with an everlaſting ſalvation in the ſon of his love Chriſt Jeſus, and hath called us with an holy calling by the word of his goſpel, that we might be ſeparate from a world that lieth in wickedneſs, and ſanctified for his honour and glory, not according to our works, for the ſake of any goodneſs foreſeen in us, or works done by us; for all that we were, and could do, was an abomination in his ſight; but our ſalvation was according to his own ſovereign purpoſe and grace, which was, in God's eternal deſign and predeſtination, given us in Chriſt, the head and repreſentative of his elect, before the world began, or any creature had their being, but is now made manifeſt by the appearing of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, who, coming in the human nature, hath made the richeſt diſcoveries of God's grace to periſhing ſinners; and, by dying upon the croſs as their ſubſtitute, hath aboliſhed death, delivering them from the wages of ſin, the curſe of the law, and all the fearful conſequences thereof in time and eternity, and hath brought life and immortality to light by the goſpel, giving a brighter and clearer revelation of the eternal bleſſedneſs prepared for body and ſoul in a better world, and of the way which only leads thereto, than had ever before been made to the ſons of men. Note, (1.) All who are effectually called of God, experience the power of his Spirit upon their hearts as a Spirit of holineſs. (2.) Thoſe who are ſaved by grace in time, were ſaved in the divine purpoſe from eternity, and their ſtability and perſeverance ſecured in Chriſt Jeſus before the world began. (3.) Every redeemed ſoul may regard death as a vanquiſhed foe; ſince the ſting of ſin is taken out, we have nothing to fear, but every thing to hope, whilſt in the grave we ſee the golden gates of life and immortality unfolded, and the bright beams of everlaſting glory illuminating the dark valley of the ſhadow of death.

4. He propoſes to him his own example. Whereunto I am appointed a preacher, and an apoſtle, and a teacher of the Gentiles, and count it my higheſt honour, for the which cauſe I alſo ſuffer theſe things, being now the priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt for my fidelity in maintaining the privileges of the Gentiles; nevertheleſs I am not aſhamed, neither of the goſpel, nor of the chain he wore for the ſake of it, for I know whom I have believed, the glories of his perſon, and the riches of his grace; and I am perſuaded that he is able, as his promiſes aſſure me he is willing, to keep that which I have committed to him, even the precious depoſit of my immortal ſoul, againſt that day, that great day of his appearing and glory. Note, (1.) Though we ſuffer for the goſpel, we need not be aſhamed; the cauſe will glorioſly ſupport us. (2.) What we have committed to Chriſt is ſafe for eternity; he never hath failed thoſe that truſt him: bleſſed and happy the ſoul that can ſay, I know whom I have believed.

5. He exhorts him to fidelity. Hold faſt the form of ſound words, the ſacred, unadulterated oracles of God, and the pure doctrines of the goſpel, which thou haſt heard of me, in faith and love which is in Chriſt Jeſus; copy the patern of my preaching, eſpecially in theſe fundamental articles; and as thy faith in and love to the Redeemer hath appeared, with all fidelity and warm affection to the ſouls of men urge upon them the ſame bleſſed truths. That good thing which was committed unto thee, keep by the Holy Ghoſt which dwelleth in us; be faithful to the ſolemn truſt committed to thee, and by the power of the Holy Ghoſt, who abides in the hearts of all his people; with perſevering diligence maintain the purity of the goſpel. Note, (1.) Jeſus is the glorious object of our faith and love, and to him ſhould our hearts for ever cleave. (2.) The Lord muſt keep us, or we cannot keep ourſelves; and the in-dwelling energy of the Holy Ghoſt alone can enable us for the diſcharge of every ſacred truſt which he hath committed to us.

15. This thou knoweſt, that [i] all they which are in Aſia be turned away from me; of whom are Phygellus and Hermogenes. 16. The Lord give mercy unto [k] the houſe of Oneſiphorus; for he oft refreſhed me, and was not aſhamed of [l] my chain. 17. But when he was in Rome, he ſought me out very diligently, and found me. 18. The Lord grant unto him that he may find mercy of the Lord in that day: And in how many things he miniſtred unto me at Epheſus thou knoweſt very well.

i Chap. iv. 10, 16.
k Chap. iv. 19.
l Acts xxviii. 20.

v. 15—18. To engage his dear ſon Timothy's fidelity, he mentions the apoſtacy of ſome as a warning, and the ſteadfaſtneſs of Oneſiphorus as an encouragement to him,

1. The apoſtacy of ſome. This thou knoweſt, that all they which are in Aſia are turned away from me, either the generality of the Aſiatic churches and miniſters, or rather ſuch of the Aſiatics as were at Rome, who were aſhamed of his chain, and diſowned him in his priſon, of whom are Phygellus and Hermogenes. Note, It is one of the bittereſt pangs of ſuffering, to feel ourſelves then deſerted by thoſe from whom we might reaſonably, from their profeſſions, have expected the greateſt comfort and ſupport.

2. The ſteadfaſtneſs of Oneſiphorus. The Lord give mercy unto the houſe of Oneſiphorus; probably he was an Epheſian, and abſent from his family with the apoſtle, whom he attended and ſerved with great fidelity and zeal, and therefore the grateful Paul in return repays him with his prayers, begging that the choiceſt bleſſings of God might deſcend upon him and his; for he oft refreſhed me with ſeaſonable viſits, and ſupplies of neceſſaries, and was not aſhamed of my chain, when cowardice and fear of reproach baſely deterred others from coming near me. But when he was in Rome, he ſought me out very diligently, and found me. The Lord grant unto him that he may find mercy of the Lord in that day, when Jeſus ſhall come to reward every kindneſs ſhewn to his ſervants, eſpecially to thoſe who are ſuffering for righteouſneſs ſake. And in how many things he miniſtred unto me at Epheſus, thou knoweſt very well. Note, (1.) When we can make no other return to our kind friends, at leaſt in our prayers we are bound to recommend them to the Saviour's mercy, and beg him to reward them. (2.) That day! How ſhould it be ever in our view, that great deciſive day, when our eternity of happineſs or miſery muſt be determined! (3.) We have nothing to cry for at God's hands but mercy; living or dying, the beſt have no merit to plead, but muſt expect eternal life as the gift of God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

CHAP. II.

In this chapter, 1. He encourages him in his work, ſhewing him from whence he muſt fetch help, ver. 1. 2. He muſt take care of a ſucceſſion in the miniſtry, ver. 2. 3. He exhorts him to conſtancy and perſeverance in this work, &c. ver. 3—15. 4. He muſt ſhun profane and vain bablings, ver. 16, 17, 18. for they will be pernicious and miſchievous. 5. He ſpeaketh of the foundation of God which ſtandeth ſure, ver. 19—21. 6. What he is to avoid, youthful luſts, and fooliſh and unlearned queſtions; and what to do, ver. 22. to the end.

1. THOU therefore, [a] my ſon, [b] be ſtrong in the grace that is in Jeſus Chriſt. 2. And [c] the things that thou haſt heard of me among many witneſſes, [d] the ſame commit thou to faithful men, who ſhall be [e] able to teach others alſo. 3. [f] Thou therefore endure hardneſs, [g] as a good ſoldier of Jeſus Chriſt. 4. [h] No man that warreth entangleth himſelf with the affairs of this life; that he may pleaſe him who hath choſen him to be a ſoldier. 5. And [h] if a man alſo ſtrive for maſteries, yet is he not crowned except he ſtrive lawfully. 6. [i] The huſbandman that laboureth, muſt be firſt partaker of the fruits. 7. Conſider what I ſay; and the Lord give thee underſtanding in all things.

a 1 Tim. i. 2.
b Eph. vi. 10.
c Chap. i. 13. & iii. 14.
d Tit. i. 5.
e 1 Tim. iii. 2. Tit. i. 9.
f Chap. I. 8. & iv. 5.
g 1 Tim. i. 18.
h 1 Cor. ix. 25.
i 1 Cor. ix. 10.

v. 1—7. The apoſtle, in this chapter, continues his exhortations. Thou therefore, my ſon, be ſtrong in the grace that is in Jeſus Chriſt, ſenſible of thy own weakneſs, and dependent upon him who alone can enable thee for the arduous work. And the things that thou haſt heard of me among many witneſſes, publickly declared, and proved by numerous teſtimonies of the law and prophets, the ſame commit thou to faithful men, whoſe ſincerity and abilities have been tried and approved, who ſhall be able to teach others alſo, and preſerve the glorious truths of goſpel grace unadulterated. Thou therefore endure hardneſs, all thoſe perſecutions and afflictions, to which, in the goſpel warfare, thou muſt be expoſed, acquitting thyſelf as a good ſoldier of Jeſus Chriſt, fighting manfully under his banners with ſuch courage, patience and perſeverance, as may effectually ſecure the crown. No man that warreth entangleth himſelf with the affairs of this life; his military ſervice is incompatible with the purſuit of any other trade or profeſſion; he muſt be at his General's call, and ever ready to obey his orders, that he may pleaſe him who hath choſen him to be a ſoldier; ſo muſt every miniſter of Chriſt be diſengaged from worldly concerns, that he may be wholly employed in the ſervice of the great Captain of our ſalvation, and make it his whole ſtudy and care to pleaſe him, and advance the intereſts of his kingdom. And if a man ſtrive for maſteries in the Olympic games, yet is he not crowned with that fading crown the reward of victory, except he ſtrive lawfully, according to the rules preſcribed; and much more ſhould they, who have before them a crown of glory incorruptible, exert every effort according to the orders of their divine Maſter, to win the eternal prize. The huſbandman that laboureth muſt be firſt partaker of the fruits, or the huſbandman muſt labour firſt before he partakes of the fruits; ſo muſt the faithful miniſter labour for the good of immortal ſouls, and patiently wait for the ſucceſs of his miniſtry, and the expected reward in the day of Chriſt. Conſider what I ſay; and the Lord give thee underſtanding in all things, enabling thee to make deep application of theſe things to thy own ſoul; and, as a valiant ſoldier, a brave combatant, and laborious huſbandman, to acquit thyſelf in thy miniſterial office. Note, Let all who look to the miniſtry conſider theſe things, and count the coſt before they preſume to appear a candidate for the ſervice.

8. Remember that Jeſus Chriſt [k] of the ſeed of David [l] was raiſed from the dead, [m] according to my goſpel: 9. [n] Wherein I ſuffer trouble as an evil doer, even [o] unto bonds; but the word of God is not bound. 10. Therefore [p] I endure all things for the elect's ſake, that they may alſo obtain the ſalvation which is in Chriſt Jeſus, with eternal glory. 11. It is a faithful ſaying: for [q] if we be dead with him, we ſhall alſo live with him: 12. [r] If we ſuffer, we ſhall alſo reign with him: [s] if we deny him, he alſo will deny us: 13. [t] If we believe not, yet he abideth faithful; [u] he cannot deny himſelf.

k Pſ. cxxxii. 11. Rom. i. 3.
l Acts ii. 24.
m Rom. ii. 16.
n Chap. i. 12.
o Eph. iii. 1. Phil. i. 7. Col. iv. 3, 18.
p Eph. iii. 13. Col. i. 24.
q Rom. vi. 5, 8. 2 Cor. iv. 10.
r Rom. viii. 17. 1 Pet. iv. 13.
s Mat. x. 33. Mark viii. 38.
t Rom. iii. 3. & ix. 6.
u Num. xxiii. 19.

v. 8—13. To encourage him boldly to ſuffer, the apoſtle ſuggeſts,

1. The grand foundation of their hope, as built upon the reſurrection of Jeſus. Remember that Jeſus Chriſt, the promiſed Meſſiah, of the ſeed of David, in his human nature, was raiſed from the dead, ſhewing thereby the complete redemption which he had obtained for his people, according to my goſpel which I preached unto you.

2. He ſets before him his own example: Wherein, that is, for preaching which goſpel, I ſuffer trouble as an evil doer, even unto bonds; but the word of God is not bound: even in my priſon the goſpel ſtill runs and is glorified in the converſion of many ſouls, and others boldly labour and at large, though I am confined. Therefore, dependent upon the power of God, I ſuffer all theſe things for the elect's ſake, willing to endure, if I am called thereunto, even death itſelf, that they may alſo obtain (confirmed in the faith by my unſhaken ſteadfaſtneſs in ſuffering for it) the ſalvation which is in Jeſus Chriſt, with eternal glory, of which, from firſt to laſt, he is the author, finiſher, and beſtower, on all his choſen, and they are wholly indebted for it to his ſovereign grace and love. Note, (1.) A noble example is a powerful encouragement to follow on. (2.) Though perſecutors may confine the miniſters, the word of God will ſtill work effectually on as many as the Lord will call. (3.) All the elect ſhall infallibly obtain eternal ſalvation, for Chriſt hath ſecured it for them, and will bring them to be with himſelf where he is, that they may behold his glory.

3. The reward of faithful ſuffering ſhould engage him boldly to take up the croſs. It is a faithful ſaying: for if we be dead with him, as vitally united to him in his death, or if called to die for his cauſe as he died for us, we ſhall alſo live with him, planted alſo in the likeneſs of his reſurrection, and raiſed up to immortal life and glory: if we ſuffer for him, we ſhall reign with him, ſitting down on his throne: but if we prove faithleſs, and deny him in the hour of temptation, he alſo will deny and diſown us in the great day of his appearing: if we believe not, yet he abideth faithful; his promiſes and threatnings will ſurely be accompliſhed, whether men believe them or not: he is immutable, and cannot deny himſelf, or falſify his word. Note, (1.) 'Tis our privilege to ſuffer, when we ſee that the iſſue will be ſo glorious. (2.) The hope of life with Jeſus ſhould raiſe us ſuperior to all the fears of death, though in its moſt tremendous form. (3.) They who, for any worldly intereſt or advantage, or to avoid ſhame, reproach, or ſuffering, diſown the Lord Jeſus, his goſpel and ſuffering ſervants, will bear in eternity their burden, and be driven from his preſence with everlaſting contempt.

14. Of theſe things put them in remembrance, [x] charging them before the Lord, [y] that they ſtrive not about words to no profit, but to the ſubverting of the hearers. 15. Study to ſhew thyſelf approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be aſhamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. 16. But [z] ſhun profane and vain bablings, for they will increaſe unto more ungodlineſs. 17. And their word will eat as doth a † canker: of whom is [a] Hymeneus and Philetus; 18. Who [b] concerning the truth have erred, ſaying [c] that the reſurrection is paſt already, and overthrow the faith of ſome.

x 1 Tim. v. 21. & vi. 13. Chap. iv. 1.
y 1 Tim. vi. 4.
z 1 Tim. i. 4. & iv. 7. & vi. 20. Tit. iii. 9.
† Or gangrene.
a 1 Tim. i. 20.
b 1 Tim. vi. 21.
c 1 Cor. xv. 12.

v. 14—18. The apoſtle proceeds to give further exhortations to Timothy.

1. To ſeek the edification of thoſe under his charge. Of theſe things put them in remembrance, charge them, with all ſolemnity and authority, before the Lord, as in his preſence, that they ſtrive not about words to no profit, but to the ſubverting of the hearers, drawing them from the purity of the goſpel, inſtead of promoting godly edifying. Note, Any trivial matter will afford occaſion of ſtrife to a contentious ſpirit.

2. He enjoins him to ſhew himſelf an able miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt. Study to ſhew thyſelf approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be aſhamed, diligent, faithful, laborious, ſkilful, rightly dividing the word of truth, and giving to each his portion in due ſeaſon, according to the various caſes and conditions of the people's ſouls. But ſhun profane and vain bablings, the dreams of the judaizing teachers, for they will increaſe unto more ungodlineſs, and lead to the moſt pernicious errors in principles and practice. And their word will eat as doth a canker, corroding the hearts of the hearers, and threatning their eternal death: of whom is Hymeneus and Philetus, the chief heretical ſeducers; who concerning the truth have erred, ſaying, that the reſurrection is paſt already; probably they aſſerted, that the reſurrection was only myſtical and ſpiritual, not of the body but of the ſoul; and have overthrown the faith of ſome. Note, (1.) Error is ſpreading as a gangrene; and, tho' it may appear little at firſt, threatens the moſt fatal conſequences. (2.) They who love to hear themſelves talk, will be ſure to prove the truth of that ſcripture, that in the multitude of words there wanteth not folly. (3.) A true miniſter will labour to ſpeak ever to the purpoſe, not curious about a fine harangue, but careful to apply the word of truth to the conſciences of his hearers.

19. Nevertheleſs [d] the foundation of God ſtandeth ſure, having this ſeal, [e] The Lord knoweth them that are his: And, Let every one that nameth the name of Chriſt depart from iniquity. 20. But in a great houſe there are not only veſſels of gold and of ſilver, but alſo of wood, and of earth; and [f] ſome to honour, and ſome to diſhonour. 21. [g] If a man therefore purge himſelf from theſe, he ſhall be a veſſel unto honour, ſanctified and meet for the maſter's uſe, and [h] prepared unto every good work.

d Mat. xxiv. 24. 1 John ii. 19.
e Nah. i. 7. John x. 14, 27. Num. xvi. 5.
f Rom. ix. 21.
g Iſa. lii. 11.
h Chap. iii. 17.

v. 19—21. Among all the errors of deceivers, this is nevertheleſs our comfort:

1. That the foundation of God ſtandeth ſure; the faith of God's elect can never be deſtroyed, however many falſe profeſſors prove apoſtates; and God's deſigns of grace towards them cannot be fruſtrated by any devices of the moſt ſubtle deceivers, for their ſtability is ſecured, having this ſeal, The Lord knoweth them that are his, and embraces them with the arms of everlaſting love, from which neither men nor devils can pluck them: and, in conſequence of his ſealing his people unto the day of redemption, this is his expectation from them, and will be their practice, Let every one that nameth the name of Chriſt depart from iniquity, and by the fruits of ſanctification prove the certainty of their election.

2. But as in a great houſe there are not only veſſels of gold and of ſilver, but alſo of wood, and of earth; and ſome to honour, and ſome to diſhonour, ſo it need not be thought ſtrange, that in the viſible church, whilſt ſome profeſſors adorn the goſpel, others appear a ſcandal to the name they bear, a diſhonour to the Redeemer, and will, at the laſt, be rejected by him. If a man therefore purge himſelf from theſe errors and practices of the ſeducing teachers, he ſhall be a veſſel unto honour, ſanctified and meet for the maſter's uſe, and prepared unto every good work, employed by him on earth with approbation, and after having finiſhed the work which he hath given them to do below, ſhall be removed to ſhine in his better temple of eternal glory above. Lord, may my lot be with theſe!

22. Flee alſo youthful luſts: [i] but follow righteouſneſs, faith, charity, peace, with them [k] that call on the

i 1 Tim. vi. 11.
k Acts ix. 14. 1 Cor. i. 2.

Lord [l] out of a pure heart. 23. But [m] fooliſh and unlearned queſtions avoid, knowing that they do gender ſtrifes. 24. And [n] the ſervant of the Lord muſt not ſtrive; but be gentle unto all men, [o] apt to teach, † patient, 25. [p] In meekneſs inſtructing thoſe that oppoſe themſelves; [q] if God peradventure will give them repentance [r] to the acknowledging of the truth; 26. And that they may ‡ recover themſelves out of [s] the ſnare of the devil, who are taken § captive by him at his will.

l 1 Tim. i. 5.
m 1 Tim. i. 4. & iv. 7. Tit. iii. 9.
n Tit. iii. 2.
o 1 Tim. iii. 2. Tit. i. 9.
† Or forbearing.
p Gal. vi. 1. 1 Pet. iii. 15.
q Acts viii. 22.
r 1 Tim. ii. 4.
‡ Gr. awake.
s 1 Tim. iii. 7.
§ Gr. alive.

v. 22—26. Some perſonal directions are here given the young evangeliſt.

1. Flee youthful luſts, not merely thoſe of the fleſh, but the more dangerous ones of pride, love of pre-eminence, and popular applauſe, thoſe fatal rocks againſt which ſo many make ſhipwreck, and need be ſhunned with peculiar care. But,

2. Follow righteouſneſs towards God and men, faith, charity, peace, with all the other train of heavenly tempers which abide in them who call on the Lord out of a pure heart. Note, They who are Chriſtians indeed, are conſtant at a throne of grace, and, in purity of heart and life, prove their profeſſions ſincere.

3. But fooliſh and unlearned queſtions avoid, knowing that they do gender ſtrifes, and open a field of endleſs and unprofitable controverſy. And the ſervant of the Lord muſt not ſtrive; the follower of the Lamb of God ſhould copy the pattern of his meekneſs, not quarrelſome, but be gentle unto all men, apt to teach in the moſt inoffenſive way, patient under the provocations of the moſt untractable, and the prejudices of the weak. In meekneſs obſtructing thoſe that oppoſe themſelves againſt the goſpel doctrines; mildly arguing, and gently remonſtrating, deſirous to win them by love, and overcome them with kindneſs; if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth, as it is in Jeſus; and that they may recover themſelves out of the ſnare of the devil, who are taken captive by him at his will, as birds in the ſnare of the fowler, where they muſt lie and periſh, unleſs Divine Grace breaks the ſnare, and delivers the miſerable ſoul. Note, (1.) Nothing is more neceſſary for a miniſter than unwearied patience, and meekneſs. (2.) We muſt labour for the ſouls of men, but God only can give them repentance. (3.) The goſpel word is the great inſtrument which the Lord employs for the converſion of the heart. (4.) They are the vileſt of ſlaves who are led at the devil's beck to the ſervice of divers luſts and pleaſures; and happy is it for the ſoul that is delivered from this dreadful ſervitude by the power of Divine Grace, and brought into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God.

CHAP. III.

He foretels Timothy what the laſt days would be, with the reaſons thereof, ver. 1—9. 2. Preſcribes various remedies againſt them, ver. 10. to the end, particularly his own example; and the knowledge of the holy ſcriptures, which are able to make us wiſe unto ſalvation, and will be the beſt antidote againſt the corruptions of the times we live in.

1. THIS know alſo, that [a] in the laſt days perilous times ſhall come. 2. For men ſhall be lovers of their own ſelves, [b] covetous, [c] boaſters, proud, blaſphemers, diſobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, 3. Without natural affection, [d] truce-breakers, † falſe accuſers, incontinent, fierce, deſpiſers of thoſe that are good, 4. Traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleaſures more than lovers of God; 5. [e] Having a form of godlineſs, but denying the power thereof: [f] from ſuch alſo turn away.

a 1 Tim. iv. 1. 2 Pet. iii. 3. Jude 18.
b 2 Pet. ii. 3. Jude 11.
c Jude 16.
d Rom. i. 31.
† Or devils.
e Mat. vii. 15. Tit. i. 16.
f 2 Theſ. iii. 6.

v. 1—5. The apoſtle apprizes Timothy of the dangerous days which approached, that he might not be ſurprized when the offences came. This know alſo, that in the laſt days perilous times ſhall come, when ſad corruptions, creeping into the church, ſhall make it difficult to preſerve a pure conſcience. For men ſhall be lovers of their own ſelves, wholly devoted to the purſuits of their worldly honour and intereſts; covetous, inſatiate after filthy lucre; proud, and vain-glorious boaſters; blaſphemers of God and man; diſobedient to parents; unthankful to their benefactors; unholy in heart and converſation; without natural affection, which appears even in brutes; truce-breakers, perfidious to the moſt ſolemn engagements; falſe accuſers, like devils incarnate, blackening, with every opprobious calumny, their opponents; incontinent, indulging every beſtial appetite; fierce and furious in their tempers; deſpiſers of thoſe that are good, and treating men, far their betters, with contempt; traitors, falſe to their truſts, betraying their neareſt friends; heady, driving furiouſly in their wicked courſes, impatient of controul; high-minded, puffed up with a vain conceit of their own ſuperiority; lovers of pleaſures more than lovers of God; and what is the aggravation of all their other abominations, making great pretenſions to piety, having a form of godlineſs, and affecting rigid attachment to the externals of worſhip, but denying the power of it, real enemies to vital religion: from ſuch turn away, and ſhun them as the plague.

Theſe corruptions began in the Gnoſticks, which in the apoſtle's days appeared, and the perilous times advanced to their heighth, when the Roman pontiffs, after a train of diabolical practices, raiſed their blaſphemous hierarchy, and conſecrated their abominations. And to the papal apoſtacy are all theſe characters ſtrikingly applicable.

6. For [g] of this ſort are they which creep into houſes, and lead captive ſilly women laden with ſins, led away with divers luſts, 7. Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth. 8. [h] Now as Jannes and Jambres withſtood Moſes, ſo do theſe alſo reſiſt the truth: [i] men of corrupt minds, [k] reprobate concerning the faith. 9. But they ſhall proceed no further; for their folly ſhall be manifeſt unto all men, [l] as theirs alſo was.

g Mat. xxiii. 14. Tit. i. 11.
h Ex. vii. 11.
i 1 Tim. vi. 5.
k Tit. i. 16.
l Ex. vii. 12. & viii. 18. & ix. 11.

v. 6—9. The apoſtle proceeds,

1. To point out the artful and pernicious practices of the ſeducers. For of this ſort are they which creep into houſes, with every wheedling art, and lead captive ſilly women laden with ſins, led away with divers luſts, impoſing upon them with flattering ſpeeches, and gaining them to their party, ever learning of theſe vain teachers, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth, but bewildered in the endleſs mazes of error. Now as Jannes and Jambres withſtood Moſes, ſetting up their pretended miracles in oppoſition to his divine commiſſion, ſo do theſe alſo reſiſt the truth of the goſpel: men of the like corrupt minds as theſe Egyptian ſorcerers, reprobate concerning the faith, rejected and abhorred of God.

2. He foretels that all their efforts ſhould be impotent. But they ſhall proceed no further than the magicians did, nor be able to deceive the elect; for an effectual check ſhall be given to them, and their folly ſhall be manifeſt unto all men, as theirs alſo was, and all their lying miracles ſhall be detected. Note, Error may, for a time, prevail, but truth ſhall finally be triumphant.

10. But thou † haſt fully known my doctrine, manner of life, purpoſe, faith, long-ſuffering, charity, patience, 11. Perſecutions, afflictions which came unto me [m] at Antioch, [n] at Iconium, [o] at Lyſtra: what perſecutions I endured: but [p] out of them all the Lord delivered me. 12. Yea, and [q] all that will live godly in Chriſt Jeſus ſhall ſuffer perſecution. 13. [r] But evil men and ſeducers ſhall wax worſe and worſe, deceiving and being deceived.

† Or haſt been a diligent follower. Phil. ii. 22.
m Acts xiii. 50.
n Acts xiv. 5.
o Acts xiv. 19.
p Pſ. xxxiv. 19. 2 Cor. i. 10.
q Acts xiv. 22. 1 Theſ. iii. 3.
r 2 Theſ. ii. 11.

v. 10—13. Nothing could better ſerve to guard Timothy againſt theſe ſeducers than the ſtriking contraſt between their conduct and that of the bleſſed Paul.

1. He reminds him of what he had ſeen. But thou haſt fully known my doctrine, and the uniform tenor of my preaching; my exemplary manner of life, ſteady purpoſe to advance God's glory and the good of men's ſouls, unſhaken faith, fervent charity, unwearied patience, amidſt the many and grievous perſecutions, afflictions which came unto me at Antioch, at Iconium, at Lyſtra: what perſecutions I endured: but out of them all the Lord delivered me. With ſuch an example Timothy ſhould be animated to fidelity, and might ſurely expect the ſame ſupports and deliverances.

2. He informs him that ſuffering muſt be every Chriſtian's lot. Yea, and all that will live godly in Chriſt Jeſus ſhall ſuffer perſecution, of one kind or other, from mockery to martyrdom. There is indeed a godlineſs in form that the world ſpeaks well of; but to be godly in Chriſt Jeſus, in ſpirit and temper conformed to him, will ever render us abhorred of a world that lieth in wickedneſs.

3. He predicts the fatal end of theſe deceivers. But evil men and ſeducers ſhall wax worſe and worſe, hurried on from one exceſs of wickedneſs to another, deceiving and being deceived, till, having filled up the meaſure of their iniquities, they periſh with the arch-deceiver in everlaſting burnings.

14. But [s] continue thou in the things which thou haſt learned and haſt been aſſured of, knowing of whom thou haſt learned them: 15. And that from a child thou haſt known the holy ſcriptures, [t] which are able to make thee wiſe unto ſalvation, through faith which is in Chriſt Jeſus. 16. [u] All ſcripture is given by inſpiration of God, [x] and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for inſtruction in righteouſneſs: 17. [y] That the man of God may be perfect, [z] thoroughly furniſhed unto all good works.

s Chap. i. 13.
t John v. 39.
u 2 Pet. i. 21.
x Rom. xv. 4.
y 1 Tim. vi. 11.
z Chap. i. 21.

v. 14—17. As he would be expoſed to great temptations, the apoſtle exhorts him to cleave to the ſcriptures, as the only infallible guide to truth.

But continue thou in the things which thou haſt learned, and haſt been aſſured of, the pure and unadulterated doctrines of the goſpel, which, on the moſt ſatisfying evidence thou haſt believed, knowing of whom thou haſt learned them, even from me, divinely commiſſioned from the great Redeemer: and that from a child thou haſt known the holy ſcriptures, early initiated in theſe ſacred records, which are able to make thee wiſe unto ſalvation, through faith which is in Chriſt Jeſus, who is the ſum and ſubſtance of the whole, and to whom both the law and the prophets bear witneſs. All ſcripture is given by inſpiration of God, both the Old and New Teſtament have the ſame divine original; and is profitable for doctrine, none demanding our credence and ſubmiſſion, but what can be clearly proved from thence; for reproof of errors, hereſies, and all manner of evil; for correction of whatever is found amiſs in the church; for inſtruction in righteouſneſs, how righteouſneſs before God can be obtained, through faith in a Redeemer, and how we can be enabled ſo to walk as to pleaſe God: that the man of God, the true believer, may be perfect, thoroughly inſtructed in all the mind of God, and furniſhed unto all good works, whether as a Chriſtian for thoſe of his ſtation, or as a miniſter for the arduous ſervice in which he is engaged. Note, (1.) Parents ſhould betimes endeavour to lead their children to the Bible. (2.) All the volumes of human learning can never teach us ſo much true wiſdom as one page, one line of the book of God; after all theſe labours we muſt have been left to periſh in ignorance; but in the oracles of truth, life and immortality are brought to light, and the pooreſt and moſt unlettered ſaint of God is wiſer, in the things which make for his everlaſting peace, than the deepeſt metaphyſician, or the moſt profound philoſopher. (3.) All ſcripture is of divine authority, therefore on God's teſtimony to be received with faith. Our wiſdom, where ought myſterious is revealed, is not to reaſon, but to believe. (4.) The book of God is the Chriſtian's great magazine; he can be in no ſtate and condition, but he will there find direction, inſtruction, reproof or comfort, exactly ſuited to his circumſtances.

CHAP. IV.

In this chapter St. Paul, 1. Doth with great ſolemnity and earneſtneſs preſs Timothy to the diligent and conſcientious diſcharge of his work and office, as an evangeliſt; and the charge given to him, all goſpel miniſters are to take to themſelves, ver. 1—6. 2. Why muſt Timothy now be inſtant in ſeaſon, &c. in a particular manner? Becauſe the church was likely to be deprived of the apoſtle's labours, for his departure was at hand, ver. 6, 7, 8. 3. Divers particular matters, with an hint and caution about Alexander the copperſmith, ver. 9—16. 4. He informeth him of what befel him at his firſt anſwer; though men forſook him, the Lord ſtood by him, and that encouraged him to hope for future deliverance, ver. 16—19. And then he concludes with ſalutations and a benediction, ver. 19, to the end.

1. [a] I Charge thee therefore before God and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [b] who ſhall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing, and his kingdom: 2. Preach the word, be inſtant in ſeaſon, out of ſeaſon; reprove, [c] rebuke, exhort with all long-ſuffering and doctrine. 3.
For [d] the time will come when they will not endure [e] ſound doctrine; [f] but after their own luſts ſhall they heap to themſelves teachers, having itching ears. 4. And they ſhall turn away their ears from the truth, and [g] ſhall be turned unto fables. 5. But watch thou in all things, [h] endure afflictions, [i] do the work of an evangeliſt, † make full proof of thy miniſtry. 6. For I am now ready to [k] be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand.
7. I have fought [l] the good fight, I have finiſhed [m] my courſe, I have kept the faith. 8. Henceforth there is laid up for me [n] a crown of righteouſneſs, which the Lord the righteous judge ſhall give me [o] at that day:
and not to me only, but unto all them that love his appearing.

[a] 1 Tim. vi. 13. Chap. ii. 14.
[b] Acts x. 42.
[c] 1 Tim. v. 20. Tit. ii. 15.
[d] Chap. iii. 1.
[e] 1 Tim. i. 10.
[f] Chap. iii. 6.
[g] 1 Tim. i. 4. & iv. 7.
[h] Chap. i. 8. & ii. 3.
[i] Acts xxi. 8. Eph. iv. 11.
† Or fulfil. Col. i. 25. & iv. 17.
[k] Phil. ii. 17.
[l] 1 Tim. vi. 12.
[m] 1 Cor. ix. 24. Phil. iii. 14. Heb. xii. 1.
[n] Jam. i. 12. 1 Pet. v. 4. Rev. ii. 10.
[o] Chap. i. 12.

v. 1—8. The apoſtle, being now ready to conclude his epiſtle, gives Timothy,

1. His ſolemn charge. I charge thee before the great heart-ſearching God, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who ſhall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom, in the laſt great day, when he ſhall come in his glory, and give to every man according to his work: preach the word, proclaiming, as an herald aloud, the bleſſed goſpel; be inſtant in ſeaſon, and, as ſome may think, out of ſeaſon; earneſt to inculcate the truth upon men's conſciences, both on the Lord's day, and every other opportunity, not only in time of peace, but amidſt all oppoſition and perſecution; reprove, rebuke gainſayers, backſliders, ſinners; exhort and encourage the faithful, with all long-ſuffering, unwearied in the ſervice, nor diſcouraged at any difficulties in the way, and with that doctrine, which is according to the ſcriptures, and profitable for the ſouls of men. Note, (1.) Miniſters muſt not only preach, but be inſtant; frozen diſcourſes, languidly delivered, will never fire the hearer's ſoul. (2.) They who have the work of Chriſt at heart, will be perhaps often thought very unſeaſonable in the frequency of their public miniſtrations, or the freedom of their private rebukes; but they have here a divine warrant.

2. He warns him how diffiult it will prove to be faithful amidſt the abounding errors. For the time will come, and the myſtery of iniquity already begins to operate, when they will not endure ſound doctrine, the pure goſpel of Jeſus Chriſt, but after their own depraved luſts and paſſions, ſhall they heap to themſelves teachers, having itching ears, deſiring to have their fancies entertained, and their corruptions flattered, inſtead of the free, honeſt, and faithful rebuke which the goſpel miniſters deliver. And they ſhall turn away their ears from the truth, averſe from it, and refuſing to obey it, and ſhall be turned unto fables, liſtning to the ſeducing teachers, who with idle tales amuſe, and with falſhood lull their conſciences aſleep. Note, They who like to be flattered in their ſins, rather than to hear faithful reproof, are juſtly given up to their own deluſions, and the blind are ſuffered to follow the blind, till both fall into the pit of hell.

3. He admoniſhes Timothy to guard againſt theſe deceivers, and to caution the people that they be not impoſed upon. But watch thou in all things over thy own heart, and over the church committed to thy care, guarding againſt the firſt appearances of evil and error; endure afflictions with fortitude and patience; do the work of an evangeliſt with all fidelity and zeal; make full proof of thy miniſtry, that gainſayers may be ſilenced, and believers comforted and edified.

4. He informs Timothy of his approaching diſſolution and glorious hope, for his encouragement to follow his ſteps. For I am now ready to be offered up, and to pour out my blood as a libation in the ſervice of the goſpel: and the time of my departure is at hand, when my diſembodied ſoul ſhall go to the boſom of my Lord. I have fought a good fight, and through grace can look back with ſatisfaction on my warfare; I have finiſhed my courſe, and am near the glorious prize; I have kept the faith, maintaining the purity of the doctrines of Chriſt, and adorning them by unimpeached fidelity in my own converſation. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteouſneſs, which the Lord, the righteous judge, the rewarder of thoſe whom he hath choſen and called, and ſtrengthened for the conflict, ſhall give me at that day of his appearing and glory: and not to me only, but unto all them alſo that love his appearing, and live under the influence, and in the proſpect and earneſt expectation of it. Note, (1.) The fidelity of others ſhould be a quickning motive to excite our diligence; and their dying teſtimony to the bleſſedneſs of Chriſt's ways, ſhould comfort and encourage us to perſevere in them. (2.) When we have the ſure hope of the crown of righteouſneſs, the day of our departure will be the brighteſt which ever dawned upon us. (3.) They who are faithful unto death, may with delight look back; and, whilſt they aſcribe all to their Maſter's grace, they cannot but rejoice in the evidence, which the review affords of their approved ſincerity before him. (4.) Whatever difficulties are in our way, we have a good cauſe to bear us out, and ſhould comfortably and courageouſly perſevere; whatever we loſe for Chriſt here, we ſhall, at leaſt in eternity, be unſpeakable gainers by him. (5.) There is an awful day at hand, and a righteous judge expected. Bleſſed and happy are they who truly love the day of his appearing, and can ſay with confidence, and real deſire, Come, Lord Jeſus, come quickly.

9. Do thy diligence to come ſhortly unto me. 10.
For [p] Demas hath [q] forſaken me, having loved this preſent world, and is departed unto Theſſalonica: Creſcens to Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia. 11. Only [r] Luke is with me. 14. Take [s] Mark and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to me for the miniſtry. 12. And [t] Tychicus have I ſent to Epheſus. 13. The cloke that I left at Troas with Carpus, when thou comeſt, bring with thee, and the books, but eſpecially the parchments.
14. [u] Alexander the copperſmith did me much evil: [x] the Lord reward him according to his works. 15. Of whom be thou ware alſo; for he hath greatly withſtood our words.

[p] Col. iv. 14. Philem. 24.
[q] Chap. i. 15. Ver. 16.
[r] Col. iv. 14.
[s] Acts xv. 37. Col. iv. 10.
[t] Acts xx. 4. Eph. vi. 21. Col. iv. 7. Tit. iii. 12.
[u] 1 Tim. i. 20.
[x] Pſ. xxviii. 4. Rev. xviii. 6.

v. 9—15. Several directions are here given to Timothy:

1. Do thy diligence to come ſhortly unto me, as I eſpecially need thy company at this time. For Demas hath forſaken me, having loved this preſent world, and now, in this trying ſeaſon, hath ſhamefully deſerted me, purſuing his own baſe and worldly intereſts, and is departed unto Theſſalonica, to be out of the danger to which here he might, as my companion, have been expoſed: Creſcens is gone, on affairs of the church, to Galatia, and Titus to Dalmatia; ſo that I am almoſt left alone. Only Luke is with me, my true and faithful fellow labourer, and Tychicus have I ſent to Epheſus. Note, The love of this preſent world hath fatally warped many from their fidelity to Chriſt.

2. Take Mark and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to me for the miniſtry. Whatever juſt cauſe of diſpleaſure the apoſtle might have had formerly againſt him, he was now returned to his duty, and therewith to Paul's favour and regard. Note, Thoſe who have never ſo much offended us, we ſhould cordially again receive, whenever they humbly deſire to return to the right way.

3. The cloke, or, as others render it, the deſk, that I left at Troas, with Carpus my hoſt, when thou comeſt, bring with thee, and the books, but eſpecially the parchments. What theſe writings contained, of which the apoſtle was ſo careful, is uncertain: ſome have thought it was the roll of his freedom, others, the copies of his epiſtles, which had been ſent to the ſeveral churches.

4. He admoniſhes him to beware of a bitter enemy to Chriſtianity. Alexander the copperſmith did me much evil, (Acts xix. 33.) and ſtill bears an implacable enmity to me. The Lord reward him according to his works, to whoſe righteous judgment I leave him. Of whom be thou ware alſo; for he hath greatly withſtood our words, and endeavoured to prejudice both Jews and Gentiles againſt that goſpel which we preach. Note, Though no private revenge muſt dictate a thought or wiſh of reſentment, yet obſtinate and incorrigible enemies to truth and godlineſs are to be delivered up to an avenging God.

y Chap. i. 15. 16. At my firſt anſwer no man ſtood with me, but [y] all men forſook me: I pray God that it may not be laid to z Mat. x. 19. their charge. 17. [z] Notwithſtanding the Lord ſtood with me, and ſtrengthned me; that by me the preaching ing might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might a Pſ. xxii. 21. hear: and I was delivered [a] out of the mouth of the lion.
18. And the Lord ſhall deliver me from every evil work, b Rom. xvi. 27. 1 Tim. vi. 16. and will preſerve me unto his heavenly kingdom: [b] to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen. 19. Salute
c Acts xviii. 2. [c] Priſca and Aquila, and [d] the houſhold of Oneſiphorus.
d 2 Tim. i. 16. 20. [e] Eraſtus abode at Corinth: but [f] Trophimus have e Acts xix. 22. I left at Miletum ſick. 21. [g] Do thy diligence to come f Acts xx. 4. & xxi. 19. before winter. Eubulus greeteth thee, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren. 22.
g Chap. i. 4.
[h] The Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with thy ſpirit. Grace be h Gal. vi. 18. Philem. 25.
with you. Amen.

v. 16—22. The apoſtle here,

1. Informs Timothy of his preſent circumſtances. At my firſt anſwer, when I was called to defend myſelf before the emperor, no man ſtood with me, but all, who could be of any ſervice by their countenance or preſence, forſook me, through fear and cowardice: I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge, but that he would pardon this unfaithfulneſs, and bring them to repentance. Notwithſtanding, though deſerted by men, the Lord ſtood with me and ſtrengthened me with boldneſs, freedom, and fidelity to plead the cauſe of his goſpel; that by me the preaching might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might hear, who were preſent at my trial, or to whom the ſubſtance of it ſhould be related: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion, from the cruel Nero, and the jaws of death, which ſeemed to yawn for me. And I am fully confident, from long experience, that the Lord ſhall deliver me from every evil work, that I ſhall never ſpeak nor act unbecoming the character I bear, intimidated by any fear of ſufferings; and will preſerve me unto his heavenly kingdom, giving me the inheritance in glory which he hath provided and promiſed: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen! Note, (1.) In trying times we are not to be ſurprized if many deſert us who promiſed very fair. (2.) If the Lord ſtand by us, we want no other ſupport. (3.) It is our comfort, whatever befals us, that we have an heavenly kingdom ſecured, and then come life, come death, all muſt be well.

2. He ſends his own and others ſalutations, and haſtens Timothy to come to him. Salute Priſca and Aquila, and the houſhold of Oneſiphorus. Eraſtus, the chamberlain, abode at Corinth: but Trophimus have I left at Miletum ſick, not having any ſuggeſtion from the Lord, or power, miraculouſly to reſtore him. Do thy diligence to come before winter. Eubulus greeteth thee, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren in theſe parts.

3. He concludes with his hearty benediction and prayer for him. The Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with thy ſpirit to quicken, teach, guide, preſerve thee. Grace be with you, and all that love our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in ſincerity. Amen.

THE
EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
Upon the EPISTLE of
St. PAUL to TITUS.

THIS Epiſtle of Paul to Titus is much of the ſame nature with thoſe to Timothy; both were converts of Paul, and his companions in labours and ſufferings; both in the office of evangeliſts, whoſe work was to water the churches planted by the apoſtles, and to ſet in order the things that were wanting in them. We read much of this Titus, his titles and character, and active uſefulneſs in many places: He was a Greek, Gal. ii. 3. St. Paul called him his ſon, Tit. i. 4. his brother, 2 Cor. ii. 13. his partner and fellow-helper, 2 Cor. viii. 23. one that walked in the ſame Spirit, and in the ſame ſteps with himſelf. He went up with the apoſtle to the church at Jeruſalem, Gal. ii. 1. was much converſant at Corinth, for which church he had an earneſt care, 2 Cor. viii. 16. Paul's ſecond epiſtle to them, and probably his firſt alſo, was ſent by his hand, 2 Cor. viii. 16, 17, 18, 23. and chap. ix, 2, 3, 4. and chap. xii. 18. He was with the apoſtle at Rome, and thence went into Dalmatia, 2 Tim. iv. 10. after which no more occurs of him in the ſcriptures. In Crete, a large iſland at the mouth of the Ægean ſea, the goſpel had got ſome footing; and here were Paul and Titus in one of their travels cultivating this plantation; but the apoſtle of the Gentiles, having on him the care of all the churches, could not himſelf tarry long at this place; therefore left Titus ſome time there to carry on the work which had been begun; wherein, probably meeting with more difficulty than ordinary, Paul wrote this epiſtle to him. He was to ſee all the cities furniſhed with good paſtors; to reject and keep out the unmeet and unworthy; to teach ſound doctrine, and inſtruct all ſorts in their duties; to ſet forth the free grace of God in man's ſalvation by Chriſt; and withal to ſhew the neceſſity of maintaining good works by thoſe who have believed in God, and hope for eternal life from him.

CHAP. I.

In this chapter we have, (1.) The preface or introduction to the epiſtle, ver. 1—4. (2.) The end of Titus's being left at Crete, ver. 5. And, (3.) How the ſame ſhould be purſued in reference both to good and bad miniſters, from ver. 6, to the end.

1. PAUL a ſervant of God, and an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, according to the faith of God's elect, and the acknowledging of the truth, [a] which is after godlineſs: 2. In hope of eternal life, which God [b] that cannot lye, promiſed [c] before the world began; 3. [d] But hath in due times manifeſted his word through preaching, [e] which is committed unto me, [f] according to the commandment of God our Saviour: 4. [g] To Titus [h] mine own ſon after [i] the common faith: [k] Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour.

[a] 1 Tim. iii. 16. & vi. 3.
[b] Num. xxiii. 19.
[c] Rom. xvi. 25. 2 Tim. i. 9. 1 Pet. i. 20.
[d] Rom. xvi. 26. 2 Tim. i. 10.
[e] 1 Theſ. ii. 4. 1 Tim. i. 11.
[f] 1 Tim. i. 1. & ii. 3.
[g] 2 Cor. ii. 13. & viii. 6, 16.
[h] 1 Tim. i. 2.
[i] 2 Pet. i. 1.
[k] Eph. i. 2. Col. i. 2.

v. 1—4. The apoſtle opens with his uſual addreſs.

1. He ſets forth his own divine commiſſion and apoſtleſhip. This epiſtle comes from Paul, who counts it his higheſt honour to be called a ſervant of God in the goſpel of his dear Son, and an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, ſent to bear the glad tidings of his ſalvation to Gentile lands, according to the faith of God's elect, the doctrine which is to be embraced by all whom the Lord hath choſen, and is pleaſed effectually to call to the acknowledging of the truth, which is after godlineſs, and which, having heartily embraced myſelf, I now with delight publiſh to others: in hope of eternal life, which all, who live godly in Chriſt Jeſus, are ſure to attain unto, becauſe God, who cannot lye, hath promiſed it unto them, in Chriſt their head, before the world began; but hath in due times manifeſted his word through preaching, which is committed unto me, according to the commandment of God our Saviour: and I have with all fidelity laboured to diſcharge the important truſt. Note, (1.) The higheſt dignity is to be the ſervant of the living God. (2.) There is an elect of God, to whom the goſpel will be infallibly effectual. (3.) All, who are choſen in Chriſt Jeſus before the world began, are in the fulneſs of time brought to confeſs the faith, acknowledge the truth, and in all godlineſs to ſhew its influence upon their hearts. (4.) Eternal life is as ſure to all the faithful as the promiſe of an unchangeable God can make it: he muſt be falſe to his word before they can fail of their inheritance in glory. (5.) They, who are miniſters of God, muſt be indefatigable in preaching. Dumb dogs that cannot, or will not bark, are not of the Great Shepherd's appointment.

2. He wiſhes Titus the beſt of bleſſings. To Titus, mine own ſon after the common faith, my ſpiritual child, begotten in the goſpel, be grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour. Note, (1.) All believers have one common faith, and are united to the ſame Jeſus. (2.) If Chriſt be indeed our Saviour, then God's ſovereign and everlaſting love and mercy, in all their boundleſs import of pardon and ſalvation to the uttermoſt, and peace of conſcience preſent and eternal, will be our bleſſed portion.

5. For this cauſe left I thee in Crete, that thou ſhouldſt [l] ſet in order the things that are wanting, and [m] ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee. 6. [n] If any be blameleſs, [o] the huſband of one wife, [p] having faithful children, not accuſed of riot, or unruly. 7. For a biſhop muſt be [q] blameleſs, [r] as the ſteward of God; not ſelf-willed, not ſoon angry, [s] not given to wine, [t] no ſtriker, [u] not given to filthy lucre; 8. [x] But a lover of hoſpitality, a lover of † good men, ſober, juſt, holy, temperate; 9. [y] Holding faſt [z] the faithful word, ‡ as he hath been taught, that he may be able by [a] ſound doctrine, both to exhort and to convince the gainſayers. 10. For [b] there are many unruly and vain talkers and deceivers, eſpecially they of the circumciſion: 11. Whoſe mouths muſt be ſtopped, [c] who ſubvert whole houſes, teaching things which they ought not, [d] for filthy lucre's ſake.

l 1 Cor. xi. 34.
m Acts xiv. 23.
n 1 Tim. iii. 2, &c. o 1 Tim. iii. 3, 12.
p 1 Tim. iii. 4, 12.
q 2 Cor. vi. 3.
r 1 Cor. iv. 1.
s Lev. x. 9. Ezek. xliv. 21.
t 2 Tim. ii. 24.
u 1 Tim. iii. 8. 1 Pet. v. 2.
x 2 Tim. iii. 2.
† Or good things.
y 2 Theſ. ii. 15. 2 Tim. i. 13.
z 1 Tim. i. 10. & vi. 3.
‡ Or in teaching.
a Chap. ii. 1.
b 1 Tim. i. 6.
c Mat. xxiii. 14. 2 Tim. iii. 6.
d 1 Tim. vi. 5.

v. 5—11. St. Paul,

1. Reminds him of the end for which he was left in Crete. For this cauſe left I thee in Crete, that thou ſhouldſt ſet in order the things that are wanting, directing them concerning the proper diſcipline, worſhip, and conduct, to be obſerved by this lately converted church; and ordain elders in every city, as I have appointed thee, ſuch as ſhall be found duly qualified for the miniſterial work.

2. He deſcribes the character of thoſe whom he ſhould ordain. If any be blameleſs, having a good report of thoſe who know him beſt; the huſband of one wife, no polygamiſt; having faithful children, brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord; not accuſed of riot, or unruly, diſſolute and refractory, but kept under due reſtraint; neither a diſgrace to themſelves or their parents. For a biſhop muſt be blameleſs, as the ſteward of God, appointed to that high charge in his holy family, and therefore of a character irreproachable; not ſelf-willed, of a raſh and obſtinate temper; not ſoon angry, and firing at every provocation; not given to wine, addicted to drunkenneſs, or fond of the glaſs; no ſtriker, violent in his paſſions; not given to filthy lucre, a mercenary wretch, who ſerves for hire, but out of zeal for Chriſt and the ſouls of men. He muſt be alſo a lover of hoſpitality, entertaining poor ſtrangers, and Chriſtians driven from their homes by the fury of perſecution; a lover of good men, without prejudice or exception; ſober, grave and prudent in his carriage and deportment; juſt and upright in his converſation; holy in all his conduct; temperate in his deſires and appetites; holding faſt the faithful word, maintaining the purity of the goſpel, and diſpenſing it with all fidelity, as he hath been taught by us; that he may be able, by ſound doctrine, both to exhort and comfort the true members of Chriſt's church, and to convince gainſayers of their errors. For ſuch ſpiritual wiſdom is neceſſary, becauſe there are many unruly and vain talkers and deceivers, in Crete as well as other churches, who, though profeſſing Chriſtianity, walk diſorderly, and with their heretical tenets draw away diſciples after them; eſpecially they of the circumciſion, who are the great corrupters of the faith, urging circumciſion and the obſervance of the moſaical inſtitutions as neceſſary to ſalvation; whoſe mouths muſt be ſtopped, not by force, but by ſound truth and ſcriptural arguments to detect their fallacies and ſilence their cavils; who ſubvert whole houſes, inſinuating themſelves into the families of profeſſors, teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucre's ſake, adapting their teaching to the palates of their hearers, in order to inſinuate into their confidence, and enrich themſelves at their expence.

12. [e] One of themſelves, even a prophet of their own, ſaid, The Cretians are always liars, evil beaſts, ſlow bellies. 13. This witneſs is true: wherefore [f] rebuke them ſharply, that they may be ſound in the faith; 14. [g] Not giving heed to Jewiſh fables, and [h] commandments of men that turn from the truth. 15. [i] Unto the pure all things are pure: but [k] unto them that are defiled and unbelieving, is nothing pure: but even their mind and conſcience is defiled. 16. They profeſs that they know God; [l] but in works they deny him, being abominable, and diſobedient, [m] and unto every good work reprobate.

e Acts xvii. 28.
f Chap. ii. 15.
g 1 Tim. i. 4. & iv. 7.
h Mat. xv. 9. Col. ii. 22.
i Luke xi. 41. Rom. xiv. 14, 20. 1 Cor. x. 23, 25. 1 Tim. iv. 4.
k Rom. xiv. 23.
l 2 Tim. iii. 5. Jude 4.
m Rom. i. 28. 2 Tim. iii. 8.

v. 12—16. The national character of the Cretians was very bad, therefore they would need ſharp rebuke.

1. The apoſtle quotes one of their own writers. One of themſelves, even a prophet, or poet, of their own; Epimenides; ſaid, the Cretians are always liars, peculiarly addicted to this ſin; evil beaſts, ravenous, gluttonous, and inſatiate in their appetites; ſlow bellies, luxurious and indolent: and this witneſs is true, it is their juſt character. Wherefore,

2. Rebuke them ſharply; ſuch ſcandalous deeds required ſevere and cutting remonſtrances, that, their ſin and danger being ſet before them, they may be ſound in the faith, warned by theſe rebukes of others to be more watchful, or recovered from ſuch grievous backſliding; not giving heed to Jewiſh fables, and commandments of men, the ridiculous legends and vain traditions of thoſe judaizing teachers, that turn from the truth, apoſtates themſelves, and labouring to pervert the faith of others, and to adulterate the bleſſed goſpel of grace, by enforcing upon the conſcience the abrogated rites of the moſaical law. Unto the pure all things are pure, and no ceremonial uncleanneſs contracted by the touch or taſte of things forbidden by the levitical inſtitutions: but unto them that are defiled by the reigning impurity of their hearts and lives, and unbelieving, deſtitute of faith in Jeſus, there is nothing pure, all they do and ſay is abominable in the ſight of God; but even their mind and conſcience is defiled, and, when the fountain is thus polluted, every ſtream which flows from it muſt needs be foul. They profeſs indeed to know God, and make great boaſts of their wiſdom; but in works they deny him, and act as infidels, being abominable in their ſpirit and conduct, diſobedient to all God's holy laws, as well as enemies to his goſpel, and, in ſhort, to every good work reprobate, unfit and unable for, as well as diſinclined to, the practice of them. Note, (1.) Stubborn ſinners call for ſevere rebuke. Lenity, where the knife is required, is real cruelty to the patient. (2.) The beſt preſervative againſt the wiles of deceivers is being ſound in the faith. They who are ſure grounded on Chriſt will not eaſily be ſhaken. (3.) They who are deſtitute of right principles muſt neceſſarily err in all their conduct: every thing they do, even what is in itſelf right, as to the matter and deed itſelf, becomes ſin to them, becauſe it proceeds from wrong principles, and is directed to wrong ends. (4.) It is not ſounding profeſſions, but holy lives, which characterize real Chriſtians. Non magna loquimur, ſed vivimus.

CHAP. II.

The apoſtle here directs Titus about the faithful diſcharge of his own office, generally, ver. 1. and particularly, as to ſeveral ſorts of perſons, ver. 2—10. and gives the grounds of theſe and of other following directions, ver. 11—14. with a ſummary direction in the cloſe, ver. 15.

1. BUT ſpeak thou the things which become [a] ſound doctrine: 2. That the aged men be † ſober, grave, temperate, ſound in faith, in charity, in patience: 3. [b] The aged women likewiſe, that they be in behaviour as becometh holineſs, not ‡ falſe accuſers, not given to much wine, teachers of good things; 4. That they may teach the young women to be ſober, to love their huſbands, [c] to love their children, 5. To be diſcreet, chaſte, keepers at home, good, [d] obedient to their own huſbands, [e] that the word of God be not blaſphemed. 6. Young men likewiſe exhort to be § ſober-minded.

a 1 Tim. i. 10. & vi. 3. 2 Tim. i. 13. Chap. i. 9.
† Or vigilant.
b 1 Tim. ii. 9, &c. 1 Pet. iii. 3.
‡ Gr. devils. 1 Tim. iii. 3.
c 1 Tim. v. 14.
d Gen. iii. 16. 1 Cor. xiv. 34. Eph. v. 22. Col. iii. 18. 1 Pet. iii. 1.
e Rom. ii. 24. 1 Tim. vi. 1.
§ Or diſcreet.

v. 1—6. The apoſtle proceeds to direct Titus in the faithful diſcharge of his office. But, in contradiction to theſe deceivers, ſpeak thou the things which become ſound doctrine, the wholeſome truths of God's life-giving word, dividing it aright to every man, according to their age, ſtation, and circumſtances.

1. That the aged men, as their years as well as profeſſion eſpecially demand from them, be ſober, or vigilant, circumſpect in their conduct; grave, in habit, manners, converſation, that they may engage the reverence of their younger brethren; temperate and prudent, having their paſſions and appetites in ſubjection; ſound in the faith, in doctrine and practice; in charity enlarged; in patience exemplary, bearing the provocations of others with meekneſs, and not fretful under their own infirmities. Such old diſciples are noble ornaments to their Chriſtian profeſſion.

2. The aged women likewiſe, that they be in behaviour as becometh holineſs, in dreſs, converſation, and deportment; not falſe accuſers, not ſlandering and defaming any, nor ſowing diſcord among brethren; not given to much wine, drunkenneſs, or the love of liquor, being in women doubly odious and hateful; teachers of good things, by their example and diſcourſe inculcating on their daughters every thing which may adorn the Chriſtian name.

3. What the aged muſt teach, the younger women ſhould learn of them, to be ſober, avoiding every appearance of wantonneſs, exceſs, or levity; to love their huſbands, cleaving to them in warm affection; to love their children, training them up from infancy in the nurture and admonition of the Lord; to be diſcreet in the management of their families; chaſte, ſhewing the moſt unfeigned modeſty and purity of manners; keepers at home, not gadding about to the neglect of their domeſtic affairs, but ever beſt pleaſed to be in their own houſe; good, kind and gentle to their ſervants, and, like Dorcas, full of almſdeeds and good works; obedient to their own huſbands, delighting to ſerve and pleaſe them in all things; that the word of God be not blaſphemed by a contrary behaviour, which would give the adverſaries of Chriſtianity occaſion to ſpeak reproachfully. Note, Nothing makes Chriſtianity appear ſo amiable as the conſcientious diſcharge of the relative duties which it enjoins.

4. Young men likewiſe exhort to be ſober-minded, ſerious, ſolid, tractable, having a due ſenſe of their own inexperience, and willing to be ruled and adviſed by their elder and wiſer friends.

7. [f] In all things ſhewing thyſelf a pattern of good works: in doctrine ſhewing uncorruptneſs, gravity, ſincerity, 8. [g] Sound ſpeech that cannot be condemned; [h] that he that is of the contrary part [i] may be aſhamed, having no evil thing to ſay of you.

[f] 1 Tim. iv. 12.
[g] 1 Tim. vi. 3.
[h] 1 Tim. v. 14. 1 Pet. ii. 12, 15. & iii. 16.
[i] 2 Theſ. iii. 14.

v. 7, 8. We have a particular direction for Titus himſelf, who as a young man ſhould be the example of what he taught to his brethren. In all things ſhewing thyſelf a pattern of good works; practiſing what he preached: in doctrine ſhewing uncorruptneſs, declaring the pure unadulterated truth, and maintaining a ſingle eye to God's glory and the benefit of immortal ſouls; gravity, with all ſeriouſneſs delivering his meſſage, and with all ſincerity; uſing ſound ſpeech that cannot be condemned, inculcating ſcripture truths in ſcripture language, and with ſuch plainneſs and ſimplicity as that he that is of the contrary part, and would be glad to carp at and cenſure any ambiguous expreſſion, may be aſhamed of his malicious deſign, having no evil thing to ſay of you, finding no juſt charge of error in doctrine, or immorality in practice, to alledge againſt you. Note, (1.) They who preach to others muſt by their practice prove that they believe themſelves, elſe how can it be thought that others ſhould credit them. (2.) Many watch for the halting of Chriſt's miniſters; and the knowledge of this ſhould make them more watchful over all that they ſpeak or do, that confuſion may cover their malignant enemies.

9. Exhort [k] ſervants to be obedient unto their own maſters, and to pleaſe them well in all things; not anſwering again, 10. Not purloining, but ſhewing all good fidelity; [l] that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things.

[k] Eph. vi. 5. Col. iii. 22. 1 Tim. vi. 1, 2. 1 Pet. ii. 18.
[l] Mat. v. 16.

v. 9, 10. The duty of ſervants is here preſcribed. Exhort ſervants to be obedient unto their own maſters, with inward reſpect, as well as all outward dutiful ſubmiſſion; and to pleaſe them well in all things lawful to be done; not anſwering again, diſputing their orders, murmuring at their commands, or daring to make an impertinent or ſaucy reply; not purloining the leaſt thing from them, but, to a crumb of bread, ſtrictly honeſt; nor conniving at the leaſt waſte or robbery committed by others; ſhewing all good fidelity, true to every truſt repoſed in them, ſpeaking with the greateſt veracity, and punctual in the obſervance of their orders; that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things, and even in the eyes of their unbelieving maſters, if under ſuch, recommend the religion which they profeſs. Note, Such a ſervant as is here deſcribed is a great acquiſition. Would to God that thoſe who make profeſſion of godlineſs oftener read this apoſtolic directory!

11. For [m] the grace of God that bringeth ſalvation [n] hath appeared to all men; 12. Teaching us, that denying ungodlineſs [o] and worldly luſts, [p] we ſhould live ſoberly, righteouſly, and godly in this preſent world; 13. [q] Looking for that bleſſed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God, † and our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt: 14. [r] Who gave himſelf for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and [s] purify unto himſelf [t] a peculiar people, [u] zealous of good works. 15. Theſe things ſpeak and exhort, and [x] rebuke with all authority. [y] Let no man deſpiſe thee.

[m] Chap. iii. 4.
[n] Luke iii. 6. John i. 9.
[o] 1 Pet. iv. 2. 1 John ii. 16.
[p] Eph. i. 4. Col. i. 22.
[q] 1 Cor. i. 7. Phil. iii. 20. 2 Pet. iii. 12.
† Or even.
[r] Gal. i. 4. & ii. 20. 1 Tim. ii. 6.
[s] Heb. ix. 14.
[t] Ex. xix. 5. Deut. vii. 6.
[u] Eph. ii. 10. Chap. iii. 8.
[x] Chap. i. 13.
[y] 1 Cor. xvi. 11. 1 Tim. iv. 12.

v. 11—15. The ſtrongeſt motives are here ſuggeſted to enforce the practice before recommended.

1. This is one great end of our redemption. For the grace of God, diſplayed in the goſpel word, that bringeth ſalvation, declaring the ſovereign and free mercy of God in Chriſt to miſerable ſinners, hath appeared in the moſt illuſtrious manner to all men, to men of all ranks, degrees, and nations; teaching us that, denying ungodlineſs of every kind, and worldly luſts, whether of the fleſh, of the eye, or the pride of life, (1 John ii. 6.) we ſhould live ſoberly, in the government and ſubdual of every inordinate appetite and paſſion; righteouſly, with unimpeached integrity and uprightneſs in our dealings towards men; and godly, in all acts of publick and private devotion, in the uſe of every holy ordinance, and with a conſtant regard to the divine glory, in this preſent world, full as it is of evil and temptation. Note, (1.) Our ſalvation is purely a matter of grace, flowing from God's boundleſs and ſovereign love, without reſpect to our deſerts or deſires. (2.) The goſpel is a revelation of mercy to all ranks and degrees; and God appears eminently glorious therein, in juſtifying the chief of ſinners who believe in Jeſus. (3.) Whenever we are truly partakers of grace, the bleſſed influence thereof will appear on our hearts and lives, effectually engaging us to renounce every known ſin, and powerfully quickening us for the diſcharge of every duty towards God, our neighbour, or ourſelves. The doctrines of grace are the only principles which can produce righteouſneſs and true holineſs.

2. We expect the appearing of the great Judge, and therefore are peculiarly called upon to prepare to meet him. Looking for that bleſſed hope, the great object of it, the Lord from heaven; and the glorious appearing of the great God, and, or even, our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, who ſhall ſhortly ſit upon the throne of his glory, when all nations ſhall be gathered before him, to receive from his lips their irreverſible ſentence, and in whoſe favour we have an aſſured intereſt; who gave himſelf for us an offering and a ſacrifice to God, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, both from the guilt and power of it; and might purify to himſelf a peculiar people, the objects of his ſovereign choice, taken from the corrupted maſs of mankind to be to the praiſe of his glory, and zealous of good works, influenced by the divine principle of faith which worketh by love, aiming at the advancement of their Redeemer's honour, and yielding themſelves up to be guided by his word and will. Note, (1.) Every believer hath a bleſſed hope before him, under the influence of which he lives comfortably, and ſupported by which he dies happily. (2.) They who would meet the great God their Saviour in peace, muſt be found among his redeemed, and experience a preſent deliverance from the reigning power of iniquity. (3.) Chriſt's people are indeed peculiar in their manners, temper, and conduct, diſtinguiſhed from the world in which they dwell by the purity of their lives, and their zeal for good works.

3. The apoſtle enjoins Titus to urge theſe things upon the conſciences of his hearers. Theſe things ſpeak with all freedom, and exhort them diligently to obſerve; and rebuke with all authority thoſe who dare oppoſe the truth, and would maintain their erroneous principles and practices. Let no man deſpiſe thee: behave in ſuch a manner as may command reſpect; and if any notwithſtanding preſume to treat thee or thy miniſtry with contempt, it ſhall be at their peril.

CHAP. III.

Of duties which concern Chriſtians more in common, and the reaſons of them, ver. 1—8. What Titus in teaching ſhould avoid, and how he ſhould deal with an heretic, with ſome other directions, ver. 9—14. And ſalutations in the cloſe, ver. 15.

1. PUT them in mind to [a] be ſubject to principalities and powers, to obey magiſtrates, [b] to be ready to every good work, 2. To ſpeak evil of no man, [c] to be no brawlers, but gentle, ſhewing all meekneſs unto all men. 3. For [d] we ourſelves alſo were ſometimes fooliſh, diſobedient, deceived, ſerving divers luſts and pleaſures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another. 4. But after that [e] the kindneſs and love of God our Saviour toward man appeared, 5. [f] Not by works of righteouſneſs which we have done, [g] but according to his mercy he ſaved us by [h] the waſhing of regeneration, and renewing of the holy Ghoſt; 6. [i] Which he ſhed on us † abundantly through Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour: 7. [k] That being juſtified by his grace, [l] we ſhould be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life.

[a] Rom. xiii. 1. 1 Pet. ii. 13.
[b] Chap. ii. 14. Ver. 8.
[c] 2 Tim. ii. 24, 25.
[d] 1 Cor. vi. 11. Eph. ii. 1. Col. i. 21. & iii. 7. 1 Pet. iv. 3.
[e] Chap. ii. 11.
[f] Rom. iii. 20. & ix. 11. & xi. 6. Gal. ii. 16. Eph. ii. 9. 2 Tim. i. 9.
[g] Acts xv. 11. Eph. ii. 4.
[h] John iii. 3, 5. Eph. v. 26.
[i] Ezek. xxxvi. 25. Acts ii. 33. & x. 45. Rom. v. 5.
† Gr. richly.
[k] Rom. iii. 24. Chap. ii. 11.
[l] Rom. viii. 23, 24.

v. 1—7. The apoſtle proceeds,

1. To direct Titus reſpecting the obedience which he muſt inculcate as due to the civil magiſtrate. Put them in mind to be ſubject to principalities and powers, under whatever government they live; to obey magiſtrates with loyalty and willing ſubmiſſion; to be ready to every good work, rendring to all degrees of men the duty owing to them: to ſpeak evil of or blaſpheme no man, reviling the magiſtrates, or raiſing any ſlanderous report; to be no brawlers, diſturbing the peace of ſociety, turbulent and quarrelſome; but gentle in temper and manners, ſhewing all meekneſs to all men, however perverſe or provoking their conduct may be towards us.

2. He ſuggeſts the moſt cogent reaſons to enforce his exhortation.

(1.) The conſideration of their former ſinful ſtate: and the more deeply we are ſenſible of our own vileneſs, the more we ſhall feel ourſelves obliged to bear with others. For we ourſelves alſo were ſometimes fooliſh, as our oppoſers now are, ignorant of divine truth, and under the darkneſs of our fallen minds; diſobedient in ſpirit and practice, refuſing to hear and obey the dictates of God's word; deceived, and wandering out of the way, under the influence of a corrupted heart, and the wiles of Satan; ſerving divers luſts and pleaſures; perfect ſlaves to our ſenſual appetites, the baſeſt of all ſervitude: living in malice and envy; poſſeſſed and governed by theſe diabolical paſſions; regarding others, who were more proſperous in the world, with a malignant eye; and pleaſed with any miſeries which befel them. Hateful to God, and all who bear his image, becauſe of theſe abominations; and hating one another, with implacable reſentment. What a fearful deſcription! yet in this glaſs may every enlightened ſinner diſcover his own features, and own the humbling reſemblance; for as face anſwereth face, ſo doth the heart of man to man.

[2.] The kindneſs and love of God to them in their miſerable eſtate ſhould engage them to ſhew the like pity and compaſſion towards others. But after that, vile as we were, the kindneſs and love of God our Saviour, notwithſtanding, towards man appeared, moſt illuſtriouſly diſplayed in his glorious goſpel; not by works of righteouſneſs which we had done, for all our works were the very reverſe, and merited only wrath to the uttermoſt; but according to his mercy, in the moſt aſtoniſhing manner extended to the miſerable and the deſperate, he hath ſaved us, freely, ſovereignly, and for ever, by the waſhing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghoſt, who is the glorious agent of the divine change wrought in regeneration; cleanſing our ſouls from the power of corruption, quickening us to a life of grace and holineſs, maintaining and carrying it on day by day, till it is perfected in glory; which Holy Ghoſt he ſhed on us abundantly, both in his gifts and graces, through Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour, the purchaſer of every bleſſing for his redeemed people, and the diſpenſer of this Spirit unto them; that being juſtified by his grace, and through faith of the operation of God brought into a ſtate of pardon and reconciliation, we ſhould be made heirs of glory, according to the hope of eternal life, which he hath given us in that adored Redeemer, who hath obtained a compleat ſalvation for us, not only from all the miſeries of ſin, but unto all the bleſſedneſs of eternity. Note, (1.) The ſalvation of the ſinner is entirely of grace, from the beginning to the end: pardon, holineſs, and hope of life eternal, are all the gift of God through Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour. (2.) Though we are juſtified freely, not for any righteouſneſs of our own, but of God's mere favour; yet do we from that moment become different men, and new creatures, by the Spirit of our God renewed in our minds, and preparing for the glory which is prepared for us.

8. [m] This is a faithful ſaying, and theſe things I will that thou affirm conſtantly, that they which have believed in God, [n] might be careful to maintain good works: theſe things are good and profitable unto men. 9. But [o] avoid fooliſh queſtions, and genealogies, and contentions, and ſtrivings about the law; [p] for they are unprofitable and vain. 10. A man that is an heretic, [q] after the firſt and ſecond admonition, [r] reject: 11. Knowing that he that is ſuch is ſubverted, and ſinneth, being condemned of himſelf.

[m] 1 Tim. i. 15.
[n] Eph. ii. 10. Chap. ii. 14. Ver. 14.
[o] 1 Tim. i. 4. & iv. 7. 2 Tim. ii. 23.
[p] 2 Tim. ii. 14.
[q] 2 Cor. xiii. 2.
[r] Mat. xviii. 17. Rom. xvi. 17. 2 Theſ. iii. 6, 14. 2 John 10.

v. 8—11. The apoſtle here,

1. Inculcates the doctrine which Titus muſt preach. This is a faithful ſaying, all that I have above declared of the duties incumbent on believers, the miſery from which they have been redeemed, and the amazing grace of which they have been made partakers, is to be ſtedfaſtly believed and embraced: and theſe things I will that thou conſtantly affirm; often inſiſting upon them in the courſe of thy miniſtry, to the end, that they which have believed in God, to the ſaving of their ſouls, might be careful to maintain good works; to excel, and lead the way to others (προιςασθαι) with all diligence and zeal improving every opportunity which offers to be uſeful. Theſe things are good and profitable unto men; theſe doctrines here enforced have the moſt immediate tendency to advance the benefit of mankind, and promote their preſent and eternal good. Note, The doctrine of juſtification by grace is ſo far from deſtroying the obligation to good works, that it is the only real and effectual principle which can make us careful to maintain them.

2. He cautions him what to ſhun. But avoid fooliſh queſtions, and genealogies, and contentions, and ſtrivings about the law, which the judaizing teachers affect, to the great prejudice of Chriſtianity; for they are unprofitable and vain; tending to no one uſeful purpoſe, but ſowing diſcord in the church, and corrupting the ſimplicity of the goſpel.

3. A man that is an heretic, who openly profeſſes and maintains doctrines ſubverſive of the fundamental articles of faith, after the firſt and ſecond admonition, reject; if he continues obſtinate in his errors, remove him from your communion, and acknowledge him no longer as a brother: knowing that he that is ſuch is ſubverted, apoſtate from Chriſt, the only foundation; and ſinneth wilfully, being condemned of himſelf; openly broaching his ſentiments, departing from the confeſſion of faith which he formerly made, and avowedly ſeparating himſelf from the church of God. Note, They who refuſe to be reclaimed from their errors by repeated admonition, muſt be cut off from the body of the viſible church by excommunication.

12. When I ſhall ſend Artemas unto thee, or [s] Tychicus, be diligent to come unto me to Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter. 13. Bring Zenas the lawyer and [t] Apollos on their journey diligently, that nothing be wanting unto them. 14. And let ours alſo learn to [u] maintain good works for neceſſary uſes, that they [x] be not unfruitful. 15. All that are with me ſalute thee. Greet them that love us in the faith. Grace be with you all. Amen.

[s] Acts xx. 4. 2 Tim. iv. 12.
[t] Acts xviii. 24.
[u] Ver. 8.
† Or profeſs honeſt trades.
1 Theſ. ii. 9. 2 Theſ. iii. 8.
[x] Phil. i. 11. & iv. 17. 2 Pet. i. 8.

v. 12—15. We have here,

1. Some particular directions given to Titus. (1.) When I ſhall ſend Artemas unto thee, to ſupply thy abſence, or Tychicus, be diligent to come unto me to Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter. (2.) Bring Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their journey diligently, that nothing be wanting unto them, but that they be ſupplied with every neceſſary for their travels, when they remove to preach the goſpel in ſome other place. (3.) And let ours alſo learn to maintain good works for neceſſary uſes, that they be not unfruitful, but adorn the profeſſion which they make, diligent in their ſeveral employments, and liberal according to their ability in the maintainance of their miniſters, or in aſſiſting any of their brethren who may need their ſupport.

2. He concludes with ſalutations and his apoſtolic benediction. All that are with me ſalute thee affectionately. Greet them that love us in the faith, and are one in ſentiment and heart with us. Grace be with you all, in its moſt abundant fruits and richeſt manifeſtations, Amen! ſo prays your faithful friend, confident that God will hear and anſwer his petitions for you.

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR; OR, A PRACTICAL COMMENT Upon the EPISTLE of St. PAUL to PHILEMON.

THIS epiſtle to Philemon is placed the laſt of thoſe with the name of Paul to them, perhaps becauſe the ſhorteſt, and of an argument peculiar and different from all the others; yet ſuch as the Spirit of God, which indited it, ſaw would, in its kind, be very inſtructive and uſeful in the churches. The occaſion of it was this: Philemon, one of note, and probably a miniſter in the church of Coloſs, a city of Phrygia, had a ſervant named Oneſimus, who having purloined his goods, ran away from him, and in his rambles came to Rome, where Paul was then a priſoner for the goſpel, and providentially coming under his preaching there, was by the bleſſing of God converted by him; after which he miniſtred a while to the apoſtle in bonds, and might have been further uſeful to him, but underſtanding him to be another man's ſervant, he would not, without his conſent, detain him, but ſends him back with this letter commendatory, wherein he earneſtly ſues for his pardon and kind reception.

CHAP. I.

In this epiſtle we have the preface, ver. 1—7. The ſubſtance and body of it, ver. 8—21. And then the concluſion, ver. 22, to the end.

1. PAUL [a] a priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt, and Timothy our brother, unto Philemon our dearly beloved and fellow-labourer, 2. And to our beloved Apphia, and [b] Archippus [c] our fellow-ſoldier, and to [d] the church in thy houſe: 3. [e] Grace to you and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 4. [f] I thank my God, making mention of thee always in my prayers, 5. [g] Hearing of thy love and faith, which thou haſt toward the Lord Jeſus, and toward all ſaints; 6. That the communication of thy faith may become effectual by [h] the acknowledging of every good thing which is in you in Chriſt Jeſus. 7. For we have great joy and conſolation in thy love, becauſe the bowels of the ſaints [i] are refreſhed by thee, brother.

[a] Eph. iii. 1. & iv. 1. 2 Tim. i. 8. Ver. 9.
[b] Col. iv. 17.
[c] Phil. ii. 25.
[d] Rom. xvi. 5. 1 Cor. xvi. 19.
[e] Gal. i. 3. Eph. i. 2.
[f] Eph. i. 16. Phil. i. 3. 1 Theſ. i. 2. 2 Theſ. i. 3.
[g] Eph. i. 15. Col. i. 4.
[h] Phil. i. 9.
[i] 2 Tim. i. 16.

v. 1—7. We have here the preface to this ſhort but beautiful epiſtle, and may obſerve,

1. The perſons from whom it comes: from Paul, a priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt, now ſuffering for the goſpel cauſe; and Timothy our brother: and where two ſuch eminent ſervants of the Saviour concurred in a requeſt, what could be denied them?

2. The perſons to whom it is directed: unto Philemon our dearly beloved brother in Chriſt, and fellow-labourer in the goſpel; and to our beloved Apphia, and Archippus our fellow-ſoldier, in the glorious warfare under Chriſt the Captain of our ſalvation; and to the church in thy houſe, his whole family being converts to the faith, or the faithful at Coloſſe aſſembled there for worſhip; and by thus ſaluting them he ſeems deſirous to intereſt them on his behalf, and to ſollicit their concurrence in the requeſt he was about to make.

3. The ſalutation. Grace to you, in all its comprehenſive import; and peace, flowing from a ſenſe of pardon, acceptance, and the aſſured inheritance of glory; and both proceeding from God the Father, from his eternal, ſovereign, boundleſs love, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by whom all ſpiritual bleſſings have been purchaſed, and through whom alone they are beſtowed upon us.

4. His thankfulneſs and prayer. I thank my God, in a covenant of everlaſting love, making mention of thee always in my prayers, whenever I approach a throne of grace; hearing of thy love and faith, which thou haſt toward the Lord Jeſus, and toward all ſaints; for which I offer my unceaſing praiſes, and add my fervent prayers, that the communication of thy faith may become effectual, to engage thee to every farther inſtance of generoſity and benevolence, by the acknowledging of every good thing which is in you in, or towards, Chriſt Jeſus, to whom much glory will redound, and many thanks be offered by thoſe who feel the benefit of thoſe gracious diſpoſitions which the Saviour hath implanted, and which manifeſt themſelves in every work and labour of love towards his people for his ſake: for we have great joy and conſolation in hearing of thy diſtinguiſhed love, becauſe the bowels of the ſaints are refreſhed by thee, brother, who gratefully acknowledge thy extenſive charity; and this emboldens me to hope, that in the preſent inſtance my petition will be ſucceſsful.

8. Wherefore, [k] though I might be much bold in Chriſt, to enjoin thee that which is convenient, 9. Yet for love ſake I rather beſeech thee, being ſuch an one as Paul the aged, and now alſo [l] a priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt.

[k] 1 Theſ. ii. 6.
[l] Ver. 1.

Chriſt. 10. I beſeech thee for my ſon [m] Oneſimus, [n] whom I have begotten in my bonds: 11. Which in time paſt was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable to thee and to me: 12. Whom I have ſent again: thou therefore receive him, that is mine own bowels. 13. Whom I would have retained with me, [o] that in thy ſtead he might have miniſtred unto me in the bonds of the goſpel. 14. But without thy mind would I do nothing; [p] that thy benefit ſhould not be as it were of neceſſity, but willingly.

[m] Col. iv. 9.
[n] 1 Cor. iv. 15. Gal. iv. 19.
[o] 1 Cor. xvi. 17. Phil. ii. 30.
[p] 2 Cor. ix. 7.

v. 8—14. The apoſtle comes to the main buſineſs of the epiſtle, to intreat for poor Oneſimus: and he inſinuates a multitude of the moſt powerful arguments, which ſhould engage Philemon to grant his requeſt, and be reconciled to his fugitive ſervant.

1. He might have uſed his apoſtolic authority, but he prefers the intreaty of love. Wherefore, though I might be much bold in Chriſt, to enjoin thee that which is convenient, and it would have been your duty in the preſent caſe implicitly to obey; yet for love's ſake I rather beſeech thee, waving all ſuperiority, and pleading by that love which Jeſus hath ſhown to you, and I feel towards you, being ſuch an one as Paul the aged, grown old in the ſervice of our common Lord, and now alſo a priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt; therefore I cannot but be aſſured, whatever would be a comfort to me in theſe declining years, and ſerve to make my chain lighter, Philemon, for his Maſter's ſake and mine, will not fail to grant.—Inimitable is the manner in which the apoſtle introduces the point which he had in view. Having raiſed every tender ſentiment of love and friendſhip in his boſom, he,

2. Beautifully introduces in the moſt endearing light the ſubject of his requeſt. I beſeech thee for my ſon, one that now ſtands in that near relation to me,—and ſtartle not at the name,—ſtrange as it may appear,—the perſon is no other than Oneſimus, whom I have begotten in my bonds. So myſterious are the ways of providence, that, though a fugitive from thee, divine grace has led him to my priſon, there to become a partaker of the bleſſings of the goſpel.

3. He ſuggeſts the happy change now wrought upon him, which in time paſt was to thee unprofitable; with penitent ſhame he hath acknowledged his former ill behaviour, over which I would caſt a veil of oblivion; but now can ſpeak of him as a different man, whoſe ſpirit and actions I am confident will correſpond with his name, and he will be found profitable to thee, if received again into thy ſervice; and, as I have proved by ſome experience, would have been moſt uſeful to me. Note, (1.) When we ſpeak of the faults of penitents, it ſhould be with tenderneſs, not ſeverity. (2.) Wherever divine grace comes, it makes a bleſſed alteration. (3.) A Chriſtian ſervant is a truly profitable member in every family.

4. His own love to this ſignal convert ſhould engage Philemon's to him. Whom I have ſent again back to thy ſervice; thou therefore receive him, that is mine own bowels; moſt tenderly beloved, and for whom I plead with all the affection that I ſhould feel for my own child.

5. He had deprived himſelf of the very uſeful ſervice which Oneſimus would have afforded him, that he might reſtore him to his rightful maſter; referring it to Philemon whether he would ſend him back again to Rome, or not. Whom I would have retained with me, that in thy ſtead he might have miniſtred unto me in the bonds of the goſpel, and done me thoſe kind offices which I know thou wouldeſt have been happy to have afforded me thyſelf. But without thy mind would I do nothing, nor detain him longer here; that, if it ſhall pleaſe thee to do me the favour of ſending him hither again to miniſter unto me, thy benefit ſhould not appear to be as it were of neceſſity, but willingly, as a voluntary act of generoſity and friendſhip.

15. For perhaps he therefore departed for a ſeaſon, that thou ſhouldſt receive him for ever; 16. Not now as a ſervant, but above a ſervant, [q] a brother beloved, eſpecially to me, but how much more unto thee, both in the fleſh and in the Lord? 17. If thou count me therefore [r] a partner, receive him as myſelf. 18. If he hath wronged thee, or oweth thee ought, put that on mine account. 19. I Paul have written it with mine own hand, I will repay it: albeit I do not ſay to thee how thou oweſt unto me even thine own ſelf beſides. 20. Yea, brother, let me have joy of thee in the Lord: refreſh my bowels in the Lord. 21. [s] Having confidence in thy obedience I wrote unto thee, knowing that thou wilt alſo do more than I ſay.

[q] 1 Tim. vi. 2.
[r] 2 Cor. viii. 23.
[s] 2 Cor. vii. 16.

v. 15—21. The apoſtle proceeds to ſuggeſt other arguments, to engage Philemon kindly to receive this fugitive.

1. The mercy God had ſhewed him. For perhaps he therefore departed for a ſeaſon; ſo tenderly does the apoſtle mention his fault in flying his maſter's ſervice, ſince it was now ſo wonderfully by God's good providence over-ruled for good; that thou ſhouldeſt receive him for ever, as a ſervant for life, to dwell together for eternity: yet not now as a common ſervant, or ſlave, but above a ſervant, even as a brother in the goſpel, beloved and dear; eſpecially to me, who have been the happy inſtrument of his converſion; but how much more to thee, both in the fleſh, as a member of thy family, become moſt faithful and induſtrious; and in the Lord, as equally a partaker in all the bleſſings of the Redeemer's grace and love. Note, (1.) God ſometimes amazingly over-rules our moſt perverſe ways, to bring out of them the greateſt good. Oneſimus, under all the bleſſings of Philemon's miniſtry, and ſharing all the ordinances of his holy family, continued abandoned, turns thief and runagate, and flies to Rome; there the Lord finds him, and makes him a monument of mercy. (2.) Though Chriſtianity maintains in the ſtricteſt manner all due ſubordination of ſtations, yet really Chriſtian ſervants will have eſpecial reſpect and regard ſhown them by their maſters, who, as members of the ſame body, eſteem them as their beloved brethren.

2. The communion which ſubſiſted between them, as fellow-heirs of the ſame kingdom. If thou count me therefore a partner, a partaker of the ſame grace, and an inheritor of the ſame glory with thee, receive him as myſelf, with hearty affection and ſincere reconciliation.

3. He becomes Oneſimus's ſurety for any wrong Philemon had ſuſtained. If, as I have reaſon to apprehend, he hath wronged thee, or oweth thee ought, put that on mine account. I Paul have written it with mine own hand, I will repay it, and engage hereby to make you full ſatisfaction if demanded. Albeit I do not ſay to thee how deeply thou art indebted to me, as the inſtrument under God, and that thou oweſt unto me, what is infinitely more valuable than all the wealth of the world, even thine own ſoul alſo.

4. This inſtance of his condeſcenſion to his requeſt would give the apoſtle ſingular ſatisfaction, as a freſh proof of Philemon's fidelity. Yea, brother, let me have joy of thee in the Lord: on thy own account, as well as for the ſake of Oneſimus, I aſk it, that I may have rejoicing over thee, as a living member of Jeſus. Refreſh my bowels in the Lord, and give me this conſolation in my bonds, for that Redeemer's ſake in whoſe name I urge my requeſt. Note, (1.) Chriſtians are brethren, and, as ſuch, ſhould delight to ſerve each other. (2.) It is highly the people's duty to endeavour to comfort their miniſters, and to do every thing which may give them joy, and encourage them under their labours and ſufferings for the goſpel's ſake.

5. He concludes with expreſſing his confidence in Philemon, which laid the ſtrongeſt obligations upon him not to diſappoint his expectations. Having confidence in thy obedience to our Lord's command to forgive every injury, I wrote unto thee, knowing that thou wilt alſo do more than I ſay, and ſhew greater kindneſs to poor Oneſimus than I have requeſted, exceeding even my deſire.

22. But withal prepare me alſo a lodging: for [t] I truſt that [u] through your prayers I ſhall be given unto you. 23. There ſalute thee [x] Epaphras, my fellow-priſoner in Chriſt Jeſus; 24. [y] Marcus, [z] Ariſtarchus, [a] Demas, Lucas, my fellow-labourers. 25. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be [b] with your ſpirit. Amen.

[t] Phil. i. 25. & ii. 24.
[u] 2 Cor. i. 11.
[x] Col. i. 7. & iv. 12.
[y] Acts xii. 12. Col. iv. 10.
[z] Acts xix. 29.
[a] Col. iv. 14. 2 Tim. iv. 10.
[b] 2 Tim. iv. 22.

v. 22—25. Having finiſhed his main buſineſs, he cloſes,

1. With the intimation of a viſit ſhortly. But withal prepare me alſo a lodging: for I truſt that through your prayers I ſhall be delivered from my preſent confinement, and be given unto you, as a freſh act of favour from God, who for your further edification will enable me once more to miniſter his bleſſed goſpel among you. Note, (1.) Prayer is the effectual means to procure all mercies for ourſelves, and for each other. (2.) To have God's miniſters ſpared to labour yet longer among us, is a ſignal favour.

2. He ſends the ſalutations of many who deſired to be kindly remembred to him. There ſalute thee Epaphras, my fellow-priſoner in Chriſt Jeſus, ſharing my honourable bonds for the ſame glorious cauſe; Marcus, Ariſtarchus, Demas, Lucas, my fellow-labourers.

3. He concludes with his uſual benediction. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, in all its happy fruits, and eternally permanent effects, be with your ſpirit, with thee, and with all that are near and dear to thee, to bleſs, preſerve, and keep you for his everlaſting kingdom. Amen.

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;

OR, A

PRACTICAL COMMENT

Upon the EPISTLE to the

HEBREWS.

THIS epiſtle, though without a name, is generally aſcribed to the apoſtle Paul: In the primitive times it was aſcribed to him, and the ſtile and ſcope of it very well agrees with his ſpirit, whoſe main end and endeavour was to exalt Chriſt. And ſome think that the apoſtle Peter refers to this epiſtle, and proves Paul to be the penman of it, by telling the Hebrews, to whom he wrote, of Paul's having written to them, 2 Peter iii. 15. And we read of no other epiſtle that he ever wrote to them but this. And though it has been objected, that ſince Paul put his name to all his other epiſtles, he would not have omitted it here; yet others have well anſwered, that he being the apoſtle of the Gentiles, who were odious to the Jews, might think fit to conceal his name, leſt their prejudices againſt him might hinder them from reading and weighing it as they ought to do. As to the ſcope and deſign of this epiſtle, it is very evident it was clearly to inform the minds, and ſtrongly to confirm the judgment of the Hebrews in the tranſcendent excellency of the goſpel above the law, and ſo to take them off from the ceremonies of the law, to which they were ſo wedded, of which they were ſo fond, that they even doted on them. And thoſe of them that were Chriſtians retained too much of the old leaven, and wanted to be purged from it; he wanted therefore to perſuade and preſs the believing Hebrews to a conſtant adherence to the Chriſtian faith, and perſeverance in it, notwithſtanding all the ſufferings they might meet with in ſo doing. In order to this, he ſpeaks much of the excellency of the author of the goſpel, the glorious Jeſus, whoſe honour he advances, and whom he juſtly prefers before all others, ſhewing him to be all in all, and this in lofty ſtrains of holy rhetoric. It muſt be acknowledged there are many things in this epiſtle hard to be underſtood; but the ſweetneſs we ſhall find therein, will make us abundant amends for all the pains we take to underſtand it. And indeed if we compare all the epiſtles of the New Teſtament, we ſhall not find any of them more repleniſhed with divine, heavenly matter than this to the Hebrews.

CHAP. I.

In this chapter we have a twofold compariſon ſtated. (1.) Between the evangelical and legal diſpenſation, and the excellency of the goſpel above that of the law is aſſerted and proved, ver. 1, 2, 3. (2.) Between the glory of Chriſt, and that of the higheſt Creatures, the angels; where the preeminence is juſtly given to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and clearly demonſtrated to belong unto him, from ver. 4, to the end of the chapter.

1. GOD, who † at ſundry times, [a] and in divers manners, ſpake in time paſt unto the fathers by the prophets, 2. Hath [b] in theſe laſt days [c] ſpoken unto us by his Son, [d] whom he hath appointed heir of all things, [e] by whom alſo he made the worlds. 3. [f] Who being the brightneſs of his glory, and the expreſs image of his perſon, and [g] upholding all things by the word of his power, when [h] he had by himſelf purged our ſins, [i] ſat down on the right hand of the Majeſty on high: 4. Being made ſo much better than the angels, as [k] he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they. 5. For unto which of the angels ſaid he at any time, [l] Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, [m] I will be to him a Father, and he ſhall be to me a Son? 6. And ‡ again, when he bringeth in [n] the Firſt-begotten into the world, he ſaith, And [o] let all the angels of God worſhip him. 7. And of the angels he ſaith, [p] Who maketh his angels ſpirits, and his miniſters a flame of fire. 8. But unto the Son he ſaith, [q] Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever; a ſceptre of righteouſneſs is the ſceptre of thy kingdom: 9. Thou haſt loved righteouſneſs, and hated iniquity; therefore [r] God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladneſs above thy fellows. 10. And, [s] Thou, Lord, in the beginning haſt laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands: 11. [t] They ſhall periſh, but thou remaineſt; and they all ſhall wax old as doth a garment; 12. And as a veſture ſhalt thou fold them up, and they ſhall

† Gr. by ſeveral parts.

[a] Num. xii. 6, 8.

[b] Gal. i. 4. Eph. i. 10.

[c] John xv. 15.

[d] Pſ. ii. 8. Mat. xxi. 38. John iii. 35. Eph. i. 22.

[e] John i. 3. Eph. iii. 9. Col. i 16.

[f] Wiſd. vii. 26. 2 Cor. iv. 4. Col. i. 15.

[g] Col. i. 17.

[h] Chap. ix. 14, 26.

[i] Pſ. cx. 1. Eph. i. 20. Chap. x. 12. 1 Pet. iii. 22.

[k] Eph. i. 21. Phil. ii. 9, 10.

[l] Pſ. ii. 7. Acts xiii. 33. Chap. v. 5.

[m] 2 Sam. vii. 14. 1 Chro. xxii. 10. Pſ. lxxxix. 26.

‡ Or when he bringeth again.

[n] Rom. viii. 29. Col. i. 18.

[o] Deut. xxxii. 43. Pſ. xcvii. 7.

[p] Pſ. civ. 4.

[q] Pſ. xlv. 6, 7.

[r] Acts x. 38.

[s] Pſ. cii. 25, &c.

[t] Iſa. xxxiv. 4. & li. 6. 2 Pet. iii. 7, 10.

ſhall be changed: but thou art the ſame, and thy years ſhall not fail. 13. But to which of the angels ſaid he at any time, [w] Sit on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footſtool? 14. [x] Are they not all miniſtring ſpirits, ſent forth to miniſter for them who ſhall be heirs of ſalvation?

[w] Pſ. cx. 1. Mat. xxii. 44. Acts ii. 34. 1 Cor. xv. 25. Chap. x. 12.

[x] Ex. xxiii. 20. Pſ. xxxiv. 7. & xci. 11. Dan. vi. 22. Mat. xviii. 10. Acts v. 19. & xii. 7.

v. 1—14. The excellence of the goſpel diſpenſation above the Moſaical opens this beautiful epiſtle. The apoſtle ſhews,

1. The different way in which God communicated his will to the church of old, and to his people at preſent. God, who at ſundry times, by degrees, with increaſing clearneſs, and in diverſe manners, by types, viſions, dreams, audible voices, and immediate inſpiration, ſpake in time paſt unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in theſe laſt days, at the cloſe of the Jewiſh œconomy, and in that diſpenſation of grace which is the laſt which will be ever vouchſafed to the ſons of men, and under this title of the laſt days hath been foretold by the inſpired penmen, God hath, I ſay, now ſpoken unto us by his Son, the moſt glorious meſſenger who was ever yet employed in communicating the revelation of his will to man; in nature one with the Father, in majeſty coeternal.

2. He enlarges on the ſurpaſſing excellence of this Son of God, who had appeared in the human nature. (1.) It is He whom he hath appointed heir of all things as Mediator, exalting him to the ſovereign and univerſal dominion over the works of his hands, and eſpecially giving him to be head over all things to his church, in and through whom every member of it can only be entitled to the eternal inheritance. (2.) By whom alſo he made the worlds, exerting his co-agency and co-operation with the Father, not as an inſtrument, but as the great Creator. (3.) Who being the brightneſs of his glory, Light of Light, and very God of very God, poſſeſſing the eſſential attributes of Deity; and the expreſs image of his perſon, bearing his exact reſemblance in every divine perfection, appears his viſible repreſentative. And, (4.) As he is the Creator, ſo he continues upholding all things by the word of his power, ſupporting and governing them by his providence. (5.) When he had by himſelf purged our ſins, Himſelf, the great High-prieſt and Sacrifice, expiating the tranſgreſſions of his people, which the blood of bulls and goats, ſhed by the levitical prieſts, could never take away, and by one oblation of himſelf, once offered, obtaining eternal redemption for us. (6.) When he had thus made the all-atoning ſacrifice on the croſs, he ſat down at the right hand of the Majeſty on high, in virtue of his own blood entering into the holy place not made with hands, and, as a prieſt upon his throne, (Zech. vi. 13.) he is exalted to the higheſt dignity and glory in the human nature. (7.) He hath the pre-eminence, not only above the greateſt prophets, but over the higheſt of the heavenly hoſts; being made ſo much better than the angels; in his character as Mediator, as well as in the tranſcendent excellence of his divine nature, he infinitely ſurpaſſes the moſt glorious of all created beings, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they, even the name of Son of God, in a ſenſe peculiar to himſelf, and which appears evident from the tranſcendent exaltation which in virtue of his ſufferings he hath now by right obtained.

3. In ſupport of his argument, to prove the infinite pre-eminence of the incarnate Son above the higheſt of the angelic hoſts, he brings the ſtrongeſt proofs from thoſe ſcriptures which the Jews admitted as of divine authority. For unto which of the angels ſaid he at any time, Thou art my Son, the ſame in eſſential Deity; this day have I begotten thee, even from eternity, which to God is one permanent unſucceſſive day; or this refers to his reſurrection from the dead, whereby his eternal Sonſhip was manifeſted, (Rom. i. 4.) And again, I will be to him a Father, and he ſhall be to me a Son, treated with peculiar and diſtinguiſhing love, and raiſed to the eternal throne of glory. And again, when he bringeth in the Firſt-begotten, the appointed Heir of all things, into the world, at his miraculous conception, he ſaith, And let all the angels of God worſhip him, and pay him that divine honour which is due to their Creator alone, and is the unalienable right of Deity. And of the angels he ſaith, Who maketh his angels ſpirits, and his miniſters a flame of fire; their higheſt honour and dignity is to be ſervants of the great Jehovah, and as flames of fire, with ſuch activity and powerful agency, to execute his will and pleaſure. But unto the Son, as their eternal King, he ſaith, Thy throne, O God, who art the eſſential Jehovah, is for ever and ever, from everlaſting unchangeably the ſame, and to eternity muſt endure; a ſceptre of righteouſneſs is the ſceptre of thy kingdom; Thou haſt the moſt indiſputed title to reign; thy boſom is the ſeat of juſtice, and thy adminiſtration is marked with unſullied truth, holineſs, and equity. Thou haſt loved righteouſneſs, fulfilling it in thy own perſon and approving it in thy people, and hated iniquity, about to puniſh it with everlaſting perdition; therefore God, even thy God, thy covenant God as the incarnate Mediator, hath anointed thee to the office of prophet, prieſt, and king, with the oil of gladneſs, with the moſt unmeaſureable fulneſs of ſpiritual gifts and graces, above thy fellows, whether angels or ſaints, kings, prieſts, or prophets. And thou, Lord, in the beginning, before any creature yet had a being, by thy omnipotent creative power, haſt laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands; all the creatures, ſpiritual or corporeal, animate or inanimate, from the higheſt to the loweſt, own thee their great Creator. They ſhall periſh, this viſible creation of heaven and earth ſhall decay; but thou remaineſt, unchangeable, immortal; and they all ſhall wax old as doth a garment, the creatures of this lower world are mouldring daily, and nature's diſſolution is at hand; and as a veſture ſhalt thou fold them up, and they ſhall be changed; but thou art the ſame, immutably, eternally, and thy years ſhall not fail, the ſame yeſterday, to-day, and for ever. But to which of the angels ſaid he at any time, as he did to his incarnate Son, Sit thou on my right hand, enthroned in ſupreme majeſty, until I make thine enemies thy footſtool, and raiſe thee triumphant over every foe, when ſin, Satan, death, and hell, ſhall be for ever put under thy feet? Such language belongs not to the higheſt of the angelic hoſt: for are they not all miniſtring ſpirits, ſervants to the great Mediator, and ſent forth, under his command, to miniſter for them, in every kind office, who ſhall be heirs of ſalvation, appointed to the eternal inheritance in virtue of their relation to their exalted Head? From the whole we may obſerve, 1. The tranſcendent glory of the Lord Jeſus: (1.) In his divine nature. (2.) In his mediatorial capacity. The great Creator—the ſelf-exiſtent Jehovah—the eternal, immutable God—the object of adoration to the higheſt beings, angels as well as men—and reigning and to reign for ever and ever. 2. The honour and office of the angelic hoſts; to adore their King, to obey his mandates with delight and vigour, and to ſerve thoſe highly diſtinguiſhed ſons of men who are appointed to be heirs of ſalvation. 3. The dignity of God's children, ſtanding in this high and holy relation to him as adopted by his grace and deſigned for the enjoyment of his glory, attended by miniſters of flame, and ſhortly to be conducted by them to their eternal home. 4. Vaſt and amazing as this viſible creation now appears, the day approaches when, like the baſeleſs fabric of a viſion, all ſhall be diſſolved, and by almighty power ſhall ariſe a new heaven and earth, to be the bleſt abode of the redeemed. 5. Jeſus muſt reign on his mediatorial throne till all his enemies are finally ſubdued, and his triumphant people ſhall come to reign with him in glory everlaſting.

CHAP. II.

In this chapter the apoſtle, 1. Makes ſome application of the doctrine laid down in the foregoing, concerning the excellency of the perſon of Chriſt, both by way of exhortation and argument, ver. 1, 2, 3, 4. 2. Enlarges farther upon the preeminence of Chriſt above the angels, ver. 5, 6, 7. 3. He proceeds to remove the ſcandal of the croſs, ver. 10—16. 4. To aſſert the incarnation of Chriſt, taking upon him not the nature of angels, but the ſeed of Abraham, and aſſigns the reaſon of his ſo doing, ver. 16. to the end.

1. THerefore [a] we ought to give the more earneſt heed to the things which we have heard, leſt at any time we ſhould † let them ſlip. 2. For if the word [b] ſpoken by angels was ſtedfaſt, and [c] every tranſgreſſion and diſobedience received a juſt recompenſe of reward; 3. [d] How ſhall we eſcape if we neglect ſo great ſalvation, [e] which at the firſt began to be ſpoken by the Lord, and [f] was confirmed unto us by them that heard him; 4. [g] God alſo bearing them witneſs, both with ſigns and wonders, and with divers miracles, and [h] gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, according to his own will?

[a] Chap. iii. 6.

† Gr. Run out as leaking veſſels.

[b] Deut. xxxiii. 2. Acts vii. 53. Gal. iii. 19.

[c] Deut. xxvii. 26. Chap. x. 28.

[d] Chap. x. 29. & xii. 25.

[e] Mat. iv. 17. Mark i. 14.

[f] Luke i. 2.

[g] Mark xvi. 20. Acts ii. 22. & xiv. 3. Rom. xv. 19.

[h] 1 Cor. xii. 4, 7, 11.

v. 1—4. The apoſtle, as he proceeds, applies the doctrine which he had advanced.

Therefore we ought to give the more earneſt heed to the things which we have heard, conſidering the infinite dignity and glory of the Speaker; eagerly attentive to his words, ſtoring them up in our memory, and fixing them as principles of action in our hearts; leſt at any time we ſhould let them ſlip, and our treacherous memories, like leaking veſſels, ſhould ſuffer them to run out; or they ſhould glide by us (παραρυωμεν) as a ſtream, unnoticed and neglected. For if the word ſpoken by angels, the law given to Moſes on mount Sinai, was ſtedfaſt and valid, ſtamped with divine authority, and guarded with the moſt awful ſanctions; and every tranſgreſſion and diſobedience received a juſt recompenſe of reward, as the righteous puniſhment inflicted by divine juſtice; how ſhall we eſcape, what aggravated guilt and ruin muſt be on us who have heard the goſpel, if we neglect ſo great ſalvation; great inexpreſſibly, if we conſider the depths of the miſeries into which we were fallen, the wonderful means uſed to extricate us, or the infinite mercies, bleſſings, and benefits, accruing to us thereby; a ſalvation, which comes recommended in the ſtrongeſt manner, as at the firſt it began to be ſpoken by the Lord of life and glory incarnate, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him, the apoſtles and others, who, commiſſioned by him, proclaimed the glad tidings of his goſpel through the world: God alſo bearing them witneſs to the divinity of that doctrine which they preached, both with ſigns and wonders, and with di- verſe miracles of the moſt ſtupendous kind, and gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, the moſt aſtoniſhing and various, given according to his own will, for the confirmation of their teſtimony: an atteſtation far more excellent than was given to the law of Moſes. Note, (1.) When matters of ſuch eternal importance are at ſtake, as the ſalvation of an immortal ſoul, we can never be ſufficiently careful and attentive. (2.) Whatever puniſhments God inflicts on ſinners, they are no more than the juſt reward of their deeds. (3.) Neglect of the goſpel is among the moſt atrocious crimes, and will be viſited with the ſevereſt judgments.

5. For unto the angels hath he not put in ſubjection [i] the world to come, whereof we ſpeak. 6. But one in a certain place teſtified, ſaying, [k] What is man that thou art mindful of him? or the ſon of man, that thou viſiteſt him? 7. Thou madeſt him † a little lower than the angels; thou crownedſt him with glory and honour, and didſt ſet him over the works of thy hands: 8. [l] Thou haſt put all things in ſubjection under his feet. For in that he put all in ſubjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. But now [m] we ſee not yet all things put under him. 9. But we ſee Jeſus, [n] who was made a little lower than the angels, for the ſuffering of death, [o] crowned with glory and honour; [p] that he by the grace of God ſhould taſte death for every man.

[i] Chap. vi. 5. 2 Pet. iii. 13.
[k] Pſ. viii. 4, &c.
† Or a little while inferior to.
[l] 1 Cor. xv. 27. Eph. i. 22. Chap. i. 13.
[m] 1 Cor. xv. 25.
[n] Phil. ii. 7, 8.
[o] Acts ii. 33.
[p] Rom. viii. 32. 2 Cor. v. 15.

v. 5—9. The apoſtle returns to the compariſon between the Mediator and the angelic hoſts, ſhewing his ſurpaſſing excellence.

For unto the angels hath he not put in ſubjection the world to come, whereof we ſpeak, that is, the goſpel diſpenſation, and the church under the new teſtament; not employing them as he did under the moſaical œconomy. But one in a certain place teſtified, when contemplating the glories of creation, What is man, how deſpicable a worm, that thou art mindful of him, and ſhouldſt ſend thy co-eternal Son to take man's nature upon him? or what is the ſon of man, a poor frail mortal, that thou viſiteſt him, and in the perſon of the incarnate Saviour ſhouldſt raiſe the human nature to ſuch diſtinguiſhed and tranſcendent glory. Thou madeſt him a little lower than the angels, or for a little while (βραχυ τι) during his ſtate of humiliation and ſufferings unto death; thou crownedſt him with glory and honour, raiſing him triumphant from the grave, and, exalting him to the throne of Majeſty on high, didſt ſet him over the works of thy hands, beſtowing on him abſolute and univerſal dominion over every creature: thou haſt put all things in ſubjection under his feet; not only all the enemies of himſelf and people, ſin, Satan, death and hell, but all principalities and powers, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but in that alſo which is to come. For in that he put all in ſubjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him, angels, as well as others, being included within his abſolute and univerſal empire. But now we ſee not yet all things put under him, either man in general, or any individual of the human ſpecies; ſo that theſe words appertain not to any of Adam's natural deſcendants; or under Jeſus Chriſt himſelf at preſent, who hath not yet utterly ſubdued all his enemies, the time of his final conqueſt not being arrived. But we ſee this bleſſed Jeſus, who was made a little lower than the angels, during a while, for the ſufferings of death, that he might in the human nature die for the ſins of his people; wherein he appeared inferior to theſe immortal ſpirits; we ſee him now crowned with glory and honour, on a throne, at the right hand of God, reigning till every foe ſhall become his footſtool; that he by the grace of God, of his mere ſovereign love and mercy, ſhould taſte death for every man; not for every individual of the human ſpecies, but for Jew and Gentile, for ſinners of every rank and degree, even for all thoſe many ſons whom God before the worlds ordained unto glory. Note, (1.) The fontal cauſe of our ſalvation is the ſovereign grace of God; the meritorious cauſe is the death of our incarnate Redeemer. (2.) In Chriſt man's nature is exalted above the angels; and we, by virtue of union with him, have obtained even a more excellent name than they.

10. For it became him [q] for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many ſons unto glory, to make [r] the captain of their ſalvation [s] perfect through ſufferings. 11. For both he that ſanctifieth, and [t] they who are ſanctified, [u] are all of one: for which cauſe he is not aſhamed to call them [x] brethren, 12. Saying, [y] I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midſt of the church will I ſing praiſe unto thee. 13. And again, [z] I will put my truſt in him. And again, [a] Behold, I and the children which God hath given me.

[q] Rom. xi. 36.
[r] Acts iii. 15. & v. 31.
[s] Luke xiii. 32. Chap. v. 9.
[t] Chap. x. 10, 14.
[u] Eph. v. 30. Ver. 14.
[x] Mat. xxviii. 10. John xx. 17.
[y] Pſ. xxii. 22, 25.
[z] Pſ. xviii. 2.
[a] Iſa. viii. 18.

v. 10—13. The croſs was the offenſive doctrine at which the Hebrews ſtumbled. The apoſtle therefore ſhews the excellence of this method of ſalvation: how glorious to God; how effectual for us.

For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, it was moſt ſuitable and becoming, and ſerved moſt eminently to diſplay the glory of all his divine perfections, in bringing many ſons unto glory, even the multitude of the redeemed whom he had choſen in Chriſt Jeſus, to make the Captain (ἀρχηγον) Leader and Author, of their ſalvation perfect through ſufferings, completely fitted and conſecrated thereby for the execution of his mediatorial office, having made full ſatisfaction to the divine juſtice for the ſins of his people. For both he that ſanctifieth, the Redeemer himſelf, who ſaves from the guilt and power of ſin, and they who are ſanctified by his blood and Spirit, are all of one blood, receiving the human nature from one common parent; and, as included in the ſame covenant of redemption, have one Father, even God: for which cauſe he is not aſhamed to call them brethren, but condeſcends to own the endearing relation, ſaying, (Pſalm xxii. 22.) I will declare thy name unto my brethren, opening to them all the glories of divine grace diſplayed in the goſpel; in the midſt of the church will I ſing praiſe unto thee, celebrating the wonders of thy love to thy peculiar people, (Matth. xxvi. 30). And again, (Pſ. xviii. 2.) I will put my truſt in him, confident of his ſupport under all my ſufferings, and that they ſhall be effectual to the ſalvation of my people. And again, Behold, I and the children which God hath given me, as the travail of my ſoul, for whom I am ready to undergo every affliction, that I may at laſt be able to preſent them before the preſence of his glory with exceeding great joy. Note, (1.) God hath many ſons whom he hath decreed to bring unto glory; and though they be few in any one age or place, yet, when collected, they will be an innumerable multitude. (2.) We muſt be his children by adoption and grace, before we can receive the heavenly inheritance. (3.) In the method God hath taken to ſave ſinners, by the incarnation of his Son, he hath acted eminently as became him, that, in the moſt amazing exerciſe of grace, he might withal make the moſt ſignal diſplay of his juſtice and inexorable hatred of ſin. (4.) The way to glory is through ſufferings: the Head and the members muſt walk in the ſame ſteps; and, ſince he hath gone before, he hath conſecrated the croſs, and to bear it is our honour, and will prove in the iſſue our unſpeakable advantage. (5.) Chriſt is our elder brother; with what endearing affection ought we then to regard him, conſidering what he is to us, and what he hath done for us!

14. Foraſmuch then as the children are partakers of fleſh and blood, [b] he alſo himſelf likewiſe took part of the ſame: [c] that through death he might deſtroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; 15. And [d] deliver them who through fear of death were all their life-time ſubject to bondage. 16. For verily † he took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the ſeed of Abraham. 17. Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be [e] made like unto his brethren; that he might be [f] a merciful and faithful high-prieſt, in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the ſins of the people: 18. For in that he himſelf hath ſuffered, being tempted, he is able to ſuccour them that are tempted.

[b] John i. 14. Phil. ii. 7.
[c] 1 Cor. xv. 54, 55. Col. ii. 15. 2 Tim. i. 10.
[d] Rom. viii. 15. 2 Tim. i. 7.
† Gr. He taketh not hold of angels, but, &c.
[e] Phil. ii. 7.
[f] Chap. iv. 15. & v. 2.

v. 14—18. By Chriſt's incarnation was the redemption of his people to be accompliſhed.

Foraſmuch then as the children, whom the Lord had given him, are partakers of fleſh and blood; and as in the human nature ſin had been committed, in this nature it muſt be expiated; therefore he alſo himſelf likewiſe took part of the ſame, made exactly in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, and one with them; that through death, giving himſelf to ſuffer in their ſtead, and bearing their ſins in his own body on the tree, he might deſtroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil, by whoſe malice death firſt entred into the world, and who is the executioner of God's wrath upon ſinners: but his dominion is now broken, and his kingdom overthrown, by the death and reſurrection of Jeſus, who died and roſe again, that he might deliver them who through fear of death were all their life-time ſubject to bondage, the ſting of death, which is ſin, being taken out of their conſciences, and all their diſmal apprehenſions of the conſequences of death being utterly removed. For verily he took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the ſeed of Abraham, aſſuming the human nature, as a deſcendant from Abraham after the fleſh. Wherefore, we may infer from hence that, in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, ſin only excepted; that, experiencing in his own perſon all the infirmities and miſeries incident to the human nature, he might be a merciful and faithful High-prieſt, touched with tender ſympathy towards them, and with all fidelity diſcharging his office, in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the ſins of the people by the fulleſt ſatisfaction paid to the divine juſtice, and appearing, as their great High-prieſt, in the preſence of God, with his own all-atoning blood: for in that he himſelf hath ſuffered, being tempted, he knows what ſore temptations beſet his people, can tenderly feel for them, and is able to ſuccour them that are tempted;

and make them with himſelf triumphant over all their enemies. Note, (1.) Chriſt is very man, as well as very God: it was as neceſſary that he ſhould ſuffer in our nature, as it was eſſential to the efficacy of thoſe ſufferings, that he ſhould be God incarnate. (2.) Satan, ſin, and death, are all vanquiſhed: ſince the Saviour bled, they have no more power to hurt his redeemed people; and we may now triumph over them, ſince life and immortality are before us, through our crucified Jeſus. (3.) Chriſt hath made reconciliation between the offended God and the ſinful ſoul: ſince he hath offered the atonement, juſtice is ſatisfied, and grace enthroned. (4.) It is our comfort under all our preſent trials and ſufferings, that we have one to go to, who hath felt all our ſorrows, knows our infirmity, and hath now power great as his love to ſuccour and ſave to the uttermoſt all that come unto God by him.

CHAP. III.

In this chapter the apoſtle applies what he had ſaid in the chapter foregoing concerning the prieſthood of Chriſt. 1. In a ſerious pathetic exhortation, that this great high prieſt that was diſcovered to them, might be ſeriouſly conſidered by them, ver. 1—7. and then adds many weighty counſels and cautions from ver. 7, to the end.

1. WHerefore, holy brethren, partakers of [a] the heavenly calling, conſider [b] the apoſtle and [c] high prieſt of our profeſſion, Chriſt Jeſus; 2. Who was faithful to him that † appointed him, as alſo [d] Moſes was faithful in all his houſe. 3. For this man was counted worthy of more glory than Moſes, in as much as [e] he who hath builded the houſe hath more honour than the houſe. 4. For every houſe is builded by ſome man; but [f] he that built all things is God. 5. And Moſes verily was faithful in all his houſe as a ſervant, for a teſtimony of thoſe things which were to be ſpoken after; 6. But Chriſt as a Son over his own houſe: [g] whoſe houſe are we, [h] if we hold faſt the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end.

[a] Phil. iii. 14.
[b] Rom. xv. 8.
[c] Chap. iv. 14. & vi. 20. & viii. 1. & ix. 11.
† Gr. made. 1 Sam. xii. 6.
[d] Num. xii. 7.
[e] Zech. vi. 12. Mat. xvi. 18.
[f] Eph. ii. 10.
[g] 1 Cor. iii. 16. & vi. 19. 2 Cor. vi. 16. Eph. ii. 21, 22. 1 Tim. iii. 15. 1 Pet. ii. 5.
[h] Mat. xxiv. 13. Ver. 14. Chap. vi. 11.

v. 1—6. We have here the application of the foregoing conſiderations. The excellency of our great High-prieſt ſhould draw up our hearts in all holy affection and humble adoration to him.

Wherefore, holy brethren, renewed in the ſpirit of your minds, partakers of the heavenly calling, admitted to all the bleſſings and privileges of the goſpel, conſider the apoſtle and high prieſt of our profeſſion, Chriſt Jeſus, ſent of God, appointed to his office on purpoſe to make reconciliation, and whom we profeſs to believe in as the author of all bleſſedneſs; conſider his tranſcendent dignity, and the characters he bears towards us.

1. With what fidelity he diſcharged his truſt as a prophet. Who was faithful to him that appointed him, revealing to us all his Father's will; as alſo Moſes, who was his eminent type, was faithful in all his houſe; communicating to the church in the wilderneſs, among whom Chriſt in the divine Shechinah dwelt, as in his own houſe, all the ſtatutes and ordinances delivered unto him.

2. How far ſuperior he is to Moſes, as the builder of his own church. For this man (ȣ̔τος), this incarnate Jeſus, was counted worthy of more glory than Moſes, in as much as he who hath builded the houſe hath more honour than the houſe. The maſter, owner, and builder of the houſe muſt needs be far above any member of the family which inhabits it; and Moſes, though ſo diſtinguiſhed, was but one of the many faithful in the church, of which the Lord Jeſus is the maker and builder, therefore muſt be far inferior to him. For every houſe is builded by ſome man; but he that built all things, and regulated, furniſhed, and ſet in order every thing pertaining to his church, whether under the Jewiſh or evangelical diſpenſation, is God, even that Jeſus who ſhares all the incommunicable attributes of deity, and is very God, as well as very man.

3. Moſes was but a ſervant; Chriſt is the Son over his own houſe. And Moſes verily was faithful in all his houſe as a ſervant merely, for a teſtimony of thoſe things which were to be ſpoken after; to foretel and prefigure in the rites enjoined by him, according to divine command, the great things that under the goſpel ſhould be more fully and clearly revealed. But Chriſt is infinitely his ſuperior, as a Son over his own houſe, the church erected by him, and purchaſed with his blood; whoſe houſe are we that believe, the happy members of his family, if we hold faſt the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope, which the goſpel inſpires, unto the end, which will prove the reality of our profeſſions, and our aſſured intereſt in all the bleſſings of his holy family. Note, (1.) Chriſt is the glorious object, who ſhould ever be in our eye: the more we conſider him, the more ſhall we honour, love, and ſerve him. (2.) Thoſe who are brethren in Chriſt, and truly partakers of the heavenly calling, will prove it by the holineſs of their walk and converſation. (3.) They who are living members of Chriſt never fail, but hold faſt their confidence and rejoicing of hope ſtedfaſt unto the end.

7. Wherefore as the holy Ghoſt ſaith, [i] To-day if ye will hear his voice, 8. Harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, in [k] the day of temptation in the wilderneſs: 9. When your fathers tempted me, proved me, and [l] ſaw my works forty years. 10. Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and ſaid, They do alway err in their heart; and they have not known my ways. 11. So I ſware in my wrath, † [m] They ſhall not enter into my reſt. 12. [n] Take heed, brethren, leſt there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God. 13. [o] But exhort one another daily while it is called, To-day; leſt any of you be hardened through the deceitfulneſs of ſin. 14. For we are made partakers of Chriſt, [p] if we hold the beginning of our confidence ſtedfaſt unto the end; 15. While it is ſaid, [q] To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation. 16. For [r] ſome, when they had heard, did provoke: [s] howbeit not all that came out of Egypt by Moſes. 17. But with whom was he grieved forty years? was it not with them that had ſinned, [t] whoſe carcaſes fell in the wilderneſs? 18. And [u] to whom ſware he that they ſhould not enter into his reſt, but to them that believed not? 19. So we ſee that [x] they could not enter in becauſe of unbelief.

[i] Pſ. xcv. 7. Ver. 15. Chap. iv. 7.
[k] Ex. xvii. 2, &c.
[l] Deut. xxix. 2, &c.
† Gr. If they ſhall, &c.
[m] Num. xiv. 21, 23. Deut. i. 35.
[n] Chap. iv. 1, 11. & xii. 15.
[o] Chap. x. 24.
[p] Ver. 6.
[q] Ver. 7. Chap. iv. 7.
[r] Num. xiv. 4.
[s] Deut. i. 36.
[t] Num. xiv. 22, 29, &c. & xxvi. 65. Jude 5.
[u] Num. xiv. 30. Deut. i. 34, 35.
[x] Num. xx. 12.

v. 7—19. As it is not nominal profeſſion, but perſevering fidelity, which can prove the truth of our relation to Jeſus, the apoſtle proceeds to caution and warn them by former examples.

Wherefore as the Holy Ghoſt ſaith, (Pſ. xcv. 7.) To-day if ye will hear his voice, without delay, or trifling with God's patience any longer, harden not your hearts againſt all the calls and warnings of God, as your fathers did in the provocation, in the day of temptation in the wilderneſs, when, by their murmurings, unbelief, and diſobedience, your fathers tempted me, proved me, how mindful I am of my promiſe, and how long-ſuffering; and ſaw my works forty years; receiving the ſtrongeſt evidences of my faithfulneſs, power, and grace. Wherefore, wearied out with their perverſeneſs, and incorrigible ingratitude and infidelity, I was grieved with that generation, and ſaid, They do alway err in their heart, ſtubborn, and wilfully rebellious; and they have not known my ways; they delight not in them, and chuſe their own deluſions. So I ſware in my wrath, juſtly offended by their continued impenitence, they ſhall not enter into my reſt, the land of promiſe, the type of that eternal reſt which remaineth for the faithful above. Note, (1.) Whilſt the day of life and hope is prolonged, we are called to ſeize and improve the precious moment on which eternity depends. (2.) Continued hardneſs of heart againſt the calls of grace, and the warnings of providence, muſt infallibly iſſue in everlaſting ruin. (3.) God bears long, but he will not bear always. He will ſwear in his wrath, that the incorrigible ſhall not enter into his reſt.

The example which he had quoted, the apoſtle applies,

1. For their caution. Take heed, brethren, leſt there be in any of you, as was in them, an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God. Note, (1.) Unbelief is the damning ſin. (2.) There may be much heart unbelief under the moſt ſpecious profeſſions of faith. (3.) Where unbelief prevails, departure from God our Saviour neceſſarily follows. (4.) It calls for all our watchfulneſs and prayer, that our ſouls do not ſuffer ſhipwreck on this fatal rock.

2. He ſuggeſts the means of preventing the ſo much to be dreaded evil. But exhort and encourage one another daily, while it is called To-day; improve every opportunity during this fleeting moment of life, to excite each other to watchfulneſs and holy diligence; leſt any of you, who have made profeſſion of the goſpel, be hardened through the deceitfulneſs of ſin; your conſciences lulled aſleep, and your ſouls perverted and ſeduced from the ſimplicity of the goſpel. Note, (1.) Chriſtian brethren ſhould maintain a holy jealouſy over each other. (2.) Since the time is ſo ſhort, we need be earneſt to redeem it for the beſt purpoſes. (3.) Sin comes with a moſt alluring aſpect, and lurks often under the moſt ſpecious appearances. (4.) Wherever ſin gains poſſeſſion of the heart, hardneſs and inſenſibility naturally follow; ſo that they who are in the moſt fatal danger, are the leaſt apprized of it.

3. He encourages them to end well as they had begun. For we are made partakers of Chriſt, or, we have been admitted to all the bleſſings and privileges which ſpring from vital union with him; if we hold the beginning of our confidence (υποϛασεως), or ſubſiſtence in him, ſtedfaſt unto the end, and perſeveringly abide in this holy fellowſhip, without which our former profeſſions would be proved hypocritical and inſincere. Note, (1.) Every believer is a partaker of Chriſt, and all things are ours if we are his; his grace, merit, righteouſneſs, and Spirit. (2.) To prove our union with Chriſt real, we muſt continue faithfully attached to him, even unto the end.

4. He returns to the ſubject he began with, to fortify them againſt apoſtaſy. Improve the preſent moment, while it is ſaid, To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation; to-morrow you may be launched into eternity, and time be to you no more. For ſome, when they had heard, notwithſtanding every warning, did provoke God to abandon them: howbeit not all that came out of Egypt by Moſes; Caleb and Joſhua, and thoſe under twenty years of age, ſtill ſurvived. But with whom was he grieved forty years? was it not with them that had ſinned, who bore the righteous vengeance due to their iniquities, and whoſe carcaſes fell in the wilderneſs? And to whom ſware he that they ſhould not enter into his reſt, nor poſſeſs the promiſed Canaan, but to them that believed not, and rejected their own mercies? So we ſee that they could not enter in becauſe of unbelief. Note, (1.) Unbelief of God's promiſes is among the moſt common and highly provoking iniquities. (2.) They who wilfully reject the counſel of God againſt their own ſouls, have only themſelves to blame for their ruin. (3.) Far the greater part of mankind, yea of profeſſing Chriſtians, live and die in their ſins. The remnant that is ſaved is very ſmall; two only out of the miriads of Iſrael entred into the land of reſt. (4.) Such fearful inſtances ſhould awaken in us a holy jealouſy to make our calling and election ſure.

CHAP. IV.

The apoſtle, 1. Inculcates on the Hebrews holy jealouſy, ver. 1, 2. 2. He ſhews the excellence of the goſpel reſt above the earthly Canaan, ver. 3—10. Then, 3. Concludes with proper and powerful arguments and motives to faith and obedience.

1. [a] LET us therefore, fear leſt a promiſe being left us of entring into his reſt, any of you ſhould ſeem to come ſhort of it. 2. For unto us was the goſpel preached, as well as unto them: but the word preached did not profit them, [b] not being mixed with faith in them that heard it. 3. For we which have believed do enter into reſt, as he ſaid, [c] As I have ſworn in my wrath, If they ſhall enter into my reſt: although the works were finiſhed from the foundation of the world. 4. For he ſpake in a certain place of the ſeventh day on this wiſe, [d] And God did reſt the ſeventh day from all his works. 5. And in this place again, If they ſhall enter into my reſt. 6. Seeing therefore it remaineth that ſome muſt enter therein, and they to whom it was firſt preached [e] entred not in becauſe of unbelief: 7. Again, he limiteth a certain day, ſaying in David, To-day, after ſo long a time; as it is ſaid, [f] To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts. 8. For if † Jeſus had given them reſt, then would he not afterward have ſpoken of another day. 9. [g] There remaineth therefore ‡ a reſt to the people of God. 10. For he that is entred into his reſt, he alſo hath ceaſed from his own works, as God did from his.

[a] Chap. xii. 15.
[b] Chap. iii. 12, 19.
[c] Pſ. xcv. 11. Chap. iii. 11, 18.
[d] Gen. ii. 2. Ex. xxxi. 17.
[e] Chap. iii. 19.
[f] Pſ. xcv. 7. Chap. iii. 7.
† i. e. Joſhua. So Acts vii. 45.
[g] Rev. xiv. 13.
‡ Or, a ſabbatiſm.

v. 1—10. The apoſtle, in the view of the foregoing obſervations,

1. Exhorts them to holy jealouſy. Let us fear therefore for ourſelves, leſt a promiſe being left us of entring into his reſt, into a ſtate of happy peace with God here, and the eternal enjoyment of him hereafter, any of you ſhould ſeem to come ſhort of it; overcome by temptation, apoſtatizing from your profeſſions, or faultering in your Chriſtian courſe; ſo as, like Iſrael of old, to fail of the promiſed inheritance. For unto us was the goſpel preached, clearly and plainly, as well as unto them, more obſcurely in types and figures: but the word preached did not profit them, to any ſaving purpoſe; not being mixed with faith in them that heard it, and therefore never incorporated with their hearts, as the food, when digeſted, affords nouriſhment to the body. Nor will the goſpel profit us any more than it did them, unleſs it be received by faith into the ſoul. Note, (1.) The ſame goſpel in ſubſtance was preached under the Old Teſtament as well as the New; and only by faith then, any more than at preſent, could any man be juſtified and ſaved. (2.) The word is preached to multitudes who never profit thereby; for unleſs the Lord gives the diſcerning ear, and enables us to mix it with faith in our hearts, we hear in vain. (3.) It is a dreadful thing to hear of goſpel grace, and yet to come ſhort of it, and periſh in our ſins. (4.) The way to enſure our entrance into the promiſed reſt, is by conſtant watchfulneſs and holy caution. They who do not fear, will fall.

2. He ſhews the ſurpaſſing excellency of that ſpiritual reſt, to which, under the goſpel, believers are admitted. For we which have believed do enter into reſt, through Chriſt, having preſent peace with God by virtue of our union with our exalted Head, and are already ſat down with him in heavenly places. As he ſaid, As I have ſworn in my wrath, If they ſhall enter into my reſt; which implied a promiſe, that true believers ſhould enter into reſt; although the works were finiſhed from the foundation of the world, and a ſabbatical reſt enjoined in conſequence thereof. Yet the reſt here ſpoken of is different from that; for he ſpake in a certain place of the ſeventh day on this wiſe, (Gen. ii. 2.) And God did reſt the ſeventh day from all his works, hallowing it for ever after as a day of holy reſt; but this was not the reſt concerning which God ſware unto the Iſraelites. And in this place again, If they ſhall enter into my reſt; As I live, ſaith the Lord, they ſhall not; which being ſpoken by David to the people of his own days, could not refer to the land of Canaan, of which for ſome hundreds of years they had been in poſſeſſion. Seeing therefore it remaineth, that ſome muſt enter therein, as is implied in the very threatning; and they to whom it was firſt preached, the generality of them at leaſt, entred not in to the typical reſt of Canaan, becauſe of their unbelief: Again he limiteth, and fixes a certain day to come, ſaying in David, (Pſ. xcv. 7, 8.) To-day, after ſo long a time had elapſed from their ſettlement in Canaan; as it is ſaid, To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, and ye ſhall enter into the promiſed reſt. Now this muſt be different from the poſſeſſion of the land of Canaan; For if Jeſus, Joſhua, had given them reſt, and none farther was to have been expected, then would he not afterward have ſpoken of another day, as he doth in that Pſalm. Since then neither the ſabbath nor the land of Canaan are meant in this paſſage of ſcripture, there remaineth therefore a reſt to the people of God; a reſt into which the ſpiritual Joſhua ſhould bring his faithful followers; a preſent, a ſpiritual reſt, through faith in Jeſus Chriſt, far preferable to either of theſe, and this the earneſt and foretaſte of an eternal reſt in glory everlaſting. For he that is entred into his reſt, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, ſince his aſcenſion into heaven, having finiſhed the work of his people's ſalvation which he had undertaken, he alſo hath ceaſed from his own works, having nothing more to do or ſuffer as the meritorious cauſe of their acceptance with God, all being finiſhed on the croſs: therefore he reſts in glory, as God did reſt from his works of creation: and all who believe in Jeſus reſt with him in the preſent enjoyment of the divine favour, and in their title to eternal bleſſedneſs.

11. Let us labour therefore to enter into that reſt, leſt any man fall [h] after the ſame example of † unbelief. 12. For [i] the word of God is quick, and powerful, and [k] ſharper than any two-edged ſword, piercing even to the dividing aſunder of ſoul and ſpirit, and of the joints and marrow, [l] and is a diſcerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. 13. [m] Neither is there any creature that is not manifeſt in his ſight: [n] but all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do. 14. Seeing then that we have [o] a great high prieſt, [p] that is paſſed into the heavens, Jeſus the Son of God, [q] let us hold faſt our profeſſion. 15. For we have not an high prieſt [r] which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but [s] was in all points tempted like as we are, [t] yet without ſin. 16. [u] Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.

[h] Chap. iii. 19.
† Or diſobedience.
[i] Jer. xxiii. 29. 2 Cor. x. 4, 5.
[k] Iſa. xlix. 2. Eph. vi. 17. Rev. i. 16. & ii. 16.
[l] 1 Cor. xiv. 24.
[m] Pſ. xxxiii. 13, 14. & xc. 8. & cxxxix. 11, 12.
[n] Prov. xv. 11.
[o] Chap. iii. 1.
[p] Chap. vii. 26. & ix. 12, 14.
[q] Chap. x. 23.
[r] Chap. ii. 18.
[s] Luke xxii. 28.
[t] 2 Cor. v. 21. Chap. vii. 26. 1 Pet. ii. 22.
[u] Eph. ii. 18. & iii. 12. Chap. x. 19, &c.

v. 11—16. Such a glorious reſt being promiſed,

1. The apoſtle exhorts them to ſecure a part therein. Let us labour therefore to enter into that reſt, in oppoſition to every diſcouragement and difficulty from ſin, Satan, and the world, which may be laid in our way, conſidering the awful examples abovementioned, leſt any man fall after the ſame example of unbelief, and periſh in their ſins. Note, The way to heaven is ſtrait, and the gate narrow: we muſt ſtrive if we would enter in; the ſlothful never went to glory.

2. He enforces his exhortation by the ſtrongeſt argument. For the word of God, the uncreated word, the Son, our Lord, and ſhortly to be our Judge, is quick, having life in and of himſelf, and the author of it to all his creatures; powerful in agency, and omnipotent; ſharper than any two-edged ſword, in his goſpel word brought home to the conſcience by the operation of the Holy Ghoſt; piercing even to the dividing aſunder of ſoul and ſpirit, and of the joints and marrow; entering into the inmoſt receſſes of the heart, carrying the deepeſt conviction, and working effectually to bring the whole inner man into obedience to himſelf; and is a diſcerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart; intimately acquainted with every ſecret of the ſoul. Neither is there any creature, in heaven or in earth, that is not manifeſt in his ſight; nor can their inmoſt thoughts be hid from him; but all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do, (γυμνα και τετραχηλισμενα). As the ſacrifices were flayed, laid open, and their intrails inſpected with niceſt care; ſo diſtinctly is every imagination of our hearts bare and expoſed to him whoſe eyes are as a flame of fire, and at whoſe bar we muſt ſhortly give an account. How awakening a conſideration! and what watchfulneſs and diligence ſhould it excite in us, that we may be found of him in peace, and enter among his faithful ones into the promiſed reſt.

Some by the word of God ſuppoſe the written word is meant, whoſe quickening, powerful, piercing, diſcerning efficacy is ſo great ; and this, no doubt, is included, as being the inſtrument which the Lord makes uſe of ; but I conceive the context and expreſſions ſhew that Chriſt perſonally is here deſcribed and ſpoken of.

3. He returns to the conſideration of the prieſthood of Chriſt, mentioned (chap. iii. 1.) as an encouraging motive to quicken their diligence, conſidering the power and grace which were engaged for their ſupport. Seeing then that we have a great high-prieſt, whoſe excellence is ſo ſuperlative ; and that, having offered the all-atoning ſacrifice, is paſſed into the heavens, into the holieſt of all, to the immediate preſence of God ; even Jeſus the Son of God, one in eſſence with the Father, and as Mediator exalted to the higheſt dignity and glory, able to ſuccour and ſave his people to the uttermoſt : therefore let us hold faſt our profeſſion, unwavering ; for we have not an high-prieſt which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities ; but one who tenderly ſympathizes with every pang we feel in body or ſoul, and was in all points tempted like as we are, only without ſin. His love and compaſſions therefore being great as his power, we may confidently expect ſalvation to the uttermoſt, and comfortably labour when we are aſſured it ſhall not be in vain in the Lord. Note, (1.) Chriſt is paſſed into the heavens, and for his people appears in the preſence of God, to plead their cauſe, and enſure their ſalvation. (2.) It is an unſpeakable comfort to us under every temptation, that Jeſus hath endured it before us, knows our weakneſs, feels for our diſtreſs, and will proportion his grace to our neceſſities. (3.) This ſhould embolden us under the ſevereſt conflicts to hold faſt our profeſſion, nor ever to be moved away from the hope of the goſpel, ſeeing he is near that ſtrengtheneth us.

4. The glorious high-prieſthood of Jeſus ſhould encourage us to draw near to God in prayer. Let us therefore, having ſuch an all-prevailing advocate, come boldly to a throne of grace, where our reconciled God in majeſty and love unſpeakable appears, inviting our applications, with humble reverence, and filial confidence ; that we may obtain mercy, and pardons multiplied from day to day, and grace to help in every time of need ; in time, manner, meaſure, vouchſafed according to our danger, trials, and diſtreſſes, till he ſhall land us ſafe on the ſhores of eternal reſt. Note, (1.) They who know the ineſtimable privilege of having a throne of grace to go to, will not fail to be found there often upon their knees. (2.) There is nothing we can want, of which we are not aſſured of a ſupply, when by prayer and ſupplication with thankſgiving we make our requeſts known to a reconciled God. (3.) All our hopes of mercy or grace ariſe purely from the great High-prieſt, who lives to make interceſſion for us ; for in him God is always well pleaſed, and with us for his ſake. (4.) Humble boldneſs becomes a child of God when approaching that throne, where grace reigns through righteouſneſs unto eternal life by Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

CHAP. V.

In this chapter the apoſtle continues his diſcourſe upon the prieſthood of Chriſt, a ſweet ſubject, which he would not too ſoon diſmiſs. And here, 1. He explains the nature of the prieſtly office in general, ver. 1—3. 2. The proper and regular call there muſt be to this office, ver. 4—6. 3. The requiſite qualifications for the work, ver. 7—9. 4. The peculiar order of the prieſthood of Chriſt ; it was not after the order of Aaron, but Melchiſedec, ver. 6, 7, 10. 5. He reproves the Hebrews, that they had not made thoſe improvements in knowledge, as might have made them capable of looking into the more abſtruſe and myſterious parts of ſcripture, ver. 11—14.

1. FOR every high prieſt taken from among men, [a] is ordained for men [b] in things pertaining to God, [c] that he may offer both gifts and ſacrifices for ſins : 2. [d] Who can have compaſſion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way ; for that he himſelf alſo is compaſſed with infirmity : 3. And by reaſon hereof he ought as for the people, [e] ſo alſo for himſelf, to offer for ſins. 4. And [f] no man taketh this honour unto himſelf, but he that is called of God, [g] as was Aaron : 5. [h] So alſo Chriſt glorified not himſelf to be made an high prieſt ; but he that ſaid unto him, [i] Thou art my Son, to-day have I begotten thee. 6. As he ſaith alſo in another place, [k] Thou art a prieſt for ever after the order of Melchiſedec. 7. Who in the days of his fleſh, when he had [l] offered up prayers and ſupplications, [m] with ſtrong crying and tears, unto him [n] that was able to ſave him from death, [o] and was heard, [p] in that he feared ; 8. Though he were a Son, yet learned he [q] obedience by the things which he ſuffered : 9. And [r] being made perfect, he became [s] the author of eternal ſalvation unto all them that obey him ; 10. Called of God an high prieſt [t] after the order of Melchiſedec.

[a] Chap viii. 3.
[b] Chap. ii. 17.
[c] Chap. viii. 3, 4. & ix. 9. & x. 11.
[d] Chap. ii. 18. & iv. 15.
[e] Lev. iv. 3. & ix. 7. & xvi. 6, 17. Chap. vii. 27.
[f] 2 Chron. xxvi. 18.
[g] Ex. xxviii. 1. 1 Chron. xxiii. 13.
[h] John viii. 54.
[i] Pſ. ii. 7. Acts xiii. 33. Chap. i. 5.
[k] Pſ. cx. 4. Chap. vi. 20. & vii. 17.
[l] Mat. xxvi. 39, 42, 44. & xxvii. 46, 50. John xvii. 1.
[m] Pſ. xxii. 1.
[n] Mat. xxvi. 53. Mark xiv. 36.
[o] Luke xxii. 43.
[p] Mat. xxvi. 37.
[q] Phil. ii. 8.
[r] Chap. ii. 10.
[s] Chap. ix. 12.
[t] Chap. vi. 20.

v. 1—10. We have here,

1. An account of the ſacerdotal office in general. For every high prieſt taken from among men, under the legal diſpenſation, is of the ſame nature with his brethren, and ordained for men in things pertaining to God, on their behalf to miniſter in holy things, that he may offer both gifts and ſacrifices for ſins; according to the law, as the type and figure of him, who in his own perſon, as both high prieſt and ſacrifice, ſhould, in the fulneſs of time, offer the true atonement, and make the perfect reconciliation for ſin, cauſing the perſons and prayers of his people to be accepted by the Father ; who can bear with, and have compaſſion on the ignorant, ſympathizing with them ; and having pity on them that are out of the way ; deſirous to bring them back again to God, and peace of conſcience : for that he himſelf alſo is compaſſed with infirmity, and liable to every affliction under which his brethren groan. And by reaſon hereof, ſince he himſelf is a poor infirm creature, and guilty ſinner, as well as others, he ought as for the people, ſo for himſelf, to offer an atoning ſacrifice. But herein the ſurpaſſing glory of the great High-prieſt of our profeſſion moſt eminently appears ; for while, as partaker of the human nature, with infinitely greater compaſſion, he feels for the erring and the ignorant, and ſtands to offer his all-prevailing ſacrifice for them, he doth it purely on their account, not on his own, being himſelf without ſin.

2. A divine appointment was neceſſary for the office of prieſthood. And no man taketh this honour unto himſelf, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron, appointed thereto by the Lord's immediate order and authority. So alſo Chriſt glorified not himſelf to be made an high-prieſt, aſſuming that honour in his human nature without a divine warrant ; but he was ſolemnly called and qualified for this office by him, that ſaid unto him, Thou art my Son, to-day have I begotten thee ; intimating the dignity of his perſon who was to be inveſted with the pontifical office. As he ſaith alſo in another place, (Pſ. cx. 4.) Thou art a prieſt for ever after the order of Melchiſedec ; an order prior and ſuperior to that of Aaron, Chriſt having an eternal and unchangeable prieſthood, ever living, and alone ſufficient to manage all the concerns of his people. Note, (1.) Before we preſume to miniſter in holy things, we muſt produce a divine call, leſt intruding into an office for which we have no commiſſion, we ſhould expoſe ourſelves to ſhame as intruders, inſtead of reaping honour by the ſervice. (2.) The High-prieſt which God hath himſelf appointed, we may be aſſured he will accept ; and all our oblations in his hands ſhall be received as ſacrifices of a ſweet ſmell.

3. We are told how he executed his office, and how effectual it was on the behalf of his people. Who in the days of his fleſh, when here below, oppreſſed with manifold and ſevere ſufferings, he had offered up prayers and ſupplications, with ſtrong crying and tears, eſpecially in his agonizing ſtruggle in the garden, looking up unto him that was able to ſave his ſoul from death, and thoſe terrors which diſtreſſed his innocent ſoul ; and was heard, in the ſupport miniſtred to him, and in his glorious reſurrection from the dead, becauſe he feared, and with holy reverence ſubmitted to his Father's will. Though he were a Son, the eternal Son of the Father, and one with him in nature and perfections ; yet, having condeſcended to take our nature upon him, learned he obedience by the things which he ſuffered ; approving himſelf chearfully ſubmiſſive to his Father's will, and yielding himſelf up to death, even the death of the croſs. And being made perfect, fully accompliſhing by his obedience and ſufferings the work which he had undertaken, and thereby being conſecrated for the exerciſe of his prieſthood in heaven ; he became the Author of eternal ſalvation ; purchaſing it by his blood, ſecuring it by his advocacy, and applying it by his Spirit to the ſouls of his people ; a ſalvation not only from preſent guilt and corruption, but including all the bleſſings of glory everlaſting, which are ſecured unto all them that obey him, and follow him as the Captain of their ſalvation : called of God, and fully qualified for his office, as an high prieſt after the order of Melchiſedec, ever living to make interceſſion for his people, and therefore a Saviour unto them to the uttermoſt. Note, (1.) God's adopted ſons, like their great Head, are to expect ſufferings, and under them to learn obedience and ſubmiſſion. (2.) None ever in the human nature endured any thing like what the Son of God hath ſuffered voluntarily for our ſake : how dare we then murmur or complain ? (3.) In his agony the Saviour prayed, to teach us whither we ſhould look under all our diſtreſſes ; and if with faith and fervor, as he did, we cry, we ſhall as aſſuredly be heard and delivered. (4.) The ſalvation which the Son of God hath obtained for us is compleat and everlaſting. He hath borne the penalty of ſin, and fulfilled the righteouſneſs of the law, that we might have all the benefit, and be intitled to the eternal reward of glory. (5.) All who hope to reign with him, deſire to be ruled by him ;

and, chearfully yielding themſelves to his holy will, take up their croſs, and follow the captain of their ſalvation; and, unleſs we do this, our hope in him is but deluſion.

[u] John xvi. 31.
[x] 1 Cor. iii. 1, 2. 1 Pet. ii. 9.
† Or hath no experience.
[y] 1 Cor. iii. 2. & xiv 20. Eph. iv. 14.
‡ Or perfect.
[z] Iſa. vii. 15.

11. [u] Of whom we have many things to ſay, and hard to be uttered; ſeeing ye are dull of hearing. 12. For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the firſt principles of the oracles of God; and are become ſuch as [x] have need of milk, and not of ſtrong meat. 13. For every one that uſeth milk, † is unſkilful in the word of righteouſneſs: for [y] he is a babe. 14. But ſtrong meat belongeth to them that are ‡ of full age, even thoſe who by reaſon of uſe have their ſenſes exercisſed [z] to diſcern both good and evil.

v. 11—14. The apoſtle pauſes for a moment, and ſtays the further conſideration of the ſubject which he was upon, to introduce a needful rebuke of their dulneſs and inattention to the great things of God's word. Having mentioned the ſecond time that remarkable perſonage Melchiſedec, he obſerves, Of whom we have many things to ſay, and hard to be uttered, difficult to be underſtood in themſelves, and the more ſo to you, ſeeing ye are dull of hearing, ſlothful and negligent to ſearch into the ſacred oracles, that you might become more deeply acquainted with their important contents. For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, conſidering all the means and advantages which you have enjoyed, ye have need, ſo little progreſs have ye made in the ſchool of Chriſt, that one teach you again which be the firſt principles of the oracles of God, as the child muſt learn his letters in order to ſpell and read; and, rather declining than advancing in knowledge, are become ſuch as have need of milk, and not of ſtrong meat, as babes at the breaſt, inſtead of that ſtate of manhood to which you ſhould, ere this, have arrived. For every one that uſeth milk, and cannot reliſh or digeſt any thing beyond the firſt principles of the doctrine of Chriſt, is unſkilful, and unexperienced in the word of righteouſneſs in the goſpel, where Chriſt's divine righteouſneſs is revealed, and we are taught how to walk and pleaſe God; for ſuch a one is a babe in underſtanding. But ſtrong meat, the ſublimer doctrines of truth, belong to them that are of full age, and may, comparatively, be ſtiled perfect men (τελειοι) even thoſe, who by reaſon of uſe, being experimentally acquainted with the bleſſed goſpel, have their ſenſes exerciſed to diſcern both good and evil; accurate to diſcover truth and detect error, and as eager to embrace and purſue the one, as to deteſt and avoid the other. Note, (1.) They who have long enjoyed the richeſt advantages, are expected to ſhew proportionable improvement in grace and knowledge. (2.) It is a great grief to miniſters, and the ſin and ſhame of their people, that, after years of labour, many of them have yet to learn the firſt principles of goſpel truth. (3.) The Scripture is ſuited to every ſtate; there is milk for babes, and ſtrong meat for men; it is the wiſdom of a miniſter to be able to divide to every man his portion in due ſeaſon. (4.) The word of God contains myſteries, wherein the moſt deep read and experienced have much to learn, whilſt the grand truths are plain and obvious, and ſuch as the weakeſt capacities may comprehend.

CHAP. VI.

In this chapter the apoſtle exhorts the Hebrews to make a better proficiency in religion than they had done, as the beſt way to prevent apoſtaſy, the dreadful nature of which he ſets forth, ver. 1—9. And then expreſſes his good hopes concerning them, that they would perſevere in faith and holineſs, and ſets before them the great encouragement they have from God, both with reſpect to their duty and happineſs, from. ver. 9. to the end.

[a] 1 Cor. xiv. 20. Eph. iv. 13. Chap. v. 12.
† Or full growth. Chap. v. 14.
[b] Chap. ix. 14.
[c] Acts xix. 4, 5.
[d] Acts viii. 17.
[e] Acts xviii. 21.
[f] Mat. xii. 31, 32. Chap. x. 26. 2 Pet. ii. 20. 1 John v. 16.
[g] Chap. x. 32.
[h] John iv. 10. Eph. ii. 8.
[i] Chap. ii. 4.
[k] Mark iv. 16. & vi. 20.
[l] Chap. ii. 5.
[m] Chap. x. 29.
[n] Jer. xliv. 22. Mark xi. 14.

1. THEREFORE, [a] leaving the principles of the doctrine of Chriſt, let us go on unto † perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance [b] from dead works, and of faith towards God. 2. [c] Of the doctrine of baptiſms, and [d] of laying on of hands, and of reſurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment. 3. And this will we do, [e] if God permit. 4. [f] For it is impoſſible for thoſe who were once [g] enlightned, and have taſted of [h] the heavenly gift, and [i] were made partakers of the holy Ghoſt, 5. And [k] have taſted the good word of God, and the powers of [l] the world to come; 6. If they ſhall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance: ſeeing [m] they crucify to themſelves the Son of God afreſh, and put him to an open ſhame. 7. For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dreſſed, receiveth bleſſing from God. 8. [n] But that which beareth thorns and briers is rejected, and is nigh unto curſing; whoſe end is to be burned.

v. 1—8. The apoſtle here,

1. Exhorts the Hebrews to advance in ſpiritual attainments. Therefore, leaving the principles of the doctrine of Chriſt, let us go on unto perfection, to a more advanced ſtate of grace and underſtanding; not laying again the foundation, and continuing ſtill to inſiſt on the firſt principles of the Chriſtian doctrine, but proceeding to greater heighths in heavenly wiſdom. The principles I ſpeak of are thoſe, (1.) Of repentance from dead works, implying a ſenſe of the evil and danger of ſin, the wages of which is death, an abhorrence of it, and real converſion of heart from the love and practice of all iniquity. And (2.) Of faith towards God, ſince all who come to him muſt believe his being, attributes, and perfections; and eſpecially that he is our reconciled God in the Son of his love, Chriſt Jeſus. And theſe two principles of Chriſtianity were typified under the Moſaical diſpenſation by the doctrine of baptiſms, or diverſe waſhings preſcribed to the temple worſhippers, which ſignified the purification of the conſcience, through faith in the blood of Jeſus, and by the power of his Spirit, and of laying on of hands upon the head of the ſacrifice, with penitent confeſſion of ſin, in token of transſerring their guilt to their ſubſtitute. (3.) And of the reſurrection of the dead, which may be reckoned another firſt principle of Chriſtianity. And (4.) Of eternal judgment, when every man muſt appear to give account at God's bar, and to receive his ſentence to be happy or miſerable for ever, in body and ſoul, according to his deeds. Theſe having been ſo often inſiſted upon, we deſign to leave them to your ſerious reflection, and paſs on to ſublimer things. And this will we do, if God permit. Note, (1.) When the foundation of religion is laid, the ſuperſtructure muſt be raiſed in an increaſe of knowledge, grace, and holineſs. (2.) All we purpoſe muſt be undertaken in dependance upon God's ſupport, for without him we can do nothing aright.

2. To quicken them to diligence, he ſets before them the fearful caſe of apoſtates. For it is impoſſible for thoſe who were once enlightned, and ſo far received the knowledge of the truth as to make profeſſion of it, and have taſted of the heavenly gift, in ſome ſuperficial impreſſions made upon their conſcience, though their heart hath remained unchanged; and were made partakers of the Holy Ghoſt, in ſome of his miraculous operations, and have taſted of the good word of God, receiving it, as the ſtony ground hearers, for a while with joy, and of the powers of the world to come, enabled to perform many wonderful works; if, after all this, they ſhall fall away from the goſpel to judaiſm, or heatheniſm, the caſe is deſperate, it is impoſſible to renew them again unto repentance: ſeeing they crucify to themſelves the Son of God afreſh, approving the wickedneſs of thoſe who nailed him to the tree as an impoſtor, and put him to an open ſhame, by aſſenting to the black calumnies of his murderers, turning from him as a deceiver, and renouncing his goſpel as an untruth; for ſuch apoſtacy, being a ſin againſt the very remedy, cannot but be neceſſarily fatal. Note, (1.) Hypocrites may go far, and come ſhort of heaven: they may have many right notions in religion, make a fair profeſſion, feel pangs of conviction, and tranſient flaſhes of joy under the ordinances; yea, they might have poſſeſſed even the power of miracles, and yet never have been partakers of the grace of God in truth. (2.) Satan will often ſeek to diſtreſs the ſouls of the ſincere, when under darkneſs or temptation with theſe terrible declarations; let it therefore be remembered, that it is never impoſſible to renew thoſe unto repentance, in whom the Lord ſtill awakens a deſire to repent and turn to him.

3. The different ſtates of the gracious ſoul and the apoſtate are here deſcribed. For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dreſſed, receiveth bleſſing from God, ſo the faithful heart, watered with the dew of divine influences from the Lord, brings forth the fruits of righteouſneſs, which by Jeſus Chriſt are acceptable and well pleaſing to God, who bleſſes his own work, and gives a more abundant increaſe of every holy and gracious diſpoſition.. But that ground which, after all the culture beſtowed upon it, ſtill beareth thorns and briers is rejected by the owner as barren, and is nigh unto curſing; whoſe end is to be burned: ſo where, amidſt the means of grace, unbelief and hardneſs of heart remain, and after all their profeſſions men turn aſide to error in principle, and ungodlineſs in practice, ſuch are in God's ſight reprobate, his curſe lieth upon them, which ſoon ſhall be fearfully executed; when, caſt into the belly of hell, they ſhall lie down in everlaſting burnings, and none can quench them.

[o] Mat. x. 42. & xxv. 40. John xiii. 20.
[p] Rom. iii. 4. 2 Theſ. i. 6, 7.
[q] 1 Theſ. i. 3.
[r] Chap. iii. 6, 14.
[s] Col. ii. 2.

9. But, beloved, we are perſuaded better things of you, and things that accompany ſalvation, though we thus ſpeak. 10. [o] For God is [p] not unrighteous, to forget [q] your work and labour of love which ye have ſhewed toward his name, in that ye have miniſtred to the ſaints, and do miniſter. 11. And we deſire, that [r] every one of you do ſhew the ſame diligence, [s] to the full aſſurance of hope unto the end: 12. That ye be not ſlothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promiſes. 13. For when God made promiſe to Abraham, becauſe he could ſwear by no greater, [t] he ſware by himſelf, 14. Saying, Surely, bleſſing, I will bleſs thee, and multiplying, I will multiply thee. 15. And ſo [u] after he had patiently endured, he obtained the promiſe. 16. For men verily ſwear by the greater: and [x] an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all ſtrife. 17. Wherein God willing more abundantly to ſhew unto the heirs of promiſe the immutability of his counſel, † confirmed it by an oath: 18. That by two immutable things, in which it was impoſſible for God to lye, we might have a ſtrong conſolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope ſet before us: 19. Which hope we have as an anchor of the ſoul, both ſure and ſtedfaſt, and which entreth into that within the vail, 20. [y] Whither the forerunner is for us entred, even Jeſus, [z] made an high prieſt for ever after the order of Melchiſedec.

[t] Gen. xxii. 16, 17.
[u] Rom. ii. 7.
[x] Ex. xxii. 11.
† Gr. mediated by an oath.
[y] Chap. ix. 24.
[z] Chap. iii. 1. & v. 6, 10. & vii. 17.

v. 9—20. The apoſtle, from the moſt awful warnings, paſſes on to the moſt powerful encouragements to ſteadfaſtneſs and perſeverance.

1. He profeſſes his good opinion of them, in general at leaſt. But, beloved, we are perſuaded better things of you, and things that accompany ſalvation, though we thus ſpeak, that ye will never prove apoſtates, but are actually partakers of thoſe bleſſings of juſtification, adoption, and grace, which cannot but iſſue in eternal glory.

2. He ſuggeſts the reaſon on which his confidence was built. For God is not unrighteous or unfaithful to his promiſes, and therefore will not forget your work and labour of love, the genuine principle of all holy obedience, and aſſured proof of your intereſt in all the bleſſings of the everlaſting covenant; which love ye have ſhewed toward his name, in that ye have miniſtred to the ſaints, and do continue to miniſter unto them under all their afflictions. Note, (1.) Our love to God muſt appear in every work and labour of love for the good of his people. (2.) They who give genuine proofs of their faith unfeigned, by a converſation ſuch as becometh godlineſs, will find God faithful to his promiſes, and their bounteous rewarder.

3. He exhorts them to perſevere. And we deſire, that every one of you do ſhew the ſame diligence, in every good word and work, your fruits of righteouſneſs abiding and abounding, to the full aſſurance of hope unto the end, growing up to a more ſatisfied confidence of your intereſt in the eternal bleſſedneſs, and carried as a ſhip under full ſails into the port of eternal reſt. See therefore that ye be not ſlothful, but diligent in every means of grace, and in the duties of your calling, as followers of them who have trod before this holy path, and, through faith and patience amidſt every trial, perſevering unto the end, are now gone to inherit the promiſes in glory everlaſting. Note, (1.) If we have good hope through grace, we ſhould ſeek to grow up to the full aſſurance of hope unto the end. (2.) Diligence in religion, as in every thing elſe, is the only way to thrive. (3.) The examples of thoſe who are gone to glory before us ſhould encourage and quicken us to follow them. (4.) Where faith and patience are implanted in the heart, there perſeverance is the neceſſary fruit.

4. The faithfulneſs of God to his promiſes ſhould engage their fidelity to him. For when God made promiſe to Abraham, (Gen. xxii. 16, 17.) concerning the Meſſiah, his future ſeed, becauſe he could ſwear by no greater, he ſware by himſelf, to give him the ſtrongeſt aſſurance of the fulfilment of the promiſe, Saying, Surely, as I live, my being and perfections are engaged to accompliſh my word, bleſſing, I will bleſs thee, and multiplying, I will multiply thee, ſo that thou ſhalt be a father of many nations, and on thy ſpiritual ſeed ſhall thy bleſſing deſcend to the lateſt ages. And ſo after he had patiently endured, through manifold afflictions, he obtained the promiſe of a ſon, the pledge of that Meſſiah who ſhould deſcend from him, and at laſt departed himſelf in the faith, and entered the eternal world of glory. For men verily ſwear by the greater, ſolemnly appealing to God as the witneſs of truth, and avenger of falſhood, and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all ſtrife, this being judged the moſt ſolemn and deciſive evidence, which can be given to ſilence doubt, and terminate diſpute. Wherein God willing more abundantly to ſhew unto the heirs of promiſe the immutability of his counſel, confirmed it by an oath, in condeſcenſion to our weakneſs, and to give us the utmoſt ſatisfaction with regard to the unchangeableneſs of his purpoſes of grace towards his people, and of the certainty of the accompliſhment of every promiſe he had made, whatever difficulties might ſeem to prevent it: that by two immutable things, the promiſe and oath of God, in which it was impoſſible for God to lye, we might have a ſtrong conſolation, filled with the ſweeteſt delight, and ſupported under all our trials, who have fled for refuge, as the man-ſlayer to the appointed city, (Num. xxxv. 11, 12.) with eagerneſs, under an awakened ſenſe of our guilt and danger, to lay hold upon the hope ſet before us, even Chriſt, the rock of his people's confidence: which hope we have as an anchor of the ſoul, both ſure and ſtedfaſt, and which entreth into that within the vail, Chriſt, the object of our hope, being aſcended into heaven, thither the grace of hope follows him, keeping the ſoul unmoved amidſt all the ſtorms of temptation; whither the forerunner, our repreſentative, is for us entred, even Jeſus, the exalted Saviour, gone to prepare a place for us, made an high prieſt for ever after the order of Melchiſedec. Note, (1.) In Chriſt there is a refuge provided for the chief of ſinners, and all who flee to him ſhall not only be ſafe but happy. (2.) Since the promiſes are confirmed by two ſuch immutable things as the counſel and oath of God, with what confidence ought we to truſt upon them? (3.) In this tempeſtuous world we ſhould be hourly expoſed to ſhipwreck, if hope did not enable us to ride out the ſtorm, having caſt anchor within the vail. (4.) Where our forerunner is entered for us, we muſt follow. Is he in heaven? then ſhall we be ſhortly with him where he is, that we may behold and ſhare his glory.

CHAP. VII.

In this chapter, 1. We have a more particular account of Melchiſedec, ver. 1, 2, 3. 2. The excellency of his prieſthood above that of Aaron, ver. 4—11. 3. An accommodation of all to Chriſt, to ſhew the ſuperior excellency of his perſon, office, and covenant, from ver. 11. to the end.

1. FOR this [a] Melchiſedec, king of Salem, prieſt of the moſt high God, who met Abraham returning from the ſlaughter of the kings, and bleſſed him: 2. To whom alſo Abraham gave a tenth part of all: firſt being by interpretation king of righteouſneſs, and after that alſo king of Salem, which is king of peace; 3. Without father, without mother, without † deſcent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God, abideth a prieſt continually.

[a] Gen. xiv. 18, &c.
† Gr. genealogy, or pedigree.

v. 1—3. Thrice had the apoſtle quoted the teſtimony borne to the Son of God out of the Pſalms, as an high prieſt after the order of Melchiſedec: of this remarkable perſon he here gives an account, and we may therein trace the reſemblance he bore to his great antitype.

1. His name was Melchiſedec, or king of righteouſneſs, the figure of him on whoſe ſhoulders the univerſal government ſhould reſt, who, with the moſt diſtinguiſhed rectitude, ſhould adminiſter the affairs of his kingdom, and is the author of everlaſting righteouſneſs to his people.

2. He was king of Salem, that is, of peace. So is Chriſt eminently the prince of peace, having procured it for us by his blood, applying it by his Spirit, and ſetting up his throne of peace within our hearts.

3. He was ſaid to be a prieſt of the moſt high God. So was Jeſus conſecrated to this office by his Father, and through his ſacrifice alone can we obtain reconciliation and acceptance with God.

4. He bleſſed Abraham returning from the ſlaughter of the kings, as his ſuperior. And as Abraham gave him a tenth of all, he muſt needs be a prieſt of a higher rank and order than Levi or Aaron, who deſcended from this patriarch; and thus hath our incarnate Lord a prieſthood infinitely excelling the Aaronical, and of far more extenſive influence, miniſtring in behalf of Gentiles as well as Jews.

5. Melchiſedec's original is entirely concealed; no mention is made of his father or mother, of his birth or death, that he might more ſtrikingly repreſent the Son of God, who abideth a prieſt continually, appointed to his office before the worlds were, and to the end of time continuing to exerciſe it on the behalf of his people, without predeceſſor, partner, or ſucceſſor, alone appearing before the throne, and ever living to make interceſſion for us.

4. Now conſider how great this man was, [b] unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the ſpoils. 5. And verily [c] they that are of the ſons of Levi, who receive the office of the prieſthood, have a commandment to take tithes of the people according to the law, that is, of their brethren, though they come out of the loins of Abraham: 6. But he whoſe † deſcent is not counted from them, [d] received tithes of Abraham, and bleſſed him [e] that had the promiſes. 7. And without all contradiction, the leſs is bleſſed of the better. 8. And here men that die receive tithes: but there he receiveth them, of whom it is witneſſed that he liveth. 9. And, as I may ſo ſay, Levi alſo who receiveth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham. 10. For he was yet in the loins of his father when Melchiſedec met him.

[b] Gen. xiv. 20.
[c] Num. xviii. 21, 26.
† Or pedigree.
[d] Gen. xiv. 20.
[e] Rom. iv. 13. Gal. iii. 16.

v. 4—10. To guard the Hebrews from their attachment to the aboliſhed prieſthood of Levi, and lead them to the great High Prieſt of their profeſſion, Chriſt Jeſus, he ſhews his ſurpaſſing excellence above Aaron or his ſons. (1.) Becauſe they, being in Abraham's loins, paid tythes to Melchiſedec; and though commiſſioned afterwards to receive tythes of their brethren, yet virtually now, as included in their father, they paid tythes to this prieſt of God, acknowledged him as their ſuperior, who was but the type of our Lord. (2.) Becauſe the leſs is bleſſed by the greater; and herein therefore Abraham himſelf, though favoured with ſuch diſtinguiſhed promiſes, was inferior to Melchiſedec, and much more muſt his ſons be who ſhould deſcend from him; and how much more excellent ſtill than they muſt he then be, of whom Melchiſedec was only the repreſentative? (3.) They were all dying men, and the ſucceſſion and deſcent of the ſons of Levi are well known, but Melchiſedec's generation is concealed; we only hear of him that he liveth, as the figure of him who really hath an unchangeable prieſthood, and actually lives for ever to intercede on the behalf of his people. Note, If Abraham's paying tythes was reckoned the act of thoſe who were then in his loins, and imputed to them as done by their covenant-head, we ſee how Adam's ſin, and Chriſt's righteouſneſs, are ſeverally imputed to the natural deſcendants of the one, and the ſpiritual ſeed of the other.

11. [f] If therefore perfection were by the Levitical prieſthood, (for under it the people received the law) what further need was there that another prieſt ſhould riſe after the order of Melchiſedec, and not be called after the order of Aaron? 12. For the prieſthood being changed, there is made of neceſſity a change alſo of the law. 13. For he of whom theſe things are ſpoken pertaineth to another tribe, of which no man gave attendance at the altar. 14. For it is evident that [g] our Lord ſprang out of Juda; of which tribe Moſes ſpake nothing concerning prieſthood. 15. And it is yet far more evident: for that [h] after the ſimilitude of Melchiſedec there ariſeth another prieſt, 16. Who is made, not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endleſs life. 17. For he teſtifieth, [i] Thou art a prieſt for ever after the order of Melchiſedec. 18. For there is verily a diſannulling of the commandment going before, for [k] the weakneſs and unprofitableneſs thereof. 19. For [l] the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did; by the which [m] we draw nigh unto God. 20. And in as much as not without an oath he was made prieſt, 21. (For thoſe prieſts were made without an oath: but this with an oath, by him that ſaid unto him, [n] The Lord ſware, and will not repent, Thou art a prieſt for ever after the order of Melchiſedec) 22. By ſo much [o] was Jeſus made a ſurety of a better teſtament. 23. And they truly were many prieſts, becauſe they were not ſuffered to continue by reaſon of death: 24. But this man, becauſe he continueth ever, able hath an unchangeable prieſthood. 25. Wherefore he is able alſo to ſave them † to the uttermoſt, that come unto God by him, ſeeing he ever liveth [p] to make interceſſion for them. 26. For ſuch an high prieſt became us, [q] who is holy, harmleſs, undefiled, ſeparate from ſinners, and [r] made higher than the heavens; 27. Who needeth not daily, [s] as thoſe high prieſts, to offer up ſacrifice firſt for his own ſins, and then for the people's: for [t] this he did once, when he offered up himſelf. 28. For the law maketh [u] men high prieſts, which have infirmity; but the word of the oath which was ſince the law, maketh the Son, [x] who is ‡ conſecrated for evermore.

[f] Gal. ii. 21. Ver. 18, 19. Chap. viii. 7.
[g] Mat. i. 3. Luke iii. 33.
[h] Chap. v. 6. & vi. 20.
[i] Pſ. cx. 4.
[k] Rom. viii. 3. Gal. iv. 9.
[l] Acts xiii. 39. Rom. viii. 3. Gal. ii. 16. Chap. ix. 9.
[m] Eph. ii. 18. & iii. 12. Chap. iv. 16.
[n] Pſ. cx. 4.
[o] Chap. viii. 6. & ix. 15. & xii. 24.
† Or evermore.
[p] Rom. viii. 34. Chap. ix. 24. 1 John ii. 1.
[q] Iſa. liii. 9. 1 Pet. ii. 22.
[r] Eph. i. 20. Chap. iv. 14. & viii. 1.
[s] Lev. ix. 7. & xvi. 6. Chap. v. 3.
[t] Chap. ix. 12, 28. & x. 12.
[u] Chap. v. 1, 2.
[x] Chap. ii. 10. & v. 9.
‡ Gr. perfected.

v. 11—28. Had perfection been by the Levitical prieſthood, ſo that the conſciences of the worſhippers had thereby been fully purged from ſin, and had the ſtate of the church under the legal diſpenſation been complete, there could be no need that a new and higher order of prieſthood ſhould afterwards be inſtituted, after the order of Melchiſedec and not after the order of Aaron; and ſuch a change of the prieſthood implied a change of the whole ceremonial law, which was inſeparably interwoven therewith: both law and prieſthood therefore were to be aboliſhed, in order to introduce another diſpenſation, more excellent and glorious than the former, even that of the goſpel. That ſuch a change of the prieſthood and law is made, is evident.

1. Becauſe our Lord, the prieſt who ſhould ariſe after the order of Melchiſedec, ſprung from the tribe of Judah, not from Levi, and therefore, according to the law, was forbidden to officiate at the altar.

2. The prieſthood of Chriſt was of an entirely different nature from that of the ſons of Levi. They were made after the law of a carnal commandment, which ſettled their ſucceſſion, appointed the rites of their conſecration, and thoſe who filled the office were dying men, but Chriſt is made an high prieſt of a more excellent kind, after the power of an endleſs life, acting without either partner or ſucceſſor, living to diſcharge his office in the behalf of his people for ever and ever.

3. The efficacy of the goſpel prieſthood was far ſuperior to that under the law, which was abrogated becauſe of its weakneſs and unprofitableneſs, being inſufficient to purge the conſcience from guilt, or to ſecure unto the ſinner juſtification to life, making nothing perfect, and was deſigned merely to lead us to Chriſt that we might be juſtified by faith. But Chriſt hath brought in a better hope; his own ſacrifice and abiding prieſthood give boldneſs and acceſs to God, and ſure hope of favour and acceptence before him.

4. The ſuperior excellence of Chriſt's prieſthood appears in the manner of his conſecration: The Levitical prieſts were made without an oath, but he, with an oath, to denote the immutability, efficacy, and eternity of his ſacerdotal character. By ſo much was Jeſus made a ſurety of a better teſtament, or covenant, having undertaken compleatly to anſwer all the divine requirements on the behalf of his redeemed, that he might ſecure to them the accompliſhment of all the promiſed bleſſings, a covenant far better than the Moſaical, both in the clearneſs of the light which accompanies its adminiſtration, and the extenſiveneſs of its efficacy, as reaching to Gentiles as well as Jews.

5. The Aaronical high prieſts, as mortal men, were many, ſucceeding each other, as death removed them from their office, but this glorious perſon, whom Melchiſedec typified, hath an unchangeable prieſthood that never paſſes from him, becauſe he liveth for ever to diſcharge his ſacerdotal functions; wherefore we may aſſuredly conclude that Jeſus is able to ſave them to the uttermoſt, that come unto God by him, ſeeing he ever liveth to make interceſſion for them; and therefore they can be in no circumſtances of diſtreſs or danger from which he cannot deliver them, and his exaltation at the right hand of God is on purpoſe for their benefit, that he may ſo manage all their affairs as effectually to ſecure their final ſalvation, whilſt coming to God by him they receive continual pardon, grace, and ſtrength, to preſerve them unto the end.

6. Chriſt appears tranſcendently glorious above all other prieſts in his moral qualifications. For ſuch an high prieſt became us, and no other could have ſtood us in any ſtead, but one who is holy, harmleſs, undefiled and ſeparate from ſinners, both in nature and practice, and made higher than the heavens, in dignity above the angelic hoſt, or rather, in purity of nature, excelling them. Who needeth not daily, as thoſe high prieſts of the Levitical order, to offer up ſacrifices firſt for their own ſins, and then for the ſins of the people, on the great day of atonement; for Chriſt, having no ſin of his own to expiate, needed no ſacrifice; and as to his people's iniquities, his one ſacrifice was available for ever: for this he did once, when he offered up himſelf without ſpot to God, as their everlaſting propitiation. For the law maketh men high prieſts, which have infirmity, and, being ſinners as well as others, muſt offer for themſelves as well as the people; but the word of the oath which was ſince the law, maketh the ſon high prieſt, who is conſecrated for evermore, or perfected, who being in nature ſinleſs and impeccable, never could need a ſacrifice for himſelf, but having offered one of eternal efficacy on the behalf of his people, lives for ever to plead it in the preſence of God, that they might reap the unutterably bleſſed fruits of it in their final and everlaſting ſalvation.

CHAP. VIII.

In this chapter the apoſtle purſues his former ſubject, the prieſthood of Chriſt. And, 1. He ſums up what he had already ſaid, ver. 1, 2. 2. He ſets before them the neceſſary parts of the prieſtly office, ver. 3, 4, 5. And, 3. Largely illuſtrates the excellency of the prieſthood of Chriſt, by conſidering the excellency of that new diſpenſation of the covenant of grace for which Chriſt is the mediator, ver. 6. to the end.

1. NOW of the things which we have ſpoken, this is the ſum: We have ſuch an high prieſt, [a] who is ſet on the right hand of the throne of the Majeſty in the heavens; 2. A miniſter † of the ſanctuary, and of [b] the true tabernacle which the Lord pitched, and not man.

[a] Eph. i. 20. Chap. i. 3. & x. 12. & xii. 2.
† Or of holy things.
[b] Chap. ix. 11.

v. 1, 2. We have here a ſummary of the foregoing obſervations: Now of the things which we have ſpoken, this is the ſum: we have ſuch an high prieſt, ſo great and glorious, who is ſet on the right hand of the throne of the Majeſty in the heavens, inveſted with all power and authority to ſecure all bleſſedneſs for his people in time and in eternity; a miniſter of the ſanctuary, officiating as our high prieſt in heaven, which the Jewiſh ſanctuary typified, and of the true tabernacle in his human nature, of which the earthly tabernacle was the figure, which God pitched, and not man, having prepared for him a body, wherein the fulneſs of the godhead ſhould reſide. And with what confidence ſhould this inſpire us, when we conſider who now miniſters for us before the throne of God!

3. For [c] every high prieſt is ordained to offer gifts and ſacrifices: wherefore [d] it is of neceſſity that this man have ſomewhat alſo to offer. 4. For if he were on earth, he ſhould not be a prieſt, ſeeing that there are prieſts that offer gifts according to the law: 5. Who ſerve unto the example [e] and ſhadow of heavenly things, as Moſes was admoniſhed of God, when he was about to make the tabernacle. [f] For ſee (ſaith he) that thou make all things according to the pattern ſhewed to thee in the mount. 6. But now [g] hath he obtained a more excellent miniſtry, by how much alſo he is the mediator of a better † covenant, which was eſtabliſhed upon better promiſes. 7. For if that firſt covenant had been faultleſs, then ſhould no place have been ſought for the ſecond. 8. For finding fault with them, he ſaith, [h] Behold, the days come, ſaith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the houſe of Iſrael, and with the houſe of Judah: 9. Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; becauſe they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not, ſaith the Lord. 10. For [i] this is the covenant that I will make with the houſe of Iſrael after thoſe days, ſaith the Lord; I will ‡ put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and [k] I will be to them a God, and they ſhall be to me a people. 11. And [l] they ſhall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, ſaying, Know the Lord: for all ſhall know me, from the leaſt to the greateſt. 12. For I will be merciful to their unrighteouſneſs, and [m] their ſins and their iniquities will I remember no more. 13. In that he ſaith, A new covenant, he hath made the firſt old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old, is ready to vaniſh away.

[c] Chap. v. 1.
[d] Eph. v. 2. Chap. ix. 14.
[e] Col. ii. 17. Chap. x. 1.
[f] Ex. xxv. 40. Acts vii. 44.
[g] 2 Cor. iii. 6. Chap. vii. 22.
† Or teſtament.
[h] Jer. xxxi. 31—34.
[i] Chap. x. 16.
‡ Gr. give.
[k] Zech. viii. 8.
[l] Iſa. liv. 13. John vi. 45. 1 John ii. 27.
[m] Chap. x. 17.

v. 3—13. The apoſtle proceeds,

1. To ſet forth the office of the high prieſt, and Chriſt's conformity thereto. For every high prieſt is ordained to offer gifts and ſacrifices, the blood of which he afterwards carried into the holy place: wherefore it is of neceſſity that this glorious perſon have ſomewhat alſo to offer, a ſacrifice ſuitable to his dignity, with the blood of which he might appear within the vail, before the throne of God in glory. For if he were on earth, and had continued here below, he ſhould not be a prieſt, nor could have diſcharged that moſt peculiar part of his pontifical office, the appearing within the vail with the blood of the ſacrifice, ſeeing that there are prieſts that offer gifts according to the law, and none of any other tribe but that of Levi could be admitted there: who ſerve unto the example and ſhadow of heavenly things, that prieſthood and ſervice being intirely typical of Chriſt, as Moſes was admoniſhed of God, when he was about to make the tabernacle. For ſee (ſaith he) that thou make all things according to the pattern ſhewed to thee in the mount. Neceſſary therefore was it that Chriſt, having offered his own body a ſacrifice on the croſs, ſhould, with the blood which he had ſhed, appear in the preſence of God, and diſcharge that glorious high prieſthood whereunto he had been appointed.

2. He ſhews the tranſcendent excellency of Chriſt's miniſtry above that of the ſons of Aaron, as being the mediator of a better covenant, eſtabliſhed upon better promiſes. The covenant of grace, as revealed in the goſpel, far exceeding the Sinai covenant, whether conſidered as a political covenant of peculiarity, and enſuring to the people temporal bleſſings, merely as the fruit of an external obedience to the letter of the law; or if we admit its latitude to be more extenſive, and that it included ſpiritual and eternal bleſſings; yet as that diſpenſation was clothed with darkneſs and terror, the goſpel far exceeds it, as containing a more clear revelation of God's grace, extending its promiſes to Gentiles as well as Jews, being accompanied with a more abundant meaſure of the Spirit, and more particularly and fully leading the ſoul to ſeek and expect, not ſo much temporal, as ſpiritual and heavenly bleſſings. For if that firſt covenant, entered into with the Jews at Sinai, had been faultleſs, (for however well ſuited to anſwer the purpoſes of God at that time, yet it was deficient, and wanted much of that light and clearneſs, with which afterwards God intended to reveal his deſigns of grace) could that have been ſufficient to accompliſh the great ends God had in view, then ſhould no place have been ſought for the ſecond, as we find was the caſe. For God finding fault with them, and reproving the Jews by the prophet Jeremiah, he ſaith, Behold, the days come, ſaith the Lord, when I will make or finiſh a new covenant with the houſe of Iſrael, and with the houſe of Judah, a covenant of abſolute promiſes, and ſure to all the ſpiritual Iſrael, Gentiles as well as Jews: not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; becauſe they continued not in my covenant, but unfaithfully departed from it, and I regarded them not, ſaith the Lord; withdrew my favour from them, and no longer, as a huſband, vouchſafed them my love and protection. For this is the covenant that I will make with the houſe of Iſrael after thoſe days, ſaith the Lord, with the ſpiritual Iſrael of all nations; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts, giving them the cleareſt views of my deſigns of grace, and engaging their ſouls to my love and ſervice, by the powerful operations of my Spirit, making a deeper and more abiding impreſſion upon their hearts, than the letters of law made on the tables of ſtone: and I will be to them a God, abſolutely and everlaſtingly reconciled to them, and cauſing them to experience my continual protection and bleſſing, and they ſhall be to me a people, engaged to ſerve me by the moſt effectual ties of gratitude as well as duty, and ſecured in their allegiance by my effectual grace, ſo that they ſhall never depart from me. And they ſhall not need to teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, ſaying, Know the Lord, as under the former diſpenſation, where all the typical ſervice required conſtant explication; but under the clearer diſpenſation of light and truth in the goſpel this would be leſs neceſſary; not that the miniſtry of the word, or private inſtructions among Chriſtians, ſhould be ſet aſide, but that in thoſe days the knowledge of divine things ſhould be more univerſally diffuſed, and all believers be under the more abundant teachings of the Spirit: for all ſhall know me from the leaſt unto the greateſt, as their reconciled God and Father in the great Redeemer, whatever difference there may be as to the degree of their attainments. For I will be merciful to their unrighteouſneſs, through the propitiation of their great high prieſt, and their ſins and their iniquities will I remember no more, pardoning them freely, fully, and for ever. Now in that he ſaith, A new covenant, he hath made the firſt old, aboliſhing the Moſaical diſpenſation, becauſe of its weakneſs and unprofitableneſs. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old, as is the caſe with the Jewiſh œconomy at preſent, that, like a perſon dying with age, is ready to vaniſh away, the time being at hand, when, by the deſtruction of the temple, the whole ſervice muſt ceaſe, never to be reſumed again. Note, (1.) Our fidelity to God in the covenant of grace depends upon his having engaged for our ſtability. (2.) God freely and for ever pardons the ſins of his people; they ſhall ſink as a ſtone in the abyſs of water, and never riſe up again. (3.) The diſpenſation of the covenant of grace, under which we live, ſhould be matter of our unſpeakable comfort and unceaſing thankfulneſs, wherein all the riches of God's grace, without a veil, are laid open before his choſen people, and their eternal happineſs infallibly ſecured

CHAP. IX.

The apoſtle, in purſuance of his main deſign, proceeds to treat, 1. Of the tabernacle, the place of worſhip, ver. 1—6. 2. Of the worſhip and ſervices performed in the tabernacle, ver. 6, 7. 3. Delivers the ſpiritual ſenſe and the main deſign of all, ver. 8. to the end.

1. THEN verily the firſt covenant had alſo † ordinances of divine ſervice, and a worldly ſanctuary. 2. For there was a tabernacle made, [a] the firſt [b] wherein was the candleſtick, and [c] the table, and the ſhew-bread; which is called the ſanctuary. 3. And [d] after the ſecond vail, the tabernacle which is called the holieſt of all: 4. Which had the golden cenſer, and [e] the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was [f] the golden pot that had manna, and [g] Aaron's rod that budded, and [h] the tables of the covenant; 5. And [i] over it the cherubims of glory ſhadowing the mercy-ſeat: of which we cannot now ſpeak particularly.

† Or ceremonies.
[a] Ex. xl. 2.
[b] Ex. xxvi. 35.
[c] Ex. xxv. 30. Lev. xxiv. 5, 6.
[d] Ex. xxvi. 31.
[e] Ex. xxv. 10. & xxvi. 33.
[f] Ex. xvi. 33, 34.
[g] Num. xvii. 10.
[h] Ex. xxv. 21. Deut. x. 2, 5. 1 Kings viii. 9. 2 Chro. v. 10.
[i] Ex. xxv. 18, 22.

v. 1—5. The apoſtle begins with an account of the tabernacle, where the chief part of the ſervice under the Moſaical diſpenſation, or firſt covenant, was performed. It conſiſted of two parts:

1. The outward, where ſtood the candleſtick of beaten gold, and the table, with the ſhew-bread laid thereon; and this was called the ſanctuary, where the daily ſervice of God was performed. The whole building was figurative of Chriſt's body; the candleſtick pointed him out as the true light who ſhould come into the world, where, without him, ſpiritual darkneſs muſt have been for ever ſpread abroad; and the table of ſhew-bread pointed him out as the living bread that cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world, upon whom his people, conſecrated to be ſpiritual prieſts, feed, and maintain the moſt endeared communion thereby with each other.

2. The inward, which a ſecond vail ſeparated from the outer part of the tabernacle, and was called the holieſt of all, the figure of heaven itſelf, into which none entered but the high prieſt alone once a year, on the great day of expiation, with the golden cenſer full of incenſe, which typified Chriſt's interceſſion in heaven for his people; and there ſtood the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, which ſignified him who was to be the end of the law for righteouſneſs to every one that believeth, wherein were the tables of the law written with the finger of God, and, by the ſide of it, the golden pot that had manna, which was miraculouſly preſerved from putrefaction, ſignifying the daily living bread with which Chriſt feeds his Iſrael in this howling wilderneſs, giving them meat to eat which the world knoweth not of. There alſo was Aaron's rod that budded, from a dry ſtick producing flowers and fruit, emblematical of him who roſe as the rod out of the ſtem of Jeſſe, to be by divine appointment our high prieſt for ever. And over the ark were the cherubims of beaten gold, two winged figures, that ſhadowed the mercy-ſeat, over which the glorious ſhekinah dwelt, and on which the blood was ſprinkled in the great day of atonement, intimating to us that Chriſt, as our propitiatory, interpoſes between the wrath of a holy God and the tranſgreſſors of his law, to ſave us from the eternal ruin which muſt otherwiſe neceſſarily enſue. But into the myſtical meaning of theſe things the apoſtle waves to enter, of which we cannot now ſpeak particularly. Let us not therefore too curiouſly pry into them, nor affect to be wiſe above that which is written.

[k] Num. xxviii. 3.
[l] Ex. xxx. 10. Lev. xvi. 2, 15, 34. Ver. 25.

6. Now when theſe things were thus ordained, [k] the prieſts went always into the firſt tabernacle, accompliſhing the ſervice of God: 7. But into the ſecond went the high prieſt alone [l] once every year, not without blood, which he offered for himſelf, and for the errors of the people.

v. 6, 7. The tabernacle being prepared, we are told what ſervice was performed in it.

1. In the outer part of the tabernacle the ordinary prieſts every day officiated, burning incenſe, trimming the lamps, and accompliſhing all the ſervice appointed them.

2. Into the ſecond tabernacle, within the vail, went the high prieſt alone once a year, on one day only, and then not without blood, which he offered as an atonement for himſelf and for the errors of the people; intimating hereby that there was no acceſs to God but through the blood of atonement, even the blood of him whom all the ſacrifices repreſented, and whoſe interceſſion on the behalf of his people could only be available.

[m] Chap. x. 19, 20.
[n] John xiv. 6.
[o] Chap. vii. 18. & x. 1.
[p] Lev. xi. 2.
[q] Num. xix. 2, &c.
† Or rites, or ceremonies.
[r] Chap. iii. 1.
[s] Chap. viii. 2.
[t] Acts xx. 28. Eph. i. 7. 1 Pet. i. 19. Rev. i. 5. & v. 9.
[u] Ver. 26, 28.
[x] Dan. ix. 24.
[y] Lev. xvi. 14, 16.
[z] Num. xix. 2, 17, &c.
[a] 1 Pet. i. 19. 1 John i. 7. Rev. i. 5.
[b] Rom. i. 4.
[c] Eph. v. 2.
‡ Or fault.
[d] Chap. x. 22.
[e] Chap. vi. 1.
[f] Luke i. 74. 1 Pet. iv. 2.

8. [m] The holy Ghoſt this ſignifying, [n] that the way into the holieſt of all was not yet made manifeſt, while as the firſt tabernacle was yet ſtanding: 9. Which was a figure for the time then preſent, in which were offered both gifts and ſacrifices, [o] that could not make him that did the ſervice perfect, as pertaining to the conſcience, 10. Which ſtood only in [p] meats, and drinks, and [q] divers waſhings, and carnal † ordinances impoſed on them until the time of reformation. 11. But Chriſt being come [r] an high prieſt of good things to come, [s] by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to ſay, not of this building; 12. Neither by the blood of goats and calves, but [t] by his own blood he entred in [u] once into the holy place, [x] having obtained eternal redemption for us. 13. For if [y] the blood of bulls and of goats, and [z] the aſhes of an heifer ſprinkling the unclean, ſanctifieth to the purifying of the fleſh; 14. How much more [a] ſhall the blood of Chriſt, [b] who through the eternal Spirit [c] offered himſelf without ‡ ſpot to God, [d] purge your conſcience from [e] dead works [f] to ſerve the living God?

v. 8—14. The apoſtle here proceeds to declare the deſign of the Holy Ghoſt in theſe ritual ſervices.

1. He ſignified hereby, that the way into the holieſt of all was not yet made manifeſt, while as the firſt tabernacle was yet ſtanding: in that dark diſpenſation, the way of acceſs to a throne of grace, and of admiſſion into heaven itſelf through the blood and righteouſneſs of the Redeemer, was not ſo clearly and fully laid open, as it ſhould afterwards be under the goſpel.

2. The tabernacle was a figure for the time then preſent, ſuited to that more obſcure diſpenſation, and the ſhadow of good things to come, till he who was the ſubſtance of them ſhould appear, and then it would become uſeleſs.

3. The gifts and ſacrifices there offered could not make the worſhippers perfect, but though they were available to the purifying of the fleſh, and exculpated them from ſuffering the temporal puniſhments, due to them as offenders againſt God conſidered as their political ſovereign, they could not purge the conſcience from moral evil, appeaſe the fears of guilt, or ſecure from eternal puniſhment, any farther than they led them to Chriſt, who was in theſe ſacrifices prefigured, that ſo they might be juſtified by faith; for theſe ſacrifices could little avail, ſtanding only in meats, and drinks, and divers waſhings, and carnal ordinances, and rites which accompanied them, and may be conſidered as a burden impoſed on them until the time of reformation, when Chriſt in his goſpel ſhould free his ſpiritual Iſrael from this heavy yoke.

4. Chriſt hath appeared and accompliſhed all that was here prefigured concerning him. But Chriſt being come an high prieſt of good things to come, on purpoſe to procure all ſpiritual and eternal bleſſings for his people, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, even of his own body, wherein dwelt all the fulneſs of the godhead, not made with hands, that is to ſay, not of this building, but formed by the Holy Ghoſt from the ſubſtance of a virgin; neither by the blood of goats and calves, which was all the Levitical prieſts could offer, but by a ſacrifice infinitely more excellent hath made the atonement, even by offering his own body on the tree, and with his own blood, of everlaſting efficacy, he entered in once into the holy place, even into heaven itſelf, there for ever to abide, and plead the merit of that ſacrifice which he had offered, having obtained eternal redemption for us by this one oblation. For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the aſhes of an heifer ſprinkling the unclean, ſanctifieth to the purifying of the fleſh, and under the Moſaical œconomy readmitted thoſe who were unclean, and excluded from the public worſhip, to the congregation of the faithful; how much more ſhall the blood of Chriſt, the efficacy of which is ſo infinitely greater, who through the eternal Spirit, which dwelt in his perfectly pure human nature, offered himſelf without ſpot unto God, a lamb meet to bleed on God's altar, how ſhall not this, I ſay, much more purge your conſcience from dead works, from all your ſins, however great and aggravated, the wages of which muſt have been eternal death, and reſtore you to ſerve the living God, in all holy and willing obedience, regarding him now as your reconciled God and Father, through the Son of his love Chriſt Jeſus? Note, (1.) The redemption which the Saviour hath obtained for his people is eternal, not merely from preſent ſin and guilt, but includes the purchaſe of everlaſting glory for them. (2.) The oblation which he once offered effectually accompliſhed this, and left nothing for them to do, but freely to come and receive the unſearchable riches of his grace. (3.) The excellence and availableneſs of Chriſt's ſacrifice ariſes from the dignity of his perſon; he who offered his human nature upon the croſs was very God, and that gave infinite value to the blood which he ſhed. (4.) Sin muſt eternally have deſtroyed all the human race but for this one oblation; nothing elſe could purge the ſinner's conſcience, but this is all-ſufficient to ſave to the uttermoſt, and cleanſe us from all ſin. (5.) All whoſe conſciences are purged by the blood of ſprinkling, experience alſo the power of changing grace upon their hearts, and are thenceforward both inclined and enabled in righteouſneſs and true holineſs to ſerve the living God.

[g] 1 Tim. ii. 5. Chap. vii. 22.
[h] Rom. v. 6. 1 Pet. iii. 18.
[i] Rom. iii. 25.
[k] Gal. iii. 15.
[l] Ex. xxiv. 6, &c.
† Or purified.
[m] Ex. xxiv. 5, 6. Lev. xvi. 14, 15, 18.
[n] Ex. xxiv. 8. Mat. xxvi. 28.
[o] Ex. xxix. 12, 36. Lev. viii. 15. & xvi. 14, 16.
[p] Lev. xvii. 11.

15. And [g] for this cauſe he is the Mediator of the new teſtament, [h] that by means of death, [i] for the redemption of the tranſgreſſions that were under the firſt teſtament, they which are called might receive the promiſe of eternal inheritance. 16. For where a teſtament is, there muſt alſo of neceſſity be the death of the teſtator. 17. For [k] a teſtament is of force after men are dead: otherwiſe it is of no ſtrength at all whilſt the teſtator liveth. 18. Whereupon, [l] neither the firſt teſtament was † dedicated without blood. 19. For when Moſes had ſpoken every precept to all the people according to the law, [m] he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water, and ſcarlet wool, and hyſſop, and ſprinkled both the book and all the people, 20. Saying, [n] This is the blood of the teſtament which God hath enjoined unto you. 21. Moreover, [o] he ſprinkled likewiſe with blood both the tabernacle, and all the veſſels of the miniſtry. 22. And almoſt all things are by the law purged with blood; and [p] without ſhedding of blood is no remiſſion.

v. 15—22. The covenant of grace is here conſidered under the nature of a teſtamentary diſpoſition, we receiving all ſpiritual bleſſings, as the legacies left by our dying Lord.

And for this cauſe he is the Mediator of the New Teſtament, ſecuring for his people, and bequeathing to them every bleſſing, that by means of death, whereby the covenant was ratified, and the full atonement made, for the redemption of the tranſgreſſions that were under the firſt teſtament, the efficacy of his ſacrifice reaching back to the beginning, as well as to the end of time, they which are called to faith in him, in whatever age they may have lived, might receive the promiſe of eternal inheritance, which is inſeparably connected with faith in his atoning blood. For, as among men, where a teſtament or will is made, there muſt alſo of neceſſity be the death of the teſtator, before the legacies bequeathed can be claimed, or paid; ſo was it neceſſary that Chriſt ſhould die, for a teſtament is of force only after men are dead: otherwiſe it is of no ſtrength at all while the teſtator liveth. Whereupon, neither the firſt teſtament was dedicated without blood of ſlain beaſts, which typified the death and blood-ſhedding of the great Redeemer. For when Moſes had ſpoken every precept to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, which had been ſacrificed, with water, and ſcarlet wool, and hyſſop, and ſprinkled both the book and all the people, in token of the ratification of all that was contained in the ſacred volume, and of the application of the bleſſings and benefits contained in the teſtament to the ſouls of the faithful; and this was figurative of that blood and water which flowed from the wounded ſide of the Redeemer, which, in its virtue, effectually cleanſes the conſciences of thoſe who believe from all guilt and defilement. And this Moſes bid them particularly to obſerve, Saying, This is the blood of the teſtament which God hath enjoined unto you, whereby it is ratified, and his faithfulneſs engaged for the fulfilment of all the promiſes therein contained. Moreover, he ſprinkled likewiſe with blood both the tabernacle, and all the veſſels of the miniſtry, when they were made. And almoſt all things are by the law purged with blood, wherein the ſacrifice and death of Chriſt were conſtantly held forth to them as the alone meritorious cauſe of the ſinner's acceptance; and that without the ſhedding of his blood there is no remiſſion of ſins.

23. It was therefore neceſſary that the patterns of things in the heavens ſhould be purified with theſe; but the heavenly things themſelves with better ſacrifices than theſe. 24. For Chriſt is not entred into the holy places made with hands, [q] which are the figures of the true; [r] but into heaven itſelf, [s] now to appear in the preſence of God for us: 25. Nor yet that he ſhould offer himſelf often, [t] as the high prieſt entreth into the holy place, every year with blood of others: 26. (For then muſt he often have ſuffered ſince the foundation of the world) but now [u] once [x] in the end of the world, hath he appeared to put away ſin by the ſacrifice of himſelf. 27. And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment: 28. So [y] Chriſt was once [z] offered to bear the ſins [a] of many; and unto them that look for him ſhall he appear the ſecond time, without ſin, unto ſalvation.

[q] Chap. viii. 5.
[r] Chap. vi. 20.
[s] Rom. viii. 34. Chap. vii. 25. 1 John ii. 1.
[t] Ex. xxx. 10. Lev. xvi. 34. Ver. 7.
[u] Chap. vii. 27. & x. 10. 1 Pet. iii. 18.
[x] 1 Cor. x. 11. Eph. i. 10.
[y] Rom. vi. 10. 1 Pet. iii. 18.
[z] 1 Pet. ii. 24.
[a] Mat. xxvi. 28. Rom. v. 15. 1 John iii. 5.

v. 23—28. From what he had advanced, the apoſtle argues,

That it was therefore neceſſary, by divine appointment, that the pattern of things in the heavens, the tabernacle and all the veſſels, ſhould be purified with theſe typical ſacrifices, and ſprinklings of blood; but the heavenly things themſelves with better ſacrifices than theſe, even the offering of Jeſus himſelf, who by his own blood ratified the covenant of grace, and being through his ſacrifice conſecrated to his office as the great high prieſt, entered into heaven, there to preſent his blood before the throne, and prepare manſions for the reception of his people. For Chriſt is not, like the Jewiſh high prieſts, entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itſelf, now to appear in the preſence of God for us, and effectually to inſure to us all the bleſſings which, by his blood-ſhedding, he hath purchaſed: nor was his ſacrifice incomplete, as yet again to require that he ſhould offer himſelf often, as the high prieſt entreth into the holy place, every year with the blood of others, of the animals which were ſacrificed: (for then muſt he often have ſuffered ſince the foundation of the world) and the fall of man, but now once in the end of the world, at the cloſe of the Jewiſh œconomy, and at the beginning of the laſt and moſt excellent diſpenſation, under the goſpel, hath he appeared to put away ſin by the ſacrifice of himſelf, ſuffering in the human nature, and, by the divine glory of his perſon, offering ſuch a complete and all-availing ſacrifice, as never needed a repetition, the efficacy thereof extending to every believer to the lateſt ages of time. And as it is appointed unto men once to die, returning to the duſt from whence they came, and but once, for after this bodily death is the final judgment, when all muſt appear at God's bar, and ſtand or fall to eternity: ſo Chriſt was once offered upon the croſs to bear the ſins of many, and made there a full atonement by his one oblation; and unto them that look for him, in faith and love, expecting his return, ſhall he appear, not as a ſuffering but a glorified Saviour, without ſin, having taken it all away, and being now manifeſted to bring his people unto that complete and perfect ſalvation in glory, which he hath obtained for them. Note, (1.) Die we muſt, ſuch is the divine decree; highly therefore doth it import us to prepare for this awful change. (2.) Judgment follows cloſe at the heels of death, and as the tree falleth, it muſt lie for ever. (3.) Chriſt hath borne the ſins of many, not of every individual of the human ſpecies, but of the many ſons whom he is appointed to bring unto glory. (4.) He that ſuffered upon a croſs ſhall ſhortly appear upon the throne, and a terrible judge will he be found to thoſe who have not embraced him as a Saviour. (5.) It is the character of his redeemed people that they look for the day of his appearing, earneſtly expecting his arrival, that they may obtain their perfect conſummation both in body and ſoul in his kingdom of everlaſting glory.

CHAP. X.

To wean the Hebrews from the Levitical diſpenſation, he proceeds in this chapter, 1. To lay low the whole of that prieſthood and ſervice, ver. 1—7. 2. He raiſes and exalts the prieſthood of Chriſt very high, that he might effectually recommend him and his goſpel to them, ver. 7—19. 3. He ſhews to believers the honours and dignities of their ſtate, and calls them to ſuitable duties, ver. 19, to the end.

1. FOR the law having [a] a ſhadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, [b] can never with thoſe ſacrifices which they offered year by year continually make the comers thereunto [c] perfect. 2. For then, † would they not have ceaſed to be offered? becauſe that the worſhippers once purged ſhould have had no more conſcience of ſins. 3. But in thoſe ſacrifices [d] there is a remembrance again made of ſins every year. 4. For [e] it is not poſſible that the blood of bulls and of goats ſhould take away ſins. 5. Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he ſaith, [f] Sacrifice and offering thou wouldſt not, but a body haſt thou prepared me: 6. In burnt-offerings and ſacrifices for ſin thou haſt had no pleaſure. 7. Then, ſaid I, Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me) to do thy will, O God. 8. Above, when he ſaid, Sacrifice, and offering, and burnt-offerings, and offering for ſin thou wouldſt not, neither hadſt pleaſure therein, (which are offered by the law;) 9. Then ſaid he, Lo I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the firſt, that he may eſtabliſh the ſecond. 10. [g] By the which will we are ſanctified, [h] through the offering of the body of Jeſus Chriſt once for all. 11. And every prieſt ſtandeth daily miniſtring and offering oftentimes the ſame ſacrifices, [i] which can never take away ſins: 12. [k] But this man, after he had offered one ſacrifice for ſins, for ever ſat down on the right hand of God; 13. From henceforth expecting [l] till his enemies be made his footſtool. 14. For by one offering he hath perfected [m] for ever them that are ſanctified. 15. Whereof the holy Ghoſt alſo is a witneſs to us: for after that he had ſaid before, 16. [n] This is the covenant that I will make with them after thoſe days, ſaith the Lord; I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them: 17. ‡ And their ſins and iniquities will I remember no more. 18. Now where remiſſion of theſe is, there is no more offering for ſin.

[a] Col. ii. 17. Chap. viii. 5. & ix. 23.
[b] Chap. ix. 9.
[c] Ver. 14.
† Or they would have ceaſed to be offered, becauſe, &c.
[d] Lev. xxi. 21.
[e] Mic. vi. 7. Chap. ix. 13.
[f] Pſ. xl. 6, &c. Iſa. i. 11. Jer. vi. 20. Am. v. 21.
[g] John xvii. 19
[h] Chap. ix. 12. & xiii. 12.
[i] Chap. ix. 9.
[k] Chap. i. 3.
[l] Pſ. cx. 1. 1 Cor. xv. 25. Chap. i. 13.
[m] Chap. ix. 12.
[n] Jer. xxxi. 33, 34. Chap. viii. 10, 12.
‡ Some copies read, Then he ſaid, and their ſins, &c.

v. 1—18. The weakneſs and unprofitableneſs of the Levitical inſtitutions ſhould engage the Hebrews to receive, with greater cordiality, the bleſſed goſpel. For,

1. The law having a ſhadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, all being figurative and typical of Chriſt, who ſhould, in the fulneſs of time, appear as the ſubſtance, can never by thoſe ſacrifices which they, who were high prieſts, offered from year to year continually make the comers thereunto perfect, ſo as to ſatisfy God's juſtice, obtain reconciliation, and pacify the guilty conſcience. For then, if this great end had been fully anſwered, would they not have ceaſed to be offered? What uſe would there have been for their repetition? becauſe that the worſhippers once purged ſhould have had no more conſcience of ſins, not have been under any further condemnation or diſtreſs of ſoul. But in thoſe ſacrifices there is a remembrance again made of ſins every year, which ſhews that the former ſacrifices had not perfectly atoned for them. Nor indeed could they, for it is not poſſible that the blood of bulls and of goats ſhould take away ſins, making an adequate compenſation to Divine Juſtice, or that the death of a beaſt ſhould be a proper and effectual atonement for the ſin of the ſoul. A better ſacrifice than theſe was required, and all the uſe of theſe typical ones was to lead them to Chriſt, whoſe blood alone could ſatisfy for ſin. Wherefore,

2. When he cometh into the world he ſaith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldſt not, but a body haſt thou prepared me, in which to make that atonement for which the legal ſacrifices were ineffectual. In burnt-offerings and ſacrifices for ſin thou haſt had no pleaſure. Then, ſaid I, Lo! I come (as in the volume of the book of prophecy it is written of me) to do thy will, O God; well pleaſed and content to ſuffer all that Juſtice demands to make ſatisfaction for the ſins of my people. Above when he ſaid, Sacrifice, and offering, and burnt-offerings, and offering for ſin thou wouldſt not, neither hadſt pleaſure therein, (which are offered by the law;) then ſaid he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God, and to take away ſin by the ſacrifice of myſelf. He taketh away the firſt covenant, with all the legal ſacrifices, becauſe of their inſufficiency, that he may eſtabliſh the ſecond, thro' his own all-atoning blood.

3. In virtue of his oblation the moſt invaluable bleſſings are ſecured to us. By the which will of God, as fulfilled in Chriſt, we are ſanctified, our ſins expiated, and our conſciences purged from their defilement, through the offering of the body of Jeſus once for all; wherein may be obſerved another ſingular excellence of our High-prieſt and his ſacrifice above all others; for every prieſt STANDETH, with awful diſtance, and continues DAILY miniſtring, and offering OFTENTIMES THE SAME SACRIFICES, all which things ſhewed the imperfection of that diſpenſation; and after all, theſe can never take away ſin, ſo as to ſatisfy God's juſtice, or relieve the guilty conſcience; but this man, the glorious Jeſus, after he had offered ONE ſacrifice for ſins, fully accompliſhed his work, and never needed to offer another, and for ever SAT DOWN, in a ſtate of endleſs reſt and moſt tranſcendent dignity, on the right hand of God; from henceforth expecting till all his enemies be made his footſtool, and Satan, ſin, the world, and death, ſhall at laſt be deſtroyed for ever. For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are ſanctified; in his blood and righteouſneſs they ſtand complete before God, are regarded by him as without ſpot, and, through the powerful efficacy of divine faith, their hearts are renewed and dedicated to God. Whereof the Holy Ghoſt alſo is a witneſs to us: for after that he had ſaid before, This is the covenant that I will make with them after thoſe days, ſaith the Lord, I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them, and their ſins and iniquities will I remember no more; ſo that they ſhall be abſolutely, fully, and for ever done away. Now where remiſſion of theſe is, in ſo complete a manner, there is no more offering for ſin, the one oblation of Chriſt's body on the croſs having ſatisfied to the uttermoſt. Note, (1.) All God's people are ſanctified, as well as juſtified, by the offering of the body of Jeſus once for all; thereby all grace, as well as pardon, was purchaſed for them. (2.) In Chriſt we are perfected for ever, and our title to glory was as complete when he died on the tree as when we ſhall appear before his throne. (3.) The abſolute and everlaſting pardon of ſin is one of the peculiar bleſſings of the covenant of grace. (4.) All the enemies of Chriſt and his people muſt ſooner or later become his footſtool: he is ſat down on his throne, and ſhall reign till they are utterly deſtroyed.

19. [o] Having therefore, brethren, † boldneſs to enter [p] into the holieſt by the blood of Jeſus, 20. [q] By a new and living way which he hath ‡ conſecrated for us, through the vail, that is to ſay, his fleſh; 21. And having [r] an high-prieſt over the houſe of God: 22. Let us draw near with [s] a true heart, [t] in full aſſurance of faith, having our hearts ſprinkled [u] from an evil conſcience, and our bodies [x] waſhed with pure water. 23. [y] Let us hold faſt the profeſſion of our faith without wavering (for [z] he is faithful that promiſed) 24. And let us conſider one another to provoke unto love, and to good works: 25. [a] Not forſaking the aſſembling of ourſelves together, as the manner of ſome is; but [b] exhorting one another: and ſo much the more as ye ſee the day approaching.

[o] Rom. v. 2. Eph. ii. 18. & iii. 12.
† Or liberty.
[p] Chap. ix. 8, 12.
[q] John xiv. 6.
‡ Or made new.
[r] Chap. iv. 14, 16.
[s] John iv. 23.
[t] Eph. iii. 12. Jam. i. 6. 1 John iii. 21.
[u] Chap. ix. 14.
[x] Ezek. xxxvi. 25.
[y] Chap. iv. 14.
[z] 1 Cor. i. 9. 1 Theſ. v. 24. 2 Theſ. iii. 3.
[a] Acts ii. 42.
[b] Chap. iii. 13.

v. 19—25. The apoſtle, having concluded the doctrinal part of the epiſtle, proceeds to make a practical improvement of the whole.

He reminds them of the ineſtimable privileges which through their great High-prieſt they enjoyed. Having therefore, brethren, boldneſs to enter into the holieſt, and freedom and confidence in approaching a reconciled God, by the blood of Jeſus, ſprinkled with which we are aſſured of preſent and eternal acceptance before him; by a new and living way which he hath conſecrated, who is himſelf the way, the truth, and the life; and they who walk in him ſhall never die; and this through the vail, that is to ſay, his fleſh; for, when his body was broken on the tree, the vail of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom, to ſhew, that every obſtruction in our way to a throne of grace and glory was now removed: and having an High-prieſt, one ſo great and glorious, over the houſe of God, let us,

1. Draw near to God in every act of worſhip, and in the moſt endeared communion; with a true heart, in all ſimplicity and godly ſincerity; and in full aſſurance of faith in the all-ſufficiency of our Redeemer, and our reconciliation with God through him; having our hearts ſprinkled from an evil conſcience, with his atoning blood, which ſpeaks peace from all guilt and condemnation; and our bodies waſhed with pure water, cleanſed by the powerful operations of the Holy Ghoſt, which the Jewiſh waſhings prefigured.

2. Let us hold faſt the profeſſion of our faith without wavering; not ſeduced by temptation, diſmayed with oppoſition, or diſtruſting the grace engaged for our ſupport: for he is faithful that promiſed, and we may ſafely repoſe on his word our everlaſting all.

And, 3. Let us conſider one another, our reſpective trials, dangers, wants, and weakneſs, in order to provoke each other unto love towards Jeſus and the brethren, and to good works, ſuch as may adorn our high profeſſion.

4. Let us be united in heart and worſhip, not forſaking the aſſembling of ourſelves together, as the manner of ſome is, who, on weak and frivolous pretences, abſent from the congregation of the faithful and the communion of the Lord; a ſad ſymptom of declenſion, and often the prelude to apoſtacy.

5. Let us never be ſlack and remiſs in holy jealouſy over ourſelves and our brethren; but be exhorting one another to give all diligence to make our calling and election ſure, in the uſe of every appointed means of grace: and ſo much the more as ye ſee the day approaching, when the whole Jewiſh polity and nation ſhall be deſtroyed; or when death muſt place you before the judgment-ſeat of Chriſt. An awful conſideration! which, the more deeply it dwells upon our minds, will excite our moſt awakened ſollicitude to be always ready for our great change.

26. For [c] if we ſin wilfully [d] after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more ſacrifice for ſins, 27. But a certain fearful looking for of judgment, and [e] fiery indignation, which ſhall devour the adverſaries. 28. [f] He that deſpiſed Moſes law died without mercy, [g] under two or three witneſſes: 29. [h] Of how much ſorer puniſhment, ſuppoſe ye, ſhall he be thought worthy, who hath troden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted [i] the blood of the covenant wherewith he was ſanctified, an unholy thing, and [k] hath done deſpite unto the Spirit of grace? 30. For we know him that hath ſaid, [l] Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompenſe, ſaith the Lord. And again, [m] The Lord ſhall judge his people. 31. [n] It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

[c] Num. xv. 30. Chap. vi. 4, &c. 1 John v. 16.
[d] 2 Pet. ii. 20, 21.
[e] Ezek. xxxvi. 5. Zeph. i. 18. & iii. 8. 2 Theſ. i. 1.
[f] Ex. xxxii. 27. Lev. xxiv. 14. Num. xv. 32—36.
[g] Deut. xvii. 6. & xix. 15.
[h] Chap. xii. 25.
[i] Chap. xiii. 20.
[k] Acts v. 3, 9.
[l] Deut. xxxii. 35. Rom. xii. 19.
[m] Deut. xxxii. 36. Pſ. l. 4.
[n] Luke xii. 5. Chap. xii. 29.

v. 26—31. To awaken their more abundant concern, the apoſtle ſets before them the dreadful evil and danger of apoſtacy.

For if we ſin wilfully, after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, which doth not mean every ſin that through infirmity or temptation we may be drawn into, nor even deliberate or repeated acts of ſin; but ſuch a courſe of iniquity, embraced with full conſent of the mind, as leads to an utter rejection of the goſpel, and denial of Jeſus Chriſt: in which caſe, the only remedy being rejected, there remaineth no more ſacrifice for ſins, nor any poſſibility of pardon, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment, and fiery indignation, which ſhall devour the adverſaries, ſuch as ſhortly muſt ſeize the infidel Jews, when they ſhall be buried in the ruins of their city, and awaits the finally impenitent in the great day of God's wrath, when the wicked ſhall be caſt into hell, where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched. Even he that deſpiſed Moſes's law died without mercy, under two or three witneſſes, and no ſacrifice was appointed for preſumptuous ſins: of how much ſorer puniſhment then, ſuppoſe ye, ſhall he be thought worthy, whoſe offence is ſo infinitely more aggravated, who hath troden under foot the Son of God, treating him with the direſt inſolence and contempt as an impoſtor, denying his Deity, deſpiſing his atonement and righteouſneſs, and mocking at his grace; and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was ſanctified, an unholy thing, of leſs efficacy than the blood of bulls and goats, yea, as the Jews intimated at his crucifixion, viler than that of the greateſt miſcreants; and hath done deſpite unto the Spirit of grace, imputing his miracles to diabolical power, and calling his operations upon the hearts of men deluſion and enthuſiaſm. Such blaſphemy is unpardonable, and muſt bring down the heavieſt wrath of an offended God. For we know him that hath ſaid, Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompenſe, ſaith the Lord, and puniſh incorrigible offenders according to their wickedneſs. And again, The Lord ſhall judge his people, will detect the hypocrites, and as ſurely deſtroy the apoſtate as he will ſave the faithful. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God, whoſe wrath, if it be kindled, yea but a moment, who may abide it? Let us hear and tremble, and watch and pray, that we come not into this condemnation, and periſh with theſe deſpiſers.

32. But [o] call to remembrance the former days, in which [p] after ye were illuminated, ye endured [q] a great fight of afflictions: 33. Partly whilſt ye were made [r] a gazing-ſtock, both by reproaches and afflictions; and partly whilſt [s] ye became companions of them that were ſo uſed. 34. For ye had compaſſion of me in my bonds, and [t] took joyfully the ſpoiling of your goods, knowing † in yourſelves that [u] ye have in heaven a better and an enduring ſubſtance. 35. [x] Caſt not away therefore your confidence, [y] which hath great recompenſe of reward. 36. For [z] ye have need of patience; that after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promiſe. 37. For [a] yet a little while, and he that ſhall come will come, and will not tarry. 38. Now [b] the juſt ſhall live by [o] Gal. iii. 4. 2 John 8.

[p] Chap. vi. 4.
[q] Phil. i. 29. Col. ii. 1.
[r] 1 Cor. iv. 9.
[s] Phil. iv. 14. 1 Theſ. ii. 14.
[t] Mat. v. 12. Acts v. 41. Jam. i. 2.
† Or that ye have in or for yourſelves.
[u] Mat. vi. 20. & xix. 21. Luke xii. 33. 1 Tim. vi. 19.
[x] Chap. iv. 14.
[y] Mat. v. 12. & x. 32.
[z] Luke xxi. 19.
[a] Hab. ii. 3. Luke xviii. 8. 2 Pet. iii. 9.
[b] Hab. ii. 4. Rom. i. 17. Gal. iii. 11.

by faith: but if any man draw back, my ſoul ſhall have no pleaſure in him. 39. But [c] we are not of them who draw back unto perdition; but of them [d] that believe to the ſaving of the ſoul.

[c] 1 Theſ. v. 9. Chap. vi. 9.
[d] John iii. 16.

v. 32—39. To excite the faithful ſteadily to perſevere,

1. He reminds them of the paſt ſufferings which they had ſo nobly undergone. But call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were illuminated, and brought to the knowledge of the truth as it is in Jeſus, ye endured a great fight of afflictions, and quitted yourſelves manfully, as became thoſe who were liſted under the banner of the croſs; partly whilſt ye were made a gazing-ſtock, both by reproaches and afflictions, pointed at, treated as deſpicable and ridiculous, and as criminals expoſed in the theatres to wild beaſts, worried with the unrelenting malice and enmity of the wicked world; and partly whilſt ye became companions of them that were ſo uſed, nobly owning them in their ſufferings for righteouſneſs ſake, ſympathizing with them, and affording them every aſſiſtance. For ye had compaſſion of me in my bonds, tenderly affected for me, and ſupporting me to the utmoſt of your ability; and took joyfully the ſpoiling of your goods, content, yea glorying in your ſufferings and loſſes, knowing in yourſelves, from the fulleſt aſſurance of God's promiſes and the experience of his grace, that ye have in heaven a better and an enduring ſubſtance, which none can take from you. Note, (1.) Every Chriſtian muſt expect and welcome the croſs. (2.) Though we may be ſkreened by Divine Providence and human laws from groſſer violations of our property, the laſh of ſlander, the bitterneſs of reproach, and the trial of cruel mockings, theſe we ſhall aſſuredly meet if we belong to Chriſt. (3.) God can make his people joyful under all their trials, and neither aſhamed nor afraid to ſuffer for his ſake. (4.) If we are of the body of Chriſt, none of his members ſuffer with whom we do not ſympathize, and we ſhall own and honour them under their reproaches for his name's ſake. (5.) If we gain heaven at laſt, we need be little concerned what we may loſe by the way.

2. He exhorts them to ſtand faſt in the proſpect of the glory which was before them. Caſt not away therefore your confidence, boldneſs and holy reſolution, which hath great recompence of reward, and will ſecure for you a crown of glory which fadeth not away, and that will infinitely overbalance all your loſſes and ſufferings. For ye have need of patience, whilſt the conflict continues, that ye may not be weary and faint in your mind; and that after ye have done the will of God, faithfully obedient to his word, and reſigned to his providence, ye might receive the promiſe of the eternal inheritance. For yet a little while, a very ſhort moment, and he that ſhall come will come, and will not tarry, to execute vengeance upon his enemies, to vindicate the injuries of his people, and ſave them with his uttermoſt ſalvation. Note, (1.) Faith and patience, held faſt, ſecure our perſeverance. (2.) Whatever trials oppreſs us, it is our comfort that the Judge ſtandeth at the door, and that death ſhall quickly releaſe us from every burden.

3. He encourages and warns them alternately. Now the juſt ſhall live by faith, or the juſt by faith ſhall live, in ſpite of every effort of ſin, the world, and Satan, to deſtroy the life of God in their ſouls; yea, they ſhall live with him to eternity: but if any man draw back from Chriſt and his goſpel as apoſtates, my ſoul, ſaith God, ſhall have no pleaſure in him, but, contrariwiſe, he will be the object of my abhorrence, and ſuffer all my furious indignation. But we are not of them who draw back unto perdition, ſuch confidence have I towards you; but of them that truly believe to the ſaving of the ſoul, faithful unto death, that we may receive the crown of life. Note, (1.) Many go far in profeſſion, who after all prove apoſtates. (2.) They who have true faith will never draw back unto perdition. (3.) Paſt experience of God's keeping us ſhould encourage our increaſing confidence in his grace. He will never leave nor forſake us, and then ſhall we never leave nor forſake him.

CHAP. XI.

The apoſtle having, in the cloſe of the foregoing chapter, recommended the grace of faith and a life of faith as the beſt preſervative againſt apoſtacy; he now enlarges upon the nature and fruits of this excellent grace. 1. The nature of it, and the honour it reflects upon all that live in the exerciſe of it, ver. 1, 2, 3. 2. The great examples we have in the Old Teſtament of thoſe that lived by faith, and did and ſuffered extraordinary things by the ſtrength of this grace, ver. 4—39. And, 3. The advantages that we have in the goſpel for the exerciſe of this grace above what they had that lived in the times of the Old Teſtament, ver. 39, 40.

1. NOW faith is the † ſubſtance of things hoped for, the evidence [a] of things not ſeen. 2. For [b] by it the elders obtained a good report. 3. Through faith we underſtand that [c] the worlds were framed by the word of God, ſo that things which are ſeen were not made of things which do appear.

† Or ground, or ſubſiſtence.
[a] Rom. viii. 24. 2 Cor. iv. 18.
[b] Ver. 39.
[c] Gen. i. 1. Pſ. xxxiii. 6. John i. 3. Chap. i. 2. 2 Pet. iii. 5.

v. 1—3. We have here,

1. An account of the nature and effects of divine faith. Now faith is the ſubſtance of things hoped for, giving ſuch a realizing view of the promiſes, and ſuch a ſubſiſtence of them to the mind, as if they were actually in our poſſeſſion; and the evidence of things not ſeen, demonſtrating as aſſuredly the certainty of the inviſible things revealed in the divine word, as a mathematical propoſition, when ſolved, carries the cleareſt conviction along with it.

2. All the ſaints from the beginning have lived under its bleſſed influence: For by it the elders obtained a good report, and were enabled ſo to walk as to obtain God's approbation of their conduct. This from the firſt being the divine principle on which alone any work acceptable to God could ever be performed.

3. One of the firſt articles of faith is this, That the worlds were framed by the word of God, who from nothing ſpake them into being; ſo that the things which are ſeen, even all the viſible objects of creation, were not made of things which do appear, from any pre-exiſtent matter, but from that chaotic maſs, which was produced at the word of the Almighty.

4. By faith [d] Abel offered unto God a more excellent ſacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witneſs that he was righteous, God teſtifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead, [e] yet † ſpeaketh. 5. By faith [f] Enoch was tranſlated that he ſhould not ſee death; and was not found, becauſe God had tranſlated him: for before his tranſlation he had this teſtimony, that he pleaſed God. 6. But without faith it is impoſſible to pleaſe him: for [g] he that cometh to God, muſt believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently ſeek him. 7. By faith [h] Noah being warned of God of things not ſeen as yet, moved with fear, [i] prepared an ark to the ſaving of his houſe; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of [k] the righteouſneſs which is by faith.

[d] Gen. iv. 4.
[e] Gen. iv. 10. Mat. xxiii. 35. Chap. xii. 24.
† Or is ſpoken of.
[f] Gen. v. 24. Wiſd. iv. 10. Ecclus xliv. 16. & xlix. 14.
[g] Chap. x. 22.
[h] Gen. vi. 13. Ecclus xliv. 17.
[i] 1 Pet. iii. 20.
[k] Rom. iii. 22. & iv. 13. Phil. iii. 9.

v. 4—7. The apoſtle here begins to inſtance the power of divine faith in many of the eminent ſervants of God, and he begins with the antediluvian worthies.

1. Abel. By Faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent ſacrifice than Cain, who only brought of the fruit of the ground, but offered no atoning ſacrifice in acknowledgment of his ſin; whilſt Abel to his mincha or meat-offering added the blood of the firſtlings of his flock, the type of the great atonement whereon his faith reſted; by which he obtained witneſs of God that he was righteous, either by ſome viſible token, as fire from heaven on his ſacrifice, or by the witneſs of the Spirit in his heart; God teſtifying of his works, that they were accepted through the righteouſneſs of faith; and by it he, being dead, yet ſpeaketh; the record of it in the ſcripture inſtructs us, that, ſince the fall of man, the only way of acceſs to God is through the atoning ſacrifice of Jeſus; and alſo that vengeance awaits the murderer and perſecutor, againſt whom the blood of innocence and the cries of oppreſſion cry for judgment. Note, (1.) The only acceſs to God for ſinners from the beginning was through the blood of Jeſus. (2.) There is a great difference between thoſe who worſhip God in formality, and faith. It is not the act, but the way in which we preſent our prayers, which makes the acceptable offering. (3.) They who are righteous by faith, and have obtained witneſs from God, may expect the world's enmity. The firſt moſt eminent ſaint recorded in ſcripture was a martyr for religion.

2. Enoch. By faith Enoch was tranſlated that he ſhould not ſee death, caught up to the paradiſe of God in body and ſoul, and inſtantly undergoing the change that fitted him for an eternal manſion in glory; and was not found, becauſe God had tranſlated him: for before his tranſlation to the realms of bliſs, he had this teſtimony, that he pleaſed God, in a courſe of humble and holy walking, under the influence of divine faith in the expected ſeed of the woman; ſee Jude 14, 15. But without faith in him it is impoſſible to pleaſe God: for he that cometh to God, in any act of religious worſhip, muſt believe that he is ſuch as he hath revealed himſelf to the ſons of men, who never could have known either his being or attributes but by revelation; and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently ſeek him, in the uſe of all the ordinances which he hath appointed. Note, (1.) No ſervice can pleaſe God, but what ſprings from faith as its origin. (2.) God is the portion and exceeding great reward of all his people. (3.) There are appointed means, in which, God hath told us, they who wait upon him ſhall aſſuredly obtain his bleſſing; and in the uſe of them we cannot be too diligent.

3. Noah. By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not ſeen as yet, which reaſon could never have ſuggeſted, nor mortal know but by divine revelation, moved with fear and religious awe at the apprehenſion of the approaching judgments, prepared an ark according to God's direction, in defiance of the ſcoffs of the men of that generation, to the ſaving of his houſe from the approaching deluge; by the which he condemned the world; his preaching and labours in building the ark witneſſed againſt that unbelieving world, who paid no regard to his works or word during the ſpace of a hundred and twenty years, and thus left them without excuſe; whilſt he himſelf became hereby heir of the righteouſneſs which is by faith, entitled to the complete ſalvation which the righteouſneſs of that Redeemer in the fulneſs of time ſhould purchaſe, whom the ark repreſented, and he by faith apprehended. Note, (1.) God ſends his warnings before his judgments: the latter come not till the former have been deſpiſed. (2.) Faith begets holy fear, ſilences all objections, and ſets us to work for God in defiance of all oppoſition. (3.) They who will ever be ſaved from the deluge of wrath, muſt by faith take ſhelter in Chriſt their ark, for out of him there is no hope.

8. By faith [l] Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he ſhould after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went. 9. By faith he ſojourned in the land of promiſe, as in a ſtrange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Iſaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the ſame promiſe. 10. For he looked for [m] a city which hath foundations: [n] whoſe builder and maker is God. 11. Through faith alſo [o] Sarah herſelf received ſtrength to conceive ſeed, and [p] was delivered of a child when ſhe was paſt age, becauſe ſhe judged [q] him faithful who had promiſed. 12. Therefore ſprang there even of one, [r] and him as good as dead, [s] ſo many as the ſtars of the ſky in multitude, and as the ſand which is by the ſea-ſhore innumerable. 13. Theſe all died in faith, not having received the promiſes, but [t] having ſeen them afar off, and were perſuaded of them, and embraced them, and [u] confeſſed that they were ſtrangers and pilgrims on the earth. 14. For they that ſay ſuch things declare plainly that they ſeek a country. 15. And truly, if they had been mindful of that country, from whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to have returned: 16. But now they deſire a better country, that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not aſhamed [x] to be called their God: for [y] he hath prepared for them a city. 17. By faith [z] Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Iſaac: and he that had received the promiſes, [a] offered up his only begotten ſon: 18. Of whom it was ſaid, That [b] in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeed be called: 19. Accounting that [c] God was able to raiſe him up, even from the dead; from whence alſo he received him in a figure.

l Gen. xii. 1, 4.
m Chap. xii. 22. & xiii. 14.
n Chap. iii. 4. Rev. xxi. 2.
o Gen. xvii. 19. & xxi. 2.
p Luke i. 36.
q Rom. iv. 21. Chap. x. 23.
r Rom. iv. 19.
s Gen. xv. 5. & xxii. 17. & xxvi. 4. Rom. iv. 18.
t Ver. 27.
u Gen. xxiii. 4. & xlvii. 9. 1 Chron. xxix. 15. Pſ. xxxix. 12. & cxix. 19. 1 Pet. i. 17. & ii. 11.
x Ex. iii. 6. Mat. xxii. 32. Acts vii. 32.
y Phil. iii. 20. Chap. xiii. 14.
z Gen. xxii. 1, &c.
a Jam. ii. 21.
b Gen. xxi. 12. Rom. ix. 7.
c Rom. iv. 17, 19, 21.

v. 8—19. From the antediluvian patriarchs the apoſtle paſſes on to conſider the caſe of the great father of the faithful, an example that ſhould have peculiar weight with thoſe who valued themſelves on being his deſcendants.

1. He mentions Abraham's call. By faith Abraham, when he was called to go out from the land of his nativity into a place which he ſhould after receive for an inheritance, obeyed without heſitation, fully perſuaded of the truth, power, and grace of God to fulfil his promiſes: and he went out, under divine guidance, and truſting on divine direction; not knowing whither he went, neither the country itſelf, nor the way which led to it. Note, (1.) Implicit faith is due to God's word; and though we know not how, yet we may be aſſured, however improbable it may appear to ſenſe and reaſon, it ſhall be fulfilled in the appointed ſeaſon. (2.) They who would go to the heavenly Canaan muſt, at God's call, come forth out of a world that lieth in wickedneſs. (3.) The inheritance of glory is ſecured to the faithful, and, whatever difficulties are in the way, they ſhall poſſeſs it at laſt.

2. His ſojourning in Canaan. By faith he ſojourned in the land of promiſe, as in a ſtrange country, though proprietor of it by the divine grant, yet not holding the leaſt part in poſſeſſion; dwelling in tabernacles, without any ſettled abode, with Iſaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the ſame promiſe, Jacob being fifteen years old at Abraham's death. For he looked for a city which hath foundations, even the ſtate of eternal glory above, which is repreſented as a city, (Rev. xxii. 14.) whoſe builder and maker is God, he having prepared the heavenly manſions for his choſen. Note, (1.) The ſaints of God are here reſident in tabernacles of clay, but manſions of glory await them in a better world. (2.) Faith, which realizes our hopes above, neceſſarily draws forth our affections and deſires after that bleſt world to which we go. (3.) All the trials of this mortal ſtate will be regarded by us as light and tranſient, when we abidingly keep in view the far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

3. The faith of Sarah is obſerved as cloſely connected with that of her huſband Abraham. Through faith alſo Sarah herſelf, though naturally barren, and now paſt the time of child bearing, received ſtrength to conceive ſeed, and was delivered of a child when ſhe was paſt age, being ninety years old; becauſe, notwithſtanding ſhe at firſt heſitated and laughed, as if the thing was impoſſible, yet her faith ſoon got the better of her unbelief; for ſhe judged him faithful who had promiſed, and that he was able to perform what he had ſaid. Therefore ſprang there even of one, and him as good as dead through old age, ſo many as the ſtars of the ſky in multitude, and as the ſand which is by the ſea-ſhore innumerable. Note, Nothing is impoſſible with God: when he promiſes, we may truſt, and not be afraid.

4. Theſe all, Abraham, Sarah, Iſaac, and Jacob, died in faith, not having received the promiſes, neither poſſeſſing the land of Canaan, nor having ſeen the Meſſiah incarnate; but, in the fulleſt aſſurance that what God had ſpoken was as good as done, and ſure in the event, having ſeen them afar off, looking forward to the diſtant ages when the time of their accompliſhment ſhould arrive; and were as fully perſuaded of them as if they had lived to ſee them fulfilled, and embraced them with confidence and holy joy; and, under the influence of them, confeſſed that they were ſtrangers and pilgrims on the earth, regarding themſelves as ſuch, looking for their heavenly home, and living above the world on the glorious hopes which God through Chriſt had given unto them. For they that ſay ſuch things, and profeſſedly and practically die unto the world, declare plainly that they ſeek a country, and look to a better world as their native land. And truly if they had been mindful of that country from whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to have returned to Ur of the Chaldees again; but now they deſire a better country, that is, an heavenly, even that inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away, which God in Chriſt, as their covenant God, had revealed unto them, and which they by faith embraced. Wherefore God is not aſhamed to be called their God, in a peculiar and moſt endeared relation: for he hath prepared for them a city, a glorious abode with himſelf, eternal in the heavens. Note, (1.) In this world we live by faith, not by ſight; and yet the certain approach of the promiſed inheritance can even here, as if poſſeſſed, fill us with joy and peace in believing. (2.) True faith hath ever this effect, to make us overcome the world, and live as ſtrangers and pilgrims on the earth; we place not our affections upon it, but paſs through it as a foreign land, with a holy indifference about its gains, honours, or intereſts; contentedly put up with any accommodations which we meet with, haſten on with diligence towards our native home, conſort with our own countrymen who are travelling the ſame road, and ſpeak the ſame language, and are happy the nearer we arrive to that land where our affections are placed, and whither our footſteps bend. (3.) None that are truly converted to God from the kingdom of darkneſs and ſin, ever think of returning thither again; but, whatever difficulties are in the way, or whatever temptations ſollicit, they ſtedfaſtly cleave to Chriſt as their portion, and follow him in the regeneration. (4.) The heavenly country may well be the object of the believer's deſires, when every thing there is ſo infinitely preferable to what can ever be found in this miſerable world. (5.) They who live in faith will die in faith; that which carries them victorious through the conflicts of life, will make them triumphant over the terrors of death. (6.) If God be our God, therein is comprehended all poſſible bleſſedneſs: more heart cannot deſire, nor imagination conceive.

5. The apoſtle returns to mention another and the moſt eminent inſtance of Abraham's faith. By faith Abraham, when he was tried, as never mortal was before, to prove the ſtrength and truth of his faith and obedience, offered up Iſaac, took every ſtep which evidenced his intention fully to comply with the divine command (ſee Gen. xxii.) and he that had received the promiſes offered up his only begotten ſon, in whom alone theſe promiſes were to have been fulfilled; of whom it was ſaid, that in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeed be called; amidſt innumerable objections, which ſenſe, reaſon, nature, yea even religion, might ſeem to ſuggeſt, he ſtaggered not; looking to the uplifted knife, we ſtill ſhudder with horror and diſtreſs; and what muſt he then feel that ſtands ready to plunge it in that dear ſacrifice, thy ſon, thy only ſon, Iſaac, whom thou loveſt! We ſtart from the ſcene; but Abraham, herein more than human, dares obey; his faith triumphed over every ſuggeſtion, accounting (λογισαμενος) reaſoning and concluding from the moſt ſubſtantial grounds of evidence, that God, by whoſe command he knew with the moſt infallible aſſurance that he now acted, was able to raiſe him up even from the dead, from whence alſo he received him in a figure; he knew that God could as eaſily reanimate Iſaac on the altar as produce him from the bodies of his parents, that were, for the purpoſes of his generation, as good as dead; and that the divine promiſe ſhould ſome how receive its accompliſhment, he reſted in the fulleſt confidence. Note, (1.) God knows the purpoſes that are in the hearts of his people, and what they deſign in obedience to his will he regards as acts really performed. (2.) Where God commands, we muſt ſtop our ears to all the reaſoning of unbelief, fear, and ſelfiſhneſs. Duty is ours; events are in his diſpoſal. (3.) Iſaac was the figure and type of the death and reſurrection of Chriſt. (4.) We marvel at Abraham's obedience to God's command, though his ſon is ſpared; with what aſtoniſhment and wonder then ſhould we contemplate the love of God, who ſpared NOT his own Son, but even for us ſinners gave him up to death, even the death of the croſs!

20. By faith [d] Iſaac bleſſed Jacob and Eſau, concerning things to come. 21. By faith [e] Jacob, when he was a dying, bleſſed both the ſons of Joſeph; and [f] worſhipped, leaning upon the top of his ſtaff. 22. By faith [g] Joſeph, when he died, made mention of the departing of the children of Iſrael; and gave commandment concerning his bones. 23. By faith [h] Moſes, when he was born, was hid three months of his parents, becauſe they ſaw he was a proper child; and they were not afraid of [i] the king's commandment. 24. By faith [k] Moſes, when he was come to years, refuſed to be called the ſon of Pharaoh's daughter; 25. [l] Chooſing rather to ſuffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleaſures of ſin for a ſeaſon; 26. Eſteeming [m] the reproach of Chriſt greater riches than the treaſures in Egypt: for he had reſpect unto [n] the recompenſe of the reward. 27. By faith [o] he forſook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king: for he endured as [p] ſeeing him who is inviſible. 28. Through faith [q] he kept the paſſover, and the ſprinkling of blood, leſt he that deſtroyed the firſtborn, ſhould touch them. 29. By faith [r] they paſſed through the Red ſea, as by dry land: which the Egyptians aſſaying to do, were drowned. 30. By faith [s] the walls of Jericho fell down, after they were compaſſed about ſeven days. 31. By faith [t] the harlot Rahab periſhed not with them that † believed not, when [u] ſhe had received the ſpies with peace.

[d] Gen. xxvii. 27, 39.
[e] Gen. xlviii. 16, 20.
[f] Gen. xlvii. 31.
[g] Gen. l. 24, 25. Ex. xiii. 19.
[h] Ex. ii. 2. Acts vii. 20.
[i] Ex. i. 16, 22.
[k] Ex. ii. 10, 11.
[l] Pſ. lxxxiv. 10.
[m] Chap. xiii. 13.
[n] Chap. x. 35.
[o] Ex. x. 28, 29. & xiii. 17, 18.
[p] Ver. 13.
[q] Ex. xii. 21.
[r] Ex. xiv. 22.
[s] Joſh. vi. 20.
[t] Joſh. ii. 23. Jam. ii. 25.
† Or, were diſobedient.
[u] Joſh. ii. 1.

v. 20—31. The apoſtle proceeds to other eminent inſtances of faith.

1. Iſaac. He had been mentioned before; another inſtance of his faith is here given, when, in the confidence of the promiſe, he left his parting benediction with his children, and by divine determination, though undeſignedly, being blind, conveyed the principal bleſſing to his younger ſon. By faith Iſaac bleſſed Jacob and Eſau concerning things to come; to Eſau he gave the fatneſs of the earth, but to Jacob the mercies of a covenant God.

2. Jacob. By faith in the promiſes of God to Abraham, Jacob, when he was a dying, bleſſed both the ſons of Joſeph, by a prophetic ſpirit foretelling the ſuperior greatneſs of Ephraim, and croſſing his hands deſignedly, that his right hand might reſt on the head of the youngeſt; and worſhipped God, leaning upon the top of his ſtaff. Note, (1.) The worſhip of God will be the believer's exerciſe to the laſt: when old age and weakneſs will not permit him to bend his knees, he will ſtill bow upon his bed, or lean upon his ſtaff, and pour out his humble prayer. (2.) Parents cannot more properly finiſh their courſe than by leaving with their children, that ſurround their dying beds, the profeſſion of their faith, and their final benediction.

3. Joſeph. By faith Joſeph, when he died, firmly perſuaded of that inheritance in Canaan which was aſſigned to Abraham and his ſeed, made mention of the departing of the children of Iſrael out of Egypt, and gave commandment concerning his bones, ſolemnly charging them, under the ſanction of an oath, that, when in the expected future day they departed to poſſeſs the promiſed land, his bones might be carried thither. The duſt of Canaan was more eligible in his eyes than the nobleſt ſepulchres of Egypt. Note, The teſtimony of dying ſaints to the truth of God's promiſes is a happy means to confirm the faith of their ſurviving brethren.

4. The parents of Moſes. By faith Moſes, when he was born, ordained to be the great lawgiver and deliverer of Iſrael, and a moſt eminent type of Jeſus their ſpiritual Redeemer, was hid three months of his parents, becauſe they ſaw he was a proper child, or fair to God, eminently beautiful, and probably ſome divine tokens appeared of his future greatneſs; and they were not afraid of the king's commandment, though, if diſcovered, their lives had paid for their diſobedience to his bloody edict. They were perſuaded that, by a Hebrew, God would work their deliverance; and probably by ſome divine intimation perceived this child ſhould be the perſon. Note, (1.) When Parents are eminent for their faith, there is a happy proſpect that their children will riſe up heirs of the ſame grace. (2.) In days of ſuffering we may lawfully uſe every prudent means for our preſervation. (3.) An ingenuous countenance often beſpeaks the ingenuous mind.

5. Moſes. Much is ſpoken of him; for he is famous among the worthies, and hath his name in the firſt rank. Three eminent inſtances of his faith are here recorded:

(1.) By faith in the promiſes made to his anceſtors, and of the bleſſings in a better world, Moſes, when he was come to years, arrived at maturity, highly honoured, and eminent for wiſdom and learning, refuſed to be called the ſon of Pharaoh's daughter, with all the dignities and advantages thence ariſing, perhaps even of ſucceeding to the throne of Egypt; chooſing rather to ſuffer affliction with the people of God, as a deſpiſed Hebrew, than to enjoy all the glories of the higheſt human grandeur, and the pleaſures of ſin, however alluring, which are but for a ſeaſon, and muſt in their iſſue plunge both body and ſoul into eternal miſery: eſteeming the reproach of Chriſt, and all the contempt, ſcorn, and perſecutions, which, for the ſake of their fidelity to his worſhip, and faith in his promiſes, Iſrael endured, greater riches than the treaſures in Egypt, and what in the iſſue would prove unſpeakably his gain in the eternal world; for he had reſpect unto the recompenſe of reward, and looked off from the tempting objects of a flattering but deceitful world, to the ſubſtantial portion which he expected in the enjoyment of God for ever and ever. Note, (1.) Faith appears then moſt glorioufly triumphant over the world, when, in the midſt of greatneſs and grandeur, the ſoul can look down on theſe trifles, and be ready to part with all for the ſake of Chriſt and his cauſe. (2.) The pleaſures of ſin, of the ſweeteſt ſins, are momentary; but the puniſhment of them is eternal. They judge therefore as wiſely as religiouſly who live in holy ſelf-denial. (3.) As the greateſt advantages cannot pay us for the leaſt ſin, ſo are the greateſt ſufferings to be choſen rather than offend God; and we ſhall never ſee cauſe to regret what we forego or endure for our fidelity to him. (4.) The reproach of Chriſt is our trueſt honour; far from being aſhamed of it, we ſhould glory therein as our greateſt riches. (5.) There is a recompence of reward, the proſpect of which ſhould ever animate our ſouls, and teach us to count every thing beſide dung and droſs, ſo that we may but gain the glorious prize.

2. By faith he forſook Egypt, carrying up with him the children of Iſrael, confident of the Lord's protection, and not fearing the wrath of the enraged king, nor the mighty hoſts with which he purſued them in their way; for he endured, undiſmayed and unſhaken, as ſeeing him who is inviſible, higher than the kings of the earth, and able to ſave to the uttermoſt. Note, (1.) They who will be faithful to God muſt expect troubles, and be fearleſs of the wrath of man. (2.) A believing view of the inviſible God will ſtrengthen us, amidſt all preſent difficulties, ſteadily to perſevere.

3. Through faith in God's deliverance of his people from Egypt, and of the greater redemption which ſhould be obtained for Iſrael by the Lamb ſlain from the foundation of the world, he kept the paſſover, and obſerved the peculiar rite then enjoined of the ſprinkling of the blood on the door-poſt of their houſes, leſt he that deſtroyed the firſt-born of the Egyptians ſhould touch them, if the blood prevented not his entrance. Note, (1.) Chriſt is our paſſover. (2.) His blood upon our conſciences is our only protection from the wrath of God. (3.) If we are ſpared, when others periſh, we muſt acknowledge it to be an act of ſovereign grace to us, and own ourſelves entirely indebted for it to our adored Redeemer.

(4.) By faith in the power and promiſe of God, Moſes ſtretched forth his rod, and the divided waters opened a paſſage for the diſcouraged hoſts of Iſrael; and under his guidance, while he led the way, they paſſed through the Red ſea as by dry land: which the Egyptians daringly aſſaying to do were drowned, the waters cloſing upon them, and every man of that terrible hoſt periſhed. Note, They who perſecute God's Iſrael, only ruſh upon their own ruin.

6. By Faith, which Joſhua, Caleb, and others exerciſed in God's power and veracity, the walls of Jericho fell down of their own accord, when they blew and ſhouted, after they were compaſſed about ſeven days, according to the divine command. Note, (1.) When God is for us, all oppoſition muſt fall before us. (2.) The weakeſt means in his hands are ſufficient to bring about the greateſt events.

7. Rahab, a woman, a Canaanite, brings up the rear of faithful worthies. By faith in the promiſe that God would aſſuredly give the land of Canaan to the Iſraelites, the harlot Rahab, who before had been a woman of infamous character, but now turned unto God, whoſe grace abounds towards the chief of ſinners, periſhed not with them that believed not, of the Canaanites; but with her whole family was preſerved, when ſhe had given that real proof of her faith, in that ſhe received, concealed, and diſmiſſed the ſpies of Iſrael in peace. Note, (1.) The ruin of ſinners is their unbelief. (2.) They who cleave to God's people, and faithfully determine to ſhare their weal and woe, will never have reaſon to repent their choice.

32. And what ſhall I more ſay? for the time would fail me to tell of [x] Gideon, and of [y] Barak, and of [z] Samſon, and of [a] Jephthah, of [b] David alſo and [c] Samuel, and of the prophets: 33. Who through faith ſubdued kingdoms, wrought righteouſneſs, obtained promiſes, [d] ſtopped the mouths of lions, 34. [e] Quenched the violence of fire, [f] eſcaped the edge of the ſword, [g] out of weakneſs were made ſtrong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens. 35. [h] Women received their dead raiſed to life again: and [i] others were tortured, not accepting deliverance, [k] that they might obtain a better reſurrection. 36. And [l] others had trial of cruel mockings and ſcourgings, yea moreover, [m] of bonds and impriſonment. 37. [n] They were ſtoned, they were ſawn

[x] Judg. vi. 11.
[y] Judg. iv. 6.
[z] Judg. xiii. 24.
[a] Judg. xi. 1. & xii. 7.
[b] 1 Sam. xvi. 13. & xvii. 45.
[c] 1 Sam. i. 20. & xii. 20.
[d] Judg. xiv. 5. 1 Sam. xvii. 34. Dan. vi. 22.
[e] Dan. iii. 25.
[f] 1 Sam. xx. 1. 1 Kings xix. 3. 2 Kings vi. 16.
[g] 2 Kin. xx. 7. Job xlii. 10.
[h] 1 Kin. xvii. 22. 2 Kin. iv. 35.
[i] 2 Mac. vi. 19, 28. & vii. 7.
[k] Ver. 26.
[l] 2 Mac. vii. 1, 7.
[m] Gen. xxxix. 20. Judg. xvi. 21. Jer. xx. 2.
[n] 1 Kin. xxi. 13. 2 Chron. xxiv. 21.

ſawn aſunder, were tempted, [o] were ſlain with the ſword: [p] they wandered about in ſheep-ſkins, and goat-ſkins, being deſtitute, afflicted, tormented: 38. (Of whom the world was not worthy) [q] they wandered in deſerts, and in mountains, and [r] in dens and caves of the earth. 39. And theſe all [s] having obtained a good report through faith, [t] received not the promiſe: 40. [t] God having provided [u] ſome better thing for us, that they without us ſhould not be made perfect.

[o] 1 Sam. xxii. 18. 1 Kings xix. 10. Jer. xxvi. 23.
[p] 2 Kings i. 8. Mat. iii. 4.
[q] 1 Sam. xxvi. 20.
[r] 1 Kings xvii. 3. & xviii. 4.
[s] Ver. 2.
[t] 1 Pet. i. 12.
[u] Chap. vii. 22. & viii. 6.

v. 32—40. Unable to enter particularly into the caſe of every eminent believer recorded in the Old Teſtament, the apoſtle recites a cluſter of diſtinguiſhed names, and of the mighty effects which their faith produced.

1. He recites ſome of their diſtinguiſhed names. And what ſhall I more ſay? when the field is ſo vaſt, for the time would fail me, if I enlarged on every individual, to tell of Gideon and his noble exploits recorded (Judges vi, vii, viii.), and of Barak, who before him was alike eminent for his faith and victory, (Judges iv.) and of Sampſon, in life and death ſo ſignally remarkable, (Judges xiv. 19. xvi. 27—30) and of Jephthah, before whoſe faith the routed Ammonites fell, (Judges xi. 23—33.) and of David alſo, the man after God's own heart, ſo famous in ſacred hiſtory for dependance on God, (2 Sam. xxiii. 1—5.) and Samuel and of the prophets, who did and ſuffered ſo nobly in the cauſe of God and truth, under the mighty influence of divine faith.

2. He mentions many of the glorious acts of faith, which theſe and other worthies like them ſhewed; and any one converſant in the book of God may apply them to ſeveral of the ſaints there recorded: Who (1.) through faith ſubdued kingdoms, as Joſhua, David, &c. (2.) Wrought righteouſneſs in their private and public capacities, governing with equity, and in their converſation were examples of every thing good and gracious; (3.) Obtained promiſes, God remarkably appearing for them, as he had aſſured them he would in the hour of trial; (4.) Stopped the mouths of lions, as David, Sampſon, Daniel; and ſtill the ſame faith will produce the ſame effects, in ſtopping the mouth of the old lion that he cannot devour; (5.) Quenched the violence of fire, ſo as to remain unhurt in the midſt of the flames, (Dan. iii. 13—27.) (6.) Eſcaped the edge of the ſword, when in the moſt imminent danger of their lives; (7.) Out of weakneſs were made ſtrong, their national affairs reſtored from the neareſt proſpect of ruin; their bodily health recovered, when their diſeaſe ſeemed deſperate, (2 Kings xx. 17.) and though, in compariſon with their foes, weak as infancy, yet, in divine ſtrength, became more than conquerors; (8.) Waxed valiant in fight, and truſting in the Lord, marvellouſly overcame in the day of battle; (9.) Turned to flight the armies of the aliens, though more, and, to human view, incomparably mightier than they. (10.) Women received their dead raiſed to life again, as in the caſes of the widow of Zarephath and the Shunamite: And, with reſpect to the power of faith, as evident in the moſt acute ſufferings, we read that, (11.) Others were tortured, willingly ſubmitting to the moſt dreadful torments, not accepting deliverance, when only to be obtained at the price of their conſcience, and ſome baſe compliances, rather welcoming death itſelf than deny the faith, that they might obtain a better reſurrection, the proſpect of eternal glory raiſing them ſuperior to all the pangs of nature, and all the terrors of death. (12.) And others had trial of cruel mockings, ridiculed, treated as deſpicable, and loaded with every opprobrious name, and withal ſmarted under ſevere ſcourgings, yea moreover, endured the pain and ſhame of bonds and impriſonment: ſuch hath been the ſaints' portion, more or leſs, in every age. (13.) They were murdered in a variety of ways: They were, ſome of them ſtoned, they were ſawn aſunder, as the Jewiſh tradition affirms Iſaiah was, at the command of the cruel Manaſſeh; they were tempted to deny their profeſſion and ſave their lives, by complying with the commands of their perſecutors; they were ſlain with the ſword of tyrants and blood-thirſty men, and where ſome eſcaped the fury of their foes by flight, their life was imbittered and ſcarce preferable to death itſelf: for, (14.) They wandered about in ſheep-ſkins and goat-ſkins, having no better covering to protect them from the inclemency of the ſkies, being deſtitute of any abode, of cloaths and neceſſary food, afflicted with various miſeries, and tormented with endleſs inſults and abuſes, (of whom indeed the world was not worthy) nor deſerved ſo great a bleſſing as their examples, prayers, and admonitions; and by the wicked they were treated as unfit for human ſociety, and driven out from among men to dreary ſolitudes; they wandered in deſerts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth, ſeeking refuge among wild beaſts, more hoſpitable than their ſavage perſecutors; and, in the midſt of all their ſufferings, faith enabled them to perſevere, and brought them at laſt to their eternal reſt. For,

3. Their faith was at laſt crowned with the enjoyment of that Redeemer in whom they truſted. Theſe all having obtained a good report through faith, enrolled in the ſacred records as names held up for imitation to the lateſt ages, received not the promiſe, ſaw not that Meſſiah incarnate in whom their faith centered: God having provided ſome better thing for us, the manifeſtation of his Son in the fleſh, to whom they had conſtantly reſpect, that they without us ſhould not be made perfect; ſince not by any legal ſacrifices, but by the offering of the body of Jeſus, both their ſins and ours were expiated, and that by the ſame grace revealed in him we might be ſaved even as they. According therefore to the peculiar advantages which we enjoy under the goſpel diſpenſation, a peculiar obligation is laid upon us, that our faith ſhould be ſuitably operative, engaging us to all chearful obedience, and willing ſufferers for our Redeemer's ſake.

CHAP. XII.

The apoſtle, in this chapter, applies what he has collected in the chapter foregoing, and makes uſe of it as a great motive to patience and perſeverance in the Chriſtian faith and ſtate, preſſing home the argument, 1. From a greater example than he had yet mentioned, and that is Chriſt himſelf, ver. 1—3. 2. From the gentle and gracious nature of the afflictions they endured in their Chriſtian courſe, ver. 4—18. 3. From the communion and conformity between the ſtate of the goſpel church on earth, and the triumphant church in heaven, from ver. 18 to the end of the chapter.

1. WHerefore, ſeeing we alſo are compaſſed about with [a] ſo great a cloud of witneſſes, [b] let us lay aſide every weight, and the ſin which doth ſo eaſily beſet us, and [c] let us run [d] with patience the race that is ſet before us. 2. Looking unto Jeſus the author and finiſher of our faith; [e] who, for the joy that was ſet before him, endured the croſs, deſpiſing the ſhame, and [f] is ſet down at the right hand of the throne of God. 3. For conſider him [g] that endured ſuch contradiction of ſinners againſt himſelf, leſt you be wearied and faint in your minds.

[a] Chap. xi. 1—40.
[b] 1 Pet. ii. 1, 2.
[c] 1 Cor. ix. 24. Phil. iii. 13, 14.
[d] Rom. xii. 12. Chap. x. 36.
[e] Luke xxiv. 26. Phil. ii. 8, &c. 1 Pet. i. 11.
[f] Pſ. cx. 1. Chap. i. 3, 13. & viii. 1.
[g] Mat. xii. 24. & xxvii. 39, &c.

v. 1—3. Having propoſed to them ſuch bright examples, the apoſtle urges the Hebrews,

1. To imitate their faith, patience, and perſeverance. Wherefore, ſeeing we alſo are compaſſed about with ſo great a cloud of witneſſes, who, having finiſhed the glorious courſe themſelves, are now looking on our conduct, let us, animated by their examples, and rouſed to imitation of their excellencies, lay aſide every weight that would retard our ſpeed, all inordinate attachment to earth and earthly things, and the ſin which doth ſo eaſily beſet us, that which from our circumſtances, ſtation in life, connections, and conſtitution, is ever ſolliciting our conſent, and would enſnare our ſouls; particularly the great and capital ſins of unbelief, pride, and luſt, under whatever ſpecious pretences they may appear; and let us run with patience, not diſcouraged at difficulties, nor fainting under temptation, but eager to finiſh the race that is ſet before us, and to win the glorious prize. Note, (1.) We have a race before us; the courſe is circumſcribed by our mortal days; the word of God marks out our path; ſaints and angels are ſpectators; death is the goal, and glory the reward of fidelity. What ſervices then can we refuſe? What ſufferings ſhall diſmay us? (2.) Faith and patience are the mighty graces which can enable us to hold on, and to hold out, till we finiſh our courſe with joy.

2. The only way that in faith and patience we can perſevere is here deſcribed. Looking unto Jeſus (αφορωντες), turning away our eyes from ſin, the world, and every enſnaring object which would ſeduce our affections, and keeping him ſingly in our view, who is the author, and alone can be the finiſher of our faith, by grace and ſtrength derived from him, enabling us to follow his perfect pattern; who, for the joy that was ſet before him, that God's perfections might be glorified, full ſatisfaction made to Divine Juſtice, his people's eternal redemption ſecured, and himſelf, as Mediator, be crowned with glory and honour, endured the croſs, with all its horrors, exerciſing the moſt aſtoniſhing patience and unſhaken fortitude, deſpiſing the ſhame of that ignominious tree, and is now, in conſequence thereof, ſat down at the right hand of the throne of God, exalted to the higheſt dignity and majeſty in the heavens. For conſider him that endured ſuch contradiction of ſinners againſt himſelf, (αναλογισασθε) compare your ſufferings with his, the infinite diſproportion between your perſons and him; the invincible patience and undiſturbed compoſure with which he bore every inſult and torment; reflect upon this often and deeply, leſt ye be weary and faint in your minds, and let the eye of faith, fixed on him, draw out of his fulneſs the needful ſupplies of ſtrength to follow his bleſſed footſteps. Note, (1.) Faith is the gift of Jeſus, and he who begins muſt finiſh the work with power in our hearts. (2.) When we conſider what the Son of God for our ſakes freely endured, we ſhall be aſhamed to complain of the comparatively trivial croſs which we ſuſtain, and boldly ſet our faces as a flint againſt all ſufferings and reproaches, which for his ſake we may be called to bear. (3.) Great and long-continued trials are apt to weary out our feeble minds, ſo that we are ready to ſink under them; but Jeſus is before us; he ſaith, Look unto me; and that reviving ſight uncloſes the dying eyes, reanimates the dejected ſpirit, rouſes the fainting heart, and, inſpired with renewed vigour, we run our heavenly race, made more than conquerors through his love.

4. [h] Ye have not yet reſiſted unto blood, ſtriving againſt ſin. 5. And ye have forgotten the exhortation which ſpeaketh unto you as unto children, [i] My ſon, deſpiſe not thou the chaſtening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him. 6. For [k] whom the Lord loveth he chaſteneth, and ſcourgeth every ſon whom he receiveth. 7. If ye endure chaſtening, [l] God dealeth with you as with ſons: for what ſon is he whom the father chaſteneth not? 8. But if ye be without chaſtiſement, [m] whereof all are partakers, then are ye baſtards and not ſons. 9. Furthermore, we have had fathers of our fleſh, which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: ſhall we not much rather be in ſubjection unto [n] the Father of ſpirits, and live? 10. For they verily for a few days chaſtened us after their own pleaſure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holineſs. 11. Now no chaſtening for the preſent ſeemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheleſs, afterward it yieldeth [o] the peaceable fruit of righteouſneſs, unto them which are exerciſed thereby. 12. Wherefore [p] lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees. 13. And [q] make ſtraight paths for your feet, leſt that which is lame be turned out of the way, [r] but let it rather be healed. 14. [s] Follow peace with all men, [t] and holineſs, [u] without which no man ſhall ſee the Lord: 15. [x] Looking diligently, leſt any man † fail of the grace of God: [y] leſt any root of bitterneſs ſpringing up, trouble you, and thereby many be defiled: 16. [z] Leſt there be any fornicator, or profane perſon, as Eſau, [a] who for one morſel of meat ſold his birthright. 17. For ye know how that afterward [b] when he would have inherited the bleſſing, he was rejected: for he [c] found no place of repentance, though he ſought it carefully with tears.

h Chap. x. 32.
i Job v. 17. Prov. iii. 11, 12.
k Pſ. xciv. 12. Jam. i. 12. Rev. iii. 19.
l Deut. viii. 5. 2 Sam. vii. 14.
m Pſ. lxxiii. 15. 1 Pet. v. 9.
n Num. xvi. 22. & xxvii. 16. Job xii. 10. Eccleſ. xii. 7. Iſa. lvii. 16. Zech. xii. 1.
o Jam. iii. 18.
p Job iv. 3, 4. Iſa. xxxv. 3.
q Prov. iv. 26.
r Gal. vi. 1.
s Pſ. xxxiv. 14. Rom. xii. 18.
t 2 Cor. vii. 1.
u 1 Cor. vi. 9. Eph. v. 5. Rev. xxi. 27.
x 2 Cor. vi. 1. Chap. iv. 1, 11. & vi. 11.
† Or fall from. Gal. v. 4.
y Deut. xxix. 18. Chap. iii. 12.
z Eph. v. 3. Col. iii. 5. 1 Theſ. iv. 3.
a Gen. xxv. 33.
b Gen. xxvii. 36—38.
c Chap. vi. 6.

v. 4—17. In ſupport of what he had ſaid before, the apoſtle,

1. Suggeſts the moſt engaging arguments to perſevere:

(1.) God had hitherto preſerved them in life. Ye have not yet reſiſted unto blood, ſtriving againſt ſin; and as he had not called them to the ſevereſt conflicts, it would be ſhameful indeed if they ſunk under leſſer trials. Note, (1.) Our warfare lies againſt ſin, the deadly foe, who, if not vanquiſhed, will deſtroy us body and ſoul for ever. We need be reſolute, therefore, when our all is at ſtake. (2.) We are to acknowledge with thankfulneſs the kindneſs of our adored Lord, who proportions our trials to our ſtrength.

(2.) The ſufferings they had endured were the kind chaſtiſements of a Father's rod, however evil the inſtruments might be who were the immediate authors of them. And ye have forgotten, or, Have ye forgotten the exhortation which ſpeaketh unto you as unto children? My ſon, deſpiſe not thou the chaſtening of the Lord, on the one hand, neither ſlighting the affliction, unſuitably affected thereby, or ſtubborn under the rod; nor, on the other, faint when thou art rebuked of him, ſinking under unbelief, impatient under the trial, or overwhelmed with deſpair. For whom the Lord loveth he chaſteneth for their good, and ſcourgeth every ſon whom he receiveth into the boſom of his love. If ye endure chaſtening, far from counting it a token of wrath, God herein dealeth with you as with ſons, with the kindeſt intention of your correction and amendment: for what ſon is he whom the father chaſteneth not? There is no child of God but needs the gracious ſcourge; and our heavenly Father will not, like a fooliſhly-fond parent, ſpare the needful ſtroke. But if ye be without chaſtiſement, whereof all the true members of his family are partakers, then are ye baſtards, and not ſons; to be neglected, and not counted worth correction, would prove you to be a ſpurious race, whom God abandons to their own ways. Furthermore, we have had fathers of our fleſh, which corrected us, and we gave them reverence, were in duty bound to ſubmit to their paternal diſcipline, and to love them the more for their care in rebuking the evil they diſcovered in us: ſhall we not much rather then be in ſubjection to the Father of Spirits, from whoſe immediate hand our immortal ſouls are derived; meekly ſubmitting to him, whoſe authority over us is ſo much greater; and this, that we may live in a ſtate of holy communion with him and ſubjection to him, till he ſhall have purged out all our evil, and prepared us for a place in his better houſe above. For they verily for a few days chaſtened us after their own pleaſure, and much paſſion, ſelf-will, and weakneſs mixed with their corrections; but he, who is infinitely wiſe as well as boundleſs in love, never ſcourges us but for our profit, that, as the bleſſed iſſue of the afflictions which he is pleaſed to lay upon us, we might be partakers of his holineſs, cleanſed from the droſs of corrupt affections, and renewed after his bleſſed image. Now no chaſtening for the preſent ſeemeth to be joyous, but grievous, and the fleſh cannot but groan under the ſcourge: nevertheleſs, whilſt faith ſupports us comfortably under the trial, we afterwards continually ſee cauſe to bleſs God for our ſuffering; ſince afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteouſneſs, unto them which are exerciſed thereby; and we can ſay, by happy experience, it is good for me that I have been afflicted. Note, (1.) God's corrections muſt not be made light of on the one hand, nor ſhould we on the other deſpair on account of them; but, humbling our ſouls under the mighty hand of the Lord, ſhould patiently wait, in confidence that he will lift us up. (2.) God's chaſtiſements are all ſent out of pure love to his children; and therefore with dutiful ſubmiſſion, and lowly reſignation, ſhould be received. (3.) Though the Lord may leave others to themſelves, yet he will not ſuffer his children to err without viſiting their iniquities with a rod. It is a ſad ſymptom of being an alien from his family, never to be viſited with his corrections. (4.) If we are bound to reverence our earthly parents, and ſubmit to their arbitrary and often ſelf-willed corrections, how much more ſhould the chaſtiſements of our heavenly Father be embraced with thankfulneſs, to whom we owe ſo much higher reverence; who never ſtrikes without cauſe, and ſo wiſely and graciouſly orders his afflictive diſpenſations in time, manner, meaſure, as ſhall be exactly ſuited to our wants, and effectually tend to our profiting. (5.) Far from judging of God's anger by the ſeverity or length of our trials, we ſhould from thence conclude his love is great towards us. He viſits that he may purge us more thoroughly from our droſs; and faith can make us rejoice even in the fires, under the confidence that peaceable fruits of righteouſneſs ſhall be produced out of thoſe trials, that to fleſh and blood are moſt grievous.

2. He exhorts them not to faint or be diſheartened, but to be vigorous in their Chriſtian courſe. Wherefore lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees; caſt away every deſponding fear, and preſs with eagerneſs to the goal, encouraging each other nobly to perſevere in the face of every difficulty and danger, depending on Almighty Grace. And make ſtraight paths for your feet, deſiring to remove every obſtacle at which yourſelves or your brethren might ſtumble, leſt that which is lame be turned out of the way of truth and righteouſneſs, and the weak offended or perverted from the paths of godlineſs; but let it rather be healed, the feeble-minded ſupported, the diſheartened encouraged, the weak confirmed, the fallen lifted up and reſtored again. Note, We ſhould labour to be aſſiſting to each other in our heavenly way, and attentive to the good of our brethren's ſouls, as to our own.

3. He particularly directs them what to purſue. Follow peace with all men, deſiring earneſtly to maintain it in every relation, and with all perſons, as far as is conſiſtent with a good conſcience; and holineſs in heart and life and all manner of converſation, without which no man ſhall ſee the Lord, or be admitted to the beatific viſion in glory everlaſting. Note, Peace and holineſs are eſſential to our hopes as Chriſtians; we deceive ourſelves if we think we can ever be ſaved, whilſt enſlaved by paſſion and vile affections.

4. He gives them a ſolemn caution againſt apoſtacy, enforced by Eſau's fearful example. Looking diligently, watching over each other with holy jealouſy, leſt any man who hath made profeſſion of the goſpel, fail of the grace of God, and apoſtatize from the faith; leſt any root of bitterneſs ſpringing up trouble you, and thereby many be defiled, ſeduced by their hereſies, and perverted by their ill examples: leſt there be any fornicator, or profane perſon, as Eſau, who for one morſel of meat ſold his birthright, deſpiſing the ſacred as well as civil privileges which were annexed thereto; and his puniſhment was ſuited to his crime, for ye know how that afterward, when he would have inherited the bleſſing, and prevailed upon his father to retract what he had given to Jacob, he was rejected by him, for he found no place for repentance, nor would Iſaac change his mind or reverſe his word, though he ſought it diligently with tears. Note, (1.) Apoſtates from the truth are the moſt dangerous enemies, and bitter oppoſers. (2.) Many, for the gratification of a beſtial appetite, have, like Eſau, renounced their ſacred birthright, and too late they will rue their ſin and folly.

18. For ye are not come unto [d] the mount that might be touched, and that burned with fire, nor unto blackneſs, and darkneſs, and tempeſt, 19. And the ſound of a trumpet, and the voice of words, which voice they that heard, [e] intreated that the word ſhould not be ſpoken to them any more: 20. (For they could not endure that which was commanded, [f] And if ſo much as a beaſt touch the mountain, it ſhall be ſtoned or thruſt through with a dart. 21. And ſo terrible was the ſight, that Moſes ſaid, I exceedingly fear and quake.) 22. But ye are come unto [g] mount Sion, and unto [h] the city of the living God, the heavenly Jeruſalem, and [i] to an innumerable company of angels, 23. To the general aſſembly and church of [k] the firſt-born [l] which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the ſpirits of juſt men [m] made perfect, 24. And to Jeſus [n] the mediator of the d Ex. xix. 12, 18, 19.

e Ex. xx. 19. Deut. v. 5, 25. & xviii. 16.
f Ex. xix. 13.
g Gal. iv. 26. Rev. iii. 12. & xxi. 2, 10.
h Phil. iii. 20.
i Jude xiv.
k Ex. iv. 22. Jam. i. 18.
l Luke x. 20. Phil. iv. 3.
m Phil. iii. 12.
n 1 Tim. ii. 5. Chap. viii. 6. & ix. 15.

new covenant, and to [o] the blood of ſprinkling, that ſpeaketh better things [p] than that of Abel. 25. See that ye refuſe not him that ſpeaketh: For [q] if they eſcaped not who refuſed him, that ſpake on earth, much more ſhall not we eſcape, if we turn away from him that ſpeaketh from heaven: 26. [r] Whoſe voice then ſhook the earth: but now he hath promiſed, ſaying, Yet once more I ſhake not the earth only, but alſo heaven. 27. And this word, [s] Yet once more, ſignifieth [t] the removing of thoſe things that are ſhaken, as of things that are made, that thoſe things which cannot be ſhaken may remain. 28. Wherefore, we receiving [u] a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace, whereby we may ſerve God acceptably, with reverence and godly fear. 29. For [x] our God is a conſuming fire.

o Ex. xxiv. 8. Chap. x. 22. 1 Pet. i. 2.
p Gen. iv. 10. Chap. xi. 4.
q Chap. ii. 2. & iii. 17. & x. 28.
r Ex. xix. 18.
s Hag. ii. 6.
t Pſ. cii. 26. Mat. xxiv. 35. 2 Pet. iii. 10. Rev. xxi. 1.
u Iſa. ix. 7. Dan. ii. 44. & vii. 14. Luke i. 33.
x Ex. xxiv. 17. Deut. iv. 24. & ix. 3. Pſ. l. 3. 2 Theſſ. i. 8.

v. 18—29. To guard the Hebrews particularly from revolting back to Judaiſm, he ſets before them the excellence of the goſpel church and worſhip above the judaical.

1. He reminds them of that diſpenſation of terror and bondage from which they had been delivered. For ye are not come unto the mount that might be touched, which was a palpable earthly ſubſtance, and not like the ſpiritual Zion, and that burned with fire, when God in terrible pomp deſcended thereon; nor unto blackneſs and darkneſs, which covered that typical diſpenſation; and tempeſt, emblematical of the ſtorms of wrath which hang over the head of the tranſgreſſors; and the ſound of a trumpet, which with louder and ſtill louder blaſts ſpread terrible diſmay throughout the hoſts of Iſrael; and the voice of words, in the moſt awful manner articulately pronouncing the ten commandments; which voice they that heard, intreated that the word ſhould not be ſpoken to them any more; ſo terrified were they at it, and begged that Moſes might be their mediator, and that through him they might receive the revelation of the Divine Will: (for they could not endure that which was commanded, ſo unable were they to anſwer the demands of this perfect law, and dreaded its awful ſanction, particularly that fearful edict; and if ſo much as a beaſt touch the mountain, during the time that the Divine Preſence is there manifeſted, he ſhall be ſtoned or thruſt through with a dart. And ſo terrible was the ſight, that Moſes himſelf ſaid, I exceedingly fear and quake), ſo dark and terrible was that diſpenſation under which they had been held; and this ſhould with hearty eagerneſs engage them to receive and hold faſt that milder, brighter, ſpiritual diſpenſation of goſpel grace, when God, without one terror ſpread around him, invited poor ſinners, through his dear Son, to approach his throne and live. This more glorious ſtate the apoſtle,

2. Deſcribes. But ye are come unto mount Zion, the ſpiritual goſpel church, where God, well pleaſed, takes up his bleſt abode, and accepts the worſhip and ſervice there performed; and unto the city of the living God, built on Chriſt the foundation, guarded by Almighty Power, and bleſt with the moſt tranſcendent privileges, the heavenly Jeruſalem, where all the inhabitants are ſpiritualized in temper and affections, and made meet for their eternal manſions in glory; and to the innumerable company of angels, your fellow ſervants, who miniſter unto them who ſhall be heirs of ſalvation; to the general aſſembly and church of the firſt-born which are written in heaven, in the Lamb's book of life, the noble army of ſaints, whether militant in earth or triumphant in heaven; and to God the judge of all, as reconciled now to you in the Son of his love; and having boldneſs to approach the throne in that great day, when he ſhall judge the world by him to whom all judgment is committed; and to the ſpirits of juſt men made perfect, now entered into their eternal reſt and perfected in holineſs, with whom you maintain communion, as influenced by the ſame ſpirit, juſtified by the ſame blood, members of the ſame body, purſuing the ſame end, and ready to join their ſervices in the immediate preſence of God and of the Lamb; and to Jeſus the Mediator of the new covenant, through whom all theſe invaluable privileges and bleſſings are derived down to us; and to the blood of ſprinkling, that ſpeaketh better things than that of Abel: his blood cried for vengeance, but the blood which Jeſus ſhed, ſprinkled by faith upon our conſciences, ſpeaks peace, and comfort, and eternal bleſſedneſs: as it infinitely exceeds in excellence that of Abel's ſacrifice, much more ſhall it obtain acceptance and favour with God for all thoſe, who, ſprinkled therewith, boldly appear in the preſence of the Moſt High and Moſt Holy.

3. From theſe conſiderations he proceeds to exhort them to take heed to themſelves. See that ye refuſe not him that ſpeaketh in the goſpel: for if they eſcaped not who refuſed him that ſpake on earth, even Moſes who delivered the ſacred oracles of the law to the people, much more ſhall not we eſcape, if we turn away from him that ſpeaketh from heaven, that Lord of life and glory who came down from heaven, and is returned thither again, and by the inſpiration of his Spirit, which, in ſuch an aſtoniſhing manner, he hath ſent from thence, ſpeaks now in his goſpel word: whoſe voice then ſhook the earth, when Sinai trembled at his preſence: but now he hath promiſed, ſaying, Yet once more I ſhake not the earth only, but alſo heaven, the Jewiſh church, with all their civil and eccleſiaſtical polity. And this word, Yet once more, ſignifieth the removing of thoſe things that are ſhaken, as of things that are made, not for a perpetuity, but for a while only, as was the caſe of the Jewiſh tabernacle and œconomy, that thoſe things which cannot be ſhaken may remain, and that the goſpel church worſhip and privileges may endure unalterable unto the end of time. Wherefore, we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, and by faith admitted to a participation of the privileges of that kingdom of goſpel grace, which will iſſue ſhortly in a kingdom of glory, let us remember, eſteem, and value our diſtinguiſhed mercies, and have grace to hold faſt the doctrine of truth, and beg a more abundant meaſure of the Spirit, whereby we may ſerve God acceptably, through Jeſus Chriſt, with reverence and godly fear, under a ſenſe of our own ſinfulneſs and unworthineſs. For our God is a conſuming fire, and will execute fearful vengeance on every apoſtate from the faith and practice of the goſpel. Note, (1.) They who have received the grace of God in truth, have a kingdom that cannot be moved. (2.) Conſtant worſhip and waiting upon God is the appointed way wherein he hath promiſed to beſtow on us the grace which can enable us to ſerve him acceptably. (3.) The fire of eternal vengeance will aſſuredly light down upon the apoſtate and impenitent ſoul.

CHAP. XIII.

The apoſtle concludes with recommending ſeveral excellent duties to them, as the proper fruits of faith, ver. 1—18. then beſpeaks their prayers for him, and offers up his prayers to God for them, gives them ſome hope of ſeeing himſelf and Timothy, and ends with the general ſalutation and benediction, ver. 18. to the end.

1. [a] LET brotherly love continue. 2. [b] Be not forgetful to entertain ſtrangers: for thereby [c] ſome have entertained angels unawares. 3. [d] Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them; and them which ſuffer adverſity, as being yourſelves alſo in the body. 4. Marriage is honourable in all, and the bed undefiled: but [e] whoremongers and adulterers God will judge. 5. Let your converſation be without covetouſneſs; and [f] be content with ſuch things as ye have: for he hath ſaid, [g] I will never leave thee, nor forſake thee. 6. So that we may boldly ſay, [h] The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man ſhall do unto me. 7. [i] Remember them which have the rule over you, who have ſpoken unto you the word of God: whoſe faith follow, conſidering the end of their converſation. 8. Jeſus Chriſt the ſame yeſterday, and to day, and for ever. 9. [k] Be not carried about with divers and ſtrange doctrines: for it is a good thing that the heart be eſtabliſhed with grace, [l] not with meats, which have not profited them that have been occupied therein. 10. [m] We have an altar whereof they have no right to eat which ſerve the tabernacle. 11. For [n] the bodies of thoſe beaſts, whoſe blood is brought into the ſanctuary by the high prieſt for ſin, are burnt without the camp. 12. Wherefore Jeſus alſo, that he might ſanctify the people with his own blood, ſuffered [o] without the gate. 13. Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, [p] bearing his reproach. 14. [q] For here we have no continuing city, but we ſeek one to come. 15. [r] By him therefore let us offer [s] the ſacrifice of praiſe to God continually, that is, [t] the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name. 16. But to do good and to communicate forget not: for [u] with ſuch ſacrifices God is well pleaſed. 17. [x] Obey them that have the rule over you, and ſubmit yourſelves: for [y] they watch for your ſouls, as they that muſt give an account: that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: for that is unprofitable for you.

a Rom. xii. 10. 1 Pet. i. 22. & ii. 17. & iv. 8.
b Rom. xii. 13. 1 Pet. iv. 9.
c Gen. xviii. 2. & xix. 1.
d Mat. xxv. 36. Rom. xii. 15. 1 Cor. xii. 26. Col. i. 18.
e 1 Cor. vi. 9. Gal. v. 19, 21. Eph. v. 5.
f Mat. vi. 25, 34. Phil. iv. 11, 12. 1 Tim. vi. 6, 8.
g Deut. xxxi. 6, 8. Joſh. i. 5. 1 Chro. xxviii. 20. Pſ. xxxvii. 25.
h Pſ. lvi. 4, 11. & cxviii. 6.
i 1 Theſ. v. 12. Ver. 17.
k Jer. xxix. 8. Eph. iv. 14. & v. 6. 1 John iv. 1.
l Rom. xiv. 17. Col. ii. 16. 1 Tim. iv. 3.
m 1 Cor. x. 18.
n Ex. xxix. 14. Lev. iv. 12, 21. & vi. 30. & xvi. 27. Num. xix 3.
o John xix. 17.
p Chap. xi. 26. 1 Pet. iv. 14.
q Mic. ii. 10. Phil. iii. 20. Chap. xi. 10, 16.
r Eph. v 20. 1 Pet. ii. 5.
s Lev. vii. 12. Pſ. l. 14, 23. & lxix. 30, 31. & cvii. 22. & cxvi. 17.
t Hoſ. xiv. 2.
u 2 Cor ix. 12. Phil. iv 18.
x Phil. ii. 29. 1 Theſ v. 12. 1 Tim. v. 17. Ver. 7.
y Ezek. iii. 17, 18. & xxxii. 7, 8.

v. 1—17. Having warned them againſt apoſtacy, and ſet before them the excellency of the goſpel diſpenſation, he concludes with exhorting them to the practice of thoſe duties which muſt adorn their holy profeſſion.

1. To mutual and fervent charity. Let brotherly love continue, cultivate this bleſſed temper, and abide and abound in the exerciſe of it towards each other.

2. To hoſpitality. Be not forgetful to entertain ſtrangers; thoſe who travelled to preach the goſpel; or by perſecution were driven from their native homes; or whoſe diſtreſſed circumſtances pleaded for this kind relief; for thereby ſome have entertained angels unawares, as Abraham and Lot.

3. To Chriſtian ſympathy with the afflicted. Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them, and tenderly feeling for their miſeries; and them which ſuffer adverſity, as being yourſelves alſo in the body, and liable to the ſame ſufferings, and fellow members in the ſame myſtical body of Chriſt.

4. To chaſtity. Marriage is honourable in all, when entered into according to the divine preſcription, and the bed undefiled by any forbidden and impure embraces: but whoremongers and adulterers God will judge, and execute upon them condign puniſhment, if they repent not of the evil of their ways.

5. To contentment. Let your converſation be without covetouſneſs, free from the immoderate purſuit of worldly wealth, inordinate care about it, idolatrous delight in and reluctance to part with it; and be content with ſuch things as ye have, ſatisfied in the portion which God's providence hath allotted you, and envying none their ſuperior affluence: for he, who is able to ſupply all your wants, whilſt in the way of duty and honeſt induſtry you depend upon him, hath ſaid, I will never leave thee, nor forſake thee, for what was ſpoken particularly to Joſhua ſhall be fulfilled to every faithful ſoul, reſpecting all their concerns, temporal and ſpiritual, who ſhall be under the Divine bleſſing, guidance, and protection. So that we may boldly ſay, with the pſalmiſt, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man ſhall do unto me; greater is he that is for us than all that are againſt us; and the devices of wicked men, or wicked devils, he can over-rule, and even make them work together for our good.

6. To imitate their dead paſtors, and to obey their living guides.

(1.) To imitate the good examples of their departed ſpiritual teachers. Remember them which have the rule over you, who have ſpoken unto you the word of God in time paſt, and have now finiſhed their teſtimony: whoſe faith follow, hold faſt the doctrines which they preached, and copy after the holy lives they led, conſidering the end of their converſation, how ſingly they aimed at the glory of God in life, and what a happy exit they made at death; and well may we deſire that our laſt end may be like theirs. And though the beſt of miniſters are dying men, the great Shepherd and Biſhop of Souls ever lives to feed his redeemed flock; Jeſus Chriſt, the glorious object of our faith and hope, the ſame, unchangeable in nature, grace, and love towards his people, yeſterday, in all paſt ages, now, and for ever the portion of his ſaints, as your faithful guides have taught you. Be not therefore carried about with ſtrange and divers doctrines, different from that unadulterated goſpel which they preached to you: for it is a good thing that the heart be eſtabliſhed with grace, and fixed in its dependance on the ſovereign grace of God in Jeſus Chriſt, as the foundation of all hope, and peace, and holineſs, in time and eternity; and not to be ſeduced by judaizing teachers with any pretences that the Moſaic ritual is ſtill in force, and a difference of meats and drinks, and ſuch like things neceſſary to be obſerved, in order to acceptance with God, all which are now abrogated, and have not profited them that have been occupied therein; even when they were in force, they were unable to purge the conſcience, and make him who did the ſervice perfect; and much leſs can they now profit, when they are aboliſhed. We need none of the Levitical ſacrifices to feaſt upon; we have one infinitely better; an altar and ſacrifice, whereof they have no right to eat which ſerve the tabernacle, for no part of the ſin-offering under the law was to be eaten, but the bodies of thoſe beaſts, whoſe blood is brought into the ſanctuary, on the great day of atonement, by the high prieſt for the ſin of the people, are burnt without the camp. Wherefore they who remain ſubject to this law, can have no more right to feed upon the body and blood of Chriſt, which are received by the faithful in the Lord's Supper, than the Levitical prieſts had to feed upon the fleſh of the atoning ſacrifice; in exact correſpondence with which Jeſus alſo, that he might ſanctify the people, his ſpiritual Iſrael, with his own blood, ſuffered without the gate, before he went up to heaven, the true ſanctuary, there to plead the atonement which he had made. Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach; turning our backs upon the temple and all its ritual ſervices, founding no expectations upon them, but cleaving in faith and love to Chriſt alone, content to be treated with every inſult, reproach, or cruelty for his ſake, boldly carrying our croſs to Calvary after him, and, if need be, ready to die for his ſake. For here we have no continuing city; this polluted world is not our reſt, nor do we deſire to take up our reſt here below, but we ſeek one to come, a city that hath abiding foundations, whoſe maker and builder is God, where ſaints, and angels, and Jeſus himſelf dwelleth. By him therefore let us offer the ſacrifice of praiſe to God continually, ſince all ſacrifices of atonement are at an end, and praiſe and bleſſing for redeeming love, are the ſervices now required at our hands; that is, the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name, an oblation well pleaſing and acceptable to God through Jeſus Chriſt. Not that we muſt reſt merely in words, but our works alſo muſt teſtify our grateful acknowledgment of the divine mercy; therefore to do good, and to communicate of your ſubſtance to the needy, eſpecially to thoſe of the houſhold of faith, and, according to your ability, forget not: for with ſuch ſacrifices God is well pleaſed, and for the Saviour's ſake will bleſs the offerer.

(2.) They are enjoined, as to follow the examples of their departed paſtors, ſo to obey their living guides. Obey them that have the rule over you, your ſpiritual teachers, who inſtruct you in the word of God, and ſubmit yourſelves meekly to their reproofs and admonitions: for they watch for your ſouls, to guard you from deceivers, to warn you from approaching danger, to feed you in the paſtures of ordinances, and to help you on your heavenly way; and this they do with all holy jealouſy, zeal, and diligence, knowing the ſolemn reckoning which they muſt one day make, as they that muſt give an account: that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: for that would be not only grievous to them, but moſt unprofitable for you, whoſe condemnation would be highly aggravated by all their fruitleſs labours beſtowed upon you. Note, (1.) Miniſters can never too often or too deeply conſider the awful account they muſt one day give before their eternal judge. (2.) When we have delivered our ſouls, then it becomes our people's care to ſee that their profiting appears; if they trifle with our meſſage, their blood lies upon their own heads.

18. [z] Pray for us: for we truſt [a] we have a good conſcience, in all things willing to live honeſtly. 19. But I beſeech you [b] the rather to do this, that I may be reſtored to you the ſooner. 20. Now [c] the God of peace [d] that brought again from the dead our Lord Jeſus, [e] that great ſhepherd of the ſheep, through [f] the blood of the everlaſting covenant, 21. [g] Make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well pleaſing in his ſight, through Jeſus Chriſt: [h] to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen. 22. And I beſeech you, brethren, ſuffer the word of exhortation; for [i] I have written a letter unto you in few words. 23. Know ye, that our brother Timothy is ſet at liberty; with whom, if he come ſhortly, I will ſee you. 24. Salute all them that have the rule over you, and all the ſaints. They of Italy ſalute you. 25. Grace be with you all. Amen.

[z] Eph. iv. 19. Col. iv. 3. 2 Theſ. iii. 1.
[a] Acts xxiii. 1. & xxiv. 16. 2 Cor. i. 12.
[b] Philem. 22.
[c] Rom. xv. 33.
[d] Acts ii. 24.
[e] Iſa. xl. 11. Ezek. xxxiv. 23. John x. 11. 1 Pet. ii. 25. & v. 4.
[f] Zech. ix. 11. Chap. x. 29.
[g] Phil. ii. 13. 1 Pet. v. 10.
[h] Rev. i. 6.
[i] 1 Pet. v. 12.

v. 18—25. The apoſtle here,

1. Recommends himſelf to their prayers. Pray for us, that we may be wiſe, vigilant, zealous, ſucceſsful; and this will be your own benefit, for the more our people pray for us, the more profiting will they receive from us: for we truſt we have a good conſcience, in all things willing to live honeſtly, to diſcharge our awful truſt with fidelity, and ſo to behave as to confute the calumnies of our enemies, approving ourſelves to God, and enjoying the teſtimony of a good conſcience. But I beſeech you the rather to do this, that I may be reſtored to you the ſooner; and that, being delivered from my preſent confinement, you may again reap the fruit of my labours among you. Note, (1.) Every faithful miniſter, however maligned by wicked men, hath the teſtimony of God and a good conſcience, and that is his rejoicing. (2.) Mercies are doubly ſweet which come in anſwer to prayer.

2. He in return offers up his own prayers on their behalf. Now the God of peace, our reconciled God, that hath ſpoken peace to our conſciences, and hath brought again from the dead our Lord Jeſus, that great ſhepherd of the ſheep, in token of his perfect ſatisfaction in his undertaking, through the blood of the everlaſting covenant, ſhed to procure our peace and pardon, and all the bleſſings of grace and glory for his redeemed, make you perfect in every good work to do his will, enabling you to go from ſtrength to ſtrength, till you arrive at the perfection of knowledge, holineſs, and bleſſedneſs in glory everlaſting, working in you, by his own almighty grace, that which is pleaſing in his ſight through Jeſus Chriſt, by whom alone every ſpiritual gift deſcends upon us; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen! whoſe is the work, and to whom the praiſe is to be aſcribed. Note, (1.) Our peace with God is bought with the blood of the everlaſting covenant, and he is thereby become our God for ever and ever. (2.) Every thing pleaſing in us to God, is his own work; left to ourſelves, evil, and only evil continually, is the native produce of our fallen hearts. (3.) God muſt have all the glory of our ſalvation, from the beginning to the end; for we are nothing, and he is all in all.

3. He exhorts them very affectionately to attend to what he had ſaid, and informs them of Timothy's releaſe. Now I beſeech you, brethren, dearly beloved, ſuffer the word of exhortation; take in good part what I have ſaid, and receive the comfort it is intended to communicate to you; for I have written a letter unto you in few words, when the ſubject would have admitted of great enlargement. Know ye, that our brother Timothy is ſet at liberty from his bonds for Chriſt; with whom, if he come to me ſhortly, and it pleaſe the Lord that I regain my liberty, I will ſee you.

4. He concludes with his affectionate ſalutations. Salute all them that have the rule over you, your faithful miniſters, and all the ſaints in Chriſt Jeſus. They of Italy ſalute you, wiſhing you the beſt of bleſſings. Grace be with you all. Amen! May the ſovereign and everlaſting love of God in Chriſt, with all its tranſcendently-bleſſed effects, be with you in time, and continue to influence and guide you, till you arrive at his kingdom of glory in eternity!

THE

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
UPON THE
GENERAL EPISTLE of JAMES.

THE writer of this epiſtle was James, the ſon of Alpheus, who was couſin-german to Chriſt, and one of the twelve apoſtles, Mat. x. 3. He is called a pillar, Gal. ii. 9. And this epiſtle of his cannot be diſputed, without looſening a foundation ſtone.

It is called a general epiſtle, becauſe (as ſome think) not directed to any particular perſon or church; but ſuch a one as we call a circular letter. Others think it is called general or catholic, to diſtinguiſh it from the epiſtles of Ignatius, Barnabas, Polycarp, and others that were noted in the primitive times, but not generally received in the church, and on that account not canonical, as this is.

The time when this epiſtle was written is uncertain, probably about the year 60. The deſign of it is, to reprove Chriſtians for their great degeneracy, both in faith and manners; and to prevent the ſpreading of thoſe libertine doctrines, which threatned the deſtruction of all practical godlineſs. It was alſo a ſpecial intention of the author of this epiſtle, to awaken the Jewiſh nation to a ſenſe of the greatneſs and nearneſs of thoſe judgments which were coming upon them; and to ſupport all true Chriſtians in the way of their duty, under thoſe calamities and perſecutions they might meet with. The truths laid down are very momentous and neceſſary to be maintained; and the rules for practice, as here ſtated, are ſuch as ought to be obſerved in our times as well as in preceding ages.

CHAP. I.

After the inſcription and ſalutation, ver. 1. Chriſtians are taught how to carry it when under the croſs, ver. 2—12. He warns them not to impute to God any temptations to ſin, ſince he cannot be the author of ſin, but is the author of all good, ver. 13—18. All paſſion, and raſh anger, and vile affections ought to be ſuppreſſed. The word of God ſhould be made our chief ſtudy: And what we hear and know of it, we muſt take care to practiſe; otherwiſe our religion will prove but a vain thing. To which is added, an account wherein pure religion conſiſts, ver. 19—27.

1. JAMES [a] a ſervant of God and of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to [b] the twelve tribes [c] which are ſcattered abroad, greeting. 2. My brethren, [d] count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations; 3. Knowing this, that [e] the trying of your faith worketh patience. 4. But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing. 5. If any of you lack wiſdom, [f] let him aſk of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; [g] and it ſhall be given him. 6. [h] But let him aſk in faith, nothing wavering: for he that wavereth is like a wave of the ſea, driven with the wind, and toſſed. 7. For let not that man think that he ſhall receive any thing of the Lord. 8. A double-minded man is unſtable in all his ways. 9. Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted: 10. But the rich, in that he is made low: becauſe [i] as the flower of the graſs he ſhall paſs away. 11. For the ſun is no ſooner riſen with a burning heat, but it withereth the graſs, and the flower thereof falleth, and the grace of the faſhion of it periſheth: ſo alſo ſhall the rich man fade away in his ways. 12. [k] Bleſſed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he ſhall receive [l] the crown of life, [m] which the Lord hath promiſed to them that love him.

v. 1—12. We have here,

1. The inſcription of the epiſtle. James, who counts it his higheſt honour to ſubſcribe himſelf a ſervant of God, and, or even, of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to the twelve tribes which are ſcattered abroad, wherever diſperſed throughout the world, ſendeth greeting, wiſhing that all bleſſings may deſcend upon them, whether of this world or a better.

2. He exhorts them, under the perſecutions and troubles which for Chriſt's ſake they endured, to rejoice. My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations, and by Divine Providence are permitted to be variouſly exerciſed by the malice of the wicked; eſteem their reproaches your honour, and your loſſes your trueſt gain, knowing this, by divine teſtimony, and happy experience, that the trying of your faith worketh patience; your faith is proved genuine by this bleſſed effect, and every exerciſe of it tends to confirm your hearts in meek and humble reſignation. But let patience have her perfect work; be the trials never ſo many, never ſo grievous, never ſo long continued, bear up under

[a] Tit. i. 1.
[b] Acts xxvi. 7.
[c] Deut. xxxii. 26. John vii. 35. Acts viii. 1. 1 Pet. i. 1.
[d] Mat. v. 12. Acts v. 41. Rom. v. 3. Heb. x. 34. 1 Pet. iv. 13, 16.
[e] Rom. v. 3. 1 Pet. i. 7.
[f] 1 Kings iii. 9. Mat. vii. 7. & xxi. 22. John xiv. 13. & xv. 7. & xvi. 26.
[g] Jer. xxix. 12. 1 John v. 14.
[h] Mark xi. 24. 1 Tim. ii. 8.
[i] Job xiv. 2. Pſ. ciii. 15. Iſa. xl. 6. 1 Cor. vii. 31. 1 Pet. i. 24. 1 John ii. 17.
[k] Job v. 17. Prov. iii. 11, 12. Rev. iii. 19.
[l] 1 Cor. ix. 25. 2 Tim. iv. 8. 1 Pet. v. 4. Rev. ii. 10.
[m] Mat. xix. 28, 29. Chap. ii. 5.

under them with perſevering ſtedfaſtneſs, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing; arriving at the higheſt eminence of grace, and holding out till you reach the perfection of holineſs in heaven. Note, (1.) Surrounded as we are with temptation, and beſet with corruption, we have need of patience, that we faint not under our trials. (2.) Philoſophy may enjoin ſubmiſſion, but Chriſtianity only can teach us to rejoice under affliction. (3.) Faith is the root of all graces: as that is vigorous, they will be in exerciſe. (4.) The ſharpeſt conflicts which we have to ſuſtain, prove in their iſſue, when rightly improved, the greateſt bleſſings to our ſouls.

3. If we would act aright under our trials, we muſt be upon our knees often, to beg divine direction. If any of you lack wiſdom, and know not how to act in any emergence, let him aſk of God, that giveth to all men, who apply according to his word, liberally, and upbraideth not; never weary in granting, nor ever reproaching his ſupplicants with their unworthineſs, or the multitude of the favours which he beſtows; and it ſhall be given him; all the counſel and aſſiſtance which ſuch an one needs ſhall be beſtowed in anſwer to his prayer. But let him aſk in faith, nothing wavering; not diſtruſting the faithfulneſs, power, and grace of God in Chriſt, however difficult and embarraſſed his circumſtances may be: for he that wavereth is like a wave of the ſea, driven with the wind, and toſſed; the ſport of every guſt of temptation, reſtleſs, impatient, fluctuating, unſettled in principle and practice: for let not that man think that he ſhall receive any thing of the Lord, whilſt he diſhonours him by his unbelief and fickleneſs. Such a double-minded man, divided between hope and fear, Chriſt and the world, halting between both, and willing to reconcile the incompatible ſervices of God and Mammon, is unſtable in all his ways, and having no fixed end in view, can never proſper in his ſoul, nor expect an anſwer to his prayers. Note, (1.) We have every encouragement to approach a throne of grace, and every poſſible aſſurance of finding relief there. How perverſe and fooliſh then muſt we be, if we make not uſe of this invaluable privilege? (2.) They who come to God with their requeſts, muſt honour him by their confidence in his power, truth, and love: unbelief ſhuts out the bleſſing. (3.) When the heart is unſtable and wavering, prayer cannot aſcend with acceptance before God.

4. Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted to the infinite riches of grace, and the tranſcendent dignity of an heir of glory; but the rich brother, in that he is made low; taught, amidſt all his affluence and grandeur, true poverty of ſpirit, and lowlineſs of mind, and ready ever to part with any thing he poſſeſſes for the ſake of Chriſt, becauſe he knows the fleeting and periſhing nature of all worldly wealth, and that as a flower of the graſs he ſhall paſs away, and leave it all behind. For the ſun is no ſooner riſen with a burning heat, but it withereth the graſs, and the flower thereof falleth, and the grace of the faſhion of it periſheth: ſo alſo ſhall the rich man fade away in his ways. Often in this world riches make themſelves wings, and fly away as an eagle towards heaven, and death at fartheſt will prove their vanity.

5. A bleſſing is pronounced upon faithful perſeverance. Bleſſed is the man that endureth temptation; far from proving our hurt, our trials in their iſſue tend to advance our trueſt felicity: for when he is tried, as gold in the furnace, and comes forth brighter from the fires, he ſhall receive the crown of life and glory, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, hath promiſed, and will at the great day of his appearing aſſuredly give to them that love him. Note, (1.) We muſt be tried before we can be crowned. (2.) Where the love of God is in the heart, many waters cannot quench it, neither can any of the floods of perſecution or temptation drown it. (3.) The reward of fidelity is ſtill the gift of God, who freely promiſes, by his grace ſupports, and of his mercy beſtows, the crown of life.

13. Let no man ſay when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man. 14. But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own luſt and enticed. 15. Then when luſt hath conceived, [n] it bringeth forth ſin: and ſin when it is finiſhed, [o] bringeth forth death. 16. Do not err, my beloved brethren. 17. [p] Every good gift, and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, [q] with whom is no variableneſs, neither ſhadow of turning. 18. [r] Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we ſhould be a kind of [s] firſt-fruits of his creatures.

[n] Pſ. vii. 14.
[o] Rom. vi. 23.
[p] Prov. ii. 6. John iii. 27. 1 Cor. iv. 7.
[q] Num. xxiii. 19. Iſa. xiv. 27. & xlvi. 10. Mal. iii. 6. Rom. xi. 29.
[r] John i. 13. & iii. 3. 1 Cor. iv. 15. 1 Pet. i. 23.
[s] Jer. ii. 3. Rev. xiv. 4.

v. 13—18. Concerning the cauſe of all the evil of ſin which we fall into, when brought into temptation, we are taught,

1. That it is not to be imputed to God. Let no man ſay when he is tempted to commit ſin, in order to extricate himſelf from ſuffering, I am tempted of God; for this is abominably impious, ſince God, who is in his nature perfectly holy, cannot himſelf be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man to iniquity, whatever providential afflictions he may lay upon them. Note, We are very apt to caſt our ſins at God's door, and to blame him for putting us in ſuch temptations; whereas our trials are deſigned to exerciſe our graces, not to draw out our corruptions.

2. We have only ourſelves to blame for all the evil which is in us. But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own luſt, and enticed; fooliſhly and perverſely following the bait which Satan lays, beguiled by his enticements, and dragged by the cords of corrupt affections from the paths of truth and holineſs. Then when luſt hath conceived, in thought and deſire, it bringeth forth ſin, gaining the conſent of the will to the perpetration of iniquity; and ſin when it is finiſhed, in the act, and impenitently perſiſted in, bringeth forth death of body and ſoul for ever. Do not err, my beloved brethren, by entertaining falſe and injurious conceptions of the bleſſed God in this matter. Note, (1.) The root of all evil is in our fallen hearts. (2.) Sin enſlaves by flattery; it is the deceitfulneſs of unrighteouſneſs which proves our ruin; and falſe hope ſupports vain confidence, till it appears that there is a lie in our right hand. (3.) If we do not deſtroy the power of ſin, we may be aſſured it will finally deſtroy us.

3. All good which is in us proceeds wholly from God. Every good gift, and every perfect gift, every bounty of providence, and every ſpiritual endowment, which tends to the perfection of our nature in knowledge and holineſs, is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, the Author of all light, natural, moral, ſpiritual, or eternal; with whom is no variableneſs, neither ſhadow of turning. The ſun that gilds the firmament is obſcured often by clouds, riſes and ſets, is eclipſed, and moves to and fro between the tropics; but God knows no change; nothing but good, without the ſhadow of evil, can proceed from him. Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, not for any deſert of ours, but of his ſovereign pleaſure, ſending us his goſpel, and making it effectual, through the power of the Spirit, to quicken our ſouls from the death of ſin, and raiſe us to newneſs of life; that, as his adopted and regenerate ſons, we ſhould be a kind of firſt-fruits of his creatures; conſecrated to him, and devoted to his immediate ſervice. Note, (1.) All glorying muſt be excluded, if all good be of grace; for what then have we, which we have not received? (2.) Thoſe who are born of God, owe it to his ſovereign will and pleaſure, not to any thing in themſelves, they lying in the ſame corrupted maſs of mankind as others, till ſeparated by his grace. (3.) All who are begotten by the word of truth in the goſpel, muſt from that moment conſider themſelves as conſecrated to God's ſervice, and bound to live to his glory.

19. Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be [t] ſwift to hear, [u] ſlow to ſpeak, [x] ſlow to wrath. 20. For the wrath of man worketh not the righteouſneſs of God. 21. Wherefore [y] lay apart all filthineſs, and ſuperfluity of naughtineſs, and receive [z] with meekneſs the ingrafted word, [a] which is able to ſave your ſouls. 22. But [b] be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own ſelves. 23. For [c] if any man be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glaſs: 24. For he beholdeth himſelf and goeth his way, and ſtraightway forgetteth what manner of man he was. 25. But [d] whoſo looketh into the perfect [e] law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, [f] this man ſhall be bleſſed in his deed. 26. If any man among you ſeem to be religious, and [g] bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain. 27. Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father, is this, [h] To viſit the fatherleſs and widows in their affliction, and to keep himſelf unſpotted from the world.

[t] Eccleſ. v. 1.
[u] Prov. x. 19. & xiii. 3. & xvii. 27. Eccleſ. v. 2.
[x] Prov. xvi. 32. Eccleſ. vii. 9. Col. iii. 8.
[y] Rom. xiii. 12. Col. iii. 8. 1 Pet. ii. 1.
[z] Pſ. xxv. 9.
[a] Rom. i. 16. 1 Cor. i. 21. & xv. 1.
[b] Mat. vii. 21. Rom. ii. 13.
[c] Luke vi. 47, &c. Chap. ii. 14, &c.
[d] 2 Cor. iii. 18.
[e] Chap. ii. 12.
[f] John xiii. 17.
[g] Pſ. xxxiv. 13. & xxxix. 1. 1 Pet. iii. 10.
[h] Mat. xxv. 36.
[i] John xvii. 14. 1 John v. 18.

v. 19—27. The apoſtle here enjoins them,

1. To reſtrain their paſſions. Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be ſwift to hear God's word; ſlow to ſpeak, not daring to cenſure the ways of providence and grace; ſlow to wrath; not diſputing or quarrelling with the truths of God, or treating thoſe who differ in points of controverſy with contempt or anger: for the wrath of man worketh not the righteouſneſs of God; the cauſe of God cannot be ſerved by our ſelfiſh paſſions; nor with ſuch a ſpirit may we hope to ſpeak aright, or to convince others. Note, (1.) We ſhould not be obſtinate in our own opinions, but be willing to hear the objections of others. (2.) God's cauſe is not to be ſerved by noiſe and anger, but by meekneſs and the word of truth. Whoever is in the right, they that are angry are ſure to be wrong.

2. To put away every other vile and corrupt affection. Wherefore lay apart all filthineſs, and ſuperfluity of naughtineſs, every defiling luſt, and malicious temper; and receive with meekneſs the ingrafted word, that it may take faſt hold of your affections, and be incorporated with your hearts; bowing before it with all humility, and receiving it on God's authority with faith and love; which is able to ſave your ſouls, when thus accompanied by the power of the Spirit. Note, Corrupt affections entertained diſincline and indiſpoſe the ſoul for receiving God's word, turn us away from hearing it, and prejudice us againſt the truth.

3. We muſt be not only hearers of the truth, but practiſe it alſo, elſe it can profit us nothing. But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own ſelves, by any fallacious concluſions to the ruin of your ſouls. For if any man be a hearer of the word merely, reſting upon that as of any avail, and is not a doer of what he hears, he is like a man beholding his natural face in a glaſs; for he beholdeth himſelf, and haſtily paſſing by, ſtraightway forgetteth what manner of man he was. Such is the careleſs and curſory hearer of the word: he may diſcover, whilſt under the word, in a tranſient glance, ſomething of the ſinfulneſs and depravity of his nature, and his need of Chriſt; but it makes no deep or laſting impreſſion: no ſooner is he gone forth into the world, than he forgets his convictions, and continues utterly unchanged in temper and conduct. But whoſo looketh into the perfect law of liberty, attentively viewing himſelf in the glaſs of the goſpel, wherein we are called from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God; and continueth therein, careful to hold faſt in principle, and to correſpond in practice with the things therein revealed; he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, diligent to obey what God commands, this man ſhall be bleſſed in his deed, made happy in God's preſent ſervice, and his end be everlaſting life. Note, (1.) True religion conſiſts not in profeſſion merely, but in practice, without which Chriſtianity is but an empty name. (2.) Many by hearing pick up ſome right notions in their heads, whoſe hearts are never ſavingly affected. (3.) The word of God is as the faithful mirrour, that knows not to flatter: if we attentively view ourſelves in that glaſs, we ſhall ſee the horrid deformity of our fallen ſpirits, and the foul ſpots of native corruption, and learn to entertain the lowlieſt thoughts of our vile ſelves, and wretched ſervices, when we ſee them all polluted with ſin. (4.) They are only bleſſed, who, having diſcovered their real ſtate, are ſeriouſly led to the fountain open for ſin and for uncleanneſs; and in a Saviour's blood, and by the power of his grace, have their filthineſs cleanſed, and their nature renewed after his image, ſo as henceforth to walk and pleaſe God.

4. He marks the difference between true and falſe religion. If any man among you ſeem to be religious, making ſuch a profeſſion, and yet bridleth not his tongue, from railing, reproach, ſlander, profaneneſs, bitterneſs, or proud talkativeneſs to diſplay his own talents; this man's religion is vain: however plauſible he may appear, his heart is rotten; and whilſt he would build up his own excellence by detracting from others' worth, his hypocriſy is viſible through the maſk. Pure religion, and undefiled before God and the Father, that religion which he approves, is dictated by his word, and aims at his glory, is this, To viſit the fatherleſs and widows in their affliction; ſtretching out the kind hand of charity to relieve, ſympathizing with them, and affording them every aſſiſtance which they need, and we can give; and to keep himſelf unſpotted from the world; neither polluted by the luſt of the fleſh, the luſt of the eye, or the pride of life; but preſerved pure for God amidſt the overflowings of ungodlineſs. Note, (1.) We have to do with a heart-ſearching God, who requireth truth in the inward parts. (2.) Where the ſoul is right with God, there purity and charity will be manifeſt in every word and work. (3.) This world is full of defilement; it will need much watchfulneſs to keep our garments unſpotted.

CHAP. II.

In this chapter the apoſtle condemns all partiality to the rich, and deſpiſing the poor, ver. 1—7. He ſhews that the whole law is to be fulfilled, and that mercy ſhould be followed, as well as juſtice, ver. 8—13. He expoſes the error and folly of thoſe that boaſt of faith without works, telling us that this is but a dead faith, and ſuch a faith as devils have, not the faith of Abraham, or of Rahab, ver. 14, to the end.

1. MY brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [a] the Lord of glory, [b] with reſpect of perſons. 2. For if there come unto your † aſſembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in alſo a poor man in vile raiment; 3. And ye have reſpect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and ſay unto him, Sit thou here in a good place: and ſay to the poor, Stand thou there, or ſit here under my footſtool: 4. Are ye not then partial in yourſelves, and are become judges of evil thoughts? 5. Hearken, my beloved brethren, [c] Hath not God choſen the poor of this world, [d] rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom, [e] which he hath promiſed to them that love him? 6. But [f] ye have deſpiſed the poor. Do not rich men oppreſs you, [g] and draw you before the judgment-ſeats? 7. Do not they blaſpheme that worthy name by the which ye are called.

[a] 1 Cor. ii. 8.
[b] Lev. xix. 15. Deut. i. 17. & xvi. 19. Prov. xxviii. 21. Mat. xxii. 16. Ver. 9.
† Gr. Synagogue.
[c] Luke vi. 20. John vii. 48. 1 Cor. i. 28.
[d] Luke xii. 21. 1 Tim. vi. 18, 19. Rev. ii. 9.
[e] Ex. xx. 6. Prov. viii. 17. Mat. v. 3. Chap. i. 12.
[f] 1 Cor. xi. 22.
[g] Chap. v. 6.

v. 1—7. The apoſtle here,

1. In general warns them againſt all undue reſpect of perſons, becauſe of their rank in life. My brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which centres in him as the object, and is derived from him as the author and finiſher of it; the Lord of glory, with reſpect of perſons; acting with undue partiality, unbecoming the diſciples of Jeſus, who is himſelf exalted to the higheſt glory, and hath prepared eternal manſions for his people, without diſtinction of rich or poor, and therefore we ſhould make none in the merits of any cauſe which comes before us. Note, A ſight of Chriſt, and the glory provided for his people, ſtamps vanity on all the puny differences which here ſubſiſt between men.

2. He gives an inſtance of the great evil and injuſtice of all ſuch partiality. For if there come into your aſſembly, for religious worſhip, or rather into your court, where cauſes civil or eccleſiaſtical are determining, a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in alſo a poor man, who is a party in the cauſe to be tried, in vile raiment, making a wretched appearance; and ye have reſpect to him that weareth the gay cloathing, and, with evident partiality on his ſide, ſay unto him, with great deference, Sit thou here in a good place; and ſay to the poor, with inſolence and contempt, Stand thou there, at a diſtance, or ſit here under my footſtool, in any deſpicable place; are ye not then partial in yourſelves, and are become judges of evil thoughts? diſpoſed to favour the rich, and oppreſs the poor; and how criminal is ſuch a behaviour? Hearken, my beloved brethren, Hath not God choſen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom, which he hath promiſed to them that love him? Is not the goſpel chiefly preached to them? and are they not for the moſt part called to the participation of all its glorious privileges of grace here and glory hereafter? and if God hath ſo highly honoured them, we ſurely ought not to treat them with diſdain or partiality. But ye have deſpiſed the poor; to your ſhame and guilt be it ſpoken. Do not rich men, to whom you pay ſuch undue deference, oppreſs you, and draw you before judgment-ſeats, with litigious ſuits, and exerciſe the moſt cruel tyranny over you? Do not they, who are high in the world, prove your bittereſt perſecutors, and blaſpheme that worthy name by the which ye are called? and then ſurely you have no cauſe to careſs them. Note, (1.) All partiality in judgment is in God's ſight abominable. (2.) Among the poor, God's ſaints are chiefly to be found; and the riches of faith, and heirſhip of glory, are infinitely more valuable than the wealth of both the Indies, or the wideſt earthly domains. (3.) They who love God, however poor, can never be deſpicable, ſince they are poſſeſſed of the higheſt dignity, as heirs of God, and joint heirs with Chriſt.

8. If ye fulfil the royal law, according to the ſcripture, [h] Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thyſelf, ye do well. 9. But [i] if ye have reſpect to perſons, ye commit ſin, and are convinced of the law as tranſgreſſors, 10. For whoſoever ſhall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, [k] he is guilty of all. 11. For he that ſaid, [l] Do not commit adultery; ſaid alſo, Do not kill. Now if thou commit no adultery, yet if thou kill, thou art become a tranſgreſſor of the law. 12. So ſpeak ye, and ſo do, as they that ſhall be judged by the [m] law of liberty. 13. For [n] he ſhall have judgment without mercy, that hath ſhewed no mercy; and [o] mercy rejoiceth againſt judgment.

[h] Lev. xix. 18. Mat. xxii. 39. Rom. xiii. 9. Gal. v. 14.
[i] Lev. xix. 15. Ver. 1.
[k] Deut. xxvii. 26. Mat. v. 19. Gal. iii. 10.
[l] Ex. xx. 13, 14. Deut. v. 17.
[m] Chap. i. 25.
[n] Mat. vi. 15. & xviii. 35. & xxv. 41, 42.
[o] 1 John iv. 17, 18.

v. 8—13. The apoſtle,

1. Lays down the only proper rule of conduct. If ye fulfil the royal law, enacted by the King of kings, according to the ſcripture, where he hath revealed his will to us, and among the moſt eminent precepts ſtands this, Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thyſelf, treating every man with that benevolence, kindneſs, and impartiality, which, if in their caſe, you would reaſonably expect from them; ye do well; ſuch a conduct is honourable, and becoming your profeſſion. But if ye have reſpect to perſons, ſhewing more favour to the rich than to the poor, ye commit ſin, and are convinced of the law as tranſgreſſors, (Lev. xix. 15.) and one ſuch wilful iniquity muſt iſſue in your eternal ruin. For whoſoever ſhall keep the whole law, admitting that it were poſſible, and yet ſhould offend in one point, he is guilty of all; ſuch an allowed tranſgreſſion would be as evident a contempt of the authority of the lawgiver, as if he broke every precept; and, as the wages of every ſin is death, muſt expoſe the ſoul to the wrath of God. For he that ſaid, Do not commit adultery; ſaid alſo, Do not kill. Now if thou commit no adultery, yet if thou kill, thou art become a tranſgreſſor of the law, and liable to ſuffer its awful penalty.

2. He exhorts them to behave as becomes the goſpel which they profeſs. So ſpeak ye, and ſo do, in every word and work ſeek to approve yourſelves to God, as they that ſhall be judged by the law of liberty; and who being brought under the goſpel diſpenſation of light and grace, have the ſtrongeſt obligations to ſhew an impartial, genuine, univerſal, and chearful obedience to the Redeemer's commands.

3. He ſupports his exhortation by a moſt awful conſideration. For he ſhall have judgment without mercy, that hath ſhewed no mercy, but hath been partial to the rich, and oppreſſive to the poor; whilſt, on the other hand, where by divine grace the heart hath been influenced to exerciſe fervent charity, there mercy rejoiceth againſt judgment; ſuch a one ſhall not be afraid of appearing at God's bar, but through the great Redeemer ſhall have boldneſs, and find favour with God in that day. Note, A ſolemn ſenſe upon our minds of an approaching judgment, will neceſſarily have the moſt powerful influence on our conduct.

14. [p] What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man ſay he hath faith, and have not works? can faith ſave him? 15. If a brother or ſiſter be naked, and deſtitute of daily food; 16. And one of you ſay unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled: [q] notwithſtanding ye give them not thoſe things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit? 17. Even ſo faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone. 18. Yea, a man may ſay, Thou haſt faith, and I have works: ſhew me thy faith † without thy works, and [r] I will ſhew thee my faith by my works. 19. Thou believeſt that [s] there is one God; thou doſt well: [t] the devils alſo believe and tremble. 20. But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead? 21. Was not Abraham our father juſtified by works, [u] when he had offered Iſaac his ſon upon the altar? 22. ‡ Seeſt thou [x] how faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect? 23. And the ſcripture was fulfilled, which ſaid, [y] Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteouſneſs: and he was called [z] the friend of God. 24. Ye ſee then how that by works a man is juſtified, and not by faith only. 25. Likewiſe alſo [a] was not Rahab the harlot juſtified by works, when ſhe had received the meſſengers, and had ſent them out another way? 26. For as the body without the § ſpirit is dead, ſo faith without works is dead alſo.

[p] Mat. vii. 26. Chap. i. 23.
[q] Job xxxi. 20. 1 John. iii. 17.
† Some read, By thy works.
[r] Chap. ii. 13.
[s] Deut. vi. 4.
[t] Mark i. 24. & v. 7.
[u] Gen. xxii. 9, 12.
‡ Or, thou ſeeſt.
[x] Heb. xi. 17.
[y] Gen. xv. 6. Rom. iv. 3. Gal. iii. 6.
[z] 2 Chron. xx. 7. Iſa. xli. 8.
[a] Joſh. ii. 1. Heb. xi. 31.
§ Or breath.

v. 14—26. The apoſtle having ſpoken of the royal law, proceeds to ſhew the influence of faith on all holy obedience; not, as many vainly ſuggeſt, in oppoſition to Paul, or to correct his doctrine; their word proceeded from that one Spirit, who is truth itſelf, and cannot contradict his own revelation. Paul ſpeaks of faith as juſtifying the ſinner in the ſight of God; James ſpeaks of it as juſtifying us in the ſight of men, by the effects which it produces in juſtified perſons, for which Paul was equally an advocate. See Gal. v. 6. 1 Theſ. i. 3. Tit. iii. 8.

1. True faith ever produces genuine fruit, and worketh by love, without which the profeſſion of faith is uſeleſs, What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man ſay he hath faith, and have not works? Saying and having are very different things. What can a mere boaſted name ſignify? Can faith, ſuch a faith, ſave him? If a brother or ſiſter be naked, and deſtitute of daily food, and the neceſſaries of life; and one of you, pretending to charity, ſay unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled: notwithſtanding ye give them not thoſe things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit? ſuch empty words have nothing of godlike charity in them, and are mere ſounding braſs, and tinkling cymbal. Even ſo faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone, an empty profeſſion, without real life and power. Yea, a man may ſay to a vaunting hypocrite who pleads his faith, Thou haſt faith, in name, and I have works; ſhew me thy faith, to which thou makeſt ſuch vain pretenſions, without thy works, of which if thou art deſtitute, how wilt thou prove its genuineneſs and reality? and I will ſhew thee my faith by my works, which are the only indiſputable evidences before men of its truth. Thou mayeſt perhaps ſay thou art no atheiſt; thou believeſt that there is one God; ſo far thou doſt well: but what influence hath this faith upon thee? the devils alſo believe and tremble, and their faith is perhaps herein more operative than thine. But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead? and wants every proof of its ſoundneſs and ſincerity. Note, (1.) To rehearſe the articles of our creed, if we have not the truth of faith in our heart, will not advance us above the devils. (2.) All pretences to faith are but deluſion, where men's works deny him in whom they profeſs to believe.

2. He ſupports what he advances with ſcripture evidence:

[1.] In the caſe of Abraham. Was not Abraham our Father juſtified by works, and proved to be a true believer, when he had offered Iſaac his ſon upon the altar? then his juſtification in the ſight of God, which he had many years before obtained, (Rom. iv. 10, 11.) became evident, and the ſincerity of his faith apparent to all men. Seeſt thou how faith wrought with his works, effectually engaging him to obey God's command; and by works was faith made perfect; manifeſted to be right in kind, and in the moſt vigorous exerciſe. And the ſcripture was fulfilled, and ſeen to be true, which ſaid, many years before that event, (See Gen. xv. 6.) Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteouſneſs: and he was called the friend of God. Ye ſee then, by this inſtance, how that by works a man is juſtified, and the reality of his character as a believer diſcovered, and not by faith only, which is ſuch only in name, without producing any genuine fruit that demonſtrates its living influence; or, though it be real, can only appear to men by the effects which it produces.

[2.] In the caſe of Rahab. Likewiſe alſo was not Rahab the harlot juſtified by works; and did ſhe not give a ſolid proof of the faith ſhe poſſeſſed before the ſpies arrived at her houſe, that God would infallibly give the land of Canaan to Iſrael; when, in conſequence thereof, great as the danger was to which ſhe muſt expoſe herſelf, ſhe had received the meſſengers, who came to ſpy out the country, and had ſent them out another way?

From the whole therefore it appears evident, that nominal faith, or the mere profeſſion of it, without any living fruits of grace produced from it, is mere hypocriſy. For as the body without the ſpirit is dead, ſo faith without works is dead alſo. Where that vital principle is implanted, its powerful energy will be ſeen; and we may as aſſuredly conclude, where no fruits of grace appear in the temper and converſation, that the ſoul is as really dead in ſin, as the body is dead when the ſpirit is departed, and nothing but the lifeleſs clay remains.

CHAP. III.

The apoſtle here reproves all arrogance of talk or behaviour. 1. Thoſe who profeſs religion, ought eſpecially to govern their tongues, ver. 1—12. 2. True wiſdom makes men meek, and avoiders of ſtrife and envy: and hereby may eaſily be diſtinguiſhed from a wiſdom that is earthly and hypocritical, ver. 13, to the end.

1. MY brethren, [a] be not many maſters, knowing that [b] we ſhall receive the greater condemnation. 2. For [c] in many things we offend all. [d] If any man offend not in word, [e] the ſame is a perfect man, and able alſo to bridle the whole body. 3. Behold, [f] we put bits in the horſes mouths, that they may obey us; and we turn about their whole body. 4. Behold alſo the ſhips, which though they be ſo great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very ſmall helm, whitherſoever the governor liſteth. 5. Even ſo the tongue is a little member, and [g] boaſteth great things. Behold how great † a matter a little fire kindleth! 6. And [h] the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity: ſo is the tongue amongſt our members, that [i] it defileth the whole body, and ſetteth on fire the ‡ courſe of nature; and it is ſet on fire of hell. 7. For every kind of beaſts, and of birds, and of ſerpents, and things in the ſea, is tamed, and hath been tamed of § mankind: 8. But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, [k] full of deadly poiſon. 9. Therewith bleſs we God, even the Father; and therewith curſe we men, [l] which are made after the ſimilitude of God. 10. Out of the ſame mouth proceedeth bleſſing and curſing. My brethren, theſe things ought not ſo to be. 11. Doth a fountain ſend forth at the ſame ‖ place ſweet water and bitter? 12. Can the fig-tree, my brethren, bear olive-berries? either a vine, figs? ſo can no fountain both yield ſalt water and freſh.

[a] Mat. xxiii. 8. Rom. ii. 20. 1 Pet. v. 3.
[b] Luke vi. 37.
[c] 1 Kings viii. 46. 2 Chron. vi. 36. Prov. xx. 9. Eccleſ. vii. 20. 1 John i. 8.
[d] Pſ. xxxiv. 13. Ecclus xix. 16. Chap. i. 26.
[e] Mat. xii. 37.
[f] Pſ. xxxii. 9.
[g] Pſ. xii. 3, 4. & lxxiii. 8, 9.
† Gr. wood.
[h] Prov. xvi. 27.
[i] Mat. xv. 11, 18, 19.
‡ Gr. wheel.
§ Gr. the human nature.
[k] Pſ. cxl. 3. Rom. iii. 13.
[l] Gen. i. 27. & ix. 6.
‖ Or hole.

v. 1—12. They who have the leaſt pretenſions to true godlineſs, are often the moſt talkative profeſſors of it: to bridle the tongue is therefore among the proofs of living faith.

1. He warns them againſt a magiſterial and cenſorious behavious. My brethren, be not many maſters; affect not to ſet up for teachers, (διδασκαλοι), loving to hear yourſelves talk, and liberally dealing out reproof and cenſure; knowing that we ſhall receive the greater condemnation, by being thus forward to pronounce ſentence on others, when we do not truly firſt judge ourſelves: for if we were duly ſenſible of our own faults, we ſhould be leſs rigid in our judgment of others; ſeeing in many things we offend all; and the more we know of our own hearts, the more ſhall we be obliged to own, that our cenſure can nowhere ſo juſtly light as upon ourſelves; for we muſt be conſcious to more evil within, than we can know of all the world beſide.

2. He enjoins them to bridle their tongues. If any man offend not in word, and hath ſuch a guard over himſelf, as to utter nothing raſh, opprobrious, falſe, or ſinful, the ſame is a perfect man, a finiſhed Chriſtian, far advanced in the divine life; and able alſo to bridle the whole body, and reſtrain the irregular appetites and paſſions which war againſt the ſoul. Behold, we put bits in the horſes mouths, that they may obey us; and we turn about their whole body, governing and directing thereby all their motions. Behold alſo the ſhips, which though they be ſo great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very ſmall helm, whitherſoever the governor or pilot liſteth. Even ſo the tongue is a little member, and boaſteth great things; and, according as it is under government, or lawleſs, is capable of doing much good, or much evil.

3. The evil of an unruly tongue is great. Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth! what a conflagration blazes from a ſingle ſpark! And the tongue, when let looſe, is a fire, a world of iniquity, pouring fourth the abominations of the heart: ſo is the tongue amongſt our members, that it defileth the whole body, and ſetteth on fire the courſe of nature, in nations, churches, families; ſpreading ſedition, treaſons, hereſies, blaſphemies, diviſions, enmity; in every age, in every ſtation, its baleful influence appears: and it is ſet on fire of hell; infected with the old ſerpent's venom, promoting the intereſts of Satan's kingdom by profaneneſs, rage, lying, lewdneſs, ſlander, and all the train of evils which flow from thence; the puniſhment of which will be, that in hell it ſhall be tormented in flames unquenchable. For every kind of beaſts, the moſt ſavage; and of birds, however untractable in their nature; yea, and of ſerpents, and things in the ſea, is tamed, and hath been tamed of mankind; maſtered by their power, and rendered gentle by human art: but the tongue can no man tame; nothing ſhort of almighty power and grace can reſtrain or cure its malignity: it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poiſon; deadly to the owner, and mortal as far as its influence extends. Therewith bleſs we God, even the Father, in prayer and praiſe ſpeaking good of his name; and this is indeed the proper uſe of our tongues; but alas, how horrid is that perverſion of ſpeech, when therewith curſe we men, which are made after the ſimilitude of God. Yet ſuch is the inconſiſtence of ſome profeſſors of religion, that out of the ſame mouth proceedeth bleſſing and curſing; worſhip in one breath, and then reviling, ſlandering, and backbiting in the next. My brethren, theſe things ought not ſo to be; ſuch behaviour is utterly incongruous, and contradictory to the faith of the goſpel. Doth a fountain ſend forth at the ſame place ſweet water and bitter? Can the fig-tree, my brethren, bear olive-berries? either a vine, figs? ſo can no fountain both yield ſalt water and freſh: and as impoſſible is it for a heart, in which true grace is implanted, to be guilty habitually of ſuch groſs inconſiſtencies.

13. Who is a wiſe man and endued with knowledge amongſt you? [m] let him ſhew out of a good converſation his works [n] with meekneſs of wiſdom. 14. But if ye have [o] bitter envying and ſtrife in your hearts, [p] glory not, and lye not againſt the truth. 15. This wiſdom deſcendeth not from above, but is earthly, [q] ſenſual, deviliſh. 16. For [r] where envying and ſtrife is, there is confuſion, and every evil work. 17. But the wiſdom [s] that is from above, is firſt [t] pure, then peaceable, gentle, and eaſy to be intreated, [u] full of mercy [x] and good fruits, [y] without partiality, and [z] without hypocriſy. 18. And [a] the fruit of righteouſneſs is ſown in peace of them that make peace.

m Mat. v. 16. Chap. ii. 18.
n Chap. i. 21. 1 Pet. iii. 15.
o Rom. xiii. 13.
p Rom. ii. 17, 23.
q Jude 19.
r 1 Cor. iii. 3. Gal. v. 20.
s Chap. i. 17.
t Mat. v. 8. 1 Tim. i. 5.
u Luke vi. 36.
x Gal. v. 22.
y Chap. ii. 1, &c.
z Rom. xii. 9.
a Prov. xi. 18. Hoſ. x. 12. Mat. v. 9. Phil. i. 11.

v. 13—18. Nothing is more deſireable than true wiſdom. The apoſtle here teaches us,

1. In what way that will ſhew itſelf. Who is a wiſe man and endued with knowledge amongſt you? let him ſhew out of a good converſation his works with meekneſs of wiſdom, and prove his pretenſions, not by arrogant boaſts, but by his humility, meekneſs, holy converſation, and every good word and work, which may prove him a partaker of the grace of God in truth, and of the wiſdom which maketh wiſe unto ſalvation.

2. A contrary conduct evidently demonſtrates the folly and falſhood of pretended ſophiſts. But if ye have bitter envying and ſtrife in your hearts; live under the power of a contentious and diſputing ſpirit, evident in the bitter words which proceed out of your mouths; glory not in any fancied attainments, or zeal for orthodoxy; and lye not againſt the truth, by pretending to contend for that, to which your temper proves you an utter ſtranger. This wiſdom deſcendeth not from above, and never had God for its author; but is earthly, in its principle and end; ſenſual, the offspring of the fallen nature; and deviliſh, the image of Satan, and cultivated by him to advance the intereſts of his kingdom: for where envying and ſtrife is, there is confuſion, and every evil work, that tends to ruin both our own ſouls, and all that are around us.

3. How different and lovely are the effects and influence of true wiſdom! But the wiſdom that is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, the gift of his grace to his peculiar people, is firſt pure, engaging us to all purity in doctrine, manners, temper, ſpeech, and conduct; then peaceable, breathing nothing but love and quietneſs, averſe to noiſy broils and hot diſputes, maintaining peace where it ſubſiſts, and ſeeking to heal every breach at which diviſion hath entred. It is gentle, affable, courteous, engaging, ready to recede from its own in matters of property to avoid litigation; and mild, where in ſentiment any difference ſubſiſts; never urging its own opinion with violence, willing patiently to hear the judgment of others: eaſy to be intreated, and ready to forgive every offence; not rigidly obſtinate, but flexible to the advice of the wiſer and more experienced. Full of mercy and good fruits; benevolent, generous, liberal, willing to the utmoſt to help and relieve the diſtreſſes of the afflicted: without partiality, in judging or cenſuring others; and without hypocriſy, ſpeaking and acting always with ſimplicity and godly ſincerity, without diſguiſe or deſign. And the fruit of righteouſneſs, even all the gracious produce above deſcribed, and eternal life hereafter, is ſown in peace of them that make peace; they who are poſſeſſed of the peaceable wiſdom above deſcribed, are the perſons who go forth bearing the precious ſeed, and ſhall ſee in their own hearts, and under their miniſtry, the plenteous ſucceſs of their labours both here and hereafter; for the work of righteouſneſs ſhall be peace, and the effect of righteouſneſs quietneſs and aſſurance for ever.

CHAP. IV.

In this chapter we are directed to conſider, 1. Some cauſes of contention beſides thoſe mentioned in the foregoing chapter, and to watch againſt them, ver. 1—5. 2. We are taught to abandon the friendſhip of this world, ſo as to ſubmit and ſubject ourſelves entirely to God, ver. 4—10. 3. All detraction and raſh judgment of others is to be carefully avoided, ver. 11, 12. 4. We muſt preſerve a conſtant regard, and pay the utmoſt deference to the diſpoſals of divine providence, ver. 13, to the end.

1. FROM whence come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your luſts [a] that war in your members? 2. Ye luſt, and have not: [b] ye kill, and deſire to have, and cannot obtain: ye fight and war, yet ye have not, becauſe ye aſk not. 3. [c] Ye aſk, and receive not, [d] becauſe ye aſk amiſs, that ye may conſume it upon your luſts. 4. [e] Ye adulterers, and adultereſſes, know ye not that [f] the friendſhip of the world is enmity with God? [g] whoſoever therefore will be a friend of the world, is the enemy of God. 5. Do ye think that the ſcripture ſaith in vain, [h] The ſpirit that dwelleth in us luſteth to envy? 6. But he giveth more grace: wherefore he ſaith, [i] God reſiſteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble. 7. Submit yourſelves therefore to God; [k] reſiſt the devil, and he will flee from you: 8. [l] Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you: [m] cleanſe your hands, ye ſinners, and purify your hearts, ye double-minded. 9. [n] Be afflicted, and mourn, [o] and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heavineſs. 10. [p] Humble yourſelves in the ſight of the Lord, [q] and he ſhall lift you up.

a Rom. vii. 23. Gal v. 17. 1 Pet. ii. 11.
b Chap. v. 6.
c Job xxvii. 9. Pſ. xviii. 41. Prov. i. 28. Iſa. i. 15. Jer. xiv. 12. Mic. iii. 4. Zech. vii. 13.
d Pſ. lxvi. 18.
e Pſ. lxxiii. 27.
f 1 John ii. 15.
g John xv. 19. & xvii. 14. Gal. i. 10.
h Gen. vi. 5. & viii. 21. Num. xi. 29. Prov. xxi. 10.
i Pſal. cxxxviii. 6. Prov. iii. 34. Mat. xxiii. 12. Luke xviii. 14. 1 Pet. v. 5. k Eph. iv. 27. 1 Pet. v. 9.
l 2 Chron. xv. 2.
m Iſa. i. 16.
n Mat. v. 4.
o Chap. v. 1.
p Luke xiv. 11. & xviii. 14. 1 Pet. v. 6.
q Job xxii. 29.

v. 1—10. Inordinate deſire after earthly things is the uſual ground of contention; againſt this therefore the apoſtle warns them.

1. He aſcribes to this the wars and contentions which then were notorious among them. From whence come wars and fightings among you? which ſome ſuppoſe hath reference to the many ſeditions of the Jewiſh people againſt the Roman government; but rather refers to the contentions and law-ſuits which were maintained by thoſe who made profeſſion of Chriſtianity, and which were ſo unbecoming of the name they bore? come they not hence, even of your luſts that war in your members? Yes: to the pride and covetouſneſs of your hearts do theſe owe their origin, and tend to the ruin of religion, and the peace of the church, provoking God to withdraw his ſpirit from you. Ye luſt, and long to gratify your criminal paſſions, and have not what you graſp after: ye kill, impatient to inherit, and wiſhing thoſe dead whom you expect to ſucceed; and deſire to have, graſping covetouſly after abundance, and cannot obtain; diſappointment blaſts your purſuits: ye fight and war, contending fiercely for ſuperiority, wealth, and victory; yet ye have not, your ſchemes and deſigns are defeated, becauſe ye aſk not, neglecting to ſeek counſel of God in your enterprizes, and not deſiring his direction and bleſſing. And if ye aſk, ye receive not, becauſe ye aſk amiſs; neither praying for right things, nor with a right view, but eager after earthly gain; that ye may conſume it upon your luſts, not to employ it for God's glory and the good of mankind. Note, (1.) Nothing is more contrary to the ſpirit of Chriſtianity, than covetouſneſs and fierce diſputes. (2.) They who do not ſeek God's bleſſing, juſtly meet with diſappointment in all their enterprizes. (3.) To aſk amiſs is as bad as not to aſk at all; nor may we expect an anſwer to thoſe prayers which worldly-mindedneſs and ſelfiſhneſs, not God's glory, dictates.

2. He ſolemnly warns them againſt intimate connection with the world that lieth in wickedneſs. Ye adulterers and adultereſſes, whoſe affections are alienated from Chriſt, to whom ye were once in profeſſion and baptiſm eſpouſed; know ye not that the friendſhip of the world is enmity with God? all undue attachment to the pleaſures, intereſts, honours of the world, and delight in the company of the worldly-minded, are utterly inconſiſtent with fidelity to God, and real friendſhip with him; nay, are virtually a profeſſion of enmity againſt him. Whoſoever therefore will be a friend of the world, and at all events is reſolved to keep fair with the men of the world, and to advance his intereſts here below, he is, and muſt be, the enemy of God. Do ye think that the ſcripture ſaith in vain, in many paſſages deſcribing the deadly corruption of the natural heart, The ſpirit that dwelleth in us luſteth to envy? and, till renewed by grace, is ever with an evil eye regarding the ſuperior proſperity and affluence of others, and graſping after the like abundance: this ſpirit muſt therefore be mortified, or we muſt be condemned with the world.

3. He directs them how to overcome the world. But he, even God, giveth more grace than the world can ſpread ſnares, and hath infinitely greater riches to beſtow, than this poor earth can proffer. Wherefore he ſaith, God reſiſteth the proud, who make fleſh their arm, and place their happineſs and confidence in worldly things, vain of their own wiſdom, riches, or attainments; theſe he fights againſt, blaſts their deſigns, and ruins their confidences: but he giveth grace unto the humble, who, ſenſible of their own wretchedneſs, wants, and weakneſs, bow down at his feet for relief. Submit yourſelves therefore to God, to his guidance and government, obedient to his will and word, reſigned to his providence, and content with the portion which he allots you, whatever it be. Reſiſt the devil, and he will flee from you, as a vanquiſhed foe, unable to contend with thoſe who have put on the whole armour of God, and appear reſolved to fight manfully under Chriſt's banner. Draw nigh to God, in fervent prayer for help, and he will draw nigh to you, with comfort, ſtrength, and ſalvation in every time of need, and will make you more than conquerors.

4. He exhorts them to put away every evil thing, and with real penitence to return to God. Cleanſe your hands, ye ſinners, in the atoning blood of Jeſus, that you may lift them up with acceptance before the throne of grace; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded, from pride, envy, covetouſneſs, and hypocriſy; ſeeking that grace which can alone be effectual for this bleſſed purpoſe. Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep over the deep corruption and ſinfulneſs of your hearts, and under a ſenſe of your paſt grievous departures from God. Let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heavineſs, aſhamed and confounded at your paſt baſeneſs, ingratitude, and unfaithfulneſs to a dying Redeemer. Humble yourſelves in the ſight of the Lord, acknowledging your vileneſs, and imploring his pardoning grace and help; and he ſhall lift you up with the arms of his love, and recover you from your backſliding, reſtore you to his favour, and bring you at laſt to his preſence and glory. Note, (1.) They who would find acceptance with God, muſt approach him as cleanſed with atoning blood, and without hypocriſy deſiring indeed to be received into the arms of his mercy. (2.) They who have unfaithfully departed from God, need with ſhame, remorſe, and mourning, return to him, humbling their ſouls before him, that he may lift them up. (3.) None periſh, who caſt themſelves at the footſtool of divine mercy: it is God's delight to revive the ſpirit of the humble, and to heal the broken-hearted.

11. Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that ſpeaketh evil of his brother, [r] and judgeth his brother, ſpeaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law: but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge. 12. There is one lawgiver, who is able to ſave, [s] and to deſtroy: [t] who art thou that judgeſt another?
13. [u] Go to now, ye that ſay, To-day or tomorrow we will go into ſuch a city, and continue there a year, and buy, and ſell, and get gain: 14. Whereas ye know not what ſhall be on the morrow: For what is your life? [x] It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and then vaniſheth away. 15. For that ye ought to ſay, [y] If the Lord will, we ſhall live, and do this, or that. 16. But now ye rejoice in your boaſtings:
[z] all ſuch rejoicing is evil. 17. Therefore [a] to him that knoweth to do good, and doth it not, to him
it is ſin.

[r] Luke vi. 37. Rom. ii. 1. 1 Cor. iv. 5.
[s] Mat. x. 28.
[t] Rom. xiv. 4.
[u] Prov. xxvii. 1. Luke xii. 18.
[x] Job vii. 7. Pſ. cii. 3. Chap. i. 10.
[y] Acts xviii. 21. 1 Cor. iv. 19. Phil. ii. 24.
[z] 1 Cor. v. 6.
[a] Luke xii. 47. John ix. 41. Rom. i, 20, 21, 32. & ii. 18, 23.

v. 11—17. The former ſubject is here reſumed, concerning the right government of the tongue; and we are,

1. Warned againſt all reviling and raſh cenſure. Speak not evil one of another, brethren; inventing falſhoods, expoſing the infirmities, publiſhing the failings, divulging the ſecrets, aggravating the offences, or detracting from the excellencies one of another. He that ſpeaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, in things which God hath left indifferent, ſpeaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law; arraigning the wiſdom, equity, and goodneſs of the Lawgiver, as if he permitted what he ought to condemn: but if thou arrogantly judge the law, and pretend to decide what is fit to be enjoined, and what not, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge. There is one lawgiver, who is able to ſave, and to deſtroy; inveſted with ſupreme authority to enact laws, able to reward the faithful, and puniſh the diſobedient. This is his prerogative; to invade it, is the higheſt inſolence. Who art thou, a poor, deſpicable, periſhing worm, that judgeſt another, and dareſt thus to uſurp the throne of God? Note, (1.) Where we cannot in conſcience ſpeak well of a perſon, it is our duty at leaſt to be ſilent. (2.) Since God hath reſerved that for himſelf to determine concerning men's everlaſting ſtate, and hath given us his law as our only rule of duty, it becomes us to make nothing ſin, which he hath not declared to be evil; nor ought we to erect another court of judicature over our brethren, where men's opinions, not the word of God, is to decide.

2. He inculcates conſtant dependance upon divine providence. Go to now, ye who forget your entire dependance upon God's diſpoſal of you, and that ſay, with ſelf-ſufficiency and diſregard of him, To-day or to-morrow we will go into ſuch a city, and continue there a year, and buy, and ſell, and get gain; as if your time, and the ſucceſs of your enterprizes, were in your own hands, and owing to your own wiſdom and diligence. Whereas ye know not what ſhall be on the morrow, or whether you ſhall ever live to the riſing of another ſun. For what is your life? It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and then vaniſheth away; ſo fleeting, ſo tranſitory, and every hour in jeopardy; the conſideration of which ſhould teach you to ſpeak leſs confidently. For that ye ought to ſay, If the Lord will, we ſhall live, and do this, or that; adding this humble proviſo, and owning your dependance for life, ability, or ſucceſs in every enterprize, upon him, in whoſe hands your breath is, and whoſe are all your ways, (Dan. v. 23.) But now ye rejoice in your boaſtings, and talk as if you ceaſed to be creatures under the care and keeping of your great Creator. All ſuch rejoicing in your own ſelf-ſufficiency is evil, moſt offenſive to God, and bringing great guilt upon your ſouls. Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doth it not, to him it is ſin; highly aggravated, as he wilfully oppoſes the dictates of his own conſcience, and treaſures up thereby wrath againſt the day of wrath. Note, (1.) In all our ways we ſhould conſider God, and in every undertaking beg his bleſſing, and commit ourſelves to his guidance. (2.) Our lives are fleeting things; we have not a moment we can call our own. It is folly to be planning ſchemes for years to come, when we know not what a day may bring forth. (3.) When we know better, and do worſe, we are moſt inexcuſable, and ſhall lie down under peculiar condemnation.

CHAP. V.

In this chapter the apoſtle denounces the judgments of God upon thoſe rich men that oppreſs the poor, ver. 1—6. Hereupon all the faithful are exhorted to patience under their trials and ſufferings, ver. 7—11. The ſin of ſwearing is cautioned againſt, ver. 12. We are directed how to carry it, both under affliction, and in proſperity, ver. 13. Prayer for the ſick, and anointing with oil, are preſcribed, ver. 14, 15. Chriſtians are directed to acknowledge their faults one to another, and to pray one for another, and the efficacy of prayer is proved, ver. 16—18. And laſtly, it is recommended to us to do what we can for the reducing of them that ſtray from the ways of truth.

1. [a] GO to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miſeries that ſhall come upon you. 2. Your riches are corrupted, and [b] your garments are moth-eaten.
3. Your gold and ſilver is cankered; and the ruſt of them ſhall be a witneſs againſt you, and ſhall eat your fleſh as it were fire: [c] ye have heaped treaſure together for the laſt days. 4. Behold, [d] the hire of the labourers which have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth: and [e] the cries of them which have reaped are entred into the ears of the Lord of ſabaoth. 5. [f] Ye have lived in pleaſure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nouriſhed your hearts as in a day of ſlaughter. 6. Ye have condemned and [g] killed the juſt, and he doth not reſiſt you. 7. Be patient, therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the huſbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive [h] the early and latter rain. 8. Be ye alſo patient; ſtabliſh your hearts: for [i] the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.
9. [k] Grudge not one againſt another, brethren, leſt ye be condemned: behold, the judge [l] ſtandeth before the door. 10. Take, my brethren, the prophets, who have ſpoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of ſuffering affliction, and of patience. 11. Behold, [m] we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience [n] of Job, and have ſeen [o] the end of the Lord:
that [p] the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy.

[a] Prov. xi. 28. Luke vi. 24. 1 Tim. vi. 9.
[b] Mat. vi. 20.
[c] Rom. ii. 5.
[d] Lev. xix. 13. Jer. xxii. 13. Mal. iii. 5. Ecclus xxxiv. 22.
[e] Deut. xxiv. 15.
[f] Job xxi. 13. Am. vi. 4. Luke xvi. 19. 25.
[g] Chap. iv. 2.
[h] Deut. xi. 14. Jer. v. 24. Joel ii. 23.
[i] Phil. iv. 5. Heb. x. 25, 37.
[k] Chap. iv. 11.
[l] Mat. xxiv. 33. 1 Cor. x. 11.
[m] Dan. xii. 12. Mat. v. 10, 11.
[n] Job i. 21, 22.
[o] Job xlii. 10.
[p] Num. xiv. 18. Pſ. ciii. 1.

v. 1—11. The apoſtle addreſſes himſelf,

1. To the rich oppreſſors. Go to now, ye rich men, whoſe portion is in this world only, weep and howl for your miſeries that ſhall come upon you, both temporal and eternal. Your riches are corrupted, your hoarded ſtores putrify; and your garments are moth-eaten.

eaten. Your gold and ſilver is cankered, laid by in uſeleſs bags; and the ruſt of them, which by time they have contracted like iron, ſhall be a witneſs againſt you, to upbraid your covetouſneſs and avarice; and ſhall eat your fleſh as it were fire, bringing down divine vengeance upon your guilty heads: ye have heaped treaſure together for the laſt days, to provide for diſtant years to come, but which will be a prey to the deſtroyers of your city and nation, and ſerve only to be a treaſure of wrath againſt the day of wrath. Behold, the hire of the labourers which have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth againſt you for judgment, and the cries of them that reaped, complaining of your injuſtice and oppreſſion, are entred into the ears of the Lord of ſabaoth, who will avenge their quarrel. Ye have lived in pleaſure on the earth, and been wanton; indulging every brutiſh appetite, and making proviſion for the fleſh to fulfil the luſts thereof: ye have nouriſhed your hearts as in a day of ſlaughter; faring ſumptuouſly on the ſpoils of iniquity, fattening yourſelves as beaſts for the ſlaughter. Ye have condemned and killed the juſt, both the Lord himſelf, and many of his righteous ſervants; and he doth not reſiſt you, meekly and patiently reſigned to ſuffer. Note, (1.) Though wicked men proſper for a while, God keeps a ſtrict account of all their ways, and will bring them ſhortly into judgment for theſe things. (2.) Riches are to be uſed, not to be hoarded in bags, or barns, or wardrobes; then they prove a bleſſing, elſe they are only treaſures of wrath. (3.) Though the poor may groan under the yoke of oppreſſion without redreſs, there is one who heareth their appeal, and will vindicate their cauſe. (4.) Pleaſure, luxury, and indulgence may for a while lull the ſinner's ſoul aſleep; but he will ſoon be awakened from his ſhort-lived dream, and ſtartled with the fearful looking-for of judgment, when too late he will begin to weep and howl in vain.

2. He addreſſes himſelf to the perſecuted poor ſaints. [1.] Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord, who will come, and will not tarry, to eſpouſe your cauſe, and reſcue you from the power of your oppreſſors. Behold, the huſbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain, expecting the deſired harveſt, when he hopes to reap the fruit of all his toils. Be ye alſo patient; ſtabliſh your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh, when your redemption from every miſery will be compleated for ever. [2.] Grudge not one againſt another, brethren; groan not under your ſufferings through envy, fretfulneſs, or deſire of revenge; leſt ye be condemned: behold, the judge ſtandeth before the door; and that conſideration ſhould powerfully plead with you to wait with patience, and refer yourſelves entirely to his determination. [3.] Take, my brethren, the prophets, who have ſpoken in the name of the Lord, faithfully diſcharging their commiſſion, for an example of ſuffering affliction, and of patience, whoſe noble behaviour bravely imitate under the like perſecutions. Behold, we count them happy which endure with meekneſs and reſignation to the will of God, becauſe their end muſt be peace and bleſſedneſs eternal. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, how eminently exemplary, and have ſeen the end of the Lord, the happy iſſue which God put to his troubles; or that perfect pattern of ſubmiſſion to the will of God which Jeſus himſelf ſhewed under all his ſufferings: that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy, ſympathizing with his ſuffering ſaints, and delivering them out of all their afflictions. We need not therefore be diſcouraged under any croſs; the victory is ſecured, and the end of it ſhall be our eternal glory.

12. But above all things, my brethren, [q] ſwear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath: but let your yea be yea, and your nay nay; leſt ye fall into condemnation. 13. [r] Is any among you afflicted? let him pray. Is any merry? [s] let him ſing pſalms. 14. Is any ſick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, [t] anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: 15. And the prayer of faith ſhall ſave the ſick, and the Lord ſhall raiſe him up; and [u] if he have committed ſins, they ſhall be forgiven him. 16. Confeſs your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed: [x] the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. 17. Elias was a man [y] ſubject to like paſſions as we are, and [z] he prayed earneſtly that it might not rain: [a] and it rained not on the earth by the ſpace of three years and ſix months. 18. And [b] he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit. 19. Brethren, [c] if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him; 20. Let him know, that he which converteth a ſinner from the error of his way, [d] ſhall ſave a ſoul from death, and [e] ſhall hide a multitude of ſins.

[q] Ex. xx. 7. Mat. v. 34.

[r] Mat xxvi. 38, 39.

[s] Eph. v. 19. Col. iii. 16.

[t] Mark vi. 13. & xvi. 18.

[u] Iſa. xxxiii. 24. Mat. ix. 2.

[x] Gen. xx. 17. & xxxii. 28. Num. xi. 2. 1 Kings xiii. 6. & xvii. 21, 22. 2 Kings iv. 33. 2 Chron. xiv. 11, 12. & xxxii. 20, 21. Pſ. xxxiv. 15. Prov. xv. 29. Hoſ. xii. 4. John ix. 31. 1 John iii. 22.

[y] Acts xiv. 15.

[z] 1 Kings xvii. 1.

[a] Luke iv. 25.

[b] 1 Kings xviii. 42, 45.

[c] Mat. xviii. 15.

[d] Rom. xi. 14. 1 Cor. ix. 22. 1 Tim iv. 16. Jude 23.

[e] Prov. x. 12. 1 Pet. iv. 8.

v. 12—20. The apoſtle here,

1. Warns them againſt all profane ſwearing. But above all things, my brethren, ſwear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath: but let your yea be yea, and your nay nay; except in ſolemn caſes, where an appeal to God is lawful, never exceed a ſimple affirmation or denial in your converſation, leſt ye fall into condemnation, and bring guilt upon your ſouls. Note, Swearing is of all ſins moſt unprofitable; and whilſt it offers the higheſt affront to God, affords not even momentary pleaſure to the offender.

2. He teaches them how to behave in adverſity and proſperity. Is any among you afflicted? let him pray, humbly ſpreading his caſe before the Lord, that he may obtain the needful relief. Is any merry? in proſperous circumſtances, and happy in his ſoul, let him ſing pſalms, and praiſe the gracious giver of every good gift.

3. Is any ſick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord, as the ſymbol of the miraculous power with which the elders were inveſted; and the prayer of faith ſhall ſave and recover the ſick, and the Lord ſhall raiſe him up; and if he have committed ſins, which may have brought ſuch a viſitation upon him, they ſhall be forgiven him. Note, The removal of ſickneſs is a great mercy, but the pardon of ſin ſtill far greater, for which we are eſpecially called upon to offer up our prayers.

4. Confeſs your faults one to another, and take ſhame to yourſelves where you have offended your brother. Or if any thing lies particularly upon your conſcience, communicate it to ſome pious friend, or able miniſter of Chriſt, and pray one for another over the ſins you confeſs and bewail, that they may be healed, their guilt pardoned, and their power ſubdued.

5. He ſhews the great efficacy of prayer. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much; a memorable example of which we have in the caſe of Elias, who was a man ſubject to like paſſions as we are; liable, as other poor corrupted creatures, to many ſinful infirmities; and he prayed earneſtly that it might not rain, as a puniſhment upon Ahab and rebellious Iſrael, and a means to convince them of the greatneſs of their ſins; and it rained not on the earth by the ſpace of three years and ſix months; ſo long the land of Iſrael was parched with drought, and a ſevere famine followed. And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit; and as the effect of Elijah's prayer was ſo wonderful, we may comfortably be aſſured, that when we like him pray with faith and fervency, our prayers too ſhall receive an anſwer of peace.

6. He concludes with warmly recommending a zeal for the converſion of men's ſouls. Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, in principle or in practice backſliding from Chriſt, and one convert him, recovering him back again to the great Shepherd's fold; let him know, that he which converteth a ſinner from the error of his ways, ſhall ſave a ſoul from death, preventing that eternal ruin which muſt otherwiſe have enſued, and ſhall hide a multitude of ſins, which, when the ſinner is converted, ſhall be forgiven and blotted out, as well as be a means of preventing all the evil which muſt have enſued from his ill example and influence. Note, (1.) Nothing is ſo valuable an acquiſition as an immortal ſoul: one ſuch won to Chriſt is better than the riches of both the Indies. (2.) They who truly turn to God, will have a vail of eternal oblivion caſt on their paſt offences: they ſhall be remembred no more. (3.) Death eternal, of body and ſoul, is the wages of ſin; and unleſs we are ſaved from it now, we muſt be undone for ever.

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;

OR, A

PRACTICAL COMMENT

UPON THE

Firſt EPISTLE GENERAL of PETER.

TWO epiſtles we have inrolled in the ſacred canon of the ſcripture, written by Peter, an eminent apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt. The deſign of this firſt epiſtle is, 1. To explain more fully the doctrines of Chriſtianity to theſe newly converted Jews. 2. To direct and perſuade them to an holy converſation, in the faithful diſcharge of all perſonal and relative duties, whereby they would ſecure their own peace, and effectually confute the ſlanders and reproaches of their enemies. 3. To prepare them for ſufferings: This ſeems to be his principal intention; for he hath ſomething to this purpoſe in every chapter, and doth, by a great variety of arguments, encourage them to patience and perſeverance in the faith, leſt the perſecution and ſad calamities that were coming upon them ſhould prevail with them to apoſtatize from Chriſt and the goſpel.

CHAP. I.

In which the apoſtle deſcribes the perſons to whom he writes, and ſalutes them, ver. 1, 2. Bleſſeth God for their regeneration to a lively hope of eternal ſalvation, ver. 3—5. In the hopes of which ſalvation he ſhews they had great cauſe of rejoicing, though for a little while they were in heavineſs and affliction for the trial of their faith, which would produce joy unſpeakable and full of glory, ver. 6—9. This is that ſalvation which the ancient prophets foretold, and the angels deſire to look into, ver. 10—12. He exhorteth them to ſobriety and holineſs, which he preſſeth from the conſideration of the blood of Jeſus, the invaluable price of man's redemption, ver. 13—20. And to brotherly love, from the conſideration of their regeneration, and the excellency of their ſpiritual ſtate, ver. 22—25.

1. PETER an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, to the ſtrangers [a] ſcattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Aſia, and Bithynia, 2. [b] Elect [c] according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, [d] through ſanctification of the Spirit unto obedience, and [e] ſprinkling of the blood of Jeſus Chriſt: [f] Grace unto you, and peace be multiplied.

[a] John vii. 35. Jam. i. 1.
[b] Rom. xi. 5. Eph. i. 4.
[c] Rom. viii. 29.
[d] 2 Theſ. ii. 13.
[e] Heb. xii. 24.
[f] Rom. i. 7. 1 Cor. i. 3. 2 Pet. i. 2.

v. 1, 2. This epiſtle opens with,

1. The writer's name and title: Peter, an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, by his immediate appointment, and ſent eſpecially to the circumciſion.

2. The perſons to whom it is addreſſed: To the ſtrangers ſcattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Aſia, and Bithynia; diſperſed by various providences through theſe provinces, and now called to the faith of Chriſt; elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, who from eternity deſigned you for ſalvation, as the objects whom his ſovereign grace was pleaſed to chuſe; through ſanctification of the Spirit unto obedience, this bleſſed author of all grace effectually calling and converting your ſouls to the love and practice of true holineſs, and leading you to the ſprinkling of the blood of Jeſus Chriſt, for pardon and peace with God, which only by the ſacrifice of the Redeemer could be obtained. Note, (1.) God hath an elect, whom before the worlds were, he determined to bring unto glory. (2.) Theſe in the fulneſs of time are called to faith in a Redeemer; and, as miſerable ſinners, apply to the blood of ſprinkling for the pardon of their iniquities. (3.) The Spirit of God ſanctifies all thoſe whom the Father chuſes, and prepares them for the inheritance which is prepared for them.

3. The ſalutation: Grace unto you, and peace be multiplied; may the pardoning, ſealing, ſanctifying, comforting, preſerving grace of our God be with you; and peace, the bleſſed effect thereof, be diffuſed in the church, your families, and in your own ſouls. Note, We need nothing more to make us happy, than grace and peace; and if we poſſeſs all the world beſide, and lack theſe, we are poor and miſerable.

3. [g] Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which [h] according to his abundant mercy, [i] hath begotten us again unto a lively hope, [k] by the reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt from the dead, 4. To an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled and [l] that fadeth not away, [m] reſerved in heaven for you, 5. [n] Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto ſalvation ready to be revealed in the laſt time. 6. [o] Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now [p] for a ſeaſon (if need be) [q] ye are in heavineſs through manifold temptations. 7. That [r] the trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that periſheth, though [s] it be tried with fire, [t] might be found unto praiſe and honour and glory at the appearing of Jeſus Chriſt: 8. [u] Whom having not ſeen, ye love; [x] in whom though now ye ſee him not, yet believing,

[g] 2 Cor. i. 3. Eph. i. 3.
[h] Tit. iii. 5.
[i] John iii. 3, 5. Jam. i. 18.
[k] 1 Cor. xv. 20.
[l] Chap. v. 4.
[m] Col. i. 5.
[n] John x. 28. & xvii. 11, 15. Jude 1.
[o] Mat. v. 12. Chap. iv. 13.
[p] 2 Cor. iv. 17.
[q] Jam. i. 2.
[r] Jam. i. 3.
[s] Job xxiii. 10. Prov. xvii. 3. Iſa. xlviii. 10. Zech. xiii. 9.
[t] Rom. ii. 10. 1 Cor. iv. 5.
[u] 1 John iv. 20.
[x] John xx. 29. 2 Cor. v. 7. Heb. xi. 1, 27.

believing, ye rejoice with joy unſpeakable and full of glory. 9. Receiving [y] the end of your faith, even the ſalvation of your ſouls.

[y] Rom. vi. 22.

v. 3—9. The apoſtle begins,

1. With thankſgiving for the ineſtimable bleſſings which through the goſpel they enjoyed. Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which, according to his abundant mercy, without the leaſt reſpect to our deſerts, of his ſovereign grace hath begotten us again unto a lively hope, when we had nothing in proſpect before us but miſery and deſpair, by the reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt from the dead, who was delivered for our offences, and raiſed again for our juſtification, that we, beholding in him the juſtice of God ſatisfied, might be emboldened to approach a reconciled God, and not only by his grace be quickened to newneſs of life here, but be entitled alſo to an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reſerved in heaven for you, prepared by eternal love, and ſure to every one of his redeemed, who are kept, not by your own ſtrength or ſufficiency, but by the power of God, engaged to protect you from all your enemies, and to preſerve you, through faith of his operation in your hearts, unto ſalvation completed in glory, and which is ready to be revealed in the laſt time, when Jeſus ſhall appear, and take his faithful followers to their eternal manſions of bleſſedneſs above. Note, (1.) We can never enough be thankful, when we remember the abundant mercy of our God and Father in Jeſus Chriſt to our ſinful ſouls. (2.) Every bleſſing flows from boundleſs and unmerited grace. (3.) The reſurrection of Jeſus from the dead is the grand foundation of our hope; and it is a lively hope, animating the ſoul to patience, purity, and perſeverance, and never faileth till it is ſwallowed up in fruition. (4.) Heaven, with all its glories, is our inheritance; our title is ſecured, nay poſſeſſion is taken by the Forerunner for us entered. (5.) Whatever enemies, ſnares, dangers, temptations, beſet us in our way to heaven, we ſhall be more than conquerors, if God be our keeper, and if he implants true faith in our hearts, which never faileth. (6.) The time is ſhort ere all the promiſes ſhall receive their accompliſhment, and our ſalvation be perfected for ever.

2. Having mentioned the ſalvation which was in proſpect, he ſhews how that afforded comfort and ſupport under all their trials. Wherein ye greatly rejoice, looking forward and upward to your glorious hope, though now for a ſeaſon (if need be) ye are in heavineſs through manifold temptations, which though you cannot but feel as men, you can rejoice under them as Chriſtians; and they are ſent, that the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold which periſheth, though it be tried in the fire, may be found unto praiſe and honour and glory, at the appearing of Jeſus Chriſt, when its purity, genuineneſs, and excellence, ſhall be acknowledged, brightened, and ſtrengthened, by all the conflicts it hath ſuſtained in the Saviour's ſervice, whom, having not ſeen, ye love with fervent and ſupreme affection, faith realizing his amiableneſs to your ſouls; in whom, though now ye ſee him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unſpeakable and full of glory, the lively foretaſte of the eternal bliſs; receiving the end of your faith, even the ſalvation of your ſouls, begun already, and to be completed ſhortly in glory. Note, (1.) A Chriſtian hath cauſe of rejoicing in God and the hope ſet before him at all times, and even in the midſt of grief and trouble this conſolation the world cannot take away. (2.) Though our lot as Chriſtians in this world is manifold temptations, and our nature cannot but groan under the burden, yet we muſt remember there is a need be for every pang we feel, and that will reconcile us to them. (3.) The bittereſt afflictions to fleſh and blood are often the moſt profitable medicines to our ſouls; and when we come to glory we ſhall ſee, that theſe were indeed bleſſings in diſguiſe. (4.) The trial of our faith tends to its confirmation and eſtabliſhment; and like gold, when tortured in the furnace, we come forth from our troubles the brighter, and leave the droſs of corruption behind. (5.) Fidelity will be crowned when Jeſus ſhall appear, and all our trials then will end in immortal honour and eternal glory. (6.) Jeſus is precious to the believing ſoul; and the realizing views of him, which faith preſents, bring down the foretaſtes of heavenly bleſſedneſs.

10. [z] Of which ſalvation the prophets have enquired, and ſearched diligently, [a] who propheſied of the grace that ſhould come unto you: 11. Searching what or what manner of time [b] the Spirit of Chriſt which was in them did ſignify, when it teſtified beforehand [c] the ſufferings of Chriſt, and the glory that ſhould follow. 12. [d] Unto whom it was revealed, [e] that not unto themſelves, but unto us they did miniſter the things which are now reported unto you, by them that have preached the goſpel unto you, with [f] the holy Ghoſt ſent down from heaven; [g] which things the angels deſire to look into.

[z] Mat. xiii. 17. Luke x. 24.
[a] Gen. xlix. 10. Dan. ii. 44. Hag. ii. 7. Zech. vi. 12.
[b] 2 Pet. i. 21.
[c] Pſ. xxii. 6, &c. Iſa. liii. 3. &c. Dan. ix. 24. Luke xxiv. 26. Acts xxvi. 22.
[d] Dan. ix. 24. & xii. 9, 13.
[e] Heb. xi. 13. 39.
[f] Acts ii. 4.
[g] Dan. viii. 13. & xii. 5, 6. Eph. iii. 10.

v. 10—12. The ſalvation of the goſpel, on which their faith fixed, was that which the bleſſed prophets had foretold, and after which they earneſtly enquired. Of which ſalvation the prophets have enquired, and ſearched diligently into the meaning of their own prophecies which by inſpiration they delivered, digging deep into the golden mine, that themſelves might ſhare the treaſure; who propheſied of the grace that ſhould come unto you through the incarnate Saviour: ſearching, with eagerneſs, what or what manner of time the Spirit of Chriſt, which was in them, did ſignify, when it teſtified beforehand the ſufferings of Chriſt for the ſins of his people, and the glory that ſhould follow, when, having offered his one atonement, he ſhould aſcend to the throne of Majeſty on high. They wiſhed to know the exact time, and what would be the ſtate of the world, when this great event ſhould come to paſs. Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themſelves, but unto us they did miniſter; the events predicted were not to be fulfilled in their days, but ours; and they foretold the things which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the goſpel unto you, with the holy Ghoſt ſent down from heaven, who by his miraculous operations, and by the communication of his gifts and graces, bears his ſacred teſtimony to the truth of our report: which things the angels deſire to look into, bending forward as the cherubims over the mercy-ſeat, with wonder and delight contemplating the glories of goſpel-grace, admiring and adoring. Note, (1.) The myſteries of goſpel-grace were not only the ſubject which engaged the holy prophets reſearches, but they afford matter for angelic contemplation, wonder, and praiſe. (2.) The word of God muſt be ſearched, and diligently examined: there are treaſures hid in it which will abundantly repay our pains. (3.) The Holy Ghoſt ſent down from heaven ſtill continues to make the goſpel effectual to our ſalvation, and on his mighty operation all the ſucceſs of our preaching depends.

13. Wherefore [h] gird up the loins of your mind, [i] be ſober, and hope † to the end, for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jeſus Chriſt; 14. As obedient children, [k] not faſhioning yourſelves according to the former luſts, [l] in your ignorance: 15. But as he which hath called you is holy, ſo [m] be ye holy in all manner of converſation: 16. Becauſe it is written, [n] Be ye holy, for I am holy. 17. And if ye call on the Father, [o] who without reſpect of perſons judgeth according to every man's work, [p] paſs the time of your [q] ſojourning here in fear: 18. Foraſmuch as ye know [r] that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as ſilver and gold, from your vain converſation [s] received by tradition from your fathers; 19. But [t] with the precious blood of Chriſt, [u] as of a lamb [x] without blemiſh and without ſpot. 20. [y] Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifeſt in [z] theſe laſt times for you; 21. [a] Who by him do believe in God [b] that raiſed him up from the dead, and [c] gave him glory, that your faith and hope might be in God.

[h] Luke xii. 35. Eph. vi. 14.
[i] Luke xxi. 34. Rom. xiii. 13. 1 Theſ. v, 6.
† Gr. Perfectly.
[k] Rom. xii. 2. Chap. iv. 2.
[l] Acts xvii. 30.
[m] 2 Cor. vii. 1. Heb. xii. 14.
[n] Lev. xi. 44. & xix. 2. & xx. 7.
[o] Deut. x. 17. Acts x. 34. Rom. ii. 11.
[p] Phil. ii. 12. Heb. xii. 28.
[q] 2 Cor. v. 6. Heb. xi. 13. Chap. ii. 11.
[r] 1 Cor. vi. 20. & vii. 23.
[s] Ezek. xx. 18.
[t] Acts xx. 28. Eph. i. 7. Heb. ix. 12, 14. Rev. v. 9.
[u] Ex. xii. 5. Iſa. liii. 7. John i. 29, 36.
[x] Heb. iv. 15. & vii. 26. Chap. ii. 22.
[y] Rom. xvi. 26. Eph. iii. 9. Col. i. 26. 2 Tim. i. 9, 10.
[z] Gal. iv. 4. Eph. i. 10. Heb. i. 2.
[a] Rom. iv. 24.
[b] Acts ii. 24.
[c] Acts iii. 13. Phil. ii. 9. Heb. ii. 9.

v. 13—21. From the foregoing conſiderations the apoſtle,

1. Enforces the practice of true godlineſs in ſundry particulars. Wherefore, (1.) Gird up the loins of your mind, be diſentangled from every thing in the world which would retard you in your heavenly courſe, and be ſtrong in the Lord and the power of his might to fight the good fight of faith. (2.) Be ſober, temperately uſing every creature-comfort, and with holy vigilance preparing for the Maſter's return. And, (3). Hope unto the end, never diſmayed nor diſcouraged by the temptations to which you may be expoſed, but patiently perſevering, and confidently waiting for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jeſus Chriſt, when the work of grace ſhall be compleated, and an eternity of glory ſucceed; the hope of which, as an anchor of the ſoul, will enable us to ride out every ſtorm. (4.) Behave as obedient children to your heavenly father, dutiful in obſerving his commands, and ſubmitting to his diſpoſal and correction; not faſhioning yourſelves according to the former luſts, in your ignorance, not conformed to the corrupt manners, maxims, and purſuits of a world which lieth in wickedneſs, among whom we all had our converſation in time paſt, fulfilling the deſires of the fleſh and of the mind, and knowing not the dreadful ruin which hung over our heads. To theſe ways let us never return; but as he which hath called you is holy, ſo be ye holy in all manner of converſation, propoſing to yourſelves nothing ſhort of his complete and perfect image, and in every ſtate, condition, and circumſtance, deſiring that your hearts, lips, and lives, may exactly correſpond with his holy will: becauſe it is written in that word which is our eternal rule of duty, Be ye holy, for I am holy. (5.) Maintain a holy jealouſy over yourſelves. And if, as becometh your profeſſion, ye call in ceaſeleſs prayer on the Father for that grace which alone can enable you for all that he commands, who, without reſpect of perſons, judgeth according to every man's work, and thereby proves whether they are obedient children or not; paſs the time of your ſojourning here in fear, in filial fear of offending God, and holy jealouſy over your own hearts, knowing that your preſent ſtate is your pilgrimage, and that, if you are faithful, you ſhall ſhortly reach the happy reſt, where all your fears will end, and your felicity be compleated for ever.

2. To encourage and engage them to the practice which he recommends, he ſuggeſts the moſt powerful motives. Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as ſilver and gold, from your vain converſation, from the fooliſh traditions and corrupt manners and ways received by tradition from your fathers; to redeem you from which, all the periſhing treaſures of this world would be a price too deſpicable to be mentioned: but an infinitely greater hath been paid for you; ye are redeemed with the precious blood of Chriſt, as of a lamb without blemiſh and without ſpot, who offered himſelf as your ranſom to God, pure from all defilement, a lamb fit to bleed on God's altar, and of ſuch tranſcendent dignity in his perſon as to add infinite value to his ſacrifice. Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, by an eternal decree, to be the one great propitiation; but was manifeſted in theſe laſt times for you, becoming incarnate, and making the brighteſt diſplays of the glory of his grace, who by him do believe in God as your reconciled and covenant God, that raiſed him from the dead in teſtimony of his acceptance of the ſacrifice which he had offered for our juſtification, and gave him glory, exalting him to the mediatorial throne; that your faith and hope might be in God, aſſured, through the divine Meſſiah, of preſent favour and acceptance with him, and expecting, according to his promiſe, all the bleſſings of grace here and of glory hereafter.

22. Seeing ye [d] have purified your ſouls in obeying the truth through the Spirit, unto unfeigned [e] love of the brethren; ſee that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently: 23. [f] Being born again, not of corruptible ſeed, but of incorruptible, [g] by the word of God which liveth and abideth for ever. 24. For [h] all fleſh is as graſs, and all the glory of man as the flower of graſs. The graſs withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away: 25. But [i] the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the goſpel is preached unto you.

[d] Acts xv. 9.
[e] Rom. xii. 9, 10. 1 Theſ. iv. 9. Heb. xiii. 1. Chap. ii. 17. 1 John iii. 18.
[f] John i. 13. & iii. 5.
[g] Jam. i. 18.
[h] Pſ. ciii. 15. Iſa. xl. 6. Jam. i. 10.
[i] Iſa. xl. 8. Luke xvi. 17. Ver. 23.

v. 22—25. The apoſtle proceeds,

1. To inculcate the exerciſe of fervent charity. Seeing ye have purified your ſouls in obeying the truth through the Spirit, and have ſo graciouſly begun to advance in all holineſs of heart and temper, being led by him eſpecially unto unfeigned love of the brethren; ſee therefore that, under his bleſſed influences and according to the goſpel word, ye love one another with a pure heart fervently, with ſtill increaſing and more enlarged affection: being born again, and made partakers of a divine nature, not of corruptible ſeed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God which liveth and abideth for ever, unchangeably the ſame, and communicating a dignity and honour to which the higheſt human pedigree cannot pretend. Note, (1.) The goſpel truth, through the Spirit embraced and obeyed, is the effectual means of purifying the ſoul. (2.) Unfeigned love of the brethren is among the ſureſt evidences of the Spirit's work upon the heart. (3.) They who have made the higheſt advancements in the divine life have need be exhorted to increaſe more and more. (4.) If we have received the engrafted word into our ſouls, we have a divine principle which ſhall live and abide for ever, till it is perfected in glory.

2. He ſets forth the vanity of man. All fleſh is graſs, weak and periſhing; and all the glory of man, his pomp, wealth, affluence, wiſdom, and endowments of every kind, are as the flower of graſs, that ſoon fades and decays. The graſs withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away; one ſtroke of ſickneſs, or accident, or the ravages of age, make all human greatneſs droop, and death carries it to the grave: but the word of the Lord endureth for ever, and they who are begotten by it have in their hearts eternal life begun. And this is the word which by the goſpel is preached unto you, whoſe effects are ſo everlaſtingly bleſſed. Note, A deep ſenſe of the vanity of man, and of his preſent ſtate of corruption, will ſerve greatly to draw off our minds from the trifles of time, to look to the abiding glories of eternity which in the goſpel are revealed unto us.

CHAP. II.

The general exhortation to holineſs is continued and enforced by ſeveral reaſons taken from the foundation on which Chriſtians are built, Jeſus Chriſt, and from their ſpiritual bleſſings and privileges in him, ver. 1—12. Particular directions are given how ſubjects ought to obey the magiſtrates, and ſervants their maſters, patiently ſuffering in well doing, in imitation of Chriſt.

1. Wherefore [a] laying aſide all malice, and all guile, and hypocriſies, and envies, and all evil-ſpeakings, 2. As [b] new-born babes deſire [c] the ſincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby: 3. If ſo be ye have [d] taſted that the Lord is gracious. 4. To whom coming, as unto a living ſtone, [e] diſallowed indeed of men, but choſen of God, and precious. 5. [f] Ye alſo as lively ſtones, are built up [g] a ſpiritual houſe, [h] an holy prieſthood, to offer up [i] ſpiritual ſacrifices, [k] acceptable to God by Jeſus Chriſt. 6. Wherefore alſo it is contained in the ſcripture, [l] Behold, I lay in Sion a chief corner-ſtone, elect, precious: and he that believeth on him, ſhall not be confounded. 7. Unto you therefore which believe he is † precious; but unto them which be diſobedient, [m] the ſtone which the builders diſallowed, the ſame is made the head of the corner, 8. And [n] a ſtone of ſtumbling and a rock of offence, [o] even to them which ſtumble at the word, being diſobedient; [p] whereunto alſo they were appointed. 9. But ye are a choſen generation, [q] a royal prieſthood, an holy nation, [r] a peculiar people; [s] that ye ſhould ſhew forth the praiſes of him [t] who hath called you out of darkneſs into his marvellous light: 10. [u] Which in time paſt were not a people, but are now the people of God: which had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

[a] Eph. iv. 22, 25, 31. Col. iii. 8. Heb. xii. 1. Jam. i. 21.
[b] Mat. xviii. 3.
[c] 2 Cor. ii. 17.
[d] Pſ. xxxiv. 8. Heb. vi. 5.
[e] Pſ. cxviii. 22. Mat. xxii. 42. Acts iv. 11.
[f] Eph. ii. 21, 22.
[g] Heb. iii. 6.
[h] Iſa. lxi. 6. & lxvi. 21. Ver. 9. Rev. i. 6.
[i] Hoſ. xiv. 2. Mal. i. 11. Rom. xii. 1. Heb. xiii. 15, 16.
[k] Phil. iv. 18.
[l] Iſa. xxviii. 16. Rom. ix. 33.
† Or. An honour.
[m] Pſ. cxviii. 22. Mat. xxi. 42. Acts iv. 11.
[n] Iſa. viii. 14. Luke ii. 34. Rom. ix. 33.
[o] 1 Cor. i. 23.
[p] Exod. ix. 16. Rom. ix. 22. 1 Theſ. v. 9. Jude 4.
[q] Ex. xix. 6. Ver. 5.
[r] Ex. xix. 5. Deut. vii. 6. & xiv. 2. & xxvi. 18. Tit. ii. 14.
[s] Iſa. xliii. 21.
[t] Acts xxvi. 18. Col. i. 13.
[u] Hoſ. i. 10. & ii. 23. Rom. ix. 25.

v. 1—10. The apoſtle proceeds,

1. To exhort the Hebrews to ſhew a temper ſuitable to their profeſſion. Wherefore laying aſide all malice, every thing ſpiteful, envious, and revengeful; and all guile, every thing deceitful in word or behaviour; and hypocriſies, whether in the profeſſion of religion towards God, or in pretences of reſpect and friendſhip towards men; and envies, repining at the proſperity of others; and all evil ſpeakings, which proceed from theſe vile tempers in the heart: in oppoſition to all which, as new-born babes deſire the ſincere milk of the word, the pure unadulterated goſpel, that ye may grow thereby in every divine and holy temper, unto the meaſure of the ſtature of the fulneſs of Chriſt: if ſo be, or foraſmuch as, ye have taſted that the Lord is gracious, experimentally proving the riches of his mercy, and having begun to enjoy a ſweet ſavour of that grace, which, though but a taſte compared with what it ſhall be, is yet ſo precious and reviving. Note, (1.) All malice, guile, hypocriſy, and ſlander, are direct contradictions to the Chriſtian character. (2.) By nature all evil cleaves to us cloſer than our garments; but it muſt be put off as filthy rags, if we mean with comfort to appear in the preſence of God. (3.) The word of God ſupplies milk for babes, and ſtrong meat for men; and they who feel an appetite for it verily ſhall be fed and nouriſhed up in the words of ſound doctrine. (4.) The grace which is in Jeſus Chriſt is rich and free to the pooreſt and moſt miſerable ſinner, and to thoſe who have taſted of it he will indeed be precious.

2. He deſcribed that bleſſed Jeſus, the true foundation of the ſinner's hope, of whoſe grace they had been made partakers. To whom coming by faith, as unto a living ſtone, even Chriſt, who is the only foundation, everlaſtingly durable, and never to be ſhaken; a living ſtone, the head of vital influence, and communicating to all his members life and ſtability; diſallowed indeed of men, rejected and ſlighted by the Jewiſh rulers, and all unbelievers, who will not come to him that they may have life: but choſen of God, and precious, appointed by him from eternity to bear the maſſy ſtructure of his church, as moſt excellent in himſelf, and moſt able to exalt the glory of God, and to ſecure the ſalvation of his redeemed. Coming therefore to him, ye alſo, as lively ſtones, animated by virtue of union with him, are built up a ſpiritual houſe, in which God the Spirit is pleaſed to take up his bleſt abode; an holy prieſthood, conſecrated for God's immediate ſervice, and devoted to his glory; not to offer up the blood of beaſts, but the better ſpiritual ſacrifices of your bodies, ſouls, and ſpirits, in prayer and praiſe, which are acceptable to God by Jeſus Chriſt. Note, (1.) Every child of God is the temple of the Deity, where his Spirit abidingly dwells. (2.) They who reject Chriſt as their foundation, muſt build on the ſand, and be ſwept away by the deluge of wrath. (3.) All Chriſtians are conſecrated as prieſts to God, and muſt approve their peculiar relation to him by their unreſerved devotedneſs to his ſervice.

3. He ſupports what he had advanced by the teſtimony of Iſaiah. Wherefore alſo it is contained in the ſcripture, Behold, with wonder, love, and praiſe, behold, I lay in Sion, in my holy mountain, a chief corner-ſtone, the great Meſſiah, on whom all his people's hopes are built; elect, and choſen for this bleſſed purpoſe, to unite Jews and Gentiles, and the whole body of the redeemed, in one glorious church; precious in my ſight, and who ſhould be above all things dear to thoſe who are grounded on him as their foundation: and he that believeth on him ſhall not be confounded, neither here nor hereafter; having confidence, through a Redeemer's blood and righteouſneſs, to approach a throne of grace, and boldneſs to appear before a throne of glory. Unto you therefore which believe he is precious; Jeſus is inexpreſſibly amiable in your eyes, you count your relation to him the higheſt honour, and firmly truſt your everlaſting hopes upon him: but unto them which be diſobedient and unbelieving, as another ſcripture obſerves, the ſtone which the builders, the Jewiſh prieſts and rulers, diſallowed and rejected, the ſame, as was foretold, is made the head of the corner, exalted to the greateſt honour, and ſetting up his goſpel church in defiance of their enmity and oppoſition. And, as Iſaiah in another place prophecies, he is become a ſtone of ſtumbling and a rock of offence, even to them which ſtumble at the word, and through pride and prejudice, unable to bear the humbling manner in which the Meſſiah appeared, and the doctrines which he taught, being diſobedient and infidel, having rejected him as the promiſed hope of Iſrael, and ſplit upon this rock; whereunto alſo they were appointed, according to God's ſovereignty and righteous judgment. Note, (1.) Faith in Jeſus will prevent all ſhame; the hope founded upon him ſhall never fail us, either in time or in eternity. (2.) Chriſt is indeed precious to the believer, ſo precious, that, compared with the excellency of the knowledge of him, he counts all things beſide but dung and loſs. (3.) They who diſbelieve the goſpel, and diſobey God's word, ruſh on their ruin, and muſt ſuffer ſhipwreck in eternity.

4. He reminds them of the rich and invaluable bleſſings and privileges which in the Redeemer they had obtained. But ye are a choſen generation, elect to infinitely greater privileges than thoſe which the viſible church of Iſrael enjoyed; a royal prieſthood, having an unction from the Holy One, and made kings and prieſts unto God, Rev. i. 6. victorious over your ſpiritual foes, ſeparated for God, and to reign with him in glory for ever; an holy nation, conſecrated to the Lord, and in ſpirit and temper conformed to his image; a peculiar people, in a nobler ſenſe than ever Iſrael was of old, appointed to the higheſt dignity, and enriched with the moſt diſtinguiſhing bleſſings; that ye ſhould ſhew forth the praiſes of him who by his grace hath called you out of darkneſs into his marvellous light of goſpel truth, brought from the cloudy diſpenſation of legal inſtitutions into that bright day, which the Sun of righteouſneſs makes, ariſen with healing in his wings. Which in time paſt were not a people, having been diſowned and divorced of God, Hoſ. i. 9, 10. ii. 23. but are now the people of God, through Jeſus admitted into the covenant of grace, and acknowledged as the Lord's: which had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy, even pardon, grace, and all the bleſſings of eternal redemption.

11. Dearly beloved, I beſeech you as ſtrangers and pilgrims, [t] abſtain from fleſhly luſts, [u] which war againſt the ſoul; 12. [x] Having your converſation honeſt among the Gentiles: that whereas they ſpeak againſt you as evildoers, [y] they may by your good works, which they ſhall behold, glorify God [z] in the day of viſitation. 13. [a] Submit yourſelves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's ſake: whether it be to the king, as ſupreme; 14. Or unto governors, as unto them that are ſent by him [b] for the puniſhment of evil doers, and [c] for the praiſe of them that do well. 15. For ſo is the will of God, that [d] with well-doing ye may put to ſilence the ignorance of fooliſh men: 16. [e] As free, and [f] not uſing your liberty for a cloke of maliciouſneſs, but [g] as the ſervants of God. 17. [h] Honour all men. [i] Love the brotherhood. [k] Fear God. Honour the king.

[s] 1 Chron. xxix. 15. Pſ. xxxix. 12. & cxix. 19. Heb. xi. 13. Chap. i. 17.
[t] Rom. xiii. 14. Gal. v. 16.
[u] Jam. iv. 1.
[x] 2 Cor. viii. 21. Phil. ii. 15. Chap. iii. 16.
[y] Mat. v. 16.
[z] Luke xix. 44.
[a] Rom. xiii. 1, 5. Tit. iii. 1.
[b] Rom. xiii. 4.
[c] Rom. xiii. 3.
[d] Tit. ii. 8.
[e] Gal. v. 1, 13.
[f] Jude 4.
[g] 1 Cor. vii. 22.
[h] Rom. xii. 10. Phil. ii. 3.
[i] Chap. i. 22. & iii. 8.
[k] Prov. xxiv. 21. Mat. xxii. 21.

v. 11—17. Whilſt they are in the fleſh, the beſt of men have need be warned and exhorted to work out their own ſalvation with fear and trembling. The apoſtle therefore admoniſhes them,

1. To guard againſt all worldly and carnal affections. Dearly beloved, I beſeech you, as becomes ſtrangers and pilgrims, for ſuch you profeſs yourſelves to be upon the earth, abſtain from fleſhly luſts, ſubduing every inordinate appetite and every covetous deſire, which war againſt the ſoul, and threaten its defilement and deſtruction; having your converſation honeſt among the Gentiles, adorning your profeſſion by every thing commendable and excellent; that whereas they ſpeak againſt you as evil-doers, and miſrepreſent you as a wicked, refractory, and lawleſs people, they may be confuted by your good works, which they ſhall behold, and be aſhamed of their unjuſt aſperſions, compelled to glorify God in the day of viſitation, either when in a day of judgment he ſhall puniſh them for their ill uſage of you, or in mercy, when turning the hearts of the diſobedient to the wiſdom of the juſt, he ſhall lead them to approve and imitate your good converſation.

2. To be obedient to magiſtrates. Submit yourſelves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's ſake, under whatever form of government you live, or whoever they be whom the Divine Providence ſets over you; whether it be to the king, as ſupreme; or unto governors, as unto them that are ſent by him, and bear his commiſſion, for the puniſhment of evil doers, and for the praiſe of them that do well; from whom faithful and obedient ſubjects have nothing to fear, have every thing to hope for. For ſo is the will of God, that with well-doing ye may put to ſilence the ignorance of fooliſh men, by your loyalty and chearful ſubmiſſion to the civil government, confuting the calumnies of thoſe who would brand you as ſeditious: as free indeed from the tyranny of ſin, Satan, and the curſe of the law, and not uſing your liberty for a cloke of maliciouſneſs, to cover any treaſonable deſign, or other malignant evil; but as the ſervants of God, conſcientiouſly obſervant of his holy will in all things, and obedient to magiſtrates not only for wrath but alſo for conſcience ſake.

3. He adds four ſhort but important precepts. Honour all men according to their rank and ſtation. Love the brotherhood, high or low, rich or poor; bear them an unfeigned regard as members of Chriſt, ſhew it in every act of kindneſs to their bodies or their ſouls. Fear God with all reverence, and filial awe of offending. Honour the king, as his repreſentative upon earth, and governing by his authority.

18. [l] Servants, be ſubject to your maſters, with all fear, not only to the good and gentle, but alſo to the froward. 19. For [m] this is thank-worthy, if a man for conſcience toward God endure grief, ſuffering wrongfully. 20. For [n] what glory is it, if when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye ſhall take it patiently? [o] but if, when ye do well, and ſuffer for it, ye take it patiently; this is acceptable with God. 21. For even [p] hereunto were ye called: becauſe [q] Chriſt alſo ſuffered for us, [r] leaving us an example, that ye ſhould follow his ſteps: 22. [s] Who did no ſin, neither was guile found in his mouth: 23. [t] Who when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he ſuffered, he threatned not; but committed † himſelf to him that judgeth righteouſly: 24. [u] Who his own ſelf bare our ſins in his own body on the tree, [x] that we being dead to ſin ſhould live unto righteouſneſs: [y] by whoſe ſtripes ye were healed. 25. For [z] ye were as ſheep going aſtray; but are now returned unto [a] the Shepherd and Biſhop of your ſouls.

[l] Eph. vi. 5. Col. iii. 22. Tit. ii. 9.
[m] Mat. v. 10. Chap. iii. 14.
[n] Chap. iv. 15.
[o] Chap. iii. 14. & iv. 14, 16.
[p] Mat. xvi. 24. Acts xiv. 22. 1 Theſ. iii. 3.
[q] Chap. iii. 18.
[r] John xiii. 15.
[s] Iſa. liii. 9. 2 Cor. v. 21. Chap. i. 19.
[t] Mat. xxvii. 39.
† Or his cauſe.
[u] Iſa. liii. 4, &c. Mat. viii. 17. Heb. ix. 28.
[x] Rom. vi. 2, 11. & vii. 6.
[y] Iſa. liii. 5.
[z] Iſa. liii. 6.
[a] Ezek. xxxiv. 23. & xxxvii. 24. John x. 11. Heb. xiii. 20. Chap. v. 4.

v. 18—25. As the Jews very hardly bore a foreign yoke, as unwilling were they to ſubmit to any Gentile maſters; and thoſe of them who believed in Chriſt were by their judaizing teachers perſuaded to think that they owed no obedience to unbelieving maſters. To correct ſo dangerous an imagination, the apoſtle,

1. Inculcates the duty of ſervants. Be ſubject to your maſters, with all fear and reverence, and be obedient to all their lawful commands; not only to the good and gentle, but alſo to the froward, if ſuch is your lot to be placed under their power. For this is thank-worthy, a matter of real commendation, and a ſingular gift of God, if a man for conſcience toward God endure grief, ſuffering wrongfully, and bearing patiently the ill uſage of a cruel maſter, to whom he hath given no juſt cauſe of provocation. For what glory is it, if when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye ſhall take it patiently? this can bring no credit to your religion, you receive but the juſt reward of your deeds. But if, when ye do well, faithful to your truſt, and true to your profeſſion, and ſuffer for your conſcientious regard to God and his ſervice, ye take it patiently, with all meekneſs, and without murmuring, this is acceptable to God, and a ſure proof of the truth of his grace in your hearts. Note, (1.) The ſpirit of independence, which is in men, hardly brooks ſubjection, and correction ſtill leſs. (2.) Patient ſuffering for well doing is our diſtinguiſhed honour. (3.) Though the duty of ſervants is ſubmiſſion, yet their guilt is not the leſs who abuſe their anthority over them; and they will find a Maſter ſhortly, who will call them to account, with whom there is no reſpect of perſons.

2. He enforces what he had enjoined with the moſt powerful arguments. For even hereunto were ye called. The croſs every Chriſtian muſt be content to bear: and we ſhould the more readily take it up, becauſe Chriſt alſo ſuffered for us as our ſubſtitute, and to make atonement for us, or for you, as many copies read; for the meaneſt ſervant as well as for the higheſt of the ſons of men; leaving us an example of patience and long-ſuffering under all the moſt cruel and unjuſt treatment which he met with, that ye ſhould follow his ſteps, and be conformed to his bleſſed pattern: who, grievouſly as he ſuffered, yet did no ſin, neither was guile found in his mouth; his bittereſt enemies could not ſo much as fix upon him the ſhadow of a crime: who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; but obſerved an admirable ſilence, as the ſheep before her ſhearers is dumb: when he ſuffered, he threatned not, nor diſcovered the leaſt anger at his tormentors; but committed himſelf and his cauſe to him that judgeth righteouſly, and to whom vengeance belongeth: who his own ſelf bare our ſins in his own body on the tree, ſubmitting, as our ſurety, with his own blood to pay the penalty due to our iniquities; that we, being dead to ſin, as crucified with him, ſhould live unto righteouſneſs, quickened by his Spirit to newneſs of life: by whoſe ſtripes ye were healed, and the deadly wounds of your ſouls, far worſe than thoſe which the moſt cruel maſters can make in your bodies, were cured by the ſovereign balm of that blood which ſtreams from his ſcourgings. For ye were as ſheep going aſtray, fooliſh, diſobedient, deceived, in time paſt; but are now by grace recovered, and returned unto the Shepherd and Biſhop of your ſouls, the bleſſed and adored Jeſus. Note, (1.) Chriſt's example ſhould animate us with chearfulneſs to take up every croſs which in his providence he is pleaſed to lay upon us. (2.) Our ſufferings, however cruel or unjuſt, will never be an excuſe for our impatience under them, or for any anger toward the inſtruments of them, however wicked or unreaſonable. (3.) All the ſins of the redeemed were laid upon the Saviour: on the tree he bore them. There never will one ſin be pardoned, but thoſe whoſe price were then paid: there never will be one ſin remembered any more againſt thoſe whoſe ſurety he then appeared. (4.) The doctrine of imputation is inculcated in both teſtaments; nor can it be more ſtrange that we ſhould be juſtified by Chriſt's righteouſneſs, than that we ſhould be healed by his ſtripes. (5.) All whoſe ſins he bore are raiſed from the death of ſin unto the life of righteouſneſs. We are deceived, if we live in our iniquities and flatter ourſelves with hope in Chriſt. (6.) By nature, by practice, we have all gone far aſtray. Reader, art thou then returned by faith in the atoning blood to the great Shepherd of ſouls? art thou under his government, and doſt thou tread in the footſteps of his flock?

CHAP. III.

Wherein the apoſtle deſcribes the duties of huſbands and wives, ver. 1—7. He exhorts Chriſtians to unity, love, compaſſion, peace, and patience under ſufferings; to oppoſe the ſlanders of their enemies, not by returning evil for evil, or railing for railing, but by bleſſing; by a ready account of their faith and hope, and by keeping a good conſcience, ver. 8—17. To encourage them to this, he propoſeth the example of Chriſt, who ſuffered, the juſt for the unjuſt, but yet puniſhed the old world for their diſobedience, and ſaved the few that were faithful in the days of Noah.

1. LIKEWISE, [a] ye wives, be in ſubjection to your own huſbands; that if any obey not the word, [b] they alſo may without the word be won by the converſation of the wives, 2. [c] While they behold your chaſte converſation coupled with fear. 3. [d] Whoſe adorning, let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel: 4. But let it be [e] the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet ſpirit, which is in the ſight of God of great price. 5. For after this manner in the old time the holy women alſo who truſted in God adorned themſelves, being in ſubjection unto their own huſbands; 6. Even as Sara obeyed Abraham, [f] calling him lord: whoſe † daughters ye are as long as ye do well, and are not afraid with any amazement. 7. [g] Likewiſe, ye huſbands, dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wife as unto the weaker [h] veſſel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life; [i] that your prayers be not hindered.

[a] 1 Cor. xiv. 34. Eph. v. 22. Col. iii. 18. Tit. ii. 5.
[b] 1 Cor. vii. 16.
[c] Chap. ii. 12.
[d] 1 Tim. ii. 9. Tit. ii. 3.
[e] Pſ. xlv. 13. Rom. ii. 29. & vii. 22. 2 Cor. iv. 16.
[f] Gen. xviii. 12.
† Gr. Children.
[g] Eph. v. 25. Col. iii. 19.
[h] 2 Cor. iv. 7. 1 Theſ. iv. 4.
[i] Mat. v. 23, 24.

v. 1—7. The apoſtle proceeds to the duty of huſbands and wives.

1. The duty of wives. Likewiſe ye wives, be in ſubjection to your own huſbands, whether Chriſtian, Jewiſh, or heathen, regarding them as your ſuperiors by creation and the ordinance of God; that, if any obey not the word, and are yet ſtrangers to the faith of Chriſt, they alſo may without the word, though they ſhould refuſe to attend the preaching of the goſpel, be won by the converſation of the wives, ſtruck with your exemplary, engaging, and amiable conduct, while they behold your chaſte converſation, circumſpect in every word and action, and your chaſtity coupled with fear, ſhewing them that reverence, attention, deſire to pleaſe, and fear to offend, which cannot but attract their notice and gain their high eſteem. Whoſe adorning, let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; not making dreſs and finery your ſtudy, expenſive, negligent of your family concerns, or deſirous to attract others eyes beſides your huſband's; but, whilſt careful of modeſt neatneſs of perſon, moſt careful of that which will render you above all other things amiable in their eyes, putting on the hidden man of the heart, the adornings of grace, truth, and holineſs; in that which is not corruptible, and infinitely preferable to the poor and fading ſplendor of gay apparel, even the ornament of a meek and quiet ſpirit, gentle, mild, tractable, ſilencing every riſing of anger, and the emotions of fretfulneſs, which is the great ſecret of happineſs in a married ſtate, and in the ſight of God of great price, and highly approved by him. For after this manner in the old time the holy women alſo who truſted in God adorned themſelves, being in ſubjection unto their own huſbands, delighting in their ſtation, and never deſiring to invert or change God's eſtabliſhed order; even as Sarah obeyed Abraham with all dutiful ſubjection, calling him lord, and paying him due reverence and reſpect as her ſuperior: whoſe daughters ye are, in a ſpiritual ſenſe, as long as ye do well, and copy her meek, dutiful, and humble example, and are not afraid with any amazement, not terrified from your duty by any menaces, not obedient through ſlaviſh fear of your huſbands, but from the nobler principles of love and duty. Note, Wives ſhould ſeriouſly conſider this word of God, and make conſcience of obſerving it: the advice is of infinite importance, not only to their comfort in this world, but is eſſential to all their hopes in a better.

2. The duty of huſbands. Likewiſe, ye huſbands, dwell with them according to knowledge, delighting in their company, their perſons, their converſation; with purity and tender affection diſcharging every duty of the conjugal ſtate; giving honour unto the wife, treating her with reſpect, making her your boſom friend, conſulting her comfort and happineſs, providing in the beſt manner for her which your circumſtances will afford, bearing with and concealing her infirmities, conſidering her as the weaker veſſel, to whom peculiar delicacy and tenderneſs is due, and as your equal in all Chriſtian privileges, being heirs together of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered, or the effects of them defeated, as they muſt be by unchriſtian ſtrifes, or auſterity. Let thoſe who bear the honoured name of huſband then remember the duties of their ſtation. Such a conduct will engage affection and ſubmiſſion, and superſede the exerciſe of authority.

8. Finally, [k] be ye all of one mind, [l] having compaſſion one of another, [m] love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous: 9. [n] Not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing; but contrariwiſe, bleſſing: knowing that ye are thereunto called [o] that ye ſhould inherit a bleſſing. 10. For [p] he that will love life, and ſee good days, [q] let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they ſpeak no guile. 11. [r] Let him eſchew evil, and do good; [s] let him ſeek peace, and enſue it. 12. For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open [t] unto their prayers; but the face of the Lord is † againſt them that do evil. 13. And [u] who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good? 14. [x] But and if ye ſuffer for righteouſneſs ſake, happy are ye: and [y] be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled; 15. But ſanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and [z] be ready to give an anſwer to every man that aſketh you a reaſon of the hope that is in you [a] with meekneſs and fear: 16. [b] Having a good conſcience; that whereas they ſpeak evil of you as of evil-doers, they may be aſhamed that falſly accuſe your good converſation in Chriſt. 17. For it is better, if the will of God be ſo, that ye ſuffer for well-doing than for evil-doing.

[k] Rom. xii. 16. & xv. 5. 1 Cor. i. 10. Phil. ii. 2.
[l] Eph. iv. 32.
[m] 1 Theſ. iv. 9. Chap. i. 22.
[n] Prov. xx. 22. Mat. v. 39. Rom. xii. 17. 1 Theſ. v. 15.
[o] Mat. xxv. 34.
[p] Pſ. xxxiv. 12, &c.
[q] Jam. i. 26.
[r] Pſ. xxxvii. 27. Iſa. i. 16. 3 John 11.
[s] Rom. xii. 18. Heb. xii. 14.
[t] John ix. 31. Jam. v. 16.
† Gr. Upon.
[u] Prov. xvi. 7. Tob. xii. 7.
[x] Mat. v. 10, &c. Chap. ii. 19. & iv. 14.
[y] Iſa. viii. 12, 13. Jer. i. 8.
[z] Pſ. cxix. 46. Acts iv. 8. Col. iv. 6.
[a] 2 Tim. ii. 25.
[b] Chap. ii. 12.

v. 8—17. The apoſtle paſſes on to more general exhortations.

1. He enjoins the exerciſe of Chriſtian charity. Finally, be ye all of one mind, united in the great points of Chriſtian doctrine, and harmonizing in mutual affection; having compaſſion one of another, bearing with tender ſympathy each others burdens; love as brethren, out of a pure heart, fervently; be pitiful of each other's wants, weakneſs, and infirmities; be courteous, obliging, friendly, condeſcending: not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing, however cruelly or unkindly treated by profeſſed enemies or pretended friends; but, contrariwiſe, bleſſing, praying for thoſe who moſt deſpitefully uſe you: knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye ſhould inherit a bleſſing, both temporal, ſpiritual, and eternal, which promiſe God hath annexed to ſuch a gracious conduct. Note, To love thoſe who are kind to us, is in ſome ſort but natural; but to love our enemies, and return their bitterneſs with bleſſings, this is the work of ſupernatural grace.

2. Having mentioned the bleſſing which they ſhould inherit, who walked according to the rule laid down, he quotes a paſſage from the Book of Pſalms, ſhewing the way to a truly happy life. For he that will love life, and ſee good days of proſperity and comfort in this world, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they ſpeak no guile, ſincere in all his converſation, without diſſimulation, and cautious never to utter a raſh, haſty, or paſſionate expreſſion: let him eſchew and avoid evil of every kind, which miſery, as its ſhadow, ever attends; and do good to all, according to his abilities and opportunities: let him ſeek peace, as the richeſt acquiſition, and enſue it, uſing every lawful means to preſerve it inviolate in all his connections and relations, and to heal every breach which may be made. For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, obſerving, approving, and directing them in all their holy converſation; and his ears are open to their prayers, regarding every requeſt they make, and ready to fulfil all their petitions: but the face of the Lord is againſt them that do evil, with frowns of righteous indignation he beholds their crooked ways, and winged vengeance cuts off the remembrance of them from the earth; ſee Pſ. xxxiv. 16. Note, (1.) Godlineſs hath the promiſe of this life, as well as of that which is to come. (2.) What an encouragement have we to approach a throne of grace, when God aſſures us of his conſtant attention to our prayers? (3.) They who perſiſt in their iniquities muſt periſh without remedy.

3. He ſuggeſts the moſt encouraging motives for their patient ſuffering. And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good? What have you to fear from men or devils, if God is on your ſide? And will not ſuch an inoffenſive conduct diſarm even your very enemies? But and if ye ſuffer for righteouſneſs ſake, and your religion exaſperates your perſecutors, happy are ye in this honourable croſs, and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled at any of their menaces, frowns, or cruelty; but ſanctify the Lord God in your hearts; ſet him before you, that, filled with holy fear of offending him, relying on his power, faithfulneſs, wiſdom, and mercy, you may defy all the impotent wrath of men, and be ready always to give an anſwer, and to make your defence and apology to every man that aſketh you a reaſon of the hope that is in you with meekneſs and fear, with all diſpaſſionate calmneſs and holy reverence of God, whoſe cauſe you plead; or this may refer to him that aſketh the reaſon of their Chriſtian hope; if he appears with meekneſs and fear, willing to hear your defence, then faithfully deliver your ſouls: having a good conſcience towards God and towards men; and acting ſo uprightly and irreproachably, that whereas they ſpeak evil of you as of evil doers, they may be aſhamed that falſly accuſe your good converſation in Chriſt, and let your lives give the lye to their ſlanders, and turn them to their own confuſion. For it is better, if the will of God be ſo, that ye are appointed to ſuffer, that ye ſuffer for well-doing than for evil-doing, for it is bitter indeed when ſin and ſuffering meet together, the burden is then grievouſly inſupportable. Note, (1.) To ſuffer for righteouſneſs ſake is our honour and happineſs. (2.) The more we live in the fear of God, the leſs ſhall we be influenced by the fear of men. (3.) We never need be aſhamed of our principles, but ſhould readily and freely vindicate them, whenever we can gain an attentive hearing. (4.) The pureſt innocence is not a defence from the aſperſions of malice. (5.) The ſureſt way to confound the ſlanders of malevolence is to live them down.

18. For [c] Chriſt alſo hath once ſuffered for ſins, the juſt for the unjuſt, (that he might bring us to God) being put to death in the fleſh, [d] but quickened by the Spirit: 19. By which alſo he went and [e] preached unto the ſpirits in priſon; 20. Which ſometime were diſobedient, [f] when once the long-ſuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while [g] the ark was a preparing, [h] wherein few, that is, eight ſouls, were ſaved by water. 21. [i] The like figure whereunto, even baptiſm, doth alſo now ſave us, (not the putting away of [k] the filth of the fleſh, [l] but the anſwer of a good conſcience towards God) by the reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt: 22. Who is gone into heaven, and [m] is on the right hand of God, [n] angels and authorities and powers being made ſubject unto him.

[c] Rom. v. 6. Heb. ix. 26, 28. Chap. ii. 21.
[d] Rom. i. 4. 2 Cor. xiii. 4.
[e] Chap. i. 12. & iv. 6.
[f] Gen. vi. 3, 13.
[g] Heb. xi. 7.
[h] Gen. vii. 7. & viii. 18. 2 Pet. ii. 5.
[i] Eph. v. 26.
[k] Tit. iii. 5.
[l] Rom. x. 10.
[m] Pſ. cx. 1. Rom. viii. 34. Eph. i. 20.
[n] Eph. i. 21.

v. 18—22. We have here,

1. The example of Chriſt propoſed as our encouragement to ſuffer patiently for him. For Chriſt alſo hath once ſuffered for ſins, the juſt for the unjuſt, he who was perfectly pure and holy giving himſelf a ſacrifice for us, to bear the ſins of ſuch polluted wretches as we are, that, having made a perfect and full ſatiſfaction to Divine Juſtice, and obtained reconciliation through his own blood, he might bring us to God, into a ſtate of favour and acceptance with him, being put to death in the fleſh, and ſuffering in his human nature the penalty of ſin, but quickened by the Spirit, by that eternal Spirit of the Son of God, which had taken the human nature into union with himſelf; or by the Holy Ghoſt, who is one in operation and agency with the Son. Note (1.) The ſufferings of Jeſus were the real penalty due to our iniquities, and God laid them upon him in all their bitterneſs. (2.) He was the juſt one; had he not been ſo, he could not have ſatisfied for the unjuſt. (3.) By the ſufferings of Jeſus ſinners have acceſs to and acceptance with God. (4.) If he voluntarily endured ſo much for us, ſhall we ſhrink from any croſs which we may be called to bear for him?

2. He mentions what Chriſt did in the old world. By which alſo he went and preached unto the ſpirits which are now in priſon, by his ſpirit enlightening Noah, and ſending him forth as a preacher of righteouſneſs to them; which ſometime were diſobedient, and would neither believe nor attend to the warnings which Chriſt ſent them, when once the long-ſuffering of God waited, during an hundred and twenty years, in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, who continued preaching, and building that immenſe ſtructure which was a living ſermon to them, wherein few, that is, eight ſouls were ſaved by water, paſſing ſafely through the deluge which covered the earth, whilſt the reſt of the world periſhed in the waters, and went down into the priſon of hell. The like figure whereunto, even baptiſm, doth alſo now ſave us, as the antitype of the ark, (not the mere external ordinance, the applying water to the body for the putting away of the filth of the fleſh, which of itſelf could be of no avail, but as the outward viſible ſign of an inward and ſpiritual grace, even the anſwer of a good conſcience towards God, pledging our fidelity to him in return for the privileges to which we are admitted, by the reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, who is the author of our life and ſalvation, being raiſed for our juſtification, the head of vital influence to his people, and ſhall raiſe them up at the laſt day. Note, (1.) God warns before he ſtrikes. (2.) Though he is long-ſuffering, he will not always bear with ſinners. (3.) They who reject the counſel of God againſt their own ſouls, have themſelves only to blame for their deſtruction. (4.) Few ever were or will be ſaved in any age. (5.) Baptiſm ſaveth, not as a mere ceremony performed, but as a ſeal of that covenant which is eſtabliſhed through a Redeemer, and a ſymbol of that grace, which out of his fulneſs we have received.

3. Chriſt is now exalted to the throne of majeſty on high. Who is gone into heaven, and is on the right hand of God, angels and authorities and powers being made ſubject unto him; he is poſſeſſed of univerſal dominion, appointed to be head over all things to his church; and whatever any of his members may endure, he will ſupport and bring them ſafely through; and, as ſurely as they ſuffer with him, they ſhall reign with him.

CHAP. IV.

The work of a Chriſtian is twofold, doing the will of God, and ſuffering his pleaſure. This chapter directs us in both. The duties we are here exhorted to employ ourſelves in are the mortification of ſin, living to God, ſobriety, prayer, charity, hoſpitality, and the beſt improvement of our talents, which the apoſtle preſſeth upon Chriſtians from the conſideration of the time they have loſt in their ſins, and the approaching end of all things, ver. 1—12. The directions for ſufferings are, that we ſhould not be ſurprized at them, but rejoice in them, only taking care not to ſuffer as evil doers. He intimates, that their trials were near at hand; that their ſouls were in danger as well as their bodies, and the beſt way to preſerve them was to commit them to God in well doing.

1. FOraſmuch then [a] as Chriſt hath ſuffered for us in the fleſh, arm yourſelves likewiſe with the ſame mind: for [b] he that hath ſuffered in the fleſh hath ceaſed from ſin: 2. [c] That he no longer [d] ſhould live the reſt of his time in the fleſh, to the luſts of men, [e] but to the will of God. 3. For [f] the time paſt of our life may ſuffice us to have wrought [g] the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in laſciviouſneſs, luſts, exceſs of wine, revellings, banquetings, and abominable idolatries: 4. Wherein they think it ſtrange, that you run not with them to the ſame exceſs of riot, [h] ſpeaking evil of you: 5. Who ſhall give account to him that is ready [i] to judge the quick and the dead. 6. For, for this cauſe was [k] the goſpel preached alſo to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the fleſh, but live according to God in the Spirit.

[a] Chap. iii. 18.
[b] Rom. vi. 7.
[c] Rom. xiv. 7. Chap. ii. 1.
[d] Gal. ii. 20.
[e] 1 Theſ. v. 10. Heb. ix. 14.
[f] Ezek. xliv. 6. & xlv. 9. Eph. iv. 17.
[g] Rom. i. 24. 1 Cor. xii. 2.
[h] Acts xiii. 45. Chap. ii. 12.
[i] Acts x. 42. & xvii. 31. 2 Tim. iv. 1.
[k] Chap. iii. 19.

v. 1—6. The apoſtle here,

1. Draws an inference from what he had advanced. Foraſmuch then as Chriſt hath ſuffered for us in the fleſh, arm yourſelves likewiſe with the ſame mind, with patience and holy reſolution; for he that hath ſuffered in the fleſh, crucifying the body of ſin through union with a dying Saviour, and willingly taking up any croſs which the Divine Providence may lay upon him, hath ceaſed from ſin, from his former corrupt principles and practice, and is profeſſionally by his baptiſm mortified to every corrupt affection, as a dead man ceaſes from the actions of life: that he no longer ſhould live the reſt of his time in the fleſh, to the will of men, but the little ſpace which yet remains he is earneſt to redeem, and fain would ſpend it according to the will of God. Note, (1.) Nothing ſo effectually mortifies ſin as a believing view of the croſs of Chriſt. (2.) The will of God, not our vile affections, muſt be our guide. If we live after the fleſh, we ſhall die eternally, whilſt the paths of grace and holineſs alone can lead us to immortal life and glory.

2. The apoſtle argues on the reaſonableneſs of living unto God, from the conſideration of the abuſe they had made of the time that was paſt. For the time paſt of our life may ſuffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when (with ſhame and grief and anguiſh we remember it) we walked in laſciviouſneſs, luſts, exceſs of wine, revellings and riot, banquetings and luxurious carouſals, and abominable idolatries, joining with the Gentiles in theſe horrid deeds; wherein they think it ſtrange that you run not with them ſtill to the ſame exceſs of riot as before, ſpeaking evil of you and your religion, as if it made you moroſe, unſociable, and poor deſpicable objects: who ſhall give account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead, at the great day of his appearing and glory. Note, (1.) The remembrance of our former evil ways ſhould often dwell upon our minds for our deep humiliation before God. (3.) They who have taſted the bitterneſs of ſin, can be tempted by no conſideration to return to thoſe deſtructive ways which they have forſaken. (3.) The conduct of a Chriſtian appears very ſtrange to an ungodly world, and they wonder what there is in religion which, for the ſake of it, can induce men to forego all that they call enjoyment. (4.) They who ſpeak evil of our good converſation in Chriſt, muſt ſhortly give a ſolemn account of their hard ſpeeches before an awful tribunal.

3. The former ſaints of God were thus cenſured of the world, and ſaved by grace. For this cauſe was the goſpel preached alſo to them that are now dead in Chriſt, and departed in his faith and fear, that they might be judged according to men in the fleſh, and undergo reproach, perſecution, and ſome of them even death itſelf for thoſe tenets which the carnal world derides and abhors, but might, notwithſtanding all their ſufferings in the body, live according to God in the Spirit, under the mighty influence of his grace, in a holy conformity to his will, and expecting, through the power of the Holy Ghoſt, to be raiſed up at the laſt day to live with God eternally.

7. But [l] the end of all things is at hand: [m] be ye therefore ſober, and [n] watch unto prayer. 8. And [o] above all things have fervent charity among yourſelves: for [p] charity ſhall cover the multitude of ſins. 9. [q] Uſe hoſpitality one to another [r] without grudging. 10. [s] As every man hath received the gift, even ſo miniſter the ſame one to another, [t] as good ſtewards of [u] the manifold grace of God. 11. [x] If any man ſpeak, let him ſpeak as the oracles of God; if any man miniſter, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth: [y] that God in all things may be glorified through Jeſus Chriſt; [z] to whom be praiſe and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

[l] Rom. xiii. 12. Phil. iv. 5. Jam. v. 8.
[m] 1 Theſ. v. 6. Chap. v. 8.
[n] Luke xxi. 36. Eph. vi. 18. Col. iv. 2.
[o] Col. iii. 14. Chap. i. 22.
[p] Prov. x. 12. Jam. v. 20.
[q] Rom. xii. 13. Heb. xiii. 2.
[r] 2 Cor. ix. 7.
[s] Rom. xii. 6.
[t] Luke xii. 42. 1 Cor. iv. 1, 2. Tit. i. 7.
[u] 1 Cor. xii. 4. Eph. iv. 11.
[x] Rom. xii. 6, &c.
[y] Eph. v. 20.
[z] 1 Tim. vi. 16. Chap. v. 11. Rev. v. 13.

v. 7—11. We have here an awful poſition: But the end of all things is at hand. The Jewiſh ſtate was ſoon to be deſtroyed, where dwelt the moſt inveterate perſecutors of the Chriſtian name; and to every individual is this truth moſt applicable, to whom death and eternity are approaching, and judgment is at the door; from which awful conſiderations the apoſtle enforces the following exhortations:

1. Be ye therefore ſober, temperate in all things, not inordinately purſuing, nor immoderately uſing any thing in this world, knowing how ſhort the time is. And,

2. Watch unto prayer; be on your guard againſt the numberleſs temptations which beſet you, and eſpecially be looking up by ceaſeleſs prayer for ſtrength to reſiſt and overcome them. Note, Prayer is our great preſervative; we ſhall never fail, whilſt we continue waiting upon God.

3. And above all things have fervent charity among yourſelves, cordially and tenderly affected towards each other: for charity ſhall cover the multitude of ſins, engaging you kindly to overlook the offences of your brethren, to caſt the veil of oblivion over their many infirmities, and to conceal them from the cenſorious world.

4. Uſe hoſpitality one towards another without grudging, freely and chearfully receiving thoſe who, for righteouſneſs ſake, are driven from place to place, or are travelling to ſpread the glad tidings of ſalvation, and truſting on the Divine Providence for their maintenance.

5. As every man hath received the gift, whatever talents he is bleſſed with, whether of wealth, abilities, or grace, even ſo miniſter the ſame one to another, laying out yourſelves for your mutual edification and comfort, as good ſtewards of the manifold grace of God, from whom you have received all that you poſſeſs, and to whom you are accountable for the due improvement of it. If any man ſpeak, therefore, as called to the office of a preacher, let him ſpeak as the oracles of God, with ſtrict adherence to the ſacred doctrines therein revealed, preſuming to add nothing thereunto, nor to diminiſh ought therefrom: if any man miniſter in the office of a deacon, or out of his worldly ſubſtance to the neceſſitous, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth, with all fidelity, chearfulneſs and diligence, that God in all things may be glorified through Jeſus Chriſt, and his name exalted in the advancement of his church and his kingdom in the world, to whom be praiſe and dominion for ever and ever, to the incarnate Saviour, and to the Father through him. Amen! Note, (1.) Whatever we poſſeſs, we are but ſtewards, and muſt give an account to the great Maſter for the talents committed to our truſt. (2.) God's glory ſhould be the great end of all our converſation, and in our lips and lives we ſhould endeavour to ſhew forth his praiſe.

12. Beloved, think it not ſtrange concerning [a] the fiery trial which is to try you, as though ſome ſtrange thing happened unto you. 13. [b] But rejoice, in as much as [c] ye are partakers of Chriſt's ſufferings; [d] that when his glory ſhall be revealed, ye may be glad alſo with exceeding joy. 14. [e] If ye be reproached for the name of Chriſt, happy are ye; for the ſpirit of glory and of God [f] reſteth upon you: on their part he is evil ſpoken of, but on your part he is glorified. 15. But [g] let none of you ſuffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil-doer, [h] or a buſy-body in other men's matters. 16. Yet [i] if any man ſuffer as a Chriſtian, let him not be aſhamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf. 17. For [k] the time is come that judgment muſt begin at the houſe of God: and [l] if it firſt begin at us, [m] what ſhall the end be of them that obey not the goſpel of God? 18. [n] And if the righteous ſcarcely be ſaved, where ſhall the ungodly and the ſinner appear? 19. Wherefore, let them that ſuffer according to the will of God, [o] commit the keeping of their ſouls to him in well-doing as unto a faithful Creator.

[a] Iſa. xlviii. 10. Zech. xiii. 9. 1 Cor. iii. 13. Chap. i. 7.
[b] Mat. v. 12. Acts v. 41. Jam. i. 2.
[c] 2 Cor. iv. 10. Col. i. 24. 2 Tim. ii. 10. Rev. i. 9.
[d] Chap. i. 5, 6.
[e] Mat. v. 11. Jam. i. 12. Chap. ii. 20. & iii. 14.
[f] 2 Cor. xii. 9.
[g] Chap. ii. 20.
[h] 1 Theſ. iv. 11.
[i] Chap. iii. 14.
[k] Iſa. x. 12. Jer. xxv. 29. & xlix. 12. Ezek. ix. 6. Mal. iii. 5.
[l] Luke xxiii. 31.
[m] Luke x. 12, 14.
[n] Prov. xi. 31. Luke xxiii. 31.
[o] Pſ. xxxi. 5. Luke xxiii. 46. 2 Tim. i. 12.

v. 12—19. The apoſtle here,

1. Encourages them to bear up boldly under their expected trials. Beloved, think it not ſtrange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you as gold in the furnace, as if ſome ſtrange thing happened unto you, and your ſufferings were uncommon, and ſuch as God's children might not have expected. But, however ſevere your trials may be, rejoice in them, foraſmuch as ye are partakers of Chriſt's ſufferings, and herein conformed to your glorious head; that when his glory ſhall be revealed, ye may be glad alſo with exceeding joy, and reign with him, as you have ſuffered for him. And, in the leſſer trials of reviling and ſlander, if ye are reproached for the name of Chriſt, branded with ſome opprobrious name, and made the objects of deriſion and contempt, happy are ye; let it be your delight to be thus vile, and gladly bear this honourable badge of infamy; for the Spirit of glory and of God reſteth upon you, to comfort you under theſe reproaches, and to give you an earneſt of that eternal glory to which theſe trials are the way: on their part he is evil ſpoken of, and his bleſſed operations reviled and blaſphemed; but on your part he is glorified, and his name exalted by your faith and patience, and by the praiſes given him for the ſupports and comforts which you experience from him. Note, (1.) We muſt count no affliction ſtrange; however grievous for the time; it is only permitted to be, becauſe God ſees we have much droſs, and need that furnace to purge us from it. (2.) Our ſufferings for Chriſt are our real honour, and ſhould be our higheſt joy. (3.) In a day of recompence we ſhall never regret what we have endured for Chriſt and his cauſe. (4.) We need not wonder at any reproaches caſt on ourſelves, when even the bleſſed Spirit of God himſelf ſuſtains the like blaſphemies, and his operations are branded as deluſion and enthuſiaſm.

2. He admoniſhes them to give their enemies no ſuch handle againſt them as they deſired to have. But let none of you ſuffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil-doer, juſtly chargeable with any criminal conduct whatever, or as a buſy body in other men's matters, prying into the concerns of his neighbours which do not belong to him, and neglecting his own. Yet if any man ſuffer as a Chriſtian, and if, however innocent, through enmity to him on account of his religion, any of theſe atrocious crimes are charged upon him, let him not be aſhamed of ſuch malignant abuſe, but let him glorify God on this behalf, that he is counted worthy to ſuffer ſhame for the name of Chriſt, and enabled to deſpiſe theſe calumnies.

3. He ſupports what he had advanced by the moſt weighty conſiderations. For the time is come that judgment muſt begin at the houſe of God, not only in the deſtruction of the Jewiſh temple, but in very ſevere viſitations upon his ſpiritual church and people, who need the correction of his rod: and if it firſt begin at us, and we undergo the ſevere diſcipline of the croſs, what ſhall the end be of them that obey not the goſpel of God? How fearful will be the vengeance executed upon the finally-impenitent and unbelieving! And if the righteous ſcarcely be ſaved, plucked as brands from the burning, and hardly eſcaping, like Lot from the flames of Sodom, where ſhall the ungodly and the ſinner appear, who wilfully and obſtinately reject all the warnings of God's providence, and the word of his grace, determined to abide in their iniquities, whatever the conſequence may be. How terrible, ſure, and inevitable muſt be their eternal perdition! Wherefore, let them that ſuffer according to the will of God, patiently and ſubmiſſively, commit the keeping of their ſouls to him in well doing as unto a faithful Creator, content to refer themſelves to him, reſigned to his will, and ready to do or ſuffer according to his pleaſure, ſatisfied in his faithfulneſs to all his promiſes, and ſure to reap their fulfilment in a bleſſed eternity. Note, (1.) God corrects his own children that they might not be condemned with the world. (2.) If the Lord chaſtiſes his own people for the evil he ſees in them, ſhall the rebellious ſinner go unpuniſhed? No, verily; there is vengeance hanging over his devoted head. (3.) The gate of heaven is ſtrait; they who ſtrive to enter, ſcarcely are able; how ſurely then muſt they be excluded, who never ſo much as ſet their faces heavenwards! (4.) Come what will, we know that our ſufferings are ſent of God, and that his faithfulneſs, power, and love, are engaged to bring us ſafely through them; and this is ſufficient to make us eaſy, yea, happy under them.

CHAP. V.

In which the apoſtle gives particular directions, firſt to the elders, how to behave themſelves towards their flock, in the four firſt verſes;

then to the younger, to be obedient and humble, and to caſt their care upon God, in the three next verſes. From thence to the end he exhorts all to ſobriety, watchfulneſs againſt temptations, and ſtedfaſtneſs in the faith, praying earneſtly for them; and ſo concludes his epiſtle with a ſolemn doxology, mutual ſalutations, and his apoſtolical benediction.

1. THE elders which are among you I exhort, who am alſo an elder, and [a] a witneſs of the ſufferings of Chriſt, and alſo [b] a partaker of the glory that ſhall be revealed. 2. [c] Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the overſight thereof [d] not by conſtraint, but willingly; [e] not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; 3. [f] Neither as being lords over [g] God's heritage, but [h] being enſamples to the flock. 4. And when [i] the chief Shepherd ſhall appear, ye ſhall receive [k] a crown of glory that fadeth not away. 5. Likewiſe, ye younger, ſubmit yourſelves unto the elder: yea, [l] all of you be ſubject one to another, and be clothed with humility: [m] for God [n] reſiſteth the proud, and [o] giveth grace unto the humble. 6. [p] Humble yourſelves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time: 7. [q] Caſting all your care upon him, for he careth for you.

[a] Luke xxiv. 48. Acts i. 8.
[b] Rom. viii. 17, 18. Rev. i. 9.
[c] John xxi. 15. Acts 20, 28.
[d] 1 Cor. ix. 17.
[e] 1 Tim. v. 3, 8. Tit. i. 7.
[f] Mat. xx. 25, 26. 2 Cor. i. 24.
[g] Pſ. xxxiii. 12. & lxxiv. 2.
[h] Phil. iii. 17. 2 Theſ. iii. 9. 1 Tim. iv. 12. Tit. ii. 7.
[i] Iſa. xl. 11. Chap. ii. 25.
[k] 1 Cor. ix. 25. Chap. i. 4.
[l] Rom. xii. 10. Eph. v. 21.
[m] Jam. iv. 6.
[n] Prov. xvi. 5. Iſa. ii. 11. & xiii. 11.
[o] Iſa. lvii. 15. & lxvi. 2.
[p] Jam. iv. 10.
[q] Pſ. xxxvii. 5. & lv. 22. Mat. vi. 25. Phil. iv. 6.

v. 1—7. The apoſtle here,

1. Exhorts the preſbyters to a diligent diſcharge of their ſacred truſt. The elders which are among you I exhort, who am alſo an elder, put in truſt with the ſame goſpel, and a witneſs of the ſufferings of Chriſt, bearing teſtimony to what I have ſeen, and ready to ſuffer with him and for him, and a partaker of the glory which ſhall be revealed, when the great Shepherd and Biſhop of ſouls ſhall appear to reward his faithful miniſters. In the view and expectation of which, feed the flock of God which is among you with fidelity, diligence, and zeal, preaching the ſound doctrine, and maintaining the wholſome diſcipline of the goſpel, conſidering at what a price this ranſomed flock was purchaſed; taking the overſight thereof not by conſtraint, but willingly, watching over them with wiſdom, and holy ſolicitude to promote their ſpiritual and eternal good; not by conſtraint, as compelled to do it againſt your inclinations, but willingly, delighting in your bleſſed office and employment, not for filthy lucre, as the motive to undertake the charge, but of a ready mind, free from every mercenary view, and influenced purely by zeal for the Redeemer and love towards immortal ſouls; neither as being lords over God's heritage, and ruling with arrogance and haughtineſs, as if you had dominion over men's conſciences, but being enſamples to the flock, in all humility, meekneſs, and holy converſation. And then know, for your encouragement, that when the chief ſhepherd ſhall appear, who hath appointed you to ſerve under him, ye ſhall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away, the bleſſed reward of your fidelity. Note, (1.) The office of a preſbyter is an high and honourable employment, and calls for ſuitable zeal and faithfulneſs to diſcharge it aright. (2.) None ſhould ever enter the miniſtry by conſtraint, at the ſollicitation of friends, or as bred to it for a maintenance, but as prompted by a deſire to glorify God, and to be inſtrumental in the ſalvation of loſt ſouls. (3.) They who would profit others by their preaching, muſt ſecond it by their examples, elſe how can we think that others will believe us, if it appears by our ill conduct that we do not believe ourſelves? (4.) The reward of faithful miniſters ſhall be eminently glorious; they ſhall ſhine as the ſtars in the firmament for ever and ever.

2. He addreſſes himſelf to the younger, and all private members of the church. Likewiſe, ye younger, ſubmit yourſelves unto the elder; be guided by their advice, and attentive to their admonitions: yea, all of you be ſubject one to another, paying that deference and reſpect that is due to every one according to his ſtation, age, rank, or office; and be clothed with humility, as a ſhining garb, which gives beauty to the whole converſation, and adds a luſtre to every other grace: for he reſiſteth the proud, that is the character of all others which God abhors, and he giveth grace to the humble, who are peculiarly his delight, and enriched by him abundantly, and prepared for his preſence in glory. Humble yourſelves therefore under the mighty hand of God, enduring meekly whatever afflictions he is pleaſed to ſend upon you, and ſubmiſſive to thoſe whom he hath ſet over you; that he may exalt you in due time, lifting you above all your tribulations, and bringing you to a throne at his right hand: caſting all your care upon him, whatever difficulties and trials you may be involved in, for he careth for you, will preſerve your bodies and ſouls, give you a happy iſſue out of all your afflictions, and cauſe them to work together for your eternal felicity. Note, (1.) It is the wiſdom of young men to pay deference and obedience to the advice and admonitions of their more aged and experienced friends. (2.) God is the enemy of the proud, as of ſatan their chief; and in the unequal conteſt with Omnipotence, they muſt needs be undone. (3.) Humility is our greateſt ornament, and in God's ſight of great price, and thoſe who poſſeſs it he delighteth to honour. (4.) God's time muſt be expected; he will ſend us relief in due ſeaſon, if we faint not. (5.) None ever caſt their care upon God, and were confounded.

8. [r] Be ſober, be vigilant; becauſe [s] your adverſary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, ſeeking whom he may devour. 9. [t] Whom reſiſt ſtedfaſt in the faith, [u] knowing that the ſame afflictions are accompliſhed in your brethren that are in the world. 10. But the God of all grace, [x] who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Chriſt Jeſus, after that ye have ſuffered [y] a while, [z] make you perfect, [a] ſtabliſh, ſtrengthen, ſettle you. 11. [b] To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

[r] Luke xxi. 26. 1 Theſ. v. 6. Chap. iv. 7.
[s] Job i. 7. & ii. 2.
[t] Eph. vi. 11, 13. Jam. iv. 7.
[u] 1 Theſ. iii. 3.
[x] 1 Cor. i. 9.
[y] 2 Cor. iv. 17. Chap. i. 6.
[z] Heb. xiii. 21.
[a] Rom. xvi. 25. 2 Theſ. iii. 3.
[b] 1 Tim. vi. 16. Chap. iv. 11. Rev. i. 6.

v. 8—11. The apoſtle, in the view of the ſubtle enemy which they had to contend againſt,

1. Admoniſhes them to be on their guard. Be ſober, be vigilant; weaned from all inordinate attachment to preſent things, and watchful in the uſe of every divine ordinance againſt the wiles of the great deceiver; becauſe your adverſary the devil, ever waiting for your halting, as a roaring lion, fierce and cruel, walketh about, ſeeking whom he may devour; reſtleſs and indefatigable in his attempts to murder immortal ſouls, and maliciouſly endeavouring to terrify thoſe, whom he is not permitted to deſtroy. Note, We have a deadly foe to conflict with, powerful, wily, watchful, experienced in deceit; we need be ever on our guard againſt his ſnares.

2. The only way in which we can overcome is here ſet before us. Whom reſiſt ſtedfaſt in the faith, lifting up this impenetrable ſhield againſt all the fiery darts of the wicked one, and encouraged by the examples and the victories of our ſuffering fellow Chriſtians, knowing that the ſame afflictions are accompliſhed in your brethren that are in the world; they war againſt the ſame enemy, and are ſupported under all their trials, and through faith made more than conquerors. Note, (1.) The examples of others ſhould be our encouragement. (2.) They who in faith reſiſt the devil, will find the weakneſs of all his efforts, and that before this terrible ſhield he will be compelled to fly.

3. He offers up his fervent prayers on their behalf. But the God of all grace, the fountain and giver of it to all his people, never deſerting them in any of their trials, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Jeſus Chriſt, to partake of unutterable bleſſedneſs in his preſence for ever, through the redemption obtained by his dear Son, after that ye have ſuffered a while here below, make you perfect in holineſs and happineſs, and in your way to this ſtate of complete felicity ſtabliſh you in the truth, ſtrengthen your hearts with his grace, and ſettle you on that foundation from which you never can be moved. To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever; be his name adored for all his paſt mercies and protection, and may we be enabled ſtill to truſt upon his care and love. Amen!

12. By [c] Silvanus a faithful brother unto you (as I ſuppoſe) [d] I have written briefly, exhorting, and teſtifying, [e] that this is the true grace of God wherein ye ſtand. 13. The church that is at Babylon, elected together with you, ſaluteth you, and ſo doth [f] Marcus my ſon. 14. [g] Greet ye one another with a kiſs of charity. Peace be with you all that are in Chriſt Jeſus. Amen.

[c] 2 Cor. i. 19.
[d] Heb. xiii. 22.
[e] 2 Pet. i. 12.
[f] Acts xii. 12, 25.
[g] Rom. xvi. 16. 1 Cor. xvi. 20. 2 Cor. xiii. 12. 1 Theſ. v. 26.

v. 12—14. He concludes,

1. With giving an account of his deſign in this epiſtle, and the perſon who was the bearer of it. By Silvanus, a faithful brother unto you (as I ſuppoſe, and conclude from the moſt ſubſtantial grounds) I have written briefly this ſhort epiſtle, exhorting, and teſtifying, that this is the true grace of God wherein ye ſtand, in the doctrine and practice of which you have hitherto perſevered, and I truſt will continue even unto the end. Note, They who have begun well, muſt ſtand faſt in the ſame grace which they have experienced.

2. He preſents the ſalutations of the church at Babylon, from whence he ſeems to have written this epiſtle. The church that is at Babylon, elected together with you, through Jeſus Chriſt unto life and glory, ſaluteth you in all Chriſtian wiſhes of peace and proſperity; and ſo doth Marcus my ſon: who was either really ſuch, or ſpiritually; ſome ſuppoſe he means the evangeliſt Mark, who was ſiſter's ſon to Barnabas.

3. He exhorts them to fervent charity among themſelves. Greet ye one another with a kiſs of charity, in token of your mutual, unfeigned affection.

4. He pronounces his parting benediction upon them. Peace be with you all that are in Chriſt Jeſus, and every bleſſing, ſpiritual, temporal, or eternal, which is the happy portion of thoſe that are united to him their living head. May that portion, reader, be thine and mine. Amen!

THE

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
UPON THE
Second General Epiſtle of PETER.

THE penman of this epiſtle appears plainly to be the ſame who wrote the foregoing. He was one of the three apoſtles that were preſent at Chriſt's transfiguration, ver. 18. and ſays expreſly, that he had written a former epiſtle to them, chap. iii. 1. and the deſign of this ſecond epiſtle is the ſame with that of the former, as is evident from the firſt verſe of the third chapter; whence obſerve, that, in the things of God, we have need of precept upon precept, and line upon line, and all little enough to keep them in remembrance; and theſe are the things which ſhould be moſt faithfully recorded, and frequently remembred by us.

CHAP. I.

In this chapter we have, 1. An introduction, ver. 1—4. 2. An exhortation to advance and improve in all Chriſtian graces, ver. 5, 6, 7. To enforce this exhortation, he adds, (1.) A repreſentation of the very great advantage which will thereby accrue to them, ver. 8—11. (2) A promiſe of the beſt aſſiſtance the apoſtle was able to give, to facilitate and forward this good work, ver. 12—15. 3. A declaration of the certain truth and divine original of the goſpel of Chriſt, in the grace whereof they were exhorted to increaſe and perſevere.

1. SIMON Peter, a ſervant and an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, to them that have obtained [a] like precious faith with us, through the righteouſneſs † of God, and our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt: 2. [b] Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jeſus our Lord, 3. According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godlineſs, [c] through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: 4. [d] Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promiſes; that by theſe you might [e] be partakers of the divine nature, [f] having eſcaped the corruption that is in the world through luſt.

[a] Rom. i. 12. 2 Cor. iv. 13. Tit. i. 4.
† Gr. Of our God and Saviour. Tit. ii. 13.
[b] Rom. i. 7. 1 Pet. i. 2. Jude 2.
[c] John xvii. 3.
[d] 2 Cor. vii. 1.
[e] 2 Cor. iii. 18. Eph. iv. 24. Heb. xii. 10. 1 John iii. 2.
[f] Chap. ii. 18, 20.

v. 1—4. The apoſtle, being about to finiſh his glorious courſe, addreſſes his laſt epiſtle to his Hebrew brethren. We have,

1. The writer: Simon Peter, a ſervant and an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt. In the dignity to which he was advanced he did not forget, that his office was not ſo much to rule as to ſerve the meaneſt member of the Redeemer's church.

2. The perſons to whom the epiſtle is addreſſed. To them that have obtained like precious faith with us, and are intereſted in the ſame glorious ſalvation, through the righteouſneſs of God, or of our God and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, which is the meritorious cauſe by which we have obtained a ſure title to eternal bleſſedneſs. Note, (1.) Divine faith may well be called precious, ſeeing the effects of it are ſo unſpeakably glorious. (2.) Whatever faith we poſſeſs, it is becauſe of our lot among the choſen, who are the objects of Chriſt's ſovereign love and undeſerved favour. (3.) In the divine righteouſneſs of God our Saviour we ſtand complete before God, and may by right claim all the bleſſings of perfect obedience.

3. His apoſtolical benediction. Grace and peace, with all the bleſſings of the everlaſting goſpel, be multiplied unto you, in more abundant manifeſtations and deeper inward experience of them, through the knowledge of God, as your covenant and reconciled God, and of Jeſus our Lord, in all the bleſſed offices and relations he bears towards us his redeemed people.

4. The ground on which he built his confidence that his prayers for them ſhould be heard and anſwered. According as his divine power hath given unto us freely all things that pertain unto life and godlineſs, beſtowing every bleſſing and means of grace which can conduce to the furtherance of the divine life in our ſouls, till it is perfected above, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue; our acquaintance with Jeſus, and acknowledgment of him as the only Saviour of ſouls, being effectual to engage us in the purſuit of glory as our end, and with fortitude unſhaken to walk in all his holy ways. Whereby (δι ων) or by whom, even through the grace of theſe divine Perſons, are given unto us exceeding great and precious promiſes, above all our conceptions, as well as beyond all our deſerts; that by theſe you might be partakers of the divine nature, or a divine nature, by the goſpel word, and the great and precious promiſes therein revealed, wherein beholding as in a glaſs the glory of God in the face of Jeſus Chriſt, you are transformed into the ſame image, not partaking of the divine eſſence, but formed anew after the divine likeneſs in righteouſneſs and true holineſs; having eſcaped the corruption that is in the world through luſt, flying from out of the world which lieth in wickedneſs, as from a city infected with the plague, and renouncing all the corrupt principles and practices that, through the natural concupiſcence which reigns in every fallen heart, in time paſt defiled your whole body, ſoul, and ſpirit. Note, (1.) All that is good in us comes alone from the divine power and grace. (2.) The goſpel calls us to glory and virtue, and at the ſame time communicates the effectual ability for the performance of all that it commands. (3.) The knowledge of God, as he is revealed to us in the goſpel of his dear Son, is the grand means of engaging our hearts towards him. (4.) Exceeding great indeed and precious are thoſe promiſes, that reach to the deepeſt ſtate of human guilt and miſery, and extend to an eternity of glory in the higheſt. (5.) They who, by the transforming viſion of God in the goſpel, are truly made partakers of a divine nature, will ſhew it by their deadneſs to the world, and the ſubdual of every ſenſual appetite.

5. And beſides this, [g] giving all diligence, add to your faith, virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; 6. And to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godlineſs; 7. And to godlineſs, [h] brotherly kindneſs; and to brotherly kindneſs, charity. 8. For if theſe things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye ſhall neither be † barren, [i] nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 9. But he that lacketh theſe things, [k] is blind, and cannot ſee far off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old ſins. 10. Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence [l] to make your calling and election ſure; for if ye do theſe things, [m] ye ſhall never fall: 11. For ſo an entrance ſhall be miniſtred unto you abundantly into the everlaſting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt.

g Chap. iii. 18.
h Gal. vi. 10. 1 Theſ. iii. 12. & v. 15.
† Gr. Idle.
i John xv. 2. Tit. iii. 14.
k Iſa. lix. 10. 1 John ii. 9, 11.
l 1 John iii. 19.
m Rev. iii. 11.

v. 5—11. Becauſe they had already received ſo much from God, they were bound to make their profiting appear. We have,

1. A golden chain of graces, which we are called to put on. And beſides this, or for this cauſe, ſeeing you are partakers of a divine nature, giving all diligence to increaſe with the increaſe of God, add to your faith virtue, courage and boldneſs in the profeſſion of the goſpel; and to virtue knowledge, prudently conſidering the company, place, and time, when our courage in vindicating the cauſe of Chriſt may be moſt ſucceſsfully exerted; and to knowledge temperance, keeping our paſſions and appetites under ſtrict government, and uſing all the creatures with a holy moderation; and to temperance patience under every provocation, bearing with the injuries, reproaches, and perverſeneſs of others, and meekly ſubmiſſive under every affliction; and to patience godlineſs, exerciſing yourſelves in every act of devotion and means of grace, from a principle of love to God, and deſire of nearer communion with him; and to godlineſs brotherly kindneſs, feeling the tendereſt ſympathy and compaſſion towards your fellow Chriſtians, and ready to every good word and work that may be helpful to them; and to brotherly kindneſs charity, having your heart enlarged to all mankind, with univerſal benevolence towards every human creature, and a deſire to promote their temporal, ſpiritual, and eternal welfare, not excluding even your greateſt and moſt inveterate enemies.

2. Theſe graces will adorn our profeſſion, as the want of them muſt neceſſarily prove us deſtitute of true Chriſtianity. For if theſe things be in you, and abound, in lively exerciſe, they make you that ye ſhall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; but as trees of righteouſneſs, the planting of the Lord, full of life, ſap, and fruitfulneſs, which redounds to his glory. Whilſt he that lacketh theſe things is blind, whatever pretences to wiſdom he may make; and cannot ſee afar off, at beſt hath but a glimmering, and notional apprehenſion of divine truth, being a ſtranger to that realizing faith which brings near the diſtant objects of an eternal world; and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old ſins, unfaithful to the profeſſion which he made at his baptiſm, and negligent in his application to that blood which alone can cleanſe him from his iniquities.

3. He exhorts all believers to diligence in their Chriſtian courſe. Wherefore the rather, brethren, conſidering how many have a name to live who are really dead in treſpaſſes, give diligence to make your calling and election ſure, in the lively uſe of every means of grace, which may bring the fulleſt aſſurance of it to our own ſouls, and in the practice of all holy converſation, which may demonſtrate to others that we are indeed choſen veſſels, and called unto glory; for, if ye do theſe things, and live in the exerciſe of the graces above-mentioned, ye ſhall never fall, ſo as finally to apoſtatize from Chriſt, and periſh with the world: for ſo an entrance ſhall be miniſtred unto you abundantly into the everlaſting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, when at the laſt, triumphant over death and the grave, you ſhall be admitted into all the glories of the eternal world, and ſo ſhall be for ever with the Lord. Note, (1.) Though our election be ſure in God's purpoſe, and in the event to all his people, yet He, who hath connected the means with the end, requires our diligence and care to work out our own ſalvation with fear and trembling. (2.) They ſhall ſhortly enter an eternal world of glory, who now walk under the influences of a Saviour's grace.

12. Wherefore I will not be negligent [n] to put you always in remembrance of theſe things, [o] though ye know them, and be eſtabliſhed in the preſent truth. 13. Yea, I think it meet, [p] as long as I am in this tabernacle, [q] to ſtir you up by putting you in remembrance: 14. [r] Knowing that ſhortly I muſt put off this my tabernacle, even as [s] our Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath ſhewed me. 15. Moreover, I will endeavour that you may be able after my deceaſe to have theſe things always in remembrance.

n Rom. xv. 14, 15. 1 John ii. 21.
o 1 Pet. v. 12. Chap. iii. 17.
p 2 Cor. v. 1.
q Chap. iii. 1.
r Deut. iv. 21, 22. & xxxi. 14. 2 Tim. iv. 6.
s John xxi. 18, 19.

v. 12—15. The apoſtle appears careful to diſcharge his own ſolemn truſt towards them.

Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of theſe things, as matters of the laſt importance, though ye know them in a good meaſure; and be eſtabliſhed in the preſent truth, fully ſatisfied in general of the neceſſity of holineſs, in order to an entrance into the kingdom of heaven. Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle of clay, to ſtir you up by putting you in remembrance, that your hearts may be ſuitably affected, and your practice correſpondent with your Chriſtian principles. And hereunto I give the greater diligence, knowing that I muſt ſhortly put off this my tabernacle of the body, and be ſoon ſilent in the duſt, even as our Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath ſhewed me. Moreover I will endeavour, both by my labours among you and theſe epiſtles, which when I am dead will yet ſpeak, that ye may be able, after my deceaſe, to have theſe things always in remembrance. Note, (1.) Even the truths we know, we need be often reminded of, and urged to ſhew their influence on our conduct. (2.) A miniſter's work is never done till he cloſes his eyes: his death-bed muſt be his farewel ſermon. (3.) We live in houſes of clay, whoſe foundation is in the duſt; but, bleſſed be God, we need not regret the diſſolution of this wretched tabernacle, when we are to exchange it for a manſion of glory.

16. For we have not followed [t] cunningly deviſed fables when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, but [u] were eye-witneſſes of his majeſty. 17. For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came ſuch a voice to him from the excellent glory, [x] This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed. 18. And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in [y] the holy mount. 19. We have alſo a more ſure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto [z] a light that ſhineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and [a] the day-ſtar ariſe in your hearts: 20. Knowing this firſt, that [b] no prophecy of the ſcripture is of any private interpretation. 21. For [c] the prophecy came not † in old time [d] by the will of man: [e] but holy men of God ſpake as they were moved by the Holy Ghoſt.

t 1 Cor. i. 17. & ii. 1.
u Mat. xvii. 1, 2. John i. 14. 1 John i. 1. & iv. 14.
x Mat. iii. 17. & xvii. 5.
y Ex. iii. 5. Joſh. v. 15.
z Pſ. cxix. 105. John v. 35.
a Rev. ii. 28. & xxii. 16.
b Rom. xii. 6.
c 2 Tim. iii. 16. 1 Pet. i. 11.
† Or in any time.
d Num. xvi. 28.
e Luke i. 70.

v. 16—21. We have here a reaſon given for the importunity and ſeriouſneſs with which he preſſed the foregoing exhortations. For we have not followed cunningly deviſed fables, like the Gentile legends or Jewiſh traditions, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, at the laſt great day of his appearing and glory, to judge the aſſembled world of men and angels. But,

1. We were eye-witneſſes of his majeſty on the mount of transfiguration, and atteſt that of which we had the fulleſt demonſtration; not only ſeeing his glorified body ſhining in all the brightneſs of the meridian ſun, but hearing the voice of God. For he there received from God the Father honour and glory, who bore the fulleſt teſtimony to the tranſcendent dignity of his divine character as his Son Meſſiah, when there came ſuch a voice to him from the excellent glory, the bright cloud which overſhadowed him, the ſymbol of the divine preſence, ſaying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed, in his perſon, offices, and all his undertakings. And this voice, which came from heaven, we heard diſtinctly and clearly, when we were with him on the holy mount. So that they could not be miſtaken themſelves in the things which they teſtified.

2. We have alſo a more ſure word of prophecy, wherein a more direct atteſtation is borne to the power and coming of Jeſus to judgment than might be inferred from what we ſaw and heard. Or, We have a moſt ſure word of prophecy, wherein this ſecond appearing of the Lord to judgment is moſt expreſsly and repeatedly affirmed; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that ſhineth in a dark place (and a dark world indeed would this be without the word of God), until the day, the great the expected day of our final redemption, dawn, and the day-ſtar ariſe in your hearts, to ſhine henceforward with unclouded luſtre on his choſen, when the Lord ſhall be our everlaſting light, and our God our glory. Knowing this firſt, that, till the day of Chriſt appears, we may ſurely depend upon his prophetic word as our guide; for no prophecy of the ſcripture is of any private interpretation (ἐπιλυσεως) is not of human invention or compoſition, but of celeſtial origin: for the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God, whom he had ſanctified to be inſtruments in his hands to deliver his meſſages, ſpake as they were moved by the Holy Ghoſt, directing and dictating both the matter and expreſſion. Note, (1.) The ſcriptures alone are our guide to glory. All our wiſdom is ignorance, and our light darkneſs, without a divine revelation. (2.) The more diligently we take heed to the word of God, read, mark, learn, and inwardly digeſt it, the more ſurely ſhall we walk in holineſs and happineſs here, and be brought to the perfection of both in heaven hereafter. (3.) The ſcriptures carry their own divine authority along with them, and, through the energy of that Spirit who indited them, impreſs this full conviction on the conſcience. (4.) Though the Bible was written by men, we muſt ſay, as of the tables which Moſes hewed, that the writing was of God. They were but organs and inſtruments, and did not themſelves often comprehend the full meaning of what they delivered. With what ſacred reverence and awe then ſhould we open that holy book, where God himſelf is heard ſtill ſpeaking!

CHAP. II.

The apoſtle here gives them fair warning of falſe teachers, by whom they might be in danger of being ſeduced. To prevent this, 1. He deſcribes theſe ſeducers as impious in themſelves, and very pernicious to others, ver. 1, 2, 3. 2. He aſſures them of the puniſhment that ſhall be inflicted on them, ver. 3, 4, 5, 6. 3. He tells us how contrary the method is which God takes with thoſe who fear him, ver. 7, 8, 9. 4. He fills up the reſt of the chapter with a farther deſcription of thoſe ſeducers of whom he would have them beware.

1. BUT [a] there were falſe prophets alſo among the people, even as [b] there ſhall be falſe teachers among you, [c] who privily ſhall bring in damnable hereſies, even denying the Lord [d] that bought them, [e] and bring upon themſelves ſwift deſtruction. 2. And many ſhall follow their † pernicious ways, by reaſon of whom the way of truth ſhall be evil ſpoken of. 3. And [f] through covetouſneſs ſhall they with feigned words [g] make merchandiſe of you: [h] whoſe judgment now of a long time lingreth not, and their damnation ſlumbreth not. 4. For if [i] God ſpared not the angels [k] that ſinned, but [l] caſt them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkneſs, to be reſerved unto judgment; 5. And ſpared not the old world; [m] but ſaved Noah the eighth perſon, [n] a preacher of righteouſneſs, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly; 6. And [o] turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into aſhes, condemned them with an overthrow, [p] making them an enſample unto thoſe that after ſhould live ungodly; 7. And [q] delivered juſt Lot, vexed with the filthy converſation of the wicked: 8. (For that righteous man dwelling among them, [r] in ſeeing and hearing, vexed his righteous ſoul from day to day, with their unlawful deeds.) 9. [s] The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reſerve the unjuſt unto the day of judgment to be puniſhed.

[a] Deut. xiii. 1.
[b] Mat. xxiv. 11. Acts xx. 30. 1 Tim. iv. 1. 1 John iv. 1.
[c] Jude 4.
[d] Acts xx. 28. 1 Cor. vi. 20.
[e] Phil. iii. 19.
† Or laſcivious, as ſome read it.
[f] Rom. xvi. 18. 1 Tim. vi. 5. Tit. i. 11.
[g] 2 Cor. ii. 17.
[h] Deut. xxxii. 35. Jude 4.
[i] Jude 6.
[k] John viii. 44. 1 John iii. 8.
[l] Luke viii. 31.
[m] Gen. vii. 23. 1 Pet. iii. 20.
[n] 1 Pet. iii. 19.
[o] Gen. xix. 28. Luke xvii. 29.
[p] Jude 7. Num. xxvi. 10.
[q] Gen. xix. 16.
[r] Pſ. cxix. 158. Ezek. ix. 11.
[s] 1 Cor. x. 13.

v. 1—9. Falſe teachers in the church have ever been more dangerous and deſtructive than all the perſecutions of the enemies without. Againſt theſe the apoſtle here warns the people.

1. He deſcribes them. But there were falſe prophets alſo among the people of Iſrael of old, even as there ſhall be falſe teachers among you, who, under pretences to divine inſpiration, privily ſhall bring in damnable hereſies, craftily perverting the word of God, and adulterating the doctrines of the goſpel; even denying the Lord that bought them, redeemed them from Egypt with his mighty hand, and in a long ſucceſſion of miracles repeatedly delivered them out of the hands of their enemies, Deut. xxxii. 6. yet they both doctrinally and practically renounced and diſowned him; and, as the dreadful conſequence of their diſobedience, bring upon themſelves ſwift deſtruction, which ſhall quickly come upon them to the uttermoſt. And many ſhall follow their pernicious ways, ſeduced by their cunning and ill examples; by reaſon of whom the way of truth ſhall be evil ſpoken of, and blaſphemed by the enemies of the Chriſtian name: and through covetouſneſs ſhall they with feigned words make merchandiſe of you, influenced merely by the deteſtable principles of avarice, and, amidſt all their ſpecious profeſſions, making religion their trade, and deſigning wholly their ſecular advantage. Note, (1.) They who enter the miniſtry for gain muſt needs be deceivers, and periſh in their wickedneſs. (2.) Deluding teachers are ſure to find followers; error being much more acceptable to the fallen heart than holy truth.

2. He foretells their deſtruction. Whoſe judgment, now of a long time ſuſpended, yet lingreth not, and their damnation ſlumbreth not, but ſoon ſhall it terribly overtake them in the midſt of their ſecurity and ſenſuality. Note, Vengeance againſt ſinners is often ſlow, but always ſure. Three awful inſtances are here produced of God's judgments.

(1.) The fallen angels. For if God ſpared not the angels that ſinned, but caſt them down to hell, though creatures of ſo much higher rank than men; and, on their firſt offence, delivered them into chains of darkneſs, to be reſerved unto judgment at the great day; much leſs will he ſpare theſe obſtinate offenders.

(2.) The antediluvian world. And God ſpared not the old world, when abandoned to wickedneſs; but ſaved Noah, the eighth perſon, with whom only ſeven more eſcaped in the ark, a preacher of righteouſneſs, both of the righteouſneſs of faith, and that moral righteouſneſs to which he exhorted the men of his generation, calling them to repent of their iniquities: and, when they continued obſtinate againſt his warnings, God iſſued forth the dread decree, opening the windows of heaven, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly, and ſwallowing them up in the mighty waters. If therefore he executed ſuch vengeance upon them, let not other incorrigible ſinners think at preſent to eſcape.

(3.) The deſtruction of Sodom. And turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into aſhes, he condemned them with an overthrow, raining fire and brimſtone upon them; making them an enſample unto thoſe that after ſhould live ungodly, that, taking warning by their fearful puniſhment, they might avoid or repent of their crimes before it be too late; otherwiſe the ſame wrath ſhall ſtill ſeize upon the ungodly and the ſinner.

3. For the encouragement of the faithful, he mentions the wonderful eſcape of Lot from the flames. When God deſtroyed the cities where he dwelt, he delivered juſt Lot, vexed with the filthy converſation of the wicked, grieved for the diſhonour brought thereby upon God, and for the ruin which muſt infallibly deſcend upon their devoted heads: for that righteous man, dwelling among them, in ſeeing and hearing, vexed his righteous ſoul from day to day with their unlawful deeds, enduring the moſt painful reflections in the view of their wickedneſs and the vengeance which hung over them. The Lord knoweth, as is evident by this inſtance, how to deliver the godly out of temptations; and he will do it in his own good time; and to reſerve the unjuſt unto the day of judgment to be puniſhed, who, though they ſhould eſcape any ſignal ſtroke of divine vengeance in this life, are reſerved unto the laſt dreadful day, when their iniquities ſhall receive their juſt reward.

10. But chiefly [t] them that walk after the fleſh, in the luſt of uncleanneſs, and [u] deſpiſe government: preſumptuous are they, ſelf-willed, they are not afraid to ſpeak evil of dignities: 11. Whereas [x] angels, which are greater in power and might, bring not railing accuſation againſt them before the Lord. 12. But theſe, [y] as natural brute beaſts, made to be taken and deſtroyed, ſpeak evil of the things that they underſtand not, and ſhall utterly periſh in their own corruption; 13. [z] And ſhall receive the reward of unrighteouſneſs, as they that count it pleaſure to riot in the day-time: [a] ſpots they are, and blemiſhes, ſporting themſelves with their own deceivings while [b] they feaſt with you; 14. Having eyes full of † adultery, and that cannot ceaſe from ſin; beguiling unſtable ſouls: an heart they have exerciſed with covetous practices: curſed children: 15. Which have forſaken the right way, and are gone aſtray, following the way of [c] Balaam the ſon of Boſor, who loved the wages of unrighteouſneſs; 16. But was rebuked for his iniquity: the dumb aſs, ſpeaking with man's voice, forbad the madneſs of the prophet. 17. [d] Theſe are wells without water, clouds that are carried with a tempeſt, to whom the miſt of darkneſs is reſerved for ever. 18. For when [e] they ſpeak great ſwelling words of vanity, they allure through the luſts of the fleſh, through much wantonneſs, thoſe [f] that were † clean eſcaped from them who live in error. 19. While they promiſe them [g] liberty, they themſelves are [h] the ſervants of corruption: for of whom a man is overcome, of the ſame is he brought in bondage. 20. For [i] if after they have [k] eſcaped the pollutions of the world, [l] through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, they are again entangled therein and overcome; the latter end is worſe with them than the beginning. 21. For [m] it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteouſneſs, than after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them. 22. But it is happened unto them according to the true proverb, [n] The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and, The ſow that was waſhed, to her wallowing in the mire.

[t] Jude 4. 10, 16.
[u] Jude 8.
[x] Jude 9.
[y] Jer. xii. 3. Jude 10.
[z] Phil. iii. 19.
[a] Jude 12.
[b] 1 Cor. xi. 20, 21.
† Gr. An adultereſs.
[c] Num. xxii. 5, 23, 28. Jude 11.
[d] Jude 12, 13.
[e] Jude 16.
[f] Acts ii. 40.
† Some read, for a while, or in a little.
[g] Gal. v. 13. 1 Pet. ii. 16.
[h] John viii. 34. Rom. vi. 16.
[i] Mat. xii. 45. Heb. vi. 4. & x. 26.
[k] Chap. i. 4.
[l] Chap. i. 2.
[m] Luke xii. 47, 48.
[n] Prov. xxvi. 11.

v. 10—22. The apoſtle here,

1. At large deſcribes the ſeducing teachers, whoſe practices copied after the vileſt of thoſe ungodly workers whom he had mentioned, and who with them muſt periſh. But chiefly them will God reſerve unto judgment, that walk after the fleſh, in the luſt of uncleanneſs, like the men of Sodom; and deſpiſe government, ſeditious and refractory, unwilling to ſubmit to any reſtraint: preſumptuous are they, and ſelf-willed; they are not afraid to ſpeak evil of dignities, reviling both the miniſters and apoſtles of Chriſt, and the civil magiſtrates ſet over them for the reſtraint of evil-doers. Whereas angels, which are greater in power and might than every earthly potentate, yet bring not a railing accuſation againſt them before the Lord, reviling their perſons or government. But theſe deſpiſers of God's ordinances, as natural brute beaſts, made to be taken and deſtroyed by men, for whoſe uſe they were created, ſpeak evil of the things that they underſtand not, reviling perſons and things civil and religious, of whoſe excellence they have not the leaſt knowledge; and ſhall utterly periſh in their own corruptions, abandoned to their wicked hearts and left to their ruin: and ſhall receive the reward of unrighteouſneſs, as they that count it pleaſure to riot in the day-time, daring and impudent in ſin, not even waiting for the night to cover their ſhame. Spots they are, and blemiſhes, a reproach to the name of Chriſtian which they preſume to bear; ſporting themſelves with their own deceivings, whilſt they feaſt with you, and live in the indulgence of their ſins, whilſt they outwardly appear to maintain communion with you; having eyes full of adultery, whoſe wanton looks beſpeak the impurity of their hearts; and that cannot ceaſe from ſin, enſlaved by their ſenſual appetites, and inſatiate in the indulgence of them; beguiling unſtable ſouls, as Satan beguiled Eve through his ſubtilty, and tempting them to comply with their corrupt and lewd deſires. An heart they have exerciſed with covetous practices, all their contrivances and purſuits being to amaſs wealth: curſed children, under the wrath of a holy God; which have forſaken the right way of ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt, and are gone aſtray from the paths of truth and holineſs, following the way of Balaam the ſon of Boſor, who loved the wages of unrighteouſneſs, and, notwithſtanding his ſpecious profeſſions to Balak's meſſengers, really coveted the king of Moab's offers; but was rebuked for his iniquity in a very ſignal manner, the dumb aſs, on which he rode, ſpeaking with man's voice, by miraculous power, forbad the madneſs of the prophet in preſuming to go, after the warnings to the contrary which he had received, or to attempt the curſing of that people whom the Lord had bleſſed. Theſe are wells without water, pretending to piety, but diſappointing thoſe who, like the thirſty traveller, come to them for the water of life; clouds that are carried with a tempeſt, that promiſe rain, but prove noxious vapours; to whom the miſt of darkneſs is reſerved for ever, going from the darkneſs of ſin and error to the horrible and eternal darkneſs of hell. For when they ſpeak great ſwelling words of vanity, pretending to high flights of ſcience, and boaſting their vaſt attainments, they allure through the luſts of the fleſh, through much wantonneſs, by temptations ſuited to the corrupt inclinations of their hearers, thoſe that were clean eſcaped from them who live in error, and had made a creditable profeſſion for a ſeaſon, but now relapſe into all their former abominations. While they promiſe them liberty, a carnal liberty to live as they liſt, without reſtraint, they themſelves are the ſervants of corruption, the verieſt ſlaves in nature to baſe and vile affections: for of whom a man is overcome, of the ſame is he brought into bondage; and no bondage ſo dreadful as that of ſin and Satan. Note, (1.) The ſins of lewdneſs are the dreadful rock on which unſtable ſouls make ſhipwreck of the faith. (2.) They who have hearts ſet on their covetouſneſs are hardly turned away from their vile purſuits, though conſcience, like the faithful monitor of Balaam, often ſtartles and accuſes them. (3.) None are ſo far eſcaped from the world, but they have need to watch and pray that they fall not into temptation. (4.) However ſpeciouſly the ſnare may be laid, and whatever liberty we may promiſe ourſelves in ſin, to our coſt we ſhall find the dire deluſion, and prove how fearful is the bondage of corruption.

2. He warns them, by all the dreadful conſequences of apoſtacy, to beware of theſe ſeducers. For if after they have eſcaped the pollutions of the world, through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, and from the preaching of the goſpel have been laid under ſuch reſtraints as for a while to appear creditable in their profeſſion, they are again entangled therein and overcome, ſo as to become thorough ſlaves to their luſts and appetites, the latter end is worſe with them than the beginning, and their ſtate more guilty than when they lay before in utter darkneſs, ignorance, and error. For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteouſneſs, or to have heard of Chriſt and his ſalvation, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them. But it hath happened unto them according to the true proverb, The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and, The ſow, that was waſhed, to her wallowing in the mire. Note, (1.) Under convictions of ſin, many for a while nauſeate their former lewdneſs, who ſoon return to their forſaken iniquities with greedineſs, when the impreſſions which have been made die away. (2.) Whatever outward reformation may be made, if the heart is not right with God, all is ſtill naught within; the ſwiniſh nature is not changed by the waſhing, and apoſtacy will inevitably be the iſſue. (3.) None periſh with ſuch aggravated guilt as thoſe who have made the faireſt profeſſions, and ſeemed to begin well, but fail in their courſe, and relapſe into iniquity. Woful will be the end of apoſtates.

CHAP. III.

The apoſtle, drawing towards the concluſion of his ſecond epiſtle, begins this laſt chapter of it with repeating the account of his deſign and ſcope in writing a ſecond time to them, ver. 1, 2. 2. He proceeds to mention one thing that induced him to write this ſecond epiſtle, namely, the coming of ſcoffers, whom he deſcribes, ver. 3—7. 3. He inſtructs and eſtabliſhes them in the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt to judgment, ver. 8, 9, 10. 4. He ſets forth the uſe and improvement which Chriſtians ought to make of Chriſt's ſecond coming, and that diſſolution and renovation of things, which will accompany that ſolemn coming of our Lord, ver. 11—18.

1. THIS ſecond epiſtle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which [a] I ſtir up your pure minds by way of remembrance: 2. That ye may be mindful of the words which were ſpoken before by the holy prophets, [b] and of the commandment of us the apoſtles of the Lord and Saviour: 3. [c] Knowing this firſt, that there ſhall come in the laſt days ſcoffers, [d] walking after their own luſts, 4. And ſaying, [e] Where is the promiſe of his coming? for ſince the fathers fell aſleep, [f] all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. 5. For this they willingly are ignorant of, that [g] by the word of God the heavens were of old, and [h] the earth ſtanding out of the water, and in the water: 6. [i] Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, periſhed. 7. But [k] the heavens and the earth which are now, by the ſame word are kept in ſtore, reſerved unto fire againſt the day of judgment, [l] and perdition of ungodly men.

[a] Chap. i. 13.
[b] Jude 17.
[c] 1 Tim. iv. 1. 2 Tim. iii. 1. Jude 18.
[d] Chap. ii. 10.
[e] Iſa. v. 19. Jer. xvii. 15. Ezek. xii. 22.
[f] Eccleſ. i. 9.
[g] Gen. i. 6, 9. Pſ. xxxiii. 6. Heb. xi. 3.
[h] Pſ. xxiv. 2. & cxxxvi. 6.
[i] Gen. vii. 10, 21. Chap. ii. 5.
[k] Ver. 10.
[l] 2 Theſ. i. 8.

v. 1—7. The apoſtle ſets forth his deſign of writing both theſe epiſtles. This ſecond epiſtle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which I ſtir up your pure minds by way of remembrance, that you may be guarded againſt the arts of deceivers, and that ye may be mindful of the words which were ſpoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandments of us the apoſtles of the Lord and Saviour, who, in perfect conformity with the inſpired penmen of the old ſcriptures, as in other things, ſo particularly with regard to the coming of the Lord to judgment, have forewarned and admoniſhed you. Knowing this firſt, that there ſhall come in the laſt days ſcoffers at revelation, and all its glorious and diſtinguiſhing doctrines; walking after their own luſts, given up to ſenſuality and brutiſh appetites; and with daring infidelity, and defiance of the divine declarations, ſaying, Where is the promiſe of his coming, ſo much talked of? when is this Jeſus of Nazareth to come and take vengeance on his enemies, and to deſtroy the world? for ſince the fathers fell aſleep (ſay they) during ſo many hundred years, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. Thus they vainly argue; and, becauſe judgment is not ſpeedily executed upon the workers of iniquity, they would conclude that there is nothing to be feared. For, though the ſcripture aſſures them that God hath already eminently manifeſted his righteous wrath by the general deſtruction of an ungodly world, this they willingly and wilfully are ignorant of, that the heavens were of old created by the almighty word, and the earth ſtanding out of the water and in the water, riſing from the abyſs of waters which covered it at the firſt, moiſtened ſtill by this element and compacted together, and ſurrounded with waters above, and full of water in its bowels: whereby the world that then was, being overflowed at the general deluge, periſhed, and the ſcoffers of that day met their righteous doom. But the heavens and the earth which are now, by the ſame almighty word are kept in ſtore as treaſures, reſerved unto fire againſt the day of judgment, and perdition of ungodly men. And however the ſcoffers of this day may deſpiſe God's warnings, yet the evident marks which ſtill remain of what he hath done by the deluge, are ſpeaking evidences of his power to fulfil a more terrible denunciation, when his fire ſhall deſcend, and a general conflagration enſue. A day, which will ſpread terror and diſmay through an ungodly world, and too late convince thoſe infidel mockers, that it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

8. But, beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thouſand years, and [m] a thouſand years as one day. 9. [n] The Lord is not ſlack concerning his promiſe (as ſome men count ſlackneſs) [o] but is long-ſuffering to us-ward, [p] not willing that any ſhould periſh, [q] but that all ſhould come to repentance. 10. But [r] the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which [s] the heavens ſhall paſs away with a great noiſe, and the elements ſhall melt with fervent heat, the earth alſo and the works that are therein ſhall be burnt up.

[m] Pſ. xc. 4.
[n] Hab. ii. 3. Heb. x. 37.
[o] Iſa. xxx. 18. Ver. 15.
[p] Ezek. xviii. 23, 32. & xxxiii. 11.
[q] Rom. ii. 4. 1 Tim. ii. 4.
[r] Mat. xxiv. 43. 1 Theſ. v. 2. Rev. iii. 3. & xvi. 15.
[s] Pſ. cii. 26. Iſa. li. 6. Mat. xxiv. 35. Rev. xx. 11. & xxi. 1.

t 1 Pet. i. 15
† Or haſting the coming.
u Pſ. l. 3.
x Iſa. xxxiv. 4.

up. 11. Seeing then that all theſe things ſhall be diſſolved, what manner of perſons ought ye to be [t] in all holy converſation and godlineſs, 12. Looking for, and † haſtening unto [u] the coming of the day of God, wherein [x] the heavens being on fire ſhall be diſſolved, and the elements ſhall melt with fervent heat?

v. 8—12. The apoſtle having warned them againſt the ſcoffers, encourages the ſaints of God to expect their Lord's ſecond coming.

1. He will ſurely come. But, beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thouſand years, and a thouſand years as one day. Though we meaſure time by ſucceſſion, to the eternal God the paſt, the preſent, and the future appear in one comprehenſive view, and as nothing compared with his eternity. The Lord is not ſlack concerning his promiſe (as ſome men count ſlackneſs) too impatient for his appearing, but is long-ſuffering to us-ward, not willing that any of his redeemed people ſhould periſh, but that all ſhould come to repentance, called in due time to the acknowledgment of the truth, and ſaved by grace; and when the number of his elect ſhall be accompliſhed, then he will haſten his kingdom, will come at the appointed period, and not tarry a moment longer. Note, (1.) The great deſign God hath in view is the ſalvation of his own people. (2.) The way in which any can meet the Lord with comfort is, by being converted and turned to him now by faith; the impenitent and unbelieving muſt aſſuredly periſh.

2. He will come ſuddenly. But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, with ſuch a terrible ſurprize to an ungodly world; in the which the heavens ſhall paſs away with a great noiſe, when nature in convulſions ſhall utter her expiring groans, and the elements ſhall melt with fervent heat, diſſolved amidſt the univerſal conflagration, the earth alſo and the works that are therein ſhall be burnt up, and not a wreck remain of all its glorious ſtructures.

3. What influence ought ſuch an expectation to have upon us? Seeing then that all theſe things ſhall be diſſolved, what manner of perſons ought ye to be in all holy converſation and godlineſs? How dead to the world, how looſe to its enjoyment, how patient under the preſent momentary afflictions, how wholly engroſſed with one great concern, to ſecure a part in that eternal world whither we are going, looking for, and haſtening unto the coming of the day of the Lord, keeping it abidingly in view, and living in a conſtant preparation for that ſolemn hour, when the heavens being on fire ſhall be diſſolved, and the elements ſhall melt with fervent heat? Note, It is the character of a diſciple of Jeſus, that he is ever looking for his Lord's return as the glorious hope which animates him for every duty, and ſupports him under all his trials.

y Iſa. lxv. 17. & lxvi. 22. Rev. xxi. 1, 27.
z 1 Cor. i. 8. Eph. v. 27. Phil. i. 10. 1 Theſ. iii. 13. & v. 23.
a Rom. ii. 4. 1 Pet. iii. 20. Ver. 9.
b Rom. viii. 19. 1 Cor. xv. 24. 1 Theſ. iv. 15.

13. Neverthele ſs we, according to his promiſe, look for [y] new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteouſneſs. 14. Wherefore, beloved, ſeeing that ye look for ſuch things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, [z] without ſpot, and blameleſs: 15. And account that [a] the long-ſuffering of our Lord is ſalvation; even as our beloved brother Paul alſo, according to the wiſdom given unto him, hath written unto you; 16. As alſo in all his epiſtles, [b] ſpeaking in them of theſe things; in which are ſome things hard to be underſtood, which they that are unlearned and unſtable wreſt, as they do alſo the other ſcriptures, unto their own deſtruction. 17. Ye therefore, beloved, [c] ſeeing ye know theſe things before, [d] beware leſt ye alſo, being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own ſtedfaſtneſs. 18. But [e] grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt: [f] To him be glory both now and for ever. Amen.

c Mark xiii. 23.
d Eph. iv. 14. Chap. i. 10. & ii. 18.
e Eph. iv. 15. 1 Pet. ii. 2.
f 1 Pet. iv. 11. Rev. i. 6. & v. 13.

v. 13—18. We have here,

1. The Chriſtian's expectations when this heaven and earth ſhall be diſſolved. Nevertheleſs we, according to his promiſe, look for a new heaven and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteouſneſs, even that bleſſed abode which Everlaſting Love hath prepared for the redeemed from the earth, where nothing ſhall ever enter which defileth, and where our bliſs and glory will be eternal.

2. He exhorts them, in the proſpect of ſuch an inheritance,

(1.) To be faithful in their holy profeſſion. Wherefore, beloved, ſeeing that ye look for ſuch things, be diligent in the uſe of every appointed means of grace, and in all holy watchfulneſs, that ye may be found of him in peace, poſſeſſing a ſure intereſt in his love, without ſpot of ſin, and blameleſs in his preſence at that great day. Note, They are truly ſafe and happy for ever, whoſe conſciences are now purged through the Saviour's blood, and by the power of his grace.

(2.) Patiently to perſevere, though the time ſhould yet be diſtant. And account that the long-ſuffering of our Lord is ſalvation, and that the reaſon of his delay is for the benefit of his people's ſouls, that his elect may all be finally gathered in; even as our beloved brother Paul alſo, according to the wiſdom given unto him, hath written unto you; as alſo in all his epiſtles, ſpeaking in them of theſe things, of God's long-ſuffering, and the coming of the Lord to judgment; in which doctrines are ſome things hard to be underſtood, being of a ſublime and ſpiritual nature, which they that are unlearned and unſtable, who are not divinely taught of God, and whoſe principles are fluctuating and unſettled, wreſt and diſtort from their true meaning, as they do alſo the other Scriptures, unto their own deſtruction. Note, The more dangerous it is to be ignorant in the Scriptures, the more diligently ſhould we ſearch them, and pray God to enlighten our minds that we may be made wiſe unto ſalvation.

(3.) To beware of all deceivers. Ye therefore, beloved, ſeeing ye know theſe things before, that Chriſt will ſurely come and take vengeance of the ungodly, beware leſt ye alſo, being led away with the error of the wicked, by their flatteries and ſeductions, fall from your own ſtedfaſtneſs, and depart from the purity of that goſpel, which you have hitherto ſo nobly maintained. Note, (1.) When deluding teachers are at work, we need be deeply on our guard. (2.) They who fall into erroneous principles, grow ſoon unſettled in their practice, and ſhew the baleful influence of this poiſon.

(4.) To advance in the divine life. But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, gaining a deeper and more experimental acquaintance with his love, a more unſhaken dependance upon him, and an increaſe of every divine and ſpiritual diſpoſition in conſequence thereof.

3. He concludes with an aſcription of praiſe to the Divine Redeemer. To him be glory both now and for ever. May every creature in heaven and earth unite in ceaſeleſs worſhip, praiſe, and adoration to the great Immanuel! Amen!

THE

EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;

OR, A

PRACTICAL COMMENT

UPON THE

First General Epistle of JOHN.

THIS epiſtle is univerſally aſcribed to the apoſtle John, and it indeed contains in itſelf the fulleſt evidence, that it flowed from the ſame pen which wrote the Goſpel and Revelations. Though the preciſe time when he wrote is not certain, it ſeems, from chap. ii. 18. & iv. 1. to have been a little before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem. The epiſtle is ſtiled General, as not being addreſſed to any particular church, but to the body of Chriſtian believers throughout the world, in order to confirm their faith in the glory and divinity of the Lord Jeſus; to maintain the ſacred doctrines of his perſon and offices againſt heretical ſeducers; to quicken them to the practice of righteouſneſs and true holineſs; and to engage them to the exerciſe of fervent charity towards each; that, thus united, they might be preſerved from the world which lieth in wickedneſs, and come to the eternal enjoyment of their ever bleſſed God and Saviour.

CHAP. I.

Evidence given concerning Chriſt's perſon and excellency, ver. 1, 2. The knowledge thereof gives us communion with God and Chriſt, ver. 3. And joy, ver. 4. A deſcription of God, ver. 5. How we are thereupon to walk, ver. 6. The benefit of all ſuch walking, ver. 7. The way to forgiveneſs, ver 9. The evil of denying our ſin, ver. 8, 9, 10.

1. THAT [a] which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have ſeen with our eyes, [b] which we have looked upon, and [c] our hands have handled of the word of life; 2. (For the life [d] was manifeſted, and we have ſeen it, and [e] bear witneſs, and ſhew unto you [f] that eternal life, [g] which was with the Father, and was manifeſted unto us) 3. That which we have ſeen and heard declare we unto you, that ye alſo may have fellowſhip with us: and truly [h] our fellowſhip is with the Father, and with his Son Jeſus Chriſt. 4. And theſe things write we unto you, [i] that your joy may be full.

[a] John i. 1.

[b] John i. 14. 2 Pet. i. 16. Chap. iv. 14.

[c] Luke xxiv. 39. John xx. 27.

[d] 1 Tim. iii. 16.

[e] Chap. iv. 14.

[f] Chap. v. 20.

[g] John i. 1, 2.

[h] John xvii. 21. 1 Cor. i. 9. Chap. ii. 24.

[i] John xv. 11. & xvi. 24. 2 John 12.

v. 1—4. The bleſſed penman of this epiſtle immediately enters into his ſubject. Full of Chriſt, he breaks forth;

That which was from the beginning, that glorious and divine perſon, who from eternity as the Son, ſubſiſted with the Father in the ſame undivided eſſence, which, in the fulneſs of time, became incarnate, we have heard, preaching his everlaſting goſpel, which we have ſeen with our eyes, living and dying, which we have looked upon, attentively regarding him both before and after his reſurrection from the dead, and our hands have handled, ſo that we have the ſtrongeſt and moſt indubitable evidence of his true humanity, and of the reality of his reſurrection in the ſame body, which before his death he had aſſumed into perſonal union with himſelf, who emphatically bears the name of the word of life, being the fountain of natural life to every creature, and the giver of ſpiritual and eternal life to his redeemed people, (for the life, the Lord of life and glory, was manifeſted in the fleſh, and we have ſeen it, and bear witneſs, and ſhew unto you that eternal life, who from everlaſting exiſted in the unity of the Godhead, which was with the Father, one with him in co-eſſential glory, and was, in the fulneſs of time, according to the prophetic word, manifeſted to us in the human nature) that adored perſonage, which we have ſeen and heard, and concerning whom we are moſt inconteſtibly aſſured that our record is true, HIM we declare unto you, as God and Man in one Chriſt, as the only and all-ſufficient Saviour, through whom all bleſſings in time and eternity are obtained for his people; and we publiſh his offices, glory and goſpel, that ye alſo may have fellowſhip with us in all the ineſtimable privileges which he beſtows on his choſen, on us and all who believe on his name: and truly this communion is of the moſt tranſcendently-glorious nature, for our fellowſhip is with the Father himſelf, and with his Son Jeſus Chriſt, in and through whom we are admitted into the neareſt, moſt honourable and eternal union and friendſhip with the God of glory. And theſe things write we unto you, that your joy may be full, abounding with conſolation in the experience of the preſent invaluable privileges of pardon, adoption, and grace, and advancing to the perfection of joy in heaven, and to the pleaſures which are at God's right hand for evermore. Note, (1.) It is the dignity of every faithful ſoul that he is admitted into communion with God, and is one with Jeſus, as a member of his body myſtical. (2.) They who know the Saviour experimentally, as united to him in faith and love, have within them a fund of never-ending conſolation, a well of living waters ſpringing up into everlaſting life.

5. [k] This then is the meſſage which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that [l] God is light, and in him is no darkneſs at all. 6. [m] If we ſay that we have fellowſhip with him, and walk in darkneſs, we lye, and do

[k] Chap. iii. 11.

[l] John i. 9. & viii. 12. & ix. 5. & xii. 35, 36.

[m] 2 Cor. vi. 14. Chap. ii. 4.

do not the truth : 7. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowſhip one with another ; and [n] the blood of Jeſus Chriſt his Son cleanſeth us from all ſin.

[n] 1 Cor. vi. 11. Heb. ix. 14. 1 Pet. i. 19. Rev. i. 5.

v. 5—7. Having mentioned the Author of the everlaſting goſpel, the apoſtle paſſes on to the meſſage which they had received from him to deliver unto men.

1. Concerning God. This then is the meſſage which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light ; a Spirit abſolutely pure, infinite in all perfections, without the leaſt ſhadow or poſſibility of imperfection ; and in him is no darkneſs at all. Note, Our poor and finite ideas are unable adequately to comprehend the divine excellencies ; nay, angels before him vail their faces, for he dwelleth in that light which no creature can approach unto, ſo as fully to diſcern his glory. What we know of him is rather by removing every defect from him, and ſaying what he is not, rather than what he is.

2. Concerning thoſe who profeſſed to believe in him. [1.] If we ſay that we have fellowſhip with him, through the goſpel of his dear Son, and yet notwithſtanding walk in darkneſs, the allowed ſervants of ſin, which is ſo oppoſite to his eſſential purity, we lye, and do not the truth ; our falſhood is evident to his all-ſearching eye, and our practice contradicts our profeſſions, and proves our hypocriſy. But, [2.] if we walk in the light of truth and holineſs, under the guidance of his Spirit, and according to our Chriſtian profeſſion, as he is in the light, reſembling him in his communicable perfections ; then we have fellowſhip one with another ; we dwell in God, and God in us, enjoying the moſt diſtinguiſhing communion with him in ſpirit ; and the blood of Jeſus Chriſt his Son cleanſeth us from all ſin ; compleatly juſtified in God's ſight, free from all condemnation, and aſſured alſo that the being of ſin in us ſhall be ſhortly for ever rooted out. Bleſſed and happy are they whom this blood cleanſes, and who are admitted into this holy fellowſhip !

8. [o] If we ſay that we have no ſin, we deceive ourſelves, and the truth is not in us. 9. [p] If we confeſs our ſins, he is faithful and juſt to forgive us our ſins, and to cleanſe us from all unrighteouſneſs. 10. If we ſay that we have not ſinned, we make him a lyar, and his word is not in us.

[o] 1 Kings viii. 46. 2 Chron. vi. 36. Job xv. 14. Prov. xx. 9. Eccleſ. vii. 20. Jam. iii. 2.

[p] Pſ. xxxii. 5. Prov. xxviii. 13.

v. 8—10. The apoſtle, to prevent all miſconception, as if perfection were to be attained here below, plainly declares, that ſin ſtill cleaves to thoſe who are neareſt and deareſt to God. For,

1. If we ſay that we have no ſin, not that we never had, but that we have it not now ; if we, even the higheſt apoſtles, dare make ſuch an arrogant boaſt, we deceive ourſelves, and the truth is not in us ; we are under a moſt dangerous error and deluſion. And he repeats the admonition, v. 10. to guard more ſtrongly againſt all the pride of pretended perfectioniſts : If we ſay that we have not ſinned, we make him a lyar, by directly contradicting his truth ; becauſe being by nature corrupted creatures, we remain, and muſt remain whilſt in the body, imperfect ; and, if we deny it, his word is not in us, which every where ſuppoſes and declares us to be ſuch ; for if we were not, the exerciſe of faith in the atoning blood, and of daily repentance, would be at an end.

2. If we confeſs our ſins, and humbly, through faith in Jeſus Chriſt, apply for the promiſed mercy of God, he is faithful and juſt to forgive us our ſins : faithful to the covenant of grace, and to his promiſe made therein to the Redeemer on the behalf of his people ; juſt, becauſe having received the ranſom of atoning blood, it is become an act of juſtice to pardon thoſe who plead it, and to cleanſe them from all unrighteouſneſs. Note, Our acceptance with God ſtands not on the footing of mercy only, but is aſſured to us by that very perfection of holineſs which ſeemed moſt ſtrongly to militate againſt the ſinner's hope.

CHAP. II.

Here the apoſtle encourages againſt ſins of infirmity, ver. 1, 2. Shews the true knowledge and love of God, ver. 3—6. Renews the precept of fraternal love, ver. 7—11. Addreſſes Chriſtians of ſeveral ages, ver. 12—14. Warns againſt worldly love, ver. 15—17. Againſt ſeducers, ver. 18, 19. Shews the ſecurity of true Chriſtians, ver. 20—27. And adviſes to abide in Chriſt, ver. 28, 29.

1. MY little children, theſe things I write unto you, that ye ſin not. And if any man ſin, [a] we have an advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the righteous. 2. And [b] he is the propitiation for our ſins : and not for ours only, but [c] alſo for the ſins of the whole world. 3. And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. 4. [d] He that ſaith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a lyar, and the truth is not in him. 5. But [e] whoſo keepeth his word, [f] in him verily is the love of God perfected : [g] hereby know we that we are in him. 6. [h] He that ſaith he abideth in him, [i] ought himſelf alſo ſo to walk, even as he walked.

[a] Rom. viii. 34. 1 Tim. ii. 5. Heb. vii. 25. & ix. 24.

[b] Rom. iii. 25. 2 Cor. v. 18. Chap. iv. 10.

[c] John iv. 42. Chap. iv. 14.

[d] Chap. i. 6. & iv. 20.

[e] John xiv. 21, 23.

[f] Chap. iv. 12.

[g] Chap. iv. 13.

[h] John xv. 4.

[i] Mat. xi. 29. John xiii. 15. 1 Pet. ii. 21.

v. 1—6. We have here,

1. The deſign which the apoſtle chiefly aimed at in what he had written. My little children, whom I regard with the tendereſt ſenſations of paternal love, theſe things write I unto you, that ye ſin not ; watchful againſt every ſurprize and temptation, and never allowing yourſelves in the practice of it. And if any man, through the infirmity of his nature, be drawn aſide from the way of God's commandments, we have an advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the righteous, who ſhall ſtill plead our cauſe, when we with ſhame and ſorrow return to him, whoſe everlaſting righteouſneſs ſhall ſtand us in ſtead before the throne of God. And he is the abiding propitiation for our ſins, having made the full atonement, and obtained eternal redemption for us, paying that ranſom which is available not only for all paſt, but for all future tranſgreſſions to our lives end : and not for our ſins only, who were once, as Jews, his peculiar and covenant people ; but for the ſins of the whole world, of Gentile believers alſo, who are admitted to the participation of the ſame privileges, and become the children of God through faith in Jeſus Chriſt. Note, (1.) The advocacy of Jeſus is founded upon his everlaſting righteouſneſs, and perfect atonement, and therefore is ever available : no cauſe put into his hand can miſcarry. (2.) Whilſt with holy jealouſy we war againſt ſin, we muſt not, if at any time caſt down, ſink into deſpair : we have one before the throne, who ever liveth to make interceſſion for us, and God for his ſake will abundantly pardon. (3.) Chriſt's ſalvation is univerſal to ſinners of all ranks and nations, who come to God by him : none ſhall be in any wiſe caſt out.

2. The rule of judgment concerning our real knowledge of Chriſt. And hereby we do know that we know him, and have the fulleſt demonſtration of our real acquaintance with him, and of our genuine faith and love, if we keep his commandments, and unreſervedly yield up ourſelves to be guided by his holy word and will He that ſaith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, living in the allowed and habitual practice of iniquity, is a lyar, and the truth is not in him, however confident his boaſts may be, and however high his pretenſions. But whoſo keepeth his word, in doctrine and practice, faithfully deſiring to correſpond therewith in all things, in him verily is the love of God perfected ; its prevailing influence, and unfeigned ſincerity is hereby manifeſted ; and by this know we that we are in him ; vitally united to the living head, eternally intereſted in all the privileges of his goſpel, in which the hypocrite hath neither part nor lot. He that ſaith he abideth in him, ought himſelf alſo ſo to walk, even as he walked ; copying the divine pattern, and, though at an humble diſtance, following the footſteps of the holy Jeſus. Note, The profeſſion of Chriſtianity, without the practice of true godlineſs, is but an empty name. They who are truly Chriſt's, will prove it not only in their lips, but by their lives.

7. Brethren, [k] I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment [l] which ye had from the beginning : the old commandment is the word which ye have heard from the beginning. 8. Again, [m] a new commandment I write unto you, which thing is true in him and in you : becauſe [n] the darkneſs is paſt, and [o] the true light now ſhineth. 9. [p] He that ſaith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkneſs even until now. 10. [q] He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and [r] there is none occaſion of † ſtumbling in him. 11. But he that hateth his brother is in darkneſs, and [s] walketh in darkneſs, and knoweth not whither he goeth, becauſe that darkneſs hath blinded his eyes.

[k] 2 John 5.

[l] Chap. iii. 11. 2 John 5.

[m] John xiii. 34.

[n] Rom. xiii. 12. 1 Theſ. v. 5, 8.

[o] John i. 9. & viii. 12.

[p] 1 Cor. xiii. 2. 2 Pet. i. 9. Chap. iii. 14, 15.

[q] Chap. iii. 14.

[r] 2 Pet. i. 10.

† Or ſcandal.

[s] John xii. 35.

v. 7—11. The apoſtle, as the moſt diſtinguiſhing character of true diſcipleſhip, and the great command of the divine Maſter, earneſtly inculcates the great duty of brotherly love.

Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but remind you of an old commandment which ye had from the beginning ; written upon the heart of man in innocence, and enforced in that revelation which God from the firſt made unto men. The old commandment is the word which ye have heard from the beginning, wherein love is enjoined as the fulfilling of the law. Again a new commandment I write unto you, the ſame indeed in ſubſtance, but enforced by new motives, encouragements, aſſiſtances, and examples ; which thing is true in him and in you ; manifeſted moſt ſtrikingly in that divine pattern of love which he ſet before you, and which you have in a gracious meaſure humbly imitated. Becauſe the darkneſs of the former diſpenſation is paſt, and the true light now ſhineth, the Sun of righteouſneſs is ariſen, and the ſhadows are fled, the glorious goſpel bringing us forth as it were into the meridian light of truth, and demanding from us a converſation ſuitable to the peculiar advantages which we enjoy.

He that ſaith he is in the light, and profeſſes faith in Jeſus, the light of the world, and hateth his brother, is in darkneſs even until now, a ſtranger to the godlike ſpirit of charity which the goſpel breathes, and covered with the black night of ſin and error. He that loveth his brother, as a fellow-member of Chriſt's myſtical body, and becauſe he is the child of the ſame heavenly Father, abideth in the light of truth, and there is no occaſion of ſtumbling in him; he will carefully avoid whatever would offend or weaken his brother's ſoul. But he that hateth his brother, and harbours an uncharitable, envious, proud, and revengeful diſpoſition, is in darkneſs, under the evident dominion of Satan and ſin; and walketh in darkneſs, all his ways being perverſe before God; and knoweth not whither he goeth, nor is aware of the dreadful iſſue of his ways, becauſe that the darkneſs of his fallen heart hath blinded his eyes to all the dire conſequences of ſin. Note, (1.) Charity is the diſtinguiſhing characteriſtic of the Chriſtian. (2.) If there be a creature living, againſt whom we harbour allowed envy, malice, or revenge, in whoſe miſery we ſhould delight, or whoſe good we deſire not to promote, we brand ourſelves the children of darkneſs.

12. I write to you, little children, becauſe [t] your ſins are forgiven you for his name's ſake. 13. I write unto you, fathers, becauſe ye have known him that is from the beginning. I write unto you, young men, becauſe ye have overcome the wicked one. I write unto you, little children, becauſe ye have known the Father. 14. I have written unto you, fathers, becauſe ye have known him that is from the beginning. I have written unto you, young men, becauſe [u] ye are ſtrong, and the word of God abideth in you, and [x] ye have overcome the wicked one. 15. Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. [y] If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. 16. For all that is in the world, [z] the luſt of the fleſh, and [a] the luſt of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world 17. And [b] the world paſſeth away, and the luſt thereof: but he that doth the will of God abideth for ever.

[t] Luke xxiv. 47. Acts iv. 12. & x. 43. & xiii. 38.
[u] Eph. vi. 10.
[x] Ver. 13. Chap. iv. 4.
[y] Mat. vi. 24. Jam. iv. 4.
[z] Rom. xiii. 14.
[a] Eccleſ. v. 12.
[b] 1 Cor. vii. 31. Jam. i. 10. 1 Pet. i. 24.

v. 12—17. The great duty of love is equally the concern of all ranks and degrees of Chriſtians, whatever their ſeveral attainments may be in the divine life.

1. He addreſſes himſelf to Chriſtians in every ſtage of their profeſſion.

I write unto you, little children, and as a powerful incentive to the exerciſe of charity, urge this duty upon you, becauſe your ſins are forgiven you for his name's ſake; and having much forgiven, you ſhould love much. Note, The loweſt in the Chriſtian life hath received the free and full pardon of all their ſins, this being the firſt great privilege of the goſpel, of which every babe in Chriſt is immediately a partaker.

I write unto you, fathers, becauſe ye have known him that is from the beginning, and by long acquaintance with his grace and love, are peculiarly called and engaged to ſhew the ſame divine charity to others; and none are ſo far advanced, as leſs to need the word of exhortation.

I write unto you, young men, becauſe ye have overcome the wicked one, and have been made more than conquerors over ſin, and Satan, and the world, through him that loved you. And to impreſs more deeply my exhortation, I repeat my words,

I write unto you, little children, becauſe ye have known the Father; and, young as you are in the Chriſtian life, have taſted of the goodneſs and love of your heavenly Father. I have written unto you, fathers, grown old in the happy experience of the good ways of Chriſt, becauſe ye have known him that is from the beginning, and entered deep into the myſteries of his everlaſting grace, and his tranſcendent excellencies. I have written unto you, young men, becauſe ye are ſtrong in faith and knowledge, and the exerciſe of every heavenly temper; and the word of God abideth in you, Chriſt being formed in your hearts, and his goſpel dwelling in you richly, and influencing all your converſation; and ye have overcome the wicked one, and hitherto effectually defeated all his efforts againſt your ſouls, and will, I truſt, go on ſtill conquering and to conquer; and bleſſed are they who are thus ſtrong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

2. He ſolemnly warns them all, whatever their ſeveral attainments may be, to beware of this preſent evil world. Love not the world, ſet not your affections thereon; neither inordinately ſeek, nor be immoderately delighted with, the things that are in the world. If any man ſupremely love the world, and ſet his heart upon it, as his home and his happineſs, the love of the Father is not in him; it is evident that ſuch an one is not the object of his choice and regard; hath never experienced a ſenſe of his love, nor felt any real heart-attachment to God in Chriſt, as his portion and exceeding great joy. For all that is in the world, to engage and ſeduce the heart from God, the luſt of the fleſh, whatever miniſters to the lawleſs gratification of appetite, and leads to exceſs, ſloth, intemperance, luxury, drunkenneſs, revellings, and every kind of impurity; and the luſt of the eyes, the gain, poſſeſſions, wealth, and glittering riches which the covetous eye gazes upon with ſuch rapture, and eager deſire after them; and the pride of life, the pomp and ſplendor of titles, ſhew, equipage, honours, magnificence, which gratify the vanity, and inflame the ambition of the fallen mind; of all and either of theſe we muſt ſay, that it is not of the Father; worldly things were not given to be thus abuſed, nor are theſe the objects on which God's children place their affections; but we know, that each of theſe things is of the world; they are the flattering baits which the god of this world, the devil, ſpreads to enſnare the ſenſual and earthly hearts of fallen men, and to ſeduce them from their true Lord and Maſter. And the world paſſeth away, and the luſt thereof; great and deſireable as the things of it appear in the eye of ſenſe, they are poor, periſhing, unſatisfactory in the enjoyment, and tranſitory; often in time flying our graſp, and certainly at death muſt fail us: but he that doth the will of God abideth for ever; hath a more enduring ſubſtance; his fidelity to death ſhall be crowned with immortal life and glory; his pleaſures in eternity ſhall be infinitely ſuperior to all the delights of ſenſe; and his inheritance above incorruptible, undefiled, and which fadeth not away. Oh! that thou mayeſt be wiſe, reader, and learn to weigh time and eternity, this world and the next, in the balances of the ſanctuary!

18. Little children, [c] it is the laſt time: and as ye have heard that [d] antichriſt ſhall come, [e] even now are there many antichriſts; [f] whereby we know that it is the laſt time. 19. [g] They went out from us, but they were not of us: for [h] if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us: but they went out, that they might [i] be made manifeſt that they were not all of us. 20. But [k] ye have an unction from the Holy One, and [l] ye know all things. 21. I have not written unto you, becauſe ye know not the truth: but becauſe ye know it, and that no lye is of the truth. 22. [m] Who is a lyar but he that denieth that Jeſus is the Chriſt? he is antichriſt that denieth the Father and the Son. 23. [n] Whoſoever denieth the Son, the ſame hath not the Father: (but) [o] he that acknowledgeth the Son, hath the Father alſo. 24. Let that therefore abide in you [p] which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning ſhall remain in you, [q] ye alſo ſhall continue in the Son and in the Father. 25. [r] And this is the promiſe that he hath promiſed us, even eternal life. 26. Theſe things have I written unto you [s] concerning them that ſeduce you. 27. But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you; and [t] ye need not that any man teach you: but, as the ſame anointing [u] teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lye: and even as it hath taught you, ye ſhall abide in † him.

[c] Heb. i. 2.
[d] 2 Theſ. ii. 3, &c. Chap. iv. 3. 2 John 7.
[e] Mat. xxiv. 5, 24.
[f] 1 Tim. iv. 1. 2 Tim. iii. 1.
[g] Deut. xiii. 13. Acts xx. 30.
[h] Mat. xxiv. 24. John vi. 37. & x. 28, 29. 2 Tim. ii. 19.
[i] 1 Cor. xi. 19.
[k] 2 Cor. i. 21. Heb. i. 9. Ver. 27.
[l] John xiv. 26. & xvi. 13. Ver. 27.
[m] Chap. iv. 3. 2 John 7.
[n] John xv. 23. 2 John 9.
[o] John viii. 19. & xiv. 9. Chap. iv. 15.
[p] 2 John 6.
[q] John xiv. 23. Chap. i. 3.
[r] John xvii. 3. Chap, i. 2. & v. 11.
[s] Chap. iii. 7. 2 John 7.
[t] Jer. xxxi. 33, 34. Heb. viii. 10, 11.
[u] John xiv. 26. & xvi. 13. Ver. 20.
† Or, it.

v. 18—27. As the myſtery of iniquity had begun already to work, the apoſtle,

1. Reminds them, that the Jewiſh diſpenſation was now ready to expire utterly with the deſtruction of their temple, city, and nation. Little children, it is the laſt time: and as ye have heard that Antichriſt ſhall come, even now are there many Antichriſts; either thoſe who among the Jewiſh people ſet up themſelves for the Meſſiah; or rather, who under the Chriſtian profeſſion oppoſed and denied the perſon, offices, and goſpel of Chriſt; broaching their heretical tenets, and perverting many from the truth. They went out from us, from our communion and ſociety; but they were not of us, nor had ever truly been renewed by grace: for if they had been of us, and partakers of the like precious faith with us, they would no doubt have continued with us, and perſevered in the principles and practice of the goſpel: but they went out, that they might be made manifeſt that they were not all of us, but from the beginning were falſe-hearted profeſſors, who never taſted of the grace of God in truth. Note, They who fall away finally, we may aſſuredly conclude, never were truly converted, whatever ſpecious profeſſions they might have made.

2. He encourages them to truſt, and not be afraid, ſince no ſeducers ſhould ever be able to move them from their ſtedfaſtneſs. But ye have an unction from the Holy One, from the Spirit of grace and truth, which through the exalted Saviour hath been beſtowed upon you; and ye know all things neceſſary to preſerve you from the wiles of deceivers, and to bring you to everlaſting ſalvation. I have not written unto you, becauſe ye know not the truth; but becauſe ye know it, and are eſtabliſhed in the principles of the goſpel, and the fundamental doctrines of Chriſt; and know that no lye is of the truth, but the very reverſe, and proves the hypocriſy and apoſtacy of thoſe who by fraud and error would ſupport their heretical doctrines. Note, They who are truly taught of God ſhall be preſerved from every fatal deluſion.

3. He particularly points out theſe ſeducers, by their tenets. Who is a lyar, and to be deemed an impoſtor, but he that denieth that Jeſus is the Chriſt, rejecting him as the true Meſſiah? He is antichriſt, and bears the brand of this hateful name, that denieth the Father and the Son, either confounding the perſons in the Godhead, or dividing the ſubſtance; or denying that flood of evidence, wherewith God the Father hath borne witneſs to the miſſion and incarnation of his dear Son. Whoſoever denieth the Son, his perſonality and eſſential Deity, or the office he bears as Mediator, the ſame hath not the Father, holds not the true doctrine of the perſons in the undivided Godhead, and of the relation which God the Father bears to God the Son; and therein denies all that revelation which he hath made of pardon and reconciliation, through the ſubſtitution of the incarnate Redeemer: but he that acknowledges the Son, hath the Father alſo; he that receives the Lord Jeſus by faith as the only Saviour, and confeſſes him to be the eternal Son of God, he hath the true knowledge of God the Father, and an intereſt in his favour and love.

[The laſt clauſe of this text is wanting in many editions, but appears in others, of great authority, and is admitted into our verſion, though marked with Italics, as a ſupplement which elucidates the foregoing part of the verſe.]

4. He exhorts them to cleave to the old truth, for novelty of doctrine is the ſure proof of error. Let that therefore abide in you which ye have heard from the beginning, when the goſpel was firſt preached unto you. If that which ye have heard from the beginning ſhall remain in you, ye alſo ſhall continue in the Son and in the Father, and holding the profeſſion of your faith unwavering, ſhall enjoy the moſt happy communion with the Father through the Son, until you come to his kingdom in glory. And this is the promiſe that he hath promiſed us, even eternal life, which he will infallibly fulfil to thoſe who abide in him, and will bring them to the beatific viſion and enjoyment of his bleſſed ſelf for ever and ever.

5. He mentions one great purpoſe of this epiſtle. Theſe things have I written unto you concerning them that labour to ſeduce and pervert you from the ſimplicity which is in Chriſt. But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, the Spirit which he hath given you ſhall continue to teach, direct, and lead you aright; and ye need not that any man teach you; cannot want the help of theſe pretended wiſe men to inſtruct you above what is written: but, as the ſame anointing teacheth you of all things, and hath opened your eyes to ſee in the revealed world all things that pertain unto life and godlineſs, and is truth, and is no lye, but directly contrary to the ſpirit of error which actuates theſe ſeducers: and even as it hath taught you, ye ſhall abide in him, your living head, and continue under the bleſſed influence and guidance of his truth and grace unto the end.

28. And now, little children, abide in him; that [x] when he ſhall appear we may have confidence, [y] and not be aſhamed before him at his coming. 29. [z] If ye know that he is righteous, ye know that [a] every one that doth righteouſneſs is born of him.

[x] Chap. iii. 2.
[y] Chap. iv. 17.
[z] Acts xxii. 14.
[a] Chap. iii. 7, 10.

v. 28, 29. From what he had ſaid, the apoſtle cloſes with this affectionate exhortation to them:

And now, little children, abide in him, maintaining the cloſeſt communion with Jeſus, and walking in the lively exerciſe of faith and hope, and love towards him, unmoved from the doctrines of his goſpel by the wiles of deceivers; that when he ſhall appear on the throne of judgment at the laſt day, we may have confidence and boldneſs to appear in his preſence, and not be aſhamed before him at his coming, when we your miniſters ſhall not be diſappointed of our hopes, but meet you as our joy and crown, and, together with you, ſtand forth without fault, and blameleſs, acknowledged by him as his people, and admitted into the joy of our Lord. If, or ſince, ye know that he is righteous, perfectly righteous himſelf, the lover and author of all righteouſneſs in his redeemed, ye know that every one that doth righteouſneſs is born of him, and thereby gives a demonſtration that he is a partaker of a divine nature, and hath the poſſeſſion of ſpiritual life, which is the pledge of that which will be eternal. Note, (1.) They only will have boldneſs in a day of judgment who are found in Chriſt, and perſeveringly cleave to him. (2.) Everlaſting ſhame and contempt will cover thoſe, who ungratefully, unfaithfully, and perverſely have departed from the truth, and ſhall be diſowned of Jeſus in the day of his appearing and glory. (3.) The evidence of a divine nature muſt be manifeſted in a good converſation; for whatever conceits men may entertain of themſelves, it is by their fruits they muſt be known.

CHAP. III.

The apoſtle here magnifies the love of God in our adoption, ver. 1, 2. He thereupon argues for holineſs, ver. 3. and againſt ſin, ver. 4—10. He preſſeth brotherly love, ver. 11—18. How to aſſure our hearts before God, ver. 19—22. The precept of faith, ver. 23. And the good of obedience, ver. 24.

1. Behold what manner of love the Father hath beſtowed upon us, that [a] we ſhould be called the ſons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, [b] becauſe it knew him not. 2. Beloved, [c] now are we the ſons of God, and [d] it doth not yet appear what we ſhall be: but we know that, when he ſhall appear, [e] we ſhall be like him; for [f] we ſhall ſee him as he is. 3. And [g] every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himſelf, even as he is pure.

[a] John i. 12.
[b] John xv. 18. & xvi. 3. & xvii. 25.
[c] Iſa. lvi. 5. Rom. viii. 15. Gal. iii. 26. & iv. 6.
[d] Rom. viii. 18. 2 Cor. iv. 17.
[e] 1 Cor. xv. 49. Phil. iii. 21. Col. iii. 4.
[f] Job xix. 26. 1 Cor. xiii. 12.
[g] 2 Pet. i. 4.

v. 1—3. The apoſtle here,

1. Breaks forth with admiration in the view of the love of God towards his people. Behold, with wonder and amaze, what manner of love the Father hath beſtowed upon us in Jeſus Chriſt, that we, by nature and practice ſo vile, corrupt, and ſinful, ſhould, notwithſtanding, be adopted into his family, and be called the ſons of God, advanced to that tranſcendent dignity and honour: therefore the world, who have their minds wholly engroſſed with ſenſible objects, and have no diſcernment of ſpiritual things, knoweth us not; far from eſteeming and valuing us, they deride and perſecute us for that image which we bear, becauſe it knew him not, they are ignorant of God; and when this Son appeared incarnate, they nailed him to a tree. Note, (1.) The meaneſt child of God hath a dignity infinitely greater than the firſt-born of princes. (2.) It will be matter of everlaſting wonder and praiſe to the redeemed, that ever God ſhould ſet his love upon them. (3.) If we are treated with deriſion and contempt by this wicked world, we ſhould remember the croſs which Jeſus bore, and be aſhamed to murmur.

2. He declares the high expectations of God's children. Beloved, now are we the ſons of God; this is our preſent honour; and it doth not yet appear what we ſhall be; greater bleſſedneſs is in ſtore for us than eye hath ſeen, or ear heard, or it hath entered into the heart of man to conceive: but we know that, when he ſhall appear, who is our head, even Chriſt, we ſhall be with him, admitted to his preſence, and partakers of all his glory; for we ſhall ſee him as he is, and our bodies as well as ſouls ſhall be faſhioned after his bright image. Note, The day of judgment will be a day of triumph to every redeemed ſoul; then at leaſt they ſhall be perfected in holineſs and happineſs for ever.

3. Such a hope cannot but have the moſt powerful influence upon our conduct. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himſelf, even as he is pure, ſetting Chriſt's glorious pattern before him, and earneſtly deſirous to obtain a holy conformity to him in all things. Note, The hope that doth not lead us to holineſs, is but the hope of the hypocrite, which periſheth.

4. Whoſoever committeth ſin, tranſgreſſeth alſo the law: for [h] ſin is the tranſgreſſion of the law. 5. And ye know that [i] he was manifeſted [k] to take away our ſins; and [l] in him is no ſin. 6. Whoſoever abideth in him ſinneth not: [m] whoſoever ſinneth hath not ſeen him, neither known him. 7. Little children, [n] let no man deceive you: [o] He that doth righteouſneſs is righteous, even as he is righteous: 8. [p] He that committeth ſin is of the devil; for the devil ſinneth from the beginning.
For this purpoſe [q] the Son of God was manifeſted, that he might deſtroy the works of the devil. 9. [r] Whoſo-ever is born of God, doth not commit ſin; for [s] his ſeed remaineth in him: and he cannot ſin, becauſe he is born of God. 10. In this the children of God are manifeſt, and the children of the devil: Whoſoever doth not righteouſneſs is not of God, [t] neither he that loveth not his brother.

[h] Rom. iv. 15. Chap. v. 17.
[i] Chap. i. 2.
[k] Iſa. liii. 6, &c. 1 Tim. i. 15. Heb. ix. 26.
[l] 2 Cor. v. 21. Heb. iv. 15. 1 Pet. ii. 22.
[m] Chap. ii. 4. & iv. 8. 3 John 2.
[n] Chap. ii. 26.
[o] Rom. ii. 13. Chap. ii. 29.
[p] Mat. xiii. 38. John viii. 44.
[q] Ver. 5.
[r] Chap. v. 18.
[s] 1 Pet. i. 23.
[t] Chap. iv. 8.

v. 4—10. Nothing can more ſtrongly urge the believer to ſtrive againſt ſin, than the arguments which the apoſtle here urges upon him.

1. Sin is the breach of God's holy law. Whoſoever committeth ſin, tranſgreſſeth alſo the law: for ſin is the tranſgreſſion of the law. Every deviation from that perfect rule brings guilt upon the conſcience, and ſo far clouds our hope; and where ſin is the allowed practice, there all hope towards God muſt be deluſion.

2. The very end of Chriſt's redemption was to cleanſe us from all iniquity. And ye know that he was manifeſted in the fleſh on purpoſe to take away our ſins, both the guilt of them from the conſcience, and to break the power of them in our hearts; and in him is no ſin: all therefore, who belong to him, muſt ſhew that the deſign of his incarnation is anſwered reſpecting them in their deliverance from the bondage of corruption, and in their growing conformity to his bleſſed image.

3. An allowed and habitual courſe of ſin is utterly contradictory to real union with Chriſt. Whoſoever abideth in him, as the branch in the vine, deriving conſtant ſupplies of grace out of his fulneſs, ſinneth not with freedom, choice, delight, and perſeverance, but hates ſin as the greateſt evil, and deſires to keep at the greateſt diſtance from it: whoſoever ſinneth, determinedly, with ſatisfaction, and full purpoſe to abide in the practice of it, hath not ſeen him, neither known him, but is an utter ſtranger to Chriſt, and his great ſalvation.

4. It is the moſt fatal deceit to imagine, that without the practice of righteouſneſs we can be ever like him or with him. Little children, let no man deceive you with any vain ſuggeſtions: he that doth righteouſneſs, in the conſtant and habitual courſe of his temper and conduct, and conſcientiouſly towards God and man deſires to be found without offence, he is righteous, even as he is righteous, and thus reſembles in a meaſure the Holy One of God.

5. The allowed and avowed practice of ſin is a virtual compact with the devil, and renunciation of Jeſus Chriſt. He that committeth ſin, as his trade, delight, and choice, is of the devil, bears his image, and is under his influence, for the devil ſinneth from the beginning, was the author of evil, and continues to ſpread the dreadful poiſon; having tempted angels from their allegiance, and ſeduced man in paradiſe, with unrelenting malice he perſiſts in labouring for men's eternal ruin. For this purpoſe the Son of God was manifeſted that he might deſtroy the works of the devil, and reſcue his people from Satan's hateful power, breaking his yoke from off their neck now, and by and by deſtroying the very being of ſin in them; all who are his choſen, therefore, experience his power, and are delivered from the bonds of the wicked one.

6. Every regenerate ſoul cannot but renounce his connection with iniquity. Whoſoever is born of God, doth not commit ſin; 'tis contrary to that divine nature which he hath received; and he can never ſin in the ſame manner that he did before; for his ſeed remaineth in him; he has that principle of grace implanted in his heart, that makes ſin odious and hateful to him: and he cannot ſin; not that he is literally impeccable, but that the new nature he hath received is utterly averſe to it, oppoſes the carnal mind, and never ſuffers him to reſt under the power of evil, becauſe he is born of God.

7. In this the children of God are manifeſt, and the children of the devil; their works always evidence what ſpirit is in them: whoſoever doth not righteouſneſs is not of God, hath no part nor lot in his kingdom, neither he that loveth not his brother; theſe two things, neglect of godlineſs, and an uncharitable ſpirit, are the ſure brands of ſatan's ſlaves.

11. For [u] this is the meſſage that ye heard from the beginning, that [x] we ſhould love one another. 12. Not as [y] Cain, who was of that wicked one, and ſlew his brother: And wherefore ſlew he him? [z] Becauſe his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous. 13. Marvel not, my brethren, if [a] the world hate you. 14. [b] We know that we have paſſed from death unto life, becauſe we love the brethren: [c] he that loveth not his brother abideth in death. 15. [d] Whoſoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that [e] no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him. 16. [f] Hereby perceive we the love of God, becauſe he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. 17. But [g] whoſoever hath this world's good, and ſeeth his brother have need, and ſhutteth up his bowels of compaſſion from him, [h] how dwelleth the love of God in him? 18. My little children, [i] let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth. 19. And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and ſhall † aſſure our hearts before him. 20. For if our heart condemn us, [k] God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things. 21. Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, [l] then have we confidence towards God. 22. And [m] whatſoever we aſk, we receive of him, becauſe we keep his commandments, and do thoſe things that are pleaſing in his ſight.

[u] Chap. i. 5. & ii. 7.
[x] John xiii. 34. & xv. 12. Ver. 23. 2 John 5.
[y] Gen. iv. 8.
[z] Gen. iv. 4, 5. Heb. xi. 4.
[a] John xv. 18. & xvii. 14. 2 Tim. iii. 12.
[b] Chap. ii. 10.
[c] Chap. ii. 9, 11.
[d] Mat. v. 22. Chap. iv. 20.
[e] Gal. v. 21.
[f] John iii. 16. & xv. 13. Rom. v. 8. Eph. v. 2. Chap. iv. 9.
[g] Deut. xv. 7. Jam. ii. 15.
[h] Chap. iv. 20.
[i] Ezek. xxxiii. 31. Rom. xii. 9. 1 Pet. i. 22.
† Gr. perſuade.
[k] 1 Cor. iv. 4.
[l] Heb. x. 22. Chap. iv. 17.
[m] Pſ. x. 17. & xxxiv. 17. Jer. xxix. 12. Mat. xxi. 22. John xiv. 13. & xv. 7. & xvi. 23. Jam. v. 16. Chap. v. 14.

v. 11—22. The apoſtle having mentioned the want of brotherly love as the ſure evidence of excluſion from God's favour, enforces the practice of that moſt excellent of graces, charity. For,

1. This is the meſſage that ye heard from the beginning, and one of the chief precepts of the Redeemer, that we ſhould love one another.

2. He mentions the dire example of the wicked Cain, to ſhew the hatefulneſs of ſuch a ſpirit as he poſſeſſed. Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, a child of the devil, and ſlew his brother: And wherefore ſlew he him? Becauſe his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous, and he could not bear the rebukes of his pious example, and the approbation which God teſtified of Abel's ſacrifice, when his own was rejected. And if this was the caſe ſo early, and the enmity between the ſeed of the woman and the ſeed of the ſerpent appeared then ſo malignant, marvel not, my brethren, that the world hate you; the ſame diabolical nature will produce exactly ſimilar effects. Note, (1.) Anger, envy, and hatred in the heart, is murder begun. (2.) We need not wonder at the world's enmity; ſuch is the lot of all the ſaints.

3. Brotherly love is the ſure proof of our ſpiritual life. We know that we have paſſed from death unto life, becauſe we love the brethren; to love them as children of God, and for the ſake of him whoſe image they bear, evidences the life of God in our own ſouls.

4. The contrary is as ſure a ſign of the remaining power of ſpiritual death over the ſoul. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death, in a ſtate of nature, and of wrath under the curſe of the law. For whoſoever hateth his brother, is, in the eye of the law, a murderer: and ye know that no murderer, who continues under the power of his malignant ſpirit, hath eternal life abiding in him, nor the leaſt proſpect of attaining it; eternal death is the wages of his ſin.

5. The love of Jeſus to us ſhould engage our love to our brethren. Hereby pereceive we the love of God the Son towards us, becauſe he laid down his life for us on the accurſed tree; an inſtance of love ſo ſtupendous, as paſſes all underſtanding: and we, animated by ſuch an example, ought, if duty ſo requires, to lay down our lives for the brethren; and if our lives muſt readily be offered for their ſervice, how much more our ſubſtance, when their neceſſities call for our relief? But whoſo hath this world's good, and ſeeth his brother have need, and ſhutteth up his bowels of compaſſion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? Such a conduct muſt neceſſarily ſhew the abſence of that divine principle, and prove the hypocriſy of every pretenſion to the high relation of children of God. My little children, let us not love in word, nor in tongue, merely, but give the more ſubſtantial evidences of our charity in deed and in truth, acting according to our profeſſions, with an open hand and open heart towards every Chriſtian brother, for his ſake whoſe love we in common ſhare.

6. And hereby we know that we are of the truth; ſuch a converſation demonſtrates the reality of our intereſt in the redemption which is in Jeſus Chriſt, and ſhall aſſure our hearts before him, bearing witneſs to our ſimplicity and godly ſincerity, and giving us rejoicing in the teſtimony of our conſcience. For if our heart condemn us of allowed hypocriſy, and we cannot ſtand before our own tribunal within, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things, and muſt therefore much more condemn us, as his piercing eyes can diſcover hidden iniquities which we paſs by unregarded. Beloved, if our hearts condemn us not, not the ſtupified hearts, and ſeared conſciences of the unregenerate, but the enlightened minds of the faithful, where, tho' many infirmities may be ſeen and lamented, allowed guile is not harboured, this conſciouſneſs of our ſimplicity gives an humble boldneſs to the ſoul, and then have we confidence towards God, a holy freedom and liberty of ſoul in our approaches to a throne of grace. And whatſoever we aſk, we receive of him, becauſe we keep his commandments, and do thoſe things that are pleaſing in his ſight, aſking always according to his will, and aiming at his glory in all our converſation.

23. And [n] this is his commandment, that we ſhould believe on the name of his Son Jeſus Chriſt, [o] and love one another, [p] as he gave us commandment. 24. And [q] he that keepeth his commandments [r] dwelleth in him, and he in him: and [s] hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us.

[n] John vi. 29. & xvii. 3.
[o] Eph. v. 2. 1 Theſ. iv. 9. 1 Pet. iv. 8. Ver. 11. Chap. iv. 21.
[p] John xiii. 34. & xv. 12.
[q] John xiv. 23. & xv. 10. Chap. iv. 12.
[r] John xvii. 21.
[s] Rom. viii. 9. Chap. iv. 13.

v. 23, 24. We have here,

1. The great commandments of the goſpel. And this his commandment, (1.) That we ſhould believe on the name of his Son Jeſus Chriſt, as the only and all-ſufficient Saviour of loſt ſinners, renouncing every other hope and dependence, and with ſatiſfaction reſting our ſouls on him for pardon and acceptance with God; and, (2.) That we ſhould, in conſequence of faith in him, love one another, as he gave us commandment, exerciſing the moſt enlarged, unfeigned, and cordial affection towards all the members of his body myſtical in particular, and ſhewing a general benevolence to mankind.

2. Great will be the bleſſedneſs reſulting from hence. And he that keepeth his commandments, from this principle of faith which worketh by love, dwelleth in him, and he in him, abiding in a ſtate of vital union with the exalted Jeſus: and hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us, whoſe mighty energy effectually influences our hearts and conduct, and who bears witneſs to his own work to our increaſing comfort and joy.

CHAP. IV.

In this chapter the apoſtle exhorts to try ſpirits, ver. 1. Gives a note to try by, ver. 2, 3. Shews who are of the world, and who of God, ver. 4—6. Urges Chriſtian love by divers conſiderations, ver. 7—16. Deſcribes our love to God, and the effect of it, ver. 17—21.

1. BEloved, [a] believe not every ſpirit, but [b] try the ſpirits whether they are of God: becauſe [c] many falſe prophets are gone out into the world. 2. Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: [d] every ſpirit that confeſſeth that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh, is of God. 3. And [e] every ſpirit that confeſſeth not that Jeſus Chriſt is come in

[a] Jer. xxix. 8. Mat. vii. 15. & xxiv. 4.
[b] 1 Theſ. v. 21.
[c] Mat. xxiv. 5, 24. 1 Tim. iv. 1. 2 Pet. ii. 1. 2 John 7.
[d] 1 Cor. xii. 3. Chap. v. 1.
[e] Chap. ii. 22. 2 John 7.

in the fleſh, is not of God: and this is that ſpirit of antichriſt [f] whereof you have heard that it ſhould come, and [g] even now already is it in the world.

f 2 Theſ. ii. 7.
g Chap. ii. 18.

v. 1—3. The apoſtle,

1. Warns them againſt ſeducing teachers. Beloved, believe not every ſpirit, nor credit raſhly each pretender to inſpiration; but try the Spirits, by the infallible oracles of truth, whether they are of God, and ſpeak agreeable to his revealed will: becauſe many falſe prophets are gone out into the world, and we need be on our guard, proving all things, and holding faſt that which is good.

2. He gives them a certain rule to direct their judgment in this matter. Hereby know ye the Spirit of God, and thoſe who are influenced by it: every Spirit that confeſſeth that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh, or that confeſſeth Jeſus Chriſt who is come in the fleſh, receiving him in his divine perſon and mediatorial character and offices, as the true Meſſiah, from whom alone life and ſalvation are to be expected, he is of God, and ſpeaks according to his mind and will. And every ſpirit that confeſſeth not that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh, but denies his divine glory, his real incarnation, and mediatorial undertaking, is not of God, but is under the ſpirit of ſatan and deluſion: and this is that ſpirit of antichriſt, that is enmity againſt Chriſt and his goſpel, whereof you have heard that it ſhould come, and even now already is it in the world, the myſtery of iniquity having already begun to work, and woe to thoſe over whom it prevails!

4. Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome them: becauſe greater is he that is in you than [g] he that is in the world. 5. [h] They are of the world: therefore ſpeak they of the world, and [i] the world heareth them. 6. We are of God: [k] he that knoweth God, heareth us; he that is not of God, heareth not us. Hereby know we [l] the Spirit of truth, and the ſpirit of error.

g John xii. 31. 1 Cor. ii. 12. Eph. ii. 2. & vi. 12.
h John iii. 31.
i John xv. 19. & xvii. 14.
k John viii. 47. & x. 27. 1 Cor. xiv. 37. 2 Cor. x. 7.
l Iſa. viii. 20. John xiv. 17.

v. 4—6. To encourage them againſt the fears of being drawn aſide by ſeducers, the apoſtle,

1. Aſſures them, that as they belonged to God, they were ſafe. Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome them hitherto, and ſhall be ſtill ſuperior to all their arts: becauſe greater is he that is in you than he that is in the world, and he will preſerve you from the power of evil.

2. He deſcribes theſe ſeducers. They are of the world: whatever pretences they make, they are wholly engroſſed and influenced by the riches, honours, and pleaſures of this life: therefore ſpeak they of the world, expect a temporal Meſſiah, and ſeek a worldly kingdom, and the world heareth them, greedily drinking in a doctrine ſo ſuited to their carnal hearts.

3. He ſhews the different character of God's true miniſters and people. We are of God, appointed by him, and owned of him, having his glory ſingly in view, and walking under the guidance and influence of his word and Spirit: he that knoweth God, heareth us, and receives our teſtimony as divine; he that is not of God, not enlightened by him, nor born of him, heareth not us, diſregarding our doctrine, and counting it fooliſhneſs. Hereby know we the Spirit of truth and the ſpirit of error. Note, They who reject the warnings of God's miniſters, ſpeaking according to his holy word, evidently ſhew themſelves to be under the Spirit of error.

7. [m] Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and [n] every one that loveth, is born of God, and knoweth God. 8. He that loveth not, knoweth not God: for [o] God is love. 9. [p] In this was manifeſted the love of God towards us, becauſe that God ſent his only-begotten Son into the world, [q] that we might live through him. 10. Herein is love, [r] not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and ſent his Son [s] to be the propitiation for our ſins. 11. Beloved, [t] if God ſo loved us, we ought alſo to love one another. 12. [u] No man hath ſeen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and [x] his love is perfected in us. 13. [y] Hereby know we that [z] we dwell in him, and he in us, becauſe he hath given us of his Spirit.

m Chap. iii. 18.
n Chap. iii. 14
o Ver. 16.
p John iii. 16. Rom. v. 8. Chap. iii. 16.
q Chap. v. 11.
r John xv. 16. Rom. v. 8, 10.
s Rom. iii. 25. Chap. ii. 2.
t Mat. xviii. 33. John xv. 12, 13. Chap. iii. 16.
u Ex. xxxiii. 20. John i. 18. 1 Tim. vi. 16.
x Chap. ii. 5. Ver. 18.
y Chap. iii. 24.
z John xiv. 20. & xvii. 21.

v. 7—13. The apoſtle returns to recommend the exerciſe of fervent charity, as the genuine evidence of a right ſpirit. Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God, his genuine offſpring, and his brighteſt image; and every one that loveth, is born of God, and knoweth God; he evidences hereby his experimental acquaintance with God, and ſhews himſelf a child of his family of love. He that loveth not, knoweth not God, whatever he may pretend, for God is love, and the true knowledge of him hath ever a transforming efficacy, to change us into his bleſſed image. In this was manifeſted the love of God towards us, and ſhone forth with the moſt diſtinguiſhed luſtre, becauſe that God ſent his only begotten Son into the world, to become incarnate, to live and die for us, that we might live through him, redeemed from the ſentence of death, quickened to newneſs of life, and through his divine righteouſneſs intitled to immortal bliſs and glory. Herein is love, ſurpaſſing ſtrange! not that we loved God! no; juſt the reverſe; we were ſinners, ungodly, enemies; but even when we had every thing which could render us the objects of his loathing, even then, that he might magnify the wonders of his grace, he loved us, and gave the moſt aſtoniſhing demonſtration of it, when he ſent his Son to be the propitiation for our ſins, with his own blood making atonement for us, and purging us from our iniquities by this amazing ſacrifice. Beloved, if God ſo loved us, we ought alſo to love one another; who can poſſibly offend us ſo highly as we have offended God? yet he forgives and pardons abundantly; yea, he ſpared not his own Son, but freely gave him up for us all: what then can we with-hold from our brethren, when we have ſuch an example before us? Surely, if we belong to him, we ſhall be like him, and prove it by this Spirit of love. No man indeed hath ſeen God at any time, for he is a Spirit inviſible and incorporeal. But if we love one another, God dwelleth in us, by his Spirit manifeſting his preſence in our hearts; and his love is perfected in us, our love to him is proved to be ſincere and genuine, and will grow up unto abſolute perfection in glory. Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, becauſe he hath given us of his Spirit, whereby we become one with him, united to him in faith and love, and experiencing the moſt gracious manifeſtations of his preſence with our ſouls. Thou God of life and love, give me more abundantly of this bleſſed Spirit!

14. And [a] we have ſeen and do teſtify, that the Father ſent the Son [b] to be the Saviour of the world. 15. [c] Whoſoever ſhall confeſs that Jeſus is the Son of God, [d] God dwelleth in him, and he in God. 16. And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. [e] God is love; and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him.

a Chap. i. 1.
b Mat. i. 21.
c Chap. v. 1.
d Chap. iii. 24. Ver. 13.
e Ver. 8.

v. 14—16. We have here,

1. The apoſtolick teſtimony. And we have ſeen and do teſtify, that the Father ſent the Son, in his infinite grace and love, to be the Saviour of the world, of both Jews and Gentiles, even of all that believe in him, without exception.

2. The true evangelical confeſſion. Whoſoever ſhall confeſs that Jeſus is the Son of God, owning him as the divine and true Meſſiah, and making open profeſſion of his faith, in the face of every danger, God dwelleth in him, and he in God, being happily joined to him in one Spirit for eternity.

3. The experience of all true Chriſtians. And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us, the aſtoniſhing manifeſtation of which, in ſending his Son, leaves us no room to doubt of his tranſcendent and diſtinguiſhing grace towards us. God is love, pure, perfect love, and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him; there ſubſiſts a holy union between them, and it will be everlaſting.

17. Herein † is our love made perfect, [f] that we may have boldneſs in the day of judgment: becauſe [g] as he is, ſo are we in this world. 18. There is no fear in love; but perfect love caſteth out fear: becauſe fear hath torment: he that feareth [h] is not made perfect in love. 19. We love him, becauſe he firſt loved us. 20. [i] If a man ſay, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath ſeen, how can he love God whom he hath not ſeen? 21. And this commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God [k] love his brother alſo.

† Gr. love is made perfect with us.
f Chap. ii. 28.
g 2 Tim. ii. 12. or 1 Pet. i. 15.
h Ver. 12.
i Chap. ii. 4. & iii. 17.
k Lev. xix. 18. Mat. xxii. 39. John xiii. 34. & xv. 12. Chap. iii. 34.

v. 17—21. The apoſtle proceeds to ſet forth the bleſſed effects of Chriſtian love. Herein is our love made perfect, proved to be genuine and ſincere, by our union of heart to God, and charity to the brethren; and where this is the caſe, then, it being evident that we are born of God,

1. We may have boldneſs in the day of judgment, and confidently appear before the throne of Jeſus, aſſured of acceptance in that great day: becauſe, as he is, ſo are we in this world, and he cannot but receive into the boſom of his love thoſe who bear his own bright image.

2. We are delivered from all ſlaviſh fear. There is no fear in love, nothing diſtreſſing, terrifying, and ſervile, but perfect love caſteth out fear, a real conſciouſneſs of love to God, and of an intereſt in his favour, ſilences all fearful apprehenſions of death or judgment: becauſe fear hath torment, and where it prevails, muſt make the ſoul miſerable and unhappy: he that feareth, and trembles before God as his enemy, is not made perfect in love, nor hath yet ſeen him in the delightful character of a reconciled God and Father. We love him, becauſe he firſt loved us; his love, ſhed abroad in the heart, muſt kindle ours, and the view of thoſe amazing manifeſtations of it which he hath made, ſhould every day add fuel to the ſacred fire, and raiſe the flame of holy affections ſtill higher and higher, till at laſt we are wholly aſſimilated to his image, and made abſolutely perfect in love.

3. Love to God neceſſarily includes love to the brethren. If a man ſay, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a lyar; his uncharitableneſs proves the hypocriſy of his pretenſions: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath ſeen, with his bodily eyes, and beheld his diſtreſſes, which ſhould excite compaſſion; or the divine image in him, which ſhould engage his regards; how can he love God, whom he hath not ſeen? how abſurd is the ſuppoſition! And this commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God, love his brother alſo, and prove thereby the unfeigned ſincerity of his profeſſions.

CHAP. V.

In this chapter the apoſtle aſſerts, 1. The dignity of believers, ver. 1. Then, 2. Their obligations to love, and the trial of it, ver. 1—3. Then, 3. Their victory, ver. 4, 5. Then, 4. The credibility and confirmation of their faith, ver. 6—10. Then, 5. The advantage of their faith in eternal life, ver. 11—13. Then, 6. The audience of their prayers, unleſs for thoſe that have ſinned unto death, ver. 14—17. Then, 7. Their preſervation from ſin and Satan, ver. 18. Then, 8. Their happy diſtinction from the world, ver. 19. Then, 9. Their true knowledge of God, ver. 20. Upon which they muſt depart from idols, ver. 21.

1. [a] WHoſoever believeth that Jeſus is the Chriſt, is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat, loveth him alſo that is begotten of him. 2. By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep his commandments. 3. For [b] this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments; and [c] his commandments are not grievous. 4. For [d] whatſoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. 5. Who is he that overcometh the world, but [e] he that believeth that Jeſus is the Son of God?

[a] John i. 12. Chap. ii. 23. & iv. 2, 15.
[b] John xiv. 15, 21, 23. & xv. 10. 2 John 6.
[c] Mat. xi. 30.
[d] Chap. iv. 4.
[e] 1 Cor. xv. 57. Chap. iv. 15.

v. 1—5. The apoſtle ſhews,

1. The genuine marks of a child of God. Whoſoever believeth that Jeſus is the Chriſt, the true Meſſiah, placing his whole dependance for pardon, life, and ſalvation upon him, is born of God, adopted into his bleſſed family, and dignified with all the honours of a ſon and heir of the Almighty: and every one that loveth him that begat, the bleſſed God, the Author of all grace to his people, loveth him alſo that is begotten of him, and delights in his image wherever it appears.

2. By this we know that we love the children of God, as his children, and purely for his ſake, when we love God unfeignedly, and keep his commandments, from a principle of faith which worketh by love. For this is the love of God, the moſt undoubted evidence of it, that we keep his commandments; counting them all holy, juſt, and good, and having reſpect unto them without partiality or hypocriſy; and his commandments are not grievous; love makes the labour light, and the obedience chearful and willing.

3. This is what will gain the conqueſt over an enſnaring world. For whatſoever is born of God, and partakes of a new and a divine nature, overcometh the world, and triumphs over both its terrors and allurements: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith, which realizing unſeen and eternal things, ſtamps vanity upon all preſent objects; and deriving ſtrength from the Redeemer's fulneſs, enables us to be more than conquerors over all our trials. Who is he that overcometh the world? none ever did or can, but he that believeth that Jeſus is the Son of God; and, dependent upon him for life and ſalvation, holds on his heavenly way, and is neither to be ſeduced nor terrified from his holy profeſſion. Lord, give and increaſe this victorious faith!

6. This is he that came by water and blood, even Jeſus Chriſt; not by water only, but by water and blood: and [f] it is the Spirit that beareth witneſs, becauſe [g] the Spirit is truth. 7. For there are three that bear record in heaven, [h] the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghoſt; and [i] theſe three are one. 8. And there are three that bear witneſs in earth, the Spirit, and the water, and the blood: and theſe three agree in one. 9. If we receive [k] the witneſs of men, the witneſs of God is greater: for this is the witneſs of God, which he hath teſtified of his Son.

[f] John xv. 26.
[g] John xvi. 13.
[h] Mat. iii. 16, 17. & xxviii. 19.
[i] John x. 30.
[k] John viii. 17, 18.

v. 6—9. Faith in the divine Meſſiah being of ſuch eſſential conſequence to our ſouls, we have here the foundation on which this faith is built.

1. This is he that came by water and blood, even Jeſus Chriſt; not by water only, but by water and blood: he at his baptiſm entered upon his office, and on the croſs finiſhed the great atonement; and the blood and water which flowed from his wounded ſide declared the purpoſes of his coming, both to pay a ranſom for our ſins, and to cleanſe us from the defilement of them, by the renovation of our nature through the mighty energy of his Spirit; for which glorious purpoſes faith looks to Jeſus Chriſt, as appointed of the Father to his mediatorial office, and able and willing in both theſe reſpects to perfect the ſalvation of his people.

2. Chriſt hath the ſtrongeſt atteſtation born to his divine perſon and character. It is the Spirit that beareth witneſs, in the miraculous powers beſtowed upon the miniſters of the goſpel, and to the conſciences of believers; becauſe the Spirit is truth itſelf, and his teſtimony cannot deceive. For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghoſt; the Father, at his baptiſm and transfiguration, bore witneſs to him; the Son repeatedly aſſerted his own divine glory and office, and appealed to the miracles he wrought, for a proof of the truth of what he advanced: the Holy Ghoſt, by his deſcent on Jeſus at his baptiſm, and the miraculous powers with which he inveſted the apoſtles and others, added his full atteſtation to the great Redeemer: and theſe three, though perſonally diſtinct, are, in eſſence, one. And there are three that bear witneſs in earth; the Spirit, in his gifts and graces; the water, wherewith every believer is baptized in the name of the Son of God, as a divine perſon; and the blood, which Jeſus ſhed upon the croſs, and inſtituted in his laſt ſupper a conſtant memorial of it to be obſerved in his church: and theſe three agree in one, and bear teſtimony to the divine character and compleat redemption of our adored Immanuel. If we receive the witneſs of men, atteſting any fact, and every court of human judicature admits their oath and evidence as ſatisfactory; the witneſs of God is greater, which both Father, Son, and Spirit, ſeverally bears to the dignity and glory of the Lord Jeſus, and with whom the appointed witneſſes on earth agree: for this is the witneſs of God, which he hath teſtified of his Son, as the true and divine Meſſiah, whom we by faith and love muſt embrace, and in whom alone ſalvation can be attained.

10. He that believeth on the Son of God [l] hath the witneſs in himſelf: He that believeth not God, [m] hath made him a lyar, becauſe he believed not the record that God gave of his Son. 11. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life: and [n] this life is in his Son. 12. [o] He that hath the Son hath life: and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life. 13. [p] Theſe things have I written unto you, that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life; and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God.

[l] Rom. viii. 16. Gal. iv. 6.
[m] John iii. 33. & v. 38.
[n] John i. 4. Chap. iv. 9.
[o] John iii. 36. & v. 24.
[p] John xx. 31.

v. 10—13. We have here,

1. The happy ſtate of the true believer. He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witneſs in himſelf; he feels the ſuitableneſs of the Saviour to his ſtate of guilt and miſery, and knows by happy experience his excellence, fulneſs, and all-ſufficiency. He that believeth not God, and receiveth not his teſtimony concerning his only-begotten Son, hath made him a lyar, and denied his truth, becauſe he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son, and ſubmits not to the witneſs which he hath born to the character of Jeſus as the true Meſſiah.

2. The perpetuity of his felicity. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life; the earneſt, foretaſte, and beginning of it, and the ſure title to it through the Redeemer's righteouſneſs; and this life is in his Son, ſecured by him, treaſured up in him, and communicated from him to his people. He that hath the Son, is by faith united to him, and intereſted in his redemption, hath life; hath ſpiritual life here, and poſſeſſes the title to eternal life hereafter; and he that hath not the Son of God, doth not by faith embrace him, and derive grace from him, hath not life, is dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, and the wrath of God abideth on him.

3. The knowledge he hath of his invaluable privileges. Theſe things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and rejoice in this diſtinguiſhed gift of God; and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God; engaged more ſtedfaſtly to cleave to him, and with unſhaken perſeverance maintaining your holy profeſſion. Note, (1.) That we have life, eternal life in Chriſt Jeſus, is to be known; the Lord ſeal this knowledge to our conſciences! (2.) They who have begun well ſhould be encouraged to perſevere, aſſured that their labour ſhall not be in vain in the Lord.

14. And this is the confidence that we have in him, that [q] if we aſk any thing according to his will, he heareth us. 15. And if we know that he heareth us, whatſoever we aſk, we know that we have the petitions that we deſired of him. 16. If any man ſee his brother ſin a ſin which is not unto death, [r] he ſhall aſk, and he ſhall give him life for them that ſin not unto death. [s] There is a ſin unto death: [t] I do not ſay, that he ſhall pray for [q] John xiv. 13. & xv. 7. Chap. iii. 22.

[r] Job xlii. 8. Jam. v. 14, 15.
[s] Mat. xii. 32. Heb. vi. 4. & x. 26.
[t] Jer. vii. 16. & xi. 14. & xiv. 11. John xvii. 9.

[u] Chap. iii. 4. for it. 17. [u] All unrighteouſneſs is ſin: and there is a ſin not unto death.

v. 14—17. The apoſtle adds, to all the other bleſſings flowing from faith in Chriſt,

1. Acceſs to God in prayer, and the ſure anſwer to all our petitions. And this is the confidence that we have in him, and boldneſs to approach a throne of grace; that if we aſk any thing according to his will, he heareth us; accepts our prayers, and will grant our requeſts. And if we know that he heareth us, whatſoever we aſk, we know that we have the petitions that we deſired of him, in manner, time, and meaſure beſtowed, as he ſees moſt for his own glory and our good. Note, (1.) If we would obtain an anſwer to our prayers, God's revealed will muſt be the rule of them. (2.) When we pray in faith, we may confidently reſt ourſelves upon God's promiſe: he will hear and help us.

2. Our prayers for others, as well as for ourſelves, ſhall meet with kind acceptance. If any man ſee his brother ſin a ſin which is not unto death; though it deſerves death as its wages, yet is not in its nature unpardonable; he ſhall aſk God to pardon his offending brother, and he ſhall, in anſwer to his prayer, give him life for them that ſin not unto death, and renew them again unto repentance. There is a ſin unto death, which never can be forgiven, either in this life, or in that which is to come; I do not ſay, that he ſhall pray for it: blaſphemy againſt the Holy Ghoſt, and wilful apoſtacy, ſeem to be beyond the reach of prayer. All unrighteouſneſs indeed is ſin; and if God were to execute his righteous law on the offender, he muſt periſh. But every ſin is not unpardonable: there is a ſin not unto death, for which prayer can be available, and pardon and reſtoration may be obtained. What an encouragement is this to fervent and ceaſeleſs interceſſion on the behalf of others!

18. We know that [x] whoſoever is born of God ſinneth not, but he that is begotten of God [y] keepeth himſelf, and that wicked one toucheth him not. 19. And we know that we are of God, and [z] the whole world lieth in † wickedneſs. 20. And we know that the Son of God is come, and [a] hath given us an underſtanding [b] that we may know him that is true: and we are in him [c] that is true, even in his Son Jeſus Chriſt. [d] This is the true God, [e] and eternal life. 21. Little children, [f] keep yourſelves from idols. Amen.

[x] Chap. iii. 9.
[y] Jam. i. 27.
[z] Eph. ii. 2.
† Or the wicked one.
[a] Luke xxiv. 45.
[b] John xvii. 3.
[c] Rev. iii. 7, 14.
[d] Iſa. ix. 6. & xliv. 6. John xx. 28. Rom. ix. 5. 1 Tim. iii. 16. Tit. ii. 13.
[e] Ver. 11, 12.
[f] 1 Cor. x. 7, 14.

v. 18—21. The apoſtle concludes,

1. With a recapitulation of the believer's privileges and practice. We know that whoſoever is born of God ſinneth not, that unpardonable ſin, nor continues allowedly in any courſe of iniquity; but he that is begotten of God, and thus partaker of a new and divine nature, keepeth himſelf, and that wicked one toucheth him not; the power of Satan is broken, and he never can again bring the redeemed ſoul into the like condemnation with himſelf, that it ſhould periſh by apoſtacy. Note, A truly regenerate ſoul can never die eternally.

2. He mentions their happy ſeparation from the world. And we know that we are of God; his children, renewed in the ſpirit of our minds, and ſeparated for him to be a peculiar people from the corrupted maſs of mankind: and the whole world, beſide thoſe who are born of God, lieth in wickedneſs, (εν τω πονηρω) in the wicked one, under his power, influence, and dominion, and muſt be condemned together with him. Note, It is moſt indubitably certain, that the far greater part of the world, even the Chriſtian world, lieth in wickedneſs; and as certain, that they will periſh everlaſtingly. It becomes us therefore ſeriouſly to enquire, whether we are of the world; for then muſt we be condemned with the world. When but few ſhall be ſaved, it ſhould awaken our ſollicitude to be of that few.

3. They knew the Son of God, and enjoyed a bleſſed union with him. And we know that the Son of God is come, in the human nature, to take away our ſins by the ſacrifice of himſelf; and hath given us an underſtanding, that we may know him that is true, by his Spirit opening the eyes of our mind, and ſhining into our hearts, to give us the light of the knowledge of his glory: and we are in him that is true, vitally united to him who is the truth itſelf; even in his Son Jeſus Chriſt, as living members of his myſtical body. And this Jeſus is the true God, the ſelf-exiſtent Jehovah, and eternal life; the purchaſer, fountain, and beſtower of it on all his people; and they who know him now by faith, will live eternally with him in glory. Note, (1.) Either Jeſus Chriſt is the true God, or the ſcriptures are a fiction. (2.) They who know him as their Saviour, by real union of heart with him, can never periſh, but ſhall have everlaſting life.

4. He cloſes with a ſolemn admonition. Little children, dear to me as the offspring of eternal love, keep yourſelves from idols; abhorring and avoiding the hated idolatry of paganiſm, and the uſe of images as mediums of worſhip, and let the triune God be the only object of your adoration. Amen!

* * *

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR; OR, A PRACTICAL COMMENT UPON THE SECOND EPISTLE of JOHN.

SINCE in Chriſt Jeſus there is neither male nor female, but all, without diſtinction of ſex, are admitted to the privileges of the goſpel, we need not wonder to have an inſpired epiſtle directed to an honourable matron and her children. The ſtile marks the penman, and the ſimilitude of expreſſion ſhews him to be the ſame who wrote the foregoing Epiſtle, and probably about the ſame time; accordingly it hath been generally received in the church as canonical.

The apoſtle here ſalutes an honourable matron and her children, ver. 1—3. Recommends to them faith and love, ver. 5, 6. Warns them of deceivers, ver. 7. and to take heed to themſelves, ver. 8. Teaches how to treat thoſe that bring not the doctrine of Chriſt, ver. 10, 11. And referring other things to perſonal diſcourſe, concludes the epiſtle, ver. 12, 13.

1. THE elder unto the elect lady, and her children, [a] whom I love † in the truth: and not I only, but alſo all they that have known the truth: 2. For the truth's ſake [b] which dwelleth in us, and ſhall be with us for ever. 3. [c] Grace be with you, mercy and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Son of the Father, in truth and love. 4. [d] I rejoiced greatly, that I found of thy children walking in truth, as we have received a commandment from the Father. 5. And now I beſeech thee, lady, [e] not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, [f] that we love one another. 6. And [g] this is love, that we walk after his commandments. This is the commandment, that [h] as ye have heard from the beginning, ye ſhould walk in it.

[a] 1 John iii. 18, 3 John 1.
† Or, truly.
[b] 1 John ii. 24.
[c] 1 Tim. i. 2. 2 Tim. i. 2.
[d] 3 John 3.
[e] 1 John ii. 7. & iii. 11.
[f] John xiii. 34. & xv. 12. Eph. v. 2. 1 Pet. iv. 8. 1 John iii. 23. & iv. 21.
[g] John xiv. 15, 21. & xv. 10. 1 John ii. 5. & v. 3.
[h] 1 John ii. 24.

v. 1—6. The epiſtle opens,

1. With the inſcription. The elder, John, now far advanced in age, and by office an elder, as well as an apoſtle, unto the elect lady, choſen, among the not many noble, to be a partaker of the goſpel ſalvation; and to her children, heirs with her of the ſame promiſes; whom I love in the truth, unfeignedly, and for the ſake of him whoſe image they bear: and not I only, but alſo all they that have known the truth, who cannot but reſpect and delight in thoſe who adorn ſo eminently the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things: for the truth's ſake which dwelleth in us, which renders the poſſeſſor more reſpectable than all riches, birth, or titles; and ſhall be with us for ever; for this truth is an incorruptible ſeed, and, where planted in the heart, ſprings up unto eternal life.

2. We have the apoſtolic benediction. Grace be with you, in all its happy fruits and effects, of pardon, ſtrength, and conſolation, with mercy and peace, and every bleſſing that we can aſk, or the Lord hath promiſed to give, from God the Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to whom we are indebted for all, and who is the Son of the Father, in truth and love; one with him in eſſence and glory, the divine Son of the divine Father, and the object of his eternal love.

3. His congratulation. I rejoiced greatly, that I found of thy children walking in truth, as it is in Jeſus, and in their ſpirit and conduct a credit to the holy profeſſion which they make, guided by the oracles of God, as we have received a commandment from the Father. Note, (1.) It is a ſingular joy to miniſters, to behold the riſing generation ornaments to religion. (2.) We then walk in the truth, when we make God's word our conſtant rule of conduct.

4. His requeſt and exhortation. And now I beſeech thee, lady, as the chief deſign of my epiſtle, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another, out of a pure heart fervently, from the divine principle of faith which worketh by love. And this is love, the infallible teſt of true love to God and man, that we walk after his commandments, with an univerſal and conſcientious reſpect to all his holy will. This is the commandment, that, as ye have heard from the beginning, ye ſhould walk in it, under the influence of this great law of love. Note, Kind exhortations are preferable to authoritative commands, and uſually much more available.

7. For [i] many deceivers are entred into the world, [k] who confeſs not that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh. [l] This is a deceiver and an antichriſt. 8. [m] Look to yourſelves, [n] that we loſe not thoſe things which we have wrought, [o] but that we receive a full reward. 9. [p] Whoſoever tranſgreſſeth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Chriſt, hath not God: he that abideth in the doctrine of Chriſt, he hath both the Father and the Son. 10. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine,

[i] Mat. xxiv. 24. 1 John iv. 1.
[k] 1 John iv. 2, 3.
[l] 1 John ii. 22. & iv. 3.
[m] Mark xiii. 9.
[n] Gal. iii. 4.
[o] Heb. x. 36.
[p] 1 John ii. 23.

[q] Rom. xvi. 17. Gal. i. 8, 9. Tit. iii. 10.
[r] 3 John 13.
[s] Rom. i. 12. 2 Tim. i. 4.

receive him not into your houſe, [q] neither bid him God ſpeed. 11. For he that biddeth him God ſpeed, is partaker of his evil deeds. 12. [r] Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink; but I truſt to come unto you, and ſpeak face to face, [s] that our joy may be full. 13. The children of thy elect ſiſter greet thee. Amen.

v. 7—13. The apoſtle proceeds,

1. To warn and guard this honoured family againſt the wiles of ſeducers. For many deceivers are entred into the world, who confeſs not that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh, broaching the moſt fatal and heretical doctrines, as that Jeſus Chriſt aſſumed not a real human nature, but lived and died in appearance only; or that he who was born at Nazareth was not the true expected Meſſiah. This is a deceiver and an antichriſt, an avowed enemy to the Redeemer's glory and goſpel, and a deſtroyer of the ſouls of men. Therefore look to yourſelves with holy jealouſy and watchfulneſs, that we loſe not thoſe things which we have wrought, and be at laſt diſappointed of our hopes of you, whilſt you come finally ſhort of the grace of God, and, after all the moſt promiſing appearances, be ſeduced by the error of the wicked; but hold faſt the truth, and, whereunto ye have already attained, walk by the ſame rule, mind the ſame things, that we receive a full reward, when you ſhall appear our joy and crown in the great day, and we with you ſhall obtain the glorious recompenſe promiſed to thoſe who are faithful unto death. Whoſoever tranſgreſſeth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Chriſt, hath not God, is not influenced by his Spirit, and hath no part in his ſalvation: he that abideth in the doctrine of Chriſt, with regard to his divine Perſon, real incarnation, mediatorial offices, and complete redemption, profeſſing boldly his faith in defiance of all oppoſition, he hath both the Father and the Son, is admitted into a holy and happy communion with them, and hath the moſt aſſured intereſt in their love and favour.

2. They are enjoined not to give the leaſt countenance to theſe ſeducers. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your houſe, nor afford him ought of that hoſpitable entertainment which you kindly give to the faithful miniſters of Chriſt; neither bid him God ſpeed, nor wiſh the leaſt ſucceſs to ſuch ungodly attempts as the propagation of theſe poiſonous errors: for he that biddeth him God ſpeed, is partaker of his evil deeds, and an abettor of his wickedneſs. Note, We need be very cautious not only to keep from evil ourſelves, but to avoid being partakers of other men's ſins.

3. He concludes with informing the lady, that he hoped ſhortly to have a more full perſonal conference with her on this ſubject. Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink; but I truſt to come unto you, and ſpeak face to face, more at large; that our joy may be full, and we may be happy together in the experience of the true grace of God, and be preſerved from all deluders. The children of thy elect ſiſter greet thee! How happy is it where grace thus diffuſes itſelf through a whole family, and thoſe who are united by the ties of blood are thus more nearly united in the bonds of God's everlaſting love! Amen! Would God that this were the caſe in every family!

* * *

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR; OR, A PRACTICAL COMMENT UPON THE THIRD EPISTLE of JOHN.

THE epiſtle to Gaius, like the former, is written to an individual; but of general uſe to the church, and univerſally admitted as canonical. Whether this Gaius is the ſame whom the apoſtle Paul calls his hoſt, Rom. xvi. 23. is uncertain.

In this epiſtle the apoſtle congratulates Gaius upon the proſperity of his ſoul, ver. 1, 2. Upon the fame he had among good Chriſtians, ver. 3, 4. Upon his charity and hoſpitality to the ſervants of Chriſt, ver. 5, 6. He complains of contemptuous treatment by an ambitious Diotrephes, ver. 9, 10. Recommends Demetrius, ver. 12. And hopes to viſit Gaius ſhortly, ver. 13, 14.

1. THE elder unto the well-beloved Gaius,
[a] whom I love in the truth. 2. Beloved, [a] 2 John 1.
I wiſh above all things, that thou mayeſt proſper and be in health, even as thy ſoul proſpereth. 3. For I rejoiced greatly when the brethren came and teſtified of the truth that is in thee, even [b] as [b] 2 John 4.
thou walkeſt in the truth. 4. I have no greater joy than to hear [c] that my children walk in truth. 5. Beloved, [c] 1 Cor. iv. 15.
thou doſt faithfully whatſoever thou doſt to the Philem. 10.
brethren, and to ſtrangers; 6. Which have born witneſs of thy charity before the church: whom if thou bring forward on their journey † after a godly ſort, thou † Gr. Worthy of God.
ſhalt do well: 7. Becauſe that for his name's ſake they went forth, [d] taking nothing of the Gentiles. 8. We [d] 1 Cor. ix. 12.
therefore ought to receive ſuch, that we might be fellow-helpers to the truth.

v. 1—8. We have here,

1. The inſcription and ſalutation. The elder, John, unto the well-beloved Gaius, whom I love in the truth, as a faithful member of Jeſus Chriſt. Beloved, I wiſh above all things, that thou mayſt proſper, and be in health, even as thy ſoul proſpereth; and may your ſucceſs in all temporal things, and your bodily health, bear pace with your ſpiritual proſperity. Note, (1.) The true proſperity, and that which is moſt deſirable, is the health of the ſoul. (2.) Bodily health is a ſingular mercy, eſpecially as it enables us more eminently to improve our ſpiritual gifts and graces for the good of mankind.

2. He teſtifies the ſatisfaction he felt in the report which he had heard, For I rejoiced greatly when the brethren came and teſtified of the truth that is in thee, of thy faith, and love unfeigned; even as thou walkeſt in the truth, adorning with all manner of holy converſation thy Chriſtian profeſſion. I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth. Note, It is a moſt ſincere and heart-felt delight to every faithful miniſter of Chriſt to behold the children, whom they have begotten in the goſpel, walk worthy of their vocation.

3. He commends his kind and charitable conduct. Beloved, thou doſt faithfully whatſoever thou doſt to the brethren, and to ſtrangers; ſuch hoſpitality and generoſity are the genuine characteriſtics of thy faithful heart, and have been juſtly praiſed by thoſe which have born witneſs of thy charity before the church, and gratefully acknowledged the kindneſſes which they received: whom if thou bring forward on their journey after a godly ſort, and aſſiſt thoſe itinerant preachers of the goſpel who devote their time and labour to this bleſſed work of ſpreading the glad tidings through the earth, thou ſhalt do well, and act a noble part in thus advancing the bleſſed cauſe of our divine Redeemer; becauſe that for his name's ſake they went forth, giving up all the world, that they might addict themſelves wholly to the miniſtry, and with a ſpirit uninfluenced by any mercenary views, taking nothing of the Gentiles, but preaching the goſpel of God freely. We therefore, who wiſh well to that ſervice, and whom God hath bleſſed with ability, ought to receive ſuch, and afford them a comfortable maintenance; that we might be fellow-helpers to the truth, and, though not ordained to be preachers, may hereby receive a preacher's reward. Note, They who devote themſelves to the miniſtry, foregoing all worldly purſuits for the love of Chriſt and of immortal ſouls, deſerve every kindneſs at our hands that we can ſhew them.

9. I wrote unto the church: but Diotrephes, who loveth to have the preeminence among them, receiveth us not. 10. Wherefore if I come, I will remember his deeds which he doth, prating againſt us with malicious words: and not content therewith, neither doth he himſelf receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would,
and caſteth them out of the church. 11. Beloved, [e] follow [e] Pſ. xxxvii.
not that which is evil, but that which is good. 27. Iſa. i.
[f] He that doth good, is of God: but he that doth evil 16. 1 Pet.
hath not ſeen God. 12. Demetrius [g] hath good report iii. 11. [f] 1 John ii.
of all men, and of the truth itſelf: yea, and we alſo bear 29. & iii. 6, 9.
record, [h] and ye know that our record is true. 13. [i] I [g] 1 Tim. iii. 7.
had many things to write, but I will not with ink and [h] John xxi. 24.
pen write unto thee: 14. But I truſt I ſhall ſhortly ſee [i] 2 John 12.
thee, and we ſhall ſpeak † face to face. Peace be to thee. † Gr.
Our friends ſalute thee. Greet the friends by name. Mouth to mouth. So 2 John 12.

v. 9—14. The apoſtle here,

1. Points out a man of a very different character. I wrote unto the church, or, as ſome render the words, I would have wrote unto the church: but Diotrephes, who loveth to have the preeminence among them, and proudly lords it over them, receiveth us not, and pays no regard to our apoſtolic injunctions. Wherefore if, or when, I come, I will remember his deeds which he doeth, and ſeverely animadvert upon his imperious and uncharitable conduct, prating againſt us with malicious words, aſſuming the moſt inſolent airs, and daring even to caſt reproach on the divinely-conſtituted apoſtles of the Son of God: and not content therewith, neither doth he himſelf receive the brethren to any hoſpitable entertainment in his houſe, and forbiddeth them that would; and, when any notwithſtanding diſobey his mandates, and receive, aſſiſt, and further in their way thoſe faithful miniſters of Chriſt, who travel, preaching his goſpel, he caſteth them out of the church, merely for preſuming to diſobey his wicked commands, and uſurped authority. Note, (1.) Nothing is more contrary to the ſpirit of a Chriſtian miniſter, than over-bearing arrogance and pride. (2.) They are doubly wicked, who neither will do good themſelves, and thoſe who are willing to do it, they hinder.

2. He diſſuades Gaius from copying ſo bad an example. Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good; let no heighth of ſtation or office lead you to copy a bad man, but ever imitate the excellent and the generous. He that doth good, is of God, proves that he is born of him, and partakes of his Spirit: but he that doth evil, hath not ſeen God; whatever pretenſions to religion he may make, he is a ſtranger to all experimental knowledge of divine things.

3. He mentions Demetrius as an excellent man, and worthy of imitation. Demetrius hath good report of all men; all who know him bear teſtimony to his amiable and pious converſation, and of the truth itſelf; every one, who would ſpeak the truth, muſt acknowledge his excellence; and we, who are miniſters of truth, declare our full approbation of him: and ye know that our record is true, and may be aſſuredly depended upon. Note, It is a noble character indeed ſo to behave as to be entitled to univerſal applauſe, and to be approved of God and all men of truth and integrity.

4. He concludes his epiſtle with the hopes of a perſonal interview ſhortly. I had many things to write, but I will not with ink and pen write unto thee: but I truſt I ſhall ſhortly ſee thee, and we ſhall ſpeak face to face, when I can more fully communicate all my mind. Peace be to thee; proſperity of every kind attend thee in body and ſoul. Our friends ſalute thee, joining in all Chriſtian wiſhes. Greet the friends with thee by name, preſenting to each my moſt affectionate remembrances.

THE

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A
PRACTICAL COMMENT
UPON THE
GENERAL EPISTLE of JUDE.

THIS epiſtle, written ſhortly before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, is ſtiled general or catholic; for that it is not immediately directed to any particular perſon, family or church, but to the whole ſociety of Chriſtians of that time, lately coverted to the faith of Chriſt, whether from Judaiſm or Paganiſm. And it is and will be of ſtanding, laſting, and ſpecial uſe in and to the church as long as Chriſtianity, that is, as time ſhall laſt.

Some of the chief things contained in it ſummarily are, 1. An account of the penman of it, a character of the church, the bleſſings and privileges of that happy ſociety, ver. 1, 2. 2. The occaſion of writing this epiſtle, ver. 3. 3. A character of evil and perverſe men, who were already ſprung up in that infant ſtate of the church, and would be ſucceeded by others of the like evil ſpirit and temper in after-times, ver. 4. 4. A caution againſt hearkening to and following after ſuch, from the ſeverity of God towards the unbelieving, murmuring Iſraelites, at their coming out of Egypt, the angels that fell, the inſtance of Sodom and Gomorrah, their ſin and puniſhment, ver. 5, 6, 7. 5. To theſe the apoſtle likens the ſeducers, againſt whom he was warning them, and deſcribes them at large, from ver. 8—13. incluſive. 6. Then (as ſpecially ſuitable to his argument) he cites an ancient propheſy of Enoch, foretelling and deſcribing the future judgment, ver. 14, 15. 7. Enlargeth on the ſeducer's character, and guards againſt the offence which honeſt minds might be apt to take at the ſo early permiſſion of ſuch things, by ſhewing that it was foretold long before that ſo it muſt be, ver. 16, 17, 18, 19. 8. Exhorts them to perſeverance in the faith, fervency in prayer, watchfulneſs againſt falling from the love of God, and a lively hope of eternal life, ver. 20, 21. 9. Directs them how to carry themſelves towards the erroneous and ſcandalous, ver. 22, 23. And, 10. Cloſes with an admirable doxology in the two laſt verſes.

We have here, I. The preface or introduction to this epiſtle, ver. 1, 2.

[a] Luke vi. 16. Acts i. 13.
[b] John xvii. 11, 15. 1 Pet. i. 5.
[c] Tit. i. 4.
[d] Phil. i. 27. 1 Tim. i. 18. & vi. 12. 2 Tim. i. 13.
[e] 2 Pet. ii. 1.
[f] Rom. ix. 21, 22. 1 Pet. ii. 8.
[g] 2 Pet. ii. 19.
[h] Tit. i. 16. 2 Pet. ii. 1.

1. JUDE the ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, and [a] brother of James, to them that are ſanctified by God the Father, and [b] preſerved in Jeſus Chriſt, and called: 2 Mercy unto you and peace and love be multiplied. 3. Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of [c] the common ſalvation; it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you, that [d] ye ſhould earneſtly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the ſaints. 4. For [e] there are certain men crept in unawares, [f] who were before of old ordained to this condemnation, ungodly men, [g] turning the grace of our God into laſciviouſneſs, and [h] denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

v. 1—4. The epiſtle opens,

1. With an account of the ſacred penman. Jude the ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, whoſe higheſt honour it is to miniſter in the goſpel, and brother of James, the ſon of Alpheus.

2. The perſons to whom it is addreſſed. To them that are ſanctified by God the Father, ſet apart for himſelf in the purpoſes of his eternal love, and preſerved in Jeſus Chriſt, as the glorious covenant-head of his people, who loſes none of thoſe whom the Father hath given him, and called, in the fulneſs of time, to the actual participation of thoſe goſpel privileges which Jeſus hath purchaſed, and God the Father promiſed to beſtow on the redeemed, of pardon, grace, holineſs and comfort here, and of everlaſting bleſſedneſs hereafter. Note, (1.) All thoſe, who are called to partake of the grace of the goſpel, are ſanctified. Hope towards God, without holineſs, is but deluſion. (2.) Chriſt's people are preſerved by him, and none can ever pluck them out of his hands.

3. The apoſtolical benediction. Mercy unto you from a pardoning God, and peace, flowing from a ſenſe of his reconciliation, and love, both to him and towards each other, be multiplied.

4. He exhorts them to hold faſt the truth which they had received both in doctrine and practice. Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common ſalvation, which all believers enjoy through our adored Redeemer and Saviour; it was become needful for me to write unto you, becauſe of the multitude of deceivers, and exhort you, that ye ſhould earneſtly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the ſaints, firmly holding faſt the unadulterated doctrines of truth, and zealouſly maintaining them againſt all heretical oppoſers. Note, (1.) The ſalvation of the goſpel is a common ſalvation for Jews and Gentiles, and ſinners of every kind, without exception. (2.) They who have received the truth, in the light and love of it, need be exhorted ſtill to ſtand faſt againſt all the wiles of deceivers. (3.) That faith which God, by his inſpired ſervants, once delivered to his ſaints, for the uſe of his church to the lateſt ages, we muſt contend for, not with anger, or carnal weapons, but with holy zeal, tempered with meekneſs, and arguments drawn from the ſacred treaſury of the Scriptures.

5. He deſcribes the falſe teachers againſt whom they need be on their guard. For there are certain men crept in unawares, by craft and ſubtilty into the church and the miniſtry, who were before of old ordained to this condemnation, in God's wiſe and righteous counſels, ungodly men, whoſe ſpirit, temper, and conduct, are directly oppoſite to the divine will and word, turning the grace of our God into laſciviouſneſs, perverting the richeſt doctrines of grace to the vileſt purpoſes of impurity, and abuſing them to encourage men in all immorality with the hopes of impunity; denying the only Lord God, in works, if not in words, practical, if not ſpeculative atheiſts; and rejecting alſo the goſpel teſtimony concerning the perſon, character, and offices of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Note, (1.) Deceivers were rife in every age; we need not wonder therefore if ſuch ungodly men are found in our own, perverting the glorious grace of the goſpel. (2.) They who are vile upon principle, and plead God's word to countenance their impurities, are of all men moſt deſperately wicked. (3.) When ungodly men meet their appointed condemnation, they receive but the juſt reward of their deeds.

5. [i] I will therefore put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, [k] how that the Lord having ſaved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterward [l] deſtroyed them that believed not. 6. And [m] the angels which kept not their firſt eſtate, but left their own habitation, [n] he hath reſerved in everlaſting chains under darkneſs, unto the judgment of the great day. 7. Even as [o] Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them in like manner giving themſelves over to fornication, and going after † ſtrange fleſh, are ſet forth for an example, ſuffer-ing the vengeance of eternal fire.

i 2 Pet. iii. 1.
k 1 Cor. x. 9.
l Num. xiv. 29, 37. & xxvi. 64. Heb. iii. 17, 19.
m John viii. 44.
n 2 Pet. ii. 4.
o Gen. xix. 24. Deut. xxix. 23. 2 Pet. ii. 6.
† Gr. Other.

v. 5—7. The apoſtle, to inforce his warnings, reminds them of the judgment which God formerly executed on ſuch ungodly men. I will therefore put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, the perpetual memory of which needs to be preſerved, and it is good to be often reminded of theſe things, that they may be preſent before our minds, and the impreſſion of them more deep and lively.

Three awful inſtances of divine vengeance here ſtand forth to warn and deter others from the like crimes. Remember,

1. How that the Lord having ſaved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterward deſtroyed them that believed not, though he had done ſo great things for them; and if he ſpared not theſe, let not the perverters of the goſpel, whoſe crime is ſo much more aggravated, expect a leſs fearful doom. And remember alſo,

2. That the angels, tho' creatures of ſuch ſuperior excellence and dignity, which kept not their firſt eſtate, were not content with the ſtation allotted them, but left their own habitation, affecting to be as the Moſt High, and were therefore hurled from thoſe bright regions which were before their bleſt abode; he hath reſerved in everlaſting chains under darkneſs, like criminals faſt bound in priſon, and kept in cuſtody under his eternal and unchangeable decree, in ſpiritual darkneſs, miſery, and black deſpair, unto the judgment of the great day, when ſentence will finally be executed upon them, and their torment be complete as eternal. And if God thus puniſhed rebel angels, what ſeverity ſhall not they meet with, who fight againſt the word of his truth, and the honour of his Son! Apoſtates in heaven or earth muſt periſh together.

3. Another inſtance of God's wrath is produced. Even as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them, Admah and Zeboim, in like manner abandoned to impurity, giving themſelves over to fornication, and going after ſtrange fleſh, guilty of the moſt ſhocking acts of uncleanneſs, and the moſt unnatural crimes, are ſet forth for an example of God's tremendous wrath, ſuffering the vengeance of eternal fire; the livelieſt image of what the damned muſt endure in the lake which burneth with fire and brimſtone for ever and ever. Wo to thoſe who are partakers of their ſins! the ſame fearful vengeance awaits them.

8. [p] Likewiſe alſo theſe filthy dreamers defile the fleſh, deſpiſe dominion, and [q] ſpeak evil of dignities. 9. Yet [r] Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil he diſputed about the body of Moſes, [s] durſt not bring againſt him a railing accuſation, but ſaid, [t] The Lord rebuke thee. 10. But [u] theſe ſpeak evil of thoſe things which they know not: but what they know naturally as brute beaſts; in thoſe things they corrupt themſelves.
11. Wo unto them; for they have gone in the way of [x] Cain, and [y] ran greedily after the error of Balaam for reward, and periſhed in [z] the gainſaying of Core. 12.
[a] Theſe are ſpots in your [b] feaſts of charity, when they feaſt with you, feeding themſelves without fear: [c] clouds they are without water, carried about of wind; trees whoſe fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, [d] plucked up by the roots: 13. [e] Raging waves of the ſea, [f] foaming out their own ſhame; wandring ſtars, [g] to whom is reſerved the blackneſs of darkneſs for ever.

p 2 Pet. ii. 10, 11.
q Ex. xxii. 28.
r Dan. x. 13. & xii. 1. Rev. xii. 7.
s 2 Pet. ii. 11.
t Zech. iii. 2.
u 2 Pet. ii. 12.
x Gen. iv. 5.
y Num. xxii. 7, 21. 2 Pet. ii. 15. Rev. ii. 14.
z Num. xvi. 1.
a 2 Pet. ii. 13.
b 1 Cor. xi. 21.
c Prov. xxv. 14. 2 Pet. ii. 17.
d Mat. xv. 13.
e Iſa. lvii. 20.
f Phil. iii. 19.
g 2 Pet. ii. 17.

v. 8—13. The apoſtle deſcribes theſe ſeducing teachers as guilty of the ſame crimes, which had before brought down wrath both on ſinning angels and ungodly men.

1. Their impurities were great. Likewiſe alſo theſe filthy dreamers defile the fleſh; ſleeping and waking their minds are ever running after impure objects, diſhonouring their own bodies by their lewd practices, and drawing in others to gratify their lawleſs appetites.

2. They caſt off all reſpect for lawful authority. They deſpiſe dominion, treating the civil government with inſolence and contempt, and ſpeak evil of dignities, reviling the perſons of magiſtrates, and thoſe who are high in office, whether in church or ſtate. Yet even Michael the archangel, eminent as his rank and ſtation is, when contending with the devil about the body of Moſes, durſt not bring a railing accuſation againſt him, wicked as he was, but ſaid, The Lord rebuke thee.

Some refer this to a contention which they ſuppoſe really paſſed on the mountain where Moſes died, whoſe dead body, they conceive the devil deſired to poſſeſs, in order to lead Iſrael to idolatry, though nothing is mentioned of this in the Scriptures.

Others by Michael ſuppoſe, that Chriſt, the great angel of the covenant, is meant; and by the body of Moſes, underſtand the Moſaical œconomy, and refer to Zech. iii. 1, 2. but though the former ſenſe hath its difficulties, the latter ſeems unnatural and ſtrained. However, the argument is plain, that if the devil himſelf, wicked as he is, was not rebuked with railing, much leſs ought any magiſtrates or rulers, which God hath ordained, in church or ſtate, to be treated with inſolence and malignity. But theſe ſeducers ſpeak evil of thoſe things which they know not, ignorant of the excellence and importance of religion and of the Scriptures, and of the uſefulneſs of that miniſtry and magiſtracy againſt which they rail: but what they know naturally, as brute beaſts, governed merely by their ſenſitive appetites: in thoſe things they corrupt themſelves, giving a looſe to all their brutiſh paſſions, without fear or ſhame, till they bring upon themſelves ſwift deſtruction. Note, When men live like beaſts they may expect to periſh like devils.

3. They copied the vileſt examples. Wo unto them! the moſt fearful vengeance hangs over them; for they have gone in the way of Cain, filled with his malignant ſpirit of envy, hatred, and murder towards the righteous, and ran greedily after the error of Balaam for reward, ambitious, proud, covetous, and, like that wicked prophet, inſatiate after gain, and they have periſhed in the gainſaying of Core, like thoſe rebels who roſe up againſt Moſes and Aaron, and ready with them to be ſwallowed up in the yawning pit of hell. Note, Companions with ſinners muſt expect to ſhare their plagues.

4. He deſcribes theſe deluders under a variety of images. Theſe are ſpots in your feaſts of charity, when they feaſt with you, feeding themſelves without fear; whether in a way of civil intercourſe, or religious communion, they let looſe their luxurious appetites, without any fear of that judgment which awaits them: clouds they are without water, that ſeem to promiſe rain, but prove like noxious meteors, or noiſome fogs, carried about with winds, variable, and toſſed to and fro by every blaſt of error; trees whoſe fruit withereth, deceiving our expectations, and bring nothing to maturity; without fruit, their ſpecious appearances, like blaſted fruit, drop off, and the hypocrite and apoſtate is detected; twice dead, by nature and by a revolt from their profeſſion; plucked up by the roots, and thus irrecoverably ruined; all hope reſpecting them is become deſperate, and they are now only fit fuel for the flames: raging waves of the ſea, turbulent, ungovernable, foaming out their own ſhame, belching forth their blaſphemies againſt Chriſt and reproaches againſt his cauſe and people; wandring ſtars, reſembling fiery meteors that kindle in the atmoſphere, and, after a momentary blaze, are extinguiſhed; or, like the comets, wandering wide from the ſyſtem of truth and holineſs; to whom is reſerved the blackneſs of darkneſs for ever, in that place where total deſpair completes the miſery of the damned, whoſe worm dieth not, and their fire is not quenched.

4. And Enoch alſo, [k] the ſeventh from Adam, propheſied of theſe, ſaying, Behold, [l] the Lord cometh h Gen. v. 18.

i Dan. vii. 10. Zech. xiv. 5. Mat. xxv. 31. 2 Theſ. i. 7.

with ten thouſand of his ſaints, 15. To execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them, of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their [k] hard ſpeeches, which ungodly ſinners have ſpoken againſt him. 16. Theſe are murmurers, complainers, [l] walking after their own luſts; and [m] their mouth ſpeaketh great ſwelling words, having men's perſons in admiration becauſe of advantage.

[k] 1 Sam, ii. 3. Pſ. xxxi. 18. & xciv. 4. Mal. iii. 13.
[l] 2 Pet. ii. 10.
[m] 2 Pet. ii. 18,

v. 14—16. We have here,

1. A prophecy of Enoch's recorded concerning theſe men. And Enoch alſo, the ſeventh from Adam, in the line of deſcent, propheſied of theſe, ſaying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thouſand of his ſaints, in glorious majeſty, ſwift to avenge the wrongs of his people, and the blaſphemies againſt himſelf; to execute judgment upon all, who muſt ſtand at his bar, and receive from his lips their deciſive ſentence; and to convince all that are ungodly among them, by the vengeance he will inflict, of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, in defiance of his authority; and of all their hard ſpeeches, which ungodly ſinners have ſpoken againſt him. Note, (1.) There is a dreadful day of judgment at hand, when vengeance ſhall overtake the ungodly. (2.) However impious and ſtout-hearted ſinners may now be, every impenitent heart in that day will tremble, and every hardened face gather blackneſs. (3.) Though mockers now make light of ridiculing the word, the ways, and the people of God, they will find a fearful reckoning for their hard ſpeeches in the day of recompenſe.

2. A farther deſcription of theſe wicked men. Theſe are murmurers, againſt God and his providences; complainers, diſcontented with their condition in life; finding fault with the doctrines and diſpenſations of the Lord; walking after their own luſts, gratifying every vile and ſenſual appetite without reſtraint: and their mouth ſpeaketh great ſwelling words, making a pretended oſtentation of their knowledge and piety, when in the very depth of error, and in the gall of bitterneſs; having men's perſons in admiration becauſe of advantage; careſſing and flattering thoſe, however vile, who are rich, in order to make gain of them. Note, (1.) Diſcontent with our lot is, in God's ſight, rebellion againſt his providence. (2.) Men-pleaſers, and ſmooth-tongued flatterers of the great, have the ſure brand upon them of miniſters of Satan.

17. [n] But, beloved, remember ye the words which were ſpoken before of the apoſtles of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: 18. How that they told you [o] there ſhould be mockers in the laſt time, [p] who ſhould walk after their own ungodly luſts. 19. Theſe be they [q] who ſeparate themſelves, [r] ſenſual, having not the Spirit. 20. But ye, beloved, building up yourſelves [s] on your moſt holy faith, [t] praying in the holy Ghoſt, 21. Keep yourſelves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt unto eternal life. 22. And of ſome have compaſſion, making a difference: 23. And others [u] ſave with fear, pulling them out of the fire; hating [x] even [y] the garment ſpotted by the fleſh. 24. [z] Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to preſent you [a] faultleſs before the preſence of his glory with exceeding joy, 25. [b] To the only wiſe [c] God our Saviour, be glory and majeſty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

[n] 2 Pet. iii. 2.
[o] 1 Tim. iv. 1. 2 Tim. iii. 1. 2 Pet. iii. 3.
[p] Ver. 16.
[q] Prov. xviii. 1. Ezek. xiv. 7. Hoſ. iv. 14. & ix. 10.
[r] 1 Cor. ii. 14. Jam. iii. 15.
[s] Col. i. 23. & ii. 7.
[t] Rom. viii. 26. Eph. vi. 18.
[u] Rom. xi. 14. 1 Tim. iv. 16.
[x] 1 Theſ. v. 22.
[y] Zech. iii. 4. Rev. iii. 4.
[z] Rom. xvi. 25. Eph. iii. 20. 1 Tim. i. 17.
[a] Eph. i. 4. Col. i. 22.
[b] Rom. xvi. 27.
[c] 1 Tim. i. 1. & ii. 3. Tit. iii. 4.

v. 17—25. The apoſtle concludes,

1. With his kind admonitions. But, beloved, be deaf to the arts of theſe ſeducers, and remember ye the words which were ſpoken before of the apoſtles of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which now have received their fulfilment, and ſhould confirm the doctrines which they taught: how that they told you there ſhould be mockers in the laſt time, who ſhould walk after their own ungodly luſts; ſcoffing at the religion of Jeſus, that without reſtraint they may give a looſe to every lawleſs paſſion. And theſe be they, of whom the apoſtles ſpake, who ſeparate themſelves; fomenting factions, and, under pretences of purer worſhip, forming new ſects and parties, withdrawing from the communion of the apoſtolic church; when, notwithſtanding all their profeſſions of piety, they are utterly ſenſual, the ſlaves of worldly-mindedneſs and fleſhly luſts, having not the Spirit, and ſtrangers to his grace and influence. Note, (1.) The only way to be preſerved from the wiles of deceivers is to cleave to our bibles. (2.) We need not think it ſtrange that ſo many diviſions rend the church, and ſo many factious ſpirits endeavour to draw away diſciples after them; how elſe ſhould the ſcripture be fulfilled? (3.) We muſt not be aſhamed of mocking; remember who will mock laſt. See Prov. i. 26.

2. With warm exhortations. But ye, beloved, building up yourſelves on your moſt holy faith, on the glorious foundation of it, Jeſus Chriſt, continuing ſtedfaſt in your holy profeſſion, and ſeeking to eſtabliſh each other in the truth; praying in the Holy Ghoſt, under his gracious teaching and influences, who helpeth our infirmities; keep yourſelves in the love of God; uſe all appointed means to preſerve and increaſe the heavenly fire, and to approve yourſelves in all holy obedience and humble reſignation; looking for the mercy of our Lord Jeſus unto eternal life, and that compleat felicity, both in body and ſoul, for which you muſt own yourſelves wholly indebted to the riches of his ſovereign grace. And of ſome have compaſſion, making a difference between thoſe who err wilfully, and thoſe who are miſled thro' weakneſs and the wiles of deceivers, whom with all kindneſs and tenderneſs labour to recover from the ſnare: and others ſave with fear; uſing that ſharpneſs, ſeverity, and terror with them, which their more dangerous caſe requires; pulling them, if poſſible, out of the fire, which is ready to conſume them; hating even the garment ſpotted by the fleſh; deteſting all impure converſation, and teſtifying an unremitting diſpleaſure againſt ſin, and whatever would lead thereto; as the Jews were under the law obliged to ſhun every touch that communicated defilement, and the garment that had the ſpot of leproſy muſt be burned. Note, (1.) Faith in lively exerciſe is the great preſervative from all deluſion. (2.) Prayer muſt be our daily employment; ſpiritual prayer, not the taſk of the lip and the knee, but the warm effuſions of the heart, where the Holy Ghoſt abides. (3.) They who would keep themſelves in the love of God, muſt carefully ſhun whatever they know muſt offend him. (4.) Mercy, not merit, muſt be our hope, even in a judgment-day; and eternal life be expected merely as the ſovereign gift of God in Jeſus Chriſt. (5.) We ſhould ſhow a holy jealouſy over our brethren, tenderly deſirous to ſnatch them from the dangers to which they are expoſed; kindly warning them; and, where ſharpneſs is needful, faithfully declaring thoſe terrors of the Lord, which may rouſe the lethargic conſcience.

3. He cloſes with a ſolemn doxology. Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, that bleſſed Jeſus, in and by whom alone you can be preſerved (See ver. 1.) from all evil or apoſtacy; and to preſent you faultleſs, in his own divine righteouſneſs, before the preſence of his glory, in the great day of his appearing, with exceeding joy, when every tear ſhall be wiped from your eyes, and eternal triumphs fill your happy ſouls; to the only wiſe God our Saviour, in whom dwell all the treaſures of wiſdom and knowledge, be glory and majeſty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen. Note, (1.) We are in his hands who is not only able, but hath engaged to keep us from falling; therefore we may truſt, and not be afraid. (2.) Whatever infirmities ſtill cleave to us, we ſhall be preſented faultleſs before the throne; for if we are Chriſt's, we are compleat in him. (3.) The ſervice of eternity will begin even here below, and every redeemed ſoul will delight to proclaim the Saviour's praiſe.

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR; OR, A PRACTICAL COMMENT UPON THE Revelation of St. JOHN the Divine.

We are now entering upon the laſt volume in the canon of the ſcriptures, and the moſt difficult of the whole to be underſtood; as muſt needs be the caſe with prophecies which wait for the key of time to open them.

It is generally admitted, that this book contains an account of the ſtate of the church to the end of time; then at leaſt we ſhall fully underſtand its contents. Mean time, whilſt we are humbly ſearching what and what manner of time the Spirit ſpeaking in it doth ſignify, we ſhall find much profitable matter for our ſouls health; and though we may miſtake in the application of ſome of the prophecies, yet ſhall we obtain the bleſſing promiſed to thoſe who read and hear the things written in this book, ver. 3.

I concur with thoſe who ſuppoſe, that the events from Chap. iv. to the end follow in a regular ſeries; and am content to ſelect from the labours of the moſt wiſe and judicious interpreters, the ſenſe which appears moſt probable; though withal acknowledging, that in many places the prophecies are covered with deep obſcurity, and the wiſeſt conjectures dubious. We muſt be content for a while to wait the explication of them. The viſion is for an appointed time, and in the end it ſhall ſpeak.

CHAP. I.

This chapter is a general preface to the whole book, and contains, 1. An inſcription, declaring the original and the deſign of it, ver. 1, 2. 2. The apoſtolical benediction pronounced on all thoſe that ſhall pay a due regard to the contents of this book, ver. 3—8. 3. A glorious viſion or appearance of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt to the apoſtle John, when he delivered to him this revelation, from ver. 9, to the end of the chapter.

1. THE revelation of Jeſus Chriſt, which God gave unto him, to ſhew unto his ſervants things [a] which muſt ſhortly come to paſs; and [b] he ſent and ſignified it by his angel unto his ſervant John: 2. Who bare record of the Word of God, and of [c] the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt, and of all things [d] that he ſaw. 3. [e] Bleſſed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep thoſe things which are written therein: for [f] the time is at hand.

[a] Chap. iv. 1.
[b] Chap. xxii. 16.
[c] 1 Cor. i. 6. Ver. 9. Chap. vi. 9. & xii. 17.
[d] 1 John i. 1.
[e] Luke xi. 28. Chap. xxii. 7.
[f] Rom. xiii. 11. Jam. v. 8. 1 Pet. iv. 7. Chap. xxii. 10.

v. 1—3. The book opens,

1. With a preface, declaring its ſacred contents. The revelation of Jeſus Chriſt, which comes from him, as the great prophet of his church, and which God gave unto him, to ſhew unto his ſervants things which muſt ſhortly come to paſs; ſome of them to be quickly accompliſhed, and the reſt in order till the end of time: and he ſent and ſignified it by his angel, whom he employed on this errand, unto his ſervant John, who bare record of the word of God, and had before, in his goſpel and epiſtles, ſpoken of the glory and offices of the incarnate word, and was one of the faithful witneſſes of the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt, of his goſpel, and of all things that he ſaw; the miracles, life, death, and reſurrection of the great Redeemer, and thoſe amazing viſions which are here recorded.

2. A bleſſing is pronounced on the hearers, readers, and obſervers of this book. Bleſſed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, attentively remarking the prophecies here revealed, and enquiring into the mind of the Spirit; and keep thoſe things which are written therein; retaining them in their memory, and directed by them in their practice: for the time is at hand, when their fulfilment will begin. Note, (1.) They who diligently ſtudy the ſcriptures, will find the happy fruit of their labours. (2.) The ſhorter the period of time allotted to us is, the greater diligence ſhould we give to improve it.

4. JOHN to the ſeven churches which are in Aſia: Grace be unto you, and peace, from him [g] which is, and [h] which was, and which is to come; and [i] from the ſeven ſpirits which are before his throne; 5. And from Jeſus Chriſt, who is [k] the faithful witneſs, and [l] the firſt-begotten of the dead, and [m] the prince of the kings of the earth: Unto him [n] that loved us, and [o] waſhed us from our ſins in his own blood, 6. And hath [g] Ex. iii. 14. Ver. 8.

[h] John i. 1.
[i] Zech. iii. 9. & iv. 10. Chap. iii. 1. & iv. 5. & v. 6.
[k] John viii. 14. Chap. iii. 14.
[l] 1 Cor. xv. 20. Col. i. 18.
[m] Chap. xvii. 14. & xix. 16.
[n] Gal. ii. 20.
[o] Heb. ix. 14. 1 John i. 7.

[p] hath made us kings and prieſts, unto God and his Father; [q] to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen. 7. [r] Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye ſhall ſee him, and [s] they alſo which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth ſhall wail becauſe of him: even ſo, Amen. 8. [t] I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, ſaith the Lord, [u] which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty.

p Ex. xix. 6. 1 Pet. ii. 5,9. Chap. v. 10. & xx. 6.
q 1 Tim vi. 16. Heb. xiii. 21. 1 Pet. iv. 11. & v. 11.
r Dan. vii. 13. Mat. xxiv. 30. & xxvi. 64. Acts i. 11. Jude 14.
s Zech. xii. 10. John xix. 37.
t Iſa. xli. 4. & xliv. 6. & xlviii. 12. Ver. 11. Chap. xxi. 6. & xxii. 13.
u Ver. 4. Chap. iv. 8. & xi. 17. & xvi. 5.

v. 4—8. The apoſtle,

1. Addreſſes the ſeven churches which are in Aſia: and adds his benediction, Grace be unto you in all its fulneſs of bleſſings, and peace in your conſciences from a ſenſe of redeeming love, flowing from him which is, and which was, and which is to come, from the eternal Father, in his nature and perfections unchangeably the ſame for ever and ever: and from the ſeven ſpirits which are before his throne, even that Holy Ghoſt whoſe gifts and graces are various and perfect, having all fulneſs to communicate to theſe ſeven churches, and to all the members of them; and from Jeſus Chriſt, through whom as Mediator all the bleſſings of the triune God deſcend upon his people; who is the faithful witneſs, the anointed prophet to declare the Father's will; and the firſt-begotten of the dead, who roſe as our glorious high-prieſt, with his own blood to appear in the preſence of God for us; and the prince of the kings of the earth, exalted to the mediatorial throne, and become the Head of all principalities and powers, as the univerſal King to protect his people and ſubdue their enemies.

2. He aſcribes glory to the incarnate Jeſus. Unto him that loved us with an everlaſting love, and waſhed us from our ſins in his own blood, which he ſhed to redeem us from all iniquity; and hath made us kings and prieſts unto God and his Father, inveſting us with dominion over all the power of evil, and conſecrating us for his bleſſed ſervice, to offer thoſe ſpiritual ſacrifices which are acceptable to God by Jeſus Chriſt; to him, even to this amiable and adorable Jeſus, be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen! Note, (1.) Jeſus by his blood hath purged our ſins; and nothing but this could ever have cleanſed our guilty ſouls. (2.) Every child of God is now conſecrated to the higheſt office and dignity; is heir to a throne of glory, and hath acceſs with boldneſs into the holieſt of all through atoning blood. (3.) They who know the divine Redeemer, and are intereſted in his love, will be ceaſeleſs in their adorations of him.

3. With rapture the apoſtle looks forward to the glorious coming of Jeſus as the eternal judge, and as preſent for the comfort and joy of his people, cries out, Behold, with wonder and delight, he cometh with clouds in awful majeſty, ſurrounded with angels and archangels, ten thouſand times ten thouſand, and thouſands of thouſands; and every eye ſhall ſee him, ſeated on the throne of judgment; and they alſo which pierced him, with impious and bloody cruelty nailed him to the tree; and all kindreds of the earth ſhall wail becauſe of him, whoſe guilt unpardoned now ſhall ſtare them in the face, and horrors unutterable ſeize upon their conſciences; whilſt with tranſport the faithful ſhall welcome his arrival, approving and applauding all his righteous deciſions; and are now wiſhing for the day of his appearing; even ſo, Amen! come quickly. Note, (1.) A day of judgment will ſpread terror through a wicked world. Wo then to thoſe who have pierced the Redeemer, whether in his own perſon, or in the inſults ſhewn to his people: they ſhall receive a fearful recompenſe. (2.) Bleſſed and happy are they who, in the proſpect of this day, can comfortably ſay, Even ſo, Amen!

4. The great Judge deſcribes his own tranſcendent honour. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, ſaith the Lord, the ſum and ſubſtance of the ſcriptures, poſſeſſing all perfections, and accompliſhing all my pleaſure; which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty, the ſelf-exiſtent and incomprehenſible Jehovah, able to ſave or deſtroy to the uttermoſt.

9. I John, who alſo am your brother, and [x] companion in tribulation, and [y] in the kingdom and patience of Jeſus Chriſt, was in the iſle that is called Patmos, [z] for the word of God, and for the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt. 10. [a] I was in the Spirit on [b] the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, [c] as of a trumpet, 11. Saying, [d] I am Alpha and Omega, [e] the firſt and the laſt: and, What thou ſeeſt, write in a book, and ſend it unto the ſeven churches which are in Aſia; unto Epheſus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamos, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea. 12. And I turned to ſee the voice that ſpake with me. And being turned, [f] I ſaw ſeven golden candleſticks; 13. And [g] in the midſt of the ſeven candleſticks, [h] one like unto the Son of man, [i] clothed with a garment down to the foot, and [k] girt about the paps with a golden girdle: 14. His head and [l] his hairs were white like wool, as white as ſnow; and [m] his eyes were as a flame of fire; 15. And [n] his feet like unto fine braſs, as if they burned in a furnace; and [o] his voice as the ſound of many waters. 16. And [p] he had in his right hand ſeven ſtars: and [q] out of his mouth went a ſharp two-edged ſword: and [r] his countenance was as the ſun ſhineth in his ſtrength. 17. And [s] when I ſaw him, I fell at his feet as dead: and [t] he laid his right hand upon me, ſaying unto me, Fear not; [u] I am the firſt and the laſt. 18. [x] I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold, [y] I am alive for evermore, Amen; and [z] have the keys of hell and of death. 19. Write [a] the things which thou haſt ſeen, [b] and the things which are; [c] and the things which ſhall be hereafter. 20. The myſtery of the [d] ſeven ſtars which thou ſaweſt in my right hand, [e] and the ſeven golden candleſticks. The ſeven ſtars [f] are the angels of the ſeven churches: and [g] the ſeven candleſticks which thou ſaweſt, are the ſeven churches.

x Phil. i. 7. & iv. 14. 2 Tim. i. 8.
y Rom. viii. 17. 2 Tim. ii. 12.
z Ver. 2. Chap. vi. 9.
a Chap. iv. 2. & xvii. 3. & xxi. 10.
b John xx. 29. Acts xx. 7. 1 Cor. xvi. 2.
c Chap. iv. 1.
d Ver. 8.
e Ver. 17.
f Ver. 20.
g Chap. ii. 1.
h Ezek. i. 26. Dan. vii. 13. & x. 16. Chap. xiv. 14.
i Lev. xvi. 4, 32. Dan. x. 6.
k Ex. xxxix. 5.
l Dan. vii. 9.
m Dan. x. 6. Chap. ii. 18. & xix. 12.
n Ezek. i. 7. Dan. x. 6. Chap. ii. 18.
o Dan. x. 6. Chap. xiv. 2.
p Ver. 20. Chap. ii. 1. & iii. 1.
q Iſa. xlix. 2. Eph. vi. 17. Heb. iv. 12. Chap. ii. 12, 16. & xix. 15, 21.
r Acts xxvi. 13. Chap. x. 1. s Ezek. i. 28.
t Dan. viii. 18. & x. 10.
u Ver. 11. Chap. ii. 8. & xxii. 13.
x Rom. vi. 9.
y Chap. iv. 9.
z Pſ. lxviii. 20. Chap. xx. 1.
a Ver. 12.
b Chap. ii. 1, &c.
c Chap. iv. 1, &c.
d Ver. 16.
e Ver. 12, 13.
f Mal. ii. 7.
g Zech. iv. 2. Mat. v. 15. Phil. ii. 15.

v. 9—20. We have here the glorious viſion which appeared to the divine penman of this book.

1. He calls himſelf John, your brother and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jeſus Chriſt; for all his ſervants follow him with their croſs to glory, and muſt expect and be content patiently to ſuffer for his great name's ſake. He was now in baniſhment in the iſle of Patmos, for his fidelity to his bleſſed Maſter; and, though removed far from earthly comforters, ſtill he found that preſence of God which made his lonely abode a paradiſe of delights. He was in the Spirit on the Lord's day; whilſt on that holy day, obſerved by the Chriſtian church in memory of the Saviour's reſurrection, he was employed in ſacred meditation and prayer, he felt the deſcending power of the Holy One, and was filled with prophetic inſpiration. Note, They who on the Lord's day employ in ſpiritual exerciſes their time and thoughts, retiring from the world and all its cares and avocations, will find a bleſſed intercourſe with heaven, and experience that communion with God which is a foretaſte of eternal bleſſedneſs.

2. He declares what he heard and ſaw. A great voice, as of a trumpet behind him, awakened his attention, and he heard diſtinctly the voice of Jeſus, ſaying, I am Alpha and Omega, the firſt and the laſt; and commanding him to write what in viſion he was now about to ſee and hear, and ſend it to the ſeven churches of Aſia, whoſe names are ſpecified. Turning to ſee from whence the voice proceeded, a glorious perſonage meets his aſtoniſhed ſight, whoſe majeſty he deſcribes. I ſaw ſeven golden candleſticks, ſeven branches ſpringing from the ſame ſtem, like that which ſtood in the tabernacle of old, the emblems of that light of truth and fire of love which Jeſus ſends into the midſt of his church and people, and which they in their converſation hold forth to the world. And in the midſt of the ſeven golden candleſticks one ſtood, as the prieſt when he came to trim the lamps, like unto the Son of man, clothed with a garment down to the foot, the figure of his complete and ſpotleſs righteouſneſs; and girt about the paps with a golden girdle, far ſurpaſſing the coſtly girdle of the ephod, and intimating how ready and able he is to diſcharge his ſacerdotal office on their behalf: his head and his hairs were white like wool, as the Ancient of days, as white as ſnow; and his eyes were as a flame of fire, piercing and penetrating into the inmoſt ſecrets of men's ſouls, and darting lightning againſt his foes; and his feet like unto fine braſs, as if they burned in a furnace, mighty to ſupport the concerns of his church and people, and to tread down their enemies; and his voice as the ſound of many waters, ſpreading to the diſtant corners of the earth his bleſſed goſpel word, and terrible in his providences and judgments as the roaring waves. And he had in his right hand ſeven ſtars, the faithful biſhops of his church, whom he upholds and preſerves, and who ſhine bright in the luſtre of his grace; and out of his mouth went a ſharp two-edged ſword, even the ſword of his law and goſpel, pricking ſinners to the heart, and hewing down all oppoſition; and his countenance was as the ſun ſhineth in his ſtrength, reviving as the light and warmth of his invigorating beams. And when I ſaw him, I fell at his feet as dead, overcome with the brightneſs of his glory. And he laid his right hand upon me, to revive my intimidated mind by his mighty grace, ſaying unto me, Fear not; I am the firſt and the laſt, in kindneſs and love unchangeable. I am he that liveth, eſſentially poſſeſſed of life in and of myſelf; and was dead, in that human nature which I aſſumed; and behold I am alive for evermore, Amen! ſo it is, infallibly certain and true; and I have the keys of hell and of death, to ſave or to deſtroy according to my ſovereign pleaſure; to unlock the gates of the grave to my people, and ſhut up in the priſon of eternal darkneſs the wicked. Write the things which thou haſt ſeen, and the things which are, and the things which ſhall be hereafter until the end of time. The myſtery of the ſeven ſtars which thou ſaweſt in my right hand, and the ſeven golden candleſticks. The ſeven ſtars are the angels, or meſſengers, of the ſeven churches: and the ſeven candleſticks, which thou ſaweſt, are the ſeven churches. May we by faith behold the ſame Jeſus, and feel the enlivening influence of his preſence with our ſouls!

CHAP. II.

The apoſtle John, according to the command which he received, proceeds to write the epiſtles to the angels or miniſters of the ſeven churches of Epheſus, from ver. 1—8. Of Smyrna, from ver. 8—12. 3. Of Pergamos, from ver. 12—18. 4. Of Thyatira, from ver. 18. to the end.

1. UNTO the angel of the church of Epheſus, write, Theſe things ſaith [a] he that holdeth the ſeven ſtars in his right hand, [b] who walketh in the midſt of the ſeven golden candleſticks; 2. [c] I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canſt not bear them which are evil: and [d] thou haſt tried them [e] which ſay they are apoſtles, and are not; and haſt found them liars: 3. And haſt born, and haſt patience, and for my name's ſake [f] haſt laboured, and haſt not fainted. 4. Nevertheleſs, I have ſomewhat againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt left thy firſt love. 5. Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, [g] and repent, and do the firſt works, [h] or elſe I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candleſtick out of his place, except thou repent. 6. But this thou haſt, that thou hateſt the deeds of [i] the Nicolaitans, which I alſo hate. 7. [k] He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches, To him that overcometh will I give [l] to eat of [m] the tree of life, which is in the midſt of the paradiſe of God.

[a] Chap. i. 16, 20.
[b] Chap. i. 13.
[c] Ver. 9, 13. 19. Chap. iii. 1, 8, 15.
[d] 1 John iv. 1.
[e] 2 Cor. xi. 13.
[f] Gal. vi. 9.
[g] Chap. iii. 19.
[h] Mat. xxi. 41, 43. Chap. iii. 3.
[i] Ver. 15.
[k] Mat. xi. 15. & xiii. 9, 43. Ver. xi. 17, 29. Chap. iii. 6, 13, 22.
[l] Chap. xxii. 2, 14.
[m] Gen. ii. 9.

v. 1—7. The firſt epiſtle is directed to the angel of the church of Epheſus. We have,

1. The preface, informing us who dictated what the apoſtle wrote, even that glorious Perſonage that holdeth the ſeven ſtars in his right hand, and who walketh in the midſt of the ſeven golden candleſticks. Note, The Lord Jeſus is he who makes his miniſters bright ſtars: he gives them purity of doctrine and holineſs of life, and enables them to ſhine to his own glory. May we each be upheld in his almighty arms, and be fed with oil from the living Source, ſhining brighter and ſtronger till we come to the eternal temple above!

2. The contents.

(1.) The epiſtle contains matter of great commendation. I know and approve thy works as a miniſter of zeal, and the works of the church in general as exemplary; and thy patience under perſecutions; and how thou canſt not bear them which are evil, abhorring their principles and practices, and removing them from communion with you: and thou haſt tried them which ſay they are apoſtles, and are not; and haſt found them liars, detecting their impoſtures, and demonſtrating the falſehood of their pretended commiſſion from Chriſt: and haſt born many conflicts, and haſt patience, and for my name's ſake haſt laboured with fidelity, and haſt not fainted. Note, They who are put in truſt with the miniſtry may expect many trials. They have need of peculiar faith and patience, that they may perſevere in their labours, and faint not.

(2.) Here is a needful rebuke and admonition. Nevertheleſs, I have ſomewhat againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt left thy firſt love, and grown colder of late in affection to me and my ways. And ſuch a backſliding in heart the Lord Jeſus obſerves, and cannot but be highly diſpleaſed with. Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the firſt works; or elſe I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candleſtick out of his place, except thou repent. Note, (1.) They who are fallen ſhould remember how much they have loſt, and with grief and ſhame conſider their ways. (2.) They who truly repent will return to their firſt works, and then they will return again to a ſenſe of the divine grace and love. (3.) The churches that neglect Chriſt's admonitions may expect to be viſited with his judgments.

(3.) A word of encouragement is added. But this thou haſt, that thou hateſt the deeds of the Nicolaitans, which I alſo hate; their idolatrous, vicious, and impure principles and practices. Note, True Chriſtians will maintain a holy hatred to all the ways of ſin.

3. The concluſion. Where we have, (1.) A ſolemn call to attention. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches. Note, The ſcriptures are of general uſe for all ages; and what was written of old was written for our inſtruction, as much as for thoſe to whom it was more immediately addreſſed. (2.) A gracious promiſe. To him that overcometh, and perſeveres unto the end, manfully fighting under my banners againſt ſin, Satan, and the world, will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midſt of the paradiſe of God; admitting him to all the bleſſings and happineſs of the celeſtial paradiſe, infinitely ſurpaſſing that from which Adam for his tranſgreſſion was ejected. Note, In Chriſt Jeſus, and by his grace, we ſhall be advanced to higher glories than even man in innocence enjoyed.

8. And unto the angel of the church in Smyrna, write, Theſe things ſaith [n] the firſt and the laſt, which was dead, and is alive. 9. [o] I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty, (but [p] thou art rich) and I know the blaſphemy of [q] them which ſay they are Jews, and are not, [q] but are the ſynagogue of Satan. 10. Fear none of thoſe things which thou ſhalt ſuffer: behold, the devil ſhall caſt ſome of you into priſon, that ye may be tried; and ye ſhall have tribulation ten days: [r] be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee [s] a crown of life. 11. [t] He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches, He that overcometh, ſhall not be hurt of [u] the ſecond death.

[n] Chap. i. 8, 17, 18.
[o] Ver. 2.
[p] Luke xii. 21. 1 Tim. vi. 18. Jam. ii. 5.
[q] Rom. ii. 28, 29. & ix. 6.
[q] Chap. iii. 9.
[r] Mat. x. 22. & xxiv. 13.
[s] 2 Tim. iv. 8. Jam. i. 12. Chap. iii. 11.
[t] Ver. 7. Chap. xiii. 9.
[u] Chap. xx. 14. & xxi. 8.

v. 8—11. The form of the epiſtles is ſimilar. We have,

1. The preface to the church of Smyrna. Theſe things ſaith the firſt and the laſt, the Creator and Judge of all, the Author and Finiſher of his people's ſalvation; who was dead, and is alive, delivered for our offences, to make the one great atonement, is raiſed again for our juſtification, and lives for ever to ſecure our eternal bleſſedneſs.

2. The contents. (1.) Their commendation. I know thy works, and tribulation, how zealouſly thou haſt laboured, and how much thou haſt ſuffered; and thy poverty, (but thou art rich) for whatever we loſe for Chriſt, and the goſpel's ſake, it ſhall procure us much more ſubſtantial treaſures in a better world. And I know the blaſphemy of them which ſay they are Jews, and are not, but are the ſynagogue of Satan, who, whilſt they pretended a peculiar covenant-title to God's favour, and zealouſly urged the moſaical ritual as eſſential to ſalvation, were in fact Satan's emiſſaries, and the bitter enemies of the ſpiritual Iſrael. (2.) Warning is given them of approaching trials. Fear none of thoſe things which thou ſhalt ſuffer, ſo as to be terrified from the path of duty: behold, the devil, by cruel perſecutors his inſtruments, ſhall caſt ſome of you into priſon, that ye may be tried, and your faith and conſtancy proved in the furnace of affliction; and ye ſhall have tribulation ten days, either ſo many years, or for a conſiderable though indefinite ſpace of time. Note, God's people need not fear the malice of their moſt invenomed perſecutors. If he be for them, no matter who may be againſt them. (3.) An encouraging promiſe is added. Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life; and then, though it be won by martyrdom, our gain will be unſpeakably great.

3. The concluſion. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches; what encouragements there are to fidelity, and how watchful God is over his choſen: He that overcometh in the holy warfare, and is finally victorious over his ſpiritual foes, ſhall not be hurt of the ſecond death, hath nothing to fear, hath every thing to hope for in eternity.

12. And to the angel of the church in Pergamos, write, Theſe things ſaith [x] he, which hath the ſharp ſword with two edges, 13. [y] I know thy works, and where thou dwelleſt, [z] even where Satan's ſeat is: and thou holdeſt faſt my name, and haſt not denied my faith, even in thoſe days wherein Antipas was my faithful martyr, who was ſlain among you, where Satan dwelleth. 14. But I have a few things againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt there them that hold the doctrine of [a] Balaam, who taught Balac to caſt a ſtumbling-block before the children of Iſrael, [b] to eat things ſacrificed unto idols, and to commit fornication. 15. So haſt thou alſo them that hold the doctrine of [c] the Nicolaitans, which thing I hate. 16. Repent; or elſe I will come unto thee quickly, and [d] will fight againſt them with the ſword of my mouth. 17. [e] He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches, To him that overcometh will I give to eat of [f] the hidden [g] manna, and will give him a white ſtone, and in the ſtone [h] a new name written, which no man knoweth, ſaving he that receiveth it.

[x] Chap. i. 16.
[y] Ver. 2.
[z] Ver. 9.
[a] Num. xxv. 1. & xxxi. 16.
[b] Acts xxv. 29. Ver. 20.
[c] Ver. 6.
[d] Iſa. xi. 4. 2 Theſ. ii. 8. Chap. i. 16. & xix. 15, 21.
[e] Ver. 7.
[f] John iv. 32.
[g] John vi. 58.
[h] Chap. iii. 12. & xix. 12.

v. 12—17. Here is, as before,

1. The preface, to the angel of the church of Pergamos. Theſe things ſaith he, which hath the ſharp ſword with two edges; the ſword of his word and his providences, to defend the faithful, and to cut off all enemies and apoſtates.

2. The contents. (1.) Notice is taken of their perilous ſituation. I know thy works, and behold with ſatisfaction whatever is excellent among you; and where thou dwelleſt, even where Satan's ſeat is, environed with enemies: and thou holdeſt faſt my name, and haſt not denied my faith, amidſt the fire of hotteſt perſecution, even in thoſe days wherein Antipas was my faithful martyr, who was ſlain among you, where Satan dwelleth, and manifeſts his bloody rage againſt my loyal ſubjects. Note, Steady fidelity in perilous days is doubly commendable. (2.) A reproof is given them for what was amiſs. But I have a few things againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt there them that hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balac to caſt a ſtumbling-block before the children of Iſrael, to eat things ſacrificed unto idols, and to commit fornication. Some ſuch ſeducing teachers were among them, who inculcated the lawfulneſs of eating idol-ſacrifices, and of fornication. So haſt thou alſo them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitans, which thing I hate; and countenance their impure and abominable practices. Note, God hates all impurity; and they who make light of fornication will feel the heavy wrath of an offended God, which it provokes. (3.) They are warned inſtantly to repent. Repent; or elſe I will come unto thee quickly in judgment, and will fight againſt thee with the ſword of my mouth: and no ſword is ſo fatal to the body as the denunciations of his wrath are to the guilty ſoul. Note, By ſpeedy repentance alone we can prevent the threatened judgments. And not only muſt we cleanſe our hearts from the love of ſin, but ſeparate ourſelves from all communion with ſcandalous offenders, leſt we become by connivance partakers of their guilt and ruin.

3. The concluſion. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches: To him that overcometh, faithful in the arduous conflict, will I give to eat of the hidden manna, feeding him with the abundant grace and conſolations of my Spirit and my goſpel; and will give him a white ſtone, abſolving him from all his iniquities; and in the ſtone a new name written, the name of a child of God and heir of glory, ſecuring to him an eternity of inconceivable bleſſedneſs, which no man knoweth ſaving he that receiveth it.

18. And unto the angel of the church in Thyatira, write, Theſe things ſaith the Son of God, [i] who hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, and his feet are like fine braſs; 19. [k] I know thy works, and charity, and ſer-vice, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works; and the laſt to be more than the firſt. 20. Notwithſtanding, I have a few things againſt thee, becauſe thou ſuffereſt that woman [l] Jezebel, which calleth herſelf a propheteſs, to teach and ſeduce my ſervants [m] to commit fornication, and to eat things ſacrificed unto idols. 21. And I gave her ſpace [n] to repent of her fornication, and ſhe repented not.
22. Behold, I will caſt her into a bed, and them that commit adultery with her into great tribulation, except they repent of their deeds. 23. And I will kill her children with death; and all the churches ſhall know that [o] I am he that ſearcheth the reins and hearts: and I [p] will give unto every one of you according to your works. 24. But unto you I ſay, and unto the reſt in Thyatira, As many as have not this doctrine, and which have not known the depths of Satan, as they ſpeak, [q] I will put upon you none other burden. 25. But [r] that which ye have already, hold faſt till I come. 26. And he that overcometh, and keepeth [s] my works unto the end, [t] to him will I give power over the nations: 27.
(And [u] he ſhall rule them with a rod of iron: as the veſſels of a potter ſhall they be broken to ſhivers) even as I received of my Father. 28. And I will give him [x] the morning-ſtar. 29. [y] He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

[i] Chap. i. 14, 15.
[k] Ver. 2.
[l] 1 Kings xvi. 31. 2 Kin. ix. 7.
[m] Ex. xxxiv. 15. Acts xv. 20. 1 Cor. x. 19, 20. Ver. 14.
[n] Chap. ix. 20.
[o] 1 Sam. xvi. 7. 1 Chron. xxviii. 9. & xxix. 17. Pſ. vii. 9. Jer. xi. 20. & xvii. 10.
[p] Rom. ii. 6. & xiv. 12. 2 Cor. v. 10. Gal. vi. 5. Chap. xx. 12.
[q] Acts xv. 28.
[r] Chap. iii. 11.
[s] John vi. 29. 1 John iii. 23.
[t] Mat. xix. 28. Luke xxii. 29. 1 Cor. vi. 3. Chap. iii. 21.
[u] Pſ. ii. 8, 9. & xlix. 14.
[x] 2 Pet. i. 19. Chap. xxii. 16.
[y] Ver. 7.

v. 18—29. The fourth epiſtle is directed to the angel of the church of Thyatira.

1. The preface deſcribes the Son of God, who dictates to the ſacred penman. Theſe things ſaith the Son of God, who hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, infinite in wiſdom and knowledge, diſcerning the ſecrets of all hearts; and his feet are like fine braſs, almighty to ſupport his people amidſt every danger, and to tread his enemies and theirs into the duſt.

2. The contents. 1. They are highly commended. I know thy works, and am pleaſed with them; and thy charity, and ſervice, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works; and the laſt to be more than the firſt; that in all divine graces and good converſation thou art increaſing with the increaſe of God, growing more exemplary and eminent. Note, It is well for us when he who knoweth our hearts bears witneſs that our laſt works are more than the firſt. 2. They are reproved for what was blameable among them. Notwithſtanding, I have a few things againſt thee, becauſe thou ſuffereſt that woman Jezebel, which calleth herſelf a propheteſs (probably ſome woman of eminence among them who pretended to inſpiration, and had her abettors and followers) to teach, and to ſeduce my ſervants to commit fornication, and to eat things ſacrificed unto idols, perverting their ſouls, and leading them to corporal and ſpiritual idolatries and impurities. And I gave her ſpace to repent of her fornication, and ſhe repented not; therefore behold ſwift vengeance ſhall overtake her and her adherents: I will caſt her into a bed of languiſhing and miſery, and them that commit adultery with her into great tribulation, the partakers of her ſins ſhall partake of her plagues, except they repent of their deeds, and prevent the threatened judgments: and I will kill her children with death, as ſurely as the ſons of Ahab periſhed by the ſword of Jehu: and all the churches ſhall know that I am he that ſearcheth the reins and hearts, and can diſcover every hidden principle and ſecret of the ſoul, diſtinguiſhing the hypocrite from the faithful; and I will give unto every one of you according to your works. Note, (1.) They who abuſe the patience of God, and harden themſelves in ſin, inſtead of repenting of their iniquities, will bring aggravated guilt and ruin upon their ſouls. (2.) God's omniſcience cannot be deceived, nor his juſtice eluded; the faithleſs profeſſor will be detected and ſentenced at his impartial tribunal. 3. He encourages the faithful among them. But unto you I ſay, and unto the reſt in Thyatira, As many as have not this doctrine, and which have not known the depths of Satan, abhorring all ſuch impure principles and practices, which impoſtors, influenced by deep Satanical ſubtlety, ſeek to inculcate, I will put upon you none other burden, nor add any farther injunctions or reſtraints than thoſe revealed in my word. But that which ye have already, the doctrines and precepts of the goſpel which you have embraced, hold faſt till I come to take you to my eternal reſt, and deliver you from all your temptations for ever. Note, (1.) The Lord knows how to ſeparate between the precious and the vile, and will ſecure his own people amidſt all the arts of deceivers. (2.) They who would meet Chriſt with comfort at his coming, muſt hold faſt his truth in principle and practice, and never be moved away from the hope of the goſpel.

3. The concluſion. And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, patiently and faithfully perſevering in the profeſſion and practice of the goſpel, to him will I give power over the nations, when he ſhall ſit with me on my throne at the great day; (and he ſhall rule them with a rod of iron, breaking in pieces all the wicked of the earth, as the veſſels of a potter ſhall they be broken to ſhivers) even as I received, in my office-capacity, a kingdom of my Father: he ſhall ſhare my glory, and reign with me for ever; and I will give him the morning-ſtar, ſo that he ſhall ſhine bright in eternal glory as the ſtars for ever and ever. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches. Lord, open thou mine ears, and make me earneſtly take heed to the things that are ſpoken!

CHAP. III.

Here we have three more of the epiſtles of Chriſt to the churches: 1. To Sardis, ver. 1—7. 2. To Philadelphia, ver. 7—14. 3. To Laodicea, ver. 14—22.

1. AND unto the angel of the church in Sardis, write, Theſe things ſaith [a] he that hath the ſeven Spirits of God, and the ſeven ſtars; [b] I know thy works, that thou haſt a name that thou liveſt, and art dead.
2. Be watchful, and ſtrengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die: for I have not found thy works perfect before God. 3. [c] Remember therefore how thou haſt received and heard, and hold faſt, [d] and repent.
[e] If therefore thou ſhalt not watch, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou ſhalt not know what hour I will come upon thee. 4. Thou haſt [f] a few names even in Sardis, which have not [g] defiled their garments; and they ſhall walk with me [h] in white: for they are worthy. 5. He that overcometh, the ſame ſhall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not [i] blot out his name out of [k] the book of life, but [l] I will confeſs his name before my Father, and before his angels. 6. [m] He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

[a] Chap. i. 4, 16.
[b] Chap. ii. 2.
[c] 1 Tim. vi. 20. 2 Tim. i. 13. Ver. 11.
[d] Ver. 19.
[e] Mat. xxiv. 42, 43. Luke xii. 39, 40. 1 Theſ. v. 2. 2 Pet. iii. 10. Chap. xvi. 15.
[f] Acts i. 15.
[g] Jude 23.
[h] Chap. iv. 4. & vi. 11. & vii. 9, 13.
[i] Ex. xxxii. 32. Pſ. lxix. 28.
[k] Phil. iv. 3. Chap. xx. 12. & xxi. 27.
[l] Mat. x. 32. Luke xii. 8.
[m] Chap. ii. 7.

v. 1—6. To the angel of the church of Sardis is this epiſtle directed.

1. It comes from him that hath the ſeven Spirits of God, who as the divine Mediator hath all variety and fulneſs of the gifts and graces of the Spirit to beſtow; and the ſeven ſtars, guiding and directing his miniſtring ſervants, and giving them all their light and influence.

2. The contents are melancholy. 1. I know thy works, that thou haſt a name that thou liveſt, and art dead; amidſt all thy ſpecious appearances of religion, I know that thy profeſſions in general are hypocritical, and many who have a name among the members of the church are really dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, and others too cold and lukewarm. Be watchful, and ſtrengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die, before all vital godlineſs be utterly departed: for I have not found thy works perfect before God; they are but as the carcaſs, when the ſpirit is fled; thy duties lifeleſs; thy ſervices inſincere. Remember therefore how thou haſt received and heard, and hold faſt, and repent. Note, (1.) A form of godlineſs will avail nothing, if the power of it be loſt. (2.) They who feel their ſouls under decays, need jealouſly watch, and cry to God for quickening influences to revive his work in their hearts. (3.) The way to recover from our backſlidings is to conſider how we departed; what God's word hath ſaid of the ſin and danger of ſuch a conduct; to repent of our unfaithfulneſs; and ſtill to cleave to thoſe promiſes that preſerve the ſoul from deſpair, and encourage us to return to God. [2.] He ſharply threatens them: If therefore thou ſhalt not watch, but goeſt on careleſs and ſecure, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou ſhalt not know what hour I will come upon thee. Note, Chriſt's appearing at death or judgment will be very terrible and ſurprizing to the backſlider in heart, when too late he will be ſtartled from the ſlumbers of ſecurity. [3.] He encourages the few faithful among them: Thou haſt a few names even in Sardis, cold and careleſs as the generality of profeſſors are, which have not defiled their garments; who have kept themſelves unſpotted from the world, and maintained a becoming purity of doctrine and manners amidſt abounding ungodlineſs; and they ſhall walk with me in white, as ſacred prieſts, and triumphant conquerors, decked with glory, honour, and immortality; for they are worthy, and meet for my inheritance among the ſaints in light.

3. The concluſion. He that overcometh, the ſame ſhall be clothed in white raiment; ſhining in ſplendid robes of righteouſneſs and victory; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confeſs his name before my Father, and before his angels, in the great day of my appearing to judge the world. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches. Note, They who fight manfully under Chriſt's banner, will be acknowledged by him with the moſt diſtinguiſhed favour and honour, when he ſhall come to reward their fidelity.

7. And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia, write, Theſe things ſaith [n] he that is holy, [o] he that is true, he that hath [p] the key of David, [q] he that openeth, and no man ſhutteth; and [r] ſhutteth, and no man openeth: 8. [s] I know thy works: behold, I have ſet before thee [t] an open door, and no man can ſhut it: for thou haſt a little ſtrength, and haſt kept my word, and haſt not denied my name. 9. Behold, I will make [u] them of the ſynagogue of Satan (which ſay they are Jews, and are not, but do lie) behold, [x] I will make them to come and worſhip before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee. 10. Becauſe thou haſt kept the word of my patience, [y] I alſo will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which ſhall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth. 11. Behold, [z] I come quickly: [a] hold that faſt which thou haſt, that no man take [b] thy crown. 12. Him that overcometh, will I make [c] a pillar in the temple of my God, and he ſhall go no more out: and [d] I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is [e] new Jeruſalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and [f] I will write upon him my new name. 13. [g] He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

[n] Acts iii. 14.
[o] Chap. i. 5. Ver. 14.
[p] Iſa. xxii. 22. Luke i. 32. Chap. i. 18.
[q] Mat. xvi. 19.
[r] Job xii. 14.
[s] Chap. ii 2.
[t] 1 Cor. xvi. 9. 2 Cor. ii. 12.
[u] Chap. ii. 9.
[x] Iſa. xlix. 23. & lx. 14.
[y] 1 Cor. x. 13. 2 Pet. ii. 9.
[z] Phil. iv. 5. Chap. i. 3. & xxii. 7, 12.
[a] Chap. ii. 25. Ver. 3.
[b] Chap. ii. 10.
[c] 1 Kings vii. 21.
[d] Chap. ii. 17. & xiv. 1. & xxii. 4.
[e] Gal. iv. 26. Heb. xii. 22. Chap. xxi. 2, 10.
[f] Chap. xxii. 4.
[g] Chap. ii. 7.

v. 7—13. The ſixth epiſtle is directed to the angel of the church of Philadelphia. We have,

1. The preface. Theſe things ſaith he that is holy, he that is true, who by nature is eſſential truth and holineſs, the ſubſtance of all the prophecies and promiſes, the true Meſſiah; he that hath the key of David, on whoſe ſhoulders the government reſts; he that openeth the gates of the grave and the kingdom of heaven to his people, and no man ſhutteth; no creature can exclude thoſe from his eternal glory whom he hath choſen for himſelf; and ſhutteth up the wicked in the dreadful priſon of eternal torment, and no man openeth, or can open the gates of the impaſſable gulph, to releaſe the damned from thence.

2. The contents. [1.] I know thy works, and regard them with delight and approbation: behold, I have ſet before thee an open door, that my word ſhould run, and have free acceſs, and be glorified; and no man can ſhut it, or obſtruct the progreſs of the goſpel: for thou haſt a little ſtrength, and a meaſure, though it be ſmall, of true grace and ſpiritual attainments; and haſt kept my word with fidelity and ſtedfaſtneſs, and haſt not denied my name, nor revolted from the profeſſion of the faith amidſt the wiles of deceivers, and the perſecutions of avowed enemies. Behold, I will make them of the ſynagogue of Satan (which ſay they are Jews and are not, but do lie) behold, with thankfulneſs and delight, I will make them, who, under pretence of zeal for Judaiſm, corrupt the doctrines of Chriſtianity, and whoſe practice is vicious as their principles are erroneous, to come and worſhip before thy feet; abaſed into the duſt, and brought with humble confeſſion of their faults to take ſhame to themſelves; and to know that I have loved thee, with diſtinguiſhing favour and regard. Note, Sooner or later the bittereſt perſecutors of God's people ſhall be made to know how dear they are to him, and be covered with everlaſting confuſion in the view of their malice againſt them. [2.] A gracious promiſe is given to the faithful. Becauſe thou haſt kept the word of my patience, and maintained the profeſſion of the unadulterated goſpel, amidſt the malignant oppoſition of invenomed foes; I alſo will keep thee from the hour of temptation, that thou ſhalt not apoſtatize from the truth under thoſe fiery perſecutions, which ſhall, under the bloody heathen emperors of Rome, come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth, and ſhew who are true and falſe profeſſors. Note, (1.) They who ſteadily cleave to Chriſt, ſhall be kept in the moſt dangerous days. (2.) We muſt prepare for temptation; it will come; and if we are unprepared, we ſhall be in imminent danger. [3.] He adds a glorious encouragement. Behold, I come quickly: the time therefore of ſuffering cannot but be momentary: hold that faſt which thou haſt, with holy reſolution cleaving to the word of truth, that no man take thy crown; nor by fraud or violence ſeduce or intimidate thee from the faith of the goſpel, and rob thee of the reward of fidelity. Note, A ſenſe of the ſpeedy coming of Jeſus for our help, is the greateſt ſupport under every affliction.

3. The concluſion. Him that overcometh, will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he ſhall go no more out; admitted into the eternal preſence of God in glory, and there ſhall be ever with the Lord, enjoying that beatific viſion. And I will write upon him the name of my God, as one of the redeemed from the earth; and the name of the city of my God, which is the new Jeruſalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God; as a citizen, intitled to all the bleſſings and privileges of that celeſtial city: and I will write upon him my new name, acknowledging him for a Chriſtian indeed, and bringing him to ſhare in all the glories of my kingdom. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches; and well worthy is it of our deepeſt and moſt ſerious attention.

14. And unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans, write, Theſe things ſaith [h] the Amen, [i] the faithful and true witneſs, [k] the beginning of the creation of God; 15. [l] I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot. 16. So then becauſe thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will ſpue thee out of my mouth: 17. Becauſe thou ſayſt, [m] I am rich, and increaſed with goods, and have need of nothing; and knoweſt not that thou art wretched, and miſerable, and poor, and blind, and naked. 18. I counſel thee [n] to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayſt be rich; and [o] white raiment, that thou mayſt be cloathed, and that the ſhame of thy nakedneſs do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyeſalve, that thou mayſt ſee. 19. [p] As many as I love, I rebuke and chaſten: be zealous therefore, and repent. 20. Behold, I ſtand at the door and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, [q] I will come in to him, and will ſup with him, and he with me. 21. To him that overcometh [r] will I grant to ſit with me in my throne, even as I alſo overcame, and am ſet down with my Father in his throne. 22. [s] He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

[h] Iſa. lxv. 16.
[i] Chap. i. 5. & xix. 11. & xxii. 6.
[k] Col. i. 15.
[l] Chap. ii. 2.
[m] Hoſ. xii. 8. 1 Cor. iv. 8.
[n] Iſa. lv. 1. Mat. xiii. 44. & xxv. 9.
[o] 2 Cor. v. 3. Chap. vii. 13. & xvi. 15. & xix. 8.
[p] Job v. 17. Prov. iii. 12. Heb. xii. 5, 6. Jam. i. 12.
[q] Cant. v. 2. John xiv. 23.
[r] Mat. xix. 28. Luke xxii. 30. 1 Cor. vi. 2. 2 Tim. ii. 12. Chap. ii. 26, 27.
[s] Chap. ii. 7.

v. 14—22. The laſt epiſtle is directed to the angel of the church of Laodicea. We have,

1. The preface. Theſe things ſaith the Amen, the faithful and true witneſs, whoſe teſtimony is infallible, and neither can nor will deceive his people, or fail of the accompliſhment of his prophecies; the beginning of the creation of God; the author of life and being to every creature, the head of vital influence to his people, having in all things the preeminence, and poſſeſſing univerſal dominion in heaven and earth.

2. The contents. [1.] A melancholy account is given of their ſtate. I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot, but lifeleſs and lukewarm: I would thou wert cold or hot; either be ſincerely zealous, or make no profeſſion, rather than diſgrace it by an unſuitable conduct. [2.] A threatning is added. So then becauſe thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will ſpue thee out of my mouth, as loathſome and nauſeous. [3.] The cauſe of their declenſion is remarked. Becauſe thou ſayſt, I am rich, and increaſed with goods, and have need of nothing; filled with ſpiritual gifts, abounding in worldly wealth; and thus they flattered themſelves with high imaginations of their own excellence: and knoweſt not that thou art wretched, and miſerable, and poor, and blind, and naked; inſenſible to thy ſpiritual wants and poverty; ignorant of all true wiſdom; deſtitute of real grace and righteouſneſs; and expoſed to the ſtorms of divine wrath. Note, (1.) Nothing is more fatal to the ſoul, than a vain conceit of our own excellencies. (2.) Many flatter themſelves as confident of heaven, whoſe ways lead down to death and hell. [4.] He gives them the kindeſt advice. I counſel thee to buy of me, that is, to come to me out of my fulneſs to receive freely the ſupply of every want, gold tried in the fire, that thou mayeſt be rich; the gold of my Spirit, wiſdom, and grace, and all the ſpiritual treaſures which I beſtow on my redeemed; and white raiment, that thou mayeſt be cloathed; even that ſpotleſs and everlaſting righteouſneſs which I have wrought out, and will put upon thee, that the ſhame of thy nakedneſs do not appear; but that all thy guilt and deformity may be for ever hid from the eyes of divine purity and juſtice: and anoint thine eyes with eye-ſalve, that thou mayeſt ſee the things that make for thy everlaſting peace, and all the myſteries of goſpel-grace, no longer blinded by ignorance, prejudice, and worldly luſts. Note, They who would be ſpiritually rich, and cloathed, and wiſe unto ſalvation, muſt come to Chriſt out of his fulneſs to buy; and, bleſſed be his name, the purchaſe is to be made without money and without price, for he freely gives to the miſerable and the deſtitute. [5.] A gracious encouragement is yet given them to repent. As many as I love, I rebuke and chaſten; the reproofs of my word, and the corrections of my providence, are the rod of love: be zealous therefore; caſt off this lukewarm ſpirit; let the fire of zeal and love kindle in your hearts; and repent of paſt unfaithfulneſs. Behold, ſuch is my patience and condeſcenſions, I yet ſtand, waiting to be gracious, at the door of your hearts: if any man hear my voice, attends to my calls and warnings, and open the door, in faith and penitence to receive me with eager welcome into his ſoul, I will come in to him, and will ſup with him, and he with me, honouring him with my preſence, and love, and bleſſed communion. Note (1.) The Lord's chaſtiſements are ſigns, not of his wrath, but of his love. (2.) Chriſt, by his providences, word, and ſpirit, knocks at the door of our hearts; and they who welcome him in, ſhall find him not only as a gueſt that tarrieth for a night, but whoſe communion ſhall make us bleſſed for eternity.

3. The concluſion. To him that overcometh the corruptions of his nature, and the temptations of the world, will I grant to ſit with me in my throne, even as I alſo overcame, and am ſet down with my Father in his throne; to ſuch infinite and tranſcendent glory and dignity ſhall he be exalted in the great day of my appearing, and come to reign with me triumphant over every foe for ever and ever. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches; for theſe things are written for our learning to the lateſt ages; and bleſſed are they who attend to the warnings, reproofs, exhortations, encouragements, and inſtructions here revealed, and feel their mighty influence.

CHAP. IV.

In this chapter the prophetical ſcene begins; and as the epiſtolary part opened with a viſion of Chriſt, chap. 1. ſo this part is introduced with a glorious appearance of the great God, whoſe throne is in heaven, compaſſed about with the heavenly hoſt. John, 1. Records the heavenly ſight he ſaw, from ver. 1—8. And then, 2. The heavenly ſongs he heard, from ver. 8, to the end.

1. AFter this I looked, and behold, a door was opened in heaven: and the firſt voice which I heard, was as it were of a trumpet talking with me; which ſaid, Come up hither, and I will ſhew thee things which muſt be hereafter. 2. And immediately [a] I was in the ſpirit: and behold, [b] a throne was ſet in heaven, and one ſat on the throne. 3. And [c] he that ſat, was to look upon like a jaſper, and a ſardine ſtone: and there was [d] a rainbow round about the throne, in ſight like unto an emerald. 4. And round about the throne were four and twenty ſeats: and upon the ſeats I ſaw four and twenty elders ſitting, clothed in white raiment; and they had [e] on their heads crowns of gold. 5. And out of the throne proceeded [f] lightnings and thundrings, and voices: And there were [g] ſeven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the ſeven Spirits of God. 6. [h] And before the throne there was a ſea of glaſs like unto cryſtal: And in the midſt of the throne, and round about the throne were [i] four beaſts full of eyes before and behind. 7. And the firſt beaſt was like a lion, and the ſecond beaſt like a calf, and the third beaſt had a face as a man, and the fourth beaſt was like a flying eagle.

[a] Chap. i. 10.
[b] Iſa. vi. 1. Jer. iii. 17.
[c] Chap. xxi. 11—19.
[d] Gen. ix. 12—16. Iſa. liv. 9, 10.
[e] Chap. v. 10.
[f] Exod. xix. 16. Pſ. xviii. 13, 14.
[g] Chap. iii. 1.
[h] 1 Kings vii. 23.
[i] Ezek. i. 5—10.

v. 1—7. Prepared by what he had ſeen for further diſcoveries, a door is opened to him in heaven, and the voice of Jeſus, which he had heard before, loud and ſolemn as the trumpet which was heard of old from Sinai's top, calls him to come up thither, that he might be informed of the great events of providence relative to the church. Inſtantly a ſacred rapture ſeized his ſpirit, and a glorious viſion preſents itſelf to his view.

1. He ſaw a throne of majeſty and judgment, compaſſed with a rainbow beautiful as the emerald, the emblem of that everlaſting covenant which God hath eſtabliſhed with his people, on whom no deluge of wrath ſhall ever deſcend. (See Gen. ix. 13, &c.)

2. Upon the throne ſat the eternal Jehovah, the antient of days, the Creator, Governor, and Judge of all; ſhining like the jaſper and ſardine ſtone, with brightneſs infinitely ſurpaſſing thoſe precious ſtones which glittered in the high-prieſt's breaſt-plate, inexpreſſibly glorious in holineſs, and every divine perfection.

3. Around the throne were four and twenty elders ſeated, cloathed with white raiment, and on their heads they had crowns of gold; the repreſentatives of the whole body of the faithful, now perfected in holineſs, admitted to their eternal reſt, brought into God's immediate preſence, enjoying that beatific viſion, and crowned with glory, honour, and immortality.

4. Out of the throne proceeded lightnings, and thundrings, and voices, ſignifying the mighty and powerful energy of the goſpel-word, which ſpread like lightning through the world, or thoſe tremendous judgments which he executes on the earth.

5. There were ſeven lamps burning before the throne, which are the ſeven ſpirits of God, the emblem of the variety and perfection of the gifts and graces which the Holy Ghoſt beſtows.

6. Before the throne was a ſea of glaſs, like unto chryſtal, in alluſion, as is ſuppoſed, to the molten ſea, where the prieſts waſhed, (Exod. xxx. 18, 19.) the figure of Chriſt's blood, which cleanſeth from all ſin.

7. In the midſt of the throne, and round about it, were four living creatures, full of eyes before and behind; the firſt like a lion, the ſecond like an ox, the third with the face of a man, and the fourth like a flying eagle; the ſame as Ezek. i. 5. and ſeem to repreſent the miniſters of grace, who are themſelves alive to God by his Spirit; the happy inſtruments of quickening others; ſtanding between God and the people, to ſpeak in his name; full of light and ſpiritual underſtanding; bold in the cauſe of truth as lions; indeſatigable in labour as the ox; poſſeſſed of all prudence and compaſſion as men; ſoaring high as the eagle in the knowledge of divine myſteries, and winging their flight heavenward, with unremitting zeal and ardor.

8. And the four beaſts had each [a] of them ſix wings about him, and they were full of eyes within; and they reſt not day and night, ſaying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God almighty, which was, and is, and is to come. 9. And when thoſe beaſts give glory, and honour, and thanks to him that ſat on the throne, who liveth for ever and ever, 10. The four and twenty elders fall down before him that ſat on the throne, and worſhip him that liveth for ever and ever, and caſt their crowns before the throne, ſaying, 11. [b] Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, and honour, and power: for thou haſt created all things, and for thy pleaſure they are, and were created.

[a] Iſa. vi. 2, 3.
[b] Rom. xi. 36. Prov. xvi. 4.

v. 8—11. The four living creatures, like the ſeraphim, (Iſa. vi. 2.) had ſix wings, and they were full of eyes within, deepread in the knowledge of their own hearts, and attending to the notices of God's Spirit in their ſouls; and with ceaſeleſs adorations they worſhip the eternal, unchangeable, holy, and triune Jehovah.

When theſe repreſentatives of the goſpel miniſters thus led the ſong of heaven, the elders, who repreſented the church of the redeemed, joined in their adorations, caſting their crowns before the throne, and, humbly proſtrate, aſcribed eternal glory, honour, and power to the ever-living Jehovah, the Creator and Ruler of all, by whoſe ſovereign pleaſure every creature exiſts, and is deſigned to ſhew forth his praiſe. Note, (1.) All things are of God, and for God: his own glory is the end of all his works, and ſhould be the deſign of ours. (2.) God's ſaints on earth are called upon to join the ſervices of heaven, and to unite in the ſame ſacred aſcriptions of praiſe to him that liveth for ever and ever. (3.) The higheſt are the humbleſt beings: they who approach neareſt to the throne, are moſt deeply ſenſible, that to ſovereign grace alone they owe their unutterable bliſs, and therefore caſt down their golden crowns before their Lord, and ſay, Thou, and thou alone, art worthy to receive the glory.

CHAP. V.

In the foregoing chapter the prophetical ſcene was opened in the ſight and hearing of the apoſtle. He ſaw God on the throne of glory and government, ſurrounded with his holy ones, and receiving their adorations. Now the counſels and decrees of God are ſet before the apoſtle, as in a book, which God held in his right hand; and this book is repreſented, 1. As ſealed in the hand of God, from ver. 1—6. 2. As taken into the hand of Chriſt the Redeemer, to be unſealed and opened, from ver. 6, to the end.

1. AND I ſaw in the right hand of him that ſat on the throne, a book written within and on the backſide, [a] ſealed with ſeven ſeals. 2. And I ſaw a ſtrong

[a] Iſa. xxix. 11.

ſtrong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the book, and to looſe the ſeals thereof ?
3. And no man in heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon. 4. And I wept much becauſe no man was found worthy to open, and to read the book, neither to look thereon. 5. And one of the elders ſaith unto me, [b] Gen. xlix. 9. Weep not : behold, the [b] Lion of the tribe of Juda, [c] Iſa. xi. 1, 10. [c] the root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to looſe the ſeals thereof.

v. 1—5. We have here,

1. The prophetic volume, which was in the hand of him that ſat on the throne, containing the events which in ſucceeding ages ſhould befal his church. It was written within and on the backſide, like Ezekiel's roll. Or, on the backſide may be joined with the following clauſe, as ſealed there with ſeven ſeals; not probably all on the outſide, but as there were ſeven parchment rolls, one under the other, when the firſt ſeal was opened, and the volume unrolled, then the ſecond ſeal and volume appeared. Known to God from the beginning are all his works, but they are inſcrutable by us, till in his word he is pleaſed to reveal his deſigns, or by his providence to accompliſh his eternal purpoſes.

2. The proclamation iſſued forth by a ſtrong angel: Who is worthy to open the book, and to looſe the ſeals thereof? but no creature was found in heaven, earth, or hell, capable of penetrating into the divine decrees, or of foretelling the events of futurity. This is God's prerogative alone.

3. The grief of the apoſtle at finding no creature who dared eſſay the arduous taſk. He wept bitterly, that he could not gain a knowledge of the things contained in the book, apprehending them to be of ſignal importance.

4. One of the elders kindly obſerved his tears, and cheared his afflicted heart, ſaying, Weep not : behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the mighty Lord and Saviour, the root of David, not only after the fleſh his offspring, but, as God, the ſource of all honour and bleſſedneſs to his people, hath prevailed to open the book, and to looſe the ſeven ſeals thereof. Note, God's people are often needleſly afflicting themſelves with fears: were their eyes more ſteadily fixed upon their great Redeemer, their tears never need to flow.

6. And I beheld, and lo, in the midſt of the throne, and of the four beaſts, and in the midſt of the elders
[d] John i. 29. Heb. ix. 14. ſtood a Lamb as it had been [d] ſlain, having [e] ſeven [e] Dan. vii. 24. Pſal. cxxxii. 17. horns, and [f] ſeven eyes, which are the ſeven [g] Spirits of [f] Col. ii. 3. God ſent forth into all the earth. 7. And he came and [g] Zech. iii. 9. iv. 10. took the book out of the right hand of him that ſat upon the throne. 8. And when he had taken the book, the four beaſts, and four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps and [h] Pſ. cxli. 2. Chap. viii. 3, 4. golden vials full of odours [h] which are the prayers of ſaints. 9. And they ſung a new ſong, ſaying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the ſeals
[i] Iſa. liii. 7—10. thereof: for thou waſt ſlain, [i] and haſt [k] redeemed us to [k] Luke i. 74, 75. God by thy blood, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; 10. And haſt made us unto [l] Chap. i. 6. Gen. xxxii. 28. 1 John v. 4. Eph. ii. 18. 1 Pet. ii. 5. Rom. viii. 37. our God [l] kings and prieſts: and we ſhall reign on the earth. 11. And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne, and the beaſts, and [m] Pſ. xxxiv. 7. 2 Kings vi. 16, 17. elders: [m] and the number of them was ten thouſand
[n] Dan. vii. 10. Pſal. lxviii. 17. times ten thouſand, and thouſands of thouſands; [n] 12.
Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was ſlain, to receive power, and riches, and wiſdom, and ſtrength, and honour, and glory, and bleſſing. 13. And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and ſuch as are in the ſea, and all that are in them, heard I, ſaying, Bleſſing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that ſitteth upon the [o] Acts xx. 28. throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever [o]. 14.
And the four beaſts ſaid, Amen. And the four and twenty elders fell down and worſhipped him that liveth [p] Heb. xiii. 8. for ever and ever [p].

v. 6—14. Behold, the wonderful perſonage appears, alone found worthy to unlooſe the ſeals, and unfold this ſacred volume.

1. He is deſcribed, as a Lamb that had been ſlain, and by his own blood having taken away the ſins of the world, ſtood as our great High-prieſt, juſt before the throne, within the circle of the elders and the living creatures, as the advocate of his redeemed, and ever pleading the oblation he once offered in his own body on the tree. He had ſeven horns, denoting the perfection of his power and dominion as the univerſal King over his church, to protect his people, and puſh his enemies till he hath conſumed them: and his ſeven eyes, which are the ſeven Spirits of God ſent forth into all the earth, repreſent the treaſures of wiſdom, grace, and knowledge, which as the great prophet he poſſeſſes, and diſpenſes to all his miniſters and members, according to their various wants. He came, as fully qualified in the virtue of his all-ſufficient merit, and took the book out of the right hand of him that ſat upon the throne, who readily gave it to him, acknowledging thereby, that he was worthy to unlooſe the ſeals, and reveal the myſterious contents.

2. Inſtantly all heaven reſounds with praiſe; the church triumphant in heaven begin the ſong, angels repeat the ſound, and every creature joins the ſacred choir, and echoes loud allelujahs.

[1.] The four beaſts and four and twenty elders fall down before the Lamb with humble adoration, their hearts, like their golden lyres, tuned to their Redeemer's praiſe, and vials full of the moſt grateful incenſe, even the prayers of the ſaints, breathed before him their ſweet perfume. United in ſacred chorus, high they raiſed their voices, and uttered this moſt glorious ſong, ſaying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the ſeals thereof; qualified fully for the diſcharge of thy mediatorial office; for thou waſt ſlain, for our tranſgreſſions, and haſt redeemed us to God by thy blood, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; that we thy choſen might be delivered from the bondage of ſin, Satan, and death, and reſtored to favour and communion with the Moſt High; and haſt made us unto our God, now reconciled in a covenant of everlaſting love, kings and prieſts: and we ſhall reign on the earth, exalted to the higheſt dignity and honour, and raiſed ſuperior to all our ſpiritual enemies. Who can without ſome glow of the ſame ſacred rapture read their ſong, or not long to join with them before the throne?

[2.] The angels, who, without the living creatures and the elders, in ſhining ranks innumerable compaſſed the throne, joined their adorations, and cried, Worthy is the Lamb that was ſlain, to receive power, and riches, and wiſdom, and ſtrength, and honour, and glory, and bleſſing.

[3.] The whole creation echoes back the ſound. All in heaven, earth, or ſea, whether angels, the ſpirits of the juſt departed, the living here below, creatures animate or inanimate, all, all utter forth their united praiſes, ſaying, Bleſſing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that ſitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever! The ſame divine glory is aſcribed to each of the ſacred Perſons, as being one in eſſence, and alike the objects of every creature's worſhip and adoration.

[4.] The four living creatures cloſe with their ſolemn Amen, and the four and twenty elders, the repreſentatives of the church, with humble proſtration fell down and worſhipped him that liveth for ever and ever. Oh when ſhall I join this heavenly choir, and with them in heart and lip unite in theſe eternal praiſes of God and of the Lamb!

CHAP. VI.

Hitherto the waters of the ſanctuary have been as thoſe in Ezekiel's viſion, only to the ankles, or to the knees, or to the loins at leaſt; but here they begin to be a river that cannot be paſſed over. The viſions which John ſaw, the epiſtles to the churches, the ſongs of praiſe, in the two foregoing chapters, had ſome things dark and hard to be underſtood; and yet they were rather milk for babes, than meat for ſtrong men; but now we are to launch into the deep, and our buſineſs is not ſo much to fathom it, as to let down our net to take a draught.

In this chapter ſix of the ſeven ſeals are opened, and the viſions attending them are related; the firſt ſeal in ver. 1, 2. the ſecond ſeal in ver. 3, 4. the third ſeal in ver. 5, 6. the fourth ſeal in ver. 7, 8. the fifth ſeal in ver. 9—11. the ſixth ſeal in ver. 12, 13, &c.

1. AND I ſaw when the Lamb opened one [a] of the [a] Mat. xxviii. 1.
ſeals, and I heard, as it were the noiſe of thunder, one of the four beaſts, ſaying, Come, and ſee. 2.
And I ſaw, and behold, a white horſe; and he that ſat on him had a bow, and a crown was given unto him, and he went forth conquering and to conquer [b]. [b] Pſ. xlv. 5. & cx. 3. 1 Cor. xv. 25.

v. 1, 2. The ſix firſt ſeals are ſuppoſed to contain the events relative to the church under the heathen emperors, till in the reign of Conſtantine paganiſm was utterly ſubverted, about the year 323.

On the Lamb's opening the firſt ſeal, one of the living creatures, with a voice loud as the thunder, ſummoned the apoſtle's attention, and bid him come and ſee the viſion. When lo! a white horſe appeared, and one ſat thereon, carrying a bow, and a crown on his head; and he went forth conquering and to conquer. This repreſents the miniſtration of the goſpel, which brings joy, and peace, and triumph to the ſoul, of which the white horſe is the emblem. The bow of Jeſus, like that of Jonathan, returns not empty: the arrows of his goſpel, through the power of the Spirit, become effectual to ſubdue the ſinners ſouls: his crown denotes his victories and dignity: he muſt prevail; and, in ſpite of all oppoſition, his goſpel ſhall go on conquering and to conquer; till in the hearts of his redeemed every corruption is ſubdued; till throughout the world his truth is diffuſed; and to the lateſt ages he will continue his conqueſts, till the kingdoms of the earth ſhall become the kingdoms of the Lord and of his Chriſt. Haſten, O Lord, that happy day.

3. And when he had opened the ſecond ſeal, I heard the ſecond beaſt ſay, Come, and ſee. 4. And there went out another horſe that was red[c]: and power was given to him that ſat thereon, to take peace from the earth, and that they ſhould kill one another: and there was given unto him a great ſword.

v. 3, 4. The ſecond ſeal being opened, he hath a ſummons repeated from the ſecond beaſt to come and ſee. And behold, another red horſe, and one armed with a ſword ſat thereon, to whom power was given to take peace from the earth. And this ſeems to prefigure the bloody wars, which, during the reigns of Trajan and Adrian, conſumed innumerable multitudes of Jews and Romans, the common perſecutors of Chriſtianity, till about the year 138. Note, (1.) Perſecutors of God's people ſhall have blood given them to drink. (2.) The Lord can ſet his enemies at variance among themſelves, and makes often one wicked nation to be the ſcourge of his vengeance upon another.

5. And when he had opened the third ſeal, I heard the third beaſt ſay, Come, and ſee. And I beheld, and lo, a black horſe; and he that ſat on him had a pair of balances in his hand. 6. And I heard a voice in the midſt of the four beaſts ſay, A meaſure of wheat for a penny, and three meaſures of barley for a penny[d]; and ſee thou hurt not the oil and the wine.

v. 5, 6. The third ſeal opens, and another ſummons bids him come and ſee; when lo, a black horſe, the emblem of famine, appeared, and one with a pair of balances ſat on him; when one of the beaſts cried, A meaſure of wheat for a penny, and three meaſures of barley for a penny; and ſee thou hurt not the oil and the wine. The famine would fall chiefly on the poor, who for the price of a whole day's labour, could but juſt procure bread for their ſubſiſtence, which happened under the reigns of the two Antonines, between the years 138 and 179. Note, When one judgment is not effectual to lead ſinners to repentance, a ſecond follows at its heels.

7. And when he had opened the fourth ſeal, I heard the voice of the fourth beaſt ſay, Come and ſee. 8. And I looked, and behold, a pale horſe; and his name that ſat on him was Death, and hell[e] followed with him: and power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with ſword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beaſts of the earth[f].

v. 7, 8. The fourth ſeal being opened, the fourth beaſt bids him come and ſee: when behold, a pale horſe; Death ſat thereon, and the grave attended him, to devour the corpſes of the fallen; or hell, to receive their ſouls. By war, by famine, by peſtilence, and the beaſts of the earth, permiſſion is given them to ſlay even a fourth part of the earth: and hiſtory informs us of the dreadful deſolations which waſted the Roman empire, from the reign of Maximinus to Diocleſian, in righteous vengeance for their bloody perſecutions of Chriſtianity. Note, (1.) Death marches as a conqueror through the earth; and, when attended with hell at his feet, is indeed a king of terrors. (2.) God's quiver is never exhauſted, and when he contends, he muſt prevail.

9. And when he had opened the fifth ſeal, I ſaw under the altar[g] the ſouls of them that were ſlain for the word of God, and for the teſtimony which they held. 10. And they cried with a loud voice, ſaying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, doſt thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth[h]? 11. And white robes were given unto every one of them, and it was ſaid unto them, that they ſhould reſt yet for a little ſeaſon, until their fellow-ſervants alſo, and their brethren, that ſhould be killed as they were, ſhould be fulfilled.

v. 9—11. On opening the fifth ſeal a new ſcene is diſcloſed. The ſouls of the martyrs appear at the foot of the altar of incenſe, who had been ſlain for the word of God, and for the teſtimony which they held; and they united in their fervent ſupplications, ſaying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, doſt thou not diſplay theſe perfections, and judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? In anſwer to their prayer, and in token of their acceptance, white robes, the emblems of righteouſneſs and honour, were given unto every one of them; and it was ſaid unto them, that they ſhould reſt yet for a little ſeaſon, patiently expecting their final triumphs over all their foes, until their fellow-ſervants alſo, and their brethren, that ſhould be killed as they were, ſhould be fulfilled; and then a period ſhould be put to the bloody perſecutions of the pagan emperors, by the acceſſion of Conſtantine, about the year 323. Note, (1.) The blood of martyrs, and the ſufferings of the perſecuted, cry for vengeance to a holy God, and it will ſurely come upon the heads of their enemies. (2.) The time for the exerciſe of faith and patience is a little ſeaſon; but the glory which ſhall follow will be eternal.

12. And I beheld when he had opened the ſixth ſeal, and lo, there was a great earthquake, and the ſun became black as ſackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood; 13. And the ſtars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig-tree caſteth her untimely figs when ſhe is ſhaken of a mighty wind: 14. And the heaven departed as a ſcroll when it is rolled together; and every mountain and iſland were removed out of their places[i]: 15. And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman hid[k] themſelves in the dens, and in the rocks of the mountains; 16. And ſaid to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us,[l] and hide us from the face of him that ſitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: 17. For the great day of his wrath is come; and who ſhall be able to ſtand[m]?

v. 12—17. On opening the ſixth ſeal, a dreadful earthquake ſeemed to threaten univerſal deſtruction. The luminaries of heaven grew dark as ſackcloth; the ſtars dropped, extinguiſhed from their ſpheres, as when the ſtorm ſhakes down the untimely figs; the heaven itſelf departed as a ſcroll; every iſland and mountain fled affrighted; and univerſal conſternation ſeized all ranks and degrees, from the king upon the throne, to the meaneſt ſlave, who ſought for ſhelter in dens and caves, and in their horror wiſhed to be for ever covered under the rocks and mountains, from the face of him who ſat upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for now by woful experience they felt his terrible vengeance, which they could neither flee from nor reſiſt.

This viſion ſeems to repreſent the utter and irrecoverable overthrow of heatheniſm, when that wonderful revolution was brought about in the empire, and under Conſtantine idolatry was aboliſhed, the idols of paganiſm deſtroyed, and all thoſe who had before been the inveterate enemies of the Chriſtian name, covered with confuſion.

And what is here preſented in viſion, will be moſt emphatically verified in the great day of the perdition of ungodly men. When trembling before the intolerable wrath of the offended Judge, in vain the mountains and rocks will be invoked to fall on the ſinner's guilty head: naked and defenceleſs he muſt be expoſed to all the furious blaſts of vengeance, and ſink down into everlaſting burnings, under black unfathomable deſpair! Lord, gather not my ſoul with ſinners!

CHAP. VII.

After the opening of the ſix ſeals, which foretold great calamities in the world; and before the ſound of the ſeven trumpets, which gave notice of great corruptions ariſing in the church; a ſhort reſpite is given to the church, from the years 323 to 337. We have, 1. An account of the reſtraint laid upon the winds, ver. 1—3. 2. The ſealing of the ſervants of God, ver. 4—9. 3. The ſongs of angels and ſaints on this occaſion, ver. 9—13. 4. A deſcription of the honour and happineſs of thoſe that had faithfully ſerved Chriſt, and ſuffered for him, ver. 13, &c.

1. AND after theſe things, I ſaw four angels ſtanding on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds[a] of the earth, that the wind ſhould not blow on the earth, nor on the ſea, nor on any tree. 2. And I ſaw another angel aſcending from the eaſt, having the ſeal of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the ſea, 3. Saying, Hurt not the earth, neither the ſea, nor the trees, till we have ſealed[b] the ſervants of our God in their foreheads.

v. 1—3. The winds and ſtorms of perſecution are now for a while huſhed in peace, and the church enjoys undiſturbed tranquillity; whilſt miniſtring angels, at the command of the great and uncreated angel of the covenant, who bore the impreſs of the living God, and beſtows his Spirit upon his people, whereby they are ſealed unto the day of redemption, reſtrain for a while the deſolating judgments which had before deſtroyed the earth.

---

[c] Zech. iii. 8.

[d] Lev. xxvi. 26. Lam. v. 10. Ezek. iv. 16.

[e] Chap. xx. 6, 14.

[f] Ezek. v. 17. xiv. 21. xxxiii. 27.

[g] Lev. iv. 7.

[h] Job. xxiv. 12.

[i] Iſa. xiii. 9—19. xxiv. 23. xxxiv. 4. Ezek. xxxii. 7, 8. Hag. ii. 21, 22. Mat. xxiv. 29.

[k] Iſa. ii. 17—21.

[l] Hoſ. x. 8.

[m] Pſ. ii. 12.

[a] Jer. xlix. 36. li. 1, 2. Dan. viii. 8.

[b] Ezek. ix. 4, 6. & xii. 12, 23.

4. And I heard the number of them which were ſealed: and there were ſealed an hundred and forty and four thouſand, of all the tribes of the children of Iſrael. [c] 5. Of the tribe of Juda were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Reuben were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Gad were ſealed twelve thouſand. 6. Of the tribe of Aſer were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Nephthalim were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Manaſſes were ſealed twelve thouſand. 7. Of the tribe of Simeon were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Levi were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Iſſachar were ſealed twelve thouſand. 8. Of the tribe of Zabulon were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Joſeph were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were ſealed twelve thouſand.

[c] Gen. xxxii. 28. & xvii. 7—9.

v. 4—8. The ſaints, who are here ſealed out of the twelve tribes, are the emblems of the elect of God out of all nations in all ages. The tribes of Dan and Ephraim, as ringleaders in idolatry, are omitted, a brand of juſt reproach being ſet upon them for ſuch apoſtacy from God. Note, God's people are ſealed ones; he knoweth thoſe that are his.

9. After this I beheld, and lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, ſtood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands; [d] 10. And cried with a loud voice, ſaying, Salvation to our God which ſitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb. 11. And all the angels ſtood round about the throne, and about the elders, and the four beaſts, and fell before the throne on their faces, and worſhipped God, [e] 12. Saying, Amen: Bleſſing, and glory, and wiſdom, and thankſgiving, and honour, and power, and might be unto our God for ever and ever. [f] Amen.

[d] John xii. 13.

[e] Heb. xii. 22.

[f] Chap. v. 11—13.

v. 9—12. We have here a glorious ſcene of the happy ſtate of the church, either during the Millenium, as ſome ſuppoſe, or when the redeemed ſhall be finally entered into their eternal reſt.

1. They are a great multitude which no man could number; though few comparatively in any one age or nation, yet, when collected in the great congregation, they will be innumerable.

2. They ſtand before the throne and before the Lamb, with holy boldneſs and ſure acceptance, clothed with white robes, the emblems of honour, joy, and purity, and palms in their hands, in token of their glorious victories obtained over all their foes; for all God's ſaints ſhall aſſuredly be finally triumphant over their foes.

3. They lifted up their voices in loud hallelujahs, crying, Salvation to our God which ſitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb; all glory, praiſe, and adoration be aſcribed to him, for that complete ſalvation which he hath wrought out for us, and freely beſtowed upon us.

4. The angelic hoſts, with the elders and living creatures which ſtood before the throne, immediately joined in their adorations, and falling on their faces, worſhipped God, ſaying, Amen! Bleſſing, and glory, and wiſdom, and thankſgiving, and honour, and power, and might be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen! The inhabitants of heaven have all one mind and employment, ceaſeleſs in the praiſes of their common Lord. May we now delight to join their ſongs, and prepare hereby for the happy ſervice of eternity!

13. And one of the elders anſwered, ſaying unto me, What are theſe which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? 14. And I ſaid unto him, Sir, thou knoweſt. And he ſaid to me, Theſe are they which came out of great tribulation, [g] and have waſhed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. [h] 15. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and ſerve him day and night in his temple [i]: and he that ſitteth on the throne ſhall dwell among them. 16. They ſhall hunger no more, [k] neither thirſt any more, neither ſhall the ſun light on them, nor any heat. 17. For the Lamb which is in the midſt of the throne, ſhall feed them, and ſhall lead them unto living fountains of waters: [l] and God ſhall wipe away all tears from their eyes. [m] [g] Chap. vi. 9—11. Acts xiv. 22.

[h] Rom. v. 9. Eph. v. 25, 27.

[i] Pſ. cxxxiv. 1.

[k] Iſa. xlix. 10.

[l] Pſ. xxiii. 2.

[m] Iſa. xxv. 3. & xxxv. 10. Chap. xxi. 4.

v. 13—17. Whilſt John, with holy rapture, beheld the heavenly viſion, one of the elders queſtions him, whether he underſtood what he ſaw, and knew who theſe were and whence they came? With humble acknowledgment of his ignorance, and deſire of information, he replied, Sir, thou knoweſt. The elder thereupon kindly undertook to inform him.

1. Theſe, ſaith he, are they who came out of great tribulation, through various afflictions and the fire of perſecution, and have waſhed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God, not on account of their own deſerts or ſufferings, but as having overcome through the blood of Jeſus, applied to their hearts by faith for their complete juſtification before God. Note, Our title to eternal bleſſedneſs depends not upon what we do or ſuffer for Chriſt, but upon what he hath done and ſuffered for us, when he perfected his people by one oblation once offered.

2. He informs him of the diſtinguiſhed dignity and glory to which theſe once-ſuffering ſaints were admitted. They are before the throne of God, admitted to the immediate preſence of the Eternal Majeſty, and ſerve him day and night in his celeſtial temple, without ceaſing: and he that ſitteth on the throne ſhall dwell among them for ever, as the author and ſource of their eternal felicity. They ſhall hunger no more, neither thirſt any more, knowing no more theſe painful cravings, neither ſhall the ſun light on them, nor any heat; no fire of perſecution, nor furnace of affliction or temptation ſhall there be ever apprehended: For the Lamb which is in the midſt of the throne, poſſeſſed of all dominion and power, ſhall feed them with his rich proviſion, and ſhall lead them unto fountains of living waters, to refreſh and comfort their ſouls, which from his preſence ſhall drink in pleaſures as out of a river: and God ſhall wipe away all tears from their eyes; no ſin, no ſorrow ſhall be there, nor one ſalt tear ever again trickle down their faces, but unutterable and uninterrupted conſolations ſhall be their eternal happy portion. Bring me, dear Lord, to ſhare this bleſſedneſs among thy ſaints in light.

CHAP. VIII.

We have already ſeen what occurred upon opening ſix of the ſeals, we come now to the opening of the ſeventh, which introduced the ſounding of the ſeven trumpets, and a direful ſcene now opens: moſt expoſitors agree, the ſeven ſeals repreſent the intervals between the apoſtles time and the reign of Conſtantine, but the ſeven trumpets are deſigned to repreſent the riſe of antichriſt, ſome time after the empire became Chriſtian. In this chapter we have the preface, or prelude, to the ſounding of the trumpets, ver. 1—7. 2. The ſounding of four of the trumpets, ver. 7, &c.

1. AND when he had opened the ſeventh ſeal, there was ſilence in heaven about the ſpace of half an hour. 2. And I ſaw the ſeven [a] angels which ſtood before God; and to them were given ſeven trumpets. [b] 3. And another angel came and ſtood at the altar, having a golden [c] cenſer; and there was given unto him much [d] incenſe, that he ſhould offer it with the prayers of all ſaints upon the golden altar which was before the throne. [e] 4. And the ſmoke of the incenſe which came with the prayers [f] of the ſaints, aſcended up before God out of the angel's hand. 5. And the angel took the cenſer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and caſt it into the earth, [g] and there were voices, and thundrings, and lightnings, and an earthquake. [h] 6. And the ſeven angels which had the ſeven trumpets, prepared themſelves to ſound.

[a] 2 Kings xix. 35.

[b] Jer. iv. 10. Hoſ. v. 8.

[c] Lev. xvi. 12.

[d] Ex. xxx. 7, 38.

[e] Pſal. cxli. 2.

[f] Luke i. 10.

[g] Ezek. x. 2.

[h] Chap. xi. 15. & xvi. 17, 18.

v. 1—6. The former ſeals related to the events which ſhould happen to the Roman empire whilſt pagan; the laſt ſeal includes the dreadful judgments of God upon the degenerate Chriſtian empire, after the ſhort ſtate of proſperity enjoyed under Conſtantine, repreſented here by the ſilence obſerved in heaven for half an hour, when a new ſcene opens to view.

1. Seven angels preſent themſelves before God, the inſtruments of his providence, and ſeven trumpets are given them to proclaim the judgments in ſo many ſucceſſive periods about to be executed on the earth.

2. Another angel, the Lord of the angelic hoſt, and the uncreated angel of the covenant appears, and as the great high-prieſt of his people, offers upon the golden altar much incenſe, making the prayers of his ſaints acceptable before the throne of God, through his own ſacrifice and interceſſion. Note, (1.) God's ſaints are known by their continual life of prayer; they who never pray have no part or lot in Chriſt's ſalvation. (2.) Not for their own ſakes do our prayers come up with acceptance before the throne, but for his, who ever liveth to make interceſſion for us.

3. Having ſecured a gracious anſwer to his people's prayers, this great angel gives the ſignal for his judgments to break forth upon his enemies; filling his cenſer with fire from the altar, he caſt it into the earth, the Roman empire, and terrible thunderings, lightenings, and voices followed, and a great earthquake, emblems of the dreadful vengeance ready to be executed, and immediately the angels prepared to ſound their trumpets.

7. The firſt angel ſounded, and there followed hail [i] and fire mingled with blood, and they were caſt upon the earth: and the third part of the trees was burnt up, [k] and all green graſs was burnt up. 8. And the ſecond

[i] Ex. ix. 24, 25. Pſ. xi. 6. & xviii. 13. Iſa. xxviii. 2. & xxix. 6. & xxx. 30.

[k] Iſa. ii. 13. Zech. ii. 2.

angel ſounded, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was caſt into the ſea; and the third part of the ſea became blood.[l] 9. And the third part of the creatures which were in the ſea, and had life, died; and the the third part of the ſhips were deſtroyed. 10. And the third angel ſounded, and there fell a great ſtar[m] from heaven, burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters[n]: 11. And the name of the ſtar is called Wormwood: and the third part of the waters became wormwood; and many men died of the waters, becauſe they were made bitter.[o] 12. And the fourth angel ſounded, and the third part of the ſun was ſmitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the ſtars;[p] ſo as the third part of them was darkned: and the day ſhone not for a third part of it, and the night likewiſe. 13. And I beheld, and heard an angel flying through the midſt of heaven, ſaying with a loud voice, Wo, wo, wo to the inhabitants of the earth, by reaſon of the other voices of the trumpets of the three angels which are yet to ſound.

[l] Ex. vii. 17, 18.

[m] Iſa. xiv. 12—15. Dan. viii. 10.

[n] Iſa. xix. 4, 8. Hoſ. xiii. 15, 16. Ex. vii. 20, 21.

[o] Ex. xv. 23.

[p] Ezek. xxxii. 7, 8. Iſa. xviii. 9, 11.

v. 7—13.

1. The firſt trumpet ſounds, and hail, fire, and blood mingled therewith, like one of the plagues of Egypt, followed, by which a third part of the trees, and every green thing was conſumed, denoting the civil wars between the ſons of Conſtantine, which ended, after prodigious ſlaughter, with the deſtruction of his family, between the years 337—379; and the Goths alſo then began to break in and ravage the empire.

2. The ſecond trumpet ſounds the alarm, and a burning mountain, hurled into the ſea, converts the third part of it into blood, and ſlays the third part of all the creatures that lived therein, or ſailed upon it. And this is ſuppoſed to refer to the irruptions of the Goths and Vandals into the empire, when under Alaric they penetrated into Italy, and ſacked Rome itſelf, between the years 379 and 412.

3. The third trumpet is blown, and a falling ſtar, called Wormwood, embittered the third part of the waters, and a great mortality enſued; and this denotes the fearful deſolations wrought by the Goths and Vandals between the years 412 and 493; under Genſeric, they ravaged Italy, plundered Rome about the year 455, and afterwards, under Odoacer, they took Rome, dethroned Aguſtulus, and their general aſſumed the title of king.

4. The fourth trumpet ſounds, and a total eclipſe of all the luminaries of heaven over the third part of the earth followed; ſignifying the dreadful darkneſs and ignorance that, under the barbarous nations, which ravaged the empire, generally prevailed. The ſeat of empire was alſo under Odoacer tranſlated from Rome to Ravenna, and though no alteration was then made in the government, yet when Juſtinian afterwards recovered Italy from the Goths, and erected the exarchate of Ravenna, Rome was only a petty dukedom, her ſenate and councils were aboliſhed, and it became ſubject to the exarch of Ravenna. Whilſt, with attentive expectation, John waited for the ſounding of the other trumpets, a mighty angel, flying through the midſt of heaven, cried aloud, Wo, wo, wo to the inhabitants of the earth, by reaſon of the other voices of the trumpets of the three angels which are yet to ſound. Note, (1.) God warns before he ſtrikes. (2.) Leſſer judgments, when ſlighted, will aſſuredly be followed with others more tremendous.

CHAP. IX.

In this chapter we have an account of the ſounding of the fifth and ſixth trumpets, the appearances that attended them, and the events that were to follow: the fifth trumpet, ver. 1—13. the ſixth, ver. 13, &c.

1. AND the fifth angel ſounded, and I ſaw a ſtar fall from heaven unto the earth: and to him was given the key of the bottomleſs pit.[a] 2. And he opened the bottomleſs pit, and there aroſe a ſmoke out of the pit, as the ſmoke of a great furnace; and the ſun and the air were darkned, by reaſon of the ſmoke of the pit.[b] 3. And there came out of the ſmoke locuſts upon the earth;[c] and unto them was given power, as the ſcorpions of the earth have power. 4. And it was commanded them that they ſhould not hurt the graſs of the earth, neither any green thing, neither any tree;[d] but only thoſe men which have not the ſeal of God in their foreheads. 5. And to them it was given that they ſhould not kill them, but that they ſhould be tormented five months: and their torment was as the torment of a ſcorpion when he ſtriketh a man. 6. And in thoſe days ſhall men ſeek death, and ſhall not find it; and ſhall deſire to die, and death ſhall flee from them[e]. 7. And the ſhapes of the locuſts were like unto horſes prepared unto battle;[f] and on their heads were as it were crowns like gold,[g] and their faces were as the faces of men. 8. And they had hair as the hair of women, and their teeth were as the teeth of lions.[h] 9. And they had breaſtplates, as it were breaſtplates of iron; and the ſound of their wings was as the ſound of chariots of many horſes running to battle.[i] 10. And they had tails like unto ſcorpions, and there were ſtings in their tails:[i] and their power was to hurt men five months. 11. And they had a king over them, which is the angel of the bottomleſs pit, whoſe name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue hath his name Apollyon.[k] 12. One wo is paſt, and behold there come two woes more hereafter.

[a] Chap. xx. 1—3.

[b] Pſ. xviii. 8. Iſa. xiv. 31. Gen. xv. 17.

[c] Ex. x. 4, 15. Jud. vi. 5. Iſ. xxxiii. 4. Joel ii. 9.

[d] Pſ. i. 3. & lii. 8. Jer. xvii. 7.

[e] Jer. viii. 3.

[f] Joel ii. 4.

[g] Nah. iii. 17.

[h] Joel i. 6. & ii. 5.

[i] Iſa. ix. 15.

[k] 2 Theſ. ii. 3.

v. 1—12. The fifth trumpet is ſuppoſed to refer to the riſe of the impoſtor Mahomet, who is the ſtar here ſpoken of, infecting the earth like a peſtilential meteor with his abominable falſehoods, permiſſion being given him to open the bottomleſs pit, and a cloud of errors, black as the darkneſs of hell itſelf, immediately burſt out, and covered the Eaſt; innumerable multitudes of Saracens, thick as locuſts, under his banners, ruſhed forth: they chiefly conſiſted of cavalry, made dreadful incurſions into the empire, with turbans like crowns on their heads; wore long hair like women; ſtrong as lions; defended with armour, weapon proof; and ruſhed with irreſiſtible fury on their foes. Satan, the angel of the bottomleſs pit, the great deſtroyer of men, was at their head: and ſuch was the miſery which they every where ſpread through the apoſtate church, that death appeared preferable to life; but to the elect of God, the ſealed in the earth, the power of theſe deſtroyers reached not; they were not to be deceived by the wiles of impoſture, nor terrified from their profeſſion by any danger or threatnings. The ſpace contained within this ſeal extends from 568 to 675. Note, (1.) The heavieſt judgments upon the world are thoſe, when God lets looſe the great deceiver; and becauſe men turn away from the truth, he gives them up to ſtrong deluſions, to believe a lye. (2.) Hereſy and error, like the ſcorpion's ſting, infuſe baleful poiſon into the ſoul. (3.) Satan, and all his emiſſaries, are under a divine reſtraint; God ſaith unto them, Hitherto ſhall ye come, and no further. (4.) Whatever prevalence of deluſion there may be, God's people ſhall every one of them be preſerved in the moſt trying times.

One wo is now paſt, two more are yet to come.

13. And the ſixth angel ſounded, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar,[l] which is before God, 14. Saying to the ſixth angel which had the trumpet, Looſe the four angels which are bound in the great river Euphrates. 15. And the four angels were looſed, which were prepared for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, for to ſlay the third part of men. 16. And the number of the army of the horſemen were two hundred thouſand thouſand: and I heard the number of them. 17. And thus I ſaw the horſes in the viſion, and them that ſat on them, having breaſt-plates of fire, and of jacinct, and brimſtone: and the heads of the horſes were as the heads of lions; and out of their mouths iſſued fire, and ſmoke, and brimſtone. 18. By theſe three was the third part of men killed, by the fire and by the ſmoke, and by the brimſtone which iſſued out of their mouths. 19. For their power is in their mouths, and in their tails:[m] for their tails were like unto ſerpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt. 20. And the reſt of the men which were not killed by theſe plagues, yet repented not of the works of their hands, that they ſhould not worſhip devils, and idols of gold and ſilver, and braſs, and ſtone, and of wood: which neither can ſee, nor hear, nor walk:[n] 21. Neither repented they of their murders, nor of their ſorceries, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts.

[l] Ex. l. 1, 6.

[m] Iſ. ix. 14, 15.

[n] Pſ. cxv. 4, 7.

v. 13—21. On the ſounding of the ſixth angel, the voice of Chriſt is heard from the four horns of the golden altar, which is before God, the emblem of the prevalence of his interceſſion for all his people in the four parts of the earth: his command to the ſixth angel is, that he ſhould looſe the four angels that were bound in the great river Euphrates, and let them have power for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, to ſlay the third part of men. This may be referred to the inteſtine quarrels among the ſucceſſors of Mahomet, which for about fifty years prevented them from ſpreading their conqueſts in the empire; but afterwards, from 675 to 750, they carried their arms far and wide through Egypt, Africa, and Spain: their forces were innumerable and invincible, chiefly conſiſting of cavalry, and breathing forth threatning and ſlaughter through the earth; and, like ſcorpions, they infuſed their poiſonous tenets wherever their arms prevailed. Yet all theſe heavy judgments reclaimed not thoſe who bore the Chriſtian name, but diſhonoured it by the vileſt abominations; nor did they repent of their idolatries, the worſhip of dæmons and images, unable to hear or anſwer their more ſtupid votaries, but continued in the practice of murder, ſorcery, fornication, and theft, and all thoſe miſcalled pious frauds which prieſtcraft invented to beguile the ſuperſtitious: therefore more deadly woes are yet in ſtore for them. Note, (1.) God ſends his judgments that ſinners may turn from the evil of their ways. (2.) They who under God's viſitations harden their hearts, muſt inevitably periſh at the laſt.

CHAP. X.

This chapter is an introduction to the latter part of the prophecies of this book. Here we have, 1. A remarkable deſcription of a very glorious angel with an open book in his hand, ver. 1—3. 2. An account of ſeven thunders which the apoſtle heard, as echoing to this voice of the angel, and communicated ſome diſcoveries, which the apoſtle was not yet allowed to write. 3. The ſolemn oath taken by him who had the book in his hand, ver. 5—7. 4. The charge given to the apoſtle, and obſerved by him, ver. 8—11.

1. AND I ſaw another mighty angel [a] come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud, [b] and a rainbow was upon his head, [c] and his face was as it were the ſun, and his feet as pillars of fire. 2. And he had in his hand a little book open: and he ſet his right foot upon the ſea, and his left foot on the earth,[d] 3. And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, ſeven thunders uttered their voices. 4. And when the ſeven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: and I heard a voice from heaven, ſaying unto me, Seal up thoſe things which the ſeven thunders uttered, and write them not. 5. And the angel which I ſaw ſtand upon the ſea, and upon the earth, lifted up his hand to heaven,[e] 6. And ſware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the ſea and the things which are therein, that there ſhould be time no longer: 7. But in the days of the voice of the ſeventh angel, when he ſhall begin to ſound, the myſtery of God ſhould be finiſhed, [f] as he hath declared to his ſervants the prophets.[g] a Dan. x. 5, 6. & xii. 7.

b Pſ. civ. 3. Ex. xxxiv. 5.
c Gen. ix. 13, 17. Ezek. i. 28. Chap. iv. 5.
d Pſ. ii. 8.
e Gen. xiv. 22. Dan. xii. 7.
f Rom. xi. 25, 26. Eph. iii. 4, 6.
g Iſa. lx. 3, 5. Dan. ii. 44. & vii. 25. & xii. 6, 7. Zech. xiv. 9.

v. 1—7. Another viſion intervenes between the ſixth and ſeventh trumpet, as before between the ſixth and ſeventh ſeal.

1. A glorious angel, even the ſame divine perſonage whoſe voice was heard before, giving the angels their commiſſion, (chap. vii. 2.) comes down from heaven clothed with a cloud, and around his head the rainbow glowed the token of his mindfulneſs of his everlaſting covenant, his countenance like the ſun, chearing the hearts of his people, and his feet as pillars of fire, firm to ſupport the intereſts of his church, and terrible to tread down her enemies. In his hand he held a little book, the laſt volume of the roll which he had opened, and was about to reveal the contents of it; and, ſetting one foot on the earth, the other on the ſea, to intimate his univerſal dominion, loud as the lion roars he uttered his voice, and inſtant ſeven mighty thunderings, the emblems of the judgments about to follow, echoed back the ſound. Being about to minute down the articulate denunciations uttered by theſe thunders, John is reſtrained by a voice from heaven, ſaying, Seal up thoſe things, and write them not.

2. The angel that ſtood on the earth and ſea then lifted up his hand to heaven, and, with a ſolemn oath, ſware by the great Creator of all things, that there ſhould be time no longer; but that when the time, and times and half a time (Dan. xii. 7.) are expired, the 1260 years of the reign of Antichriſt, then an end ſhould be put to the Antichriſtian tyranny for ever, and that, within the period of the ſeventh trumpet, the myſtery of God ſhould be finiſhed, his deſigns of grace accompliſhed, and his great ſalvation ſpread from pole to pole. As of old had been ſhewn to his prophets, (Dan. vii. 25—28. xii. 6, 7. Zech. xiv. 9.)

8. And the voice which I heard from heaven ſpake unto me again, and ſaid, Go, and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel which ſtandeth upon the ſea, and upon the earth. 9. And I went unto the angel, and ſaid unto him, Give me the little book. And he ſaid unto me, Take it, and eat it up[h]; and it ſhall make thy belly bitter, but it ſhall be in thy mouth ſweet as honey. 10. And I took the little book out of the angel's hand, and ate it up[i]; and it was in my mouth ſweet as honey: and as ſoon as I had eaten it, my belly was bitter. 11. And he ſaid unto me, Thou muſt propheſy again before many peoples, and nations; and tongues, and kings.

h Ezek. iii. 1, 3.
i Jer. xv. 16.

v. 8—11. The ſame voice which he had heard from heaven,

1. Commands him to go and take the volume out of the angel's hand who ſtood on the earth and ſea, who gave it to him and bid him eat it up; digeſting the awful contents therein revealed, telling him, that though ſweet in his mouth, it would make his belly bitter; deſireable as it was to know the events of futurity, the awful deſolations about to come upon the earth, and the ſufferings of the church, could not but inwardly grieve and afflict him.

2. The apoſtle obeyed, and found the word true which had been ſpoken; ſweet as the book was in his mouth, as honey, his belly was made bitter as gall, and the burdens he foreſaw deeply affected him; but he muſt not conceal the ſecrets communicated to him; he is commanded to propheſy concerning the events which muſt ſucceſſively come to paſs before many people and nations, and tongues and kings. Note, Preachers muſt firſt themſelves digeſt and be deeply affected with the truths which they deliver to others.

CHAP. XI.

In this chapter we have an account, 1. Of the meaſuring reed given to the apoſtle to take the dimenſions of the temple, ver. 1, 2. 2. Of the two witneſſes of God, ver. 3—14. 3. Of the ſounding of the ſeventh trumpet, and what followed upon it, ver. 14, &c.

1. AND there was given me a reed [a] like unto a rod: and the angel ſtood, ſaying, Riſe, and meaſure [b] the temple of God, [c] and the altar, and them that worſhip therein. [d] 2. But the court whichis without the temple leave out, and meaſure it not; for it is given unto the Gentiles [e]: and the holy city ſhall they tread under foot [f] forty and two months. [g] 3. And I will give power unto my two witneſſes, [h] and they ſhall propheſy a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore days clothed in ſackcloth. 4. Theſe are the two olive-trees, [i] and the two candleſticks [k] ſtanding before the God of the earth. 5. And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouth, [l] and devoureth their enemies: and if any man will hurt them, he muſt in this manner be killed. 6. Theſe have power to ſhut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their propheſy[m]: and have power over waters to turn them to blood[n], and to ſmite the earth with all plagues as often as they will. 7. And when they ſhall have finiſhed their teſtimony, the beaſt [o] that aſcendeth out of the bottomleſs pit, ſhall make war againſt them, and ſhall overcome them, and kill them. 8. And their dead bodies ſhall lie in the ſtreets of the great city, which ſpiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, [p] where alſo our Lord was crucified. 9. And they of the people, and kindreds, and tongues, and nations, ſhall ſee their dead bodies three days and a half, and ſhall not ſuffer their dead bodies to be put in graves. 10. And they that dwell upon the earth ſhall rejoice over them, and make merry, and ſhall ſend gifts [q] one to another; becauſe theſe two prophets tormented them that dwelt on the earth. 11. And after three days and a half, the Spirit of life from God entred into them [r]: and they ſtood upon their feet [s], and great fear fell upon them which ſaw them. 12. And they heard a great voice from heaven, ſaying unto them, Come up hither. And they aſcended up to [t] heaven in a cloud, and their enemies beheld them. 13. And the ſame hour was there a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the city fell, and in the earthquake were ſlain of men ſeven thouſand; and the remnant were affrighted, and gave glory to the God of heaven.

a Ezek. xl. 3, 5. Zech. ii. 1, 2.
b Iſ. viii. 20. Gal. vi. 16.
c 1 Cor. iii. 16, 17. 2 Cor. vi. 16. Eph. ii. 21, 22.
d 1 Pet. ii. 5.
e Eze. xl. 17.
f Luke xxi. 24.
g Chap. x. 6.
h Deut. xvii. 6. & xix. 15. Mat. xviii. 16. 2 Cor. xiii. 1.
i Zech. iv. 6, 14.
k Mat. v. 14, 16.
l 2 Kings i. 10, 12. Jer. v. 12, 14. & xxiii. 29.
m 1 Kings xvii. 1. Jam. v. 7.
n Ex. vii. 17.
o Dan. vii. 23, 25. 2 Theſ. ii. 9.
p Chap. xvi. 19. & xvii. 18. & xviii. 18, 21.
q Eſth. ix. 22.
r Luke i. 19. Mat. xi. 14. & xvii. 11, 12.
s Ezek. xxxvii. 1, 10.
t Iſa. xiv. 13. Mat. xi. 23.

v. 1—13. A general deſcription is here given of the ſtate both of the true and the antichriſtian church, during 1260 years, from the time that the temporal power of the pope aroſe about 756.

1. John is commanded to meaſure the temple of God, and the altar, and the worſhippers; for in the worſt of times, and the darkeſt days, God would ſtill maintain his church, and ſome ſhould be preſerved from the general apoſtacy, a remnant according to the election of grace. The outer court he may not meaſure, that is left to the Gentiles; thoſe indeed who profeſs to bear the Chriſtian name, but by the idolatry, ſuperſtitions, and frauds which they encourage and maintain, are returned in reality to the worſhip of Paganiſm, Popery being heatheniſm revived: and during forty-two months, or 1260 years, theſe Gentile Papiſts ſhall tread the holy city under foot, and exerciſe their tyrannical government over the profeſſors of the Chriſtian name.

2. During the prevalence of the antichriſtian tyranny, God will not leave the world without warning, nor the corruptors of his worſhip without witneſs; a ſucceſſion of faithful miniſters ſhall ariſe, a few indeed, here ſpoken of but as two, and clothed in ſackcloth, deeply affected with the miſeries of the church, and the perſecutors of the faithful remnant. Theſe are the two olive-trees, &c. like Zerubbabel and Joſhua (Zech. iv. 6—14.) whom God will ſupply with the continual influences of his grace, and endue them with light and zeal to remonſtrate againſt the corruptions of the antichriſtian church. And if any attempt to hurt them, the word of the Lord, which proceedeth out of their mouths as fire, denounces ſpiritual and eternal death upon them. Theſe have power, like Elijah, to ſhut up heaven, and to bring the heavieſt plagues, like thoſe of Egypt, on their enemies; even the ſpiritual plagues of a famine of the word, obduracy of heart, and all the dreadful judgments that, in anſwer to their prayers, God will inflict on their perſecutors, and which they denounce upon them, not from a ſpirit of revenge, but for the vindication of God's injured honour.

3. The witneſſes ſhall be ſlain, while they are performing their teſtimony, though God will always raiſe up others, and avenge their blood on their perſecutors; and their dead bodies ſhall be forbid burial, and be inſulted in the ſtreets of that great city, ſpiritually called Sodom and Egypt, where alſo our Lord was crucified, Rome papal being notorious for filthineſs as Sodom, like Egypt, the cruel oppreſſor of God's people, and red with the blood of the martyrs of Jeſus, which is, as it were, afreſh to crucify him.

Some ſuppoſe that this ſlaying the witneſſes by the antichriſtian beaſt, and his adherents, is yet to come, and that the three days and half, v. 9. refer not to the time and times and half time, or 1260 years, the whole period of popery, but to ſome more dreadful perſecution, and general prevalence of the power of antichriſt, which towards the cloſe of this period will be permitted, and for a ſhort ſpace the inhabitants of the papal countries will congratulate each other, as if they had now finally triumphed over thoſe who troubled their conſciences with remonſtrances againſt their impieties, idolatries, and all their abominations.

4. After three days and half, at the cloſe of the period of 1260 years, the witneſſes are miraculouſly raiſed to life, to the terror of their enemies; not the ſame perſons, but others, endued with their ſpirit, boldneſs, and zeal; and God, in teſtimony of his approbation, caught them up to heaven in the ſight of their enemies, not literally, but figuratively; he exalted them to a ſtate of eminent dignity and ſafety, above all the malice of their foes: and thereupon a great earthquake ſhook down great part of the city of the beaſt, and ſeven thouſand men were ſlain; a vaſt number of his dependents and abettors, men of note and influence fell, and his juriſdiction was in part demoliſhed; whilſt the remnant, affrighted by theſe prodigies, renounced their idolatries and ſuperſtitions, and, converted to the faith of Jeſus, glorified God. Note, (1.) The enemies of God's witneſſing ſervants ſhall one day, with confuſion, behold their exaltation, and know that God hath ſent them. (2.) When God's judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants thereof ſhould learn righteouſneſs; and they who fly to God for refuge, and give him glory, ſhall be ſaved from fear of evil.

14. The ſecond wo is paſt, and behold, the third wo cometh quickly. 15. And the ſeventh angel ſounded, and there were great voices in heaven, ſaying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Chriſt, [u] and he ſhall reign for ever and ever. 16. And the four and twenty elders which ſat before God [w] on their ſeats, fell upon their faces, and worſhipped God, 17. Saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord God almighty, which art, and waſt, and art to come; becauſe thou haſt taken to thee thy great power, and haſt reigned. 18. And the nations were angry, [x] and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they ſhould be judged, and that thou ſhouldſt give reward unto thy ſervants the prophets, and to the ſaints, and them that fear thy name, ſmall and great, and ſhouldſt deſtroy them which deſtroy the earth. 19. And the temple of God was opened in heaven, and there was ſeen in his temple the ark of his teſtament [y]: and there were lightnings, and voices, and thundrings, and an earthquake, and great hail. [z] u Pſ. ii. 2.

w Chap. iv. 4.
x Pſ. xcix. 1.
y Num. iv 5. Heb. ix. 4.
z Chap. xvi. 18, 21.

v. 14—19. The ſeventh trumpet ſounds, and lo, the third and laſt wo is denounced, when the Mahometan and Papal powers, the eaſtern and weſtern antichriſts are to be utterly deſtroyed. On which,

1. Loud acclamations of joy fill all the courts of heaven; the wiſh'd-for time is come when Jeſus ſhall erect his throne, and all nations ſhall bow before the ſceptre of his grace, and become a willing people in the day of his power, owning him as their rightful King, who ſhall reign over his redeemed for ever and ever. And for this the four and twenty elders pour forth their thanks to the Lord, and in humble adoration proſtrate themſelves before his throne, aſcribing praiſe to the eternal and almighty Jeſus, that he hath now ſignally made bare his arm, avenging the deaths of his martyred ſervants, and in return for the indignation ſhewn by the antichriſtian perſecutors, pouring forth his vials of wrath upon them; whilſt his faithful miniſters and people now receive their glorious reward; they ſee their foes become their footſtool, and enjoy peace, comfort, mutual communion, and the free liberty of all goſpel ordinances in their higheſt purity. And every gracious ſoul, looking forward to this happy ſeaſon, cannot but pray that God would haſten it in his good time.

2. The temple of God was opened in heaven; the exerciſe of the true evangelical worſhip was now reſtored, and there was ſeen in his temple the ark of his teſtament, intimating the peculiar manifeſtations of God's preſence to all his people, the boldneſs that they will have to approach the holieſt of all, and the ſweet communion which they ſhall enjoy with their Lord, ſeeing him, as it were, face to face.

3. And there were lightnings, and voices, and thundrings, and an earthquake, and great hail, as if the diſſolution of all things was at hand; intimating the entire demolition of all the church's enemies. Note, Though the ſtruggle be long and ſharp, the goſpel ſhall be finally triumphant, and the truth at laſt prevail over all oppoſition.

CHAP. XII.

In this chapter we have, 1. An account of the conteſt between the church and antichriſt; the ſeed of the woman, and the ſeed of the ſerpent, ver. 1—6. 2. War in heaven, ver. 7—14. 3. As it was carried on in the wilderneſs, ver. 14, &c.

1. AND there appeared a great wonder in heaven, a woman clothed with the ſun, [a] and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve ſtars: 2. And ſhe being with child, cried, travailing in birth, [b] and pained to be delivered. 3. And there appeared another wonder in heaven, and behold, a great red dragon, having ſeven heads and ten horns, and ſeven crowns upon his head. 4. And his tail drew the third part of the ſtars of heaven; and did caſt them to the earth: and the dragon ſtood before the woman who was ready to be delivered, for to devour [c] her child as ſoon as it was born. 5. And ſhe brought forth a man-child [d] which was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her child was caught up unto God, and to his throne. [e] 6. And the woman fled into the wilderneſs, where ſhe hath a place prepared of God, [f] that they ſhould feed her [g] there a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore days.

a Mal. iv. 2.
b Iſa. liv. 1. & lxvi. 7, 9. Gal. iv. 19. 1 John v. 1, 4.
c 1 Pet. v. 8.
d Iſa. vi. 7, 8. Pſ. ii. 9.
e 2 Chron. xxii. 11. & xxiii. 11, 13.
f Pſ. lxxxvii. 5, 6. Mat. xvi. 18.
g Jer. iii. 15.

v. 1—6. The ſame period as before is here deſcribed of 1260 years, during which,

1. A great wonder appears in heaven; the church of Chriſt, repreſented under the figure of a woman clothed with the ſun, with Chriſt and his righteouſneſs, having the moon under her feet, regarding all ſublunary things with holy contempt; upon her head was a crown of twelve ſtars, the doctrines of the goſpel diſpenſed by the apoſtles; and being with child, ſhe cried out, travailing and ready to be delivered.

2. A great red dragon appears, repreſenting ſatan, as acting by his wicked emiſſaries of Rome papal, with ſeven heads, ten horns, and ſeven crowns upon his head, ſignifying the dignity and ſupremacy, in ſpirituals and temporals, which the biſhop of Rome uſurped, and his tyrannical dominion over the bodies and ſouls of men, drawing into ſuperſtition and idolatry multitudes both miniſters and people, who ſeemed before as ſtars in the heaven, and bringing them down to the earthly and ſenſual religion of the church of Rome; and with unwearied oppoſition and implacable enmity ſtriving to deſtroy every faithful Chriſtian, and to ſuppreſs the progreſs of the true religion of Jeſus in the earth, ready to devour the child, of which the woman travailed, as ſoon as it was born.

3. God diſappointed the malice of the dragon; a man-child was born, the emblem of all the ſpiritual ſeed of the woman, who in ſucceſſion ſhould ariſe, and, in defiance of the malice of the antichriſtian foe, be preſerved, and finally prevail over all their enemies, taken under God's immediate protection, and ſecure as if caught up to the throne of God: whilſt the mother, the church, though in obſcurity during this dark period of 1260 years, hath a place provided for her, as in the valleys of Piedmont, and other retreats, where the true religion of Jeſus was preſerved amidſt the abounding corruptions of the church of Rome, till the reformation took place. Note, God will ever have a church in the darkeſt day, and will in the deſert feed his people, as he did Iſrael of old with living manna.

7. And there was war in heaven; Michael [h] and his angels fought againſt the dragon, and the dragon fought and h Dan. xii. 1. Jude 9.

and his angels : 8. And prevailed not, neither was their place found any more in heaven : 9. And the great i Gen. iii. 4. dragon was caſt out, that old ſerpent, [i] called the devil
2 Cor. xi. 3. and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world ; he was caſt out into the earth, and his angels were caſt out with him.
10. And I heard a loud voice ſaying in heaven, Now is come ſalvation, and ſtrength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Chriſt : for the accuſer of k Job i. 8. our brethren [k] is caſt down, which accuſed them before 11. Zech. our God day and night. 11. And they overcame him
iii. 1. by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their l Eph. vi. 17. teſtimony ; [l] and they loved not their lives [m] unto the m Acts xx. 24. death. 12. Therefore rejoice, [n] ye heavens, and ye that n Iſa. xliv. dwell in them. Wo to the inhabiters of the earth, and
23. & xlix. of the ſea : for the devil is come down unto you, having 13. Pſ. great wrath, becauſe he knoweth that he hath but a ſhort xcvi. 10, 11. time.

v. 7—12. Another repreſentation of this period is here made.

1. There was war in heaven, in the church ; Michael and his angels, the Lord Jeſus and his miniſters, with the ſword of the ſpirit, which is the word of God, fought againſt the dragon and his angels, his popiſh emiſſaries, and all the legions of eccleſiaſtics in that idolatrous church. The iſſue of the combat was, that in ſpite of all the dragon's efforts he could not prevail to extinguiſh the truth ; he was foiled in the glorious reformation, when many ſtates threw off the antichriſtian yoke, and, like a falling ſtar, from their towering height of power and dominion, Satan, that old ſerpent, and his inſtruments of the church of Rome, were caſt down ; and at the end of this period the conqueſt will be compleated.

2. Hereupon a triumphant ſong is ſung by the church of the redeemed, who glorify God for this exertion of his power and ſtrength in the ſalvation of his people from the accuſer of the brethren, who by means of the antichriſtian perſecutors, with pretended crimes, ſought occaſion to harraſs and oppreſs them, and day and night accuſed them before God. But they overcame by the blood of the Lamb, which removed all condemnation, and by the word of their teſtimony, the ſword of the ſpirit which confounded their enemies ; and ſo faithfully adhered they to Chriſt and his pure goſpel, that for his ſake they readily laid down their lives, and ſubmitted to death armed with its greateſt terrors. Note, (1.) All our victories are gained through the blood of the Lamb. (2.) They who know in whom they have believed, will rather part with their lives than deny the faith.

3. The ſaints and angels of God are called upon to rejoice in this victory, v. 12. whilſt a woe is denounced on the inhabiters of the earth and ſea, on the earthly-minded, and carnal profeſſors of Chriſtianity ; for though the kingdom of the beaſt be on the decline, and hath but a ſhort time to endure, yet therein Satan will exert his utmoſt efforts to deceive and deſtroy the ſouls of men, and many of them will fall a prey unto his teeth.

13. And when the dragon ſaw that he was caſt unto the earth, he perſecuted the woman which brought forth the man-child. 14. And to the woman were given two o Ex. xix. 4. wings of a great eagle, [o] that ſhe might fly into the wilderneſs, into her place : where ſhe is nouriſhed for a p Dan. vii. time, and times, and half a time, [p] from the face of the 25. & xii. 7. ſerpent. 15. And the ſerpent caſt out of his mouth water
q Pſ. cxxiv. as a flood, [q] after the woman ; that he might cauſe
1, 4. her to be carried away of the flood. 16. And the earth Prov. xviii. helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and
4. Iſa. viii. ſwallowed up the flood which the dragon caſt out of his
7. & xxviii. mouth. 17. And the dragon was wroth with the woman,
2. and went to make war with the remnant of her ſeed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt.

v. 13—17. By the reformation the power of Satan and the church of Rome being greatly broken, like one caſt down from heaven to earth, he muſtered up all his wiles and fury, and in the Jeſuits raiſed up a new ſet of inſtruments to perſecute, with unrelenting cruelty, the mother of the man-child, the true church, as reformed from the errors of popery. But God ſupplied her with eagle's wings, and bore her ſafe to a reſting-place during her wilderneſs ſtate, v. 14. until the period of the reign of antichriſt, and the 1260 years come to an end. In vain the ſerpent caſt out a flood of errors, hereſies, and perſecutions, and endeavoured by fraud and force to ſtop the progreſs of the reformation, and ſwallow up the church ; the earth helped her, the ſecular powers ; many princes and ſtates, who were themſelves under the influence of temporal motives, oppoſed the antichriſtian tyranny and perſecutions : and the dragon, enraged to be thus foiled, retired to rally all his forces, and renewed with all his fury his attacks upon the woman and the remnant of her ſeed, which ſurvived his former perſecutions, whoſe diſtinguiſhing character is given, they keep the commandments of God, and have the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt, maintaining his pure and unadulterated goſpel, in oppoſition to all the human impoſitions, and traditions of the papal chair. Note, Whilſt we hold the teſtimony of Jeſus, and keep his commandments, we muſt be finally more than conquerors.

CHAP. XIII.

We have in this chapter a farther diſcovery and deſcription of the church's enemies, not other enemies than are mentioned before, but deſcribed after another manner, that the methods of their enmity may more fully appear ; they are repreſented as two beaſts ; the firſt you have an account of, ver. 1—11. the ſecond, ver. 11.

1. AND I ſtood upon the ſand of the ſea, and ſaw a beaſt riſe up out of the ſea, [a] having ſeven heads [b] a Dan. vii.
and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon 2, 8.
his heads the name of blaſphemy. [c] 2. And the beaſt b Chap. xvii. 3.
which I ſaw was like unto a leopard, and his feet were as c Iſa. lxv. 7.
the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion : Ezek. xx. 27.
and the dragon gave him his power, [d] and his ſeat, and d 2 Theſ. ii.
great authority. 3. And I ſaw one of his heads, as it 3.
were wounded to death ; and his deadly wound was healed : and all the world [e] wondred after the beaſt. 4. e Luke ii. 1.
And they worſhipped the dragon [f] which gave power f 1 Cor. x.
unto the beaſt : and they worſhipped the beaſt, ſaying, 20.
Who is like unto the beaſt ? who is able to make war with him ? 5. And there was given unto him a mouth, ſpeaking great things, and blaſphemies [g] ; and power was g Dan. ii. 36.
given unto him to continue forty and two months. 6.
And he opened his mouth in blaſphemy againſt God, to blaſpheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven. 7. And it was given unto him to make war with the ſaints, and to overcome them : and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations.
8. And all that dwell upon the earth ſhall worſhip him, whoſe names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb [h] ſlain from the foundation of the world. 9.
If any man have an ear, let him hear. 10. He that h 1 Pet. i. 19.
leadeth into captivity, ſhall go into captivity [i] : He that i Mat. vii. 2.
killeth with the ſword, muſt be killed with the ſword.
Here is the patience and the faith of the ſaints.

v. 1—10. Another viſion relative to the ſame events as the foregoing here appears.

1. A beaſt riſes out of the ſea, with ſeven heads, ten horns, and crowns upon his horns, and names of blaſphemy thereon, like a leopard, with the feet of a bear and the mouth of a lion, denoting the fierceneſs, cruelty, and ſtrength of the antichriſtian, idolatrous, and blaſphemous ſtate which ſhould ariſe out of the commotions which had ſhaken the empire. To this beaſt, that is, to the pope and his adherents, the devil would delegate his power and authority, enabling the man of ſin to work his lying miracles, and eſtabliſh his ſeat and capital at Rome, where, during the reign of paganiſm, Satan eſpecially dwelt.

2. A deadly wound was given to the beaſt ; which ſome refer to the ſacking of the city of Rome by the Goths, and the removal of the ſupreme authority from thence during the exarchate of Ravenna ; and others, to the blow the church of Rome received at the reformation ; and this wound was healed ; either Rome itſelf, under the papal government, roſe to unexpected greatneſs, and was held in veneration by the wondering world ; or this may refer to the recovery of the papal intereſts ſince the reformation, and which it is ſuppoſed will flouriſh more than ever before the final downfal of popery.

3. The people, who wondered after the beaſt, worſhipped the dragon, the idolatrous worſhip of the church of Rome being, in fact, the adoration of Satan himſelf ; and they worſhipped the beaſt, his delegate, aſcribing divine honours and titles to the pope, exalting him above all princes and potentates, and aſcribing to him a kind of omnipotence upon earth : whilſt he, by horrid blaſphemies, aſſuming the very prerogatives of the moſt high God, pretended, by the plenitude of his power, to forgive ſins, to alter God's revealed will, to have dominion over men's conſciences, and to enact canons equally, or more obligatory than the laws of God himſelf ; blaſpheming his name, and his tabernacle the church, and them that dwell in heaven, the citizens of the New Jeruſalem, the faithful whom he anathematizes, or the ſaints and angels whoſe names he uſes in his idolatrous worſhip. During the period of 1260 years his dominion will endure, and by Divine Providence he will be permitted to make war with the ſaints who refuſe to ſubmit to his tyrannical yoke, and to overcome them, obliging all, whoſe names are not written in the book of life, to worſhip him and ſubmit to his idolatrous decrees. Note, Amidſt the moſt fatal deluſions and prevalence of iniquity, God's choſen ones ſhall be ſecured.

4. For the comfort of God's people, a ſolemn note of attention is added, and they are called to hear. This antichriſtian power, that enſlaves and deſtroys others, ſhall as ſurely be ſubdued and deſtroyed in its turn; and God's ſaints, now with patience enduring their perſecutions, muſt with faith confidently expect that this will be the iſſue. Note, It requires much faith and patience, in ſuffering times, to hold faſt the promiſes of God and wait their fulfilment.

11. And I beheld another beaſt coming up out of the earth, and he had two horns like a lamb, and he ſpake as a dragon.[k] 12. And he exerciſeth all the power of the firſt beaſt before him, and cauſeth the earth, and them which dwell therein, to worſhip the firſt beaſt, whoſe deadly wound was healed. 13. And he doth great wonders, ſo that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth, in the ſight of men.[l] 14. And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth, by the means of thoſe miracles which he had power to do in the ſight of the beaſt, ſaying to them that dwell on the earth, that they ſhould make an image to the beaſt which had the wound by a ſword, and did live. 15. And he had power to give life unto the image of the beaſt, that the image of the beaſt ſhould both ſpeak, and cauſe that as many as would not worſhip the image of the beaſt, ſhould be killed. 16. And he cauſeth all, both ſmall and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads: 17. And that no man might buy or ſell, ſave he that had the mark, or the name of the beaſt, or the number of his name. 18. Here is wiſdom. Let him that hath underſtanding count the number of the beaſt:
for it is the number of a man; and his number is ſix hundred threeſcore and ſix.

v. 11—18. Another beaſt, or the ſame power under another form, appears like a lamb with two horns, the ſymbol of his dominion temporal and ſpiritual, who with all pretended meekneſs and humility, hath all the pride and rage of the old dragon, exerciſing all the power of the firſt beaſt, and cauſing all the earth to worſhip him, and own his univerſal, temporal as well as ſpiritual juriſdiction, with lying miracles ſupporting his idolatrous worſhip, deceiving the inhabitants of the earth, and leading them to erect the image of the firſt beaſt whoſe deadly wound was healed, and pay their adoration to the idol, blindly and implicitly ſubmitting to the authority of the pope, and the conſtitutions of paganiſm revived in the church of Rome; giving life to the image of the beaſt, enforcing all the canons and laws of his idolatrous worſhip, by excommunications, fire, and ſword; making it death to refuſe obedience to the papal power; ſetting a mark upon all the votaries of the beaſt, and excluding thoſe who would not ſubmit to make profeſſion of this ſyſtem of error and blaſphemy, from all intercourſe with the worſhippers of the beaſt, as unworthy of every bleſſing of ſociety. Here is wiſdom. Let him that hath underſtanding count the number of the beaſt: for it is the number of a man; and his number is ſix hundred three ſcore and ſix, concerning which number there have been many learned conjectures. I incline to concur with thoſe who refer it to the time when popery ſhould riſe to her ſtrength about the year 756, which, if we add 666 to the time in which John wrote, will bring it nearly to that very period from whence the 1260 years of the antichriſtian tyranny are to be reckoned. But however dark and myſterious theſe prophetic hints may be, one thing we are ſure of, that is plain and obvious, that God will always maintain his own church in the world, in defiance of oppoſition, and that all her foes ſhall finally become her footſtool.

CHAP. XIV.

After an account of the great trials and ſufferings which the ſervants of God had endured, we have a more pleaſant ſcene opening, the day begins now to dawn; and here we have repreſented, 1. The Lord Jeſus at the head of his faithful followers, ver. 1—6. 2. Three angels ſent ſucceſſively to proclaim the fall of Babylon, and the things antecedent and conſequent to ſo great an event, ver. 6—14. 3. The viſion of the harveſt, ver. 14, &c.

1. AND I looked, and lo, a lamb ſtood on the mount Sion,[a] and with him an hundred forty and four thouſand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads.[b]
2. And I heard a voice from heaven, as the voice of many waters,[b] and as the voice of a great thunder: and
I heard the voice of harpers[c] harping with their harps:
3. And they ſung as it were a new ſong[d] before the throne, and before the four beaſts, and the elders: and no man could learn that ſong, but the hundred and forty and four thouſand, which were redeemed from the earth.
4. Theſe are they which were not defiled with women:[e] for they are virgins: theſe are they which follow the Lamb whitherſoever he goeth: theſe were redeemed from among men, being the firſt-fruits[f] unto God, and to the Lamb. 5. And in their mouth was found no guile:
for they are without fault[g] before the throne of God.

v. 1—5. Dark and gloomy as the former ſcene appeared, the ſun now ariſes to diſpel the night of idolatry, ignorance, and error.

1. The Lamb of God is ſeen on mount Zion with all his redeemed, ſealed in their foreheads, in oppoſition to thoſe who had the mark of the beaſt, over whom they are made triumphant; innumerable multitudes, as the drops of the ocean, with voices united, raiſing a chorus loud as thunder, yet melodious as the trembling harps which mingled with their concert, ſung that ſong of praiſe which none but the redeemed from the earth can learn.

2. The character of thoſe happy ſouls is given. They are virgins, not defiled with the idolatries of the great whore; they follow the Lamb whereſoever he goeth, faithful to his goſpel doctrines, and obſervant of his ordinances; they are a peculiar people, even the firſt fruits to God and to the Lamb, ſpecially appropriated to his ſervice, and without guile before the throne of God, as waſhed in the blood and clothed in the righteouſneſs of their Redeemer; uncorrupt by error of doctrine and immorality of conduct, and at laſt perfected in holineſs. Bleſſed and happy are they who ſhall be found to anſwer theſe characters of the redeemed from the earth!

6. And I ſaw another angel fly in the midſt of heaven, having the everlaſting goſpel[h] to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, 7. Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come: and worſhip him that made heaven and earth, and the ſea, and the fountains of waters. 8.
And there followed another angel, ſaying, Babylon[i] is fallen, is fallen, that great city; becauſe ſhe made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.
9. And the third angel followed them, ſaying with a loud voice, If any man worſhip the beaſt and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand, 10. The ſame ſhall drink of the wine[k] of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture, into the cup of his indignation; and he ſhall be tormented with fire and brimſtone[l], in the preſence of the holy angels, and in the preſence of the Lamb: 11.
And the ſmoke of their torment aſcendeth up for ever and ever[m]: and they have no reſt day nor night, who worſhip the beaſt and his image, and whoſoever receiveth the mark of his name. 12. Here is the patience of the ſaints[n]: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jeſus.

v. 6—12. Three angels, or meſſengers, are ſent from heaven to proclaim the fall of Babylon.

1. One bearing the everlaſting goſpel through the midſt of heaven, cries aloud to all people, nations, and languages, to fear, worſhip, and glorify God, the great Creator, in oppoſition to all idols, his judgments upon his enemies ſpeedily approaching. And this may refer either to the preaching of Luther, Calvin, and the other reformers; or to the future period, when, before the final overthrow of popery, a noble army of preachers of the pure goſpel, animated with holy zeal, ſhall be raiſed up to plead the cauſe of God and truth.

2. Another angel followed, crying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen; and the cauſe of her doom is aſſigned, becauſe ſhe intoxicated the nations with her fornications and idolatries, which provoke the fearful wrath of God againſt her. And this ſeems to be the language of triumph of the faithful, who ſhall live in that day when Rome, with all her abominations, ſhall be utterly deſtroyed.

3. A third angel followed, denouncing the moſt terrible woes on the antichriſtian party, who ſhall henceforth perſiſt in this idolatrous religion; even the eternal torments of hell, intolerable as endleſs, muſt be their portion, in the preſence of the holy angels, who will applaud the righteous judgment of God and of the Lamb, who inflicts it upon them; and the ſmoke of their torment aſcendeth up for ever and ever; and they have no reſt, day nor night. How fearful the ſcene! how loudly doth it preach to us, Flee from idolatry!

4. Here is the patience of the ſaints; the bleſſed iſſue and effect of it: here in glory are they who keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jeſus, in oppoſition to all the corruptions of deceivers and perſecutors; great and eternal will be their reward.

---

[k] Chap. xi. 7.

[l] 1 Kings xviii. 37. 2 Kings i. 10, 12.

[a] Heb. xii. 22, 24.

[b] Chap. xvii. 1, 15.

[c] 1 Chron. xxv. 1—7. Pſ. lxviii. 25.

[d] Chap. v. 9.

[e] Chap. xvii. 1, 5. Ezek. i. 6. 2 Cor. xi. 2.

[f] Rom. xvi. 5. 1 Cor. xvi. 15.

[g] Jude 24. Col. i. 22. Eph. i. 4.

[h] Iſ. lxii. 6, 3. Gen. iii. 15.

[i] Iſa. xxi. 9. Chap. xvi. 19. & xvii. 18.

[k] Jer. xxv. 15. Iſa. li. 17, 22. Pſ. lxxv. 8.

[l] Mat. xiii. 49, 50.

[m] Mark ix. 43, 44.

[n] Chap. xiii. 10.

13. And I heard a voice from heaven[o], ſaying unto me, Write, Bleſſed are the dead which die in the Lord[p], from henceforth: yea, ſaith the Spirit, that they may reſt from their labours; and their works do follow them. 14. And I looked, and behold, a white cloud, and upon the cloud one ſat, like unto the Son of man[q], having on his head a golden crown[r], and in his hand a ſharp ſickle. 15. And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that ſat on the cloud, Thruſt in thy ſickle, and reap: for the time is come for thee to reap; for the harveſt of the earth is ripe[s]. 16. And he that ſat on the cloud, thruſt in his ſickle on the earth; and the earth was reaped. 17. And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, he having alſo a ſharp ſickle. 18. And another angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire; and cried with a loud cry to him that had the ſharp ſickle, ſaying, Thruſt in thy ſharp ſickle, and gather the cluſters of the vine of the earth[t]; for her grapes are fully ripe. 19. And the angel thruſt in his ſickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and caſt it into the great wine-preſs of the wrath of God[u]. 20. And the wine-preſs was trodden without the city, and blood[x] came out of the wine-preſs, even unto the horſe-bridles, by the ſpace of a thouſand and ſix hundred furlongs.

v. 13—20. For the farther encouragement of the church we have here,

1. A voice from heaven, declaring the bleſſedneſs of all who die in the faith and favour of Jeſus, whether martyrs or others; their ſufferings are all ended, they enter upon the beginnings of their eternal reſt, and their works ſhall follow them, to bear witneſs to their fidelity. Lord Jeſus, may this bleſſedneſs be mine!

2. A new viſion ſucceeds under the figure of the harveſt and vintage. The Lord Jeſus appears ſeated on a cloud, with a golden crown, and ſharp ſickle in his hands; and an angel, the repreſentative of the miniſters of Jeſus, cried to him in prayer out of the temple, that he would put in his ſickle, and execute vengeance on the wicked, whoſe provocations made them ripe for judgment: in anſwer to their cry, the ſickle is thruſt into the earth. A ſecond angel with another ſharp ſickle appears, and a third from out of the temple cries to him to put in his ſickle, and gather the grapes of the earth into the wine-preſs of the wrath of God; and the blood came out of the wine-preſs up to the horſes bridles, for the ſpace of one thouſand and ſix hundred furlongs. Theſe judgments, if conſidered as the ſame, may refer either to the great deſtruction which ſhall be made of the enemies of Chriſt's church, in the day when the papal tyranny ſhall be deſtroyed, and the moſt dreadful ſlaughter be made of all the adherents of the beaſt: or it may refer to the final day of judgment, as others ſuppoſe, and perdition of ungodly men. But if the events alluded to are ſuppoſed to be different, then the firſt may be applied to the deſtruction of the kingdom of the beaſt and his ſubjects, and the laſt to the general judgment. Whichever it be, it is the comfort of the faithful, that however many or inveterate their enemies may be, they ſhall inevitably be rooted out at the laſt, and periſh for ever.

CHAP. XV.

This chapter contains an awful introduction or preparation for the pouring out of the vials; in which we have, 1. A ſight of thoſe angels in heaven that were to have the execution of this great work, and with what acclamations of joy the heavenly hoſt applauded the great deſign, ver. 1—5. 2. A ſight of thoſe angels coming out of heaven to receive thoſe vials which they were to pour out, and the great commotions that this cauſed in the world, ver. 5, &c.

1. AND I ſaw another ſign in heaven, great and marvellous, ſeven angels, having the ſeven laſt plagues, for in them is filled up the wrath of God. 2. And I ſaw as it were a ſea of glaſs[a], mingled with fire; and them that had gotten the victory over the beaſt, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, ſtand on the ſea of glaſs, having the harps of God. 3. And they ſing the ſong of Moſes[b] the ſervant of God, and the ſong of the Lamb, ſaying, Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God almighty; juſt and true are thy ways, thou King of ſaints. 4. Who ſhall not fear thee,[c] O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy: for all nations ſhall come and worſhip before thee[d]; for thy judgments are made manifeſt.

v. 1—4. The former chapters gave a general view of the judgments which were ready to fall on the antichriſtian foe, and we have here preparation made for the execution of them.

1. Seven angels, the miniſters of wrath, appear with the ſeven laſt plagues, ready to execute them on the enemies of the church.

2. The church triumphant in heaven is ſeen ſtanding on a ſea of glaſs mingled with fire, the emblem of their multitude, ſpotleſs purity, and tried integrity; and in the view of their deliverance from all their perſecuting foes, and the judgments God was about to inflict upon them, they ſung aloud his praiſes, as Iſrael of old, when having paſſed through the Red Sea, they beheld the carcaſes of the Egyptians on the ſhore. They aſcribe glory to God for his providential works, acknowledge the truth and juſtice of all his ways; and that he is moſt worthy to be feared and adored, who in his judgments manifeſts his love to his people, and his wrath againſt their enemies.

5. And after that, I looked, and behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the teſtimony[e] in heaven was opened: 6. And the ſeven angels came out of the temple, having the ſeven plagues, cloathed in pure and white linnen, and having their breaſts girded with golden girdles[f], 7. And one of the four beaſts gave unto the ſeven angels ſeven golden vials[g] full of the wrath of God, who liveth for ever and ever. 8. And the temple was filled with ſmoke[h] from the glory of God, and from his power; and no man was able to enter into the temple[i], till the ſeven plagues of the ſeven angels were fulfilled.

v. 5—8. A further viſion preſents itſelf to the enraptured apoſtle.

1. The temple of the tabernacle of the teſtimony in heaven was opened; the holieſt place of all, alluding to the temple on mount Zion, was laid open, and from thence came forth the ſeven angels with the ſeven laſt plagues, cloathed in fine linnen, and girded with golden girdles, bringing the anſwer of the prayers which God's ſuffering ſaints had put up before the mercy-ſeat.

2. One of the beaſts puts into their hands ſeven vials full of the wrath of the ever-living God, which they are ſent forth to pour on the earth. And hereupon the temple was filled with ſmoak, the emblem of theſe judgments, from the glory of God, ſo that no man was able to enter into the temple, till the ſeven plagues of the ſeven angels were fulfilled, nor were they by any means to be averted.

CHAP. XVI.

In this chapter we have an account of the pouring forth of theſe vials that were filled with the wrath of God, and they were poured out upon the whole antichriſtian empire, and on every thing appertaining to it: 1. Upon the earth, ver. 2. then, 2. Upon the ſea, ver. 3. 3. Upon the rivers and fountains of waters, ver. 4. Upon which there the heavenly hoſts proclaim and applaud the righteouſneſs of the judgments of God. 4. The fourth vial was poured out on the ſun, ver. 8. the fifth on the ſeat of the beaſt; the ſixth on the river Euphrates; the ſeventh in the air, upon which the cities of the nations fell, and great Babylon came in remembrance before God.

1. AND I heard a great voice out of the temple, ſaying to the ſeven angels, Go your ways, and pour out the vials of the wrath of God upon the earth. 2. And the firſt went and poured out his vial upon the earth; and there fell a noiſome and grievous ſore[a] upon the men which had the mark of the beaſt, and upon them which worſhipped his image[b]. 3. And the ſecond angel poured out his vial upon the ſea; and it became as the blood[c] of a dead man: and every living ſoul died in the ſea. 4. And the third angel poured out his vial upon the rivers and fountains of waters; and they became blood[d]. 5. And I heard the angel of the waters ſay, Thou art righteous, O Lord, which art, and waſt, and ſhalt be, becauſe thou haſt judged thus: 6. For they have ſhed the blood of ſaints and prophets, and thou haſt given them blood to drink[e]; for they are worthy. 7. And I heard another out of the altar ſay, Even ſo, Lord God almighty, true and righteous[f] are thy judgments.

---

[o] 2 Pet. i. 17.
[p] Phil. iii. 9. 1 Cor. xv. 18. 1 Theſ. iv. 14, 16.
[q] Dan. vii. 13.
[r] Pſ. xxi. 4.
[s] Jer. li. 33.
[t] Deut. xxxii. 32.
[u] Iſa. lxiii. 3—6. Lam. i. 15.
[x] Gen. xlix. 11.

[a] 1 Kings vii. 23.
[b] Ex. xv. 1.
[c] Hoſ. iii. 5. Iſa. lx. 5.
[d] Pſ. lxxxvi. 8—10.
[e] Num. i. 50. Acts vii. 44.
[f] Eph. vi. 14. Luke xii. 35. 1 Pet. i. 13.
[g] Jer. xxv. 15. Zech. xvi. 2.
[h] Pſ. xviii. 8.
[i] Ex. xl. 35. 1 Kings viii. 11.

[a] Ex. ix. 9—11.
[b] Chap. xiii. 15.
[c] Ex. vii. 17, 18.
[d] Ex. vii. 19—21.
[e] Iſa. xlix. 26.
[f] Chap. xv. 3. & xix. 2.

v. 1—7. Whether theſe vials have already begun to be poured forth, or whether all of them are to be referred to ſome future day of vengeance on the antichriſtian beaſt, is matter of diſpute. I am moſt inclined to the latter opinion, and that the events can only ſhow the meaning of the judgments: but I ſhall give the ſentiments of thoſe who ſuppoſe them already begun.

1. The firſt vial, which brings a noiſome and grievous ſore upon the men who worſhipped the beaſt, is ſuppoſed to refer to the great corruptions of worſhip and manners, and the wars which aroſe among the popiſh princes, after the death of Lewis, ſurnamed the pious, between the years 830 and 988.

2. The ſecond vial was poured upon the ſea, and it became congealed as the blood of a dead man, and every living creature died: alluding, as is ſuggeſted, to the wars which were ſet on foot for the recovery of the holy land from the Saracens, wherein ſuch innumerable multitudes of papiſts loſt their lives, between 1040 and 1190.

3. The third vial is poured on the rivers, and turns them into blood; and is referred to the civil wars of Italy between the Guelphs and Gibelines, the popes and the emperors, carried on with vaſt effuſion of blood, from the year 1200 to about 1370.

For theſe judgments, the angel who laſt poured out his vial upon the waters, aſcribes glory to God, acknowledging the righteouſneſs of his puniſhments, in giving thoſe in return blood to drink, who had ſhed ſo profuſely the blood of ſaints: to which another angel from under the altar ſaid, Amen; concurring in the ſolemn aſcription of praiſe to God for theſe his righteous judgments. Note, God will make every creature ſubſervient to his glory: even the damnation of the wicked ſhall redound to the praiſe of his juſtice and holineſs; and ſaints and angels ſhall adore him for his awful judgments, as well as for his mercies.

8. And the fourth angel poured out his vial upon the ſun[g]; and power was given unto him to ſcorch men with fire[h]. 9. And men were ſcorched with a great heat, and blaſphemed the name of God[i], which hath power over theſe plagues: and they repented not, to give him glory[k]. 10. And the fifth angel poured out his vial upon the ſeat of the beaſt[l]; and his kingdom was full of darkneſs, and they gnawed[m] their tongues for pain, 11. And blaſphemed the God of heaven, becauſe of their pains and their ſores, and repented not of their deeds. 12. And the ſixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up[n], that the way of the kings of the eaſt might be prepared. 13. And I ſaw three unclean ſpirits like frogs[o], come out of the mouth of the dragon[p], and out of the mouth of the beaſt, and out of the mouth of the falſe prophet. 14. For they are the ſpirits of devils, working miracles[q], which go forth unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God almighty. 15. Behold, I come as a thief[r]. Bleſſed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments[s], leſt he walk naked, and they ſee his ſhame. 16. And he gathered them together into a place, called in the Hebrew tongue, Armageddon[t].

[g] Gen. xxxvii. 9, 10.
[h] Pſ. cxxi. 5, 6.
[i] Iſa. viii. 21.
[k] Joſh. vii. 19.
[l] 2 Sam. iii. 10. 1 Kings i. 37, 47.
[m] Ex. x. 21, 23. Iſa. v. 30. ix. 1.
[n] Iſa. xliv. 27, 28. Jer. l. 38. Iſa. li. 36, 37.
[o] Ex. viii. 3. 1 Kings xxii. 22.
[p] Chap. xiii. 11.
[q] 2 Theſ. ii. 9, 10.
[r] Chap. xxii. 7, 20. 1 Theſ. v. 2. 2 Pet. iii. 10.
[s] Mat. xxii. 11, 12.
[t] Judg. iv. 15. & v. 19. 2 Kings xxiii. 29, 30. Zech. xii. 11, 12.

v. 8—16. We have here,

1. The fourth vial poured out upon the ſun; and this may refer to the terrible calamities which happened between 1378 and 1530, through the contentions about the papal chair, ſeveral popes at a time claiming it, and excommunicating each other; and through their intrigues and ambition horrid ravages and furious wars raged. Yet, far from being affected with theſe providences, the adherents to popery repented not, but blaſphemed God the more, and ſet themſelves more fiercely to perſecute thoſe whom he raiſed up, burning thoſe faithful witneſſes Jerome and Huſs, who teſtified againſt their abominations.

2. The fifth vial was poured on the ſeat of the beaſt, and darkneſs followed in his kingdom, and his ſubjects gnawed their tongues for pain; where, as in the foregoing vials, there is a manifeſt alluſion to the plagues of Egypt. And this is interpreted of the ſtroke given to the pope's dominion by the reformation, between 1530 and 1650, which excited the blaſphemies of the antichriſtian powers; and, far from bringing them to repentance, though it cut them to the heart with vexation, excited their bitter imprecations upon the reformed, as heretics and apoſtates, on whom they denounced the heavieſt vengeance.

3. The ſixth vial is poured upon the river Euphrates, and ſuppoſed to imply the deſtruction of the Ottoman empire, in order to open a way for the converſion of the eaſtern nations to Chriſtianity, the river being dried up, to prepare a paſſage for the kings of the eaſt to come into the church.

Hereupon the devil, perceiving his kingdom every where ſhaken, rallies all his forces, and by his emiſſaries, the eccleſiaſtics of Rome, repreſented by unclean ſpirits like frogs, ſends forth to gather the kings of the antichriſtian party to his banners, and by lying wonders and falſe miracles engages them, in ſupport of the papal cauſe, to aſſemble for war againſt the ſaints in a place called Armageddon, which ſhould be as fatal to the enemies of the church as Megiddo, where the army of Siſera fell before the ſword of Barak.

A warning is added, v. 15. addreſſed to the faithful in the view of this day. Behold, I come as a thief, ſuddenly and unexpectedly, when theſe enemies apprehend themſelves moſt ſecure. Bleſſed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, leſt he walk naked, and they ſee his ſhame. Note, The uncertainty of the coming of our Lord ſhould engage us to maintain conſtant watchfulneſs, that we may not be ſurprized, but ready with joy to welcome his arrival.

17. And the ſeventh angel poured out his vial into the air[u]; and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, ſaying, It is done[x]. 18. And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, ſuch as was not ſince men were upon the earth, ſo mighty an earthquake[y], and ſo great. 19. And this great city was divided into three parts[z], and the cities of the nations fell; and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceneſs of his wrath[a]. 20. And every iſland fled away, and the mountains were not found[b]. 21. And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every ſtone about the weight of a talent[c]: and men blaſphemed God becauſe of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

[u] Eph. ii. 2. & vi. 12.
[x] John xix. 30.
[y] Joel iii. 16. Chap. xi. 3.
[z] Ezek. v. 12.
[a] Pſ. lxxv. 8. Jer. xxv. 15.
[b] Iſa. ii. 14, 17.
[c] Joſh. x. 11. Ex. ix. 23—26. Iſa. xxx. 26, 33. Ezek. xxxviii. 22.

v. 17—21. The ſeventh and laſt vial is poured into the air, the place where Satan's illuſions are practiſed. And now a voice from heaven exulting cries, It is done; the ruin of Antichriſt is compleated. Tremendous voices, thunders, and lightning followed; and ſuch an earthquake as had never been before, denoting the entire diſſolution of this perſecuting ſtate. Rome itſelf, the ſeat of the papal empire, is ſhattered in pieces; and all the other cities of the antichriſtian empire ſunk into ruins. The time is now come for myſtical Babylon's overthrow, and God's fearful vengeance is poured out upon her. The whole body of her adherents, whether dwelling in iſlands or mountains, ſhall utterly be deſtroyed, as if ſwallowed up by an earthquake. And, as one means of compleating their ruin, they who attempt to flee for their lives, ſhall, like the Amorites, (Joſh. x. 11.) be conſumed with hail-ſtones, each vaſt as a talent, and die impenitent under all their judgments, ſtill blaſpheming the hand that lies ſo heavy upon them. Note, The soreſt judgment is an hard and impenitent heart: where that abides, there all God's viſitations tend but to exaſperate and provoke deeper blaſphemies.

CHAP. XVII.

This chapter is another repreſentative of thoſe things that had been revealed before, concerning the wickedneſs and ruin of antichriſt. This antichriſt had been before repreſented as a beaſt, and is now deſcribed as a great whore. And here, 1. The apoſtle is invited to ſee this vile woman, ver. 1, 2. 2. He tells us what an appearance ſhe made, ver. 3—6. 3. The myſtery of it is explained to him, ver. 7—12. And, 4. Her ruin foretold, ver. 13, &c.

1. AND there came one of the ſeven angels which had the ſeven vials, and talked with me, [a] ſaying unto me, Come hither, I will ſhew unto thee the judgment of the great whore, that ſitteth upon many waters:[b] 2. With whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabiters of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication. 3. So he carried me away in the ſpirit[c] into the wilderneſs[d]: and I ſaw a woman ſit upon a ſcarlet-coloured beaſt, full of names of blaſphemy, having ſeven heads and ten horns.[e] 4. And the woman was arrayed in purple, and ſcarlet colour, and decked with gold, and precious ſtone and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand, [f] full of abominations and filthineſs of her fornication. 5. And upon her forehead was a name written, MYSTERY, [g] BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EATRH. 6. And I ſaw the woman drunken with the blood of the ſaints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jeſus: and when I ſaw her, I wondred with great admiration. 7. And the angel ſaid unto me, Wherefore didſt thou marvel? I will tell thee the myſtery of the woman, and of the beaſt that carrieth her, which hath

[a] Zech. i. 9.
[b] Chap. xviii. 7. Jer. li. 13.
[c] Ezek. viii. 3.
[d] Chap. xii. 6.
[e] Chap. xiii. 1.
[f] Jer. li. 7.
[g] 2 Theſ. ii. 7.
[h] Jer. xlvi. 10.

hath the ſeven heads and ten horns. 8. The beaſt that thou ſaweſt was, and is not; and ſhall aſcend out of the bottomleſs pit, and go into perdition: [i] and they that dwell on the earth ſhall wonder (whoſe names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world) [k] when they behold the beaſt that was, and is not, and yet is. 9. And here is the mind which hath wiſdom. The ſeven heads are ſeven mountains, on which the woman ſitteth. 10. And there are ſeven kings: five are fallen, and one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh, he muſt continue a ſhort ſpace. 11. And the beaſt that was and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the ſeven, and goeth into perdition. 12. And the ten horns [l] which thou ſaweſt, are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beaſt. 13. Theſe have one mind, and ſhall give their power and ſtrength unto the beaſt.

v. 1—13. An angel farther explains to the apoſtle what was meant by the viſion before him; who this great whore was on whom God's judgments were to be executed; whilſt proudly ſeated upon the waters, the emblem of her vaſt juriſdiction, and having made the kings and inhabitants of the earth drunk with her idolatries and ſorceries, ſhe flattered herſelf ſhe ſhould ſit as a queen, and ſee no ſorrow.

Inſtant in viſion John was carried into the wilderneſs, and there he beheld the antichriſtian whore ſeated upon a ſcarlet-coloured beaſt, the papacy, ſcarlet being the colour in which the pope and cardinals are dreſſed; or to denote the ſanguinary edicts executed by her. This beaſt was full of names of blaſphemy, the blaſphemous titles and prerogatives of infallibility, ſupremacy, &c. being challenged by the popes of Rome, which is ſeated on ſeven hills, ſignified by the ſeven heads, and uſurped authority over many potent kingdoms. This woman appeared in all the attire of an harlot, intimating the vaſt pomp and profuſion of rich cloaths and ornaments uſed by the Romiſh church, to deck their Prieſts, idols, and images. In her hand was a cup of philters, to intoxicate her paramours, and lead them to all her abominable wickedneſſes in doctrine, worſhip, and manners; and upon her forehead her name was written, Myſtery, (2 Theſ. ii. 7.) with deep deſign and craft carrying on her iniquitous deſigns; Babylon the great, like Babylon of old, for oppreſſion, pride, and idolatry; the mother of harlots, and abominations of the earth; the parent and patroneſs of every wickedneſs; and ſhe was drunk with the blood of martyrs. A character ſo horrid, infamous, and hideous, greatly excited John's aſtoniſhment.

Obſerving his amazement, the angel explains the viſion. This beaſt was of old, when Rome was the ſeat of pagan idolatry and perſecution; and is not, Rome pagan having been deſtroyed; and yet is, the ſame under the papal government in tyranny and idolatry as formerly: it is the offspring of hell, and is doomed to return thither. The men of the Roman empire in general, God's elect excepted, ſhall wonder after this beaſt with ſuperſtitious veneration. And here is the mind which hath wiſdom; let ſuch a one who is intelligent mark theſe characters, and they will be led to what is prefigured by them. (1.) The ſeven hills are ſeven mountains, on which the woman ſitteth; Rome, the capital of her empire, being built on ſeven hills. (2.) There are ſeven kings, or ſucceſſive forms of government; five are fallen, the kings, conſuls, dictators, decemvirs, and military tribunes, no longer ſubſiſt. One is; the pagan emperors that then reigned when the viſion was given: and one is not yet come; the Chriſtian emperors, which are to endure but a ſhort ſpace. The beaſt is the eighth, in order; or if the empire, as under the pagan and Chriſtian emperors, be conſidered as one form of government, the papacy is one of the ſeven kings, and will be as ſurely deſtroyed as the former. (3.) Another mark of this beaſt is the ten horns, which are ſo many kings, which had not yet received their kingdoms, but were to ariſe about the ſame time when the papal power ſhould grow to its height; even when the empire was divided into about that number of kingdoms, and all their princes ſubmitted to the papal yoke, and conſented to uphold the authority of the Roman pontifs.

14. Theſe ſhall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb ſhall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings; [m] and they that are with him, are called, [n] and choſen, and faithful. 15. And he ſaid unto me, The waters which thou ſaweſt, where the whore ſitteth, are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues. [o] 16. And the ten horns which thou ſaweſt upon the beaſt, theſe ſhall hate the whore, and ſhall make her deſolate and naked, and ſhall eat her fleſh, and burn her with fire [p]. 17. For God hath put in their hearts to fulfil his will, [q] and to agree, and give their kingdom unto the beaſt, until the words of God ſhall be fulfilled. 18. And the woman which thou ſaweſt, is that great city, [r] which reigneth over the kings of the earth.

v. 14—18. The riſe of the papal power had been ſhown; here we have its downfal.

1. Theſe kings will make war with the Lamb, endeavouring by fire and ſword to compel his people to ſubmit with implicit obedience to the papal ſee; but he ſhall ſtrengthen them with conſtancy to reſiſt, and even in martyrdom to conquer; for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings; mighty to ſupport his ſuffering ſaints, who being choſen by his grace, and called by his word, are enabled to approve themſelves faithful in defiance of all oppoſition.

2. The ſame kingdoms that have exerted their power to ſupport the throne of the beaſt, ſhall, through God's over-ruling providence, be made the means of his deſtruction. Though God for a while ſuffers them to give their kingdoms to the beaſt, yet, when the time appointed is accompliſhed, their ſucceſſors in theſe kingdoms ſhall be as much turned to hate and deſtroy the whore, whoſe dominion for a while ſhould extend over the nations and kings of the earth, as their predeceſſors were zealous to maintain the papal uſurpations; they ſhall treat her with every indignity, and deſtroy her by the moſt tormenting death. Whence we may obſerve, (1.) That there never will be another univerſal monarchy erected by any of the ſtates of Chriſtendom. (2.) That the very powers that have been the pillars of popery, ſhall be the chief inſtruments in pulling down the papal throne.

CHAP. XVIII.

We have here, 1. An angel proclaiming the fall of Babylon, ver. 1, 2. 2. Aſſigning the reaſons of her fall, ver. 3. 3. Giving warning to all that belonged to God, to come out of her, ver. 4, 5. and to aſſiſt in her deſtruction, ver. 6—8. 4. The great lamentation made for her by thoſe that had been large ſharers in her ſinful pleaſures and profits, ver. 9—20. 5. The great joy that there would be among others at the ſight of her irrecoverable ruin, ver. 20, &c.

1. AND after theſe things I ſaw another angel come down from heaven, having great power; and the earth was lightned with his glory. [a] 2. And he cried mightily with a ſtrong voice, ſaying, Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul ſpirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird. [b] 3. For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, [c] and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich, through the abundance of her delicacies.

v. 1—3. Deſcending from heaven with brightneſs like the ſun, an angel, inveſted with great power, cries, Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen; her long-expected doom is come; and as ſhe hath been filled with abominations, her deſerted palaces and ruined habitations ſhall become the den of dragons, the hold of every foul ſpirit, and the cage of every unclean and hateful bird: and the cauſe of her ruin is aſcribed to her idolatries, adulteries, and the merchandize of ſouls, which enabled her and her eccleſiaſtics to riot in wealth and luxury.

4. And I heard another voice from heaven, ſaying, Come out of her, my people, [d] that ye be not partakers of her ſins, and that ye receive not of her plagues: 5. For her ſins have reached unto heaven, [e] and God hath remembred her iniquities. 6. Reward her even as ſhe rewarded you, and double unto her double, [f] according to her works: in the cup which ſhe hath filled, fill to her double. 7. How much ſhe hath glorified herſelf, and lived deliciouſly, ſo much torment and ſorrow give her: for ſhe ſaith in her heart, I ſit a queen, [g] and am no widow, and ſhall ſee no ſorrow. 8. Therefore ſhall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine; [h] and ſhe ſhall be utterly burnt with fire; for ſtrong is the Lord God who judgeth her. 9. And the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication, and lived deliciouſly with her, ſhall bewail her, and lament for her, [i] when they ſhall ſee the ſmoke of her burning, 10. Standing afar off for the fear of her torment, ſaying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour is thy judgment come. 11. And the merchants of the earth ſhall weep and mourn over her, for no man buyeth her merchandize any more: 12. The

[i] Chap. xix. 20.

[k] Eph. i. 4.

[l] Dan. ii. 42. & vii. 7, 24.

[m] Chap. vi. 15—17. Pſ. ii. 6 12. 1 Tim. vi. 15, 16.

[n] 2 Pet. i. 10.

[o] Dan. iii. 4, 29.

[p] Dan. vii. 11. Lev. xxi. 9.

[q] Prov. xxi. 1.

[r] Chap. xvi. 19.

[a] Ezek. xliii. 2—5.

[b] Iſa. xiii. 19—22. & xiv. 23. Jer. l. 39. & li. 37, 62.

[c] Chap. xvii. 17.

[d] Iſa. xlviii. 20. & lii. 11. Jer. l. 8. & li. 45.

[e] Gen. xix. 13.

[f] Ex. xxi. 23, 24. & xxii. 4—9. Jer. xvi. 18.

[g] Iſa. xlvii. 5—8.

[h] Iſa. xlvii. 9—11.

[i] Ezek. xxvii. 30—37.

The merchandize of gold and ſilver, and precious ſtones, and of pearls, and fine linnen, and purple and ſilk, and ſcarlet, and all thyine wood, and all manner of veſſels of ivory, and all manner of veſſels of moſt precious wood, and of braſs, and iron, and marble, 13. And cinnamon, and odours, and ointments, and frankincenſe, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beaſts, and ſheep, and horſes, and chariots, and ſlaves, and ſouls of men [k]. 14. And the fruits that thy ſoul luſted after, are departed from thee, and all things which were dainty and goodly, are departed from thee, and thou ſhalt find them no more at all. 15. The merchants of theſe things which were made rich by her, ſhall ſtand afar off, for fear of her torment, weeping and wailing, 16. And ſaying, Alas, alas, that great city that was cloathed in fine linnen, and purple, and ſcarlet, and decked with gold, and precious ſtones, and pearls: 17. For in one hour ſo great riches is come to nought. And every ſhip-maſter, and all the company in ſhips, and ſailors, and as many as trade by ſea, ſtood afar off, 18. And cried, when they ſaw the ſmoke of her burning, ſaying, What city is like unto this great city? 19. And they caſt duſt on their heads, [l] and cried, weeping and wailing, ſaying, Alas, alas, that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ſhips in the ſea, by reaſon of her coſtlineſs: for in one hour is ſhe made deſolate. 20. Rejoice over her, thou heaven, and ye holy apoſtles, and prophets, [m] for God hath avenged you on her. 21. And a mighty angel took up a ſtone like a great mill-ſtone, and caſt it into the ſea, ſaying, Thus with violence ſhall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and ſhall be found no more at all. [n] 22. And the voice of harpers and muſicians, and of pipers, and of trumpeters, ſhall be heard no more at all in thee; [o] and no craftſman, of whatſoever craft he be, ſhall be found any more in thee; and the ſound of a mill-ſtone ſhall be heard no more at all in thee: [p] 23. And the light of a candle ſhall ſhine no more at all in thee; and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride ſhall be heard no more at all in thee: [q] for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy ſorceries were all nations deceived: 24. And in her was found the blood of prophets, and of ſaints, and of all that were ſlain upon the earth. [r]

[k] 2 Pet. ii. 3.

[l] Joſh. vii. 6. Job ii. 12.

[m] Eph. ii. 20.

[n] Jer. li. 63, 64. Ex. xv. 5. Neh. ix. 11.

[o] Iſa. xxiv. 8. Ezek. xxvi. 13.

[p] Jer. xxv. 10.

[q] Jer. vii. 34. & xxv. 11.

[r] Mat. xxiii. 29—35.

v. 4—24. We have here,

1. Warning given to the people of God to ſeparate themſelves from Babylon myſtical, and, becauſe of her enormous provocations againſt God, to retaliate upon her righteous vengeance. She proudly vaunted her imperial ſtate, and boaſted of her ſecurity; but ſudden deſtruction ſhall overtake her; and, hurled from the ſummit of grandeur, death, mourning, and famine ſhall ſeize her, and by the judgment of the Almighty Lord ſhe ſhall be utterly burnt with fire. Note, (1.) They who would be ſaved from the ruin of the wicked, muſt ſeparate themſelves from their ſociety. (2.) God will give righteous judgment to the ſinner, and repay him according to the multitude of his ungodlineſſes.

2. A doleful lamentation is taken up for her fall by the kings and merchants of the earth, and ſailors, the cardinals, prieſts, monks, Jeſuits, and other eccleſiaſtics, who trafficked in diſpenſations, indulgencies, &c. making merchandize of the ſouls of men. Standing afar off, and beholding the ſmoke of her burning, they will bewail her ſudden and irrecoverable ruin, and therewith the loſs of all that grandeur, wealth, and luxury, in which they had long indulged themſelves: a ſorrow of the world which worketh death, and but aggravates the miſeries complained of.

3. The ſaints of God, with the apoſtles and prophets, are called to triumph over her, and to rejoice in her fall: for when the wicked fall there is ſhouting; not from a ſpirit of private revenge, but from a delight to behold God glorified in his righteous judgments.

4. To give a ſign of Babylon's irrecoverable ruin, a mighty angel hurls a mill-ſtone into the ſea, intimating, that all joy ſhould for ever ceaſe, every kind of traffick be at an end, the neceſſaries of life fail, no light appear, no bridal ſong any more be heard, but ſolitude and ſilence reign in her deſolate palaces; becauſe by her ſorceries and idolatries ſhe had bewitched the earth, and at her hands was required the blood of all the martyrs which had been ſlain on the earth by her cruel edicts and perſecutions. Note, The ſinner who ſinks down into the abyſs of hell under the wrath of God, is loſt for ever, and ſhall never riſe up again.

CHAP. XIX.

In this chapter we have, 1. A farther account of the triumphant ſong of angels and ſaints for the fall of Babylon, ver. 1—4. 2. The marriage between Chriſt and the church proclaimed and perfected, ver. 5—10. 3. Another warlike expedition of the glorious head and huſband of the church, with the ſucceſs of it, ver. 10, &c.

1. AND after theſe things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, ſaying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power unto the Lord our God: 2. For true and righteous are his judgments; [a] for he hath judged the great whore, which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of his ſervants at her hand. [b] 3. And again they ſaid, Alleluia. [c] And her ſmoke aroſe up for ever and ever. 4. And the four and twenty elders, and the four beaſts [d] fell down and worſhipped God that ſat on the throne, ſaying, Amen; Alleluia.

[a] Chap. xv. 3. & xvi. 7.

[b] Chap. xvi. 6. & xviii. 20.

[c] Pſ. cvi. 18.

[d] Chap. iv. 4—6.

v. 1—4. A command being given in v. 20. of the former chapter, to the ſaints of God, to rejoice over Babylon fallen, we have here their ſong of praiſe on that occaſion. They cried, Alleluia, aſcribing ſalvation, and glory, and honour, and power, to the Lord their God; acknowledging his righteous judgments in the vengeance executed on the great whore, for her lewdneſs, idolatry, and cruelty; and they repeated loud Alleluias, whilſt the ſmoke of her torment aroſe up for ever and ever. The four living creatures, and the elders, the repreſentatives of the miniſters and the church of the redeemed, hereupon joined in their adorations before the throne, and joyfully cried, Amen! Alleluia! Note, Even the torment of the damned will afford matter of praiſe to God's ſaints, and glory to himſelf.

5. And a voice came out of the throne, ſaying, Praiſe our God, all ye his ſervants, and ye that fear him, both ſmall and great. [e] 6. And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thundrings, ſaying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth, [f] 7. Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herſelf ready. [g] 8. And to her was granted, that ſhe ſhould be arrayed in fine linnen, clean and white: for the fine linnen is the righteouſneſs of ſaints. [h] 9. And he ſaith unto me, Write, Bleſſed are they which are called unto the marriage-ſupper of the Lamb. [i] And he ſaith unto me, Theſe are the true ſayings of God. [k] 10. And I fell at his feet to worſhip him: And he ſaid unto me, See thou do it not: [l] I am thy fellow-ſervant, and of thy brethren that have the teſtimony of Jeſus: worſhip God: [m] for the teſtimony of Jeſus is the ſpirit of prophecy.

[e] Pſ. cxxxiv. 1. & cxxxv. 1, 2. & cxv. 13.

[f] Pſ. xlvii. 1, 2. & xcvii. 1.

[g] 2 Cor. xi. 2. Iſa. lxii. 5. Hoſ. ii. 19.

[h] Iſa. lxi. 10. Mat. xxii. 11, 12.

[i] Luke xiv. 15, 16.

[k] Chap. xxi. 5.

[l] Acts x. 25, 26. & xiv. 13—15.

[m] Mat. iv. 10.

v. 5—10. The ſong of triumph over Babylon being ended, a voice from the throne enjoins the hoſt of the redeemed to unite in the praiſes of their common Lord; and inſtantly innumerable voices, loud as cataracts of water, or mighty thunders, poured forth their Halleluias: For the Lord God omnipotent reigneth; ſince the antichriſtian powers are broken, his kingdom of grace is extended through the earth, and his dominion univerſal over a willing people. The marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herſelf ready; therefore let us be glad, and rejoice, and give honour to him. And this many refer to the converſion of the Jews, who will now be brought into the church, and be publicly in profeſſion joined to the Lord as his people.

1. The dreſs of the Lamb's wife is deſcribed. She is arrayed in fine linnen, clean and white; and that is interpreted to ſignify the righteouſneſs of ſaints, both imputed and implanted, whereby the church becomes meet for the boſom of her Lord, beautiful in the comelineſs he puts upon her.

2. They are declared bleſſed, who are invited, and come to the marriage-ſupper of the Lamb; partaking of all the privileges and ordinances of the goſpel, thereby admitted to the happieſt communion with Jeſus, and joined to the Lord in one Spirit.

3. The angel cloſes with a ſolemn aſſurance of the truth of this revelation, which ſhould not fail of its accompliſhment; and, overcome with the brightneſs of his glory, John fell at his feet, and was ready to pay him divine honour; not conſidering what he did: but the angel rebuked him for his inconſiderate deſign. He owns himſelf unworthy of that honour, which was due to God alone; and, glorious as he appeared, was but the apoſtle's fellow-ſervant, bearing teſtimony to the ſame Jeſus, and now revealing what the Saviour dictated to him, who inſpired the prophets, and ſent him to deliver this meſſage to John for the church's uſe and comfort. Note, The higheſt created being hath no more title to our worſhip than the loweſt; it is the ſame idolatry to worſhip an angel as a worm.

11. And I ſaw heaven opened, [n] and behold, a white horſe, and he that ſat upon him was called faithful and true, and in righteouſneſs he doth judge and make war. 12. His eyes were as a flame of fire, [o] and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written that no man knew [p] but he himſelf: [q] 13. And he was clothed with a veſture dipt in blood: [r] and his name is called, The Word of God. [s] 14. And the armies which were in heaven followed him [t] upon white horſes, [u] clothed in fine linen, white and clean. 15. And out of his mouth goeth a ſharp ſword, that with it he ſhould ſmite the nations: and he ſhall rule them with a rod of iron: [w] and he treadeth the wine-preſs [x] of the fierceneſs and wrath of almighty God. [y] 16. And he hath on his veſture and on his thigh [z] a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS. 17. And I ſaw an angel ſtanding in the ſun; and he cried with a loud voice, ſaying to all the fowls that fly in the midſt of heaven, Come and gather yourſelves together [a] unto the ſupper of the great God [b]; 18. That ye may eat the fleſh of kings, and the fleſh of captains, and the fleſh of mighty men, and the fleſh of horſes, and of them that ſit on them, and the fleſh of all men, both free and bond, both ſmall and great. [c] 19. And I ſaw the beaſt, and the kings of the earth, and their armies gathered together, [d] to make war againſt him that ſat on the horſe, and againſt his army. 20. And the beaſt was taken, and with him the falſe prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beaſt, and them that worſhipped his image. Theſe both were caſt alive into a lake of fire burning with brimſtone. [e] 21. And the remnant were ſlain with the ſword of him that ſat upon the horſe, which ſword proceeded out of his mouth: [f] and all the fowls were filled with their fleſh.

n Iſa. lx. 15.
o Chap. i. 14.
p John i. 1—14. Judges xiii. 18. Iſa. ix. 6.
q Mat. xi. 27.
r Gen. xlix. 11. Iſa. lxiii. 1—3.
s 1 John i. 1.
t 2 Kings ii. 11. & vi. 17. Zech. i. 8.
u Judges v. 18.
w Pſ. ii. 9.
x Iſa. lxiii. 3.
y Nah. i. 6.
z Pſ. xlv. 3.
a Zeph. i. 7.
b Tit. ii. 13.
c Ezek. xxxix. 17, 20.
d Chap. xvi. 16. Joel iii. 2—12.
e Mark ix. 43—48.
f 2 Theſ. ii. 8.

v. 11—21. The Lord Jeſus here appears in Majeſty to execute vengeance on the beaſt and his adherents, now aſſembled to make their laſt efforts.

1. A moſt magnificent deſcription is given of the Captain of our ſalvation. He is ſeated on a white horſe, the emblem of victory; he is called faithful and true, performing all his promiſes to his people, and in righteouſneſs executing vengeance on his enemies. His eyes, bright as the flame, pierce into the ſecrets of the ſoul; and his many crowns of gold denote his univerſal dominion; his name and nature, as Jehovah, none can comprehend; his bloody veſture beſpeaks his conqueſt over his ſlaughtered foes; and one of the names, whereby he hath revealed himſelf, is, The Word of God. Cloſe behind him followed his faithful warriors, his ſaints arrayed in robes of righteouſneſs and garments of ſalvation; from his mouth proceeds the ſharp ſword of his denunciations of vengeance, before which his foes muſt fall: as a potter's veſſel before an iron rod, ſo ſhall they be broken to pieces; and as grapes laid in the wine-preſs, ſo ſhall he trample them in his fury; and on his veſture, where it hung down over his thigh, was this illuſtrious motto wrought, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS!

2. A call is given to all the fowls of the air, to aſſemble on this dread occaſion, and feaſt on the corpſes of all the antichriſtian hoſt, both great and ſmall, who are now about to periſh together.

3. The army of the ungodly, Papiſt, Pagan, and Mahometan, aſſembles under the conduct of the beaſt; the battle is joined, the victory deciſive; the beaſt and falſe prophet, which wrought the lying wonders, are taken; and the ringleaders in the antichiſtian apoſtacy are caſt together, body and ſoul, into the burning lake; and all their adherents fall by the ſword of him that ſat on the white horſe, and the fowls are gorged with their carcaſes. And now, all foes being ſubdued, the glorious millennium commences, when the kingdoms of the world become the kingdoms of the Lord and of his Chriſt.

CHAP. XX.

This chapter is thought, by ſome, to be the darkeſt part of all this prophecy; it is very probable the things contained in it are not yet accompliſhed; and therefore it is the wiſer way to content ourſelves with general obſervations, than to be poſitive and particular in our explications of it. Here we have an account, 1. Of the binding of Satan for a thouſand years, ver. 1—3. 2. The reign of the ſaints with Chriſt for the ſame time, ver. 4—6. 3. Of the looſing of Satan, and the conflict of the church with Gog and Magog, ver. 7—10. 4. Of the day of judgment, ver. 11, &c.

1. AND I ſaw an angel come down from heaven, [a] having the key of the bottomleſs pit, [b] and a great chain in his hand. 2. And he laid hold on the dragon that old ſerpent, which is the devil and Satan, and bound him a thouſand years. 3. And caſt him into the bottomleſs pit, and ſhut him up, [c] and ſet a ſeal upon him, that he ſhould deceive the nations no more, [d] till the thouſand years ſhould be fulfilled: and after that he muſt be looſed for a little ſeaſon. 4. And I ſaw thrones, [e] and they ſat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I ſaw the ſouls of them that were beheaded for the witneſs of Jeſus, and for the word of God, and which had not worſhipped the beaſt, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Chriſt [f] a thouſand years. 5. But the reſt of the dead lived not again until the thouſand years were finiſhed. This is the firſt reſurrection. [g] 6. Bleſſed and holy is he that hath part in the firſt reſurrection: on ſuch the ſecond death hath no power, [h] but they ſhall be prieſts of God, and of Chriſt, and ſhall reign with him a thouſand years.

a Heb. ii. 14. 1 John iii. 8.
b Chap. xi. 7.
c Mat. viii. 29. Luke viii. 31.
d 1 Pet. v. 8.
e Dan. vii. 22—27. Mat. xix. 28. 1 Cor. vi. 2, 3.
f Zech. xiv. 5. 1 Theſ. iii. 13. & iv. 16, 17.
g Ezek. xxxvii. 10, 12. Rom. xi. 15.
h Chap. xxi. 8.

v. 1—6. The fourth period now commences.

1. Satan, the great deceiver, is bound by the angel of the everlaſting covenant, and caſt into the bottomleſs pit, reſtrained from all exerciſe of his power, and permitted no more, during a thouſand years, to trouble the peaceful and happy ſtate of the church; when they are expired, for a little ſeaſon he will again be looſed.

2. The reign of the ſaints with Chriſt begins, which ſome interpret literally of the reſurrection of ſaints and martyrs, with whom Chriſt will perſonally dwell upon earth, during a thouſand years before the general reſurrection; but I rather concur with thoſe who interpret this of the glorious ſtate of the church during this period, when the faithful, who are one in ſpirit with all the former martyrs and confeſſors, who had faithfully oppoſed the antichriſtian tyranny, and now behold judgment executed upon their foes, theſe and their ſucceſſors ſhall reign in a ſtate of great dignity, peace, proſperity, and joy, Satan being no longer able to interrupt their repoſe; whilſt all their former enemies are ſo entirely ſubdued, as figuratively to be called dead; and during this period none will be found to interrupt or diſturb the felicity of the ſaints. This happy ſtate may metaphorically be well ſtiled the firſt reſurrection, and is a figure of that which ſhall follow at the end of time.

3. The happineſs of theſe ſouls is great. Bleſſed and holy is he that hath part in the firſt reſurrection: on ſuch the ſecond death hath no power, but they ſhall be prieſts of God, and of Chriſt, and ſhall reign with him a thouſand years, in body, ſoul, and ſpirit devoted to him, and experiencing the felicity of his ſervice here, as the pledge of that eternal glory and bleſſedneſs which they expect hereafter.

7. And when the thouſand years are expired, Satan ſhall be looſed out of his priſon, [i] 8. And ſhall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, [k] to gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the ſand of the ſea. 9. And they went up on the breadth of the earth, [l] and compaſſed the camp of the ſaints about, [m] and the beloved city; and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them. [n] 10. And the devil that deceived them was caſt into the lake of fire and brimſtone, [o] where the beaſt and the falſe prophet are, and ſhall be tormented day and night for ever and ever.

i 1 Pet. iii. 19.
k Ezek. xxxviii. 39.
l Iſa. viii. 8.
m Num. ii. 2.
n Ezek. xxxviii. 22. & xxxix. 6. Jude 7.
o Chap. xix. 20. Mat. xxv. 41. Gen. xix. 24, 25.

v. 7—10. The fifth period begins with the looſing of Satan, the thouſand years being expired. His going forth once more to deceive; his prevalence over the nations, whom once more he will aſſemble, even Gog and Magog, the figures of thoſe enemies of the church ſo named of old, and they ſhall ſurround the camp of the ſaints and the beloved city; but fire from heaven ſhall conſume them, and the devil that deceived them will now be finally ſhut up in the eternal priſon of hell, with the beaſt and the falſe prophet, to be tormented for ever and ever. To what event this refers; who are the nations meant by Gog and Magog; or what time this period occupies, is utterly myſterious, and where we muſt be content to be ignorant. The events themſelves alone can unfold the prophecy.

11 And I ſaw a great white throne, [p] and him that ſat on it, from whoſe face the earth and the heaven fled away, and there was found no place for them. [q] 12. And I ſaw the dead, both ſmall and great, ſtand before God; [r] and the books were opened: and another book was p John xvi. 11.

q 2 Pet. iii. 10.
r John v. 22.

opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of thoſe things which were written in the books, according s Mat. xxv. 31, 46. & xvi. 27. 2 Cor. v. 10. 1 Cor. xv. 51, 52. 1 Theſ. iv. 15, 17. to their works.[s] 13. And the ſea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works. 14. And death and hell were caſt into the lake of fire: This is the ſecond death. 15. And whoſoever was not found written t Mat. iii. 12. Mark ix. 43, 48. in the book of life, was caſt into the lake of fire.[t]

v. 11—15. The ſixth period ſeems evidently to refer to the final judgment, which is here awfully deſcribed.

1. The Judge appears on his magnificent throne, and before him the elementary heavens vaniſh, and the earth flies away.

2. All, both ſmall and great, appear at his tremendous bar; the ſea and the grave give up their dead; the books are opened of God's omniſcience, where every work and ſecret thought of men are recorded, and they are judged accordingly; whilſt in the book of life of the Lamb their names are found written who ſhall never enter into condemnation. Note, Before this awful day arrives, we ſhould judge ourſelves that we may not then be judged of the Lord, and ſo continually live under the apprehenſion and influence of it, that we may then have nothing to fear.

3. The iſſue of the great aſſize is, that death and hell, the grave, for ever were aboliſhed; and the wicked who exiſted in their ſeparate ſtate, now raiſed to life, even all who are not found written in the book of life, are caſt into the lake of fire: this is the ſecond death, inexpreſſibly more dreadful than the firſt, for here immortality itſelf will be a curſe, and the torments be intolerable and eternal. Lord, gather not my ſoul with ſinners in that day!

CHAP. XXI.

Hitherto the prophecy of this book has preſented to us a very remarkable mixture of light and ſhade, proſperity and adverſity, mercy and judgment, in the conduct of Divine Providence towards the church in the world; now, at the cloſe of all, the day breaks, and the ſhadows flee away; a new world now appears, the former being paſſed away. Some are willing to underſtand all that is ſaid in theſe two laſt chapters, of the ſtate of the church even here on earth, in the glory of the latter days; but others, more probably, take it as a repreſentation of the perfect and triumphant ſtate of the church in heaven: Let but the faithful ſaints and ſervants of God wait a while, and they ſhall not only ſee, but enjoy the perfect holineſs and happineſs of that world. In this chapter you have, 1. An introduction to the viſion of the new Jeruſalem, ver. 1—9. 2. The viſion itſelf, ver. 10, &c.

a Iſa. lxv. 17. & lxvi. 22. 1. AND I ſaw a new heaven, and a new earth:[a] for the firſt heaven and the firſt earth were paſſed b Iſa. lvii. 20. away; and there was no more ſea.[b] 2. And I John ſaw the holy city,[c] new Jeruſalem, coming down from c Heb. xi. 10. God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her d Jude 24. huſband.[d] 3. And I heard a great voice out of heaven, ſaying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and e Ex. xxxvii, 27. he will dwell with them,[e] and they ſhall be his people, f Pſ. cxliv. 15. and God himſelf ſhall be with them, and be their God.[f]
4. And God ſhall wipe away all tears from their eyes,[g] g Iſa. li. 11. and there ſhall be no more death, neither ſorrow, nor crying, neither ſhall there be any more pain: for the former things are paſſed away. 5. And he that ſat upon h Iſa. xliii. 19. the throne ſaid, Behold, I make all things new.[h] And he ſaid unto me, Write: for theſe words are true and i Pſ. xxxiii. 9. faithful. 6. And he ſaid unto me, It is done.[i] I am k Chap. i. 8. Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end:[k] I will give unto him that is athirſt, of the fountain of the water l John vii. 37, 38. of life freely.[l] 7. He that overcometh ſhall inherit all m Heb. ii. 13. things, and I will be his God, and he ſhall be my ſon.[m]
8. But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and ſorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, ſhall have their part in the lake n 2 Cor. vi. 9, 10. Gal. v. 19, 21. which burneth with fire and brimſtone:[n] which is the ſecond death.

v. 1—8. The laſt glorious period now commences of the heavenly felicity of God's ſaints, if that may be ſo called, which, though it hath a beginning, never will have an end.

The bleſſedneſs of the heavenly ſtate is here deſcribed under the moſt auguſt repreſentations.

1. A new heaven and earth riſes, where there is no ſea, all ſtorms, calamities, and troubles being at an end, and an eternal reſt remaining for the people of God.

2. A glorious city appears in view, ſuch as earth never beheld, the new Jeruſalem, whoſe maker and builder is God, beautiful as a bride adorned to meet the bridegroom, the emblem of the church of the redeemed, who will then be perfected in holineſs and happineſs for ever.

3. The unutterable felicity of God's ſaints is deſcribed by a voice from heaven, declaring (1.) The reſidence of God in the midſt of his people, admitting them into the neareſt relation with his bleſſed ſelf, taking them for his own, and offering himſelf as their eternal portion. (2.) He will for ever baniſh ſin, ſorrow, and death from the celeſtial manſions; the former imperfect ſtate is paſſed away, and that of perfect happineſs is come.

4. The certainty of this bliſs and bleſſedneſs is confirmed by the word of him that ſitteth on the throne, Behold, I make all things new. And again he ſaid, Write, for theſe words are true and faithful. And he added, It is done, the work of redemption is completely finiſhed. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, who will aſſuredly accompliſh what I have begun, I will give unto him that is athirſt for ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly things, to drink of the fountain of the water of life freely, admitting him, of my ſovereign grace and favour, to all the unutterable delights of never-ending conſolations in my immediate preſence and glory. He that overcometh ſhall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he ſhall be my ſon, entitled to all the dignity and honour of that tranſcendently-glorious relation.

5. The dreadful ruin of the wicked ſhall be as ſure as the happineſs of the ſaints; they are deſcribed as fearful, aſhamed of the croſs of Chriſt, and dreading the ſufferings of his ſervice; unbelieving, diſtruſtful of his promiſes, and rejecting his word; abominable, the ſlaves of corrupt affections; murderers, whoremongers, ſorcerers, idolaters, and all liars, theſe are doomed to ſuffer endleſs torment in the lake which burneth with fire and brimſtone: which is the ſecond death. Wo to thoſe on whom theſe ſins are found; they are aſſuredly brands for the burning.

9. And there came unto me one of the ſeven angels,[o] o Chap. xvi. 1.
which had the ſeven vials full of the ſeven laſt plagues, and talked with me, ſaying, Come hither, I will ſhew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife.[p] 10. And he carried p Mat. xxii. 2.
me away in the ſpirit to a great and high mountain, and ſhewed me that great city, the holy[q] Jeruſalem, deſcending q Mat. iv. 5.
out of heaven from God, 11. Having the glory of God:[r] and her light was like unto a ſtone moſt precious, r Ex. xl. 35. 1 Kings viii, 11.
even like a jaſper-ſtone,[s] clear as cryſtal; 12. And had a wall great and high,[t] and had twelve gates, and at the s Iſa. xl. 19, 20.
gates twelve angels, and names written thereon, which t Iſa. xxvi. 1. & lx. 18.
are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Iſrael.
13. On the eaſt, three gates; on the north, three gates;
on the ſouth, three gates; and on the weſt, three gates.[u] u Ezek. xlviii. 31, 34.
14. And the wall of the city had twelve foundations,[w] w Eph. ii. 20. Heb. xi. 10. Iſa. xxviii. 16.
and in them the names of the twelve apoſtles of the Lamb. 15. And he that talked with me had a golden reed to meaſure the city,[x] and the gates thereof, and the x Zech. ii. 1, 2.
wall thereof. 16. And the city lieth four-ſquare, and the length is as large as the breadth: and he meaſured the city with the reed, twelve thouſand furlongs:[y] the length, y Ezek. xlviii. 35.
and the breadth, and the height of it are equal. 17.
And he meaſured the wall thereof, an hundred and forty and four cubits, according to the meaſure of a man, that is, of the angel. 18. And the building of the wall of it was of jaſper; and the city was pure gold, like unto clear glaſs. 19. And the foundations of the wall of the city were garniſhed with all manner of precious ſtones.[z] The z Iſa. liv. 11, 12.
firſt foundation was jaſper; the ſecond, ſapphire; the third, a chalcedony; the fourth, an emerald; 20. The fifth, ſardonyx; the ſixth, ſardius; the ſeventh, chryſolite;
the eighth, beryl; the ninth, a topaz; the tenth, a chryſophraſus; the eleventh, a jacinct; the twelfth, an amethyſt.[a] 21. And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; a Ex. xxviii. 15, 21.
every ſeveral gate was of one pearl; and the ſtreet of the city was pure gold, as it were tranſparent glaſs.

v. 9—21. One of thoſe miniſtring ſpirits who had lately been employed in pouring out the vials of wrath, leads the enraptured John to a nearer view from a neighbouring mountain of the glorious city, the emblem of the church, the Lamb's wife, which he ſaw deſcending from heaven.

The glory of God, the divine ſhechinah, was viſible in the midſt of her, affording her the brighteſt light, Jeſus the ſun of righteouſneſs ſhining upon her; a vaſt high wall, and angelic guards waiting at her gates, inſcribed with the names of the twelve tribes, through which the ſealed of the Lord entered into the city, denoted her invincible defence and ſecurity. The gates ſtood three on each ſide, looking to the four quarters of the heavens, open for the faithful who ſhould come from all lands; the twelve foundations of the walls bore the names of the apoſtles on whom the church is built, Jeſus Chriſt himſelf being the chief corner-ſtone; the city, on being meaſured, appeared four ſquare, to ſignify the perfection, ſtability, and uniformity of the church above; it was fifteen hundred miles on each ſide, intimating its vaſt extent; and the heighth of the walls proportionable to its length and breadth, even one hundred and forty-four cubits; the building was of jaſper, and the city of pure gold like chryſtal, denoting its magnificence, durability, and glory; and the foundations garniſhed with every precious ſtone, brighter than thoſe which glittered in the high prieſt's breaſt-plate, (Exod. xxviii. 15—21.) and the gates were each of one maſſy pearl; and the ſtreet of the city was of burniſhed gold, poliſhed like chryſtal. Every thing excellent and dazzling in the ſight of mortals, is here heaped together with amazing profuſion, and yet how faintly can all theſe images convey the delights, bleſſedneſs, and perfection of the heavenly ſtate, where ſuch good things are prepared as paſs man's underſtanding!

22. And I ſaw no temple therein: for the Lord God Almighty, and the Lamb, are the temple of it. 23. And the city had no need of the ſun, neither of the moon to ſhine in it:[b] for the glory of God did lighten it,[c] and the Lamb is the light thereof. 24. And the nations of them which are ſaved,[d] ſhall walk in the light of it:[e] and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honour into it. 25. And the gates of it ſhall not be ſhut at all by day:[f] for there ſhall be no night there. 26. And they ſhall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it. 27. And there ſhall in no wiſe enter into it any thing that defileth,[g] neither whatſoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lye:[h] but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life.

b 1 Cor. xv. 28.
c 1 Kings viii. 10, 11. Iſa. lx. 19, 20.
d Iſa. xliv. 20. & lxvi. 19.
e Iſa. lx. 1, 3.
f Jer. xlix. 34.
g Iſa. lii. 1.
h 1 Tim. iv. 2. 2 Theſ. ii. 11, 12. Hab. i. 13. Jer. xliv. 4.

v. 22—27.

1. No temple was found in this celeſtial city, immediate communion with the eternal God being there enjoyed, which renders all the preſent ordinances of approach to God needleſs.

2. No ſun nor moon were wanted, where the uncreated Light himſelf abode; the glory of God and the Lamb, one in eſſential union with the Father and Spirit, is the light thereof.

3. There all the nations, ſaved through the atoning blood of Jeſus, walk in the light of the Lord; and the potentates, who through grace partake of his ſalvation, bring thither their glory and honour, counting that they reign indeed when made kings and prieſts unto God in this eternal ſtate of bleſſedneſs.

4. The gates ſtand open continually by day, and there is no night there, nor fear of invading foes; all that hath ever appeared valuable and glorious among the nations here, with infinitely ſurpaſſing excellence is found there, and every thing defiling is forbidden admiſſion; no liar, no idolater eſpecially can enter there, but only thoſe whoſe names are written in the book of life of the Lamb. Note, Into the preſent churches upon earth hypocrites will inſinuate themſelves, but into heaven nothing unholy or impure can be admitted; all there are perfected in holineſs.

CHAP. XXII.

In this chapter we have, 1. A farther deſcription of the heavenly ſtate of the church, ver. 1—6. 2. A confirmation of this and all the other viſions of this book, ver. 6—20. 3. The concluſion, ver. 20, 21.

1. AND he ſhewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as cryſtal,[a] proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.[b] 2. In the midſt of the ſtreet of it, and of either ſide the river, was there the tree of life[c] which bear twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. 3. And there ſhall be no more curſe:[d] but the throne of God and of the Lamb ſhall be in it; and his ſervants ſhall ſerve him. 4. And they ſhall ſee his face;[e] and his name ſhall be in their foreheads.[f] 5. And there ſhall be no night there, and they need no candle, neither light of the ſun; for the Lord God giveth them light,[g] and they ſhall reign for ever and ever.[h] a Gen. ii. 10.

b Ezek. xlvii. 1, 12. Pſ. xvi. 11.
c Gen. ii. 9.
d Gen. iii. 16, 19.
e Mat. v. 8. 1 Cor. xiii. 12. John xvii. 24. 1 John iii. 2.
f Pſ. xvii. 15. Exod. xxviii. 36, 38.
g Pſ. xxxvi. 9.
h 2 Cor. iv. 17.

v. 1—5. The angelic guide here further leads the apoſtle to view ſome other emblematical glories of this celeſtial city.

1. A river of water of life, clear as cryſtal, flowing from the throne of God, and of the Lamb, the figure of thoſe eternal conſolations, and that vital influence immediately derived from communion with the fountain of eternal bliſs.

2. The tree of life, the emblem of Jeſus the Lord of life and glory, here ſpread its branches on both ſides the river, or ſeveral in a row were planted on the river's bank, yielding perpetual fruit, new every month, and the very leaves are for the healing of the nations; intimating the rich proviſion of unceaſing delights that is here made for the faithful, and their perfect preſervation in ſoul and body from all decay or infirmity.

3. No curſe can there enter; the eternal felicity and impeccability of the ſaints are ſecured, and before the throne of God and of the Lamb they ſhall pay their unceaſing adorations, enjoy the beatific viſion of the God of glory, and bear his bright image on them viſible as if his name was engraven on their foreheads.

4. No night is there, nor need they the ſun or a candle, where the Lord God is their everlaſting Light, and they reign with him for ever and ever. O bleſt abode! my ſoul, aſpire after it, and eager preſs for an entrance into this everlaſting kingdom of thy God and Saviour.

6. And he ſaid unto me, Theſe things are faithful and true. And the Lord God of the holy prophets ſent his angel to ſhew unto his ſervants the things which muſt ſhortly be done. 7. Behold, I come quickly:[i] bleſſed is he that keepeth the ſayings of the prophecy of this book. 8. And I John ſaw theſe things, and heard them. And when I had heard and ſeen, I fell down to worſhip before the feet of the angel, which ſhewed me theſe things. 9. Then ſaith he unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow-ſervant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the ſayings of this book: worſhip God.[k] 10. And he ſaith unto me, Seal not the ſayings of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand.[l] 11. He that is unjuſt, let him be unjuſt ſtill: and he that is filthy, let him be filthy ſtill: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous ſtill: and he that is holy, let him be holy ſtill.[m] 12. And behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me,[n] to give every man according as his work ſhall be.[o] 13. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end,[p] the firſt and the laſt. 14. Bleſſed are they that do his commandments,[q] that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city. 15. For without are dogs,[r] and ſorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whoſoever loveth and maketh a lye. 16. I Jeſus have ſent mine angel to teſtify unto you theſe things in the churches. I am the root and the offſpring of David,[s] and the bright and morning ſtar.[t] 17. And the Spirit and the bride ſay, Come. And let him that heareth ſay, Come. And let him that is athirſt, come: And whoſoever will, let him take the water of life freely.[u] 18. For I teſtify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man ſhall add unto theſe things, God ſhall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book: 19. And if any man ſhall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God ſhall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.[w] i Heb. x. 37.

k Mat. iv. 10.
l Chap. i. 1, 3.
m Eph. v. 27.
n Iſa. xl. 10. & lxii. 11.
o 2 Cor. v. 10.
p Chap. i. 8, 11.
q Chap. xii. 17. & xiv. 12.
r Mat. vii. 6. Phil. iii. 2. Mat. xxii. 13. Chap. xxi. 8.
s Mat. xxii. 42, 45.
t Num. xxiv. 17. Mal. iv. 2.
u Iſa. lv. 1.
w Deut. iv. 2. & xii. 32. Mal. iv. 4.

v. 6—19. We have here,

1. A ſolemn ratification given by the angel of the certainty of theſe events. Theſe ſayings are faithful and true, and he was ſent expreſly from the Lord Jeſus to reveal to John the things that would begin ſhortly to be accompliſhed, and continue fulfilling until the end of time.

2. The Lord Jeſus himſelf ſpeaks. Behold, I come quickly; prepare to meet me; the whole period of time is comparatively ſhort and momentary: bleſſed is he that keepeth the ſayings of the prophecy of this book, faithfully adheres to the goſpel word, and confidently expects the fulfilment of the promiſes.

3. Overcome with what he heard and ſaw, and ſcarce himſelf through rapture, he fell before the angel, and is ready to adore him, but again is reproved and prevented; God is the only worthy object of adoration; angels are but our fellow-ſervants.

4. The Lord again addreſſes him, and bids him not ſeal up the prophecies of this book, but deliver them to the church, the time for their fulfilment now approaching, and when they are accompliſhed, men's everlaſting ſtate will be fixed unchangeably. He that in the great day is found filthy and unjuſt, muſt remain ſo for ever under the wrath of God; and he that is found righteous in the Lord, and made holy by his Spirit, ſhall be eternally bleſſed.

5. He repeats his aſſurance for the comfort of his people. Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his works ſhall be, whether good or bad. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the firſt and the laſt, unchangeable in love to my people, eternally the ſame in faithfulneſs, grace, and power, to protect and preſerve them for ever. And it will ſhortly appear how bleſſed are they that do his commandments, and approve their fidelity to God, that they may have right, through the promiſe, to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city, partaking of all the inconceivable bleſſedneſs prepared for the faithful; whilſt thoſe who ſhall be found diſobedient, unholy, and profane, ſhall be eternally excluded from theſe bright manſions. For without are dogs, and ſorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whoſoever loveth or maketh a lye; whoever lives and dies under the guilt of any of theſe things periſhes irrecoverably.

6. The Lord Jeſus confirms to him what the angel had told him. I Jeſus, your Lord and Maſter, have ſent mine angel to teſtify unto you theſe things in, or concerning, the churches, and their future ſtate and condition. I am the root and offspring of David; as God, his root; as man, his offspring; and the bright and morning ſtar, leading my people in paths of everlaſting peace.

7. The ſpirit and the bride ſay, Come, welcoming the Saviour, and waiting the fulfilment of his promiſe. And let him that heareth, even every faithful ſoul take up the word and ſay, Come. And let him that is athirſt for ſpiritual bleſſings, come: and whoſoever will, let him take of the water of life freely; and out of theſe wells of ſalvation the Scriptures draw the living ſtreams of grace and conſolation. For I teſtify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, if any man ſhall add unto theſe things, now the canon of revelation is complete, by new pretended viſions, or wilful perverſion of their meaning, God ſhall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book: and if any man ſhall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God ſhall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book. An awful ſanction, which guards the ſacred records, and binds the heavieſt vengeance upon thoſe who dare, by baſe adulterations, to add thereto, or to diminiſh therefrom.

20. He which teſtifieth theſe things ſaith, Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even ſo, come, Lord Jeſus.[x]
21. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all.[y]
Amen.

x Chap. i. 7.
y 2 Theſ. iii. 17, 18.

v. 20, 21. The Lord Jeſus cloſes his Revelation,

1. With a ſolemn confirmation of the whole. He which teſtifieth theſe things ſaith, Surely I come quickly, certainly and ſpeedily, for the comfort and ſalvation of my people.

2. The apoſtle, in the name of all the faithful, profeſſes his confidence in the promiſe, Amen! Lord, I believe, fulfil it in due ſeaſon. Even ſo be it, come, Lord Jeſus, and bring our complete and final ſalvation!

3. He concludes with his benediction. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all! May you experience the riches of his ſovereign favour and love, be ſtrengthened by his Spirit mightily in the inner man, faithfully to ſtand in every evil day, comfortably and confidently perſevering in the truth; may you, when all your conflicts end, enter into that eternal ſtate of reſt and bleſſedneſs which is here revealed. Amen! Such are my prayers for thee, reader; may we now, without ceaſing, be found uniting our ſupplications before a throne of grace; and together may we meet around a throne of glory, and ſpend a happy eternity in the praiſes of our adored Jeſus! Amen!

FINIS.

MVSEVM
BRITAN
NICVM